LATIN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY

Ella Webber
Wright Hall.
Alma
Michig

Progressive Exercises in Latin Elegiac Verse.

By C. G. GEPP, M.A. Crown 8vo. 4*s.*

KEY, supplied to Teachers only. Price 5*s.* 3½*d.* net.

Arnold's Henry's First Latin Book.

Edited and Revised by C. G. GEPP, M.A. 12mo. 3*s.* 6d.

KEY, supplied to Teachers only. Price 5*s.* 2½*d.* net.

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.

LONDON, NEW YORK, BOMBAY, CALCUTTA, AND MADRAS

LATIN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY

A

LATIN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY

BY

C. G. GEPP, M.A.

Author of 'Progressive Exercises in Latin Elegiac Verse,' etc.

AND

A. E. HAIGH, M.A.

Late Fellow of Hertford College, Oxford; formerly Lecturer of Corpus Christi and Wadham Colleges

NEW IMPRESSION

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.

39 PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON

FOURTH AVENUE & 30TH STREET, NEW YORK

BOMBAY, CALCUTTA, AND MADRAS

1919

Made in Great Britain

PREFACE

THIS volume is the result of an endeavour to supply, in a cheap and handy form, a Latin-English Dictionary, containing, with their meanings and inflexions, all the words which Junior Boys in Schools are likely to encounter in the course of their reading; while, at the same time, it is believed to be sufficiently complete to meet the requirements of the ordinary student, or of the rusty scholar who wishes to renew his acquaintance with his favourite authors. Thus, poetic usages and constructions have been more fully treated than in the abridged Dictionaries generally in use, especially in the way of explanation and translation, while many words peculiar to Plautus and Lucretius, or to late prose writers, have been purposely excluded. On the other hand, the names of standard authors quoted are not invariably given, the space thus saved being devoted to the insertion of words commonly found only in the larger Dictionaries, and to the treatment of Proper Names and their derivatives in alphabetical order. Amongst other special features in this work it may suffice to mention the following:—

Syncopated and contracted forms are inserted in alphabetical order. Perfects and supines of doubtful authenticity are omitted. Comparative and superlative forms will be found at the end of the adjectives to which they belong, and they are given only when there is good authority for their use. References are made to Professor Kennedy's Public School Latin Primer and Public School Latin Grammar, and to the Latin Grammars of Madvig and Roby. Etymological essays and disquisitions on phonetic changes have been discarded, or only very sparingly introduced. Where authorities and MSS. differ so widely, to give an orthography beyond the reach of cavil would be impossible. The forms used in this work are those adopted by most recent editors; and, generally speaking, the orthography is based upon the Appendix in the Public School Latin Grammar (pp. 547-551).

With regard to the etymology of words, the Editors have thought it best to give the derivations most generally received, not because they are convinced that philological and etymological studies may be advantageously begun at an early age, but because the omission of such matter would inevitably provoke the adverse criticism of those who regard a root as a species of fetich. So much uncertainty exists on these points, authorities are so much at variance, and modern scholars have so much to unlearn from time to time,—seeing that the philology of twenty years ago is now practically obsolete,—that the Editors, who lay no claim to infallibility, are fain to express a hope that they are not very much behind the age, and that they have been fairly successful in eradicating obviously untenable derivations. References are made to Curtius's Principles of Greek Etymology (5th Ed., 1886), and to Professor Nettleship's Essays in Latin Literature (1885).*

Pages 1 to 328 (A to L inclusive) with the Appendices are the work of Mr. Gepp. The remaining letters (M to Z) are the work of Mr. Haigh. Each Editor is responsible for his own share of the work only. The Editors have spared no pains to ensure accuracy. References to authors have been carefully verified and revised, new and improved readings have been adopted, and many errors which have been handed down even to the exceptionally accurate Lexicon of Messrs. Lewis and Short have been eliminated.

* This acknowledgment, which formed part of the original preface, was accidentally omitted in 1888.

I desire to express my indebtedness to previous compilers of Latin-English Dictionaries, who are no less indebted than myself to Freund and Forcellini; to the works of the late Professor Munro, and Professors Mayor, Wilkins, and Kennedy; to Quicherat's Thesaurus Poeticus Linguae Latinae; to the Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities by Mr. Rich; to a Manual of Roman Antiquities by the late Professor Ramsay; and especially to the Orations of Cicero, so ably edited by Drs. Reid and Holden in the 'Pitt Press Series.' To Dr. Reid I am under personal obligation for advice and assistance freely and courteously given to an entire stranger.

C. G. GEPP.

October 1888.

ABBREVIATIONS USED IN THIS WORK.

I. NAMES OF AUTHORS QUOTED.

App., Lucius Appuleius, philosopher. (About A.D. 150.)
Auson., D. Magnus Ausonius, poet. (About A.D. 350.)
Caes., C. Iulius Caesar, historian. (Died B.C. 44.)
Calpurn., Calpurnius Siculus, poet. (About A.D. 55.)
Cato, M. Porcius Cato, orator and historian. (B.C. 234-149.)
Catull., C. Valerius Catullus, poet. (B.C. 87-47.)
Cic., M. Tullius Cicero, orator and philosopher. (B.C. 106-43.)
Claud., Claudius Claudianus, poet. (About A.D. 400.)
Col. or Colum., L. Iulius Moderatus Columella, writer on husbandry. (About A.D. 50.)
Curt., Q. Curtius Rufus, historian. (About A.D. 50.)
Eutr., Flavius Eutropius, historian. (About A.D. 360.)
Hirt., Aulus Hirtius, historian. (Died B.C. 43.)
Hor., Q. Horatius Flaccus, poet. (B.C. 65-8.)
Iuv., D. Iunius Iuvenalis, satirist. (A.D. 40-120.)
Livy, Titus Livius Patavinus, historian. (B.C. 59—A.D. 17.)
Luc., M. Annaeus Lucanus, poet. (A.D. 39-65.)
Lucr., T. Lucretius Carus, poet and philosopher. (B.C. 95-52.)
Manil., M. Manilius, poet. (About A.D. 12.)
Mart., M. Valerius Martialis, poet. (A.D. 43-104.)
Nemes., M. Aur. Olympius Nemesianus, poet. (About A.D. 283.)
Nep., Cornelius Nepos, biographer. (About B.C. 44.)
Ov., P. Ovidius Naso, poet. (B.C. 43—A.D. 18.)
Pers., A. Persius Flaccus, satirist. (A.D. 34-62.)
Petr. or Petron., T. Petronius Arbiter, satirist. (About A.D. 60.) Phaedr., T. Phaedrus, writer of fables. (About A.D. 15.)
Plaut., T. Maccius Plautus, writer of comedy. (B.C. 254-184.)
Plin., C. Plinius Caecilius Secundus (minor), orator and writer of letters. (A.D. 61-115.)
Prop. or Propert., S. Aurelius Propertius, poet. (B.C. 51-18.)
Quint., M. F. Quintilianus, rhetorician. (A.D. 40-118.) Sall., C. Sallustius Crispus, historian. (B.C. 86-34.)
Sen., L. Annaeus Seneca, writer of tragedy. (Died A.D. 63.)
Sil. Ital., C. Silius Italicus, poet. (A.D. 25-100.)
Stat., P. Papinius Statius, poet. (A.D. 61-96.)
Suet., C. Suetonius Tranquillus, biographer. (About A.D. 116.)
Tac., C. Cornelius Tacitus, historian. (A.D. 60-118.)
Ter., P. Terentius Afer, writer of Comedy. (B.C. 195-159.)
Tib. or Tibull., Albius Tibullus, poet. (B.C. 54-18.)
Val. Fl., C. Valerius Flaccus, poet. (About A.D. 70.)
Varr., M. Terentius Varro, writer on husbandry, antiquities, etc. (B.C. 116-28.)
Verg. or Virg., P. Vergilius (Virgilius) Maro, poet. (B.C. 70-19.)

II. OTHER ABBREVIATIONS.

abbr., abbreviated, -ation.
abl., ablative; abl. abs., ablative absolute.
absol., absolute, -ly.
abstr., abstract.
acc., accusative; according.
ad fin., ad finem (towards the end) adj., adjective.
adjj., adjectives.
adv., adverb, -ial, -ially.
advv., adverbs.
al., alii; aliter.
Ant., Antiquities.
app., apposition.
App., Appendix.
appel., appellative.
arch., archaic
c., common.
causat., causative.
cf., confer (compare).
class., classic, -al.
coll., collect., collective, -ly.
colloq., colloquial, -ly. compar., comparative.
concr., concrete.
conj., conjunction.
constr., construed, constructed, construc[tion.
contr., contracted.
dat., dative.
decl., declension.
defect., defective.
defin., definitive.
demonstr., demonstrative.
dep., deponent; dependent.
deriv., derived, derivation, derivative.
diff., different.
dim., diminutive.
dissyll., dissyllable, -abic.
distrib., distributive, -ly.
dub., doubtful.
e.g., exempli gratiâ (for instance).
ellipt., elliptical, -ly.
Engl., English.

epith., epithet.
esp., especially.
etc., et cetera.
etym., etymology, -ical.
euphem., euphemism.
euphon., euphony, euphonic.
f. or fem., feminine.
fig., figure; figurative, -ly.
follg., following.
Fr., French.
freq., frequent, frequently; frequentative.
fut., future.
gen., genitive; generally.
Germ., German.
Gk., Greek.
grammat., grammatical.
heterocl., heteroclite.
Ins., Insulae.
id., idem.
i.e., id est.
imperat., imperative.
imperf., imperfect.
impers., impersonal, -ly.
incept., inceptive.
indecl., indeclinable.
indef., indefinite.
Ind.-Eur., Indo-European.
indic., indicative.
inf., infin., infinitive.
intens., intensive.
interj., interjection.
interrog., interrogative, -tion.
intrans., intransitive.
iron., ironical, -ly.
irreg., irregular.
Lat., Latin.
Lat. Gr., Latin Grammar. lit., literal, -ly.
L. L., Late Latin.
locat., locative.
L. P., Public School Latin Primer. m., masculine.
M., Mount. Mountain.
math., mathematics, -ical.
medic., medical.
Met., Metamorphoses. metaph., metaphor; metaphorical, -ly.
meton., by metonymy.
milit., military.
MS., MSS., manuscript, manuscripts.
Mt., Mount, Mountain.
n., neut., neuter.
neg., negat., negative, -ly.
nom., nominative.
num., numer., numeral.
obj., object; objective, -ly.
obl., oblique.
obsol., obsolete.
O. L., Old Latin.
onomatop., onomatopœia.
opp., opposed to; opposite, -tion.
orig., original, -ly.

p., page.
part., participle.
partit., partitive.
pass., passive, -ly.
patron., patronymic.
perf., perfect.
pers., person.
phr., phrase, phrases.
pl., plural.
pluperf., pluperfect.
poet., poetical, -ly.
polit., political, -ly.
pos., positive.
post-Aug., post-Augustan. preced., preceding.
pregn., pregnant.
prep., preposition.
prepp., prepositions.
pres., present.
prob., probably.
pron., pronoun.
pronom., pronominal.
prop., proper, -ly; in a proper sense.
prov., proverb; proverbial, -ly.
prps., perhaps.
P. S. L. G., Public School Latin Grammar. qs., quasi.
q.v., quod videas.
reflect., reflective, -ly.
reflex., reflexive, -ly.
reg., regular, -ly.
rel., relat., relative, -ly.
relig., religious.
rhet., rhetor., rhetoric, -al; in rhetoric.
Rom., Roman.
rt., root.
Sanscr., Sanscrit.
sc., scilicet.
signif., signification; signifies.
sing., singular.
sts., sometimes.
subj., subjunctive.
subst., substantive, -ly.
substt., substantives.
suff., suffix.
sup., supine.
superl., superlative.
syll., syllable.
sync., syncopated.
techn. t., technical term.
temp., temporal.
traj., trajective.
traj. trans., trajective-transitive.
trans., transitive.
transf., transferred.
transl., translated, -tion.
trisyll., trisyllable, -abic.
uncontr., uncontracted.
unip., unipers., unipersonal.
us., usu., usual, -ly.
v., verb.
voc., vocative.

Words marked † are borrowed from the Greek. The interrogation in brackets, thus [?], denotes a doubtful etymology, thus (?), denotes a word of questionable authenticity.

LATIN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY

A

(1) A, a, indecl. n. the first letter of the Latin alphabet; sts. with 'litera' in apposition.

(2) Ā, ā, interj. = ah! (q.v.)

(3) Ā, ā, prep. with abl. See ab.

(4) A., as an abbr. 1.='Aulus,' a Roman prænomen. 2. = (a) 'absolvo' (q.v.), in voting at trials; (b) = 'antiquo' (q.v.), in voting on laws. So, more frequently, A. P. = 'antiquam legem) propho.' 3. a. d. = 'ante diem.' See App. A. 4. A. U. C.= 'anno urbis conditæ.' 5. A. P. R. C. = 'anno post Romam conditam.'

ăb, also ā, abs, prep. with abl. only, 1. (of place) from, away from: ab urbe proficisci; a Capua mille sex passuum subsedit, he halted six miles from Capua; a milibus passuum octo naves tenebantur, the ships were weather-bound eight miles off. 2. (position) on the side of, at, in: a fronte, in front; a tergo, in the rear, behind; a me stare, to be on my side, take my part; hoc a me est, this is in my favour; haud (non) ab re esse, to be relevant, advantageous, desirable. 3. (time) counting from, since, after: a puero, from boyhood; ab his, after these (words). 4. (rank) next to, after. 5. (origin) from, of. 6. (respect) on the part of, in point of. 7. (separation) from: ab hostibus tutus, safe from or against the enemy. 8. (with abl. of the Agent and Verb in pass. voice) by, from. So, occasionally with intrans. verbs and adjectives. 9. (denoting office or work, with or without servus): a manu, an amanuensis; a pedibus, a courier, etc. 10. (cause) out of, in consequence of. Also (poet.) redundant with Instrumental abl. [Ab always before h and vowels, and may stand before any consonant, but is rare before b, f, m, p, and v.]

ăbactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abigo. As adj. (poet.): nox abacta, night far spent; oculi abacti, eyes deep sunk or hollow.

abdico

ăbăcus, i, m. [ἄβαξ, ἄβακος], 1. a sideboard, whatnot. 2. a chessboard. 3. a board used like a slate for diagrams, etc.; a counting-board.

ăb-ălīēno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. separate, remove, draw off, withdraw. II. (legal) convey, transfer, sell. III. (fig.) 1. estrange. 2. deprive of (with abl. of thing).

Ăbantēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Abas.

Ăbantĭădēs, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Abas; esp. his son Acrisius and grandson Perseus.

Ăbăris, is, m. (acc. Abarim and -in), 1. a Rutulian. 2. a Thracian companion of Phineus. 3. a priest of Apollo.

Ăbas, ntis, m. the twelfth king of Argos, son of Lynceus and Hypermnestra, grandson of Danaus, and father of Acrisius.

ăb-āvus, i, m. [avus], I. a great-great-grandfather. II.(meton.) an ancestor.

Abdēra, ōrum, n. pl. and -ae, f. [Ἄβδηρα], Abdera, a town of Thrace; the birthplace of Democritus, Protagoras, and other famous men. It was noted for the dulness of its inhabitants.

Abdērīta (-es), ae, m. a man of Abdera, an Abderite; sts. used as a term of reproach. See Abdera.

Abdērītānus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Abdera. II. (meton.) stupid, dull. See Abdera.

abdĭcātio, ōnis, f. [abdico], 1. a disowning, disinheriting. 2. resignation of an office, abdication.

(1) ab-dīco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. disown, reject. 2. renounce, disinherit. 3. —— se magistratu, to resign one's office, abdicate. Rarely intrans., or with acc. of office.

(2) ab-dīco, ĕre, xi, ctum, trans. v. 1. (techn. of unfavourable omens) refuse assent to. 2. (legal) take away by judicial sentence.

abesse

abdĭtē, adv. [abditus], secretly.

abdĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abdo. As adj. hidden: abdita rerum (partit. gen.), out-of-the-way subjects, new ideas=res abditas. As subst. abdĭtum, i, n. a hidden place.

ab-do, ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, trans. v. put away, withdraw, new up, hide: abdere se, to take one's self off, retire; —— in silvas, go into the woods and hide one's self in them. Poet. (with dat. abl. or locat.) abdidit ensem latri, he plunged the sword deep in his side.

abdōmen, ĭnis, n. I. the paunch, belly. II. (meton.) gluttony, sensuality.

ab-dūco, ĕre, xi, ctum, trans. v. I. 1. lead away, draw or carry off. 2. draw back, withdraw. II. (fig.) 1. distinguish, separate. 2. abstinate, divert, seduce. 3. degrade, lower.

abductus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abduco.

Abella (Ăv-), ae, f. a town of Campania, famous for its filberts and fruit-trees.

Abellānus (Āv-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Abella.

ăb-ĕo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ĭtum, intrans. v. I. go away, depart; pass away, elapse, vanish. II. (fig.) 1. (with prep. in and acc.) am transformed, pass; take to, adopt: absunt in crura lacerti; in avi mores. 2. leave off, quit, abandon: ab ira, to violate the law. 3. turn out, result, issue. 4. (in auctions) not to come to one, not to be knocked down to. 5. (of market prices) fall, go back or down. 6. (poet. of a spear) penetrate. 7. pass unpunished, come off, get off, lure, Cic., Virg.

ăb-ĕquito, āre, āvi, intrans. v. ride off or away.

ăberrātĭo, ōnis, f. [aberro], a diversion or relaxation.

ăb-erro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. I. go astray; II. (fig.) 1. wander, deviate. 2. turn one's thoughts from a subject, lose or forget one's-self.

ăbesse, pres. infin. from absum.

abfŏrĕ, abfŏrem, fut. infin. and imperf. subj. from absum.

Abgărus (Ach.) i, m. a title of kings of Edessa.

ăb-hinc, adv. apo, since (generally with acc. and cardinal number; less frequently with abl.).

ăb-horrĕo, ēre, ŭi, intrans. v. 1. shrink back from (with abl. or with prep. a or ab; sts. by a stretch of constr. with acc.). II. (fig.) 1. am averse to, shocked at, recoil from. 2. differ from, am inconsistent with. 3. am free from, have no share in. 4. am unfit, unsuitable, inopportune.

ăbĭcī, abicit. See abicio.

ăb-ĭcĭo(ăb)-, ĭcĕrĕ, iēcī, iectum, [iacio], trans. v. I. 1. cast or throw away; throw down: abiecta se or abici (pass. reflex.), to throw one's-self down, cast one's-self. 2. strike or dash down. II. (fig.) 1. fling or throw aside, part with at a loss, sacrifice, abandon. 2. degrade, lower. 3. (rhet. techn. t.) deliver without expression, slur over.

abiectē (ăbĭ-), [abiectus], adv. despondingly, meanly. Compar. abiectius.

abiectĭo (ăbĭ-), ōnis, f. [id.], a throwing away; a throwing down: animi, dejection, despondency.

abiectus, a, um (ăbĭ-), perf. pass. part. from abicio. As adj. 1. downcast, despondting. 2. mean, contemptible: res abiectae, reduced or fallen fortunes. Compar. abiectior ; superl. abiectissimus.

ăbĭĕgnus (ăbĭ-), a, um, adj. [abies], made of deal or fir. Scanned as trisyll. abyĕgnus.

ăbĭens, gen. ăbĕntis, pres. part. from abeo.

ăbĭēs, ētis, f. I. the silver fir; a fir-tree. II. (meton.) anything made of deal or fir ; a ship ; a javelin; a lance, spear. In the oblique cases scanned as trisyll. (ăbyētis, ăbyētĕ) in poetry.

ăb-īgo, ĕre, ēgi, actum [ago], trans. v. 1. drive off or away, expel, get rid of ; deter ; repudiate. 2. (of cattle) carry off, lift. 3. (medical) partum, procure abortion.

ăbisti, contr.=abiisti, 2d sing. perf. act. abeo.

ăbissĕ, for ăbiissĕ, ăbīvissĕ, from abeo.

ăbĭtĭo, ōnis, f. [abeo], a departure.

ăbĭtus, ūs, m. [id.], 1. a departure, retirement. 2. an outlet.

ab-lūdĭco (ablj-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. take away from a person by judicial sentence (with dat. of pers. or prep. ab und abl.).

abiunctus (ablj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from abiungo.

ab-iungo (ablj-), ĕre, nxi, nctum, trans. v. 1. unyoke.

ab-iungo (ablj-), ĕre, nxi, nctum, trans. v. 1. unyoke. 2. separate: me, I detach or emancipate myse'f from.

abiūrātus (ablj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from abiuro, disc.aimed with oaths.

ab-iūro (ablj-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. deny on oath, swear off, forswear.

ablj-. See under abi-.

ablātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from aufero.

ablĕgātĭo, ōnis, f. [ablĕgo], a sending away, banishment.

ab-lĕgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. send to a distance or out of the way ; remove, exclude ; banish.

ab-lĭgurrĭo (-gūrĭo), īre, īvi, ītum, trans. v. 1. lick up. 2. squander in eating and drinking.

ab-lŏco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. let on hire, lease out.

ab-ludo, ĕre, si, sum, intrans. v. am out of harmony with, differ from: non multum a, suit very well. Cf. ἁμᾴδω in Gk.

ab-lŭo, ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, trans. v. 1. wash away or off, cleanse, purify. 2. purge away, remove, expiate, atone for.

ablūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abluo.

ab-nĕgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. refuse, deny. 2. shrink from doing a thing (with infin.).

ab-nĕpos, ōtis, m. a great-great-grandson.

ab-neptis, is, f. a great-great-granddaughter.

ab-normis, e, adj. [norma], without fixed rule, irregular ; sapiens, a philosopher of no particular school.

Abnŏba (Mons), ae, m. the range of hills covered by the Black Forest in Germany.

ab-nŭo, ĕre, ŭi, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) refuse by a nod, decline : non abnuo, I am content. B. (trans.) 1. reject. 2. deny (with acc. and infin.). 3. forbid. 4. renounce, give up. 5. not to admit of, be unfavourable to.

ăb-ŏlĕo, ĕre, ēvi (ŭi), ĭtum, [oleo (1)], trans. v. lit. check the growth of. 1. efface, abolish, destroy. 2. burn. 3. (poet.) boil down, cleanse. Virg. G. iii. 525.

ăb-ŏlesco, ĕre, ēvi, [incept. from aboleo], intrans. v. decay, fade, fall into disuse, vanish.

ăbŏlĭtĭo, ōnis, [id.], 1. an annulling, abolition, repeal, rejection. 2. an amnesty.

ăbolla, ae, f. [deriv. dub. (?) ἀναβολή], a thick cloak or mantle worn over the toga by soldiers. An abolla of larger size was worn by philosophers. Hence, fincinus maioris abollae, a crime belonging to a wider cloak, i. e. committed by an austere philosopher.

ăb-ŏmĭnor, āri, ātus sum, dep. 1. put from one as ominous; deprecate, wish away. 2. abhor, detest. Perf. part. used passively, ăbŏmĭnātus, a, um, detested, abhorred.

Aborīgĭnes, um, m. pl. [origo], I. the Aborigines : the original inhabitants of a country : esp. in Latin writers, the name of an ancient people who expelled the Siculi from Latium. II. (meton.) ancestors.

ăb-ōrior, īri, ortus sum (ăbŏrĭscor, i, Lucr.), intrans. dep. sink down, fail ; disappear.

ăbortīvus, a, um, adj. [abortus], prematurely born ; addled. As subst. ăbortīvum, i, n. a drug causing miscarriage.

(1) ăbortus, a, um, perf. part. from aborior.

(2) ăbortus, ūs, m. [aborior], a miscarriage.

ab-rādo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. I. scrape or rub off; shave ; peel. II. (fig.) extort, rob.

abrāsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abrado.

abreptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abripio.

ab-rĭpio, ĕre, rĭpŭi, reptum, [rapio], trans. v. I. 1. snatch or drag away, tear off. 2. hurry or carry away ; se, cut one's lucky. II. (fig.) 1. remove, detach. 2. squander, waste.

ab-rōdo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. gnaw off or away.

abrŏgātĭo, ōnis, f. [abrogo], an annulling or repealing of a law.

ab-rōgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. annul a law, repeal it entirely, cancel ; sts. with dat. 2. take away an office from me, deprive one of it : imperium alicui, dethrone. II. (fig.) take away from, deprive one of.

abrōsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abrodo.

‡ abrōtŏnum (habr-), i, n. and -us, i, m. [ἀβρότονον], southernwood ; an aromatic plant used medicinally.

ab-rumpo, ĕre, rūpi, ruptum, trans. v. I. break or tear off ; rend asunder, rive, sever, divide, separate. II. (fig.) 1. break off short, interrupt, cut short. 2. violate, destroy. 3. cut off or take away from a person.

abruptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abrumpo. In middle sense, bursting forth : abruptis turbata procellis freta. As adj. 1. inaccessible, steep. As subst. abruptum, i, n. a. a steep place ; precipice, reef, abyss. II. (fig.) 1. perilous, dangerous : contumacia. As subst. abruptum, i, n. a dangerous elevation ; a steep (and so perilous) path. 2. (of style or speech), disconnected, abrupt.

abs, prep. with abl. only ; in Cic. chiefly with tes.

abs-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans. v. 1. go off or away, depart ; retire, retreat, recede. (Poet.) break loose or escape from one (with dat.). 2. leave off, desist (with abl. or prep. a (ab) and abl.).

abscessus, ūs, m. [abscedo], a departure, withdrawal, absence, retirement.

abs-cīdo, ĕre, , cīdi, cīsum, [caedo], trans. v. cut off, cut short, abridge, leave unfinished.

ab-scindo, ĕre, scĭdi, scissum, trans. v. 1. tear or rend off or apart ; sever, part, divide : venas, open or lance one's veins. II. (fig.) cut off, preclude.

abscissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abscindo. Like mid. voice in Gk. with acc. : flaventes abscissa comas, having her auburn tresses rent.

abscĭus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abscido. As adj. steep, abrupt, precipitous.

absconditē, adv. [absconditus], obscurely ; profoundly.

absconditus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abscondo. As adj. hidden, concealed, secret.

abs-condo, ĕre, di (dĭdi), dĭtum, trans. v. 1. put out of sight or hide carefully. Pass. used reflexively, (of stars) vanish, set. 2. (poet.) pass from the sight of, leave in one's wake, drop below : Phaeacum arces.

abs-ens, ntis, part. from absum. As adj. absent, at a distance.

absentia, ae, f. [absens], absence.

ab-sĭlĭo, īre, ŭi (ŭi), [salio], intrans. v. leap or spring off (Poet.) by stretch of constr. with acc., spring away from, leave.

ab-sīmilis, e, adj. unlike.

‡ absinthium, ĭi, n. [ἀψίνθιον], wormwood ; 'bitters.'

ab-sisto, ĕre, stĭti, intrans. v. 1. withdraw, stand aloof from ; go away ; usu. in sistere ab, to come or rose up to. 2. leave off, cease from, forbear (with abl. or infin.). 3. (poet. of sparks) start or flash forth.

absōlūtē, adv. [absolutus], completely, thoroughly.

absōlūtio, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. an acquittal. 2. completion, perfection.

absōlūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from absolvo. As adj. 1. unrestricted, unconditional. 2. finished, completed.

ab-solvo, ĕre, vi, solūtum, trans. v. I. unfasten, set loose, release : —— se, clear one's-self. II. (fig.) 1. (legal) acquit (with gen. abl. or prep. de and abl.) : pardon. 2. clear off, explain away accusations. III. bring to a conclusion, complete, execute, despatch (often in Sall. with prep. de). IV. pay off.

ab-sōnus, a, um, adj. 1. out of tune, discordant. 2. (with dat. or prep. ab), out of harmony or keeping with, incompatible, unsuitable.

ab-sorbĕo, ēre, bŭi, ptum, trans. v. I. gulp down, swallow up, engulph. II. (fig.) absorb, engross.

(?) absorptĭo, ōnis, f. [absorbeo], a draught, beverage.

absp.. See asp-.

abs-quē, prep. with abl. only, without ; except.

abs-tēmĭus, a, um, adj. [?=abstemetius ; cf. temetum], sober, temperate, moderate.

abs-tentus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abstineo.

abs-tergĕo, ĕre, rsi, rsum, trans. v. I. wipe off or away, brush away : dry, rub clean. II. (fig.) wipe out, obliterate.

abs-terrĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. I. frighten away, scare. II. (meton.) remove.

abstersi, contr. = abstersisti, 2d sing. perf. act. from abstergeo.

abstersus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abstergeo.

abstĭnens, ntis, part. from abstineo. As adj. with abl. and poet. with gen. abstaining from ; self-denying, temperate.

abstĭnenter, adv. [abstinens], moderately, temperately ; unselfishly, disinterestedly.

abstĭnentĭa, ae, f. [abstinens], 1. self-restraint ; the absence of unlawful greed or gratification, disinterestedness ; respect for the rights of property. 2. abstinence from food, fasting, starvation.

abs-tinĕo, ēre, ŭi, tentum, [teneo], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) hold or keep off, withhold, restrain, repress. B. (intrans.) abstain from, spare ; refrain, forbear : a mulieribus ; iniuriā ; praefari ; quin castra obpugnent ; (poet. with gen. in imitation of Gk. construction) irarum.

ab-sto, stāre, intrans. v. stand off or at a distance.

abstractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abstraho.

abs-trāho, ĕre, xi, ctum, trans. v. I. drag away or off. II. (fig.) withdraw, divert, detach.

abstraxē, for abstraxisse, perf. infin. act. from abstraho.

abs-trūdo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. thrust or push away ; conceal.

abstrūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from abstrudo. As adj. I. hidden, concealed. II. (fig.) deep, reserved. Compar. abstrusior.

ab-sum, esse, āfŭi, āfŭtūrus, n. v. I. am away from, am absent or at a distance. 2. keep aloof from, have nothing to do with ; am free from. 3. am far removed or differ from ; hence, am ahead of, or (vice versa) am inferior to. 4. am wanting ; am of no service to (with dat.). Hence, not to appear in court for a person, refuse his brief, cf. adsum, II. 1. 5. impers. in following phrases : tantum abest ut huic rei impedimento sim, ut contra te adhorter, etc., so far am I from being an obstruction to this measure, that, on the contrary, I exhort you, etc. ; haud multum (paulum, etc.) afuit quin legatos nostros interficerent, they were within an ace of killing our envoys ; neque longius abesse quin proximā nocte, etc., and that no later than (or as early as) the next night.

ab-sūmo, ĕre, mpsi, mptum, trans. v. I. take away. II. consume, waste, spend. 2. destroy ; kill ; exhaust.

absumptus a, um, perf. pass. part. from absumo.

absurdē, adv. [absurdus], 1. discordantly, harshly ; in bad taste. 2. absurdly, senselessly, irrationally. Compar. absurdius.

ab-surdus, a, um, adj. [root sur-; cf. su-sur-rus, συρίζειν], I. out of tune, tuneless. discordant, harsh. II. (fig.) 1. dull, stupid, senseless ; contrary to reason, absurd. 2. mean, good-for-nothing, tasteless. Compar. absurdior ; superl. absurdissimus.

Absyrtus, i, m. [Ἄψυρτος], 1. son of Aëtes, king of Colchis. When his sister Medea ran away with Jason, she took A. with her, and having cut him in pieces, scattered his limbs, in order to delay her father's pursuit. 2. a river of Illyria ; also written Apsyrtis.

ābundans, ntis, part. from abundo. As adj. 1. overflowing. 2. plentiful, abundant. 3. rich, abounding in (with gen. or abl.) Compar. abundantior ; superl. abundantissimus.

ābundanter, adv. [abundans], abundantly, copiously.

ābundantĭa, ae, f. [id.], 1. abundance, plenty. 2. wealth, riches. 3. repletion, surfeit.

ābundē, adv. [obsol. abundus], abundantly, in profusion ; exceedingly, decidedly. Sts. with gen. like parum, satis, etc.

ăb-undo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. 1. overflow. 2. am rich or abound in (with abl.). 3. (of plants) grow plentifully.

ăb-usquē, prep. with abl. [= usque ab], all the way from, even from.

(1) ăbūsus, a, um, perf. part. from abutor.

(2) ăbūsus, ūs, m. [abutor], a using up, consuming.

ăb-ūtor, i, ūsus sum, dep. with abl. ; with acc., Lucr. Ter. 1. use up, spend, squander. 2. take advantage of, misuse, abuse, put a strain upon.

Ăbȳdēnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Abydos ; iuvenis, i.e. Leander. As subst. Abydēnus, i, m. a man of Abydos.

Ăbȳdos (-us), i, m. and f. [Ἄβυδος], a town of Mysia, opposite Sestos, at the narrowest part of the Hellespont, famous for the story of Hero and Leander, and for Xerxes' bridge of boats.

Ăbȳlă, ae, f. a mountain in Africa, on the coast of the Fretum Gaditanum. It was one of the Pillars of Hercules, Calpe (Gibraltar) being the other.

ac, conj. See atque.

Ăcădēmĭa, ae, f. [Ἀκαδήμεια], the Academy, a gymnasium about six stadia from Athens, where Plato taught. It was named after the hero Academos. Cicero called his villa near Puteoli Academia. [Penult. sts. short in poet.]

Ăcădēmĭcus, a, um, of the Academy, Academic. As subst. Acadēmĭcus, i, m. an Academic philosopher. The followers of Plato were called Academici. See Academia.

Ăcădēmos, or -us, i, m. [Ἀκάδημος], an Attic hero, after whom the Academia was named.

‡ ăcălanthis, ĭdis, f. [ἀκαλανθίς], = acanthis.

Ăcămas, ntis, m. a companion of Diomed.

‡ (1) ăcanthis, ĭdis, f. [ἀκανθίς], a thistle-finch, goldfinch.

(2) Ăcanthis, ĭdis, f. a female traduced by the poet Propertius.

(1) ăcanthus, ĭ, m. [ἄκανθος], 1. the plant bear's-foot or bear's-breech, brank-ursine. 2. the Egyptian acacia, or shittim-tree of the Bible, whose pods (bacae) yield gum-grabic.

(2) Ăcanthus, ĭ, f. a Macedonian town.

‡ ăcăpnŏs, ŏn, adj. [ἄκαπνος], smokeless.

Ăcarnān, ānis, m. (acc. sing. Acarnāna; acc. pl. -ānas), an Acarnanian. Also as adj. Acarnanian.

Ăcarnānĭa, ae, f. [Ἀκαρνανία], the most westerly province of Greece, called after Acarnan, one of the Epigoni.

Ăcarnānĭcus, a, um, adj. Acarnanian.

Ăcastus, ĭ, m. 1. son of Pelias, king of Iolcos, and one of the Argonauts. He was father of Laodamia. 2. one of Cicero's servants.

Acbărus, ĭ, m. See Abgarus.

Acca, ae, f. 1. Acca Larentia, the wife of Faustulus, and foster-mother of Romulus and Remus. 2. a companion of Camilla.

Accălĭa, ĭum, n. pl. the Accalia, a festival in honour of Acca Larentia, kept in December. Cf. Larentalia.

ac-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, [ad, cedo], intrans. v. I. 1. approach, come near (with dat. or prepp. ad, in, with acc.): ad hastam (tecta, t.), attend and bid at an auction. In pass. impers.: accessum est ad Britanniam, Britain was reached. 2. approach in a hostile manner, attack: ad manum, come to close quarters, fight a pitched battle. II. (fig.) 1. fall to the lot of, happen. 2. be added: (with ut-clause, or quod-clause, as subject): accedebat ut tempestatem ferrent facilius, besides this, they weathered; accedebat quod dolebant. 3. am like, resemble (with dat. or prep. ad). 4. accede or assent to, approve. 5. enter upon, take in hand, undertake.

ac-cĕlĕro (ad-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) hasten, quicken. B. (intrans.) make haste, hurry up. In pass. impers.: quantum accelerari possit, with all possible haste.

ac-cendo, ĕre, ndi, nsum, [ad, cando, found only in compounds], trans. v. I. 1. kindle, set on fire. 2. light, light up. II. (fig.) 1. heat, inflame, incite. 2. enliven, enhance.

ac-censĕo, ēre, ŭi, nsum, (ad-), trans. v. reckon in addition to or among, add to. (Poet.) accenseor dominae, I am attached (as a companion) to my mistress.

(1) accensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from accendo.

(2) accensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from accenseo. As adj. reckoned among, added to. As subst. accensus, i, m. 1. an attendant on a Roman magistrate; an apparitor, court-usher; an attaché, orderly. The person to whom one is accensus is put in dat. or gen. (in pl.) accensi, ōrum, m. a class of soldiers in the Roman army who were enlisted after the legion had received its full complement, in order to fill up vacancies; supernumeraries.

acceptĭo, ōnis, f. [accipio], a taking, receiving.

acceptum, i, n. that which has been received, receipts; (in book-keeping) the credit side. See accipio, III.

acceptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from accipio. As adj. welcome, acceptable to; popular, favourite. Compar. acceptior; superl. acceptissimus.

accerso, ĕre, īvi. See arcesso.

accessĭo, ōnis, f. [accedo], 1. an approach, visit. 2. an accession, addition, increase, appendage.

accessus, ūs, m. [accedo], 1. a going near, approach. 2. access, admittance. 3. a way of approach, passage, entrance.

accēstis, sync. 2d pl. perf. act.= accessistis, from accedo.

Acciānus (Att-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Accius.

(1) ac-cĭdo, ĕre, cĭdi, (ad, cado], intrans. v. I. 1. fall upon, reach by falling: accidere genibus, or ad genua (pedes), to fall at a person's feet (as a suppliant). 2. hit a mark, strike (of missiles). 3. strike or reach (through the senses): nihil quod ad oculos animumque accideret; (with dat.) auribus. 4. come to hand, arrive (of a sound, report). II. (fig.) fall out, happen, occur: accidit ut contentione nihil opus esset, it happened that there was no need of exertion; sicut accidit, as it proved; si quid mihi accidat, if anything should happen to me, euphem.=if I should be killed.

(2) ac-cĭdo, ĕre, cīdi, cīsum, [ad, cædo], trans. v. I. 1. cut deep, cut close. 2. cut at, hew, fell, notch. II. (fig.) use up, consume; weaken, impair.

accinctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from accingo: non accinctus miles, a soldier without his sword. As adj. girded up, braced for action.

accingier, old infin. pass. = accingi, from accingo.

ac-cingo, ĕre, nxi, nctum, [ad, cingo], trans. v. I. gird to or on. (Poet.) pass. with reflexive meaning, (a) gird or arm myself with; (b) by a Virgilian stretch of constr. with acc.: magicas accingier artes, have recourse to, employ; (c) with infin.: accingar dicere, I will undertake to sing. 2. se accingere or accingi, to gird one's self for action, make ready, undertake (with dat.; prep. ad or in; or infin.). Sts. se is omitted. 3. equip, furnish, arm.

ac-cĭo, īre, īvi, ītum, [ad, cio], trans. v. call in, summon, fetch, procure.

ac-cĭpĭo, ĕre, cēpi, ceptum, [ad, capio], trans. v. I. 1. take, receive, get. 2. receive or entertain hospitably, or otherwise; treat: accipere in deditionem, to admit to a surrender, receive the submission of; in civitatem, to admit to the privileges of citizenship. II. (fig.) 1. take in by hearing, hear, learn. 2. perceive, understand. 3. regard, consider: accipere ad contumeliam . . in optimam partem, to regard as an insult . . in the most favourable light: aequo animo, to acquiesce in. 4. endure, sustain. 5. take upon one's self, undertake: causam. 6. approve, allow, accept. III. (in book-keeping) receive money; hence, acceptum, the credit side of a ledger: in acceptum (acceptum) referre alicui, to place to a person's credit; hence (metaph.), to impute or ascribe to a man.

accĭpiter, tris, m. (rarely f.), [cf. ἀκύπτερος, swift-winged], a hawk, falcon.

accīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from accido: accisi ungues, close-cropped hair. As adj. cut down, impaired, ruined, diminished.

(1) accĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from accio.

(2) accĭtus, ūs, [accio], m. a summons, call. Only in abl. sing.

Accĭus (Att-), ĭi, m. a Roman name. L. Accius, a Roman tragic poet, born a.c. 170.

acclāmātĭo (adc-), ōnis, [acclamo], f. 1. a shouting or calling to. 2. a crying out against, shout of disapprobation; less frequently, a shout of approbation, cheering.

ac-clāmo (adc-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, clamo], trans. v. 1. cry or shout at; cry out against. 2. shout in approbation at, applaud, cheer. (In Cic. in an unfavourable sense.)

acclārāssis, archaic = adclaraveris, from acciaro.

ac-clāro (adc-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. make clear, manifest.

acclĭnātus (adc-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from acclino.

ac-clīnis (adc-), e, [ad, clino], adj. with dat. 1. leaning on or against, resting on. 2. inclined or disposed to.

ac-clīno (adc-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, clino], trans. v. I. lean on or against: castra tumulo acclinare, to pitch one's camp on the slope of a mound. II. (fig.) (with reflex. pron.) to incline or lean towards.

ac-clīvis (adc-), e, adj. [ad, clivus], uphill, sloping upwards.

acclīvĭtas (adc-), ātis, f. [acclivis], an ascent, acclivity, a rise.

acclīvus, a, um, adj.=acclivis. A less common form.

Acco, ōnis, m. a chief of the Senones.

ac-cŏla, ae, c. [ad, colo], a dweller by or near, borderer, neighbour. Sts. in apposition= adj. neighbouring.

ac-cŏlo (adc-), ĕre, ŭi, [ad, colo], trans. v. I. dwell by or near. Sts. intrans. II. (?) till, tend.

accommŏdātē (adc-), adv. [accommodatus], fitly, conformably to.

accommŏdātio (adc-), ōnis, f. [accommodo], 1. a fitting, adjusting. 2. compliance, complaisance.

accommŏdātus (adc-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from accommodo. As adj. fit, adapted to, appropriate. Compar. accommodatior; superl. accommodatissimus.

accommŏdo (adc-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, commodo], traj. trans. v. 1. fit, adjust ; fit on. 2. adapt, accommodate, frame. 3. apply, bring into play. 4. lend. 5. (with dat. of person) oblige a person in something (de aliqua re).

ac-commŏdus (adc-), a, um, adj. fit, suitable, meet (with dat.).

ac-crēdo (adc-), ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, traj. v. believe fully. Sts. intrans. ; rarely with acc.

ac-cresco (adc-), ĕre, crēvi, crētum, [ad, cresco], intrans. v. I. grow larger, increase : caespes pectori adcreverat, the turf had been piled breast-high. II. am attached or appropriated to ; fasten on to.

accrētio (adc-), ōnis, f. [accresco], an increasing.

accŭbātio, ōnis, f. a by-form of accubitio.

accŭbĭtio, ōnis, f. [accubo], a lying or reclining at meals. Cf. triclinium.

accŭbitus, ūs, m. = accubitio.

ac-cŭbo (adc-), āre, [ad, cubo], traj. v. 1. lie by or near ; hence, be adjacent or close to. 2. lie down, repose. 3. recline at meals.

ac-cumbo (adc-), ĕre, cŭbŭi, cŭbĭtum, [ad, cumbo], intrans. v. 1. lie down. 2. recline at meals (with dat. or prep. in and abl.).

accŭmŭlātor (adc-), ōris, m. [accumulo], a heaper up, accumulator.

ac-cŭmŭlo (adc-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, cumulo], I. heap or pile up ; amass, accumulate. II. (fig.) 1. increase, augment, enhance. 2. (poet.) honour, endow : donis.

accūrātē (adc-), adv. [accuratus], carefully, exactly. Compar. accuratius, too elaborately (Caes.) ; superl. accuratissime.

accūrātio, ōnis, f. [accuro], carefulness, exactness.

accūrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from accuro. As adj. carefully done, precise, studied, elaborate (always of things). Compar. accuratior ; superl. accuratissimus.

ac-curo (adc-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, curo], trans. v. I. do carefully ; give heed to. 2. take good care of a guest, entertain.

ac-curro (adc-), ĕre, curri (cucurri), cursum, [ad, curro], intrans. v. I. run to, hasten to (often with prepp. ad, in) ; run up, hurry. Pass. impers. accurritur, a rush is made. II. (fig. of an idea) present itself, occur.

accursus (adc-), ūs, m. [accurro], a running up ; gathering, muster.

accūsābilis, e, adj. [accuso], blameworthy.

accūsātio, ōnis, f. [id.], an accusation, indictment.

accūsātor, ōris, m. [accuso], 1. an accuser, plaintiff, esp. in state trials. 2. an informer.

accūsātōrĭē, adv. [accusatorius], like an accuser, with an accuser's licence, i.e. falsely.

accūsātōrius, a, um, adj. [accusator], of or belonging to an accuser.

accūsātrix, ĭcis, f. [accuso], a female accuser.

ac-cūso, āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, causa], trans. v. 1. call to account, find fault with, take to task ; reprimand, blame. 2. (of criminal charges) state the charge against ; accuse, indict (used with gen. of the thing of which one is accused ; sts. with abl., or prep. de and abl.) : capitis, indict on a capital charge. Here the punishment implied in the accusation is put in gen. See caput.

(1) ăcer, ĕris, n. I. a maple-tree. II. (meton.) a writing-tablet made of maple.

(2) ăcer, cris, cre, adj. [root ac- ; cf. ac-ies, ac-uo), I. sharp, piercing, keen. II. 1. (of the senses), (a) taste or smell, pungent, sharp, acid, sour ; (b) hearing, shrill, sharp, crackling ; (c) sight, dazzling, brilliant ; keen, penetrating. 2. (generally) sharp, harsh, severe, violent. 3. (of mental emotions) vehement, strong, passionate, fierce, eager, zealous, spirited. 4. (of motion) active, rapid. 5. (of the intellect) keen, penetrating, shrewd, acute. Compar. acrior ; superl. acerrimus.

ăcerbē, adv. [acerbus], 1. harshly, bitterly, severely, cruelly. 2. painfully, to one's sorrow : ferre, find a thing trying or painful. Compar. acerbius ; superl. acerbissime.

ăcerbĭtās, ātis, f. [id.], I. sharpness, harshness, sourness. II. (fig.) 1. severity, rigour, moroseness, crabbedness. 2. rancour, hatred, hostility. 3. distress, anguish, hardship, affliction.

ăcerbo, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. embitter ; aggravate.

ăcerbus, a, um, adj. [root ac- ; cf. acer, acies], I. harsh to the taste, biting, sour ; unripe (opp. to mitis) ; hence, premature, untimely. II. (fig.) 1. harsh, rigorous, severe, crabbed, morose. 2. bitter, implacable, hostile. 3. grievous, distressing, painful. As subst. acerbum, i, n. a calamity. Neut. pl. = adv. Acerba tuens, with fierce or stern gaze ; fremens, fretting or murmuring bitterly ; sonans, whirring shrilly, with shrill hum. Compar. acerbior ; superl. acerbissimus.

ăcernus, a, um, (1) acer], adj. of maple-wood, maple.

ăcerra, ae, f. 1. an incense-box, censer, thurible. 2. a small altar on which incense was burned before the dead. See Dict. Ant.

Ăcerrae, ārum, f. pl. a town of Campania N.E. of Naples (now Acerra), on the river Clanius.

Ăcerrānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Acerrae.

‡ ăcērsĕcŏmēs, ae, m. [ἀκερσεκόμης = intonsus], a long-haired favourite.

ăcervātim, adv. [acervus], I. by or in heaps. II. (fig.) collectively, summarily, in a wholesale manner.

ăcervo, āre, āvi, ātum, [acervus], trans. v. heap or pile up ; amass ; accumulate.

ăcervus, i, m. I. a heap. II. (meton.) a large quantity ; a batch, pile, mass. III. (fig.) the heap of grain used to illustrate the argument in logic called Sorites (σωρείτης), attributed to the Stoic Chrysippus, consisting of a series of syllogisms linked together, the conclusion of one forming the premiss of the next.

ăcesco, ĕre, ăcŭi, [incept. aceo], intrans. v. grow or turn sour.

Ăcesta, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. a town in the N.W. of Sicily, near the modern Alcamo. Its early name was Egesta, its later one Segesta.

Ăcestenses, ium, m. pl. the men of Acesta.

Ăcestēs, ae, m. a king of Sicily, the mythic founder of Acesta or Segesta.

ăcētum, i, n. [sc. vinum, as if part. of aceo], I. sour wine, vinegar. II. (fig.) smart or pungent wit, raillery.

Achaeĭas, ădis, f. adj. = Achaias.

Achaeměnēs, is, m. [Ἀχαιμένης], the ancestor of the Persian kings, founder of the Achaemenian dynasty.

Achaeměnĭdēs (Achē-), ae, m. patron. [Achaemenes], 1. a descendant of Achaemenes ; the Achaemenidae were the noblest family of Persia. 2. the name of one of Ulysses' companions.

Achaeměnĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. Achaemenian. II. (poet. meton.) Persian.

(1) Achaeus, i, m. I. a son of Xuthus, and grandson of Helen. 2. a king of Lydia.

(2) Achaeus, a, um, adj. [Ἀχαιός], I. of or belonging to Achaia, Achaean. Often (poet.) = Grecian. As subst. Achaeus, i, m. an Achaean ; a Greek. II. Achaei, ōrum, m. pl. the inhabitants of a Greek colony on the Euxine.

Achāĭa, ae, f. (quadrisyll.) ; also Āchāia (trisyll.), [Ἀχαΐα], I. the northern province of the Peloponnese on the Gulf of Corinth, anciently called Aegialea (coastland). Hence, (meton.) = Greece generally. II. a district in the S. of Thessaly. III. the Roman province of Achaia.

Achāĭās, ădis, f. adj. [Achaia], an Achaean or Greek woman.

Āchaĭcus, a, um, adj. [id.], Achaean, Grecian, Greek. Hence, a surname of L. Mummius, after the conquest of Greece and the capture of Corinth.

Āchāis, ĭdis, f. adj. [id.], Achaean; Grecian. As subst. (sc. terra), Achaia; Greece.

Ācharnae, ārum, f. pl. [Ἀχαρναί], a deme of Attica.

Acharnānus, a, um, adj. of Acharnae, Acharnian.

‡ (1) āchātēs, æ, m. f. an agate; so called from the river Achates, where the stone was found.

(2) Āchātēs, æ, m. [Ἀχάτης], a river of Sicily.

(3) Āchātēs, æ, m. the armour-bearer and friend of Aeneas.

Āchēlōĭădes, ădis, f. patron. a daughter of Achelous. In pl. the Sirens.

Āchēlōĭs, ĭdis, f. patron. = Acheloias.

Āchēlōĭus, a, um, adj. [Achelous], I. of or belonging to the Achelous: potulla, draughts of Achelous, i.e. water. See Achelous, I. II. (meton.) Aetolian: heros, i.e. Tydeus.

Āchēlous, ī, m. [Ἀχελῶος], I. the largest river in Greece, now the Aspropotamo, which rises in Mount Pindus, and separates Aetolia from Acarnania. It was fabled to be the oldest of rivers, and was regarded as the representative of fresh water generally. Hence, (meton.) = aqua, with which it has a common root. II. the river-god Achelous, defeated by Hercules.

Āchĕrīni, ōrum, m. pl. a people in Sicily.

Āchĕron, ntis, m. [Ἀχέρων, stream of pain], acc. Acherontа, I. one of the rivers of the Lower World. Hence, (meton.) the Lower World; the powers below. II. a river of Epirus, which flows through the Acherusian lake into the Ionian Sea. III. a river of S. Italy.

Āchĕrontēus, a, um, adj. [Acheron], of or belonging to the Acheron.

Āchĕrontĭa, æ, f. 1. a small town in Apulia, now Acerenza. 2. a town on the Acheron (III.) in S. Italy.

Āchĕros, i, m. = Acheron.

Āchĕruns, ntis, acc. Acherunta, m. old form of Acheron.

Āchĕrūsĭus(-unsius), a, um, adj. (Acherunsius), I. of or belonging to Acheron or the Lower World. II. Acherusia Palus, a lake in Epirus, through which the Acheron (II.) flows.

Āchillas, æ, m. Achillas, the murderer of Pompey.

Āchillēs, is, m. [Ἀχιλλεύς], Homer's hero, the son of Peleus and Thetis. Acc. Achillen, Gk. acc. Achillēa; gen. Achilli, Achillei, trisyll., and Achillēi, quadrisyll.; abl. Achillē, -e, and -ī.

Āchillēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Achilles.

Āchillīdes, ĭs, m. patron. [Ἀχιλλείδης], a son or descendant of Achilles.

Āchīvom (-um), gen. pl. of Achivus, = Achivorum.

Āchīvus, a, um, adj. [for Achaeus with digamma Ϝαχαῖος], Achaean; Grecian, Greek. As subst. Achīvi, ōrum, m. pl. the Greeks. Prov. Quidquid delirant reges, plectuntur Achivi, whatever follies the kings commit, the Greeks suffer for it, i.e. the people suffer for the vagaries of their rulers.

Āchrădīna (Acr-), æ, f. a part of the city of Syracuse.

Ācidālĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Venus; called Acidalia, from the Acidalian spring in Boeotia, where she used to bathe with the Graces.

ācĭdus, a, um, adj. [aceo], I. sour, acid, tart. II. (meton.) steeped in or mixed with vinegar: creta, i.e. cosmetic. III. (fig.) pungent, stinging; distasteful, unpalatable.

ācĭēs, ēi, and ē (cf. die, fide), f. [root ac-, cf. ac-uo], I. a sharp edge or point of a weapon or implement. II. (meton.) 1. sharp or keen sight; hence (poet.), the eye; a glance. 2. (a) a line of battle, battle array: prima, the first line, the van; media, the centre; novissima, the rear: aciem instruere (dirigere), to form line; convertere, to face about; (b) an action, a pitched battle. 3. brightness, lustre, sheen: stellarum. III. (fig.) 1. (with ingenii, mentis, etc.) intellectual keenness, penetration. 2. a verbal contest, debate.

Ācĭlĭānus, a, um, adj. of Acilius, Acilian.

(1) Ācĭlĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. See Glabrio.

(2) Ācĭlĭus, a, um, adj. of Acilius, Acilian.

‡ ācĭnācēs, is, m. [ἀκινάκης], a poniard or dirk with a short, straight blade, used by the Persians, Medes, and Scythians.

ācĭnus, i, m. (also -um, ī, n.), I. a berry, esp. a grape. II. (meton.) a grape-stone, pip.

ācĭpenser (aquip-), ĕris, (and -sis, sis), m. a sturgeon (?).

Ācis, is and ĭdis, m. [Ἀκις], son of Faunus, beloved by the nymph Galatea, and crushed to death by the jealous Polyphemus. He was changed into a river which rises at the foot of Mount Etna.

ăclis, better ăclys, ўdis, f. [ἀγκυλίς], a harpoon; a javelin with a thong attached.

Acmōn, ōnis, m. (acc. Acmŏna), 1. a companion of Aeneas. 2. a companion of Diomed.

Acmōnides, ĭs, m. one of Vulcan's smiths.

Ācoetes, æ, m. a sailor, who was afterwards priest of Bacchus.

‡ ăcŏnītum, i, n. [ἀκόνιτον], wolf's-bane or monk's-hood, aconite. Often in pl. (meton.) a poison dose.

Ācontĭus, ĭi, m. a youth of Ceos, lover of Cydippe.

ac-quiesco, ĕre, ēvi, ētum, [ad, quiesco], intrans. v. I. repose, rest; am undisturbed, still. II. 1. (with prep. in and abl., rarely with dat.) find or feel satisfaction in, delight in. 2. (with abl.) feel relieved at or by, be reconciled to. III. (euphem.) rest in death, die.

ac-quīro, ĕre, sīvi, sītum, [ad, quaero], trans. v. 1. get in addition, add to: vires acquirit, gains fresh strength. 2. win, get, procure. Sts. without obj. acc. hoard (money, etc.).

Acrădīna, æ, f. See Achr-.

Acrae, ārum, f. pl. a town of Sicily.

Acraephia, æ, f. (also -ae, ārum, f. pl., and -um, ī, n.), a town in Boeotia.

‡ Acraeus, a, um, adj. [ἀκραῖος], dwelling on the heights: epith. of Jupiter and Juno.

Ācrăgantīnus (Agr-), a, um, adj. of Acragas or Agrigentum: epith. of Empedocles.

Ācrăgas (Agr-), ntis, m. Gk. acc. Acraganta [Ἀκράγας], a mountain and city on the S.W. coast of Sicily. Cf. Agrigentum.

ācrĭcŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. acer], testy, peppery.

ācrĭmōnĭa, æ, f. [id.], I. sharpness, pungency. II. (fig.) briskness, energy.

Acrīsĭōnē, ēs, f. patron. [Ἀκρισιώνη], the daughter of Acrisius, i.e. Danae.

Acrisĭōnēus, a, um, adj. [Acrisione], of or belonging to Danae: arces, the city Argos; muri, i.e. Ardea, built by Danae.

Acrisĭōnĭădes, æ, m. patron. a descendant of Acrisione (q.v.), i.e. Perseus, son of Danae.

Acrisĭus, ĭi, m. a king of Argos, son of Abas and father of Danae, killed by his grandson Perseus.

ācriter, adv. [acer], sharply, keenly; vigorously, fiercely, vehemently, zealously. Compar. ācrius; superl. ācerrime.

‡ ācrŏāmă, ātis, n. [ἀκροαμα, lit. a thing heard], 1. an entertainment, esp. a concert. 2. (abstr. = concr.) a performer, artiste, esp. one who dances, sings, acts, recites, etc. to amuse the company.

‡ ācrŏāsis, is, f. [ἀκρόασις, a hearing], a public lecture.

Ācrŏcĕrunĭa, ōrum, n. pl. [ἄκρος, κεραυνός, Thunder-heights], I. the most western heights of the Ceraunii Montes, in Epirus, forming a dangerous promontory, now Cape Linguetta. II. (poet. meton.) any dangerous spot.

Ācrŏcŏrinthus, i, f. ["Ακροκόρινθος], the citadel of Corinth.

Ācron, ōnis, m. 1. a king of the Caeninenses, slain by Romulus. 2. a Greek slain by Mezentius.

Acrŏta, ae, m. a king of Alba, brother of Romulus Silvius.

acsŭlus, i, m. See axulus.

† (1) acta, ae, f. [ἀκτή], the sea-shore, beach.

(2) acta, ōrum, n. pl. See actus (1).

Actaeōn, ōnis, m. [Ἀκταίων], a famous hunter, grandson of Cadmus; he was changed into a stag, and torn to pieces by his own hounds.

† (1) Actaeus, a, um, adj. [Ἀκταῖος], Attic, Athenian. See Acte.

† (2) Actaeus, a, um, adj. [ἀκταῖος], 1. on the shore. 2. craggy, rugged : Aracynthus.

actārius, ii, m. See actuarius (2).

Actē, ēs, f. [Ἀκτή, coastland], 1. an early name of Attica. 2. the promontory on which Mount Athos stands.

Actiăcus, a, um, adj. [Actium], of or belonging to Actium, Actian ; epith. of Apollo, who had a temple there which was restored by Augustus : ludi, cf. (1) Actius; legiones, which had fought at Actium.

Actĭas, ădis, f. adj. I. [Acte], Attic, Athenian ; epith. of Orithyia. II. [Actium], of Actium ; epith. of Cleopatra.

actio, ōnis, f. [ago], I. a doing, performing, acting, action, act : vitae, active practical life ; gratiarum, giving of thanks (cf. gratias agere). II. a public or official act or transaction. 2. deliberation, negotiation : de pace. III. (legal techn. t.) an action, suit : actionem alicui intendere, to lay an impeachment against a person. Hence (concr.), (a) an indictment, charge, accusation. (b) (in pl.) judicial formulae or verbal processes. (c) permission for a suit (which had to be obtained from the praetor). (d) a prosecutor's speech (spoken or written), a pleading, e.g. Cicero's orations against Verres. (e) a stage of a trial De Repetundis ; a hearing, trial. IV. (rhet.) action, gesticulation, delivery. V. (dramat.) 1. (of an actor) action. 2. the action of a play, the plot.

actĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], freq. v. take part in or act repeatedly.

Actium, ii, n. 1. a promontory and town of Acarnania on the Ambracian gulf, now La Punta, famous for Augustus's victory (Sept. 2, B.C. 31) over Antony and Cleopatra, to commemorate which he repaired the temple of Apollo and revived the Actian Games (ludi Actiaci or Actia). 2. a harbour in Corcyra.

(1) Actius, a, um, adj. poet.= Actiacus. As subst. Actia, ōrum, n. pl. the Actian Games in Apollo's honour, revived by Augustus. See Actium.

(2) Actĭus, ii, m. a proper name. Sts. written Attius.

(1) actor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who sets in motion ; a driver : pecoris, a herdsman ; habenae, a slinger. 2. a doer, performer. 3. (legal) a plaintiff ; also, a pleader, advocate. 4. a manager, agent, steward, comptroller of accounts : publicus, a Treasury agent. 5. a stage-manager ; an actor. 6. an orator, speaker.

(2) Actor, ōris, m. a man's name.

Actŏrĭdes, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Actor, e.g. his son Menoetius and his grandson Patroclus. Pl. -se, arum, i.e. Eurytus and Cteatus, sons of Actor, king of Phthia.

actŭārĭŏlum, i, dim. n. [actuarius], a small row-boat.

(1) actŭārius, a, um, adj. [agо], lit. pertaining to motion. Hence, actuaria navis, or simply actuaria, or actuarium (sc. navigium), a large open vessel worked by sweeps and sails for rapid service ; a packet, transport, etc.

(2) actŭārius (actā-), ii, m. 1. a shorthand writer, a reporter. 2. a commissariat officer.

(1) actus, a um, perf. pass. part. from ago. As subst. actum, i, n. I. 1. a thing done, an occurrence. 2. (in pl.) transactions ; funeris. II. 1. a public transaction (in the Senate, before the people, or on the part of an individual magistrate). 2. Acta, ōrum, n. pl. (often with diurna), a daily journal or gazette [also called acta publica, acta urbis or rerum urbanarum, and acta populi]. 3. Acta patrum (or Senatūs), a record of the transactions of the Senate.

(2) actus, ūs, m. [id.], I. 1. impulse, motion. 2. (meton.) right of way for driving cattle ; a bridle-road. II. 1. an act, performance ; often, public employment, business of state. 2. the studied movement of orators, actors, dancers, etc. 3. a part or character in a play ; also an act (division) of a play. III. a measure of length or surface. See App. D (b).

actūtum, adv. [? actu-, on the move, formed like astutus, versutus, or with tum enclitic], immediately, instantly.

ăcŭla, ae, f. See aquula.

ăcŭlĕātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [aculeus], I. prickly, pointed. II. (fig.) 1. stinging. 2. subtle, cunning.

ăcŭlĕus, i, m. [acus], I. 1. a sting ; prickle. 2. the barb (of a spear, etc.).

ăcŭmen, ĭnis, n. [acuo], I. a sharp point ; a sting : auspicium ex acuminibus, an omen from the points ; a military omen, when flames appeared at the points of spears or other weapons. II. (fig.) sharpness, keenness, shrewdness, sts. in a bad sense, cunning, trickery.

ăcŭo, ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, [root ak-, cf. ἄκρος, ὠκύς], trans. v. I. point, sharpen, whet. II. (fig.) incite, stimulate ; excite, rouse.

(1) ăcus, ūs, f. [root ak-, cf. acuo], 1. a needle : acu pingere, to embroider. 2. a pin, hair-pin. (Prov.) acu rem tangere, to hit the right nail on the head.

(2) ăcus, i, m. a sea-fish, so called from its sharp-pointed nose ; the horn-pike or gar-pike.

ăcūtē, adv. [acutus], sharply, keenly. Compar. acutius ; superl. acutissime.

ăcūtŭlus, a, um, dim. adj. [acutus], somewhat acute or subtle.

ăcūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from acuo As adj. I. sharp, pointed. 2. (of the scent) pungent, sharp. 3. (of the intellect) keen, shrewd, intelligent, sagacious : ăcūtum, n. used adverbially, keenly ; cernere, to have keen sight. 4. (of sound) shrill, sharp, treble : ăcūtum, n. used adverbially, shrilly. 5. (of things affecting the body) violent, severe, piercing. As subst. ăcūta, ōrum, n. pl. severities, hardships, perils. Compar. acutior ; superl. acutissimus.

a.d. abbr. = ante diem. See App. A.

ăd, prep. with acc. only. 1. (of motion to a person, place, or thing) to, towards. 2. (of presence after motion) at, by, near to : ad quartum lapidem, at the fourth milestone ; ad me fuit, he was at my house ; ad Opis (sc. aedem), at the temple of Ops. 3. (of time up to which) to, up to, until. 4. (point of time) at, on occurrence of, by ; ad lucem, at daybreak ; ad diem destinatam, by the appointed day ; ad famam obsidionis, on report of the siege ; under the head of, under date of ; adscribi in tribus ad Lupercalia, Cic. Phil. ii. 85. 5. (marking limit of number or degree) to, unto, even to : ad unum omnes, all to a man ; ad assem, to the last farthing ; ad septingentos (or, adverbially, ad septingenti) casi sunt, about seven hundred were slain. 6. (addition) to, in addition to ; ad hoc, besides this, moreover ; ad omnia, to crown all. 7. (comparison) to, compared to, in comparison with. 8. (reference) in reference to, as regards, as to, in : ad severitatem lenius, more mercifully as regards severity. 9. (purpose) for the purpose of, to : ad speciem, for appearance' sake ; esp. Gerund and Gerundive : Romam ad scribendum novum exercitum redit, for the purpose of levying (to levy) a new army. So, denoting office, servus ad manum, an attendant ; ad lecticam, a palanquin-bearer. 10. according to, after, at, on, in consequence of : ad cursus Lunae, in accordance with the course of the moon ; ad horum preces, on or in answer to their prayers ; ad tibiam canere, to sing to the flageolet ; ad verbum exprimere, to translate word for word. 11. (=apud) amongst, with : ad inferos, in the world below ; ad iudices, before the jury. In adverbial phrases : ad extremum, at last, lastly ; ad numerum, enough ; ad praesens, for the present, for the moment ; ad summum, in fine ; ad ultimum, to the furthest limit, utterly, etc. etc. ('Ad' is often joined with 'usque' (q.v.). In composition 'ad' denotes nearness, acquisition, addition, response, and it often has an intensive force.]

(1) ădactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adigo.

(2) ădactus, ūs, m. [adigo], a bringing together, clenching, Lucr.

ădaequo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. make equal, level, or co-existent with (with dat. or prep. cum and abl.). 2. compare to or with. 3. (with acc.) be on a level or equal with; reach, attain to by equalling: cursum, keep pace with. B. (intrans.) be equal, balance, be evenly divided.

ădămantĕus, a, um, adj. [adamas], 1. of steel or adamant. 2. hard as steel, etc.

‡ ădămantinus, a, um, adj. [ἀδαμάντινος], hard as steel or adamant, adamantine. Hence (poet.), inflexible, inexorable.

‡ ădămas, ntis, m. [ἀδάμας, invincible], 1. adamant, basalt; steel. 2. metaph. of a hard heart. 3. a diamond.

ad-ămo, āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, intens.], trans. v. 1. love deeply or strongly, be enamoured of. 2. covet, take a fancy to.

ad-ăpĕrio, īre, ŭi, ertum, [ad, intens. aperio], trans. v. 1. open fully, throw wide open. 2. uncover, expose.

ădăpertĭlis, e, adj. [adaperio], that can be opened: latus tauri, i.e. of Perillus's brazen bull, with a sliding door in its side.

ădăpertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adaperio.

ad-ăpto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. fit or adjust one thing to another.

ad-ăquor, āri, ātus sum, intrans. dep. 1. fetch or get water. 2. (of cattle) go to drink.

(1) ădauctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adaugeo.

(2) ădauctus, ūs, m. [adaugeo], an increase, growth.

ad-augĕo, ēre, xi, ctum, trans. v. increase, augment, aggravate.

ăd-augesco, ĕre, incept. v. [augeo], begin to grow.

ădaxint, =adegerint, from adigo.

ad-bĭbo, ĕre, bĭbi, bĭbĭtum, trans. v. I. drink deep, drink. II. (fig.) drink in, imbibe, lay to heart.

adc-. See under acc-.

ad-densĕo, ēre, and -denso, āre, trans. v. make close, close up. Pass. with reflex. force, become thick, thicken.

ad-dīco, ĕre, xi, ctum, traj. trans. v. (lit. speak to, assent to), I. (of omens) be propitious. 2. (legal techn. t.) adjudge, award; cf. addictus. Hence, bona alicuius in publicum addicere, to make over to the treasury, i.e. confiscate. 3. (in auctions) make over to the highest bidder, knock down to (with price in abl.). II. (meton.) make over, sell. III. (fig.) yield, give up, resign. In a good sense, devote, consecrate to; in a bad sense, abandon, sacrifice, surrender.

addictĭo, ōnis, f. [addico], an adjudging, a judicial awarding, or assigning by a practor. Cf. addico, I. 2.

addictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from addico. As adj. dedicated or devoted to, bound to; destined for; hence, bound, under obligation; sts. with infin. As subst., cf. addico, I. 2, addictus, i, m. lit. one awarded, a debtor made over as a bondsman to his creditor. See Dict. Ant.

ăd-disco, ĕre, dĭdĭci, trans. v. learn in addition, learn something new, go on learning.

additāmentum, i, n. [addo], an accession, make-weight, adjunct.

additus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from addo. As adj. added on or fastened on to, 'dogging,' persecuting.

addixti, contr.=addixisti, perf. ind. from addico.

ad-do, ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, traj. trans. v. 1. put or fasten on to, join, annex. 2. add, impart, bestow, apply, assign. 3. (absol.) make additions: addunt in spatia, they gain speed at every round. 4. in phrases: adde, adde huc, adde quod, moreover, besides (also with acc. and infin. in object clause); addito (abl. abs. followed by acc. and infin. or ut), with the addition that; addito tempore, in course of time: nihil addo, I make no further bid, I go no further. [Constr. with acc. of nearer and dat. of remoter object, or with prepp. ad, in, and acc.].

ad-dŏcĕo, ēre, ŭi, ctum, trans. v. teach something new or fresh, teach besides.

ad-dormisco, ĕre, incept. v. go to sleep.

ad-dūbĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. be inclined to doubt, be undecided, hesitate (with prepp. de, in, or interrog. particles). Impers. addubitatum est, there was some demur. Sts. it is used transitively, call in question: re addubitatâ, if the issue be more than doubtful, i.e. if it prove a failure.

ad-dūco, ĕre, xi, ctum, trans. v. I. 1. lead or bring to, conduct; take with one. Adducere aquam, convey water to the city], i.e. make an aqueduct. 2. pull or draw towards one, draw back: per adductas manus, through the hands drawn one over the other, i.e. hand over hand. 3. keep close, rein in. 4. tighten, contract, shrivel. III. (fig.) 1. bring on, occasion. 2. bring or reduce a person (or thing) to a particular state, habit, etc.: hence, influence, induce, prompt, persuade (with ut, or prepp. ad, in: sts. with infin. or absol. with ellipse of ad credendum, etc.). 3. bring to trial.

adductius, compar. adv. [adductus], more tightly; more strictly.

adductus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adduco. As adj. I. tightened, contracted. II. (fig.) 1. compressed. 2. strict; severe.

adduxti, contr. = adduxisti, perf. ind. from adduco.

ăd-ĕdo, ĕre, ēdi, ēsum, trans. v. 1. bite at, eat, gnaw. 2. devour, consume. 3. (fig.) use up, waste.

Ădelphi, ōrum, m. pl. [ἀδελφοί], 'The Brothers,' a comedy of Terence.

ădemptĭo, ōnis, f. [adimo], a taking away, seizure.

ădemptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adimo.

(1) ăd-ĕo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ĭtum, trans. and intrans. v. I. 1. go to, approach, visit. 2. assail, attack. 3. apply to, consult, address a person. II. (fig.) 1. take upon one's-self, enter upon, undertake, brave. 2. succeed or attain to (of an estate, name).

(2) ăd-ĕo, adv. 1. to such an extent, so, so much, so very; so true is it that; sts. joined with 'usque.' 2. (enclitically, giving emphasis and prominence to the word it follows) in particular, especially; just, exactly; in point of fact, even. 3. (after ne-quidem, with a neg.), much less, still less. 4. nay more, furthermore, after all.

ădeps, ĭpis, c. [cf. ἄλειφα, with d for l], I. fat of animals, suet, grease. II. (meton.) stoutness, fatness, corpulence.

ădeptĭo, ōnis, f. an obtaining, attainment.

ădeptus, a, um, perf. part. from adipiscor. Sts. in pass. sense.

ăd-ĕquĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. ride to or towards, ride up.

ăd-erro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. (with dat.) wander up to.

ădēs, 1. 2 sing. ind. 2. imperat. from adsum.

ădesdum, imperat. of adsum, with 'dum' (cf. agedum), do come here.

ădesse, pres. infin. ădest, 3 sing. ind. from adsum.

ădĕsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ădĕdo. As adj. worn away, worn smooth; weve-worn, fretted.

ad-fābĭlis (aff-), e, adj. [adfor], easy of address, courteous. Compar. adfabilior.

ad-fābĭlĭtas (aff-), ātis, f. [adfabilis], affability, courtesy.

ad-fābrē (aff-), adv. [faber], in a workmanlike manner, artistically.

ad-fātim (aff-), adv. [ad, obsol. fatis, a yawn; cf. fatiscor, fatigo], to satisfaction; abundantly, enough. Sts. with gen. like satis.

(1) adfātus (aff-), a, um, perf. part. from adfor.

(2) adfātus (aff-), ūs, m. [adfor], a speaking to, address, discourse.

adfectātĭo (aff-), ōnis, f. [adfecto], 1. a striving after, pretension to, aspiration after (with gen.) 2. mannerism in style or language, conceit.

adfectātor (aff-), ōris, m. [id.], one who aims at or aspires to: amoris.

adfectĭo (aff-), ōnis, f. [adficio], 1. a disposition towards an object, a relation to or towards. 2. a frame of mind, state of feeling, disposition; hence, goodwill, sym- pathy, love, etc. ; animi, a particular state of mind, bias, whim. 3. a state, habit, or constitution of body.

ad-fecto (aff-), āre, āvi, ātum, freq. adficio], trans. v. 1. aim at, strive after, aspire to, attempt: viam (iter), enter upon a path with an object in view, pursue it; spem, cling to, cherish. 2. seize, attack. 3. try to win over, conciliate. 4. affect, simulate, feign.

(1) adfectus (aff-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adficio. As adj. 1. worked upon, affected by or with. 2. disposed, constituted, affected, touched. 3. weakened, impaired, sick: res, reduced or embarrassed circumstances. 4. (with abl.) furnished, gifted, or endowed with. 5. drawing to a close, advanced, in a forward state: bellum.

(2) adfectus (aff-), ūs, m. [adficio], 1. a feeling or emotion of mind ; a state of mind or body ; hence, a disposition, mood, humour. 2. goodwill, love, fondness, sympathy, compassion ; hence, in pl. (poet.), the beloved object, dear or loved ones. 3. desire, eagerness ; sts. in a bad sense, passion, desire. 4. (poet.) the outward manifestation of feeling ; air, manner, address, deportment : hospitis, Inv.

ad-fĕro (aff-), ferre, attŭli (adt-), adlātum (all-), trans. v. 1. bring, take, or carry (a load of portable things) ; se, betake one's-self ; urbem Adferimur, we come to, reach. (Pass. used reflexively, with acc. of place.) II. (fig.) 1. cause, occasion, impart, produce. 2. bring forward, advance, allege (a reason, excuse, etc.). 3. adferre aliquid, contribute to a particular object, render a service, aid considerably (with prep. ad, with dat. or absol.). 4. make use of, employ : vim alicui, offer violence to a person : manus, lay hands on, attack ; sts. vos, plunder : manus vulneribus, chafe, irritate ; sibi manus, commit suicide. 5. bring word, report, relate. Impers. adlatum est, word was brought. 6. (rarely) bring forth, yield, produce.

ad-fĭcĭo (aff-), ĕre, fēci, fectum, [faciol, trans. v. 1. do something to, work upon (a person or thing), so as to produce a particular state of mind or body, treat : aliquem dolore . . . laetitia . . . timore, cause one pain, joy, fear, etc. ; supplicio, visit with punishment, inflict punishment upon, punish ; beneficio, bestow kindness on ; pretio, pay, reward ; honoribus, honour ; exsilio, banish. 2. influence, touch, affect. 3. seize, lay hold of, attack (as a disease) ; hit, strike (of a wound).

adfictus (aff-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adfingo.

ad-fīgo (aff-), ĕre, fixi, fixum, traj. trans. v. I. affix, fasten or tack on to, attach. II. (fig.) impress, stamp upon.

ad-fingo (aff-), ĕre, finxi, fictum, traj. trans. v. I. make in addition, append, add. II. (fig.) add falsely, fabricate, trump up.

ad-finis (aff-), e, adj. I. bordering on, adjacent to. II. allied or related by marriage. As subst. c. a relation by marriage. III. (fig.) (with gen. or dat.) implicated or concerned in, accessory to.

adfīnĭtas (aff-), ātis, [adfinis], f. alliance by marriage, relationship, affinity ; kindred.

adfīrmātē (aff-), adv. [adfirmo], positively, explicitly, unequivocally.

adfīrmātio (aff-), ōnis, f. [id.], a declaration, assertion.

ad-firmo (aff-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. affirm, declare, assert, protest, maintain, insist upon. 2. fortify, strengthen, confirm, establish.

adfixus (aff-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adfigo. As adj. (poet.), fixed or intent upon (with dat.).

(1) adflātus (aff-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adflo.

(2) adflātus (aff-), ūs, m. [adflo], I. a breathing upon, blast, breath ; an effluvium, reek, vapour. II. (fig.) inspiration.

ad-flĕo (aff-), ĕre, ēvi, ētum, traj. v. weep to or in answer to, weep at.

adflictātĭo (aff-), ōnis, f. [adflicto], distress or anguish of body.

ad-flicto (af-), āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. adfligo], trans. v. I. damage greatly, shatter, injure. II. (fig.) harass, vex, distress, torment, annoy ; adflictare se, or pass. used reflexively, be distressed or anxious, feel troubled or uneasy.

adflictor (af-), ōris, m. [id.], a destroyer, iconoclast.

adflictus (af-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adfligo. As adj. 1. damaged, shattered, impaired : res, embarrassed, ruined circumstances ; sol, i. e. under eclipse. 2. cast down, crushed, down-trodden, desponding. 3. base, low, depraved, abandoned. Compar. adflictior.

ad-flīgo (af-), ĕre, ixi, ictum, trans. v. I. throw or dash to the ground, strike or dash against, overthrow. Pass. (of a ship) run aground, be stranded. II. (fig.) 1. beat or cast down, damage, crush, weaken, ruin, impair ; dishearten. 2. lower in value, disparage, degrade. 3. (of a lawsuit) let drop, abandon.

ad-flo (af-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and traj. v. 1. blow or breathe upon ; taint with, breath, blast, scorch. II. waft to or towards ; waft, exhale. III. (fig.) 1. breathe something on or upon, impart (by breathing) ; inspire. 2. be propitious to, favour.

ad-fŭens (af-), ntis, part. from adfluo. As adj. abounding or rich in ; abundant, overflowing ; vestitu, with loose-flowing robes ; ex adfluenti, abundantly, profusely.

adfluenter (af-), adv. [adfluens], profusely, lavishly. Compar. adfluentius.

adfluentĭa (af-), ae, f. [id.], I. abundance, profusion, richness. II. (meton.) lavish, magnificence, extravagance.

ad-flŭo (af-), ĕre, xi, xum, intrans. v. 1. flow to or towards, stream : adfluentes anni, the tide of years, i. e. increasing years. 2. steal upon. 3. stream in upon, come in crowds, flock in. 4. abound, overflow ; sts. with abl. of that in which one abounds. 5. (of food) rise in the throat.

ad-for (af-), āri, ātus sum, defect. trans. dep. 1. accost, address. 2. invoke, pray to. 3. speak the last words ("ave atque vale"), i. e. bid farewell to the dead. (Only found in pres. inf., perf. part., and tenses formed therewith, 2 imperat., and pres. ind. except 1 sing.)

ad-fŏrē, adfŏrem (af-), etc. fut. inf. and imperf. subj. from adsum.

ad-frango, ad-fringo (af-), ĕre, ēgi, actum, traj. trans. v. break against ; break in pieces.

ad-frĕmo (af-), ĕre, traj. v. roar or rage at.

ad-frico (af-), āre, cŭi, cātum (ctum), traj. trans. v. 1. rub on or against. 2. impart by rubbing.

adfrictio (af-), ōnis, f. [adfrico], a rubbing against.

ad-fringo. See adfrango.

ad-fulgĕo (af-), ĕre, fulsi, traj. v. shine upon, beam.

ad-fundo (af-), ĕre, fūdi, fūsum, traj. trans. v. 1. pour to or upon, pour in ; discharge into, infuse. 2. (almost = addo), send up or despatch in haste (of a rapid cavalry movement). 3. adfundere se, or reflex. pass., to prostrate one's-self ; adfusa precere vitam.

ad-fūsus (af-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adfundo.

ad-gĕmo (ag-), ĕre, ŭi, ĭtum, traj. v. groan or sigh at or in answer to.

ad-gĕro (ag-), ĕre, gessi, gestum, traj. trans. v. I. carry or bring to a place, pile or heap up. II. (fig.) bring forward, allege, lay to one's charge.

(1) adgestus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adgero.

(2) ad-gestus (ag-), ūs, m. [adgero), I. a conveyance to a place. 2. a collection, accumulation.

ad-glŏmĕro (ag-), āre, āvi, ātum, traj. trans. v. 1. wind to or on to ; hence, add, annex. 2. heap up, raise, gather in a mass.

ad-glūtino (ag-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. cement or fasten to, tag on. See Rich's Dict. Ant. liber.

adgn. See under agn-.

ad-grăvesco (ag-), ĕre, intrans. v. grow worse, be heightened (of disease).

ad-grăvo (ag-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. make heavier. II. (fig.) 1. make worse and worse, heighten. 2. weigh down, oppress, annoy, inconvenience.

ad-grĕdior (ag-), grĕdi, gressus sum, [gradior], trans. dep. 1. go to, approach ; address one's-self to, accost. 2. put pressure on, work upon, solicit, tamper with. 3. approach in a hostile manner, attack, assail. 4. enter upon, undertake, attempt, proceed, commence (with acc. or with infin. or prep. ad).

ad-grĕgo (ag-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad ; grex, gregis], trans. v. 1. get together (as a flock), group ; attach to, connect with, include amongst, contribute (with prepp. in, ad). 2. adgregare se, or reflex. pass. attach one's-self to, rally round.

(1) ăggressus (ag-), a, um, perf. part. from aggredior.

(2) aggressus (ag-), ūs, m. [aggredior], an assault, attack.

ăd-haerĕo, ēre, si, sum, intrans. v. I. cleave, stick, adhere to. II. be near or close to, adjoin; hence (of persons), hang on to, keep close to, dog.

ăd-haeresco, ĕre, haesi, haesum, [haereo], incept. v. I. stick to, adhere: (with a play on the words) ad columnam (sc. Maeniam), to find one's self stuck at the debtor's column, i.e. be posted as a fraudulent debtor. See Maenius. II. (meton.) settle down, stay (in a place). III. (fig.) be attached, cling to. 2. correspond to or with. 3. be at a standstill, boggle, hang fire.

ădhaesus, ūs, m. [adhaereo], an adhering, adhesion.

Ădherbal, ălis, m. a Numidian prince, son of Micipsa, put to death by Jugurtha, 112 B.C.

ăd-hĭbĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum [ad, habeo], trans. v. 1. hold to or towards, apply, add: se ad aliquid, apply or devote one's self to a thing; adhibere se in aliqua re, conduct one's self; modum, set a limit to. 2. bring to bear upon a person or thing, make use of, employ, exercise. 3. summon, invite, bring in, admit, esp. (relig. techn. t.) call in, bid, invoke, Hor., Ov., Virg. 4. produce as a witness. 5. receive, entertain, treat.

ădhĭbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adhibeo.

ăd-hinnio, īre, īvi, or ĭi, ītum, traj. v. neigh to or after.

ădhortātio, ōnis, f. [adhortor], an exhortation, encouragement.

ădhortātor, ōris, m. [id.], an encourager, exhorter.

ăd-hortor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. encourage, exhort, incite.

ăd-huc, adv. 1. up to this place or point; thus far, hitherto, as yet: adhuc non, not yet; nihil adhuc, not at all as yet. 2. yet, still. 3. now for the first time, at present, just now. 4. (to strengthen comparatives) still, yet. 5. further, besides.

Ădiăbēni, ōrum, or of belonging to Adiabene, a district of Assyria E. of the Tigris.

adiăcens (adj-), ntis, pres. part. from adiaceo. As adj. contiguous, neighbouring; neut. pl. = subst. (sc. loca), the adjoining country, neighbourhood.

ad-iăcĕo (adj-), ēre, ŭi, intrans. v. lie near or close to, lie along, border upon, adjoin. Sts. with dat. acc. or prep. ad.

ād-icio (adj-), ĕre, iēci, iectum, [iacio], trans. v. 1. throw or cast to; fling, hurl. 2. put or erect near. 3. (with animum, oculos) turn or direct one's mind (eyes) towards: ad virginem animum adiecit, he has set his affections on, fallen in love with, the girl. 4. (with prep. ad, or dat.) add by way of increase. Also (of a speaker), state in addition, add (with acc. and infin.). 5. (in auctione) go on bidding, make fresh bids, bid higher.

adiectio (adj-), ōnis, f. [adicio], 1. an addition, annexation. 2. the right of incorporation: familiarum, the right of settling new families.

(1) adiectus (adj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adicio.

(2) adiectus (adj-), ūs, m. [adicio], an adding, application, contact.

ād-īgo, ĕre, ēgi, actum [ago], trans. v. 1. drive or bring to a place. 2. hurl, thrust, plunge, drive home: vulnus adactum, a deep wound. 3. drive, urge, impel, force: aliquem ad arbitrum or arbitrum, compel one to go before an arbitrator, bring into a court of equity: (ad) ius iurandum, iure iurando or sacramento, cause one to take an oath, put on oath, bind by oath. So ellipt. in verba aliquis adigere, or adigere, absol., force to swear allegiance to (the words of the oath of) some one, i.e. according to a prescribed form. 4. (poet.) subject: in frenum prorae, to fashion or work into the shape of a prow.

ădimo, ĕre, ēmi, emptum, [emo], trans. v. 1. take away, remove; vis (ipsi), with infin. as object. 2. take away, snatch, rescue from (with dat. of remoter object).

ădinstar. See instar.

ădĭpātus, a, um, adj. [adeps], I. fatty, greasy. As subst. ădĭpātum, i, n. a rich tart; in pl. pastry. II. (fig.) coarse, gross.

ăd-ĭpiscor, i, eptus sum, [apiscor], trans. dep. attain to, obtain, acquire, reach, gain, overtake: mortem, commit suicide. In Tac. with gen. Occasionally found with passive force.

(1) ăditus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adeo (1).

(2) ăditus, ūs, m. [(1) adeo], 1. an approach, access: aditum ferre, to speed one's coming. 2. a means or right of approach or access, an opportunity: sermonis, i.e. an interview. 3. an entrance, avenue.

ad-iūdĭco (adj-), āre, āvi, ātum, traj. trans. v. 1. award judicially, adjudge; assign, annex. II. ascribe, attribute.

adiŭvo (adj-) = adiuvero, from adiuvo.

adiūmentum (adj-), i, n. [contr. = adiuvimentum; adiuvo], help, aid, support.

adiunctio (adj-), ōnis, f. [adiungo], 1. a joining to, union. 2. an addition. 3. a limitation, restriction, exception.

adiunctor (adj-), ōris, m. [id.], one who adds or joins; an annexer, uniter.

adiunctus (adj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adiungo. As adj. joined to, adjoining; closely connected with, suitable to. Compar. adiunctior. As subst. adiunctum, i, n. an additional or attendant circumstance; an accessory, adjunct.

ad-iungo (adj-), ĕre, nxi, nctum, trans. v. (with prep. ad or dat.), 1. join to, unite, add; annex, subjoin. 2. yoke, harness, attach. 3. attach to one's self, conciliate, win. 4. bring or place close to or beside; hence, apply or direct to.

(1) ad-iūro (adj-), āre, āvi, ātum, 1. affirm on oath, swear. 2. (with acc. of deity, etc.) swear by. 3. swear besides.

(2) adiūro (adj-), contr. = adiuvero, from adiuvo.

ad-iūto (adj-), āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. adiuvo], trans. v. help, aid, assist. Sts. with dat.

adiūtor (adj-), ōris, m. [id.], 1. an aider, assistant, abettor, seconder. 2. a lieutenant, coadjutor. 3. (theatrical techn. t.) a subordinate actor; a backer.

adiūtrix (adj-), trĭcis, [id.], a female assistant, helper, etc. In opposition = adj. aiding, auxiliary: legiones, legions raised by the proconsul in the provinces for the reinforcement of the regular army.

adiūtus (adj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adiuvo.

ad-iūvo (adj-), āre, iūvi, iūtum, trans. v. I. aid, help, assist. II. (fig.) support, encourage, second, sustain. III. (intrans.) avail, profit, be of use, contribute to.

ad-lăbor (al-), i, lapsus sum, dep. glide or flow gently towards or near; drift to, touch at; speed to, light upon (with dat. or with acc. dep. on prep. in verb).

ad-lăbōro (al-), āre, āvi, ātum, traj. v. 1. add to with care, improve upon. 2. (intrans.) take extra trouble.

ad-lăcrimo (al-), āre, intrans. v. and ad-lacrimor, āri, dep. [lacrima], weep at a thing, burst into tears.

ad-lacrymo, ad-lacrymor. See adlacrimo, etc.

ad-laevo. See (2) adlevo.

(1) adlapsus (al-), a, um, perf. part. from adlabor.

(2) adlapsus (al-), ūs, m. [adlabor], a gliding or stealthy approach.

ad-latro (al-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v., sts. (poet.) with dat. I. bark at or after, snarl at. II. (fig.) slander, defame, rail at.

ad-lĕvo (al-), āre, trans. v. make level with the sea; level.

adlātus (al-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adfero.

ad-laudābilis (al-), e, adj. worthy of all praise, praiseworthy, Lucr.

ad-lecto (al-), āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. adlicio], trans. v. allure, entice, court.

(1) adlectus (al-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) adlego.

(2) adlectus (al-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adlicio.

adlēgātio (al-), ōnis, f. [(1) adlego], a sending or despatching to any one, a mission.

adlēgātus (al-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) adlego. As subst. adlēgātus, i, m. a commissioner, an agent, deputy.

(1) ad-lĕgo (al-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. despatch on private business as one's representative; cf. (1) lego; depute, commission; sts. without object acc. 2. suborn, incite to fraud, etc. II. bring forward by way of proof or defence, adduce, recount, mention; deliver (a message, etc.).

(2) ad-lĕgo (al-), ĕre, lēgi, lectum, trans. v. admit into a body by election, elect.

adlĕvāmentum (al-), i, n. [adlevo], an alleviation, relief.

adlĕvātio (al-), ōnis, f. [id.], I. a raising up, elevation. II. (fig.) an alleviating, relieving, solace.

(1) ad-lĕvo (al-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. raise, lift up. II. (fig.) 1. alleviate, relieve, lighten, soothe, cheer. 2. lighten, invalidate, mitigate. 3. exalt, distinguish.

(2) ad-lēvo (adlaevo) (al-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. make smooth, plane off.

ad-lĭcĕfăcio (al-), ĕre, [adlicio, facio], trans. v. = adlicio.

ad-lĭcio (al-), ĕre, lexi, lectum, lacio], trans. v. attract, allure, entice.

ad-lĭdo (al-), ĕre, si, sum, [laedo], trans. v. I. strike or dash against or upon (with dat. or prepp. ad, in). II. (fig.) make shipwreck of, wreck, ruin.

ad-lĭgātus (al-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adligo.

ad-lĭgo (al-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. bind or fasten to. II 1. tie up, bind, compress, bandage. 2. (fig.) fetter, entrap, entangle, implicate: benefĭcio, lay under an obligation; furti se adligat, he impeaches himself of theft (gen. of the matter charged). 3. make or hold fast, fasten, fix: lac adligatum, curdled milk; adligatus calculus, a piece that is checkmated (in chess).

ad-lĭno (al-), ĕre, lēvi, lĭtum, trans. v. draw a smear or blot upon, besmear, bedaub.

adlĭsus (al-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adlido.

adlŏcūtio (al-), ōnis, f. [adloquor], I. an addressing, a harangue. 2. word of sympathy, consolation.

adlŏcūtus, adlŏqūtus, (al-), a, um, perf. part. from adloquor.

adlŏquium (al-), ii, n. [adloquor], 1. a speaking to, address, conversation, exhortation. 2. consolation.

ad-lŏquor (al-), i, lŏcūtus sum, trans. dep. 1. speak to, address, exhort. 2. console.

ad-lūcĕo (al-), ēre, xi, traj. v. shine upon. Rarely trans. light up, kindle.

ad-lūdo (al-), ĕre, si, sum, traj. v. I. play or sport with (rarely with acc.). II. (intrans.) 1. do a thing in sport, joke, jest. 2. play, sport, gambol, have a game.

ad-lŭo (al-), ĕre, ŭi, trans. v. wash against, bathe, wash (as a river).

adlŭvies (al-), ēi, f. [adluo], a pool caused by the overflow of the sea or a river. Sts. alluvial land.

ad-lŭvio (al-), ōnis, f. [id.], 1. an inundation. 2. alluvial land.

ad-mātūro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. ripen, hasten, precipitate.

admensus, a, um, perf. part. from admetior.

ad-mētĭor, īri, mensus sum, trans. dep. measure out to or for.

Admētus, i, m. [Ἄδμητος], 1. a king of Pherae in Thessaly, husband of Alcestis. 2. a king of the Molossi, with whom Themistocles took refuge.

admĭnĭcŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v prop, support.

admĭnĭcŭlor, āri, ātus sum, [adminiculum], trans. dep. prop, support (of a vine).

admĭnĭcŭlum, i, n. [ad, manus], 1. a vine-prop. 2. a stay, prop, support, aid. 3. apparatus, gear.

ad-minister, tri, m. 1. an attendant, hanger on, assistant, abettor. 2. a military engineer.

ad-ministra, ae, f. a female attendant, handmaid.

administrātio, ōnis, f. [administro], I. a giving aid, assistance. II. (meton.) 1. management, superintendance: portŭs, the working of the harbour. 2. (absol.) a post of responsibility.

administrātor, ōris, m. [id.], a manager, director.

ad-ministro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. attend upon, serve. II. (fig.) 1. take charge of, manage, conduct, superintend, perform. 2. (without obj. acc.) do one's work or duty. Sall.

admīrābilis, e, adj. [admiror], worthy of wonder or admiration, wonderful, amazing; paradoxical. Compar. admirabilior.

admīrābĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [admirabilis], 1. admirableness, wonderfulness. 2. admiration.

admīrābĭliter, adv. [id.], admirably; paradoxically.

admirandus, a, um, gerundive from admiror. As adj. wondrous, marvellous.

admīrātio, ōnis, f. [admiror], 1. an admiring, admiration. 2. wonder, surprise.

admīrātor, ōris, m. [id.], an admirer ad-mīror, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. be amazed at, wonder at; regard with admiration, admire. 2. long for, hanker after: nil admirari, the absence of emotion, equanimity, nonchalance. 3. be astonished, wonder (with prepp. de, super, with rel. clause, quod, cur, etc., or with acc. and infin.).

ad-miscĕo, ēre, cŭi, xtum (stum), trans. v. I. mix or mingle with, admix; add, amalgamate (with prepp. cum, in, ad; with abl. or with dat.). II. (fig.) mix up with, implicate, entangle in.

admissārius, a, um, adj. [admitto], used for breeding, stud-: equus, a stallion. As subst. (fig.) a libertine, debauchee.

admissio, ōnis, f. [id.], a reception, audience, interview.

(1) admissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from admitto. As subst. admissum, i, n. a crime, misdemeanour.

(2) admissus, ūs, m. [admitto], a letting in, admission.

admistus. See admixtus.

admittĭer, old infin. pass. = admitti, Virg.

ad-mitto, ĕre, mīsi, missum, trans. v. I. 1. send to; let in, admit, introduce; grant an audience to. 2. let loose, let go: admisso equo, at full gallop. II. (fig.) 1. permit, approve. 2. be guilty of (lit. put upon one's-self), commit, incur.

admixtio (-mistio), ōnis, f. [admisceo], a mingling; contamination, contact with.

admixtus (admistus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from admisceo. As adj. mixed, compounded, impure (opposed to ' simplex ').

admŏdĕrātē, adv. [ad, moderatus], in nice conformity to, suitably.

ad-mŏdum, adv. [modus], 1. up to the measure or degree, to a degree, very much, very, completely. 2. (with numerals) quite, at least, fully. 3. (with neg.) at all.

ad-mŏnĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. 1. put one in mind, warn, admonish, give a hint, make a suggestion. 2. bring to remembrance, remind one of: aliquem aevis alieni, remind a debtor of his debt, dun him for payment. 3. (poet.) jog on, incite, stimulate.

admŏnĭtio, ōnis, f. [admoneo], 1. a warning, reminding, prompting. 2. a reprimand, correction.

admŏnĭtor, ōris, m. [id.], a reminder, remembrancer: operum Lucifer, i.e. that summons men to toil.

(1) admŏnĭtus, a, um, perf. pass part. from admoneo.

(2) admŏnĭtus, ūs, m. [admoneo], a suggestion, reminding, hint, warning, advice. Sts. (poet.) recollection.

admŏram, admŏrim, sync. = admoveram, admoverim, from admoveo.

ad-mordĕo, ēre, mordi sum, trans. v. bite at or into, nibble.

admorsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from admordeo.

admŏrunt, sync. = admoverunt, from admoveo.

admŏtio, ōnis, f. [admoveo], a putting to, application.

admōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from admoveo. As adj. near, extending to.

ad-mŏvĕo, ēre, mōvi, mōtum, trans. v. 1. move to or towards, put or bring near or close, apply: manum (manus), put one's hand to; sts. lay violent hands upon, assault. 2. use, employ. 3. occasion, inspire: terrorem. 4. (sacrificial word) bring to the altar.

ad-mūgio, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, traj. v. low or bellow to, or in answer to.

admurmŭrātio, ōnis, f. a murmur of assent or dissent.

ad-murmŭro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. murmur approval or disapproval.

adnascor, adnatus. See agn.

ad-năto (an-), āre, āvi, traj. v. swim to or towards or alongside. Also, = adnavigo, q.v.

ad-nāvĭgo (an-), āre, āvi, intrans. v. sail to or towards.

ad-necto (an-), ĕre, nexŭi, nexum, traj. trans. v. fasten to, unite, add, join on.

ad-nēpos, ōtis, m. a fourth grandson.

(1) adnexus (an-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adnecto.

(2) adnexus (an-), ūs, m. [adnecto], a connection, union.

adnīsus (an-), a, um, perf. part. from adnitor.

ad-nītor (an-), i, nīsus or nixus sum, intrans. dep. I. press or lean upon or against, lean towards (with dat. or ad). II. (fig.) 1. lend one's aid or influence for a purpose. 2. exert one's-self, strive after, strive, use efforts.

adnixus (an-), perf. part. from adnitor.

ad-no (an-), ĕre, āvi, intrans. v. I. (with dat., ad, or acc.) swim to, towards, or alongside; swim up. II. (fig.) approach.

adnōmen, adnominatio, adnosco. See agnomen, etc.

ad-nōto (an-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. note down; remark, observe, perceive. Pass. be noted or rendered remarkable. II. mark out for punishment, sentence.

ad-nūbilo (an-), āre, trans. v. cloud over, obscure.

ad-nūmĕro (an-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. count to a person, put to a person's account; count out or pay. 2. add to, reckon with, include among.

ad-nūo (an-), ĕre, ŭi, ūtum (?), intrans. and trans. v. 1. nod, nod assent to; hence, approve, assent; favour, prosper. 2. grant, permit, promise. 3. make signs, admit by signs, indicate, intimate.

(1) ăd-ŏlĕo, ēre, ēvi (ŭi), ultum, (root ol-); cf. sub-ole), trans. v. 1. lit. make to grow, make, may, magnify; hence, in sacrificial language (techn. t.), (a) honour by sacrifice, worship: Penates; aras deinde, cover the altars with gifts; (b) offer in sacrifice; burn on an altar: verbenas; iussos honores. (2.) (poet. and late Lat.) set fire to, light, kindle, burn: flammis Penates, to kindle the hearth-gods with flames, i.e. to make the hearth-fire blaze; stipulae demptis adolentur aristis. [For deriv. from oleum, see P.S.L.G. p. 210.]

(2) ăd-ŏlĕo, ēre, intrans. v. emit a smell; (with cogn. acc.) smell of.

ădŏlescens (ădŭl-), ntis, part. from adolesco. Compar. adolescentior. As subst. better ădŭlescens, c. 1. a youth; a young man or young woman; strictly, one between seventeen and thirty to forty years of age, but often loosely used = iuvenis, q.v. 2. (to distinguish two persons of the same name) 'the younger:' Brutus adulescens, the younger Brutus.

ădŏlescentĭa (ădŭl-), ae, f. [adolescens], youth; strictly, the period between pueritia, q.v., and iuventus, q.v.; but used by Cic. = iuventus.

ădŏlescentŭlus (ădŭl-), i, m. dim. [adolescens], 1. a very young man, a stripling; sts. as a term of contempt, a weak, silly youth. 2. a young soldier, recruit.

ăd-ŏlesco (ădŭl-), ĕre, ēvi, ultum, [incept. adoleo], intrans. v. I. grow up, grow; reach maturity or man's estate. II. (fig.) increase, advance. III. (techn. t.) begin to burn, be lighted up (cf. adolec); Virg. G. iv. 378, solitary use of the incept. in a sacrificial sense.

ădŏlesse = ădŏlēvisse, perf. inf. adolesco.

Ădōnis, ĭdis or ĭdis, (acc. Adonim or Adonidem ; voc. Adoni), m. a beautiful youth, son of Cinyras, beloved by Venus. He died of a wound inflicted by a wild boar, and was yearly bewailed by Venus on the anniversary of his death. The flower anemone sprang from his blood. The worship of Adonis seems to have been identical with that of the Phœnician Thammuz.

ăd-ŏpĕrio, īre, ŭi, ertum, trans. v. cover up, wrap, muffle.

ădŏpertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adoperio, enveloped, shrouded; dight: fores, closed doors.

ăd-ŏpinor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. conjecture.

ădoptātio, ōnis, f. [adopto], an adopting.

ădoptio, ōnis, f. [id.], a taking or receiving one in the place of a child; adoption, strictly, of one still under paternal authority. It took place in the presence of the praetor or other magistrate, and its effect was to create the legal relation of father and son. An adopted person, on passing from one gens into another, generally retained the name of his old gens, with the termination -anus : e.g. P. Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus (i.e. adopted from the gens Aemilia) ; C. Iulius Caesar Octavianus, etc.

ădoptīvus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of or belonging to adoption, made or acquired by adoption, adoptive: sacra, the sacra of the family into which one has been adopted (opp. to paterna). II. (poet., meton. of plants) engrafted, not natural; hence, acquired, not one's own.

ăd-opto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. take to one's-self by choice, choose, select: se, attach one's-self to. 2. (legal techn. t.) adopt: se, adopt one's-self, i.e. take a new name; cf. adoptio. 3. (poet. of an engrafted plant) adopt. 4. give a name to.

ador, ōris, n. [cf. (1) edo], spelt; grain.

ădōrātio, ōnis, f. [adoro], adoration.

ădōrea, ae, f. See adoreus.

ădōrĕus, a, um, adj. [ador], of spelt; of meal. As subst. ădōrea (sc. donatio), ae, f. a dole of grain given in early times as the reward of valour ; hence, victory, success, glory, renown.

ăd-orĭor, ōrĭri, ortus sum, trans. dep. I. approach with hostility, attack, assail. 2. enter upon, undertake, begin, attempt. 3. accost.

ăd-orno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. fit out, equip, furnish; get ready, prepare, organise, arrange. 2. adorn, embellish, decorate, distinguish.

ăd-ōro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. accost. 2. beseech, implore: sts. with double acc. : deos pacem. 3. worship, do homage to; pay court to. Gerundive, ădōrandus, a, um, venerable, reverend.

ădorsus, a, um, rare perf. part. from adorior.

ădortus, a, um, perf. part. from adorior.

adpărātē (ap-), adv. [(1) adparatus], sumptuously. Compar. adparatius.

adpărātio (ap-), ōnis, f. [adparo], a preparation, preparing.

(1) adpărātus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adparo. As adj. I. ready, prepared; well supplied or furnished. II. splendid, sumptuous. III. (fig.) elaborate, pedantic (of style). Compar. adparatior; superl. adparatissimus.

(2) adpărātus (ap-), ūs, m. [adparo], 1. a preparation, arrangement, getting ready, providing. 2. magnificence, sumptuousness, pomp, luxury. 3. apparatus, gear, furniture, paraphernalia; 'material;' engine, machine, etc. ; siege-train.

ad-părĕo (ap-), ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, in trans. v. 1. appear, come or be in sight, be visible, show one's-self, make a show, attract notice. 2. be evident, apparent. Impers. adpāret, it is evident (with acc. and infin., or with rel. clause). 3. appear as a servant, be in waiting, attend or wait upon (with dat.). Cf. adparitor.

ad-părio (ap-), ēre, trans. v. gain in addition, acquire.

adpărītio (ap-), ōnis, f. [adparo, 3], 1. a service, attendance, service. 2. (in pl. abstr. = concr.) domestics, servants; household.

adpărītor (ap-), ōris, m. [id.], a servant; esp. an official's servant, e.g. a lictor, scribe, tipstaff, etc. See Dict. Ant.

ad-păro (ap-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. prepare, provide, furnish, equip. Also, absol. prepare one's-self, get ready.

adpellāssis (ap-) = adpellaveris, perf. subj. from (2) adpello.

adpellātio (ap-), ōnis, f. [(2) adpello], 1. an addressing or accosting. 2. an appealing, appeal. 3. a calling by name, naming; hence, a name, title. 4. a pronunciation, utterance.

adpellātor (ap-), ōris, m. [id.], one who appeals, an appellant.

adpellīto (ap-), āre, [freq. (2) adpello], trans. v. call often, name habitually.

(1) ad-pello (ap-), ĕre, pŭli, pulsum, trans. and traj. trans. v. 1. drive, push or direct to or towards; bring, conduct. 2. (with navem, or abs.) make for, touch at, put in, land at a place. 3. (with nave, or reflex. pass.) arrive, land. 4. (rarely, intrans.) arrive (of a ship).

(2) ad-pello (ap-), āre, āvi, ātum, [pello, parallel form; cf. lavere, lavare] 1. address, accost, speak to; call by name, mention. 2. (with double acc.) name, call. 3. appeal to, implore, invoke, remonstrate with; sts. make overtures to, solicit, tamper with. 4. (legal) call upon for assistance, appeal to (the tribunes, praetor, etc.). 5. make a claim for, demand; dun, press for payment. 6. inform against, impeach, summon, sue. 7. pronounce, utter.

ad-pendo (ap-), ĕre, di, sum, traj. trans. v. 1. weigh something to a person, add in weighing. II. (fig.) weigh, consider.

adpensus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adpendo.

adpētens (ap-), ntis, part. from adpeto. As adj. (with gen.), desirous of, eager for. Also, absol. covetous, grasping. Compar. adpetentior; superl. adpetentissimus.

adpētenter (ap-), adv. [adpetens], eagerly, in a grasping spirit.

adpētentĭa (ap-), ae, f. [id.], a desire for, longing.

adpĕtītio (ap-), ōnis, f. [adpeto], 1. a striving or reaching after, a grasping at. 2. an earnest desire or longing for.

(1) adpĕtītus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adpeto.

(2) adpĕtītus (ap-), ūs, m. [adpeto], an eager desire or longing for a thing; desire. In. pl. the appetites, passions.

ad-pĕto (ap-), ĕre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. v. 1. strive after, try to get; desire eagerly, long for, covet. 2. aim at, assail, attack. 3. approach, make for, encroach upon. Also, without obj. acc., draw near, be at hand. Adpetere manum osculis, to seize a person's hand and kiss it; hence, in pass. to be saluted, have court paid to one.

ad-pingo (ap-), ĕre, traj. trans. v. 1. paint a thing upon another, introduce in a painting. 2. tag on.

ad-plaudo, ad-plōdo (ap-), ĕre, si, sum, trans. and intraus. v. A. (trans.) 1. strike a thing on or against another; strike with the hands, clap, clap. 2. clap the hands at, applaud. B. (intrans.) applaud.

adplausus, adplōsus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adplaudo [-plodo].

adplĭcātio (ap-), ōnis, f. [adplico], 1. an application attachment: animi, a leaning or bent of the mind towards something. 2. (legal) a placing one's self under the protection of a patronus, clientship: ius adplicationis, the right possessed by the citizen of an allied state of attaching himself to a quasi-patronus. See Dict. Ant. exsilium.

adplĭcātus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adplico. As adj. 1. placed upon, lying close to. 2. (fig.) inclined to.

adplĭcĭtus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adplico.

ad-plico (ap-), āre, āvi (ŭi), ātum (ĭtum), trans. v. (sts. with dat. or prep. ad), lit. fold a thing on another; 1. put or bring near, draw towards, bring in contact, attach, apply, add, fasten on, join. 2. bend towards, incline, lean. 3. bring, move, or drive to any point; esp. of ships, or coming by sea: navem, or pass. reflex. bring or steer to land; land, arrive at. Cf. (1) adpello. Sts. absol. approach, arrive, put in.

ad-plōdo (ap-). See adplaudo.

ad-plōro (ap-), āre, āvi, ātum, traj. v. wail at or with another, wail responsively.

adplōsus (ap-), a, um. See adplausus.

ad-pōno (ap-), ĕre, pŏsŭi, pŏsĭtum, traj. trans. and trans. v. 1. put or place at, by, or near; put on. 2. apply, unite, add: lucro (dat. of purpose), add on the credit side, i.e. set down or score as gain. 3. put on table, serve up (food, dishes, etc.). 4. aliquem alicui rei, appoint to or set to work at any service or duty, assign.

ad-porrectus (ap-), a, um, adj. [formed as part. from ad-porrigo], stretched or extended close by.

ad-porto (ap-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. bring or carry to; convey, bring.

ad-posco (ap-), ĕre, trans. v. ask or claim in addition.

adpōsĭtē (ap-), adv. [adpositus], fitly, suitably.

adpōsĭtus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adpono. As adj. 1. near or contiguous to, bordering upon. 2. (with prep. ad) suitable, appropriate. Compar. adpositior; superl. adpositissimus.

ad-prĕcor (ap-), āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. pray to, invoke.

ad-prĕhendo, and ad-prendo (ap-), ĕre, di, sum, trans. v. I. 1. lay hold of, seize, arrest. 2. take by the hand (for the purpose of saluting, entreating, etc.). 3. seize or take possession of a place. II. (fig.) seize a point in an argument.

ad-prendo (ap-), ĕre, sync. = adprehendo.

ad-prīmē (ap-), adv. [ad, intens.; primus], before all, very particularly, in the highest degree, especially (with adj. and verbs).

ad-prīmo (ap-), ĕre, pressi, pressum, traj. trans. v. press to or towards.

ad-prŏbātio (ap-), ōnis, f. [adprobo], 1. an approving, acquiescence, sanction, approval. 2. confirmation, proof.

ad-prŏbātor (ap-), ōris, m. [id.], one who approves or sanctions, an approver.

ad-prŏbo (ap-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. assent to, favour, approve, sanction. 2. cause to be approved by a person, render satisfactory or acceptable to. 3. make good, prove, demonstrate, establish.

ad-prōmitto (ap-), ĕre, trans. v. add one's promise to that of others, promise further.

ad-prŏpĕro (ap-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) accelerate, hasten; sts. with infin. as obj. B. (intrans.) hurry, make haste.

adprŏpĭnquātio (ap-), onis, f. [adpropinquo], a drawing near, near approach.

ad-prŏpinquo (ap-), āre, āvi, atum, intrans. v. come near to, approach, draw nigh (with dat. or prep. ad).

ad-pugno (ap-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. fight against, attack, assault.

(1) adpulsus (ap-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) adpello.

(2) adpulsus (ap-), ūs, m. [(1) adpello], 1. a landing, putting or bringing to land. II. (meton.) an approach: solis, the beating of the sun's rays.

adq-. See acq-.

ad-rādo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. scrape or shave close, pare; lop.

Adrămyttēnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Adramyttium.

Adrămyttĕos (-tĕum, -tĭum), i, n. a town of Mysia, opposite to the I. of Lesbos.

Adrāna, ae, f. a river of Germany, now the Eder, near Cassel.

Adrastēa (-ĭa), ae, f. [Ἀδράστεια], another name of Nemesis.

Adrastēus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Adrastus.

Adrastis, idis, patron. f. a female descendant of Adrastus; esp. Argia, daughter of Adrastus and wife of Polynices.

Adrastus, i, m. [Ἄδραστος], king of Argos, father-in-law of Tydeus and Polynices, and one of the 'Seven against Thebes.'

adrāsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adrado, newly shaven.

adrectus (ar-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adrigo. As adj. steep, precipitous. Compar. adrectior.

ad-rēmigo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. row or paddle to or towards.

ad-rēpo (ar-), ĕre, repsi, reptum, intrans. v. I. creep or crawl to or towards, steal softly to. II. (fig.) worm one's self into, ingratiate one's self with.

adreptus (ar-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adripio.

Adria, Adriācus, Adriānus. See Hadr-, etc.

ad-rīdĕo (ar-), ēre, si, sum, trans. v. I. laugh at or with, smile responsively; sts. with acc. laugh or smile at. II. (fig.) 1. smile upon, favour. 2. be pleasing to, please.

ad-rigo (ar-), ĕre, rexi, rectum, trans. v. I. set up, prick up, rear, raise, erect. II. (fig.) rouse, animate, excite, make eager or intent.

ad-rīpio (ar-), ĕre, rīpŭi, reptum, trans. v. 1. snatch or catch up, seize, take hold of; appropriate, secure. II. (fig.) 1. (of the mind) learn quickly, take in. 2. (legal) come down upon a man with a sudden charge, summon hastily before a tribunal, complain of, indict (without good reason); esp. a magistrate at the end of his term of office. 3. fasten upon, attack pitch into, satirise.

adrīsor (ar-), ōris, m. [adrideo], a flatterer, toady.

ad-rōdo (ar-), ere, rōsi, rōsum, trans. v. gnaw or nibble at, gnaw.

adrōgans (ar-), ntis, pres. part. from adrogo. As adj. 1. assuming, presumptuous. 2. overbearing, haughty, arrogant. Compar. adrogantior; superl. adrogantissimus.

adrōganter (ar-), adv. [adrogans], 1. assumingly, presumptuously. 2. overbearingly, haughtily. Compar. adrogantius.

adrōgantĭa (ar-), ae, f. [id.], 1. assumption, presumptuousness. 2. overbearing conduct or demeanour, haughtiness.

ad-rōgo (ar-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. ask further. II. 1. claim as one's own, arrogate to one's-self, appropriate, assume. 2. claim for or adjudge to another: (of Achilles) nihil non adroget armis, i.e. let him appeal to the arbitration of arms alone. 3. confer in addition. III. (techn. t.) add one magistrate to another: dictatorem consuli, appoint a dictator over the consul's head.

adrōsor (ar-), ōris, m. [adrodo], one who gnaws or nibbles at.

adrōsus (ar-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adrodo.

Adrūmētum, i, n. See Hadr-.

adscendens (asc-), ntis, pres. part. from adscendo.

ad-scendo (asc-), ere, scendi, scensum [ad, scando], intrans. and trans. v. ascend, mount, climb, climb up to; sts. with prepp. in, ad.

(1) adscensus (asc-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adscendo.

(2) adscensus (asc-), ūs, m. [adscendo], I. the act of ascending or mounting. II. (meton.) a place where one ascends, an approach, ascent, elevation. III. (fig.) a step, gradation.

ad-scio (asc-), īre, īvi [(2) scio], trans. v. take to one's-self; receive, admit; deliberately choose, select. Cf. adscisco. [Very rare.]

ad-scisco (asc-), ĕre, scīvi, scītum, trans. v. I. 1. take upon acquaintance; approve. 2. admit or receive (as a citizen, ally, etc.), adopt, elect. II. (fig.) 1. take to one's-self, appropriate, adopt, assume. 2. order, decree, approve of.

(1) adscītus (ascī-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adsciscо. As adj. imported, foreign, borrowed.

(2) ? adscītus (ascī-), ūs, m. [adsciscо], an acceptance, reception (doubtful).

ad-scrībo (ascr-), ĕre, psi, ptum, trans. and trad. v. I. 1. write in addition, insert in writing; sts. of inscriptions, superscriptions, or signatures. 2. (techn. t.) enter in a list, draft, enrol (as a citizen, colonist, soldier, etc.). II. (fig.) 1. reckon or include among, class, associate with, add to. 2. impute, ascribe, attribute, refer, apply. 3. settle, fix, appoint.

adscriptīcius (ascr-), a, um, adj. [adscribo], enrolled in any community, entered on a list, etc. Cf. adscribo, I. 2.

adscriptĭo (ascr-), ōnis, f. [id.], an addition in writing, additional clause.

adscriptor (ascr-), ōris, m. [id.], one who signs his name in approval of anything.

adscriptus (ascr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adscribo. As adj. settled, determined, appointed.

adsecla, adsĕcŭla (as-), ae, m. [adsequor], a follower, hanger on, flunkey, toady: mensarum, i.e. a parasite.

adsectātĭo (as-), ōnis, f. [adsector], I. a constant or respectful attendance (e.g. of clients on a patron). II. (fig.) careful observation or study: caeli.

adsectātor (as-), ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who attends on a person (as a client, friend, servant, etc.), in a good sense; an attendant, member of a suite. 2. a follower, disciple.

ad-sector (as-), āri, ātus sum, [freq. from adsequor], trans. dep. attend or wait upon regularly, follow closely, accompany (esp. of the friends of a candidate for office); hence, pay attention to, court.

adsĕcŭla, ae, m. See adsecla.

adsensĭo (as-), ōnis, f. [adsentior], 1. an assenting to a thing, assent, agreement; approval. 2. a mark of assent or approbation; applause.

adsensor (as-), ōris, m. [id.], one who assents to or agrees with a person or thing.

(1) adsensus (as-), a, um, perf. part. from adsentior.

(2) adsensus (as-), ūs, m. [adsentior], I. 1. an assenting, consent, approval. 2. (in pl.) marks of assent, applause. II. (poet., meton. of sound) unison, accord; sts. echo.

adsentātĭo (as-), ōnis, f. [adsentor], flattering assent, flattery, adulation; sts. in a good sense, approbation.

adsentātĭuncŭlā (as-), ae, f. [dim. adsentatio], petty or trivial flattery, palaver.

adsentātor (as-), ōris, m. [adsentor], a flatterer, time-server.

adsentātōrĭē (as-), adv. [adsentor], in a flattering manner.

ad-sentĭo (as-), īre, sensi, sum, traj. v. give assent, approve, agree, [Rare.]

ad-sentĭor (as-), īri, sensus sum, traj. dep. lit. join one's-self in opinion; I. give assent to, assent, approve; sts. intrans. or with neut. cogn. acc. II. in pass. sense; impers. adsensum est: Bibulo, Bibulus's motion was agreed to; perf. part. adsensus, a, um, assented to, agreed to.

ad-sentor (as-), āri, ātus sum, [freq. adsentior], traj. dep. assent fully to, agree with in everything, flatter, lay one's-self out to please.

ad-sĕquor (as-), i, secūtus or sequūtus sum, trans. dep. I. 1. follow up, pursue. 2. overtake, arrive at, come up with. II. (fig.) 1. attain to, obtain, procure. 2. reach with the mind; comprehend, understand.

(1) ad-sĕro (as-), ĕre, sēvi, sĭtum [(1) sero], traj. trans. v. sow, plant, or set-near to.

(2) ad-sĕro (as-), ĕre, sĕrŭi, sertum, ([2] sero), trans. v. (lit. join to one's-self), I. (legal. techn. t., with manu in libertatem, manu liberali causa, aliquem manu, or absol.) lay the hand on (a slave) for liberty; hence, declare or set free, liberate; but, declare a slave by laying the hand on him. II. (fig.) 1. liberate, protect, defend, rescue. 2. lay hands upon, lay claim to, appropriate. 3. maintain, assert, declare.

adsertĭo (as-), ōnis, f. ([2] adsero), a formal declaration that one is a freeman or a slave.

adsertor (as-), ōris, m. [id.], 1. an asserter or restorer of liberty. 2. a liberator, defender, protector, advocate. 3. one who claims another as a slave: puellae, the claimant of the maiden.

adsertus (as-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) adsero. A person whose freedom was claimed was said to be adsertus.

ad-servĭo (as-), īre, traj. v. aid assist.

ad-servo (as-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, intens., servo], trans. v. keep or preserve carefully, watch over, guard; keep secret.

adsessĭo (as-), ōnis, f. [adsideo], a sitting by or near a person; the comfort of a person's presence.

adsessor (as-), ōris, m. [id.], one who sits by another; hence (legal techn. t.), a judge or magistrate's assessor.

(1) adsessus (as-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adsideo.

(2) adsessus (as-), ūs, m. [adsideo], a sitting by or near.

adsēvēranter (as-), adv. [adseverans], earnestly, emphatically. Compar. adseverantius.

adsēvērātĭo (as-), ōnis, f. [adsevero], 1. a doing in earnest; earnestness, seriousness, persistency. 2. a positive assertion, a strong or emphatic statement, asseveration.

ad-sēvēro (as-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad, severus], trans. v. 1. do or carry on in earnest. 2. declare positively or emphatically, seriously affirm, maintain; sts. with acc. and infin. or with prep. de. 3. (of things) prove, demonstrate. 4. (of conduct, demeanour, etc.) make a profession of: gravitatem, set up for being a paragon of austere morality.

ad-sĭbilo (as-), āre, āvi, ātum, traj. v. 1. whistle or murmur responsively. 2. (poet. with acc.) hiss out or away: animam.

ad-sĭdo (as-), ĕre, sēdi, sessum, [sedeo], intrans. and traj. v. I. 1. sit by, beside, or near: hence, wait upon, attend to. 2. (legal) act as assessor to a judge, etc. 3.

sit down ; settle down. 4. sit down before a place, besiege, blockade : sts. with acc. Also pass. in this sense. II. (fig.) 1. rank next to, be next door to, resemble. Cf. disideo. 2. be busily engaged in a thing : litteris.

ad-sīdo (as-), ĕre, sēdi, intrans. take a seat, sit down ; (of birds) alight, settle. Also with acc. sit down beside or near.

adsiduē (as-), adv. [adsiduus], constantly, incessantly, unremittingly, devotedly. Superl. adsiduissime.

adsiduĭtas (as-), ātis, f. [id.], 1. constant attendance upon a person ; esp. the constant attendance of candidates for office in the assemblies. 2. (of persons) continual or constant presence. 3. (with gen. of thing) reiteration, recurrence, constant repetition ; also, without gen., constant or incessant application, assiduity.

adsiduō (as-), adv. [id.]=adsidue.

adsiduus (as-), a, um, adj. [adsideo], 1. close at hand, ever present ; in constant attendance upon. 2. constantly engaged in or with, busy ; constantly in residence, 'stay-at-home.' 3. unremitting, continual, ceaseless, everlasting. Compar. magis adsiduior sts. adsiduior ; superl. adsiduissimus.

adsignātio (as-), ōnis, f. [adsigno], an assignment or allotting ; esp. of lands to colonists.

ad-signo (as-), āre, āvi, ātum, traj. trans. v. I. mark out, assign, apportion, allot ; esp. of public lands to colonists ; hence, grant to, bestow upon. Ia. (fig.) 1. attribute, ascribe, impute to ; place to one's credit ; lay at one's door. 2. commit, delegate, intrust. III. seal up ; put one's seal to, attest.

ad-sīlio (as-), īre, ŭi, sultum, [salio], intrans. v. I. 1. leap or spring up or upon : moenibus. 2. (poet. of water) dash against, plash. II. (fig.) plunge or burst into.

adsimilātio (as-). See adsimulatio.

ad-similis (as-), e, adj. like to, like (with gen. or dat.).

ad-simĭlo (as-). See adsimulo.

adsimŭlātio (as-), ōnis, f. [adsimulo], 1. a similarity, likeness. 2. (in rhet.) a mock apologetic manner.

adsimŭlātus (as-, assim-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adsimulo. As adj. 1. made like, similar, resembling. 2. imitated, counterfeited, feigned.

ad-simŭlo (as-, assim-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. I. A. (trans.) 1. make like. Pass. be made like to, resemble. 2. liken, compare. 3. take the likeness of, counterfeit, imitate. B. (intrans.) feign, pretend.

ad-sisto (as-), ĕre, stĭti, traj. v. I. 1. stand at, by, or near : adsisto divinis, I drop in upon the fortune-tellers. 2. present one's self or appear before (a tribunal). 3. stand by one (as counsel) before a tribunal ; hence (fig.) defend, assist. II. plant one's self, take one's stand ; stand.

(1) adsĭtus (as-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) adsero. As adj. planted alongside ; 'companion' : arbores.

(2) ad ĭtus (as-), a, um, adj. [sino], situated near, adjoining.

ad-sŏcio (as-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. join, unite.

ad-sōlĕo (as-), ēre, intrans. v. (only in 3 sing. and pl.) be accustomed, wont, or usual. Impers. ut adsolet, as generally happens, as is usual.

ad-sŏno (as-), āre, intrans. v. give sound for sound, respond : sts. with cogn. acc.

(1) ad-spargo (as-), ĕre. See (2) adspergo.

(2) adspargo (asp-), ĭnis, f. See (2) adspergo.

adspectābilis (asp-), e, adj. [adspecto], that may be seen, visible.

ad-specto (asp-), āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. adspicio], trans. v. I. look at eagerly or attentively, gaze at wistfully or fondly. 2. look up to, regard ; observe, pay attention to. 3. (of locality) look towards, face.

(1) adspectus (asp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adspicio.

(2) adspectus (asp-), ūs, m. [adspicio], I. 1. (active) a seeing, looking at ; a glance, look. 2. the faculty of seeing ; sight. II. (pass.) the being seen, visibility, appearance, sight ; hence, aspect, look, mien, countenance.

(1) ad-spergo, ad-spargo (asp-), ĕre, rsi, rsum, [spargo], trans. v. (with abl. of the thing, or with acc. of thing and dat. of person), I. 1. scatter, sprinkle, shed, or strew upon. 2. splash, bespatter, sprinkle, moisten, bedew. II. (fig.) 1. cast a slur upon, sully, defile, asperse ; banter ; cf. French 'laver la tête à quelqu'un. 2. add by way of seasoning ; throw in, add.

(2) adspergo, adspargo (asp-), ĭnis, f. ([1] adspergo), I. a sprinkling. II. (meton.) that which is sprinkled ; spray ; drops.

adspersio (asp-), ōnis, f. [id.], I. a sprinkling ; esp. in religious ceremonies. 2. a splashing on or smudging of paint.

adspersus (asp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adspergo (1).

ad-spĭcio (asp-), ĕre, spexi, spectum, (ad, specio), trans. v. I. 1. look at, behold, see ; lucem, see the light of day, i.e. (a) come into the world, be born : (b) live. 2. look full in the face. II. (fig.) 1. notice, observe, take into consideration. 2. look upon with respect, regard, etc. 3. get a view of, perceive. III. (of locality) look towards, face : sts. of persons, have in view : servientium litora. Tac.

adspīrāmen (asp-), ĭnis, n. (adspiro), a breathing upon ; (poet.) a conferring, Val. Fl.

adspīrātio (asp-), ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a breathing upon : aëris, i.e. the air blowing upon one. 2. evaporation, exhalation. 3. (gram.) the use of the rough breathing ; the aspirate.

ad-spīro (asp-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans., traj. trans., and traj. v. ; A. (intrans.) 1. breathe, blow ; sts. with prep. ad. 2. (with prepp. ad, in, with dat., local adv., or absol.), (a) desire to reach or obtain, aspire to, dream of entering or approaching, come within range of, compete with ; (b) attain to, arrive at. B. (traj. trans.) breathe or make to blow upon ; inspire, instil, inspire, impart. C. (traj.) support, favour, assist : tibia adspirat choro, the flageolet accompanies the chorus.

ad-sterno (ast-), ĕre, traj. trans. v. strew by or upon. Pass. reflex. lie stretched, or stretch one's-self upon : sepulcro, Ov.

adstipŭlātor (ast-), ōris, m. [adstipulor], 1. (legal) one who joins another in a contract. 2. (meton.) an assistant in a trade. 3. (fig.) one who assents or agrees to ; a partisan.

ad-stipŭlor (ast-), āri, ātus sum, traj. dep. I. bargain with in addition. II. (fig.) agree with ; truckle to, humour.

ad-sto (ast-), āre, stĭti, intrans. v. (with many prepp., dat., and sts. abl.) I. 1. stand at, by, or near, be close at hand. 2. stand at a person's side to befriend him ; hence, aid, assist. 3. stand erect, stand up, rise. II. (fig.) abide, survive.

ad-strĕpo (astr-), ĕre, intrans. v. 1. make a noise at or to, roar in answer. 2. chime in, applaud. 3. shout, vociferate ; sts. with cogn. acc.

adstrictē (astr-), adv. [adstrictus], concisely, briefly. Compar. adstrictius.

adstrictus (astr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adstringo. As adj. I. drawn together, tight, fastened : socus, graceful, it thing ; non adstrictus, loose ; slovenly. II. (fig.) close-handed, stingy, parsimonious. 2. (of style) concise, brief. Compar. adstrictior.

ad-strīdo (astr-), ĕre (-strīdĕo, ēre), intrans. v. hiss at, hiss.

ad-stringo (astr-), ĕre, inxi, ictum, trans. v. I. 1. bind or fasten to. 2. draw close, tighten ; clasp ; compress ; fundem, contract or knit the brow. 3. bind hard or fast ; congeal, freeze ; hence, cool, invigorate, brace. II. (fig.) 1. circumscribe, tie down, limit, confine ; pinch, reduce to straits. 2. make binding or obligatory, confirm, secure, seal : fundem, confirm a promise ; me iure iurando, bind myself by an oath ; se scelere, implicate one's-self in crime, criminally compromise one's-self. 3. (of style, etc.) compress, condense, abridge.

ad-strŭo (astr-), ĕre, xi, ctum, traj. trans. v. I. build near or in addition. II. (fig.) 1. add. 2. ascribe, impute. III. cover over, roof in.

ad-stŭpĕo (ast-), ēre, traj. and intrans. v. be amazed or astonished at ; be rapt in wonder.

adsuctus (as-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adsugo.

ad-sŭē-făcio (as-), ĕre, fēci, factum, [adsuetus, facio], trans. v.

habituate, accustom, inure; with abl., dat., prep. ad, or infin.

adsŭēfactus (as-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adsuefacio; trained or accustomed to, familiarised with.

ad-sŭesco (as-), ĕre, suēvi, suētum (trisyll. in poet.) trans. and intrans. v. ; A. (trans.) habituate, accustom, familiarise. B. (intrans.) accustom one's-self, be accustomed or wont. In pass. impers., cui adsuescitur, to which one grows accustomed.

adsŭētūdo (as-), dĭnis, f. [adsuetus], 1. custom, habit. 2. intercourse with a person. (Quadrisyll. in poet.)

adsŭētus (as-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adsuesco. As adj. accustomed, used; usual, customary. Neut. abl. after compar. adgueto, than usual. (Trisyll. in poet.)

ad-sūgo (as-), ĕre, no perf., ctum, trans. v. suck.

ad-sulto (as-), āre, āvi, ātum, [salto], traj. and trans. v. 1. leap or spring upon. 2. assault, attack; freq. of a rapid cavalry movement. Pass. impers., adsultatum est, an attack was made. 3. (absol.) jump about, bound, caper.

adsultus (as-), ūs, m. [id.], 1. a bounding or leaping to or towards. 2. an assault, attack.

ad-sum (as-), esse, fŭi (affŭi), intrans. v. I. be at, near, or by; be at hand, be present. II. (with dat.) 1. be present with a person; esp. as companion, assistant, witness, etc.; hence, stand by, aid, assist, support; (freq. of advocati, appear on a person's behalf, act as counsel to; cf. absum, 4). 2. (fig.) animo, be present in mind; give heed, attention; also, preserve one's presence of mind, be calm and self-possessed. III. (with idea of motion) come, appear, arrive. 2. (legal) appear before a tribunal.

ad-sūmo (as-), ĕre, mpsi, mptum, trans. v. 1. take to one's-self, adopt, receive, admit. 2. take upon one's-self, claim, assume. 3. take, receive, or obtain in addition; add. 4. (in logic) state the minor premiss of a syllogism; assume.

adsumptio (as-), ōnis, f. [adsumo], 1. a taking to one's-self, adoption, acceptance. 2. (in logic) the minor premiss of a syllogism.

adsumptus (as-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adsumo : adsumpta verba (in gram.), epithets.

adsunt-. See under adsumpt-.

ad-sŭo (as-), ĕre, traj. trans. v. sew or stitch on or upon.

ad-surgo (as-), ĕre, surrexi, surrectum, intrans. v. I. 1. rise up, rise: in clipeum, rise to one's shield, i.e. fall over with upraised shield. 2. rise on a sickbed, recover. 3. rise in height, increase in size, mount up. II. adsurgo alicui, rise up to out of respect; pay respects to, yield precedence. In pass. impers. adsurgitur, respect is shown by rising; adsurgi, the respect shown by rising.

adt-. See under att-.

Adŭātŭca, ae, f. a fortress in the country of the Eburones, now Tongres.

Adŭātŭci (-tĭci), ōrum, m. pl. a people of Gallia Belgica, descended from the Cimbri and Teutones.

ădŭlans, ntis, part. from adulor.

ădŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [adulor], I. a fawning, caressing (of animals). II. (fig.) 1. adulation, flattery, sycophancy. 2. (abstr. = concr.) flatterers.

ădŭlātor, ōris, m. [id.], a flatterer, a sycophant.

ădŭlātōrius, a, um, adj. [id.], of a flatterer: dedecus, the degradation to which a flatterer may descend.

ădŭlescens, adulescentia, adulescentulus. See adolescens, etc.

ădŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. fawn, caress, flatter. (Very rare for adulor.)

ădŭlor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. I. fawn like a dog. II. (fig.) 1. fawn upon, flatter: sts. with dat. 2. make obeisance, salaam.

(1) ădulter, ĕri, m. [? ad, alter], an adulterer, gallant, paramour. Fem. ădultĕra, ae, an adulteress.

(2) ădulter, ĕra, ĕrum, adj. [id.], I. of an adulterer; adulterous, unchaste. II. (fig.) counterfeited, spurious.

ădultĕrīnus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. adulterous; bastard. II. (fig.) spurious, forged, false.

ădultĕrium, ii, n. [id.], adultery, intrigue.

ădultĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. debauch, pollute. II. (fig.) debase, falsify, adulterate; (poet.) alter: faciem. III. (absol.) commit adultery.

ădultus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adolesco. As adj. grown up, full grown; matured, fully developed: virgo, marriageable; adulta nocte, at an advanced hour of the night; aestate, when summer was at its height.

ădumbrātim, adv. [adumbro], in outline; faintly, indistinctly.

ădumbrātio, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a sketching in outline; an outline, draft. 2. a semblance.

ădumbrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adumbro. As adj. shadowy, unreal, counterfeited, fictitious; pretended, nominal.

ăd-umbro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. cast a shadow on, shade, sketch in light and shade; delineate. II. (fig.) sketch in outline, represent imperfectly.

ăduncitas, ātis, f. [aduncus], a being curved inwards; hookedness.

ăd-uncus, a, um, adj. 1. curved inward, bent forward, hooked. 2. (poet.) taloned; horned, Ov.

ăd-urgĕo, ēre, trans. v. 1. press against. 2. press or pursue closely.

ăd-ūro, ĕre, ussi, ustum, trans. v. I. scorch, burn, singe. Pass. reflex. suffer burning. II. (meton.) sear, blast, nip, bite (of cold, etc.). III. (fig.) inflame (of love).

ăd-usquĕ (for usque ad), 1. prep. with acc, all the way to, quite or even to, as far as. 2. (adv.) throughout, wholly, entirely.

ădustus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from aduro. As adj. sunburnt, swarthy. Compar. adustior. As subst. adusta, orum, n. pl. burns (upon the flesh).

advecticius (not -tius), a, um, adj. [adveho], imported, foreign.

ad-vecto, āre, [freq. advehо], trans. v. import, carry repeatedly.

(1) advectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from adveho.

(2) advectus, ūs, m. [adveho], an importation, introduction.

ad-vĕho, ĕre, xi, ctum, trans. v. conduct, carry, or bring to a place, import. Pass. am transported or brought; hence (reflex.), ride, ride up; sail to, land at.

ad-vĕlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. veil, wreathe, encircle.

advĕna, ae, c. [ad-venio], a newcomer, stranger, foreigner. In apposition = adj. stranger, foreign: amor, love for a foreign lady.

ad-vĕnĕror, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. worship.

ad-vĕnĭo, īre, vēni, ventum, trans. v. I. come to, arrive at, reach; arrive. II. (fig.) 1. fall to or accrue to one. 2. happen, occur. III. (poet.) come in addition, be added.

adventĭcius (not -tius), a, um, adj. [advenio], 1. coming from abroad, foreign; extraneous. 2. incidental, unusual, extraordinary: pecunia, money that comes into a person's hands otherwise than by inheritance from his father; cena, a banquet by way of welcome. Adv. phrase : ex adventicio, extraneously.

ad-vento, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. from advenio], hasten. trans. v. come to, approach, advance, arrive.

adventōrĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], pertaining to an arrival or a guest. As subst. adventōrĭa, ae, f. (sc. cena), a banquet by way of welcome; a fête, welcome. Cf. adventicius.

adventus, ūs (-i, in Ter.), m. [advenio], an approach, arrival: primo adventu, as soon as he (they) arrived.

adversārius, a, um, adj. [adversus], I. facing one. As subst. adversārĭa, orum, n. pl. (sc. scripta), a handy book, commonplace or day book, posting or memorandum book. II. standing opposite; opposed or hostile to, antagonistic. As subst. adversarius, ii, m. (contr. gen. pl. adversariûm), an adversary, antagonist, opponent, rival; enemy, foe. Also fem. adversāria, ae, a female adversary, etc.

adversio, ōnis, f. [adverto], a turning or directing towards. Cf. animadversio.

ad-versor (advors-), āri, ātus sum, [(2) adversus], traj. dep. set one's-self against, oppose, resist; sts. absol., and in Tac. trans.

adversum (advors-), i, n. and adv. and prep. See adversus (1) and (2).

(1) adversus (advors-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from adverto. As adj. I. over against, fronting, opposite: lectus, i.e. the marriage-bed, which stood in the atrium fronting the door; cf. genialis, I.; vulnus, a wound in front; in os adversum, right or full in the face; adverso colle (fluminе), up the hill (stream). Adv. phrase: ex adverso, opposite. II. adverse, unfavourable: res adversae, adversity, misfortune, disasters; valetudo, i.e. sickness; adverso rumore esse, to be in disrepute. As subst. adversus, i, m. an opponent, adversum, i, n. misfortune, calamity, disaster. III. hateful, odious. Compar. adversior; superl. adversissimus.

(2) adversus, adversum (advors-), adv. and prep. I. (adv.) opposite to, against, face to face: ire or venire (with dat.), go or come to meet a person. II. (prep. with acc.) 1. towards or against; facing, opposite to. 2. before, in the presence of. 3. in comparison of, compared with. 4. in reply to, in dealing with. 5. (of feeling or conduct) to, towards; in regard to. [Adversus sts. is put after a pronoun. It also is divided by tmesis, e.g. ad Oceanum versus.] ad-verto (advort-), ĕre, ti, sum, traj. trans. v. (also with prepp. in, ad, and acc.), to turn or direct to or towards: navem, steer. Pass. reflex. with acc. land at: Scythicas oras. 2. advertere animum (poet. and Livy, animos; rarely mentem), (a) give heed to, notice, observe, perceive; with dat. or prep. ad; also (c) attend, listen; with double acc., acc. and infin., or rel. clause; (b) attend, listen; sts. without animum, esp. in Tac. 3. (with or without animum) call one's attention to something, urge to it. 4. —— aliquem, attract one's notice, catch one's eye. 5. draw upon one's self, attract. 6. —— in aliquem (cf. animadvertere in), punish one. Tac.

ad-vesperascit, āvit, impers. incept. it draws towards evening, evening is coming on.

ad-vigĭlo, āre, intrans. v. (with dat. or prep. ad), I. watch by, at, or over, keep guard over. II. (fig.) keep a good lookout, bestow careful attention.

advŏcātio, ōnis, f. [advoco], lit. a calling to or summoning; hence, 1. (legal techn. t.) legal assistance, advocacy. 2. (concr. =advocati) a body of supporters. 3. the time allowed for obtaining legal aid: hence, delay, adjournment.

advŏcātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from advoco. As subst. advŏcātus, i, m. 1. (legal techn. t.) a legal assistant; one who lends his aid, countenance, or advice in a suit (esp. a "iuriconsultus"), or who acts as a witness in any other business; hence, an adviser, supporter, partisan (not to be confounded with the 'orator' or 'patronus,' who made the speech). 2. (in the time of the Emperors=patronus, orator, etc.) an advocate, attorney.

ad-vŏco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. call in, invite, summon. 2. (legal) call in the aid of a friend as counsellor, witness, etc.; cf. advocatus, 1. II. (meton.) 1. obtain a delay or postponement; cf. advocatio. 2. call to one's aid (generally).

advŏlātus, ūs, m. [advolo], a flying to or towards.

ad-vŏlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. I. fly to or towards. II. (fig.) dash or hurry up to, reach with speed.

ad-volvo, ĕre, vi, volūtum, trans. v. (with prep. ad or dat.), roll to or towards. Pass. reflex. fall prostrate, throw one's-self, grovel before or at (a person's feet or knees, an altar, etc.); sts. with acc. dependent on prep. in verb.

advorsum, advorsus, advorto. See adversum, etc.

ădȳtum, i, n. [ἄδυτον, not to be entered], I. the innermost part of a temple, the sanctuary, from which all but the priests were excluded; a shrine; hence (poet.), of the tomb of Anchises, on account of its sanctity. II. (meton.) a secret chamber or recess.

Aea, ae, f. [Αἶα], a part of Colchis; sts.=Colchis.

Aeăcĭdēius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Aeacidae: regna, i.e. Aegina.

Aeăcĭdēs, ae, m. patron. (voc. Aeacidā or Aeacidē), a descendant of Aeacus; esp. his sons Peleus, Telamon, and Phocus; his grandson Achilles; his great-grandson Pyrrhus; and his later descendants, Pyrrhus, king of Epirus, and Perseus or Perses, last king of Macedonia.

Aeăcus, i, m., Gk. acc. Aeacŏn, [Αἰακός], a son of Iuppiter, king of Aegina, which derived its name from his mother. For his justice and piety he became judge in the lower world with Minos and Rhadamanthus.

Aeaea, ae, f. [Αἰαίη], an island in the Tyrrhene Sea, inhabited by Circe. In later times it formed the promontory of Circeii.

Aeaeus, a, um, adj. [Αἰακός], of or belonging to Aeaea, Aeaean: puella, i.e. Circe (less probably, Calypso); hence, magic arts and spells are called Aeaeae artes, Aeaea carmina.

Aeas, ntis, m. [Αἴας], a river of Epirus.

Aebūtĭus, ii, m. a Roman gentile name.

aecus, a, um. See aequus.

aedepol=edepol, q.v.

aedēs (aedis), is, f. [? αἴθω, the fire-place], I. 1. (sing.) a dwelling of the gods, a temple, chapel. 2. (pl.) a human dwelling, house, abode, home; sts. (poet.) a household, family. II. (meton.) 1. the cells or hive of bees. 2. —— aurata, a gilded tabernacle, catafalque.

aedĭcŭla, ae, f. dim. [aedes], 1. a small temple, a chapel; a niche or shrine. 2. a small house. 3. a cabinet, closet, chamber.

aedĭfĭcātio, ōnis, f. [aedifico], I. the act of building or constructing. II. a building, edifice.

aedĭfĭcātiuncŭla, ae, f. dim. [aedificatio], a little building.

aedĭfĭcātor, ōris, m. [aedifico], 1. a builder; architect, creator. 2.=adj. one who has a mania for building, has a passion for bricks and mortar.

aedĭfĭcium, ii, n. [id.], a building of any kind, edifice, structure.

aedĭfico, āre, āvi, ātum, [aedes, facio], trans. v. I. build, construct. II. (fig.) raise, erect, establish; sts. absol. III. (meton.) build up (of a lady's coiffure).

aedĭlĭcius (not -tius), a, um, adj. [aedilis], of or belonging to an aedile. As subst. aedilicius, ii, m. (sc. vir), an ex-aedile; cf. consularis.

aedĭlis, is, m. abl. aedili [aedes], an aedile. The aediles were Roman magistrates who had the superintendence of police generally, including the maintenance of order, the surveillance of buildings, public and private, the enforcement of sanitary regulations, the inspection of markets, weights and measures, etc., the censorship of plays, and the charge of the exhibition of the public games. The aediles were originally two in number, and were chosen from the plebs exclusively (aediles plebeii). In 365 B.C. two additional aediles were appointed (aediles curules). Cf. curulis, and see Dict. Ant. The number was in 45 B.C. increased to six by Iulius Caesar, who appointed two 'aediles Cereales.' The colonies and municipia had their local aediles, corresponding in a great measure with the mayors of provincial towns.

aedĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [aedilis], the office of an aedile, aedileship.

aedĭlĭtius, a, um, adj. See aedilicius.

aedis, is, f. See aedes.

aedĭtĭmus (-tŭmus), i, m. [aedes], one who has charge of a temple, a sacristan. Cf. aedituus, of which it is an older form.

aedĭtŭens, ntis, m. [aedes, tueor]=aedituus.

aedĭtŭus, i, m. [id.], a custodian of a temple, sacristan, verger, guardian. The aedituus acted as guide or cicerone to strangers.

Aedŭi (Haed-), ōrum, m. pl. a powerful people of Gallia Celtica, who lived between the Liger and the Arar. Their chief town was Bibracte.

Aeēta, ae. See Aeetes.

Aeētaeus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aeetes.

Aeētēs (-as, or -ă), ae, m. [Αἰήτης], king of Colchis and father of Medea and Absyrtus.

Aeētĭăs, ădis, f. patron. daughter of Aeetes, i.e. Medea.

Aeētinē, ēs, f. patron. =preceding. Cf. Nerine.

Aeētius, a, um, adj.=Aeetaeus.

Aegae, ārum, f. pl. [Αἰγαί], 1. a town of Macedonia; also called Edessa. 2. a town of Cilicia.

Aegaeōn, onis, m. [Αἰγαίων], 1. a giant, the same as Briareus. 2. a sea deity.

Aegaeus, a, um, adj. [Αἰγαῖος], Aegean. Aegaeum mare, or Aegaeum, i, n. the Aegean Sea, now the Archipelago.

Aegātes (insulae), um, f. pl. a group of three islands in the Mediterranean, W. of Sicily, famous for the defeat of the Carthaginians by C. Lutatius Catulus, 241 B.C.

aeger, gra, grum, adj. I. 1. ill, sick, diseased, feeble, weakly. As subst. aeger, gri, m. a sick person, invalid. 2. wounded; damaged, diseased, spoiled (of plants). II. (fig.) 1. sad, afflicted, pining, anxious, dejected. 2. painful, grievous, difficult. Compar. aegrior; superl. aegerrimus.

Aegēria, ae. See Egeria.

(1) Aegeus (dissyll.), ĕi, acc. Aegĕa, m. [Αἰγεύς], Aegeus, king of Athens, son of Pandion, and father of Theseus.

(2) Aegĕus, a, um. See Aegaeus.

Aegĭālē, ēs (Aegĭālēa, ae), f. the daughter of Adrastus, and wife of Diomedes.

Aegĭdēs, ae, m. patron. [Αἰγείδης], a descendant of Aegeus; esp. Theseus.

Aegiensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Aegium.

Aegīna, ae, f. [Αἴγινα], 1. a daughter of the river-god Asopus, and mother of Aeacus. 2. an island in the Saronic Gulf, called after preceding; now Eghina.

Aeginēta, ae, m. a native of Aegina.

Aeginiensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Aeginium.

Aeginium, ĭi, n. a town and fortress of Thessaly.

‡ aegis, ĭdis, f. [αἰγίς, ίδος], properly, a goat-skin; I. an aegis or breastplate, (a) of Iuppiter; (b) of Pallas or Minerva, with the head of Medusa in the centre. II. (fig.) a breastplate, cuirass; hence, a safeguard, screen.

aegĭ-sŏnus, a, um, adj. (aegis), sounding with the aegis.

Aegisthus, i, m. [Αἴγισθος], the son of Thyestes, and paramour of Clytaemnestra. He was slain by Orestes.

Aegium (-ĭon), ĭi, n. one of the twelve towns of Achaia, situated on the river Selinus.

Aeglē, ēs, f. [αἴγλη, brightness], 1. a Naiad. 2. one of the Hesperides.

‡ aegŏcĕrōs, ōtis (-ōs, i), m. [αἰγοκέρως], Capricornus; one of the signs of the Zodiac.

Aegōn, ōnis, m. 1. (poet.) the Aegean Sea. 2. a shepherd's name.

Aegŏs Flumen, n. [=Αἰγὸς Ποταμός, 'goat's river'], a river and town of the same name in the Thracian Chersonese, where Lysander defeated the Athenians, 405 B.C.

aegrē, adv. [aeger], 1. with trouble or difficulty, scarcely, hardly. 2. uneasily, reluctantly, against the grain; with regret, displeasure, impatience, etc.: ferre or pati, take amiss, ill brook, fret or be aggrieved at, resent; audire aliquid ex aliquo, to have something offensive said to one; aegre est (absol.), it is annoying, etc. Compar. aegrius; superl. aegerrime.

aegrĕo, ēre, intrans. v. be sick, ill.

aegresco, ĕre, [incept. aegreo], intrans. v. I. fall ill, sicken. II. (fig.) grow worse; sink or break down under (with abl. of Cause).

aegrĭmōnĭa, ae, f. [aeger], distress of mind, anxiety, grief. Cf. querimonia.

aegrĭtūdo, ĭnis, f. [id.], 1. illness, sickness. 2. (mental) sadness of heart, grief, mortification.

aegror, ōris, m. [id.], sickness, disease.

aegrōtātĭo, ōnis, f. [aegroto], 1. a being ill or sick; sickness, disease (of body). 2. a morbid or diseased condition of mind.

aegrōto, āre, āvi, ātum, [aegrotus], intrans. v. 1. am ill or sick. 2. languish, become feeble.

aegrōtus, a, um, adj. [aeger], ill, sick.

Aegyptius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Egypt, Egyptian. As subst. Aegyptius, ĭi, m. an Egyptian.

(1) Aegyptus, i, m. [Αἴγυπτος], a mythic king of Egypt, son of Belus (? Neptune), and brother of Danaus.

(2) Aegyptus, i, f. Egypt, a country in the N.E. of Africa.

‡ aelĭnos, i, m. [αἴλινος], a dirge, lament; from αἰ Λίνος, 'woe is me for Linus'; the lament of Apollo over the death of Linus.

Aelius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. Adj. Aelius, a, um, Aelian.

‡ Aellō, ūs, f. [Ἀελλώ, tempest], 1. one of the Harpies. 2. one of Actaeon's hounds.

‡ aelūrus, i, m. [αἴλουρος], a cat.

Aemĭlĭānus, i, m. an agnomen of P. Cornelius Scipio Africanus Minor, the son of L. Aemilius Paulus. Cf. adoptio.

(1) Aemĭlius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name; cf. Lepidus, Paulus, Scaurus. Adj. Aemĭlius, a, um, Aemilian: Aemilia Via, a continuation of the Via Flaminia from Ariminum, past Bononia, to Placentia.

(2) Aemĭlius Măcer, a poet of Verona, who wrote on birds, reptiles, and simples. He was a friend of Ovid and Virgil, and is supposed to be the Mopsus of Eclogue V. Died B.C. 16.

Aemŏnĭa, Aemŏnĭdes, Aemŏnis, Aemonius. See Haemonia, etc.

aemŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [aemulor], emulation, rivalry, jealousy (both in good and bad sense).

aemŭlātor, ōris, m. [id.], an emulator, imitator.

aemŭlātus, ūs, m. [id.], emulation, rivalry; imitation. (Rare for aemulatio.)

aemŭlor, āri, ātus sum, [aemulus], trans. dep. 1. emulate, rival, vie with, imitate. 2. (with dat.) am envious or jealous of Sts. with infin. compete in doing a thing.

aemŭlus, a, um, adj. [cf. imitor], 1. (with dat.) emulating, vying with, rivalling. 2. (with gen.) emulous, envious, or jealous of. 3. envious, jealous. 4. as subst. aemŭlus, i, m. a rival; sts. (in good sense) an imitator, follower, emulator. Also aemŭla, ae, f. a female rival.

Aenārĭa, ae, f. also called Pithecusa and Inarime, now Ischia, an island off the coast of Campania.

Aenēādēs, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Aeneas; esp. his son Ascanius or Iulus. Also, a compliment. title of Augustus. In pl. Aeneadae, ārum (sync. gen. -dum), 1. comrades of Aeneas; the Trojans. 2. (meton.) the Romans.

Aenēas, ae, (acc. Aenean, voc. Aenea), m. [Αἰνείας], the Trojan hero, son of Anchises and Venus, and mythic ancestor of the Romans.

aenĕātor, ōris, m. [aes], a brassbandsman, trumpeter, etc.

Aenēis, ĭdos (ĭdis), f. [Aeneas], the Aeneid, Virgil's famous epic, of which Aeneas is the hero.

Aenēius (quadrisyll.), a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to Aeneas.

aēnĕus (āhē), a, um, adj. [aes], I. of or in bronze or copper; bronze-, copper-; brazen (?). 2. strong or hard as bronze. II. bronze-coloured.

Aenīdēs, ae, m. patron. 1. a son of Aeneas. 2. a son or descendant of Aeneus, king on the Propontis. In pl. the people of Cyzicus.

‡ aenigmă, ătis, dat. abl. pl. aenigmatis; n. [αἴνιγμα], an enigma, riddle, puzzle.

aēnĭ-pēs (āhē-), pĕdis, adj. [aeneus; pes], bronze-footed.

Aēnŏbarbus (Ahe-), ĭ, m. [aeneus, 3; barba], a surname of the gens Domitia.

(1) Aenus (dissyll.), i, m. 1. an ancient town of Thrace. 2. a river in Rhaetia, now the Inn.

(2) aēnus (āhē-), a, um, adj. [aes], I. of bronze or copper. Neut. as subst. aēnum, i, (sc. vas), a bronze or copper vessel, a caldron. II. (fig.) hard as bronze; firm, inflexible.

Aeŏlĭdes, um, m. pl. the Aeolians. Cf. Aeolius.

Aeŏlĭa, ae, f. [Αἰολία], 1. a district of Mysia in Asia Minor. 2. the mythic abode of Aeolus, a group of islands, now Lipari Islands, N.E. of Sicily.

Aeŏlĭcus, a, um, adj. [Αἰολικός], Aeolian, Aeolic.

Aeŏlĭdēs, ae, m. patron. [Αἰολίδης], a descendant of Aeolus; esp. his sons Athamas, Salmoneus, Sisyphus, etc.; and his grandsons, Ulysses, Cephalus, and Phrixus.

(1) Aeŏlis, ĭdis, f. [Αἰολίς],= Aeolia, a district of Asia Minor, peopled by Aeolian Greeks.

(2) Aeŏlis, ĭdis, f. patron. [Αἰολίς], a female descendant of Aeolus; esp. his daughters Canace and Alcyone.

Aeŏlius, a, um, adj. [Aeolus], I. of or belonging to Aeolus, or his family; aurum, or vellus, the golden fleece of the ram which carried Phrixus and Helle; virgo, i.e. Arne, daughter of Aeolus; fores, i.e. the doors of the house of Athamas. Aeŏlĭae Insulae, ārum, f. pl. a group of islands N.E. of Sicily, where Aeolus, the wind-god, reigned; cf. Aeolia, 2. II. of or belonging to Aeolis or Aeolia, Aeolian: puella, i.e. Sappho, as a native of Lesbos, which was colonised by Aeolians; carmen, the poetry of Sappho or Alcaeus, who used the Aeolic dialect. As subst. Aeŏlii, ōrum, m. pl. the Aeolians, one of the chief Hellenic races, originally in Thessaly, whence they spread into various parts of Greece, and settled in Asia Minor (cf. Aeolis (1), Aeolia), and the islands of Lesbos.

Aeŏlus, i, m. [Αἴολος], 1. the wind-god, son of Hippotas, who ruled the Aeolian islands. 2. a son of Hellen, king of Thessaly, and mythic founder of the Aeolic race. He was father of Sisyphus, etc. Cf. Aeolides.

aequābĭlis, e, adj. [aequo], 1. that can be made equal; equal, like. 2. uniform, even, constant, regular. 3. (in 'morals) fair, impartial, equitable. Compar. aequabilior.

aequābĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [aequabilis], 1. equality, uniformity, consistency, evenness, regularity. 2. equity, fairness, impartiality.

aequābĭlĭter, adv. [id.], equally, uniformly, regularly. Compar. aequabilius.

aequaevus, a, um, adj. [aequus, aevum], of equal age, of the same age, co-eval.

aequālis, e, adj. [aequo], 1. equal (in size, length, form, etc.), like; corresponding to, resembling. 2. of the same age, contemporary, co-existent. As subst. aequālis, is, m. a contemporary, mate, peer. 3. uniform, consistent, regular, even. 4. = aequus, level, smooth, even, uniform.

aequālĭtas, ātis, f. [aequalis], 1. equality, similarity; uniformity, evenness. 2. political equality, Tac. 3. equality or sameness of age.

aequālĭter, adv. [id.], equally, uniformly, regularly, evenly. Compar. aequalius.

aequănĭmĭtas, ātis, f. [aequus; animus], 1. kindly feeling, impartiality. 2. resignation, calmness.

aequātĭo, ōnis, f. [aequo], an equalisation, equal distribution: bonorum, communism.

aequātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from aequo: aequatae spirant aurae, the breezes blow steadily or evenly, right astern; aequatis velis, with level sails (explained by preceding): foedus, made on equal terms.

aequē, adv. [aequus], 1. equally, alike, in like manner. 2. in phrases: aeque et (-que, atque, ac), equally with, as well or as much as, as . . . as, like; aeque ac si, just as if, as much as if; aeque quam (rarely ut), as . . . as, as well as, in the same manner as; aeque . . . aeque = aeque ac; sts. aeque is used absol. = aeque ac. 3. justly, with equity. 4. compar. aequius, more readily or calmly.

Aequi, ōrum, m. pl. the Aequi, an ancient and warlike people of Italy, who dwelt on the Anio.

Aequĭcŏla, -cŏlus. See Aequicula, -culus.

Aequĭcŭla, ae = Aequiculus.

Aequĭcŭlānus, a, um, adj. = Aequiculus.

Aequĭcŭlus (-ŏlus), a, um, adj. dim. Aequian. As subst. Aequĭcŭlus (-ŏlus), i, m. an Aequian.

Aequĭcus, a, um, adj. of the Aequi, Aequian: bellum, war with the Aequi.

aequilĭbrĭtas, ātis, f. [aequilibris], an even balancing of the powers of nature.

aequilĭbrium, ĭi, n. [id.], a level or horizontal position, equilibrium.

Aequimaelium (-mēlium), ĭi, n. [aequus, Maelius], an open area in Rome, just below the Capitoline, supposed to mark the site of the house of the tribune Sp. Maelius, which was razed to the ground 439 B.C.

aequĭ-mānus, a, um, adj. [aequus; manus], one who uses both hands alike.

aequĭnoctiālis, e, adj. [aequinoctium], of or belonging to the equinox, equinoctial.

aequinoctium, ĭi, n. [aequus; nox], the equinox.

aequĭ-păro (-pĕro), āre, āvi, ātum, [aequus; par], trans. v. 1. put on an equality with, compare, liken (with prepp. cum, ad, or dat.). 2. come up to, equal, match.

aequĭtas, ātis, f. [aequus], 1. equality, symmetry, uniformity. 2. justice (according to the spirit rather than the letter of the law); fairness, impartiality. 3. aequitas animi, or absol., an even balance of mind, calmness, contentment.

aequo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. 1. make even or smooth, level. 2. make equal, equalise, put on a level or equality with (with prep. cum or dat.); nocti ludum, i.e. play all night through. 3. compare. II. in phrases: aciem or frontem, to present an equal front; sortes (judicial techn. t.), to test the balloting balls by balancing, in order that a difference in form or weight might not give rise to unfairness. III. come up to or with, reach, equal, match, keep even with.

aequŏr, ŏris, n. [id.], I. an even or level surface. II. (meton.) 1. a level field, plain. 2. the surface of the sea when calm; the sea generally; cf. Milton, Lycidas, 'the watery floor.' 3. (poet.) the surface of any water; a stream.

aequŏrĕus, a, um, adj. [aequor], (only poet.), of or belonging to the sea, sea-: genus, ocean-dwelling, i.e. fish.

aequus (aecus), a, um, adj. I. even, level, flat, plain; as subst. aequum, i, n. a plain, level ground. II. (fig.) 1. (of time or place) favourable, advantageous. 2. (of persons or things) friendly, kindly, favourable, propitious; as subst. aequus, i, m. a friend, well-wisher. 3. fair, impartial, just, reasonable; hence, aequum est, it is right and proper, reasonable. As subst. aequum, i, n. fairness, justice, equity; cum aequo in abl. with compar.: plus aequo, more than is proper, unduly; sts. with bonum (with or without et, -que): ex aequo et bono, in accordance with justice and equity; aequius melius, a formula in cases of extra duty ('arbitria'), which gave the arbiter large discretionary powers in assessing damages, etc., according to what seemed to him 'fairly due.' 4. (of the mind) even, calm, composed: aequo (aequiore, aequissimo) animo, without anxiety, calmly, resignedly, with forbearance; aequi bonique facere aliquid, to take in good part, acquiesce in (gen. of value); lit. to value at a fair and reasonable price (Roby, § 1129). III. equal; equal, alike: aequo Marte pugnare, to fight on even terms; sts. have a drawn battle; so aequā manu. Adverbially: ex aequo, equally, alike; ex aequo agere, to be independent (of a state); in aequo esse or stare, to be equal; in aequo ponere, to place on an equality. Compar. aequior; superl. aequissimus.

aĕr, aĕris, m. (acc. aera; sts. aerem), (ἀήρ), I. the lower air, atmosphere; cf. aether. 2. (poet.) mist, vapour.

aerārĭa, ae. See aerarius.

aerārĭum, ĭi, n. [aes], lit. a place for keeping money; hence, the public treasury or exchequer (cf. fiscus), which during the Republic was in the temple of Saturn. Here, as in a Record Office, were kept all public documents, laws, and decrees of the Senate and military standards; (cf. quaestor and tribunus): aerarium sanctius, a reserve fund, only used in great emergencies; militare, the army pay-office.

aerārĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. having to do with copper or bronze; of bronze. As subst. aerārĭus, ĭi, m. (sc. faber) a worker in bronze, copper-smith. aerāria, ae, f. 1. (sc. fodina) a copper-mine. 2. (sc. fornax) a smelting-furnace. II. of or having to do with money: ratio, the rate of exchange, bank-rate. As subst. aerārii, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. cives), citizens of the lowest class, who paid a poll-tax ('tributum pro capite'), but had no right of voting. Hence, aerārium facere, in (inter) aerarios, or in aerariorum numerum referre, to degrade, deprive of civic rights; ex aerario eximere, to reinstate as a full citizen. (Cf. Cacrites): Aerarii quaestores . . . tribuni. See quaestor, tribunus.

aerātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], I. 1. covered or plated with copper or bronze: navis, with bronze beak or prow. 2. made of bronze or copper. II. moneyed; so in a pun of Cic., non tam aerati quam aerarii, 'tribunes who may be called paymasters, but are not masters of much pay!' (Jeans).

(1) aerĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], 1. made of bronze or copper. 2. plated with bronze or copper, copper-ed.

(2) āĕrĕus, a, um. See aerius.

aerĭ-fer, ĕra, ĕrum, adj. [aes; fero], bearing copper or bronze; epith. of the cymbal-bearing train of Bacchus.

aerĭ-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [aes], bronze or brazen footed; epith. of the Arcadian stag slain by Hercules, and of the fire-breathing bulls with which Jason ploughed.

aerĭ-sŏnus (quadrisyll.), a, um, adj. [aes], resounding with bronze or copper.

āĕrĭus (-ĭŭs), (quadrisyll.), a, um, adj. (ἀέριος), 1. of the air, airy, aerial. 2. high in air; lofty, towering, tall. [The form aereus has less authority.]

Āĕrŏpa, ae (-ē, ēs), f. ['Αερόπη], the wife of Atreus.

aerūgo, ĭnis, f. [aes; cf. ferrugo), I. 1. bronze or copper rust, verdigris. 2. (poet.) rust of coin. II. (fig.) (poet.) corrod ng anxiety; the canker of avarice: sts. the canker of malice or jealousy, etc.

aerumna, ae, f. [cf. αἰρομένη; old participial ending, like alumnus, autumnus, etc.], pain, distress, hardship, toil, suffering (whether physical or mental).

aerumnōsus, a, um, adj. [aerumna], full of trouble, misery, wretchedness, etc. Compar. aerumnosior; superl. aerumnosissimus.

aes, aeris, n. [freq. in pl. nom. and acc. aera], [cf. Sanscr. ayas], I. 1. copper. 2. an alloy of copper and tin, bronze; not brass. II. (meton.) anything made of copper or bronze; (a) a statue, tablet, weapon, musical instrument (horn, trumpet, cymbal), gong or bell, implement of husbandry, the keel or prow of a ship, or coin, etc.; (b) money in general: alienum, debt; in aere alieno esse, to be in debt; meum (proprium, suum), money not borrowed, unencumbered personalty; aliquis in aere meo est, he is my friend (colloq.); in aere suo censetur, it is valued at its own worth; per aes et libram, by means of money and a pair of scales, i.e. by legal purchase (cf. mancipatio, coemptio); (c)='as,' the unit of the standard of money: grave, the old heavy copper money (in lumps or ingots), which was weighed, not counted; sts. aes alone in gen. sing.=assium; (d)='quadrans,' the fee for a public bath; (e) a soldier's pay; hence, in pl.='stipendia,' campaigns, service; (f) a fee, payment.

Aesăcus (-os), ī, m. a son of Priam.

Aesar, ăr-ris, m. 1. an Etruscan name of God. 2. a river, now Esaro, near Croton, in S. Italy.

Aesărĕus, a, um, adj. of the Aesar.

Aeschĭnēs, is, m. [Αἰσχίνης], 1. the famous Athenian orator, rival of Demosthenes (389—314 B.C.). 2. a philosopher and rhetorician, disciple of Socrates.

Aeschўlus, ī, m. [Αἰσχύλος], the first great tragic poet of Greece (525—456 B.C.).

Aescŭlāpius, ĭi, m. ['Ασκληπιός], son of Apollo and Coronis, the god of medicine; the chief seat of his worship was Epidaurus.

aescŭlētum, ī, n. [aesculus], 1. a forest of winter or Italian oaks; an oak-forest. 2. a part of Rome.

aescŭlĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], of oak, oaken.

aescŭlus, ī, f. a mast-oak; the bay-oak (Martyn); the winter oak, or broad-leaved Italian oak (Keightley).

Aesernia, ae, f. a town in Samnium, on the river Vulturnus.

Aesernīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aesernia.

Aesŏla, ae, f. See Aesula.

Aesŏn, ŏnis, m. [Αἴσων], half-brother of Pelias, and father of Iason; according to Ovid he was in his old age restored to youth by Medea.

Aesŏnĭdēs, ae, patron. m. a descendant of Aeson; esp. Iason.

Aesŏnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aeson: dux or heros, i.e. Iason.

Aesŏpēus (-ĭus), a, um, of or belonging to Aesop.

Aesōpus, ĭ, m. [Αἴσωπος], 1. Aesop, the well-known writer of fables, a contemporary of Solon and Croesus (about 570 B.C.). 2. Claudius Aesopus, a tragic actor at Rome, contemporary and friend of Cicero.

Aesquĭlĭae, ārum. See Esquiliae.

aestas, ātis, f. [cf. αἴθω, burn], I. the summer. II. (meton.) summer heat; the summer air or sky; sts. by synecdoche = a year.

aestĭ-fer, ĕra, ĕrum, adj. [aestus; fero], I. bringing or causing heat: Canis, i.e. the dog-star. 2. hot, sultry.

Aestĭi, ōrum, pl. m. a people dwelling on the N.E. coast of Germany: their name may be traced in 'Esthonia.' aestĭmābĭlis, e, adj. [aestimo], that may be estimated, estimable, valuable.

aestĭmātio, ōnis, f. [id.], I. an estimation, valuation, assessment: litis or litium, an assessment of a fine or amount of damages; possessionum et rerum, a valuation of land and other property made in Caesar's dictatorship (49 B.C.), whereby creditors were obliged to take land in payment at their claim at the value it had borne before the civil war; hence, in aestimationem accipere, to take to an estate on such valuation; and (since creditors were the losers by this measure) aestimationem accipere, to suffer loss; sts. aestimatio='res aestimata,' the estate or property so valued. II. (fig.) 1. a valuation, estimation (according to a thing's real worth): recta aestimatione severus, stern when fairly judged. 2. (poet.) worth; value.

aestĭmātor, ōris, m. [id.], an estimater, appraiser, valuer.

aestĭmo (-ĭmo), āre, āvi, ātum, [aes], trans. v. I. estimate, rate, value: litem, assess amount of fine or damages. II. (fig.) weigh, measure, reckon, calculate, regard (with prep. ex, abl., rel. clause, or gen. or abl. of price): magni, set a high value upon; parvi, hold cheap.

aestīva, ōrum. See aestivus.

aestīvo, āre, āvi, ātum, [aestivus], intrans. v. pass the summer.

aestīvus, a, um, adj. [aestas], of summer, summer-, summer-like: aurum, a light ring for summer wear, luv.; saltus, i.e. shady pastures-lands; cf. aestiva. As subst. aestīva (sc. castra), ōrum, n. pl. 1. a summer camp, summer quarters; hence, a campaign. 2. (fig.) summer pastures; hence (poet.), the flocks and herds themselves; the cattle-walk, ranch.

aestĭvus-lanus, ntis, part. from aestuo.

aestŭārium, ĭi, n. [aestus], 1. low marsh-land left bare at low water; a tidal river-mouth, creek, estuary. 2. (in mining) a shaft.

aestŭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], intrans. v. I. be in violent agitation; toss, rage, boil, seethe, fret, chafe, heave, sway, surge. II. (fig.) 1. be in a turmoil, waver, flounder. 2. be burning hot, burn, glow.

aestŭōsē, adv. [aestuosus], hotly, furiously. Compar. aestuosius.

aestŭōsus, a, um, adj. [aestus], 1. full of heat, burning hot, sultry, sweltering. 2. surging, tossing. Superl. aestuosissimus.

aestus, ūs, m. [cf. αἴθω, burn], 1. heat, scorching heat, warmth, glow; midday or summer heat; sts. of fever, inflammation, etc. 2. a violent agitation ; heaving, surge, swell ; tide (of the sea). II. (fig.) 1. excitement, rage, fiery passion. 2. hesitation, wavering, embarrassment. 3. emanation of particles ; sts. the magnetic current. Lucr.

Aesŭla (-ŏla), ae, f. a town in Latium, between Tibur and Praeneste.

Aesŭlānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aesula.

aetas, ātis, f. [contr. = aevitas], 1. the period of life, lifetime, life, age ; acc. of Duration of time = adv., aetatem, for an age, for ever ; an age, a long while ; aetatem ferre, (of wines) to bear its age, i.e. keep ; hence (fig.) to have a lasting value. 2. age, old age. 3. early life, youth ; manhood. 4. time of life, life : id aetatis sumus, we are at that season of life. 5. an age, generation ; often abstr. = concr. the men living in a particular age, a generation. 6. time.

aetātŭla, ae, f. [dim. aetas], a youthful or tender age ; youthful tastes.

aeternĭtas, ātis, f. [aeternus], 1. eternity ; endless existence. 2. a title of the Emperors. Cf. maiestas.

(1) aeterno, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. immortalise, perpetuate.

(2) aeterno, adv. [id.], for ever, eternally.

aeternus, a, um, adj. [aeviternus], 1. eternal, everlasting, endless. 2. lasting, durable, perpetual. 3. adv. phrases : aeternum or in aeternum, for all time, for ever ; over and over again, everlastingly, without intermission. Compar. aeternior.

aethēr, ēris, m. (acc. aethera), [αἰθηρ], I. the upper air, ether ; cf. aër. II. (meton.) 1. heaven, the sky ; hence (poet.) the world above. 2. the air in general. 3. (personified) the god of the sky ; Jupiter.

aethĕrĭus (not -ĭus), a, um, adj. [aether], 1. of or belonging to ether, ethereal. 2. of the upper air, celestial, heavenly. 3. reaching to heaven, lofty. 4. of the upper world.

Aethĭops, ŏpis, m. [Αἰθίοψ, one with sunburnt face], I. an Ethiopian ; a blackamoor, negro. II. (as a term of reproach) blockhead, dolt. III. as adj. Ethiopian ; (poet.) Egyptian, Oriental.

Aethōn, ōnis, m. [Αἴθων, burning], the name of a horse in the chariot of the Sun and other deities.

(1) aethra, ae, f. [αἰθρα], the bright upper air, the clear sky ; the heavens.

(2) Aethra, ae, f. [Αἴθρα], 1. daughter of Pittheus and mother of Theseus. 2. daughter of Oceanus.

Aetna, ae (-ē, ēs), f. [Αἴτνη, αἴθω], 1. the famous volcano in the N.E. of Sicily, now Monte Gibello, where Vulcan and the Cyclopes had their forge. 2. a town at the foot of Mount Aetna.

Aetnaeus, a, um, adj. [Aetna], I. of Aetna, Aetnean : deus, Vulcan ; fratres, the Cyclopes. II. (poet.) Sicilian.

Aetnensis, e, adj. [Aetna, 2], of the town of Aetna.

Aetōlia, ae, f. [Αἰτωλία], a division of Greece S. of Thessaly, between Acarnania and the Locri Ozolae.

Aetōlĭcus, a, um, adj. Aetolian.

Aetōlis, ĭdis, f. [Αἰτωλίς], an Aetolian woman.

Aetōlĭus, a, um, adj. Aetolian : heros, i.e. Diomed, who once reigned in Aetolia.

(1) Aetōlus, i, m. [Αἰτωλός], the mythic coloniser of Aetolia.

(2) Aetōlus, a, um, adj. [Αἰτωλός], Aetolian : arma, i.e. of Diomed ; cf. Aetolius ; urbs, i.e. Arpi, in Apulia, founded by Diomed ; plagae, nets such as Meleager used in the Calydonian chase. As subst. Aetōli, ōrum, m. pl. the Aetolians.

(?) Aetŭātae, ārum (-ēs, ĭum), m. pl. a Gallic tribe on the Rhine.

aevĭtas, ātis, f. [aevum], the period of existence ; age, time of life. Cf. aetas, of which it is the uncontracted and older form.

aevom, old form of aevum.

aevum (-om), i, n. [αἰ-ϝόν], I. 1. lifetime, life ; age, time of life. 2. age, old age. II. (meton.) 1. an age or generation. 2. time in general. 3. never-ending time, eternity ; in aevum, for aye.

Afer, fra, frum, adj. African : avis, the guinea-fowl ; aequora, the part of the Mediterranean between Africa and Sicily ; murex, see Gaetulus. As subst. Afer, fri, m. an African ; sts. (poet.) a Carthaginian ; esp. Hannibal. Hor.

aff-. See under adf-.

āfŏrē, āfōrem, etc. for abfore, abforem, etc. See absum.

Āfrānĭānus, a, um, adj. of Afranius.

(1) Āfrānĭus, ii, m. a Roman gentile name. 1. Lucius Afranius, a Roman comic poet (about 100 B.C.). 2. a general of Pompey in Spain.

(2) Āfrānĭus, a, um, adj. of Afranius : fabula, a play of L. Afranius (1) 1.

Āfri, ōrum, m. pl. See Afer.

Āfrĭca, ae, f. 1. the continent of Africa, also called Libya. 2. the Roman Province of Africa. 3. (meton.) the people of Africa. Sall.

Āfrĭcānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Africa, African. As subst. 1. Āfrĭcānus, i, m. a surname of the two most famous Scipios, (a) P. Cornelius Scipio, maior, who defeated Hannibal at Zama, 202 B.C. ; (b) P. Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus Africanus, minor, who conducted the Third Punic war, and destroyed Carthage, 146 B.C. 2. Āfrĭcāna, ae, f. (sc. fera), a panther, Livy, Suet.

Āfricus, a, um, adj. I. of Africa, African (mostly poet.). Hence Āfricus ventus, or (more freq.) Āfricus, i, m. (subst.), the Africus, or S. W. wind, so called because it blew from Africa ; the sirocco. II. caused by the Africus : procellae.

āfŭi, āfŭtūrus, for abfui, abfuturus. See absum.

Āgămēdes, ae, m. [Ἀγαμήδης], a brother of Trophonius, with whom he built a temple of Apollo at Delphi.

Āgămemnon, ŏnis, m. [Ἀγαμέμνων], king of Mycenae, husband of Clytaemnestra, and commander-in-chief of the Greeks in the Trojan war. His death at the hands of Aegisthus was avenged by Orestes.

Āgămemnŏnĭdēs, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Agamemnon ; esp. his son Orestes.

Āgămemnŏnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Agamemnon.

Āgănippē, ēs, f. [Ἀγανίππη], 1. a nymph. 2. a fountain at the foot of Mount Helicon, in Boeotia, sacred to the Muses. Poetic inspiration was imparted by its waters.

Āgănippēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aganippe : lyra, i.e. of the Muses.

Āgănippis, ĭdis (ĭdos), f. adj. of Aganippe ; hence (meton.), 'muse-haunted.' Cf. Aganippe, 2.

āgāso, ōnis, m. [ago], a groom, stable-help, muleteer.

Āgăthŏcles, is, m. a potter at Syracuse, who afterwards became king of Sicily, and gained many victories over the Carthaginians. Died 289 B.C.

Āgăthyrsi, ōrum, m. pl. [Ἀγάθυρσοι], a Scythian people ; called 'picti' from their practice of tattooing.

Āgāvē, ēs, f. [Ἀγαύη], the daughter of Cadmus, wife of Echion, and mother of Pentheus.

āgē (pl. āgĭtĕ), imperat. of ago used=interj. [cf. aye], 1. come, come on, now then. 2. (to mark a transition) well then ! well ! 3. (as sign of assent) be it so, very good.

āgē-dum, interj. come now ! now then ! It is stronger than 'age.' See dum, I. 3.

āgellŭlus, i, m. [double dim. agellus], a tiny field.

āgellus, i, m. [dim. ager], a little field, a patch of land.

‡ āgēma, ătis, n. [ἄγημα], a corps or division in the Macedonian army, a battalion.

Agendĭcum (Agedincum), i, n. the chief town of the Senones in Gallia Lugdunensis, now Sens.

Āgēnor, ŏris, m. [Ἀγήνωρ], king of Phoenicia, the father of Cadmus and Europa, and ancestor of Dido : hence, Agenoris urbs, Carthage ; Agenore natus, i.e. Cadmus.

Āgēnŏrĕus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Agenor: bos, the bull which carried Europa, Agenor's daughter. II. (meton.) Phoenician, Carthaginian.

Āgēnŏrĭdes, æ, m. patron. a descendant of Agenor; esp. Cadmus, his son, and Perseus. In pl. (poet.) the Carthaginians.

āgens, ntis, part. from ago. As adj. effective, powerful; active; in action.

ăger, agri, m. [cf. ἀγρός], I. 1. a field (whether pasture, arable, or nursery, etc.); (as a measure of length in agrum, into the field, i.e. in depth (opposed to 'in fronte,' 'in breadth or frontage'). Hor. II. 1. an estate, farm. 2. the country, the fields (us. in pl.). 3. a territory, district. 4. land, ground.

Āgēsĭlāus, i, m. [Ἀγησίλαος], a Spartan king, who defeated at Coronea (B.C. 394) the allied forces of Athens, Thebes, Corinth, and Argos. Died 361 B.C.

ăgĕ-sīs, colloquial='age si vis, come, now then, if you please!

agg-. See under adg-.

agger, ĕris, m. [ad ; ger-o], I. 1. materials for filling a hollow or forming a mound or pile. 2. (a) a mound, rampart, boulevard, redan, earthwork, embankment (generally, the mound with which a Roman camp was surrounded; it was surmounted by a stockade or palisade (vallum), and surrounded by a trench (fossa), the earth from which formed the agger. Sometimes the agger was made of other materials, stone, sand, logs, brushwood, etc.). For the Agger of Tarquinius Priscus, extended by Servius Tullius, see Ramsay, Rom. Ant. p. 6. (b) a mound or platform for artillery or for movable towers. It was thrown up at first at some distance from the besieged town, and gradually widened on the inside, rising in height all the time, until it reached the walls and was on a level with the battlements. (c) a mound or platform from which a general addressed the troops. II. 1. agger viae (or agger alone), a raised way. The paved roads of the Romans were raised in the middle; hence, a causeway, highway : sts.=via. 2. any artificial embankment, mound, or pile; (a) a dam or dyke; (b) a breakwater; (c) a quay; (d) a funeral-pile. 3. (chiefly poet.) any eminence, pile, or heap : aggeres nivei, i.e. snow-drifts; Alpini, the ramparts of the Alps; pelagi (aquarum), a high wave or billow, surge or swell.

(1) aggĕro, ĕre, āvi, ātum, [ager], trans. v. I. heap or pile up. II. (fig.) increase, augment, heighten.

(2) ag-gĕro, ĕrĕre. See adgero.

ăgĭer, old infin. pass.=agi, from ago.

ăgĭlis, e, adj. [ago], 1. stirring, easily moved or movable. 2. agile, active, nimble, fleet. 3. prompt, ready, smart, busy, practical. Compar. agilior.

ăgĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [agilis], I. activity, rapidity, quickness, nimbleness, buoyancy : navium, manœuvring powers, handiness. II. (fig.) sensitiveness, susceptibility.

Āgis, idis, (acc. Agin), m. 1. the name of several kings of Sparta : (a) the brother of Agesilaus; (b) the fourth of the name, son of Eudamidas, reigned 244-240 B.C., put to death by his subjects. 2. a Lycian warrior.

ăgĭtābĭlis, e, adj. [agito], that can be easily moved; light, buoyant, yielding.

ăgĭtātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a moving; quick movement, motion; fluctuum, surging or tossing. 2. activity, exercise, occupation. 3. pursuit or prosecution of an occupation : studiorum.

ăgĭtātor, ōris, m. [id.], a driver (of cattle, etc.) ; a charioteer.

ăgĭtātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from agito. As adj. animated, excited. Compar. agitatior.

ăgĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. ago], trans. v. I. 1. put in quick motion, impel, drive. 2. chase, hunt, scout, make one's quarry. 3. keep in motion, shake, toss to and fro, rock, stir. II. (fig.) 1. rouse, excite, serve, urge; esp. harass, vex, unsettle. 2. practise, carry on, be engaged in, deal with, manage. 3. (of time, etc.) spend, pass : natalem, keep; convivium, hold; pacem, be at peace; cf. ago, III. 7. 4. (without object expressed) pass one's time, live, dwell. 5.— aliquid, or de aliqua re (sts. with animo, mente, etc.), revolve, ponder, debate, discuss, canvass; devise, plan, intend.

Āglāĭă, æ, (-ē, ēs, and Āglāĭa, trisyll.), f. [Ἀγλαΐα, Ἀγλαίη], one of the Graces.

‡ (?) aglaspis, ĭdis, m. [ἀγλαὸς ἀσπίς], with bright shield. In pl. aglaspides, ĭdum, soldiers with bright shields.

Aglaurus, i, f. a daughter of Cecrops.

agmĕn, ĭnis, n. [for agimen ; ag-o], 1. a moving body, part of which follows part regularly; hence, (a) a line or train of anything ; (b) course or current of a stream ; (c) the stroke (of oars) ; (d) a trail (of a snake). II. a band, troop, crowd, procession, column, mass. 3. (military techn. t.) a body of troops on the march : a column in marching order : cogere, to bring up the rear ; primum, the van ; iustum, in close order ; medium, the centre ; novissimum or extremum, the rear ; agmine quadrato, in a hollow square (always of an army marching on the alert and ready to fight); in agmine, on the march, in column ; a primo agmine, in front. III. (meton. poet.) 1. an army, host ; often in pl. 2. military service, warfare.

agna, æ, f. [agnus], a ewe lamb.

Agnālĭa, ĭum, n. pl. a Roman festival. See Agonalia.

a-gnascor (adgn- adn-), i, natus sum, [ad, gnascor, nascor], intrans. dep. 1. be born in addition or afterwards (techn. t. of a child born or adopted after a man has made his will). 2. (with dat.) grow in addition to, or afterwards; grow on or upon.

agnātio (adgn-, adn-), ōnis, f. [agnatus], consanguinity on the father's side. Cf. agnatus, 1.

agnātus (adgn-, adn-), a, um, perf. part. from agnascor. As subst. agnātus, i, m. 1. a relative through the male line. 2. a child born after the father has made his will. Cf. agnascor, 1.

agnellus, i, m. dim. [agnus], a little lamb, lambkin.

agnīnus, a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to lamb. As subst. aguīna, æ, f. (sc. caro), lamb's flesh, lamb.

agnītio, ōnis, f. [agnosco], 1. a recognition, acknowledgment. 2. a knowing, knowledge.

agnĭtus (adgn-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from agnosco.

a-gnōmen (adn-), ĭnis, n. [ad, gnomen, nomen], a surname ; either (a) as a title of honour, e.g. Africanus, Creticus, Cunctator, or (b) as a mark of adoption from another 'gens' ; e.g. Aemilianus, Octavianus, etc.

agnōmĭnātio (adn-, ann-), ōnis, f. the juxtaposition of words of similar sound; playing on words, 'paronomasia'; e.g. 'nec prece, nec pretio,' Ov.

a-gnosco (adgn-, adn-), ĕre, nōvi, nītum, [ad, gnosco, nosco], trans. v. 1. recognise, acknowledge. 2. acknowledge as true or right, feel the force of, admit, allow. 3. know, discern, understand, perceive, be familiar with.

agnus, i, m. [cf. ἀμ-νός], a lamb.

ăgo, ĕre, ēgi, actum, [cf. ἄγω], trans. v. I. 1. put in motion ; drive (of cattle or other animals) ; lead, conduct, impel ; agere se, betake one's-self, go, come, advance. Pass. reflex. agi, to march, move on ; rush. 2. drive or carry off (men or animals) ; hence, plunder, harry (often with ferre). (cf. Gk. ἄγειν καὶ φέρειν). 3. chase, pursue, urge on. 4. (of inanimate objects) set going, move or push forward, extend, bring up : cuniculos, work a mine ; cloacam sub terram, carry a sewer underground ; (poet.) : navem, steer ; currum, drive. 5. (of plants) put forth, shoot, strike. 6. send or throw out ; drive out, expel : animam, to breathe one's last, expire. II. 1. (fig.) lead, impel, excite, move, prompt, urge, hurry. 2. attack, assail, harry, ply. III. 1. put into action ; do, perform, achieve, act : nihil agere, to remain passive ; quid agis? what are you about? also (colloq.) how are you faring? how do you do? nihil agis, you fail ; it is of no use, 'tis no go. 2. take in hand, transact, accomplish : grassator agit rem, a footpad cooks your goose for you. 3. (sacrificial techn. t.) despatch, slay. The sacrificing priest asked, 'Agone?' 'Am I to strike?' and the Rex sacrificulus answered 'Agc,' or 'Hoc age.' As this formula warned the people to be quiet and to attend, 'hoc (id, haec, instuc) agere' was used for to give heed, attend, make a thing one's business, be engrossed in it: also, followed by ut, ne, make it one's chief aim or object, set one's self deliberately to work, intend (to do something). Hence, aliud or alias res agere, to be inattentive, heedless, indifferent, take things coolly. 4. be occupied with a thing; aim at, have in view, plan; (often in Cic. with molior): agere de obsessione, take measures for, proceed to a blockade. 5. (of war, office, employment, etc.) conduct, carry on, manage, administer, hold, exercise: conventus, go on circuit, hold the assizes; forum, hold a court of session. 6. (with a subst. forming periphrasis for an intrans. verb): triumphum, triumph; rimas, crack; oblivia, forget; gratias (poet. grates), give thanks, thank. 7. (of time) spend, keep, pass, enjoy: forum, agenda sextum decimum, when he was sixteen years old. Sta. intrans. live, dwell, pass one's time, be quartered. 8. se agere or agere, to conduct or behave one's-self, live. IV. 1. aliquid or de aliqua re, transact in public (the forum, senate, etc.); plead, debate, discuss, argue. Hence, agere cum populo or agere, to make a proposition to the people in comitia (techn. t. of the higher magistrates). 2. (transf. to common life) (a) agere cum aliquo (rarely acc. and infin.), or de aliqua re, or simply agere, to deal, treat, negotiate with a person, make representations to him, entreat (with a view to something); (b) with advv. bene, male, praeclare, etc., deal with well, ill, etc., treat one well or ill. In pass. praeclare agitur, we do very well, we are well off; non pessime cum iis actum est, they are not the worst off; (c) go to law with a man, take proceedings against him. 3. agere causam or rem, plead or conduct a cause, suit, action: sts. agere alone. 4. agere aliquem reum, or agere (with gen. of the crime), to accuse. 5. pass. (of the thing which is the subject of accusation) (a) to be in suit or in question: quod agitur, the point in question; res agitur, something is at stake, in peril or danger; (b) res acta est, the game is up! all is lost! actum est de exercitu, it is all over with the army; hence, rem actam (or actam) agere, to do what is done, i.e. labour in vain, 'to be a day after the fair' (proverbial). V. (of an actor) 1. represent in action, play, act: fabulam; also (of a stage-manager) put on the stage, bring out. Hence, represent, personate, act the part of; behave like: laetum convivam; (poet.) proram, serve as a forepart or bow. 2. (of an orator) pronounce, deliver. VI. (poet. like Gk. ἄγω), weigh, regard, treat, consider. Virg. Ae. 1. 573.

‡ Āgōn, ōnis, m. [ἀγών], a contest in the public games; (prov.) nunc demum agon est, now if ever is the time for action.

Āgōnālia, ium (ōrum), n. pl. [Agonus], a festival of Ianus, celebrated on Jan. 9. (V. Id. Ian.).

Āgōnālis, e, adj. [id.], of or belonging to the Agonalia.

(1) ‡ āgōnia, ae, f. [ἀγωνία], a victim.

(2) Āgōnia, ōrum, n. pl. [Agonus]= Agonalia.

Āgonus, i, m. an ancient name of the Quirinal hill; probably the 'Agonalia' took their name from having been offered on this hill.

Agrāgantīnus, a, um, See Acr-.

Agrāgas, ntis, m. See Acragas.

agrārius, a, um, adj. [ager], of or belonging to the fields or lands: triumvir, a commissioner for the distribution of the 'ager publicus;' lex, a land law; any enactment relating to the disposal of 'ager publicus;' rem agrariam tentare, to introduce measures for the disposal of the 'ager publicus.' See Dict. Ant. As subst. agrārii, ōrum, m. pl. the agrarian party; those who wished for and urged the distribution of public lands.

Agraulos, i (-ē, ēs), f. [Ἄγραυλος], a daughter of Cecrops.

agrestis, e, adj. [ager], I. of or belonging to the country; country-like, country, rustic, rural. As subst. agrestis, is, m. (gen. pl. agrestūm), a countryman, peasant, farmer. II. (meton.) growing wild, wild: poma. III. (fig.) (opp. to 'urbanus') clownish, rude, boorish, wild, savage, uncultivated. Compar. agrestior.

(1) agrī-cŏla, ae, m. [ager, colo], a husbandman, farmer; peasant, countryman: (poet.) Cnelites agricolae, the deities of farming-folk, i.e. Ceres, Pales, Faunus, etc.

(2) Agrĭcŏla, ae, m. a Roman cognomen: Gnaeus Iulius (37-93 A.D.), whose biography, written by his son-in-law Tacitus, is extant.

agrĭcultĭo, agricultor, agricultūra, better written separately, agri cultio, etc.

Agrigentīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Agrigentum. As subst. Agrigentīni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Agrigentum.

Agrigentum, i, n. a large and wealthy city on the W. coast of Sicily, now Girgenti; taken by the Romans 210 B.C. It was also called Acragas. q.v.

‡ Agrĭŏdos, ontos, m. [ἄγριος, savage; ὀδούς, tooth], one of Actaeon's hounds.

agrī-pĕta, ae, m. [ager; peto], a land-seeker; esp. a settler; one who holds an allotment of land in a conquered country. Cf. Gk. κληροῦχος.

Agrippa, ae, m. a Roman name. 1. Menenius Agrippa (493 B.C.), who addressed to the Plebs the famous fable of the Belly and the Members. 2. M. Vipsanius Agrippa, son-in-law of Augustus, distinguished at Actium, Philippi, etc. Died 12 B.C., aged fifty-one. A colonnade erected by him was a fashionable lounge at Rome. 3. Herodes Agrippa: (a) grandson of Herod the Great, son of Aristobulus and Berenice. Died A.D. 44; (b) son and successor of the preceding, king of Chalcis: before him St. Paul pleaded Died A.D. 100.

Agrippīna, ae, f. 1. the wife of the Emperor Tiberius, granddaughter of Atticus. 2. daughter of Vipsanius Agrippa, wife of Germanicus, mother of the Emperor Caligula. 3. daughter of Agrippina, 2, and mother of the Emperor Nero. 4.=Colonia Agrippinensis.

Agrippīnensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Agrippina: Colonia, now Cologne; so called in honour of the mother of Nero. As subst. Agrippinenses, ium, m. pl. the people of Colonia Agrippina.

Agrĭos (-us), ĭi, m. [Ἄγριος], the father of Thersites, and brother of Oeneus.

Āgyieus (trisyll.), ĕi, or ĕos, m. [Ἀγυιεύς], a name of Apollo as 'guardian of streets' [ἀγυιαί].

Āgylla, ae, f. a city in Etruria, later called Caere.

Āgyllīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Agylla. As subst. Agyllīni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Agylla.

Āgyrīnensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Agyrium.

Āgyrium, ĭi, n. a town in Sicily, the birthplace of the historian Diodorus.

ah (ā), interj. ah! alas! (used with varying shades of emotion to express pain, sorrow, warning, pity, indignation, joy, etc.).

āhā, interj. aha! ha ha! (exclamation of reproof, denial, laughter, etc.).

Āhāla, ae, m. a Roman name. C. Servilius Ahala, was 'magister equitum' to the dictator L. Cincinnatus in 439 B.C., and killed Sp. Maelius with his own hand.

Aharna, ae, f. a town of Etruria, N.E. of Volsinii.

āhēn-. See under aēn-.

(1) ai, interj. denoting grief [αἰ], alas!

(2) ai, imperat. from aio.

Āiax (Āj-), ācis, m. [Αἴας], 1. the son of Telamon, king of Salamis, who contended with Ulysses for the arms of Achilles. Failing in this contest, he went mad and slew himself. From his blood sprang a purple flower (the hyacinth), with αἰ αἰ on its leaves. 2. the son of Oileus, king of the Locrians: according to Homer, he was wrecked on his return from Troy.

aiens, ntis, part. from aio. As adj. affirmative.

ain' (ain' tu)?=aisne? do you really say so? indeed? really! what?

aio, defect. v. 1. say, affirm, state: ut aiunt, quod aiunt, as the saying goes, as is said. 2. say 'yes'; assent. 3. speak, use speech. [The forms in use are: Indic. pres. aio, ais, ait,——aiunt. Imperf. aiebam (complete). Imperat. ai. Subj. pres.—nias, aiat, ——aiant. Part. aiens.]

Aius Locūtius (Lŏquens), 'the announcing speaker'; a Roman deity who announced that the Gauls were coming (390 B.C.).

āla, ae, f. [contr. for axilla, or axula], I. 1. a wing. 2. (poet.)= sagitta. Hence, in comidc, q.v., a scare for driving game; but see II. B. 3. (fig. of sails or oars) velorum alae, the flying sails. II. (meton.) A. 1. the arm-pit (of men); the shoulder-blade (of animals). 2. the wing of a building; a colonnade, corridor (hence, 'aisle') esp. the recesses on each side of the atrium. B. 1. the wing of an army, i.e. the allies, who were posted on the flanks, the Roman legions always being in the centre. 2. a body or detachment of cavalry, a squadron, consisting of 300 men or more, whether Romans or allies, who were posted on each flank of the legions. 3. (poet.) mounted huntsmen for driving game, outriders, scouts, beaters; tutum perlabitur alae, saltusque imagine cingunt.

Ālăbanda, ōrum, n. pl. an inland city of Caria, noted for its luxury.

Ālăbandensis, e, (-dēnus, a, um), adj. of or belonging to Alabanda.

Ālăbandeus, ei (quadrisyll.), m. ['Αλαβανδεύς]. a man of Alabanda. [Or, Ālăbandēus (five syll.), a, um, adj.=Alabandensis.]

Ālăbandĭcus, a, um, adj.= Alabandensis.

ălăbarchēs, ae. See Arabarches.

‡ ălăbaster, tri, m. (and -trŭm, trōrum, n. pl.), [ἀλάβαστρος], a small vase for choice unguents, shaped like a rosebud or a pear.

ălăcer, cris, cre, adj. (poet. alacris, masc.) lively, brisk, active, prompt, alert, 'on the qui vive,' eager, vigorous, animated: voluptas, frolic, mirth. Compar. alacrior.

ălăcrĭtas, ātis, f. [alacer], 1. liveliness, briskness, ardour, eagerness, enthusiasm. 2. gladness, transport, rapture.

Ălămanni, ōrum. See Alemanni.

Ālānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Alani; a warlike Scythian nation, about the E. of the Caucasus.

ălăpa, ae, f. [onomatopoeia; cf. κόλαφος], a cuff, slap, box on the ear: duxit sibi alapam, he gave himself a smack; multo maioris alapae mecum veneunt, boxes on the ear are sold with me at a much higher rate; i.e. (so far from my 'tipping' you, as you expect) it is not worth my while to take the trouble to cuff you. [It is a mistake to suppose that 'alapa' is put for the 'stroke of freedom' by the 'vindicta.']

Ălărĭcus, i, m. Alaric, or Alric, king of the Visigoths; plundered Rome A.D. 410.

ălāris, e, adj. [ala]= alarius.

ălārĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], (techn.) of the wings, on the wing (of an army). The allied troops or auxiliaries formed the wings of the legions; hence, as subst. ălārii, ōrum, m. pl. allies, auxiliaries: so also 'alariae cohortes.' Cf. ala, II. B. 1, 2.

‡ Ălastor, ŏris, m. ['Αλάστωρ], 1. one of Sarpedon's comrades, killed by Ulysses. 2. one of Pluto's horses.

ălātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [ala], furnished with wings, winged.

ălauda, ae, f. [Keltic word], 1. a lark. 2. the name of a legion, so called from their badge of a lark's crest, raised by Caesar in Transalpine Gaul about 55 B.C., and enfranchised by him. It probably bore the number V.

(1) Alba, ae, m. the name of an Alban king, son of Latinus.

(2) Alba or Alba Longa, ae, f. [albus], the most ancient city of Latium, built by Ascanius. It was destroyed, and its population removed to Rome by Tullus Hostilius.

(3) Alba, ae, f. the name of other towns. 1. Alba Fucentia, a town of the Marsi; subsequently a Roman military colony, and used as a state prison. 2. Alba Helvia (Helvorum), a town in Gallia Narbonensis. 3. Alba Pompeia, a town in Liguria, colonised by Pompey, the birthplace of the Emperor Pertinax.

(4) Alba, ae, n. a river of Spain.

Albānus, a, um, adj. [Alba], of or belonging to Alba, Alban: Lacus, a deep lake W. of Mons Albanus; Mons, a mountain in Latium, at the foot of which Alba Longa was situated. It was noted for the temple of Iuppiter Latiaris on the summit, the celebration of the 'Feriae Latinae,' and the ovations of Roman generals. As subst. (a) Albāni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Alba; (b) Albānum, i, n. (sc. praedium), an estate at Alba, an Alban villa.

albātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [albus], clad in white; 'with fresh-scoured toga.'

albens, ntis, part. from albeo. As adj. white, blanched, bleached.

Albenses, ium, m. pl. the men of Alba Fucentia.

albĕo, ēre, [albus], intrans. v. be white: albente caelo (abl. abs.) with the first white streak of dawn.

albesco, ĕre, [incept. from albeo], intrans. v. grow or become white, whiten.

Albĭci, ōrum, m. pl. a warlike Gallic tribe N. of Massilia.

albĭco, āre, intrans. v. be white, whiten.

albĭdus, a, um, adj. [albeo], white, whitish. Compar. albidior; superl. albidissimus.

Albĭnŏvānus, i, m. 1. C. Pedo Albinovanus, an epic poet and epigrammatist, friend and contemporary of Ovid. 2. Celsus Albinovanus, a friend of Horace, private secretary of Tiberius.

Albĭnus, i, m. a Roman name.

Albis, is, m. the river Elbe.

Albĭus, ii, m. a Roman name. Cf. Tibullus.

(1) Albŭla, ae, f. [sc. aqua; albus], an ancient name of the Tiber.

(2) Albŭla, ae, (-ae, ārum, sc. aquae), f. a sulphur spring; called albula from the milky colour of the water. In pl. a group of sulphur springs near Tibur, of which the largest was Albunea.

albŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. albus], whitish: freta, i.e. foaming.

album, i, n. See albus, I.

Albŭna, Albŭnēa, ae, f. [albus], 1. a Sibyl who had a shrine near Tibur. 2. a fountain of the same name. 3. a sulphur spring near Laurentum.

Alburnus, i, m. a mountain in Lucania, near the river Silarus.

albus, a, um, adj. [cf. ἀλφός], I. white, colourless; opposed to 'ater.' Albus calculus, the white pebble or ballot used (a) in acquitting a person, (b) in marking a lucky day; albi libri, a chalked rope drawn across the racecourse to insure a fair start; cf. calx, creta; album plumbum, i.e. tin. As subst. album, i, n. 1. white colour, white, whiteness. 2. (techn.) a white tablet for posting up public announcements, advertisements, praetor's edicts, registers of senators, jury lists, etc.; esp. the tablets of the Pontifex Maximus, on which he recorded the principal events of the year; cf. 'annales maximi.' Hence, in album referre, to register or record officially. II. (meton.) 1. white (of the hair, clothing, etc.): pedibus albis venire, to come with whitened feet, i.e. chalked, as the feet of foreign slaves were when exposed to sale. 2. pale (from sickness, etc.); also (poet.) making pale. 3. (poet.) bringing fair weather, fair, clear, bright: stella; Notus. 4.=albatus, clad in white. 5. (in proverbs), (a) alba avis, a curiosity, something uncommon; (b) alba gallinae filius, a favourite of fortune; cf. 'le fils de la poule blanche,' in French; (c) albus an ater sit nescire, not to know the colour of a man's complexion, i.e. be an absolute stranger; (d) equis albis praecurrere, show a clean pair of heels, beat hollow. White horses were esteemed for their supposed swiftness; they were also used in triumphal processions.

Alcaeus, i, m. ['Αλκαῖος], a lyric poet of Mitylene, contemporary of Sappho; flourished about 611 B.C. He is said to have invented the Alcaic Metre, which Horace imitated.

Alcămĕnes, is, m. a Greek statuary, 448 B.C.

Alcander, dri, m. the name of Trojan.

Alcăthŏē, ēs, f. 'the citadel of Megara; hence, (meton.) for Megara itself.

Alcăthŏus, i, m. a son of Pelops, the rebuilt Megara, which was hence called 'Alcathoi urbs.'

alcēdo, ĭnis, f. alcyon, q.v.

alces, is, f. an elk; (?) moose-deer.

Alcestis, is (-ĭdis, ēos), f. a daughter of Pelias, wife of Admetus, king of Pherae. Having sacrificed her life to save her husband, she was rescued by Hercules from the lower world, and restored to Admetus.

Alcĭbīădēs, is, m. ['Αλκιβιάδης], a celebrated Athenian general, born about 450 B.C. He was rich, handsome, clever, and dissolute, and much attached to Socrates, whose pupil he was. His house having been set on fire, he perished in the flames, 404 B.C.

Alcĭdāmas, ntis, m. the name of a wrestler.

Alcīdēs, ae, m. patron. (voc. Alcidē), ['Αλκείδης], a descendant of Alceus, the father of Amphitryon; hence, a name of Hercules, grandson of Alceus.

Alcĭmēdē, ēs, f. the wife of Aeson, and mother of Iason.

Alcĭmĕdon, ntis, m. the name of a woodcarver; perhaps contemporary with Virgil.

Alcĭnŏus, i, m. ['Αλκίνοος], the grandson of Poseidon, and ruler of the Phaeacians. He entertained Ulysses, and was noted for the good living at his court, and for his orchards; whence the proverb 'Alcinoo poma dare,' like our 'to carry coals to Newcastle.'

Alcis, m. the name of a deity of the Naharvali, a German tribe.

Alcĭthŏē, ēs, f. ['Αλκιθόη], a daughter of Minyas, king of Boeotia, changed into a bat for contempt of the worship of Dionysus (Bacchus).

Alcmaeo, Alcmaeon, ōnis, m. 1. son of Amphiaraus and Eriphyle. 2. a philosopher of Croton.

Alcmaeōnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Alcmaeon: furiae, the furies who haunted him for the murder of his mother Eriphyle.

Alcmēna, ae (-ē, ēs), f. ['Αλκμήνη], daughter of Electryon, king of Mycenae, wife of Amphitryon, and mother of Hercules.

Alcŭmēna, ae, f.=Alcmena.

alcȳon (halc-), ōnis, f. [ἀλκυών], the halcyon, a sea-bird; some sort of gull, but not the kingfisher. A calm at sea was supposed to prevail during the 'halcyon days,' or fourteen days during which the alcyon broods.

Alcȳŏnē (Halc-), ēs, f. ['Αλκυόνη], 1. a daughter of Aeolus, who, for grief at the loss of her husband Ceyx, threw herself into the sea, and was changed into a bird. Cf. alcyon. 2. one of the Pleiads.

(1) Alcȳŏnēus (quadrisyll.), ĕi, m. one of the giants.

(2) alcȳŏnēus (halc-), a, um, adj. [Alcyone], of or belonging to Alcyone, or the halcyon: mare, the E. part of the Corinthian Gulf. As subst. alcȳŏnēum, i, m. (sc. medicamen), a toilet remedy for pimples, freckles, etc., taken from the alcyon's nest.

Aldŭasdŭbis, is, m. another name of the river Dubis, in Gaul, now the Doubs.

ālea, ae, f. [deriv. uncertain], 1. a dice; cf. 'alea iacta est,' (fig.) the famous exclamation of Caesar when he crossed the Rubicon. II. (meton.) 1. a game with dice (cf. talus, tessera); any game of chance or hazard. 2. gaming, gambling. III. (fig.) a hazard, risk, venture: hence, proverb. 'aleam emere,' as we say, 'to buy a pig in a poke.'

ālĕātŏr, ōris, m. [alea], a gamester, gambler.

ālĕātōrĭus, a, um, adj. [aleator], of or belonging to a gambler: damna, losses at play.

ālec (allec, hālec), ēcis. See allec.

Alecto (All-), ūs, f ['Αλήκτω, ους], one of the Furies.

Ālēīus, a, um, adj. ['Αλήϊος], Aleian: Campus, the Aleian plain in Cilicia.

Ālēmanni (Ălă-), Ălămānni, orum, m. pl. [Germ. alle Männer], a confederation of German tribes between the Danube, the Rhine, and the Main. Caracalla assumed the title of Alemannicus on account of a victory over them, A.D. 214.

Ālēmon, ōnis, m. [ἀλήμων], a Greek, father of Myscelus.

Ālēmōnĭdēs, ae, m. patron. a son or descendant of Alemon · esp. Myscelus, his son.

ālĕo, ōnis, m. [alea], a gamester.

ālēs, ălītis (abl. sing. aliti in Sen., gen. pl. ălĭtum and (poet.) ălītŭum), adj. [ala], I. winged, flying: equus, i.e. Pegasus: deus, i.e. Mercury. As subst. ălēs, ĭtis, m. f. 1. a bird (properly of larger birds only): albus, the swan; cristatus, the cock; Iovis, the eagle; Phoebeius, the raven. Also f. Daulias, i.e. the nightingale. 2. fig. of a poet. 3. in augury, always f., alites are birds from whose flight omens are taken (opposed to 'oscines'): hence (meton.) an omen, augury. II. swift, rapid.

Ālēsa, ae. See Halesa.

Ālesco, ĕre [incept. from alo], intrans. v. grow, increase.

Ālĕsĭa, ae, f. a town of Gallia Lugdunensis, now Alise la Reine, taken by Caesar 52 B.C.

Ālēsus, i. See Halesus.

Ālētrīnās, ātis, gentile adj. [Aletrium], of Aletrium. As subst. a native of Aletrium.

Ālētrīnensis, e, adj.=Aletrinas.

Ālētrium (Alatr-), ĭi, n. a town of the Hernici, now Alatri.

ālex (hal-), ĕcis, f. See allec.

Āleuas, ae, m. a descendant of Hercules, ruler of Larissa.

Ălexander, dri, m. ['Αλέξανδρος], 1. another name of Paris, son of Priam. 2. the son of Philip and Olympia, surnamed the Great, born at Pella 356 B.C.; founded the Macedonian Empire; died 323 B.C. 3. a tyrant of Pherae, in Thessaly. 4. a king of Epirus.

Ălexandrēa (-īa), ae, f. ['Αλεξάνδρεια], 1. the capital of Egypt under the Ptolemies, founded by order of Alexander the Great, 332 B.C. 2. a city of Troas.

Ălexandrīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Alexandria, Alexandrine. As subst. Ălexandrīni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Alexandria (in Egypt).

Alexirhŏē, ēs, f. ['Αλεξιρόη], a daughter of the river-god Granicus, mother of Aesacus.

Ălexis, ĭdis (acc. Alexim; voc. Alexī), m. a man's name.

alga, ae, f. [deriv. doubtful], sea-weed. Used prov. of anything of little value.

algens, ntis, part. from algeo. As adj. cold, shivering: toga, i.e. one that gives no warmth, threadbare.

algĕo, ēre, si (cf. ἀλγέω), intrans. v. am or feel cold; starve.

algesco, ĕre, si (incept. from algeo), intrans. v. catch or take cold.

Algĭdum, i, n. [algidus], a town on Mt. Algidus.

(1) algĭdus, a, um, adj. [algeo], cold.

(2) Algĭdus, i, m. [id.], a mountain range in Latium, about twelve miles from Rome. In pl. Algida, ōrum, n. (sc. iuga); cf. Gargara, Maennala, etc.

(3) Algĭdus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Algidum or Algidus.

algor, ōris, m. [id.], cold (that is felt), coldness.

algōsus, a, um, adj. [alga], full of sea-weed.

ălgu, n. indecl. (us, ūs, m.) [algeo], coldness. Cf. gelu.

ălĭā (sc. viă), adv. [alius], by or in another way.

ălĭās, adv. [id.], 1. at or in another place, elsewhere. 2. at another time, on another occasion: raro alias, rarely at other times; non alias, on no other occasion; semper alias, at all other times. 3. in phrases: (a) alias . . . alias, at one time . . . at another; sometimes . . . sometimes; partly . . . partly: (b) alias aliter, alias alius, etc., at one time in one way . . . at another in another; now this . . . now that: (c) alias saepe or saepe alias . . . nunc, nuper, quondam, etc.: often at other times . . . now, lately, once: cum saepe alias . . . tum, etc., both often at other times, and especially . . .

both often on the one hand, and especially on the other. 4. in other respects, under other circumstances, otherwise: non alias quam, from no other reason, under no other circumstances than; on no other condition than.

ălĭbī, adv. [id.], I. 1. at or in another place, elsewhere: sts. with nec, non, nasquam, nec usquam. 2. in phrases: alibi . . . alibi, in one place . . . in another; here . . . there: alibi atque alibi, now here, now there, in different places; or, with kindred words (alius, alieter), one here . . . another there; in one way in one place . . . in another in another; with quam (mostly with neg.), elsewhere than. II. (meton.) 1. otherwise, in other respects, in something else. 2. (of persons), with something else, elsewhere.

ălĭca (hal-), ae, f. [alo; prop. adj. 'nourishing'], 1. spelt; spelt-grits. 2. a drink or sauce made from spelt; gruel.

ălĭcŭbī, adv. [aliquis; ubi], somewhere, anywhere; at some (any) place.

ălĭcŭla (hăl-), ae, f. dim. [ala], a cloak with short flaps (alae), a cape (worn by people of small means, sportsmen, and children).

ălĭcundĕ, adv. [aliquis; unde], 1. from somewhere, from some source or quarter. 2. (of persons) from some one or somebody.

ălĭd—ăllud. See alius.

ălĭēnātĭo, ōnis, f. [alieno], I. a transferring of a thing to another. II. (fig.) 1. a transferring of one's self, a going over to another, withdrawal, desertion: separation, estrangement, aversion. 2. (medical techn. t.) sts. with mentis, aberration of intellect, insanity.

ălĭēnī-gĕna, ae, m. [alienus; root GEN-, cf. gigno], one born in a foreign land; a stranger, foreigner, alien. Sts. in apposition=adj. foreign.

ălĭēnĭgĕnus, a, um, adj. [id.], 1. foreign. 2. foreign in kind, heterogeneous.

ălĭēno, āre, āvī, ātum [alienus], trans. v. I. make another person's. II. (fig.) make foreign, estrange, alienate; remove, separate, cast out, set aside, cut off: alienare se or alienari ab aliqua re, to hold aloof from, be averse to; alienare mentem alicui, to turn a person's brain, drive crazy, infatuate; alienari mente, sensibus, etc., to be insane. III. (legal techn. t.) transfer legally (by sale), alienate.

ălĭēnus, a, um, adj. [alius], I. of or belonging to another, another's, not one's own: vulnus, meant for another; alieno Marte pugnare equitem, i.e. that the cavalry should fight dismounted; alienis malis ridere, to laugh with other people's jaws, i.e. with hypocritical face, with forced, unnatural mirth, or (according to others) to laugh at other people's expense, unmoderately; aes alienum, debt, cf. aes, 3 (b); aliena nomina, debts incurred as surety for others, cf. nomen. As subst. ălĭēnum, i, n. the property of another. II. strange, foreign, alien. As subst. alienus, i, m. a stranger, whether of one's own or of any other country; one who is not related: alienissimus, an utter or entire stranger. III. (fig.) 1. unfamiliar, unversed: alienum esse in or ab aliqua re, to be a stranger to, unacquainted with a thing. 2. ill adapted, out of place, inappropriate, irrelevant, inopportune, disadvantageous: aliena loqui, to talk strangely, ramble in one's talk, rave. 3. unfavourable, disadvantageous, hostile, inconsistent with; (often with gen. dat. abl. or prep. abl. 4. (of the mind) perverted, insane, mad, Sall. Compar. alienior; superl. alienissimus.

ălĭfa, ae, f. See Allifae.

ălĭ-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, poet. gen. pl. algerûm for aligerorum, adj. [ala; gero], bearing wings, winged: agmen, i.e. of birds; Iovis nuntius, i.e. Mercury. Also meton. of a chariot drawn by winged dragons.

ălĭmentārĭus, a, um, adj. [alimentum], of or belonging to nourishment or maintenance.

ălĭmentum, i, n. [alo], 1. nourishment, nutriment; food, support, maintenance: often in pl. 2. the return made by children to parents for their bringing up.

ălĭmōnĭum, ii, n. [id.], nourishment; an allowance for maintenance.

ălĭō, adv. [alius], 1. elsewhither, to another place, person, or thing. 2. to or for another purpose or object. 3. alio . . . alio, in one way . . . in another: alius alio, some one way and some another; aliunde alio, from one place to another.

ălĭōquī (-quĭn), adv. [alius; quis], 1. in other respects, for the rest, otherwise, on the whole, generally speaking, in general. 2. besides, moreover, in some other way. 3. in himself, herself, itself, etc., in particular, emphatically. 4. otherwise, else. 5. (with et . . . et, cum . . . tum), both in other respects . . . and especially. Cf. ἄλλως τε . . . καί.

ălĭorsum (-sus), adv. [contr. from aliovorsum, alioversus], 1. elsewhither, elsewhere; in the direction of other persons, things, etc. 2. in another manner; aliquid accipere, to interpret a thing differently.

alioversus, aliovorsum. See preceding.

ălĭ-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [ala; pes], I. with wings on the feet, wing-footed; epith. of Mercury and of the horses of the Sun (meton.) swift, fleet. As subst. ălĭpēdes, um, m. pl. (poet.), horses, coursers.

ălĭphas, Ălĭphānus. See Allifae.

‡ ăliptēs (-a), ae, m. [ἀλείπτης, an anointer], 1. a trainer of athletes, who combined the functions of unctor and lanista. 2. a bath-slave (cf. unctor), whose duty it was to rub and anoint the bathers, a shampooer, massage rubber.

ălĭquā, adv. [prop. abl. f. sc. viā], 1. in some way, by some road. 2. somehow, in some manner.

ălĭquam, adv. [prop. acc. f.=in aliquam partem], in some degree. Only with diu, multum, or multus. 1. ăliquam diu, for a while, for some time, awhile; for a considerable time; sts. followed by deinde, donec, etc. 2. aliquam multum, to a considerable degree or distance, considerably; aliquam multi, somewhat many, considerable (in number or quantity).

ălĭquamdĭu, adv. See preceding.

ălĭquando, adv. [aliquis], 1. (of time past) at some time or other, once, formerly. 2. (of the future) one day, hereafter. 3. (indefinite) at any time, ever; sometimes, upon certain occasions, now and then: aliquando . . . aliquando, at one time . . . at another time. 4. (of a single occasion) for this once. 5. at length, at last, finally (implying 'and high time, too').

ălĭquantĭsper, adv. [aliquantus, suffix per], for a little while, for a time.

ălĭquantō, adv. [alius; quantus], in some degree, somewhat, a little, rather, considerably, not a little. With comparatives, the force varies with the context.

ălĭquantŭlum, adv. [aliquantulus], somewhat, a very little.

ălĭquantŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. aliquantus], very little. As subst. ălĭquantŭlum, i, n. (with partitive gen.) a very little, a very small amount.

ălĭquantum, adv. [aliquantus], in some degree, somewhat, considerably. Cf. aliquanto, which it resembles in meaning and use.

ălĭquantus, a, um, adj. [alius; quantus], some, moderate; not a little, considerable. As subst. ăliquantum, i, n. (with partitive gen.), some part, some; a little, a good bit.

ălĭquātĕnus, adv. [aliquā, abl. f.; tenus], to a certain extent, in some degree or measure; in some respects, partly.

ălĭquī, aliqua, aliquod (gen. sing. alicuius, dat. alicui), indef. pron. adj. [alius; qui], 1. some, any. 2. some considerable, of importance: aliquod nomenque decusque, a name of note; aliqua ex parte, in some degree, to some considerable extent, to some extent worth mentioning. 3. some or other, this or that. 4. some other, any other; sts. with alius. 5. (with numerals) some, about: tres aliqui aut quattuor.

ălĭquid. See aliquis, 5.

ălĭquis, aliquid (gen. sing. alicuius, dat. alicui), indef. pron. subst. [aliqui], 1. some one, somebody; something; any one, anything; often, in apposition= adj. Sts. with pl. verb, aperite aliquis ostium; once in Virg. with 2d per. sing., exoriare aliquis. 2. with prepp. ex, de, or partitive gen.: aliquis ex vobis; aliquis de tribus vobis; principum aliquis. Also aliquid, n. nom. acc. with gen. of subst. or neut. adj.

of 2d decl.: aliquid auri; &c. quid, novi, etc. 3. somebody or something of importance, of note; special: est aliquid, it is no trifle, it goes for something; dicere aliquid (cf. λέγειν τι), to say something to the purpose, speak to the point; fiet aliquid, something important or lucky will happen. 4. (with alius, aliud, or with alius implied) some or any other; something or anything else. 5. aliquid, adverbial acc. of respect (cf. τι in Gk.), with verb or adj., in some respect, in something; to some extent, somewhat; at all, in any respect.

āliquo, adv. [adverbial dat. of aliquis], 1. to some place, somewhither, somewhere. 2. to some other place, elsewhere.

āliquŏt, indef. indecl. num. adj. [alius; quot], some, a few, several. As subst. some persons, several people.

āliquŏtiens (-ēs), adv. [aliquot], several times, at different times.

ālis, archaic for alius, q.v.

Ālīso, ōnis, m. a fort built by Drusus at the confluence of the Alme and Lippe.

ālĭtĕr, adv. [alis=alius], 1. otherwise, in another manner: ac (atque, quam), otherwise than, contrary to what . . . 2. in phrases: (a) non (haud, alter, not otherwise, just so; exactly; with ac si, quam si; quam cum, quam, just as if, just as; (b) non aliter nisi, on no other condition, under no other circumstances, except; (c) non aliter quam ut, on no other condition than that; (d) aliter esse, to be different; (e) aliter . . . aliter, in one way . . . in another, in different ways; (f) with alius, alibi, etc., one in one way . . . another in another. 3. otherwise, in the contrary manner; in a contrary or opposite direction. 4. [= alioqui] in any other case, under other circumstances.

ālītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from alo.

ālĭtŭum. See ales.

ālĭ-ŭbi, adv. [alius; ubi], elsewhere: aliubi . . . aliubi, in one place . . . in another, in different places.

ālium, ii, n. See allium.

ālĭ-undĕ, adv. [alius; unde], from another person, place, or thing; from elsewhere: aliunde stare aliunde sentire, to play fast and loose, 'run with the hare, but hunt with the hounds.'

ālius, a, ud, pronom. adj. (gen. sing., for which 'alterius' generally serves, alīūs, rare, of all genders; dat. ālĭi), [cf. ἄλλος], I. another, other (of many, whereas alter is one of two): alias res agere, to be inattentive to the matter in hand; 'alio die' dicere, to declare the comitia adjourned, ('alio die' being the formula used). II. in phrases: 1. Quid est aliud nisi or quam, What is this but . . . ? Is not this to . . . ? If this is not . . . what is? 2. (with ellipse of agere or facere) (a) nihil aliud nisi, nothing more than, merely; (b) nihil aliud quam, nothing else than, nothing but, simply. III. in distributive clauses: alius . . . alius, one . . . one, another . . . another. In pl. alii . . . alii, some . . . others. IV. to effect a contrast: (a) repeated in successive clauses; one . . . another: aliud equo est e natura, aliud bovi, aliud homini, one thing is natural to a horse, another to an ox, another to a man; (b) in another case, or with alias, alibi, aliter, etc.: alius aliā causā illatā, one alleging one pretext, another another; aliud alias sentire, to hold one view at one time, another at another, i.e. different views on different occasions; (c) alius ex alio, one after another; (d) alius atque alius (alius aliusque), the one and the other, first one and then another, different. V. in comparisons: (a) with abl., ac (atque), et, nisi, praeter, other than, different from: species alias veris, ideas different from true ones, Hor.; (b) with a negative and comparative: non alia ante aetas atrocior fuit, i.e. never before was so desperate an action fought; quo non aliud atrocius visum, what seemed most horrible of all. VI. to supply the want of a reciprocal pronoun: alius alium exspectamus, we wait for one another. VII. of another kind or nature, different: alium facere, change, transform; alius fieri, be metamorphosed, become different. VIII. (=reliquus, ceteri) the rest, the remainder: alia omnis multitudo, all the rest; in alia omnia (= transire discedere), to vote against or negative a motion in the Senate (techn. t.). The formula of division was: 'Qui haec sentitis, in hanc partem transite; qui alia omnia, in illam partem.' IX. =alter) one of two, the other, second.

ālius-mŏdi (better separate: alius; gen. of modus), of another kind.

allut=aliud, from alius. Lucr.

all-. See adl-.

allec (ălec, hălec), ēcis, n. brine, fish-pickle, caviare.

Allecto. See Alecto.

allex, ĭcis, m. a thumb: allex viri (comic), a hop-o'-my-thumb, manikin.

allex, ēcis, f.=allec.

Allĭa (Al-), ae, a small river running into the Tiber, on which the Romans were defeated by the Gauls, July 16th, B.C. 390.

Alliensis (Al-), e, adj. of or belonging to the Allia: dies, the anniversary of the defeat on the Allia, regarded by the Romans as a 'dies nefastus.'

Allĭfae (Allĭphae, Allĭphae), ārum, f. pl., also Allĭfa, ae, f. [Ἀλλίφαι], a town of Samnium, on the Vulturnus.

Allĭfānus (Allĭph-, Āl-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Allifae. As subst. Allĭfānus, i, m. a man of Allifae. Allĭfāna, ōrum, n. pl. (i.e.) pocula, large drinking-cups (of very common ware) made at Allifae.

Allĭphae, Allĭphānus. See Allifae, Allifanus.

allium (āl-), ii, n. garlic.

Allobrŏges, um, m. pl. See Allobrox.

Allobrŏgicus, a, um, adj. [Allobrox], Allobrogian; a surname of Q. Fabius Maximus as conqueror of the Allobroges, B.C. 121.

Allobrox, ŏgis, m. an Allobrogian. (Acc. sing. Allobroga. In sing. only poet.). The Allobroges were a warlike and powerful people of Gallia Narbonensis, dwelling between the Rhodanus and the Isara.

allūcinor, ārī. See alucinor.

Almo, ōnis, m. 1. a small stream running into the Tiber S. of Rome, in which the statue of Cybele was yearly washed. 2. a river-god, father of Lara.

almus, a, um, adj. [alo], 1. affording nourishment, life-giving; that makes fruitful. 2. kindly, propitious, gracious, bountiful; genial, generous.

alnus, i, f. I. an alder. II. (meton. poet.) anything made of alder; a ship, vessel, canoe; a pile, post, stake.

ălo, ĕre, ŭi, ălĭtum, and altum, trans. v. I. nourish, sustain, feed, maintain, keep, rear. II. (fig.) increase, promote, cherish, keep fresh, keep alive, foster; animate, encourage.

ălŏē, ēs, f. [ἀλόη], 1. the aloe. 2. (fig.) anything bitter.

Ālōeus (trisyll.), ei, ēi, and ĕos, m. son of Poseidon, husband of Iphimedia, and father of Otus and Ephialtes.

Ālōĭdae, ārum, patron. m. pl. [Ἀλωεῖδαι], the sons of Aloeus, i.e. Otus and Ephialtes.

Alpēs, ium, f. pl. (also rarely sing. Alpis, is, f.), (Celtic alb or alp, a height), I. the Alps, the mountain range which separates Italy from Switzerland and France. II. (meton. poet.) any high mountain range.

† alpha, n. indecl. [ἄλφα], I. the first letter of the Greek alphabet: ante alpha et beta, before their A B C. II. (meton.) the first of anything: paenulatorum, No. 1, the tip-top of the gentry in ulsters, Mart.

Alphēĭās, ădis, f. patron. ['Αλφηϊάς], a name of the nymph Arethusa, q.v.

Alphēŏs (-ŭs), i, m. ['Αλφειός], the chief river of Peloponnesus, flowing through Arcadia and Elis, fabled to pass under the sea to Sicily, and there mingle its waters with the fountain Arethusa. Alphei praemia, i.e. Olympiads.

Alphēsĭboea, ae, f. ['Αλφεσίβοια], daughter of Phegeus, and wife of Alcmaeon.

Alphēus, a, um, adj. ['Αλφειος], of or belonging to the Alpheus. Pisae, a town of Etruria is called Alpheae because supposed to be a colony from Pisa in Elis.

Alpīcus, a, um, adj. [Alpes], Alpine. As subst. Alpici, ōrum, m. pl. the Alpine mountaineers.

Alpīnus, a, um, adj. [id.], 1. of or from the Alps, Alpine: mus, a marmot. 2. As subst. a nickname of the poet M. Furius Bibaculus.

Alpis, is, f. a less common form of Alpes, q.v. .

Alsiensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Alsium, a town on the coast of Etruria.

alsius, a, um, adj. [algeo],=alsus. Once in Lucr.

alsus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], cold, chilly. Only in compar. n. alsius, Cic.

altā, ōrum, n. pl. See altus.

altārē, is, n. More often in pl. altāria, ium, n. [? altus], the superstructure or 'high altar' on which the victims were offered, whereas 'ara' is the general term.

altē, adv. [altus], 1. on high, high, aloft. 2. from on high, low down; deeply, profoundly. 3. from afar, far back: altius repetere, to retrace from a more remote point. 4. loudly (of sound). Compar. altius; superl. altissime.

altĕr, tĕra, tĕrum, pronom. adj. (gen. sing. altĕrīus, of all genders; dat. altĕrī; fem. rarely alterae), [akin to alius], 1. the one of two, one, the other: claudus altero pede, lame of one foot; alter consulum, one of the consuls. As subst. another person, another; one's neighbour: alterius causā, for another's sake. 2. in distributive clauses: alter . . alter, the one . . . the other. In pl. alteri . . alteri, the one party . . . the other party. 3. reciprocally: alter alterum amant, they love one another. 4. in phrases: (a) alter ambove, one or both (of two; often abbr. A. A. S. E. V.='alter ambove si est videbitur'); (b) unus et alter, (1) the one and the other, i.e. two; (2) one here and another there, this and that, i.e. several, one or two; (3) first one and then another. 5. another, a second: alter ego, (alter idem, a second self; alter ab illo, next to him; alter et alter, i.e. double; alterum tantum, as much again, twice as much; altero viciesimo die, on the twenty-second day. 6. (indefinite) either of two, the one or the other. 7. the other, opposite; hence, changed, different from before, altered.

altercatĭo, ōnis, f. [altercor], 1. a wrangling, debate, dispute. 2. a cross-examination in a court of justice.

altercor, ārī, ātus sum, intrans. dep. (rarely with acc.) [id.], 1. dispute, bicker, wrangle, contend. 2. cross-examine in a court of justice.

alternans, ntis, part. from alterno. As adj. 1. intermittent, that comes and goes. 2. hesitating, wavering. 3. acting in turn, with constant interchange.

alternis, abl. pl. (i.e. vicibus)= adv. See alternus.

alterno, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. [alternus], 1. do or cause to be done by turns or in turn, alternate: cibum, give food in succession; fidem, make a thing credible at one time, at another not; keep in suspense. 2. (poet. without obj. acc.) waver, hesitate, Virg.

alternus, a, um, adj. [alter], 1. one after another, in turn, by turns, alternate, at regular intervals: alterna (carmina), an Amoebean strain: sermones, i.e. dialogue; alterna consilia (alternos iudices) reicere, to challenge in turns the panel of iudices chosen by the praetor. By the lex Vatinia the prosecutor and defendant alternately had the right of challenging iudices for any one trial. Adverbial abl. alternis (i.e. vicibus), by or in turns. alternately. 2. every other, every second. 3. (of verses) alternating between hexameters and pentameters; i.e. elegiac.

altĕr-ĭter, ĭtra, ŭtrum, (sts. altera utra, alterum utrum; gen. alterutrius or ulterius utrius; dat. alterutri, etc.), pronom. adj. one of the two, the one or the other, either (no matter which).

Althaea, ae, f. ['Ἀλθαία], daughter of Thestius, wife of Oeneus, king of Calydon, and mother of Meleager.

altī-cinctus, a, um, adj. [alte; cinctus], adj. having the tunic drawn high up, girt up for action; hence, active, energetic, busy.

altĭlis, e, adj. [alo], well-fed, fattened, fat, fit for table. As subst. altĭlis, is, f. (i.e. avis), a fat fowl; a capon.

Altĭnum, i, n. a town of the Veneti in the N. of Italy.

altī-sŏnus, a, um, adj. [alte; sonus], I. sounding on high. II. high-sounding, sublime.

altī-tŏnans, ntis, adj. [alte; tonans], 1. thundering on high. 2. (of a river) loud-roaring.

altĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [altus], I. height, altitude. II. depth, profundity. III. (fig.) (of mind, etc.) (a) loftiness, magnanimity; (b) impenetrability, reserve.

altĭusculus, a, um, dim. adj. [id.], somewhat high, tallish.

altĭvŏlans, ntis, adj.=altivolus.

altī-vŏlus, a, um, adj. [alte; volo, 2], flying high, soaring aloft.

altor, ōris, m. [alo], a nourisher, a foster-father. Stn. poet. in apposition=adj. nutritious.

altrix, ĭcis, f. [id.], a female nourisher or sustainer, a foster-mother, nurse. Sts. in apposition =adj. native, Hor.

altrorsus, adv. contr.=altrovorsum.

altrō-vorsum, adv. [alter; versus], on the other side.

altum, i, n. See altus.

altus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from alo. As adj. I. high, lofty, elevated: (with gen. or acc. of measure) muri ducenos pedes altī; alta novem pecum. As subst. altum, i, n. 1. a height; so in pl. 2. the height of heaven, the heavens, the sky. So often in pl. II. deep, profound. As subst. altum, i, n. 1. the deep sea, the deep, the main. 2. the depth (of the sea or a river), the deep part, the bottom; so in pl. 3. the depth or interior of anything: ex alto, from the deep, far down; ex alto petere or repetere, search deep, or far down (cf. alte, 3). III. (fig.) 1. high-born, illustrious; remote, venerable. 2. sublime, mighty, august. 3. proud, stern: alto vultu reicere. 4. great, exalted, high-minded, noble. 5. (poet. and post-Aug.) deep, profound: sopor, quies, silentium. IV. (of sounds) high, loud, shrill.

ălūcinor (all-, hall-), ārī, ātus sum, dep. [cf. ἀλύω], be in a mooning, dreamy state; talk at random, twaddle.

ălumna, ae, f. See alumnus.

ălumnus, a, um, adj. [prop. ἀλο-menos, old participial form of alo, cf. termination -όμενος, in Gk. and autumnus, Vertumnus, etc.]. As subst. alumnus, i, m. and alumna, ae, f. 1. a foster-child, nursling, youngling. 2. a pupil.

Ăluntīnus (Hal-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aluntium, a town of Sicily, on the N. coast.

ălūta, ae, f. [i.e. pellis: prop. an adj. formed like part.], I. leather made soft by being steeped in alum water. II. (meton.) anything made of such leather; 1. a boot or shoe. 2. a purse, pouch. 3. a patch or beauty-spot for the face, Ov.

alvĕāre, is, n. [alveus], a beehive. The pl. alvearia is scanned quadrisyll. as if alvāriă in Virg.

alvĕārĭum, ĭi, n. [id.], a row of beehives; an apiary.

alvĕŏlus, i, m. dim. [id.], I. a small trough, tray, or tub; a cruet or saucer; a watering-pot or bucket. II. a small gaming-board. III. a weaver's shuttle. IV. a small channel (of a river), Curt.

alvĕus, i, m. [alvus], 1. a hollow vessel of wood, a trough or tray; a salver. 2. a cavity, excavation, hollow. 3. the channel or bed of a river. 4. the hold or hull of a ship; hence (poet.) the ship itself; a skiff, canoe. 5. a gaming-board. 6. a hot-water bath. 7. a bathing tub; any vessel for washing in. 8. a beehive., Colum.

alvus, i, f. (m. in O.L.), [alo], 1. the belly, the bowels. 2. the stomach, digestive organs. 3. the womb. 4. a beehive, Colum., Plin.

Ălyăttes, is, (poet. -ē), m. a king of Lydia, B.C. 617-560, father of Croesus.

Ălymon, ōnis, m. ['Ἀλύμων], the father of Iphimedia.

Alyzēa (-zĭa), ae, f. a town of Acarnania with a temple of Hercules.

am-. See ambi.

(1) āmă, ae, f. [ἄμη], a pail, water-bucket, fire-bucket.

(2) āmā, imperat. from amo.

āmābĭlis, e, adj. [amo], 1. lovable, worthy of love, lovely; pleasing, attractive, agreeable, delicious (of persons or things). 2. tender, loving: murmur, Ov. Compar. amabilior, superl. amabilissimus.

ămābĭlĭtĕr, adv. [amabilis], 1. lovingly. 2. delightfully, agreeably. Compar. amabilius.

ămābo, fut. of amo, used as interj., prithee ; do, please ; an you love me. (Ellipt.='amabo te si facias quod volo.')

Ămălthēa, ae(-ēē, ēă), f. [Ἀμάλθεια], 1. a daughter of Melissus, king of Crete, and nurse of Zeus (Iuppiter). Another legend makes A. the goat with the milk of which Zeus was fed. One of its horns having been broken off, Zeus placed it amongst the stars as the 'Cornu copiae,' the emblem of plenty. 2. a Cumaean sibyl. 3. Ămălthēa, ae, f. (-um, i, n.), a gymnasium or library in Atticus' villa in Epirus; and Cicero built a similar one at Arpinum.

ămandātĭo, ōnis, f. [amando], a sending out of the way.

(1) ămando, dat. or abl. gerund. from amo.

(2) ā-mando, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. send out of the way on commission, send to the right-about, cashier.

Ămānĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amanus : Amānĭcae Pylae, f. pl. the passes of Amanus.

Ămānĭensis, e, adj. of Amanus. As subst. Ămānienses, ĭum, m. pl. the mountaineers of Amanus.

ămans, ntis, part. from amo ; 1. as adj., with gen. fond of, attached to. Also absol., fond, loving, affectionate. Compar. amantior ; superl. amantissimus. 2. as subst. ămans, ntis, m. f. a lover.

ămantĕr, adv. [amans], lovingly. Compar. amantius ; superl. amantissime.

Ămantĭa, ae, f. a Greek town and district in Illyricum.

Ămantĭānus (-tīnus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amantia.

ămānŭensis, is, m. [a manu (servus)], a clerk, secretary.

Ămānus, i, m. a branch of M. Taurus, between Syria and Cilicia.

ămărācĭnus, a, um, adj. [amaracus], of or belonging to marjoram. As subst. ămărācĭnum, i, n. (i.e. unguentum), perfume of marjoram.

‡ ămărăcus, i, m. f. (-um, i, n.), [ἀμάρακος, -ον], sweet marjoram.

‡ ămărantus, i, m. [ἀμάραντος, unfading], the amaranth, a purple everlasting flower ; probably, the coxcomb, or 'Love-lies-bleeding.'

(1) ămārē, inf. pres. active from amo.

(2) ămārĕ, adv. [amarus], bitterly. Compar. amarius ; superl. amarissime.

ămārim, ămārunt, for ămāverim, ămāvērunt.

ămārĭtĭēs, ēī, f. [id.], bitterness.

ămārĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [id.], bitterness, pungency.

ămāror, ōris, m. [id.], a bitter taste or flavour, bitterness (poet.).

ămarus, a, um, adj. [cf. ὠμός, raw], I. 1. bitter to the taste (opp. to dulcis) ; nauseous, brackish ; piquant. 2. (of sound) rough, shrill. 3. (of smell) unpleasant, disagreeable. II. (fig.) 1. bitter, unpleasant, painful, calamitous : curarum amara (poet.)=amaras curas. As subst. ămārā, ōrum, n. pl. bitterness, annoyances. 2. ill-natured, crabbed, caustic, spiteful, malevolent. Compar. amarior ; superl. amarissimus.

Ămărўllĭs, ĭdis (ĭdŏs), f. (acc. Amaryllida, voc. Amaryll)[Ἀμαρυλλίς], the name of a shepherdess.

Ămărўnthus, i, m. a town in Euboea with a temple of Artemis (Diana) ; hence called Amaryuthia.

Ămāsēnus, i, m. a small river of Latium.

ămāsĭo, ōnis, (L.L.), and ămāsius, ii (O.L.) m. [amo], a lover.

Ămāsis, is, m. a king of Egypt, B.C. 570-526.

ămasse, ămasti, for amavisse, amavisti.

Ămastrĭācus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amastris, i.

Ămastrĭs, ĭdis, f. 1. a town of Paphlagonia, on the Euxine, called after Amastris, niece of Darius. 2. the wife of Xerxes.

Ămāta, ae, f. [amatus], the wife of King Latinus, and mother of Lavinia.

Ămăthūs, untis, f. (acc. Amathunta), [Ἀμαθοῦς], a town on the S. coast of Cyprus, now Limisso, sacred to Aphrodite (Venus) ; hence called Amathusia.

Ămăthūsĭācus, a, um, adj. See Amathusius.

Ămăthūsĭās, ădis, f. patron. [Amathus], an Amathusian woman (or goddess). Sts.=adj.

Ămăthūsĭus (-sĭăcus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amathus ; hence, Amathusia, a title of Venus, who was worshipped there.

ămātor, ōris, m. [amo], 1. a lover, wooer, admirer. 2. a gallant, paramour.

ămātōrĭē, adv. [amatorius], amorously.

ămātōrĭus, a, um, adj. [amator], amorous, amatory, erotic. As subst. ămātōrĭum, ii, n. a love-potion, philtre.

ămātrix, ĭcis, f. [id.], a female lover, mistress, leman. Poet. in apposition = adj. love-exciting, amorous : aquae, Mart.

ămātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from amo.

Ămazon, ŏnis, f. [Ἀμαζών], I. an Amazon. The Amazons (Ămāzŏnēs, um, f. pl.) were female warriors who dwelt on the river Thermodon, in Cappadocia. II. (meton.) a female warrior, heroine, Ov.

Ămāzŏnĭcus, a, um, adj.=Amazonius.

Ămāzŏnĭs, ĭdis, f. 1. an Amazon. Pl. Ămāzŏnĭdēs, um. 2. the title of a poem, Mart.

Ămāzŏnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to an Amazon, Amazonian : vir, i.e. Hippolytus, son of Theseus by one of the Amazons.

amb-. See ambi.

ambactus, i, m. [Celtic ambaig, lead or drive round one], a dependant, retainer, vassal.

ambāges, is, f. (sing. only in abl. ; complete in pl. ambāges, um), [ambi ; ago], I. a going round about, a circuit, winding. II. (fig.) 1. (of speech) circumlocution, rigmarole, digression, palaver ; missis ambagibus, without beating about the bush, directly, coming straight to the point. 2. ambiguity, obscurity ; a dark hint or saying, riddle, obscure oracle, mystery : per ambages, enigmatically, symbolically.

ambāgo, gĭnis, f. (rare)=ambages.

Ambarri, ōrum, m. pl. a people of Gaul, a branch of the Aedui, who lived on the Arar.

amb-arvālis, e, adj. [ambi ; arvum], that goes around the fields. The Ambarvalia, to propitiate the favour of Ceres, Bacchus, and the Nymphs, were celebrated in the spring. For description, see Tibull. ii. 1, and cf. Arvalis.

amb-ēdo, ēre, ēdi, ēsum, trans. v. 1. eat or gnaw round, nibble, eat. 2. (of the action of fire) char, devour.

ambēsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ambedo.

ambi- (amb-, am-, an-), prep. in composition only, [cf. ἀμφί], around, round about, on both sides.

Ambiāni, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe of Gallia Belgica ; chief town Samarobriva, now Amiens Ambĭbārī, ōrum, m. pl. a small tribe of Gallia Celtica.

ambĭbat, for ambiebat, 3d sing. imperf. ambio.

amb-īgo, ĕre, intrans. v. [agol. I. (fig.) 1. be in doubt or undecided, hesitate, waver. 2. debate, argue, wrangle. Pass. impers. ambĭgĭtur, it is a question ; there is a dispute ; the point at issue is. II. (trans. ; but probably wrongly for ambiens) go round about, make a detour, Tac.

ambĭgŭē, adv. [ambiguus], ambiguously, obscurely, indecisively ; pugnare, to fight with doubtful success.

ambĭgŭĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], ambiguity, uncertainty ; a double sense or meaning.

ambĭgŭus, a, um, adj. [ambigo], 1. doubtful, uncertain : favor, i.e. impartial good offices. 2. of doubtful nature or origin, double : virtus (of a boy), i.e. girlish ; Salamis, of doubtful name, i.e. as to which was the true one ; Proteus, of more forms than one, ever-changing. 3. ambiguous, dark, obscure, perplexing. As subst. ambĭgŭum, i, n. an obscure, dark saying. 4. uncertain, doubtful. As subst. ambĭgŭum, i, n. doubt, uncertainty : in ambiguo servare, to keep doubtful. 5. undecided, wavering : in Tac. with gen. ; imperandi, hesitating about being emperor ; pudoris ac metus, vacillating between shame and fear ; vitae, hovering between life and death.

6. untrustworthy, dangerous; fickle, fluctuating, changeable.

Ambiliāti, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe of Gallia Belgica.

amb-īo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. v. [eo; the only compound of eo regularly inflected as an I-verb], 1. go round or about, make a tour of, visit, frequent. 2. surround, encompass, encircle. 3. (techn. t. of candidates for office) solicit votes, canvass. 4. beset, curry favour with, court, sue; solicit, ask for, entreat: with ut or nē, Suet.; with infin., Tac. 5. get round a person, win over.

Ambiōrīx, ĭgis, m. a chief of the Eburones in Gallia Belgica.

ambītio, ōnis, f. [ambio], 1. (of candidates for office) a canvassing for office (by regular means, as opp. to ambitus, corrupt practices), electioneering. 2. a currying of favour, a desire to court popularity; complaisance; adulation, flunkeyism, intrigue, political jobbery. 3. aiming at effect (with a view to advancement), parade, self-seeking, ostentation, vanity. 4. the round of social duties, etiquette, formality. 5. party spirit, undue favour, partiality.

ambītiōsē, adv. [ambitiosus], ambitiously; with a view to effect, ostentatiously; in an intriguing or ingratiating manner. Compar. ambitiosius; superl. ambitiosissime.

ambītiōsus, a, um, adj. [ambitio], 1. winding, closely-clinging, twining; amnis, hedera. 2. popularity-hunting, currying favour, desirous to please; complaisant, fawning. 3. desirous of gaining a special end, solicitous: preces, i.e. importunate, earnest. 4. honour-loving, ambitious; eager for notice or applause; fond of showing off, ostentatious, pretentious, vainglorious: ornamenta, intended for effect. 4. (poet.) exciting ambition, much sought after, Ov. Compar. ambitiosior.

(1) ambītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ambio.

(2) ambītus, ūs, m. [ambio], 1. a going about or round; a revolution, cycle; a meandering, winding course (of a river, etc.); (fig.) verborum, a circumlocution, periphrasis; a period. 2. a circumference, circle, circuit, border. 3. a canvassing for office by unlawful means, corrupt practices, bribery. 4. eagerness for display, ostentation, parade; (of speech), pomposity, bombast.

(1) Ambīvarēti (Ambil-), ōrum, m. pl. a tribe of Gallia Celtica, vassals of the Aedui.

(2) Ambivarēti, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe of Gallia Belgica, on the W. of the Meuse.

Ambīvius, ĭi, m. L. Turpio Ambivius, an actor in the time of Cato and Terence, in whose plays he acted.

ambo, bae, bo, num. adj. [cf. ἀμφω], 1. both. 2. (poet.)=duo, two. [Acc. pl. ambos or -o, ambas or -o; dat. abl. ambōbus, ābus, ōbus.]

Ambrăcĭa, ae, f. [Ἀμβρακία], a town of Epirus on the Ambracian Gulf, now Arta.

Ambrăcĭensis, e, adj.=Ambracius.

Ambrăcĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ambracia, Ambracian: Sinus (now the Gulf of Arta), a gulf of the Ionian Sea between Epirus and Acarnania, on which Augustus gained a naval victory over Antony and Cleopatra, B.C. 31.

Ambrōnes, um, m. pl. a Celtic tribe defeated by Sextus Marius near Aquae Sextiae, B.C. 102.

‡ ambrōsĭa, ae, f. [ἀμβροσία], ambrosia, the food and perfume of the gods; an 'elixir of life.'

‡ ambrōsĭus, a, um, adj. [ἀμβρόσιος, immortal], 1. ambrosial, divine, divinely beautiful. II. (meton. poet.) sweet as ambrosia, delightful, delicious.

ambūbaia, ae, f. (quadrisyll.), [Syriac ambub or ahbub = tibia], a flute-girl, ballad-singer, nautch-girl.

ambūlātĭo, ōnis, f. [ambulo], I. the act of walking, a walk. II. (meton.) a place for walking, a promenade.

ambūlātiuncŭla, ae, f. dim. [ambulatio], I. a short walk, a stroll. II. a small place for walking; a lobby, corridor.

ambūlātor, ōris, m. [ambulo], 1. a walker, lounger, slow-coach. 2. a tramp, colporteur, hawker, pedlar, Mart.

ambūlātōrius, a, um, adj. [ambulator], moveable: turris.

ambūlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. [amb- with suff. -ŭlo], 1. walk, take a walk; stroll, lounge; strut up and down, swagger. 2. travel, journey: bene ambulato, farewell! 'bon voyage!' ambula, begone! off with you! 3. (poet. with cogn. acc.) pass or travel over, traverse, Cic., Ov.

amb-ūro, ūre, ussi, ustum, trans. v. I. burn all round, burn, scorch, char, singe. II. nip with cold, benumb, Tac. III. (fig.) prope ambustus evadere, of one who gets out of a scrape with difficulty, who has just 'saved his bacon.'

ambustus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from amburo.

ămellus, i, m. the purple Italian starwort or aster.

(1) Ămĕnānus, i, m. a small stream near Catana in Sicily.

(2) Ămēnānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the river Amenanus.

ā-mens, ntis, adj. 1. out of one's senses, beside one's self, distracted, mad: (with locat.) animi, frantic in spirit. 2. (poet.) unconscious, fainting, Ov. 3. foolish, stupid, senseless, infatuated. Compar. amentior; superl. amentissimus.

āmentātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from amento.

āmentĭa, ae, f. [amens], 1. a bewildered state of mind, derangement, madness, distraction, rage. 2. senselessness, folly. 3. (abstr. =concr.), a crack-brained fellow, a madcap.

āmento, āre, āvi, ātum, [amentum], trans. v. 1. furnish with a strap or thong: hastae amentatae i.e. ready for use. 2. hurl a spear by the aid of a thong, Luc. 3. (poet.) impel, drive forward, Sil. Ital.

āmentum, i, n. [? api-mentum, a fitting; cf. aptus], 1. a strap or thong fastened to the shaft of a spear or javelin in order to give it greater impetus when thrown (Rich, Dict. Ant.). 2. a shoe-strap, boot-lace.

Āmĕria, ae, f. an ancient town in Umbria, and a municipium, now Amelia.

Āmĕrīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ameria: retinacula vine-bands of Amerian or Sabine willow. As subst. Āmĕrīna, ōrum, n. pl. (i.e. poma), Amerian fruits.

āmĕs, ĭtis, m. 1. a pole for supporting a clap-net. 2. a horizontal pole used in making a corral. 3. in pl. the shafts of a sedan chair.

Āmestrātus, i, m. a town near the N. coast of Sicily, now Mistretta.

Āmestrātinus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amestratus. As subst. Amestrātini, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Amestratus.

āmēthystĭnātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part., wearing a lacerna of amethyst colour; clad in violet or mauve.

āmēthystĭnus, a, um, adj. [amethystus], I. of amethyst colour; violet, blue, or mauve. As subst. āmēthystĭna, ōrum, n. pl. (i.e. vestimenta), violet-coloured clothes. II. made of or set with amethyst, Mart.

‡ āmēthystus, i, f. [ἀμέθυστος], an amethyst, a precious stone of a violet colour.

amfractus, ūs, m. See anfractus.

āmĭca, ae, f. [amicus], a female friend, mistress, sweetheart.

āmĭcē, adv. [id.], 1. in a friendly way, kindly. 2. agreeably, cheerfully. Compar. amicius; superl. amicissime.

ăm-ĭcio, īre, cŭi (ixi), ictum, trans. v. [iacio]. I. throw or wrap round, clothe. II. (meton.) wrap, cover, conceal.

āmĭcĭtĭa, ae (-ēs, ēi, Lucr.) f. [amicus], I. friendship. II. (meton.) (abstr.=concr.) friends (cf. barbaria), Suet., Tac. III. a league, alliance: venisse Germanis in amicitiam, that they had formed alliances with the Germans.

āmĭco, āre, trans. v. [amicus], make friendly, propitiate.

(1) āmictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from amicio.

(2) āmictus, ūs, m. [amicio], I. any article of outer clothing, a cloak, wrapper, mantle, robe; sts. a shroud, veil: caeli, the atmosphere that wraps us round. II. a style or fashion of wearing the toga; toilet, costume.

āmĭcŭla, ae, f. dim. [amicus], a pet female friend or mistress.

āmĭcŭlum, ī, n. [amicio], a mantle, cloak, wrapper.

āmĭcŭlus, ī, m. dim. [amicus], a dear little friend.

(1) āmĭcus, a, um, adj. [amo], I. friendly, kindly, favourable. II. taking pleasure in, fond of : amica luto sus. III. dear, agreeable, welcome : amico animo dare, to give to one's own dear heart, i.e. to self-indulgence; amicum est mihi, it is my pleasure. Compar. amicior; superl. amicissimus.

(2) āmĭcus, ī, (contr. gen. pl. amicûm, Ter.), m. [id.], a friend : aliquo utor amico, I enjoy a person's friendship, have for my friend. 2. a patron. 3. a comrade, mate. 4. a friend of the state, ally. 5. (under the empire) a courtier, cabinet minister, Nep.

ā-migro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. set out, take one's departure : (with acc. of place whither) Romam.

Āmĭlcar, ăris, m. See Hamilcar.

Āminnaeus (Āmĭnēus), a, um, adj. Aminnaean : vitis, a choice species of vine introduced into Italy by a colony from Aminna in Thessaly, who settled near Paestum.

Āmĭsēnus, a, um, adj. of Amisus. As subst. Āmĭsēni, ōrum, m. pl. the people of Amisus.

Āmĭsĭa, ae, f. (-us, ĭi, m.), a river in Germany, now the Ems.

āmissio, ōnis, f. [amitto], a losing, loss.

(1) āmissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from amitto.

(2) āmissus, ūs, m. a loss, Nep.

āmĭsti, amisisti, poet. contr.-2d sing. perf. act. amitto.

Āmisus, ī, f. [Ἀμισός], a town of Pontus, on the Euxine.

āmĭta, ae, f. an aunt on the father's side : magna, a great-aunt; major, a great-great-aunt.

Āmĭternīnus, a, um, adj. of Amiternum.

Āmĭternum, ī, n. an old Sabine town, now S. Vittorino, on the river Aternus. It was the birthplace of Sallust.

Āmĭternus, a, um, adj. (poet.)= Amiterninus.

āmĭtīnus, a, um, adj. descended from a father's sister. As subst. āmĭtīnus, ī, m. (i.e. frater), and āmĭtīna, ae, f. (i.e. soror), a first cousin on the father's side.

ā-mitto, ĕre, mīsi, missum, trans. v. send away, let go, let slip ; drop, part with, lose : fidem, break one's faith, forfeit one's word.

ammiror, ammīrto. See admiror.

‡ ammŏdȳtēs, ae, m. [ἀμμοδύτης], the sand-burrower, a kind of serpent in Africa.

Ammōn, Ammōnĭăcus. See Hammon.

‡ amnestīa, ae, f. [ἀμνηστία], an 'Act of Oblivion,' pardoning of a state crime, amnesty.

amnĭ-cōla, ae, c. [amnis ; colo], that haunts or grows by the side of rivers (poet.).

amnĭcŭlus, ī, m. dim. [amnis], a small stream, rivulet.

amnĭ-gĕna, ae, c. [amnis ; gigno, gen-ui], river-born.

amnis, is, m. (abl. sing. amne or amni), a large stream, river : secundo amni, down the stream ; adverso amne, up or against the stream. 2. (poet.) the ocean stream, the sea. 3. (poet. meton.) river-water, water.

amo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. love, take pleasure in, like : pueri amant inter se, love each other. In phrases : amabo (te), prithee, please do ; ita me di ament, so may the gods love me, so help me heaven! di te ament, heaven bless you! amare seipsum, to be selfish ; amare aliquem de or in aliqua re, to be much obliged to a person for something. 2. (poet.) keep close to : litus, hug the shore ; amat ianua limen, i.e. is seldom opened. 3. (poet. or post-Aug. cf. φιλέω), am wont, accustomed (with inf.); also=στέργω, acquiesce in, be content : hic magnos potius triumphos, hic ames dici pater atque princeps, Hor. 4. regard with affection, sympathy : brevem titulum marmoris huius ama, Mart.

‡ āmoebaeus, a, um, adj. [ἀμοιβαῖος], alternate : carmen, an antiphon, a song in which two singers are engaged, the second replying to the first in the same metre and with the same number of verses ; cf. our 'capping verses,' Virg. Ect. iii., and Hor. C. iii. 9, are examples.

Āmoebeus (trisyll.), ĕi, m. [Ἀμοιβεύς], an Athenian harpist.

āmoenē, adv. [amoenus], agreeably, pleasantly.

āmoenĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. agreeableness, pleasantness, delightfulness, charm (properly of scenery, landscapes, etc.) ; sts. beautiful scenery. II. (fig.) 1. of things generally : vitae, i.e. a voluptuous, self-indulgent style of life, Tac. 2. as a term of endearment ; darling, charmer, Plaut.

āmoenus, a, um, adj. [? amo], I. pleasant to the eye, picturesque, smiling, charming, lovely, delightful, agreeable (of scenery, etc.). As subst. amoena, ōrum, n. pl. (i.e. loca), delightful spots. II. (of other things) luxurious, easy-going, self-indulgent : vita, Tac. III. attractive, prepossessing ; showy, fascinating.

āmōlior, īri, ītus sum, dep. I. remove with effort, take off, clear away. II. (fig.) 1. put away, avert, repel ; palliate, extenuate. 2. put on one side, lay no stress upon. 3. refute, rebut.

āmōlītus, a, um, perf. part. from amolior.

‡ āmōmum (-on), ī, n. [ἄμωμον], amomum, an Indian spice-plant, from which a costly perfume was made ; Syrian balsam.

āmor (-os, O.L.), ōris, m. [amo], I. love, passion, desire ; often with prepp. in, erga, obj. gen., or (poet.) inf. II. 1. a loved object, darling ; so more freq. in pl. 2. in pl. (poet.) grounds for loving, charms. 3. (once only) a love-charm, philtre, Virg. III. (fig.) a longing for something, eager desire, yearning, lust. IV. the God of love, Love, Cupid ; in pl. the Loves, the Cupids.

Āmorgŏs (-us), ī, f. one of the Sporades Insulae in the Aegean, a place of exile under the Roman Emperors, and birthplace of Simonides.

āmos. See amor.

āmōtĭo, ōnis, f. [amoveo], a removing.

āmōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from amoveo.

ā-mŏvĕo, ēre, mōvi, mōtum, trans. v. 1. put aside or away, remove, withdraw : se, i.e. retire, be off. 2. carry off, steal, make away with. 3. get rid of, cast off ; banish.

Ampĕlos, ī, m. (Gk. acc. Ampelon), [Ἄμπελος, Vine], a youth beloved by Bacchus.

Amphiărāēus (-ŭs), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amphiaraus.

Amphiărāĭdēs, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Amphiaraus ; esp. his son Alcmaeon.

Amphiărāus, ī, m. [Ἀμφιάραος], a Greek seer, one of the seven chiefs who joined Adrastus against Thebes. See Eriphyle. He and his chariot were swallowed up in the earth, and after death he was worshipped as a hero.

‡ Amphictȳŏnēs, um, m. pl. [Ἀμφικτύονες], the deputies of the confederate Hellenic states which met in congress at Delphi in the spring, and later in the year at Thermopylae. See Dict. Ant.

Amphīdămas, ntis, m. [Ἀμφιδάμας], one of the Argonauts.

Amphĭlŏchi, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Amphilochia.

Amphĭlŏchĭa, ae, f. [Ἀμφιλοχία], a district of Acarnania.

Amphĭlŏchĭcus (-lŏchĭus), a, um, adj. Amphilochian.

Amphĭlŏchus, ī, m. [Ἀμφίλοχος], a son of Amphiaraus and Eriphyle, one of the Epigoni.

Amphimēdōn, ontis, m. [Ἀμφιμέδων], a Libyan slain by Perseus.

Amphīōn, ōnis, m. [Ἀμφίων], a son of Zeus (Iuppiter) and Antiope, and husband of Niobe, fabled to have built the walls of Thebes (hence called Amphionis arces) by the magic strains of his lyre. He killed himself for grief at the death of his children.

Amphīōnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amphion.

Amphĭpŏlis, is, f. [Ἀμφίπολις], a town in Macedonia, on the Strymon.

‡ amphisbaena, ae, f. [ἀμφίσβαινα], a serpent which can move backwards or forwards, with a head at each end.

Amphissa, ae, f. 1. one of the chief towns of the Locri Ozolae, on the borders of Phocis. 2. a promontory of Locri Epizephyrii, in Lower Italy.

Amphissius, a, um, adj. of Amphissa, 2: saxa, Ov.

Amphissos (-us), i, m. a son of Apollo and Dryope.

amphithēātrālis, e, adj. [amphitheatrum], of or belonging to the amphitheatre: magistri, superintendents of the baiting of wild beasts in the amphitheatre.

‡ amphithĕātrum, i, n. [ἀμφιθέατρον], an amphitheatre; a circular or oval building, furnished in the interior with successive tiers of seats which commanded a view of the whole arena. Used for gladiatorial shows and other public spectacles. See Rich, Dict. Ant.

Amphitrītē, ēs, f. [Ἀμφιτρίτη], I. the wife of Poseidon (Neptune), and goddess of the sea. II. (poet. meton.) the sea.

Amphitrŭo (-ŭo or -ōn), ōnis, m. [Ἀμφιτρύων], 1. a king of Thebes, and husband of Alcmene. 2. the title of a comedy of Plautus.

Amphitryŏniădēs, æ, m. patron. a descendant of Amphitryon; esp. Hercules, his reputed son.

amphŏra, æ, f. (gen. pl. amphorum, when used with numerals), [ἀμφορεύς], 1. an amphora, a large earthenware vessel with a handle on each side of the neck, and pointed at the bottom, used for storing wine, etc. 2 a measure for liquids; cf. quadrantal. See App. D, (c). 3. the measure of a ship's capacity, like our tonnage.

Amphrȳsius (-siăcus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Amphrysus. The Sibyl is called Amphrysia vates as being inspired by Apollo. See Amphrysus.

Amphrȳsŏs (-us), i, m. [Ἀμφρυσός], a river of Thessaly on the banks of which Apollo (pastor ab Amphryso) tended the flocks of Admetus.

amplē, adv. [amplus], 1. abundantly, copiously, fully, richly. 2. on a large scale, generously, handsomely, in good style. Compar. amplius (cf. amplius); superl. amplissime.

am-plector, i, plexus sum, dep. I. embrace, encircle, fold, clasp; extend one's grasp to, swoop up: aut victoriā amplexus est aut bello, i.e. nothing escaped his clutches. II. (fig.) 1. include, comprise, enclose. 2. embrace with the mind, comprehend, grasp; consider carefully. 3. treat of, handle (a subject). 4. caress, court, cherish: se, hug one's-self, be self-satisfied, pique one's-self.

amplexo, āre, freq. v. [amplecto], embrace.

amplexor, āri, ātus sum, freq. dep. [amplector], embrace, cherish, be attached to.

(1) amplexus, a, um, perf. part. from amplector.

(2) amplexus, ūs, m. [amplector], 1. an encircling, embrace, caress. 2. a girding, winding, fold, coil.

amplĭfĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [amplifico], 1. an extension, enlargement, increase, development. 2. (rhet. techn. t.) an exaggerated description, over-statement.

amplĭfĭcātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who enlarges or amplifies.

amplĭfĭcē, adv. [amplificus], splendidly, royally amplĭfĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, [amplus; facio], trans. v. 1. extend, enlarge, increase, develop. 2. (rhet. techn. t.) enlarge or dilate upon, expand, set off, give consequence to.

amplĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [amplus], trans. v. 1. increase, enlarge, augment, strengthen. 2. ennoble, enhance. 3. (judicial techn. t.) delay judgment, adjourn, defer. Cf. amplius, 3, and see Dict. Ant. ampliatio. Also with acc. of person, adjourn a person's trial or business.

amplĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [id.], I. wide extent, width, bulk, size. II. (fig.) 1. greatness, magnificence, grandeur: animi, rerum gestarum. 2. importance, dignity, status, consequence. III. (rhet. techn. t.) copiousness of expression, richness, fulness.

amplius, compar. adv. [id.], I. more, longer, further, again, besides, in addition (of time, quantity, number, and action); with numerals and numeral forms often=amplius quam: amplius ducenti ceciderunt, Livy; noctem non amplius unam, one only, Virg. II. in phrases: nihil amplius dico (dicam), I say no more, i.e. I leave others to argue the case for consideration; hoc (eo) amplius, furthermore, besides; (elliptical) nihil amplius, that is all; si nihil amplius, if I can do nothing else, at least . . . III. (judicial techn. t.) (a) a legal formula, when the judices adjourned a case for further consideration; cf. amplio 3, ut de Philodamo amplius pronuntiaretur, Cic.; (b) in the phrase amplius non petere, bring no further action, waive any further claim; (c) hoc amplius (=accedit a new motion), I move as an amendment or rider.

amplus, a, um, adj. [ambulus, with change of b for p; Roby, vol. i. § 857], I. large on both sides, full all round; wide, spacious, extensive, roomy. II. (meton.) 1. abundant, full, ample, great. Amplius, neut. with partitive gen. negotii, more or additional embarrassment. III. (fig.) 1. great in effect, extent, or degree; mighty, powerful, violent, stringent. 2. splendid, glorious, grand, distinguished, renowned, eminent, fine, honourable, illustrious; verbis amplissimis gratias agere, to thank in the most complimentary terms. Hence, in superl. amplissimus (as a title of senators, government officials, etc.), worshipful, most honourable: honos, i.e. the consulship; ordo, i.e. the senate; so nomen amplissimum, i.e. senatorium; amplissimi ordines, i.e. the senate and the knights; collegium decemvirale, etc. IV. (rhet.) copious and dignified in speech, imposing, stately. Compar. amplior; superl. amplissimus.

Amp-sanctus (Am-), i, m. [ambsanctus, warded round], a mephitic lake in Samnium, now Lago d'Ansante, fabled as one of the entrances to the lower world.

ampulla, æ, f. [amb-olla, or (?) for amphorula, dim. of amphora], I. 1. a vessel for liquids, swelling out below the neck; a flask, bottle, jar, cruet, a carafe; sts. made of leather. 2. a vase for holding pigments or unguents; a paint-pot. II. (meton.) swelling words, bombast (cf. Gk. λήκυθος), or, rhetorical ornaments, dashes of colour, mannerisms.

ampullor, āri, ātus sum, [ampulla], intrans. dep. lit. swell like an ampulla, q.v. use bombast, mouth, rant (cf. Gk. ληκυθίζω), or, lay on dashes of colour, i.e. rhetorical ornament, Wilkins, Hor. Epp. i. 3. 14.

am-pŭtātio, ōnis, f. [amputo], a lopping off or pruning.

ampŭto, āre, āvi, ātum, I. lop around, trim off, prune, shape. II. (fig.) cut off, cut short, mutilate, curtail, diminish, reduce, abridge.

Ampўcĭdēs, æ, m. patron. [Ampycus (Ampyx)], a son or descendant of Ampycus or Ampyx; esp. the seer Mopsus.

Ampўcus, i, m. a son of Pelias and father of the seer Mopsus.

Ampyx, ўcis, m. [Ἄμπυξ], 1. one of the Lapithae. 2. a companion of Phineus.

Amsanctus, i. See Ampsanctus.

Āmŭlĭus, ŭ, m. a son of Procas, king of Alba; he dethroned his brother Numitor, and ordered his grandsons Romulus and Remus to be thrown into the Tiber.

āmurca (amurga), æ, f. [ἀμόργη], the lees or dregs of oil.

āmussis, is, f. (acc. sing. amussim, abl. and pl. not in use), [deriv. dub.], a carpenter's rule or measure. In adv. phrase, ad amussim (ămussim), exactly, accurately, according to rule, exactly, accurately.

Ămўclae, ārum (also -ē, ēs), f. [Ἀμύκλαι], I. an ancient town of Laconia on the Eurotas, the birthplace of Castor and Pollux; famed also for a colossal statue of Apollo. II. a town between Anxur and Caieta, claiming to be a colony from the Laconian Amyclae; called 'silent,' either because the inhabitants were forbidden to announce the approach of the enemy, or because it was depopulated by snakes.

Ămўclaeus, a, um, adj. [Amyclae], I. of Amyclae (in Laconia): canis; Amyclaei fratres, i.e. Castor and Pollux; corona, a chaplet won in a boxing-match, since Pollux was the patron of boxing. II. (meton. poet.) Spartan.

Amȳclidēs, æ, m. patron. a descendant of Amyclas, the founder of Amyclæ; esp. Hyacinthus.

Amȳcus, i, m. 1. a son of Poseidon (Neptune), king of the Bebrycians, killed by Pollux in a boxing match. 2. a Trojan. 3. a centaur slain by the Lapithæ.

‡ āmygdălum, i, n. [ἀμύγδαλον], I. an almond-kernel, almond. II. an almond-tree, Colum.

Amȳmōnē, ēs, f. [Ἀμυμώνη], I. one of the fifty daughters of Danaus, and grandmother of Palamedes. II. a fountain in Argolis.

Āmyntas, æ, m. [Ἀμύντας], I. the name of two kings of Macedonia, the latter of whom was the father of the famous Philip. II. the name of a shepherd.

Āmyntiădēs, æ, patron. m. a descendant of Amyntas, i.e. Philip.

Āmyntor, ōris, m. king of the Dolopes, and father of Phœnix.

Āmyntŏrĭdēs, æ, m. patron. a descendant of Amyntor, i.e. Phœnix.

‡ āmystis, ĭdis, f. [ἄμυστις], a way of drinking without taking breath, a draught.

Amȳthāōn, ŏnis, m. [Ἀμυθάων], a Greek, father of the seer Melampus.

Amȳthāŏnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Amythaon; epith. of Melampus.

(1) an-, inseparable prep. See ambi-.

(2) ăn, conj. [deriv. dub.], I. (in disjunctive interrogations) or. (A) direct, (a) preceded by utrum: utrum defenditis an impugnatis plebem? (b) preceded by num: num furis? an prudens ludis me obscura canendo? (c) preceded by -nĕ: pacemnĕ huc fertis, an arma? (d) without introductory particle: sioquar an sileam? (B) indirect, (a) preceded by utrum: =utrum . . . an; quis scit an adiciant hodiernae crastina summae Tempora di superi? (c) sts. omitted: dubitem numeris leviribus sim satis aptus; (d) in phrases, after verbs expressing uncertainty, i.e. nescio an, nescio an, I know not whether, I almost think, i.e. probably; nescio an veniat, perhaps (I am inclined to think that) he is coming; haud scio an nulla beatior sit vita, I am not sure that there is any happier life, I rather think there is no happier life; non saepe, atque haud scio an nunquam, not often, and probably never. In Cic. and the best authors the phrase has an affirmative force; later writers sts. give nescio an a neg. force, I think not. III. (elliptically, almost=nonne, before an apparently single question) or is it that? can it be that? quid dices? an Siciliam tuā virtute liberatam? what will you say? that by your valour S. was freed? (will you say anything else? or . . . i.e. will you not probably say that, etc.). In such cases an either meets an anticipated objection, or implies the absurdity of the supposition involved in the question. IV. (poet.=sive) whether, or: saucius an sanus, numquid tua signa reliqui? V. (a) with -nĕ pleonastic: anne est intus Pamphilus? interrogatur tuia pauca sint anne multa; (b) with non, or not (in direct questions): tibi ego dico an non (annon)?

‡ ănăbathrum, i, n. [ἀνάβαθρον], a row of raised seats or tier of benches.

Ănăces (Ănactes), um, m. pl. [ἀνακτες, ἄναξ], the Kings, an epithet of Castor and Pollux.

Ănăcharsis, is, m. [Ἀνάχαρσις], a famous Scythian, who visited Solon at Athens about B.C. 594.

‡ ănăcŏlūthon, i, n. [ἀνακόλουθος], non-sequence. A figure in syntax by which a sentence begins with one construction and ends with another.

Ănacrĕōn, ontis, m. [Ἀνακρέων], a famous lyric poet of Teos, who flourished about 540-478 B.C.

‡ ănădēmă, ătis, n. [ἀνάδημα], a head-band, fillet, snood.

‡ ănădiplōsis, is (ĕos), f. [ἀναδίπλωσις], reduplication. In syntax, the repetition of a word which ends one sentence at the beginning of another: e.g. addit se sociam timidisque supervenit Aegle, Aegle, Naiadum pulcerrima, etc.

‡ Ănădўŏmĕnē, ēs, f. [ἀναδυομένη], she that emerges], epith. of Venus emerging from the sea, painted by Apelles.

‡ ănăgallis, ĭdis, f. [ἀναγαλλίς], a pimpernel.

‡ ănăglyptus (-phus), a, um, adj. [ἀνάγλυπτος or -φος], wrought or carved in low relief. As subst. ănăglypta, ōrum, n. pl. objects in low relief; a bas-relief in marble, ivory, etc.

Ănagnĭa, æ, f. the chief town of the Hernici, in Latium, now Anagni.

Ănagnīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Anagnia. As subst. Anagninum, i, n. (sc. praedium), an estate near A. belonging to Cicero.

‡ Ănagnōstēs, æ, m. [ἀναγνώστης], 1. a slave whose duty it was to read aloud. 2. one who gave public readings or recitals.

‡ ănălecta, æ, m. [ἀναλέκτης], a slave who cleared off scraps, crumbs, etc., after a meal.

(?) ănălectris, ĭdis, f. [doubtful word; ἀναλέγω (?)], a shoulder-pad or cushion for improving the figure. Cf. analeptris.

‡ ănăleptris, ĭdis, f. [ἀναλῆπτρίς, ἀναλαμβάνω], a bandage or pad for improving the figure.

‡ ănăpaestus, a, um, adj. [ἀνάπαιστος, struck back, reversed]: pes, an anapaest or reversed dactyl (⏑⏑–). As subst. ănăpaestum, i, n. (sc. carmen), a poem in anapaests.

Ănăphē, ēs, f. [Ἀνάφη, ἀνάπτω, kindle], a small volcanic island in the S. of the Aegean, now Namfi or Namfio.

‡ ănăphŏrā, æ, f. [ἀναφορά, a carrying up or back; recurrence, reference]. In syntax, (a) a repetition of the same word at the beginning of successive sentences: e.g. Oceanitides ambae, Ambae auro, pictis incinctae pellibus ambae; (b) the reference of a word to another to which it does not properly belong: e.g. conjuravere pauci, de qua (i.e. coniuratione), etc.

Ănăpis, is (-us, i), m. 1. a river of Acarnania, flowing into the Achelous. 2. a river of Sicily, flowing into the sea S. of Syracuse.

Ănăpus, i, m. See Anapis.

Ănartes, ium (-i, ōrum), a Dacian tribe, N. of the Tibiscus Theiss).

(1) ănās, ātis, f. (gen. pl. anatum), [cf. νῆσσα; Germ. Ente], a duck.

(2) Ănas, æ, m. one of the chief rivers of Spain, now the Guadiana, between Baetica and Lusitania.

ănăticŭla, æ, f. [dim. anas], a little duck, duckling.

ănătīnus, a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to a duck. As subst. ănătīna, æ, f. (sc. caro), duck's flesh, duck.

‡ ănătŏcismus, i, m. [ἀνατοκισμός], compound interest.

Ănaurŏs (-us), i, m. a river of Thessaly.

Ănaxăgŏras, æ, m. [Ἀναξαγόρας], a famous Greek philosopher, born at Clazomenae, 500 B.C. He was the friend and teacher of Pericles and Euripides. Died at Lampsacus, 428 B.C.

Ănaxarchus, i, m. [Ἀνάξαρχος], a philosopher of Abdera, and a follower of Democritus; flourished about 330 B.C.

Ănaxărētē, ēs, f. [Ἀναξαρετή], a maiden of Cyprus, who for disdaining the love of Iphis was changed by Venus into a stone.

Ănaximander, dri, m. [Ἀναξιμανδρος], a philosopher of Miletus, successor of Thales (610-547 B.C.).

Ancaeus, i, m. one of the Argonauts; he was killed by the Calydonian boar.

Ancălites, um, m. pl. a British tribe, placed by some in Berks and Wilts, by others at Henley-on-Thames.

anceps, cipĭtis (abl. sing. ancipiti), adj. [an-, caput], I. two-headed, double-headed; having two sides; two-fold, double: securis, two-edged; mons, double-peaked; bestiae, having two natures, i.e. amphibious; ancipiti mucrone utrinque notare, to mark off on each side by a point (of the stilus) two extremes, one at one, the other at the other end. II. (fig.) 1. doubtful, uncertain; undecided, faltering, wavering: proelium (Mars, pugna), (a) a drawn battle, (b) an action extending in two directions, or maintained against two distinct attacks, (c) an attack in which both infantry and cavalry are employed; tela, missiles hurled from two opposite sides; ius, i.e. the quibbles of law; oraculum, ambiguous; anceps (est), it is a moot point. 2. dangerous, critical, hazardous, perplexing. As subst. anceps, cipitis, n. danger, risk: inter ancipitia, amid scenes of peril, Tac.

Anchārĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Ancharian family.

Anchārĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman family name.

Anchīălē, ēs (-us, i), f. [ἈγχιάλΗ, -ος], 1. a town of Thrace, on the Euxine. 2. a town of Cilicia, W. of the Cydnus.

Anchīsēs, ae, [abl. Anchisā, Virg.], m. [Ἀγχίσης], son of Capys and Themis, father of Aeneas by Aphrodite (Venus). On the capture of Troy he was borne from the flames on Aeneas' shoulders.

Anchīsēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Anchises.

Anchīsiādēs, ae, m. patron. a son or descendant of Anchises; esp. Aeneas.

anchŏra, see anchŏrāle.

ancīle (ŭle), is (gen. pl. ancilorum, Hor.), n. [cf. ἀγκύλος, curved, Gk.=incudille, from ancaedo], I. an oval shield. II. the sacred shield found in the palace of Numa, and supposed to have fallen from heaven. In shape it resembled the figure 8, an oval, with its two sides clipped. See Dict. Ant. and Ov. F. iii. 377 et seq. It was carefully guarded by the Salii under the belief that the safety of the city depended on its preservation. Hence (poet.) in apposition=adj. : clipeis ancilibus, shields of oval form, Luv.

ancilla, ae, f. [dim. ancula; cf. Ancus], a maid-servant, handmaid.

ancillāris, e, adj. [ancilla], of or belonging to maid-servants.

ancillor, āri, ātus sum [id.], dep. traj. wait upon, be subservient to.

ancillŭla, ae, f. dim. [id.], a little maid-servant, waiting-maid, handmaid.

ancisus (amc-), a, um, adj. [prop. part. am-caedo], cut around or away.

(1) Ancōn, ōnis (-a, ae), f. [ἀγκών], an ancient seaport of Picenum, on the Adriatic, lying in a bend of the coast, hence called Ancon (elbow). Founded by the Syracusans, 392 B.C.

(2) Ancōn, ōnis, f. [id.], a headland and bay on the coast of Pontus. Cf. Ancon (1).

ancŏra (anch-), ae, f. [ἄγκυρα], I. an anchor, kedge: iacere, cast anchor; tollere (solvere), weigh anchor; ad ancoram (in ancoris) consistere, lie at anchor. II. (fig.) an anchor, as the symbol of security; refuge, hope, stay.

ancŏrālis (anch-), e, adj. [ancora], of or belonging to an anchor. As subst. ancŏrāle, is, n. 1. a cable, hawser. 2. a buoy-rope.

ancŏrārius (anch-), a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to an anchor: funes, cables.

Ancus (Marcius), ĭi, m. [cf. ἄγκος, ἀγκών. Prop. the bender; Ancus Martius, the crouching servant of Mars], the fourth king of Rome, said to have been the son of Numa's daughter Pompilia.

Ancȳra, ae, f. [Ἄγκυρα], 1. a town of Galatia, now Angora. 2. a town in Phrygia, on the borders of Mysia.

Ancȳrānus, a, um, adj. of Ancyra: Marmor or Monumentum Ancyranum, an inscription on marble placed in the temple of Augustus at Ancyra, 1. being a copy of the tablets at Rome on which Augustus had recorded his deeds.

andăbāta, ae, m. a kind of gladiator who fought blindfolded, or in a helmet with closed visor.

Andĕcāvi (-gāvi), Andĭcāvi, ōrum, m. pl., also Andes, ium, a tribe of Gallia Celtica, N. of the Liger, with a town Andes, also called Juliomagus, now Angers.

Andēnus, a, um, adj. of Andes (2); epith. of Virgil.

(1) Andes, ium, m. pl. See Andecavi.

(2) Andes, is (-es), ium, m. a village near Mantua, the birthplace of Virgil.

Andraemon (-ēmon), ōnis, m. [Ἀνδραίμων], 1. the father of Amphissus by Dryope, changed into a lotus. 2. the father of Thoas, who fought against Troy.

Andrĭa, ae, f. See following.

Andrĭus, a, um, adj. [Andros], of or belonging to Andros. As subst. Andria, ae, f. The Maid of Andros, a comedy of Terence.

Androclēs, is (-clus, ĭ), m. a slave, the story of whose recognition by a lion which had been let loose upon him is well known.

Andrŏgĕōn, ōnis, m. (acc. Andrŏgĕōnā). See Androgeos.

Andrŏgĕōnēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Androgeon.

Andrŏgĕōs (-gĕus), ĭ, (-on, ōnis), m. [Ἀνδρόγεως], the son of Minos and Pasiphae, slain by the Athenians, for which Minos made war on them, and exacted an annual tribute of seven youths and seven maidens.

‡ andrŏgўnus, i, m. [ἀνδρόγυνος], a hermaphrodite.

Andrŏmăchē, ēs (-a, ae), f. [Ἀνδρομάχη], daughter of Eetion, and wife of Hector.

Andrŏmēdă, ae (-ē, ēs), f. [Ἀνδρομέδη], daughter of Cepheus and Cassiope. She was chained to a rock and left to be the prey of a sea-monster, from which she was rescued by Perseus. After her death she was made a constellation.

‡ andrōn, ōnis, m. [ἀνδρών], I. the men's apartments in a Greek house. II. a passage or corridor.

Andrŏnĭcus, i, m. [Ἀνδρόνικος], T. Livius Andronicus, the earliest Roman poet, author of Latin tragedies and comedies. He was originally the slave of M. Livius Salinator. His first drama was acted 240 B.C.

Andrŏs (-us), ĭ, f. [Ἄνδρος], one of the Cyclades, SE. of Euboea, now Andro.

ānellus (ann-), i, m. [dim. annulus], a little ring.

‡ ānēmōnē, ēs, f. [ἀνεμώνη, ἄνεμος], the wind-flower, anemone. For the legend of the flower's origin, see Adonis, and cf. Ov. M. x. 735.

Ānēmūrĭensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Anemurium, a town of Cilicia.

‡ ānēthum, i, n. [ἄνηθον], dill, anise.

anfractus (amf-), ūs, m. [am-; frango; or perhaps amfractus, showing another form of the prefix (ante-in Umbrian)], I. a bending, bend, winding in and out: litorum. II. a winding path, circuitous route. III. (fig.) 1. of style, circumlocution, diffuseness, digression. 2. of legal matters: iudiciorum, the intricacies of legal proceedings.

angelĭus, i, m. [dim. angulus], a minute corner or angle, Lucr.

angīna, ae, f. [cf. ἀγχόνη, ango], the quinsy.

angi-portus, ūs, m. (-um, i, n.), [ango; portus], a narrow or back street, alley, slum, ' cul de sac.'

Angĭtĭa, (Anguit-), ae, f. a sorceress, sister of Medea and Circe, worshipped by the Marsi.

Angli, ōrum, m. pl. a German people on the left bank of the Elbe. In the fifth century they united with the Saxons, and passed over into Britain, called after them Anglia (England, Angle-land).

ango, gĕre, nxi, ctum (anxum), [cf. ἀγχω), trans. v. I. compress, squeeze, press close. II. stifle, throttle, choke. III. (fig.) 1. drive into straits: straighten, press: hac urget lupus, hac canis angit, on one side a wolf attacks, on another a dog worries you (proverbial of a dilemma): angitur undis, is hemmed in. 2. torture, vex, distress, pain: angor animi (locat.), I am vexed at heart, distressed in spirit.

angor, ōris, m. [ango], I. a throttling, strangling; suffocation. (Rare.) II. (fig.) anguish, vexation, distress. (In pl. melancholy.

Angrivarī, ōrum, m. pl. a German people on both sides of the Visurgis (Weser).

anguī-cŏmus, a, um, adj. [anguis; coma], snake-haired, with snaky locks.

anguĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. anguis], a small snake or serpent.

anguĭ-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [anguis; fero], snake or serpent-bearing; producing snakes. As subst. Anguifer, fĕri, m. [=Gk. Ὀφιοῦχος], the constellation Ophiuchus, q.v.

anguĭ-gĕna, æ, c. [anguis; root -GEN-, gigno], snake or dragon born; epith. of the Thebans, who sprang from the dragon's teeth sown by Cadmus.

anguilla, æ, f. [dim. anguis], I. an eel. II. a whip made of eel-skin used in schools.

anguĭ-mānus, a, um, adj. [anguis; manus], snake-handed. Poet. epith. of the elephant, from the flexibility of his trunk. Also as subst. (poet.) for the elephant. (According to Munro, declined like manus.)

anguĭnĕus, a, um, adj. [anguis], of a snake or serpent; snaky.

anguĭnus, a, um, adj.=preceding.

anguĭ-pēs, pĕdis, adj. snake or serpent footed; poet. epith. of the Giants.

anguis, is, c. (abl. sing. angue and -i), [cf. ἔχις], I. 1. a snake, serpent: later usage in herba, prov. of hidden danger. 2. (poet.) the form or nature of a snake: dum non totum occupat anguis, Ov. II. 1. as a constellation (a) of the Snake or Dragon, winding between the two Bears, and round the Lesser Bear; (b) the Hydra, in the joint constellation Anguis, Corvus, Crater; (c) the serpent which Ophiuchus carries. 2. (when painted on a wall, etc.) a sign to commit no nuisance, Pers.; cf. genius, I. 1. 3. a military standard, Claud.

anguĭ-tĕnens, ntis, adj. [anguis, teneo], serpent-holding. As subst. the constellation Ophiuchus, q.v.

Anguĭtĭa, æ. See Angitia.

angŭlātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [angulus], furnished with angles, angular.

angŭlus, i, m. [cf. ἀγκύλος], I. an angle. II. a corner, nook, recess: ista, contemptuously: angulis, holes and corners; angulus iste, that wretched hole.

angustē, adv. [angustus], 1. narrowly, within a narrow range or narrow limits, closely: verbum angustius valet, a word has a narrower meaning; angustē se habere, to be hampered. 2. sparingly, economically, in small quantities. 3. scarcely, hardly, barely. 4. (of style) concisely, without diffuseness: formula angustē scripta, closely worded. Compar. angustius; superl. angustissimē.

angustiæ, ārum, f. pl. [id.], I. 1. narrowness, want of space: itineris; vicorum, etc. 2. a narrow part, pass, or passage, strait, defile. II. (fig.) 1. shortness, brevity, want, deficiency: temporis; spiritūs. 2. want, scarcity: pecuniae; sts. absolutely, poverty, indigence. 3. difficulties, straits, perplexity, embarrassment. 4. (of disposition) narrowness, meanness, paltriness. 5. (of argument) straits, dilemmas. 6. (of style) brevity, conciseness.

angustī-clāvĭus, a, um, adj. [angustus, clavus], wearing a narrow stripe (of purple). It was worn upon the tunic as a badge of the equestrian order. Cf. laticlavius.

angusto, āre, āvī, ātum, [angustus], trans. v. make narrow, straighten, contract, confine; choke, block up.

angustus, a, um, adj. [ango], I. drawn tight or close: habenae, Tibull. II. narrow, close, contracted, cramped, limited, small: montes, i.e. having a narrow ridge; hence, not sloping, coming close to the shore and rising steep from it; or, mountains that closely skirt and hem the sea in, Caes. B.G. iv. 23, angustum (i. e. in angusto conclusum) se explicat, Iuv. (Mayor). As subst. angustum, i, n. narrowness; a narrow place: angusta viarum, the narrow streets; (fig.) in angustum concludere, adducere, etc., to bring or confine within a narrow pale or compass; restrain, moderate. III. (fig.) 1. short, brief: dies. 2. (of a perfume) slight, faint. 3. (of means) scanty, needy, cramping, pinching: pauperies, Hor.; res angusta, Iuv.; domus, humble, Tac. 4. (of time) short, difficult. 5. critical, difficult: rebus angustis, in the straits of fortune, in the hour of peril. As subst. angustum, i, n. a difficulty, desperate or critical condition, awkward position, strait, crisis, danger: res in angusto matters have reached a crisis, the position is critical. 6. (of disposition) narrow, petty, mean, paltry. 7. (of style) brief, concise. 8. (of argument) subtle, casuistical. Compar. angustior; superl. angustissimus.

ānhēlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. anhelo.

ānhēlĭtus, ūs, m. [anhelo], I. a breathing hard, panting, respiration: sublimis, i.e. with head erect. Some say, deep-drawn. II. breath, breathing. III. (fig.) a fume, vapour, exhalation.

ānhēlo, āre, āvī, ātum, [an-; ανά, up; halo]; A. intrans. v. I. breathe hard, puff, pant, gasp. II. (fig.) heave, throb. B. trans. v. I. breathe or snort forth, emit by breathing, puff forth, exhale: anhelati ictūs, strokes (of the oars) made by panting rowers. II. (fig.) scelus, Cic.

ānhēlus, a, um, adj. [anhelo], I. out of breath, panting, breathless, gasping, puffing: senes, wheezing, asthmatic. II. (actively) causing to pant, exhausting: cursus. Sts. (poet.) with Gk. gen. of cause: longique laboris anhelos, and panting from the protracted struggle.

ănĭcŭla, æ, f. [dim. anus], a little old woman, crone.

Ănien, ēnis, m. See Anio.

Ănĭēnī-cŏla, æ, m. [Anio; colo], a dweller on the Anio.

Ănĭensis, e, adj. [Anio], of or belonging to the Anio.

(1) Ănĭēnus, i, m. See Anio.

(2) Ănĭēnus, a, um, adj. of the Anio.

Ănĭgrŏs (-us), i, m. a small river of Elis, whose waters had a disagreeable smell.

ănĭlis, e, adj. [anus], of an old woman; old womanish, cronish: ineptiae, old wives' fads; passus, i.e. feeble as an old woman's, Ov.

ănĭlitas, ātis, f. [anilis], old age (of women).

ănĭlĭtĕr, adv. [id.], like an old woman.

ănĭmā, æ, f. (archaic gen. animāī), [cf. animus; ἄνεμος]; A. I. air, wind; a breeze, current of air, blast. II. the air (as an element): semina terrumque animaeque, marisque, etc. III. 1. air inhaled or exhaled; breath: animam continere, to hold the breath; animam recipe, take breath; animae gravitas, offensive breath. 2. vapour, fume, flavour; amphorae, i.e. bouquet. B. I. the vital principle, the breath of life, life; purpurea, the crimson stream of life, Virg.; animam agere, to be at the last gasp, breathe one's last, give up the ghost; animam debere, to owe life (prov. of one over head and ears in debt). II. (metaph.) a creature endowed with life, a living being: animā litandum Argolicā. So we say 'souls' for 'persons.' 2. a disembodied or departed spirit, soul, shade. 3. (as a term of endearment) soul, life: vos, meae carissimae animae; si parvent animae fata superstiti. C. (=animus), the rational soul of man, the mind: animam rationis consiliique participem.

ănĭmābĭlis, e, adj. pro. corrupt for animalis.

ănĭmadversĭo, ōnis, f. [animadverto], 1. observation, notice; attention, consideration; investigation, inquiry. 2. punishment, chastisement. 3. reproof, censure, reprimand: censorum.

ănĭmadversor, ōris, m. [id.], an observer.

ănĭmadverto (-vorto), ĕre, tī, sum [animum adverto; often so written), trans. v. I. 1. give heed or attention to; notice, observe, perceive, consider. Techn. t. of the lictor, who had to take heed that due respect was paid to the consul when he appeared. So, on the consul's appearance, the lictor ordered notice to be taken by the people (animadverti iussit). 2. discern, understand, comprehend. II. 1. punish, censure, reprimand: animadvertenda peccata, crimes worthy of punishment. Often techn. t. of a magistrate (with prep. in and acc. of person), chastise, inflict punish- ment upon: sī in hunc animadvertissem. Sts. by the figure called Litotes, of capital punishment: (impers. pass.) animadversum est in eum, i.e. he was executed. 2. (pass.) to be censurable, offend, Cic.

ănĭmal, ālis, n. (abl. sing. animali), [as if animale, fr. animalis], 1. a living creature, animal. 2. a beast, brute-beast.

ănĭmālis, e, adj. [animal], I. of air, pertaining to air, aërial: natura. II. animate, living: corpora, intelligentia.

ănĭmans, ntis, part. from animo. As adj. having life, animate, living. As subst. m. f. n. a living creature, animate being. In m. only of rational beings.

(1) ănĭmātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from animo. As adj. 1. endowed with a particular temper, disposed, affected, minded. 2. endowed with courage, courageous.

(2) ănĭmātus, ūs, m. [animo], life, animation.

ănĭmo, āre, āvī, ātum [anima], trans. and intrans. v. ; A. (trans.) 1. fill with breath, give life to, quicken, animate. II. (fig.) 1. endow with life; enliven, kindle, revive. 2. endow with a particular temper or disposition, render spirited or enterprising. B. (intrans.) have life; only in part. animans, q. v.

ănĭmōsē, adv. [animosus], in a spirited or enterprising manner, courageously. Compar. animosius; superl. animosissime.

(1) ănĭmōsus, a, um, adj. [animus], 1. full of spirit, courageous, bold: equus, mettlesome; frigus, a quiver of excitement; sta. (poet.) inspired: non sine Dis animosus infans. 2. enterprising, free-hearted, spirited: corruptor, i.e. he would bribe at any cost. 3. proud (on account of something): vobis animosa creatis, proud of having given you birth. Compar. animosior.

(2) ănĭmōsus, a, um, adj. [animal], 1. full of air, airy: Eurus, blowing violently, wild, gusty. 2. full of life, life-like, living, animate (of pictures, statues): signa.

ănĭmŭla, ae, f. [dim. animal], a little life or spirit; a little soul; a frail life.

ănĭmŭlus, i, m. [dim. animus], (only in voc. as a term of endearment), darling!

ănĭmus, i, m. [cf. ἄνεμος], I. the rational soul in man (as opp. to the body, corpus, and the vital principle, anima). II. 1. the mind, intellect, reasoning faculty: cf. animadverso, animadverto; often joined with mens, ratio, etc. : mentem animumque Delius inspirat vates. 2. the memory: omnia fertactas, animum quoque. 3. consciousness: adesse animo. to have one's wits about one, be self-possessed; praesens animus, presence of mind; relinquit animus Sextium, Sextius faints: linqui animo, to swoon away; animo male est (mihi), I feel faint, ill. 4. opinion, judgment: meo animo; ex mei animi sententiā; (a) a formula in oaths or solemn affirmations, upon my conscience, to the best of my belief; (b) according to my heart's desire, to my liking. 5. imagination, fancy: finge animo, picture to yourself. III. 1. the feelings; heart, soul, spirit; disposition, sentiment, inclination, affection, passion: ex animo, from the heart, with a will, sincerely; animum offere alicuius, to wound a person's feelings; bono animo esse in aliquem, to be favourably disposed towards a person; aeger animi (locat.), sick at heart; victus animi (locat.), with resolution conquered. 2. disposition, character, temper: aequus animus, an even mind, calmness, contentedness; aequo animo ferre, to bear with patience or resignation; aequo animo, without apprehension or anxiety. 3. any particular quality or feeling; (a) courage, resolution, ambition, constancy: (so often in pl.) nunc animis opus est; ibo animis contra; tela viris animusque cadunt; bono animo es, be of good heart, cheer up; dant animos plagae, their blows give (the top) new life. 4. pride, arrogance, insolence, superbis. 5. anger, rage, spite, vehemence: quae tibi res animos in me facit?—vince animos iramque tuam. 6. agreeable feeling, delight, pleasure: animi causā, for the sake of amusement; indulgere animis, to indulge one's self without stint. 7. will, inclination, desire, purpose, intention: in animo est, I intend, purpose; fert animus, my inclination prompts me; animum or in animum inducere; cf. induco, II. 4. IV. (of things, plants, etc.) character, disposition, nature: silvestrem animum exuere. V. (as a term of endearment) life, soul: ne crucia te obsecro, anime mi, mi Phaedria.

Ănio (Ănĭēn), ēnis, also Ănĭēnus, i, m. the river Anio, now Teverone, a tributary of the Tiber, noted for its cascades at Tibur (Tivoli).

Ănius, ĭi, m. a son of Apollo, king and priest of Delos.

ann. See adn- or agn-.

Anna, ae, f. the sister of Dido. She fled to Italy, where she was worshipped after death as Anna Perenna.

annālis, e, adj. [annus], I. continuing a year, annual. II. relating to the year or age: lex Villia Annalis, the law passed B.C. 179, which fixed the age at which a Roman citizen might stand for an office of state—for the quaestorship 31, for the aedileship 37, for the praetorship 40, for the consulship 43 years. As subst. annāles, ĭum, m. pl. (sc. libri), less commonly in sing. annālis, is, m. (sc. liber), a chronological record, history; records, annals, chronicles.

annascor. See agnascor.

annē. See (2) an, V.

annellus, i, m. See anellus.

Annĭbal. See Hannibal.

Annĭcĕrĭi, ōrum, m. pl. [Ἀννικέρειοι, the followers of the philosopher Anniceris.

annĭcŭlus, a, um, adj. [annus], a year old, yearling.

anniversārius, a, um, adj. [annus, verto], returning with the year; annual, yearly.

Anno, ōnis. See Hanno.

annon. See (2) an, V.

annōna, ae, f. [annus], I. the year's supply (generally of corn), annual produce. II. 1. means of subsistence, provisions; esp. corn, grain. 2. a supply (of other commodities). III. (meton.) the price of corn, etc. ; hence, 1. market value, price; the market: annonam levare or laxare, to lower the price of corn; (fig.) vilis amicorum est annona bonis ubi quid deest, the price is low, i.e. friends are cheap, when it is good men that want anything. 2. high price, dearness: ob annonae causam.

annōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], full of years; old, aged, ancient.

annōtĭnus, a, um, adj. [id.], of last year, a year old: naves. (Some take annotinae naves (Caes.), provision ships.)

annŭlārius, annulātus, annŭlus. See anularius, etc.

annus, i, m. [deriv. dub. (? an-, am-, a circuit; or from anus (2)), 1. a year: solis, a full year; anno ineunte, at the commencement of the year; pleno anno, at the close of every year. 2. (in adv. phrases) (a) anno, a year ago, last year; in each year, yearly; (b) annum, during a whole year, for a year; (c) ad annum, for the coming year, a year hence; (d) in annum, for a year: prorogare imperium; differre; (e) per annos, year by year; (f) omnibus annis, every year, i.e. always. II. (meton. poet.) 1. a year or season of the year: pomifer annus; nunc formosissimus annus. 2. = anni proventus, the produce of the year, harvest: nec arare terram aut exspectare annum. 3. age, time of life: dum rugis integer annus. III. (political techn. t.) the year of age which one must have attained before standing for a public office; official year: reliquit suum annum seseque in proximum annum transtulit, he went out of his proper year (cf. annalis, II.), and swapped himself into the next.

annŭus, a, um, adj. [annus], 1. lasting a year, a year's. 2. annual, yearly. As subst. annŭa, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. stipendia), an annuity, pension.

‡ ănōmălĭa, ae, f. [ἀνωμαλία], in Gram. irregularity, anomaly.

‡ ănōmălōs (-us), a, um, adj. [ἀνώμαλος], in Gram. not according to rule, irregular, anomalous.

an-quīro, rĕre, quīsīvi, quīsītum [an ; quaero], trans. v. I. seek for on all sides, look carefully for. II. make inquiry, inquire, examine; esp. legal techn. t. (a) make a careful judicial inquiry: de morte alicuius; (b) impeach or accuse a person (with gen. or abl. of the punishment): capitis; capite; pecuniā, Livy.

ansa, ae, f. [cf. χανδάνω], a handle (of any vessel for holding liquid); a door-handle; handle of a rudder; the eye-hole through which the shoe-lace passed; an iron clamp or brace used in masonry; the eye or handle on the top of a steelyard. Prov.: ansam dare, to give one a handle, occasion, or opportunity for doing a thing.

Ansanctus. See Ampsanctus.

ansātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [ansa], furnished with a handle or handles. As subst. ansātus, i, m. (i.e. homo), a man with handles, i.e. with arms akimbo, Plaut.

(1) ansĕr, ĕris, m. [cf. Gk. χήν; Germ. Gans], a gander, goose: Amyclaeus, the swan into which Iuppiter changed himself at Amyclae.

(2) Ansĕr, ĕris, m. a Roman poet of the Augustan age, friend of M. Antonius, and a detractor of Virgil.

Ansĭbarii, ōrum, m. pl. a German tribe on the lower part of the Rhus.

ansŭla, ae, f. [dim. ansa], a small handle or loop.

Antaeus, i, m. [Ἀνταῖος], a Libyan giant slain by Hercules.

Antandrius, a, um, adj. of or from Antandros.

Antandrŏs (-us), i, f. [Ἄνταν-δρος], a town in Mysia at the foot of M. Ida, now Antandro, or S. Dimitri.

antĕ, prep. with acc. and adv. [old form anti or antid; cf. ἀντί]: A. prep. (with acc. 1. before, in front of (of space): ante meum limen. 2. before (of rank, precedence, or time): quem ante me diligo, more than myself; facundiā Graecos, gloriā bellī Gallos ante Romanos fuisse, surpassed, excelled; ante omnia, above all, especially, first of all; ante lucernas, before the candles are lighted, i.e. before nightfall; ante Agamemnona, before the time of Agamemnon; ante me consulem, before my consulship; ante urbem captam, before the taking of the city; ante omnia, condemnamve urbem, before the city was built, or in building; ante tempus, before the proper, legal, or regular time; ante diem (poet.), (a) before the usual time; (b) too soon, prematurely; ante hunc diem, nunquam, never until now. [For ante diem (abbr. a.d.) with an ordinal numeral, e.g. a.d. viii. Kalendas Decembres, see Ap. A, and L.P. App. IV. C.] B. adv. I. 1. before, in front (of space): post me erat Aegina, ante Megara. 2. before, formerly, previously, in time past (of time): illud de quo ante dixi; paucis ante diebus; ante decimum diem, ten days before; ante quadriennium, four years previously; with aliquanto, multo, paulo, quanto, tanto, considerably, much, etc., before; followed by quam (sts. as one word, antequam), sooner than, before that, before, sooner, first, (with indic. except when purpose is implied, or after Orat. Obliqua). In the poets, sts. with quam before ante: victricem laurum quam venit ante vides. Also pleon., ante—prius—quam, or prius—quam—ante. 3. rarely as adj. former, previous (in imitation of the Greek): neque enim ignari sumus ante malorum (τῶν πρὶν κακῶν); multo ante labore (j.e. qui antea fuit) fatigati.

antĕā, adv. (old form antidĕā or anteidĕā), [ante, ea; where ea is by some taken as n. pl. of is; by others as f. abl. sing. dating from a time when ante, inter, post, praeter, propter were constructed with an abl. See P.S.L.G. § 59, p. 256, note], 1. formerly, aforetime, before, previously. 2. rarely=ante followed by quam, before that.

anteactus, a, um, better separately, ante actus. So anteăgo, ante ago.

ante-ambŭlo, ōnis, m. [ambulo, āre], a forerunner, 'avant-coureur.' [Poet. scanned as quadrisyll.]

antĕāquam (antea quam). See antea, 2.

Antĕ-cānis, is, m. lit. transl. of Προκύων. See Procyon.

antĕ-căpĭo, ĕre, cēpi, ceptum, trans. v. I. take in advance, preoccupy: pontem. II. 1. receive previously: anteăcepta informatio, a previously received conception. 2. anticipate: noctem, Sall.

antĕ-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans., traj., and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. before, precede, take the lead. 2. distinguish one'self, be eminent. B. (trans.) (with acc. of person or thing and abl., or abl. with in), precede, excel, surpass: Caes., Nep. C. (with dat.) excel, surpass: natura hominum pecudibus antecedit, Cic.

antĕ-cello, ĕre, traj., trans., and intrans., be prominent, distinguish one's-self; surpass, excel.

antĕcĕptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from antecapio.

antĕcessĭo, ōnis, f. [antecedo], I. a going before, preceding. II. (=id quod antecedit), the antecedent cause: homo earum rerum progressus et quasi antecessiones non ignorat, understands their course forward and so to speak backward, i.e. can trace events from cause to effect, and vice versa.

antĕcessor, ōris, m. [id.], one who goes before. Milit. techn. t. antĕcessōres, pl., the advanced guard of an army.

antĕcessus, ūs, m. [id.], only in acc. sing. with prep. in. In antecessum dare (accipere, solvere, etc.), give (receive, pay, etc.) in advance.

antĕcursor, ōris, m. [ante, curro], a forerunner, courier, pioneer. In pl. the advanced guard of an army.

antĕ-ĕo (old form antidĕo), īre, īvi (ĭi), fut. antibo, (in scanning, the e is dropped by Synaeresis), intrans., trans., and traj. v. I. (with dat., acc., or abs), go before, precede, take the lead. II. (fig.) 1. excel, surpass, outdo, outstrip: alicui aetate; cursibus auras. 2. (with acc.) forestall, anticipate; (poet.) foreknow. 3. (with dat.) set one's-self above, resist, Tac.

antĕ-fĕro, ferre, tŭli, lātum, trans. and traj. trans. v. I. (with acc.) bear or carry in front. II. 1. choose first, prefer: quae quibus anteferam? i.e. what am I to say first? what next? 2. forestall, anticipate.

antĕ-fixus, a, um, part. as if from antefigo, fastened or nailed in front. As subst. antĕfixa, ōrum, n. pl. 1. terra-cotta ornaments, statues, etc., for decorating roofs, cornices, etc. 2. gargoyles for carrying off the rain-water.

antĕ-grĕdĭor, i, gressus sum, [gradior], trans. and intrans. dep. go before, precede.

antĕ-hăbĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, traj. trans. v. have in preference, prefer: incredibilia veris.

antĕ-hāc (old form antĭdhāc), adv. (d.syl.) till now, hitherto, aforetime, previously, formerly. Cf. antea.

anteidĕā. See antea.

antĕlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from antefero.

antĕ-lūcānus, a, um, adj. [ante, luc-em; lux], before daybreak: cenae, i.e. kept up till daybreak.

antĕ-meridiānus, a, um, adj. [meridies], before noon.

antĕ-mitto, ĕre, misi, missum, trans. v. send in front, send forward.

antemna (antenna), ae, f. [ἀναπεινομένη; cf. alumnus], I. a sail-yard, yard-arm. II. (poet. meton.) a sail, Ov.

Antemnae, ārum, f. pl. [ante, amnem], an ancient Sabine town at the confluence of the Anio and the Tiber.

Antemnās, ātis, gentile adj. belonging to Antemnae. As subst. Antemnātēs, ium, m. pl. the men of Antemnae.

antenna. See antemna.

Antĕnor, ōris, m. [Ἀντήνωρ], a Trojan who advised the restoration of Helen to the Greeks. He is said to have founded Patavium (Padua).

Antĕnŏrĕus, a, um, adj. pertaining to Antenor. Hence (poet.) Patavian, Paduan, Mart. See Antenor.

Antĕnŏrĭdēs, ae, m. patron. I. a descendant of Antenor. II. (meton.) a Patavian or Paduan.

antĕ-pēs, pedis, m. the fore-foot, Cic.

antĕ-pīlānus, i, m. milit. techn. t. a soldier who fought before the pilani, or triarii, who formed the third line. Hence, in pl. as a general term, the Hastati and Principes, who formed respectively the two front lines.

antĕ-pōno, ĕre, pŏsŭi, pŏsĭtum, traj. trans. v. I. place or set before or in front. II. (fig.) prefer. [Sts. separated from ante by Tmesis: mala bonis ponit ante.]

antĕ-quam. See ante, B. I. 2.

‡ Antĕrōs, ōtis, m. [Ἀντέρως, return-love], 1. the god who avenges slighted love. 2. a slave of Atticus.

antēs, ium, m. [? ante], rows (of vines), Virg. Some translate plots.

antĕ-signānus, i, m. [signum], I. one before the standard. In pl. antesignani (milit. techn. t.), a body of picked men stationed immediately before the standards to prevent their capture. II. an officer selected for a post of honour, Cic. Phil. II. 29.

ante-sto (anti-sto), āre, stĕti, traj. v. excel, surpass ; be superior to, worth more than. Rarely with acc.

testor, āri, ātus sum, [ante; testor], trans. dep. I. call as a witness (preliminarily, i.e. at the commencement of an action). On the service of a summons (in ius vocatio), the defendant was bound to accompany the plaintiff into court. If he refused, the plaintiff had power to drag him thither, having first called a bystander to witness the defendant's resistance and contempt of court, and the legality of the force employed. The formula was Licet antestari? and the bystander so summoned gave his assent by offering his ear to be touched by the summoner. II. (in a gen. sense) appeal to one as a witness, Cic.

antĕ-vĕnio, īre, vēni, ventum, traj. and trans. v. I. come between, get before, get the start of, be beforehand with, anticipate ; thwart. II. (fig.) outstrip, overpass, exceed, excel.

antĕ-verto (-vortō), ĕre, tī, sum, intrans., trans., and traj. v. I. come before, precede. II. (with dat. or acc.) 1. prevent, anticipate. 2. place before, prefer : Caesar omnibus consiliis antevertendum existimavit, ut . . ., he thought he ought to make for Narbo in preference to every other scheme. Sts. traj. dep. antĕvertor, attend to first.

antĕ-vŏlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. fly before. Also with acc. dep. on prep.

Antĕ-vorta, ae, f. [verto], the goddess of the past. Cf. Porrima.

Anthēdōn, ōnis, f. [Ἀνθηδών], 1. a town and harbour of Boeotia on the Euboean sea, now Paleokastro. 2. a maritime town in Palestine, also called Agrippias.

Anthēdōnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Anthedon.

‡ anthias, ae, m. [ἀνθίας], a kind of fish, perhaps the bagre.

‡ anthrōpŏphăgus, i, m. [ἀνθρωποφάγος], a man-eater, cannibal.

Antiānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Antium.

Antiās, ātis, gentile adj. of Antium. As subst. Antiātēs, um, m. pl. the men of Antium.

Antiātinus, a, um, adj. = Antianus.

Antĭcăto, onis, m. the title of Caesar's rejoinder to Cicero's Cato, a panegyric of Cato Uticensis.

antĭcĭpātĭo, ōnis, f. [anticipo], a preconception, idea, or notion in the mind. Used by Cic. = πρόληψις.

antĭcipo, āre, āvi, ātum, [ante : capio]. I. take before, forestall, preoccupy, anticipate : viam (poet.), steal a march, get the start of one. II. (poet.) take the lead of, surpass.

antĭcus, a, um, adj. [ante], foremost, in front : pars, the fore-part, front.

Antĭcȳra, ae, f. [Ἀντίκυρα], 1. a town in Phocis on the Gulf of Corinth. 2. a town in Thessaly, at the mouth of the Sperchius, on the Maliac Gulf. Hence (prov.) : naviget Anticyram, let him take a voyage to A., i.e. he's a candidate for Bedlam ; tribus Anticyris caput insanabile, i.e. a hopeless lunatic.

antidĕā, old form of antea, q.v.

antidĕo. See ante-eo.

antidhāc. See antehac.

‡ antidŏtum, i, n. (-ŭs, or -ŏs, i, f.), [ἀντίδοτον], I. a counter-poison ; antidote, remedy. II. (fig.) antidotum adversus Caesarem, Suet.

Antiensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Antium.

Antigŏnē, ēs (-a, ae), f. [Ἀντιγόνη], 1. a daughter of Oedipus, king of Thebes, sister of Ismene, Eteocles, and Polynices, and the heroine of one of the tragedies of Sophocles. 2. a daughter of Laomedon, changed into a stork.

Antigŏnus, i, m. [Ἀντίγονος], the name of several kings. The most distinguished, the father of Demetrius Poliorcetes, was one of Alexander's generals, after whose death he received the provinces of Lycia, Pamphylia, and Phrygia. Killed at Ipsus, 301 B.C.

Antilĭbănus, i, m. [Ἀντιλίβανος], a mountain range parallel to Libanus. Its highest point is M. Hermon.

Antĭlŏchus, i, m. [Ἀντίλοχος], a son of Nestor, slain by Memnon before Troy.

Antĭmăchus, i, m. [Ἀντιμαχος], 1. a centaur slain by Caeneus. 2. a son of Aegyptus. 3. a Greek epic and elegiac poet of Colophon, contemporary of Plato.

Antĭŏchensis, e, adj. I. of or belonging to Antiochia or Antioch. II. of or belonging to King Antiochus : pecunia, i.e. money received from him.

Antĭŏchēus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the philosopher Antiochus, 2.

Antĭŏchĭa (-ēa), ae, f. [Ἀντιόχεια], the name of several cities, the most important being, 1. the capital of Syria, on the Orontes, built by Seleucus Nicator about 300 B.C. 2. a city of Caria on the Meander. 3. a city on the borders of Phrygia and Pisidia, afterwards called Caesarea.

Antĭŏchĭnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to (a) King Antiochus, (b) the philosopher Antiochus.

Antĭŏchus, a, um. See Antiocheus.

Antĭŏchus, i, m. [Ἀντίοχος], the name of several kings of Syria. 1. the most distinguished, on account of his war with Rome, was Antiochus Magnus, B.C. 223-187. 2. of Ascalon, the founder of the fifth Academy, and teacher of Cicero.

Antĭŏpē, ēs (-a, ae), f. [Ἀντιόπη], daughter of Nycteus, and mother by Zeus of Amphion and Zethus.

Antĭpăter, tri, m. 1. one of the generals and successors of Alexander the Great, the father of Cassander. 2. the father of Herod the Great. 3. eldest son of Herod the Great. 4. a Stoic philosopher of Tarsus, teacher of Panaetius, about B.C. 144. 5. a Roman historian.

Antĭphātēs, æ, m. [Ἀντιφάτης], 1. a king of the Laestrygones. Formiae is called Antiphatae domus by Ovid, because it was said to have been founded by the Laestrygones under Lamus. 2. a son of Sarpedon, slain by Turnus.

‡ antĭpŏdes, um, m. pl. [ἀντίποδες], the antipodes. Ironic. of revellers who turned night into day.

Antĭpŏlis, is, f. a city of Gallia Narbonensis, now Antibes.

Antipŏlītānus, a, um, adj. of or from Antipolis.

‡ antiptōsis, is, f. [ἀντίπτωσις], in Syntax, the putting of one case for another : e.g. nosti Marcellum quam tardus sit ; urbem quam statuo vestra est.

antiquārius, a, um, adj. [antiquus], having to do with antiquity. As subst. (a) antiquārius, ii, m. an antiquarian, antiquary, archaeologist ; (b) antiquāria, ae, f. a female antiquary, she-Dryasdust, Juv.

antiquē, adv. [id.], like the ancients ; in an old-fashioned way or style. Compar. antiquius.

antiquĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. age, antiquity : generis, ancient descent. II. 1. the olden time, days of yore, antiquity. 2. the history of the past, antiquity. In pl. (as a title of an historical work), antiquities. 3. abstr. = concr. the men of the olden times, the ancients : erubat multis in rebus antiquitas. 4. the good old virtues, the honest old character, the integrity of our fathers, the manners of the old school, etc. : haec plena sunt antiquitatis.

antiquĭtŭs, adv. [id.], of old, anciently; from or at an early period.

antīquo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. render old or obsolete. Only techn. t. of a law or bill: legem agrariam antiquari passus est, to be rejected. In the case of laws, there was written on the voting-tickets (tabellae) either A, i.e. antiquo,) or R, (i.e. rogo, 'I vote for passing the law,') or VR, (i.e. uti rogas,) which means the same thing. See Dict. Ant. tabella.

antīquus, a, um, adj. [ante], I. belonging to former times, former, old, ancient; of yore, bygone. As subst. antiqui, ōrum, m. pl. the ancients; old writers, historians, etc. II. 1. (in comp. and superl.) that is before or first in rank, importance, etc.; more valuable, preferable, better: nec quidquam habui antiquius, and there was nothing to which I attached greater importance. 2. aged, venerable; of old or long standing, ancient. As subst. antiquum, i, n. an old custom or habit: antiquum obtinere, to stick to the old groove. 3. old-fashioned, of the old school, 'the good old,' worthy: vir sanctus, antiquus; homo antiquā virtute ac fide. Compar. antiquior; superl. antiquissimus.

Antissa, ae, f. a town in Lesbos.

antistĕs, stitis, c. (also f. antistita, ae), [ante; sto], I. an overseer, esp. of a temple; a high priest, chief priest (or priestess). 2. (metaph.) a master, adept, proficient (in an art or science): artis dicendi; sapientiae.

Antisthĕnes, is (-ae), m. [Ἀντισθένης], an Athenian philosopher, pupil of Socrates, teacher of Diogenes, and founder of the Cynic sect.

antistita, ae, f. [cf. antistes], a priestess, high priestess: Phoebi, i.e. Cassandra.

antisto. See antesto.

‡ antistrŏphē, ēs, f. [ἀντιστροφή], 1. the part of a Greek or Roman chorus answering to the strophe. 2. (in rhet.) the repetition of the same word in several clauses.

‡ antithĕsis, is, f. [ἀντίθεσις], opposition, contrast, antithesis.

‡ antithĕtŏn, i, n. [ἀντίθετον], opposition, antithesis: e.g. urbis amatorem Fuscum salvere iubemus Ruris amatores.

Antĭum, li, n. an ancient town in Latium, not far from the coast, now Porto d'Anzo, where were a temple and two statues of Fortune.

‡ antlĭa, ae, f. [ἀντλία], a machine for raising water, a pump. Rich, Dict. Ant.

Antōnīānus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to the triumvir Antonius. As subst. (a) Antoniāni, ōrum, m. pl. the troops or followers of Antonius; (b) Antoniānae, ārum, f. (i.e. orationes), Cicero's speeches against Antony; cf. Philippicus. II. of or belonging to the orator Antonius: dicendi ratio.

Antōnĭaster, tri, m. dim. a poor imitation of the orator Antonius, a bit of an Antony.

Antōnīnĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Antoninus or the Antonines.

Antōnīnus, i, m. 1. Antoninus Pius, Roman emperor, A.D. 138-161; succeeded Hadrian, by whom he had been adopted. 2. M. Aurelius Antoninus, Roman emperor, A.D. 161-180; adopted by Antonius Pius, whose daughter Faustina he married. He was a strict Stoic; his Meditations are still extant.

(1) Antōnius, li, m. the name of a Roman gens. 1. M. Antonius, grandfather of the triumvir, coupled by Cicero with Crassus as one of the greatest orators. Born B.C. 143; consul B.C. 99; censor B.C. 97; put to death by Marius, B.C. 87. 2. C. Antonius, uncle of the triumvir, Cicero's colleague in the praetorship (65), consulship (63). 3. M. Antonius, the triumvir; Cicero's bitter enemy, defeated by Octavianus at Actium, B.C. 31.

(2) Antōnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Antonius: leges Antoniae, laws proposed by Antony. Antōnii, ōrum, m. pl. the partisans of Antony.

† antrum, i, n. [ἄντρον], I. a cave, cavern, den, grotto; a rocky dell. II. (meton.) 1. a roomy sedan-chair, Iuv. 2. the hollow of a tree, Virg.

Anŭbis, is (-ĭdis), (acc. Anubin), m. [Ἀνουβίς, Egypt. word], an Egyptian deity, worshipped in the form of a man with a dog's head: latrator Anubis.

ānŭlārius, a, um, adj. [anulus], of or belonging to a signet-ring. Scalae anulariae, the Ring-makers' Stairs, a part of Rome near the Forum. As subst. ānŭlārius, ii, m. a ring-maker.

ānŭlātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], furnished with rings: aures, i.e. with ear-rings; pedes, i.e. manacled.

ānŭlus, i, m. [dim. anus (2)], I. a ring, a finger or signet ring. At Rome the right of wearing a gold ring was restricted to the senators, chief magistrates, and equites. II. 1. a certain ring: veluris. 2. a chain-link, fetter, manacle. 3. a ring set round a hoop to make a jingling noise, Mart. 4. a curl, ringlet, plait of hair, Mart. 5. (architect.) moulding on a Doric capital.

(1) ānus, i, m. the posteriors, fundament, breech.

(2) ānus, i, m. [related to anus; cf. annus], a ring.

(3) ānus, ūs (gen. sing. anŭis, Ter.), f. I. 1. an old woman (married or unmarried). 2. (poet.) a beldame, witch. II. in app.=adj. old, aged: cerva; testa.

anxiē, adv. [anxius], anxiously, with anxiety or apprehension. Compar. magis anxie.

anxĭtās, ātis, f. [id.], anxiety, care, apprehension, distress.

anxĭ-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [anxius; fero], bringing or causing anxiety, Cic.

anxĭus, a, um, adj. [ango], I. (in passive sense) anxious, uneasy, unquiet, distressed, troubled: animi (locat.), anxious at heart, troubled in spirit; anxium habere aliquem, keep a person in a state of anxiety. The cause of anxiety is put (with abl.) gloriā; (with gen.) furti; (with prep. de) de famā; also with prepp. ad and pro; and with nē or an and subj. II. (in active sense) causing or making anxious, distressing, troublesome: curae.

Anxŭr, ŭris, n. and m. 1. a town of Latium, also called Tarracina, now Terracina, on the coast, 58 m. S.E. of Rome, on the Via Appia. 2. (m.) an Italian.

Anxŭras, ātis, gentile adj. of or belonging to Anxur. As subst. a native of A.

Anxŭrus, a, um, adj. of Anxur, epith. of Iuppiter, who was worshipped at Anxur.

Anȳtus, i, m. one of the accusers of Socrates.

Āŏnēs, um, m. pl. (acc. Āŏnās), [Ἀονες], an ancient race in Boeotia. Hence (poet.) = Boeotian: montes, i.e. Helicon, Virg.

Āŏnĭa, ae, f. [Ἀονία], I. a part of Boeotia in which are the Aonian Mountains, M. Helicon, and the fount Aganippe, sacred to Apollo and the Muses. II. (meton.) Boeotia.

Āŏnĭdēs, ae, m. patron. an Aonid, i.e. Boeotian; epith. of the Theban Eteocles.

Āŏnĭs, poet. nom. f. sing. Gk. form [Ἀονίη] from Aonius, adj.

Āŏnĭs, ĭdis, f. patron. [Ἀονίς], an Aonian or Boeotian woman. In pl. Āŏnĭdes, um, the Aonian maidens, i.e. the Muses. Cf. Aonia.

Āŏnĭus, a, um, adj. I. of Aonia, Aonian; Boeotian: vir, i.e. Hercules; deus, i.e. Bacchus; aquae, i.e. Aganippe; iuvenis, i.e. Hippomenes. II. Aonian, in ref. to the Muses; of the Muses. Cf. Aonia.

Āornŏs, i, m. f. [Ἄορνος, birdless], Gk. acc. Aornŏn], the lake of Avernus in Campania, now Averno. Cf. Avernus.

āpăgē, interj. [cf. Gk. imper. ἄπαγε], away with you! off! be gone! constr. either abs. or with acc., apage te.

Āpămēa (-īa), ae, f. [Ἀπάμεια], 1. a city of Syria on the Orontes, now Famieh. 2. a town in Phrygia, on the Maeander, also called Cibōtus. 3. a town in Bithynia.

Āpămensis (-mēensis), e, adj. of or belonging to Apamea, 2.

Āpămēus, a, um, adj. of Apamea, 3.

‡ āpēlĭōtēs (āph-), ae, m. [ἀπηλιώτης], the east wind; also called subsolanus.

Apella, ae, m. a man's name.

Apelles, is, m. [Ἀπελλῆς], a famous painter of Cos, contemporary with Alexander the Great (B.C. 336-323).

Apellīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Apelles.

Apennini-cŏla, ae, c. [Apenninus; colo], an inhabitant of the Apennines.

Apennini-gĕna, ae, c. [Apenninus; gigno], born upon, or springing from the Apennines.

Apennīnus (App-), i, m. [Celtic Pen, a height], the Apennines, a mountain-chain running through Italy from N. to S. Also (poet.) the mountain personified, Virg.

(1) ăpĕr, pri, m. [cf. κάπρος], a wild boar. Prov.: immittere fontibus apros, of a bungler or marplot.

(2) Aper, pri, m. a Roman cognomen.

ăpĕrĭo, īre, ŭi, pertum (old fut. aperibo), (ab; pario, get off=uncover, trans. v. P.S.L.G. p. 217; Curtius, 272), I. lay open, lay bare, uncover, display, disclose. (meton.) 1. unclose, unlock, open; relax, expand. 2. make a way through; cleave, split open, slash, dig out. 3. open up, render accessible. 4. open, begin: Taurus aperit annum; Dionysius Corinthi dicitur ludum aperuisse, to have set up a school. II. (fig.) 1. reveal, make known, disclose, demonstrate, explain, recount, unfold: lux fugam hostium aperuit; casus aperire futuros; domino navis qui sit aperit; quid sentirent aperuerunt. 2. aperire se, or pass. reflex. to discover one's self, show one's character, disposition, sentiments, etc. 3. pass. reflex. (of an object seen from a distance at sea) rise to view, heave or come in sight: formidatus nautis aperitur Apollo, Virg. (cf. abscondo, 2). 4. (techn. t.) promise payment of a sum of money, guarantee: de Opio factum est ut volui, et maxime quod nocc aperuisti, Cic.

ăpertē, adv. [apertus], 1. in the open, openly, clearly. 2. plainly, unreservedly: texte (colloq.), whether directly or indirectly. Compar. apertius; superl. apertissime.

ăpertus, a, um, perf. pass. part from aperio. As adj. I. 1. uncovered, open; exposed, bare: latus, i.e. the right side (not covered by the shield); locus, undefended; naves apertae, i.e. undecked. (2) aphractus. 2. not shut, unclosed, open: exierat portis equitatus apertis. 3. free, clear, unobstructed: impetus maris; caelum, i.e. cloudless; apertior aditus ad moenia; aperta copia Martis (poet.), i.e. a chance of fighting in the open. As subst. ăpertum, i, n. that which is open; a clear or open space: per apertum fugientes cervos; in aperto esse, to be feasible, practicable; hostes adgredi in aperto loret. But cf. next section. II. (fig.) 1. plain, undisguised, manifest, evident: pericula; coniux, an acknowledged, i.e. wedded, lord. As subst. ăpertum, i, n.; in aperto esse (cf. ἐν τῷ φανερῷ εἶναι), to be clear, evident, plain, notorious: ex aperto, openly, Livy. 2. (of language) intelligible, clear. 3. (of character) frank, unreserved, open: apertus et simplex. Sts. in a bad sense, blunt, unabashed: ut semper fuit apertissimus. Compar. apertior; superl. apertissimus.

ăpex, ĭcis, m. (connected with ap-tus, q.v.), I. 1. the tip or top point of a thing; properly, the pointed piece of olive-wood bound round with wool which was stuck in the conical cap of the Flamines and Salii. Hence, 2. (by Synecdoche) the cap itself; and often (esp. poet.) a diadem, tiara, crown: regum apices; ab aquilā Tarquinio apicem impositum putent. II. (meton.) 1. the ridge on the top of the helmet to which the plume or crest was attached; (poet.) the crest or plume itself; 2. a cone or tuft of flame. 3. a summit, peak, crest, tip: Aetnaeos apices. III. (fig.) the highest ornament, crowning point, crown: apex est senectutis auctoritas, Cic.

‡ Aphaea, ae, f. an epithet of Britomartis.

‡ aphaerēsis, is, f. [ἀφαίρεσις], a taking away. In Gram. the cutting off of an initial letter or syllable.

Aphārēĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aphareus. His sons Lynceus and Idas are called (poet.) Aphareia proles, Ov.

Aphāreus (trisyll.), ĕi, m. [Ἀφαρεύς], 1. a king of Messene. 2. a centaur.

‡ aphē. See haphe.

Aphidna, ae (-ae, ārum), f. 1. a deme of Attica. 2. a district of Laconia.

‡ aphractum, i, n. See aphractus.

‡ aphractus, i, f. [ἄφρακτος, uncovered, i.e. ναῦς], a long vessel only covered fore and aft, half-decked.

Aphrŏdīta, ae (-ē, ēs), f. [Ἀφροδίτη], a name of Venus, as being sprung from the foam of the sea [ἀφρός].

ăpĭārĭus, a, um, adj. [apis], relating to bees. As subst. (a) ăpĭārius, ĭi, m. one who tends or keeps bees, a bee-master; (b) ăpĭārium, ĭi, n. an apiary.

ăpĭcātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [apex], wearing the Flamen's cap, mitred, Ov.

Apĭcius, ĭi, m. I. the name of three famous gourmands; (a) lived in the time of Sulla; (b) M. Gabius, Apicius, in the time of Augustus and Tiberius; (c) a contemporary of Trajan. II. the title of a work on Cookery.

Apĭdănus, i, m. [Ἀπιδανός], a river in Thessaly, flowing into the Enipeus.

Apīna, ae, f. an old and depopulated town in Apulia. Hence (meton.) in pl. apīnae, ārum, worthless things, trifles, mere rubbish, trumpery, Mart.

ăpĭo. See apo.

Apĭōlae (App-), ārum, f. pl. a town of Latium, destroyed by Tarquinius Priscus.

(1) ăpis (-ēs, is), f. (gen. pl. apum, and more freq. apium), [cf. ἐμπίς, a gnat], a bee. Prps. connected with ap-io, ap-iscor.

(2) Apis, is, m. the sacred ox at Memphis, worshipped by the Egyptians.

ăpiscor, i, aptus sum [apo], incept. trans. dep. I. reach after, pursue. II. lay hold of, grasp, acquire; attain to, get, gain. Once with gen. in Tacitus, in imitation of Gk. constr. after verbs of touching: dominationis. III. pass. in gerundive ăpiscendus, a, um, Manil.

ăpĭum, ĭi, n. [? apis], parsley; according to some smallage or celery. It was used in making chaplets.

aplustrē, is (-um, i), n. [ἄφλαστον], an ornament of boards on the stern of a ship, in the form of a bird's crest or wing, or a fish's tail, decorated with a flagstaff, streamers, etc.

ăpo (ăpio), ĕre, aptum, [cf. ἅπτω, apiscor, ap-ex], obsol. trans. v. fasten; only in perf. pass. part. aptus, q.v.

‡ Apŏclēti, ōrum, m. pl. [ἀπόκλητοι, select], the select committee of the Aetolicum Foedus.

‡ ăpŏcŏpē, ēs, f. [ἀποκοπή], in Gram. the cutting off of a letter or syllable at the end of a word, e.g. audin', vin', for audisne, visne.

‡ ăpŏdŏsis, is, f. [ἀπόδοσις], in Gram. a principal sentence limited by a clause preceding called Protasis. In a conditional sentence the Apodosis contains the inference or consequence.

‡ ăpŏdўtērĭum, ĭi, n. [ἀποδυτήριον], an undressing-room in a bath.

‡ ăpŏgrăphŏn, i, n. [ἀπόγραφον], a copy, transcript.

Apollĭnar, ārĭs, n. [Apollo], a temple dedicated to Apollo.

(1) Apollĭnāris, e, adj. [id.], of or belonging to, or sacred to, Apollo. Ludi Apollinares, games in honour of Apollo, instituted B.C. 212, and celebrated yearly on July 5th by the praetor urbanus.

(2) Apollĭnāris, is, m. a friend of the poet Martial.

Apollĭnĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], relating to or belonging to Apollo: ars, (a) the art of healing, (b) the prophetic art; mater, i.e. Latona; proles, i.e. Aesculapius; urbs, i.e. Delos; vates, i.e. Orpheus. Only poet.

Apollo, ĭnis, m. [Ἀπόλλων], Apollo, or Phoebus, son of Iuppiter and Latona, twin-brother of Diana, and the god of the sun; the god of archery, divination, eloquence, healing, music, poetry, etc. The laurel or bay was sacred to him. He had a splendid temple at Actium, also a temple on the Palatine built by Augustus, B.C. 28.

Apollŏdōrus, i, m. 1. of Athens (B.C. 140), author of a work on mythology called Bibliothēca. 2. a rhetorician, teacher of Augustus. 3. a comic poet of Carystus in Boeotia, contemporary with Menander.

Apollŏnĭa, ae, f. ["Απολλωνία], the name of several towns; 1. in Illyria. 2. in Macedonia. 3. in Thrace, on the Euxine. 4. in Cyrenaica. 5. in Sicily. 6. in Bithynia. 7. a castle of the Locri Ozolae.

Apollŏnĭātēs, ae, m. a native of Apollonia. Pl. Apollŏnĭātae, ārum (-ēs, ium).

Apollŏnĭdenses, ĭum, m. pl. the men of Apollonia, in Lydia.

Apollŏnĭus, ĭi, m. 1. a rhetorician of Rhodes, about B.C. 100. 2. of Alabanda, also a rhetorician. Cicero studied with him. 3. surnamed Rhodius, poet, grammarian, and rhetorician; author of the Argonautica, B.C. 222-181.

‡ ăpŏlŏgus, i, m. [ἀπόλογος], 1. a tale, narrative. 2. a fable, apologue, Cic.

(1) Āpŏnus, i, m. a warm medicinal spring, now Bagui d'Albano, near Patavium.

(2) Āpŏnus, a, um, adj. I. of Aponus. II. (meton.) of Patavium (Padua): tellus, i.e. Patavium, Mart.

‡ ăpŏphŏrēta, ōrum, n. pl. [ἀποφόρητα], presents given by a host, esp. at the Saturnalia, for guests to take home with them.

‡ ăpŏsĭōpēsis, is, f. [ἀποσιώπησις], an abrupt breaking off in the middle of a speech: e.g. quos ego—sed motos praestat componere fluctus.

‡ ăpŏstrŏphē, ēs, f. [ἀποστροφή], a rhetorical figure by which persons or things are addressed in order to add force or pathos: e.g. quid non mortalia pectora cogis, Auri sacra fames?

‡ ăpŏthēca, ae, f. [ἀποθήκη], 1. a store-room, repository, magazine. 2. esp. a store-room in the upper part of the house, where wine was kept to ripen in amphorae; hence, Fr. boutique; Spanish, bodega.

(1) App. abbr.=Appius.

(2) app. See adp.

appendĭcŭla, ae, f. [dim. appendix], a small appendage.

appendix, ĭcis, f. [adpendo], I. an appendage, addition, supplement, accessory. II. a contingent.

Appĭa. See Appius.

(1) Appĭānus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Appius, Appian. II. of Appia, a town in Phrygia Maior.

(2) Appĭānus, i, m. a Roman historian of little note.

Appĭās, ădis, f. I. epith. of the nymph of the Aqua Appia; see Appius. Appĭădes deae, the statues of the nymph which surrounded the adjacent temple of Venus Genetrix. II. an epithet of Minerva, jocosely applied by Cicero.

Appĭĕtās, ātis, f. [Appius], Appian blood, pedigree, etc. Cf. Lentulitas.

(1) Appĭus, ĭi, m. (Appĭa, ae, f.), a Roman praenomen, esp. of the Claudian family. 1. Appius Claudius Caecus, censor B.C. 312. Appii Fŏrum, a town of Latium, founded by Appius, on the left of the Via Appia, in the Pontine Marshes. 2. Appius Claudius, the decemvir, who attempted to seize Virginia.

(2) Appĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Appius (1), Appian: Via Appia, or Appia, the Appian Way, the great southern road from Rome to Brundusium, commenced by the censor Appius. Aqua Appia, the aqueduct constructed by the same Appius.

Appŭleia, ae, f. a she-Appuleius, an unsexed Appuleius (of Clodius), Cic. Att. iv. ii.

(1) Appŭlēius (Apŭl-), i, m. 1. L. Appuleius Saturninus, a noted tribune of the plebs, about B.C. 101. 2. of Madaura, in Africa, born about A.D. 130, author of a book of Metamorphoses or the Golden Ass, a romance, and other works still extant.

(2) Appŭlēius, a, um, adj. of Appuleius: lex, proposed by the tribune Appuleius.

Appŭlĭa, Appŭlĭcus, Appŭlus. See Apulia, etc.

aprĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [apricor], a basking in the sun, sunning one's self.

aprĭcor, āri, ātus sum, [apricus], intrans. dep. sun one's self, bask.

ăprĭcus, a, um, adj. [contr. from aperi-cus; aperio], 1. exposed or open to the sun, sunny: sub aprico latere, under the open heaven, with the sky for a roof, Propert. As subst. aprĭcum, i, n. a sunny spot or place: (fig.) in aprico proferre, to bring into the sunshine, into the light of day; in aprico res est, the affair is all smooth. 2. sun-loving, fond of the sun, growing in the sun; basking: flores; arbor; nergi. Compar. apricior; superl. apricissimus.

Aprīlis, is, m. (properly adj.), [contr. for aperilis; aperio], the month of April (with or without mensis). As adj. of or belonging to April: nonae; idus.

Aprōnĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Apronius: convivium, i.e. named from him.

Aprōnĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman name.

apsinthium, ĭi, n. See absinthium.

‡ apsis (absis), ĭdis, f. [ἁψίς], 1. a semicircle. 2. a bay-window, Plin.

Apsus, i, m. a river of Illyria.

Apsyrtis. See Absyrtus, 2.

aptātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from apto.

aptē, adv. [aptus], I. closely, deftly, accurately, nicely: cohaerere; cadere, to fall into the proper niche, be nicely adapted. II. fitly, suitably, duly, rightly, with propriety. Compar. aptius; superl. aptissime.

apto, āre, āvi, ātum, [aptus; apo], freq. trans. v. 1. fit, adapt, put on, adjust, apply, accommodate; sts. (a) with dat.: sagittas nervo; dexteris enses, etc.; or (b) with prep. ad: manus ad arma. 2. fit out, equip, furnish: classem velis. 3. get ready, provide: convivium; idonea bello.

(1) aptus, a, um, perf. part. from apiscor, = adeptus. Rare, and poet.

(2) aptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from obsol. apo, q.v.; A. I. 1. fastened, joined, bound together, united: facilius est apta dissolvere quam dissipata connectere; gladium e lacunari setā equinā aptum demitti iussit. 2. closely connected with, depending upon (with prep. ex); honestum, ex quo aptum est officium. II. (poet.) fitted, endowed, or furnished with, set out with: caelum stellis aptum, i.e. studded with stars. B. as adj. 1. fit, suitable, adapted, appropriate: (with adj.) aptissima ad insidias aptior; (with dat.) aptum vitibus uber; quadrigis equa, trained for; solibus, fond of, basking in the sun; amicis, staunch to; naribus acutis, fit to face banter; (with in) formas laeus aptus in omnes, i.e capable of taking every shape; (with qui and subj.) est mihi quae lanas molliat aptа manus; (poet. with inf.) aetas mollis et apta regi. 2. (absol.) aptus exercitus, a well-found army; apto cum lare fundus, a farm with a house to match; (meton.) well-jointed, neat, Cic. Compar. aptior; superl. aptissimus.

apŭd (aput), old form apor, prep. with acc. [cf. ἐπί]; A. (expressing nearness, mostly of persons) 1. at, at the house of, with: cenabis apud me, at my house; apud Othonem, in the camp of Otho; apud rhetoras, in the schools of the rhetoricians, etc. Hence, (fig.) apud se esse, to be at home, i.e. keep one's wits about one; prae iracundiā non sum apud me, I am beside myself. 2. before, in the presence of: apud populum orationem facere; verba apud senatum fecit. 3. in the view or opinion of, amongst, with: plus apud me antiquorum auctoritas valet; apud animum meum cogito, I am debating in my mind. 4. (of an author) in the works or writings of, in: apud Homērum, in Homer (but in Iliade Homēri). 5. in the case of, with, amongst: Pompei auctoritas apud omnes tanta est; apud Helvetios longe nobilissimus fuit Orgetorix; apud exercitum, in attendance upon or with the army, in possession of, in the hands of, with: honos, potentia, divitiae, apud illos sunt; Phoebo sua semper apud me munera sunt, Phoebus has with me his proper gifts, i.e. I have the gifts that he loves. B. (of place; less freq.) at, near, about, before:

apud oppidum ; tardis apud Ilion armis. C. (of time) in, at : apud saeculum prius ; apud maiores nostros, in the time of our ancestors. D. (with verbs of motion ; very rare)=ad : apud vicinum Ibo ; naves apud insulas longus sitas ejectae, on distant islands. Apud sts. follows its case.

Apŭlēius. See Appuleius.

Apŭlĭa (App-), ae, f. the country of the Apuli, Apulia, a province of Lower Italy.

Apŭlĭcus (App-), a, um, adj. Apulian : mare.

Apŭlus (App-), a, um, adj. Apulian.

apŭt. See apud.

‡ ăpўrēnum, i, n. [ἀπύρηνον], a kind of pomegranate with a soft kernel.

āqua, ae, f. (archaic gen. āquāī), [cf. Sanscr. AP, water], I. water (as an element). II. (in a less wide sense) water ; (a) the sea ; (b) a river, stream ; (c) rain ; (d) tears. III. in phrases : (a) praebere aquam, to play the host ; aquā et igni interdicere alicui, to forbid one the use of fire and water, i.e. the first necessaries of life ; a formula of banishment ; aquam et terram petere, to demand submission (of an enemy) ; in aquā scribere, prov. of anything transient or untrustworthy. IV. the water in the clepsydra or water-clock, by which the length of speeches, etc., was regulated : certis ex aquā mensuris, by the water-clock. Caes. Hence (a) aquam dare, to give the advocate time for speaking ; (b) aqua haeret, the water stops, i.e. he comes to a standstill, is gravelled ; aquam perdere, to fritter away the time. (In pl.) āquae, arum, a mineral spring, spa : ad aquas venire, to visit the baths, Cic.

āquae ductus (āquaeductus ; also āquārum ductus), ūs, m. 1. an aqueduct, conduit. 2. the right of water-supply.

āquāī, archaic gen. sing. aqua.

āquālĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. aqualicus, a ewer], lit. a small jug or can. Hence (poet.), the belly, paunch.

āquārĭus, a, um, adj. [aqua], of or belonging to water : provincia, the province by the water's edge, i.e. Ostiensis, or, perhaps, Baiae. As subst. āquārius, ĭi, m. I. 1. a water-carrier. 2. a water-inspector, turn-cock. 3. a bath-slave. II. the Water-bearer, one of the signs of the zodiac (Gk. Ὑδροχοος), which the sun enters on January 16.

āquātĭcus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. living, growing, or found in or near water, aquatic. II. watery, wet, rainy.

āquātĭlis, e, adj. [id.], living, growing, or found in or near water, aquatic.

āquātĭo, ōnis, f. [aquor], I. a getting or fetching water. II. a place for getting water from, reservoir. III. a watering, irrigation.

āquātor, ōris, m. [id.], a water-fetcher or carrier.

(1) āquĭla, ae, f. [? aquilus], I. an eagle ; in poet. the king of birds and the lightning-bearer of Jove ; (prov.) aquilae senectus, a hearty, vigorous old age. II. (meton.) 1. the Roman eagle, or standard of a legion. 2. (poet.) a legion, Luc. 3. (poet.) the post of standard-bearer (cf. aquilifer) : locupletem aquilam, Juv. III. the constellation of the Eagle, which rises June 1. IV. (in architecture) the gable of a pediment enclosed by the cornices : sustinentes fastigium aquilae, Tac. Cf. Gk. ἀετός, and Dict. Ant. fastigium.

(2) Āquĭla, ae, m. a Roman cognomen.

Āquĭlārĭa, ae, f. a town on the coast of Zeugitana, in Africa.

Āquĭlēia, ae, f. a town of Venetia, near Tergeste, at the head of the Adriatic ; founded B.C. 182, destroyed by Attila A.D. 452.

Āquĭlēiensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Aquileia.

Āquĭlĭānus (Aquill-), a, um, adj. of or given by Aquilius, the jurist : definitio.

āquĭli-fer, fĕri, m. [aquila ; fero], the principal ensign of a Roman legion ; a standard-bearer. There were many signiferi in a legion, but only one aquilifer.

Āquĭlĭus (Āquill-), ĭi, m. 1. M. Aquillius Gallus, consul, B.C. 129. 2. C. Aquilius Gallus, a distinguished jurist and orator, Cicero's colleague in the praetorship, B.C. 66.

āquĭlō, ōnis, m. [? aquilus ; as bringing dark and stormy weather], I. the north-east wind ; the north wind. II. (meton.) the North. III. the mythic husband of Orithyia, and father of Calais and Zetes.

āquĭlōnārĭs, e, adj. [aquilo], northerly, northern.

Āquĭlōnĭa, ae, f. a town of Samnium, on the Aufidus.

Āquĭlōnĭus, a, um, adj. [aquilo], I. of the north, northern. II. of or belonging to Aquilo : proles, i.e. Calais and Zetes.

āquĭlus, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.], dark-coloured, swarthy.

Āquīnas, ātis, gentile adj. of or belonging to Aquinum. As subst. a native of Aquinum.

Āquīnĭus (Āquĭnus), ĭi, m. a poetaster of Cicero's time.

Āquīnum, i, n. a town of the Volsci, in Latium, the birthplace of Iuvenal.

Āquĭtānĭa, ae, f. the name of the SW. division of Gallia Transalpina, extending in the time of I. Caesar from the Garumna (Garonne) to the Pyrenees.

Āquĭtānus, a, um, adj. Aquitanian. The Aquitani were of Iberian or Basque origin. As subst. m. an Aquitanian.

āquŏla. See aquula.

āquor, ārī, ātus sum [aqua], intrans. dep. forage for, get, or fetch water.

āquōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. full of water, watery ; moist, rainy : languor, i.e. the dropsy ; Mater, i.e. Thetis. II. clear as water, transparent : crystallus, Propert. Compar. aquosior ; superl. aquossissimus.

āquŭla (āquŏla, ăcŭla), ae, f. [dim. aqua], a little water ; a small stream ; a brook ; pond.

ar, old form of prep. ad.

ăra, ae, f. (old form asa) ; cf. Sanscr. AS, to sit], I. an altar ; a raised structure of earth, wood, stone, etc. : funeris ara or ara sepulcri, a funeral pyre ; pro aris atque focis, for home and hearth ; since the Penates had their ara in the impluvium or central court of the house, whilst the Lares were ranged round the focus in the atrium. Hence (fig.), a refuge, shelter, sanctuary, asylum : ad aram legum confugere. II. an altar for sacrifice : turicrema, for burning frankincense. III. a constellation in the S. sky, next the Scorpion. IV. in pl. Ārae, the Altars, a group of rocks in the Mediterranean between Sicily and Africa. V. (metaph.) a monument, memorial : Virtutis, Cic.

‡ ărăbarchēs, ae, m. [ἀραβάρχης], an Egyptian civil and military ruler ; a comptroller of taxes, a nabob ; applied by Cicero as a nickname to Pompey. [The form alabarches is incorrect.]

Ărăbĭa, ae, f. a country of Asia, divided by the ancients into Petraea, Felix, and Deserta.

Ărăbĭcus, a, um, adj. of Arabia, Arabian : Sinus, i.e. the Red Sea.

Ărăbĭus, a, um, adj. Arabian : limen, i.e. made of a precious onyx, or of alabaster.

Ărabs, ăbis, adj. (Gk. acc. pl. Arabas), [Ἄραψ], Arabian. As subst. an Arab or Arabian.

Ărăbus, a, um, adj.=Arabs.

Ărachnē, ēs (-ē, ae), f. [Ἀράχνη], the daughter of Idmon of Colophon. She challenged Minerva to a contest in weaving, and was by her changed into a spider.

Ărăcynthus, i, m. [Ἀράκυνθος], a mountain in Aetolia, sts. placed in Acarnania. The epith. Actaeus in Virg. is prob. a geographical error, unless Actaeus=ἀκταῖος, rugged.

ărānĕa, ae, f. [ἀράχνη ; cf. Lana], I. a spider. II. (meton.) a spider's web, cobweb, Ov.

ărānĕŏla, ae, f. [dim. aranea], a small spider.

ărānĕŏlus, i, m. [id.],=araneola.

ărānĕōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], full of spiders' webs, cobwebby.

ărānĕum, i, n. See (2) araneus.

(1) ărānĕus, i, m. [ἀράχνης], a spider.

(2) ărānĕus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a spider, spider's. As subst. ărānĕum, i, n. a web, cobweb.

Ărar (Ărăris), is, m. acc. Ararim (-in), a river of Gallia Celtica, rising in the Vosges, now the Saône.

ărātio, ōnis, f. [aro], I. a ploughing; hence, cultivation, agriculture. II. (meton.) a public farm or plot of state land let out on the principle of paying tithes to the treasury (cf. arator, II.); in pl. tilele-lands. III. ploughed land, tilth.

ărātor, ōris, m. [id.], I. a plougher, ploughman; often (poet.) a husbandman, countryman, clown. Sts. in apposition=adj.: bos; taurus. II. in pl. ărātōres, the farmers of public land for a tenth of the produce; generally of the equestrian order. Cf. aratio, II.

ărātrum, i, m. [ἄροτρον], a plough. A plough was used in tracing the boundary-line of a new city; hence the utter destruction of a city was symbolised by driving a plough over its walls (imprimere aratrum muris).

(1) ărātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from aro. As subst. ărāta, orum, n. pl. ploughed lands.

(2) Ărātus, i, m. 1. a Greek astronomer and poet of Soli in Cilicia, B.C. 270. Cicero and Caesar Germanicus translated into Latin his Phaenomena and Diosemeia, from which Virgil borrowed freely. 2. of Sicyon, founder of the Achaean League, B.C. 271-213.

Ăraxēs, is, m. the name of several rivers (a) in Armenia; (b) in Mesopotamia; (c) in Persis; (d) a river identified by some with the Oxus or Iaxartes. Poet. meton. a dweller on the Araxes: pharetratus Araxes, Stat.

Arbēla, ōrum, n. pl. [Ἄρβηλα], a town of Adiabene in Assyria, famed for the overthrow in its vicinity of Darius by Alexander, B.C. 331.

arbiter, tri, m. [ar, archaic form of ad; bito, obsol. = eo], I. an eye-witness, witness, spectator, hearer; remotis arbitris. II. 1. (legal techn. t.) an arbitrator, judge (in an action bonae fidei), an official valuer: arbitrum aliquem adigere, to compel one to go before an arbitrator, i.e. bring a matter into a court of equity; since the arbiter decided on equity principles, the iudex acc. to laws (cf. adigo); arbitros dare, to appoint arbitrators. 2. (fig.) an umpire, judge, referee: formae; pugnae. 3. a lord, ruler, president: Hadriae; bibendi, i.e. the symposiarch; irae Iunonis, i.e. the agent or executor of her wrath; rerum (imperii), chief administrator, controller; locus effusi maris arbiter, i.e. that commands a view of, Hor.

arbitra, ae, f. [arbiter], a female witness, arbitress.

(1) arbitrātus, a, um, perf. part. from arbitror.

(2) arbitrātus, ūs, m. [arbitror], I. free-will, inclination, choice: arbitratu meo, at my own discretion. (Rare except in abl. sing.) II. (meton.) direction, guidance, oversight.

arbitrium (arbitērium), ii, n. [arbiter], I. the presence of witnesses: hence (poet. meton.) persons present: locus ab omni liber arbitrio. II. 1. the judgment or decision of an arbitrator. 2. (fig.) a decision, sentence, opinion, verdict: arbitria belli pacisque agere, to settle the conditions of peace and war. 3. mastery, power, dominion; will and pleasure; free-will, choice, discretion. 4. arbitria funeris, funeral expenses (fixed by an arbiter in cases of intestacy).

arbitro, āre, ātum, [id.], trans. v. 1. decide, determine. 2. think, judge, consider: te dignum; cum ipse praedonum socius arbitrare-tur.

arbitror, āri, ātus sum, [id.], trans. dep. I. witness, observe, Plaut. II. (judicial techn. t.) 1. give judgment, pronounce sentence, decide; idem arbitrari, to adjudge credit to a person, put faith in, Plaut. 2. (of a witness) dispose, testify: mortuum (esse eum) inde arbitrari. III. (meton.) be of opinion, judge, think, believe, consider.

arbitum. See arbutum.

arbŏr (arbōs), ōris, f. I. a tree; esp. in Virg. of the tree to which a vine was trained = Iovis, the oak; Palladia, the olive; Phoebi, the bay or laurel; Herculea, the poplar. Sts. (poet.) collect. trees; a wood. II. (meton.) of things made of wood; (a) mālī, a mast; (b) Pelias arbor, i.e. the ship Argo; (c) an oar; tenācia arbore fluctūs verberat; (d) a lance or javelin; (e) infelix, i.e. a gallows, gibbet.

arbŏreus, a, um, adj. [arbor], I. of a tree or trees: froudes. II. tree-like; branching.

arbōs. See arbor.

(1) arbuscŭla, ae, f. [dim. arbor], a small tree, shrub.

(2) Arbuscŭla, ae, f. an actress in mimes in Cicero's time.

arbustum, i, n. [arbos=arbor=arboretum], I. a place where trees grow; a shrubery; esp. an orchard or plantation of trees to which vines were trained; a vineyard. II. in pl. (meton. poet.) = arbores, trees, shrubs.

arbūtĕus, a, um, adj. [arbutus], of the arbute tree.

arbūtum (arbĭtum), i, n. the fruit of the arbute, an arbute berry. Poet. in pl. arbute leaves or twigs, which were used as fodder.

arbūtus, i, f. [akin to arbor], the arbute or wild strawberry-tree.

arca, ae, f. [arceo], I. a chest, box, coffer, trunk; esp. a cash-box, safe. II. (meton.) 1. money: arcae nostrae confidito, rely on my purse. 2. a coffin: cadavera villi portanda locabat in arcā. 3. a prison cell, dungeon; a lock-up in private houses in which slaves were confined.

Arcădes, um, m. pl. See Arcas.

Arcădĭa, ae, f. [Ἀρκαδία], a province of Peloponnēsus, surrounded by mountains. The inhabitants regarded themselves as the most ancient people in Greece. They were worshippers of Pan, and were skilled musicians.

Arcădĭcus, a, um, adj. Arcadian. As the Arcadians were noted for their simplicity, 'Arcadicus iuvenis' became proverbial for a gaby, blockhead, etc.

Arcădius, a, um, adj. Arcadian: dea, i.e. Carmenta; deus, Pan; sidus, i.e. the Great Bear; sus, i.e. the Erymanthian boar, destroyed by Hercules; virga, the wand of Mercury; virgo, i.e. Arethusa.

arcānō, adv. [arcanus], in secret, privately.

arcānum, i, n. See arcanus.

(1) arcānus, a, um, adj. [cf. arca, arceo], I. that keeps a secret, close, trusty: nox, voiceless, silent. II. secret, private, hidden, mysterious, clandestine: Cereris sacra, the rites of mystic Ceres, i.e. the Eleusinian mysteries. As subst. arcānum, i, n. 1. a secret: Iovis arcana, the secret councils of Jove. 2. a sacred secret, mystery.

(2) Arcānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Arcae, a Volscian town. As subst. Arcānum, i, n. a villa of Q. Cicero near Arcae.

Arcās, ădis, m. [Ἀρκάς], I. the son of Iuppiter and Callisto, who gave his name to the Arcadians. After death he was changed into a constellation (Arctophylax). II. 1. an Arcadian: bipennifer, i.e. Ancaeus. In pl. Arcădes, um, m. (Gk. acc. Arcādās), the Arcadians. As adj.=Arcadius; tyrannus, i.e. Lycaon, grandfather of Arcas the hero, i.e. Evander. 2. poet. (a) Mercury, who was born on M. Cyllene, Luc., Mart.; (b) Parthenopaeus, son of Atalanta, Stat.

arcĕo, fere, cŭi, ctum, [cf. ἀρκέω], trans. v. I. shut up, inclose, confine. II. 1. keep at a distance, keep or ward off, drive away: cestum pecori; famulas a limine templi; arcear aris. 2. hinder, prevent, restrain, forbid: transitum hostis; also poet. with obj. infin. quae (dicta) clamor ad aures arcuit ire meos. 3. shield, protect from: me funesto arcere veterno; classes Aquilonibus.

Arcēsius, ii, m. son of Iuppiter and father of Laertes.

(1) arcessītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from arcesso. As adj. far-fetched, forced: frigidi et arcessiti loci.

(2) arcessītus, ūs, m. (only in abl. sing.), [arcesso], a summons, call: tuo arcessitu venio.

arcesso (accerso), ĕre, īvi, ītum, (infin. arcessire, arcessiri, freq. in best authors), [ar=ad, cedo; cf. facesso; or ? ar-cio,=ad-cio], call-sat. v. I. call or send for, summon, fetch, procure, invite: aliquem mercede, call in to serve for pay, Caes. II. bring, carry on, provoke: adveniet iustum pugnae, ne arcessite, tempus. III. (legal techn. t.) summon into court, demand for trial, arraign, accuse: aliquem iudicio capitis, i.e. prefer a capital charge against a man. IV. (fig.) bring, fetch, derive (a subject, thought, etc.): ex medio res, draw one's materials from common life; tenues vitas.

Archĕlāus, i, m. [ʼΑρχέλαος], 1. a philosopher of the Ionic school, about B.C. 450. 2. a king of Macedonia, son of Perdiccas (B.C. 413-399). 3. a general of Mithridates who deserted to the Romans, B.C. 81. 4. his son, the rival of Ptolemy Aulētes, slain by Gabinius, B.C. 56. 5. a king of Cappadocia, deposed by Tiberius, A.D. 17. 6. son of Herod the Great, ethnarch of Judaea, Samaria, and Idumaea, banished by Augustus (A.D. 7) to Vienna in Gaul, where he died.

‡ archētȳpus, a, um, adj. [ἀρχέτυπος], stamped as a model; original: archetypos servare Cleanthas, genuine busts of Cleanthes, Iuv. As subst. archētȳpum, i, n. an original draft, sketch, etc.; a genuine antique. So, archetypos habes amicos, your friends are like so many objects of vertu, i.e. only for show, Mart.

Archĭăcus, a, um, adj. of or made by Archias: lecti; cf. ‘Chippendale’ furniture.

Archĭas, ae, m. 1. A. Licinius Archias, a Greek poet of Antioch, defended by Cicero, B.C. 61. 2. a cabinet-maker at Rome.

Archĭlŏchĭus, a, um, adj. I. of Archilochus, Archilochian. II. (meton.) Archilochus-like, severe, malevolent: edicta, Cic.

Archĭlŏchus, i, m. [ʼΑρχίλοχος], a Greek poet of Paros, inventor of the iambic metre, and a bitter satirist. About B.C. 714-676.

‡ archĭmăgīrus, i, m. [ἀρχιμάγειρος], a head-cook, ‘chef.’

Archĭmēdēs, is (-i, Cic.), (acc. Archimedem and -en), m. [ʼΑρχιμήδης], a famous geometrician of Syracuse, B.C. 287-212.

‡ archĭmīmus, i, m. [ἀρχίμιμος], a leading buffoon or merryandrew engaged at funerals.

‡ archĭpīrātă, ae, m. [ἀρχιπειρατής], a corsair or pirate chief.

architector, āri, ātus sum, [architectus], trans. dep. I. build, construct. II. (fig.) invent, devise.

architectūra, ae, f. [id.], the art of building, architecture.

architectus, i (-tōn, tōnis, rare), m. [ἀρχιτέκτων], I. a chief artificer, master-builder, architect, engineer. II. (fig.) an inventor, deviser, contriver, author.

Archȳtas, ae, m. [ʼΑρχύτας], a Pythagorean philosopher of Tarentum, and friend of Plato, famous also as a mathematician, statesman, and general. About B.C. 400.

arcĭ-pōtens, ntis, adj. [arcus; potens], lord of the bow; epith. of Apollo.

arcĭ-tĕnens, ntis, adj. [arcus; teneo], wielding the bow; archer-god; epith. of Apollo and Diana.

arctātus, arctē, arctĭus. See artatus, arte, artius.

‡ arctĭcus, a, um, adj. [ἀρκτικός; cf. Arctos], of or belonging to the Bear; hence (poet.) arctic, northern.

arcto, āre. See arto.

‡ Arctŏphȳlax, ăcis, m. [ʼΑρκτοφύλαξ, the Bear-warden], a constellation near the Great Bear; Bootes.

‡ Arctŏs (-us), i, f. (acc. sing. (poet.) arctŏn), [ἄρκτος], I. the Bear, a double constellation so called; the Greater and the Lesser Bear (Ursa Maior and Ursa Minor); hence, geminas qui separat Arctos. II. (meton.) 1. the countries of the North. 2. the north pole. 3. the north wind: porticus excipiebat Arcton, Hor. 4. the night: geminas requieverat Arctos, Propert.

‡ arctōus, a, um, adj. [ἀρκτῶος], pertaining to the Bear; northern. Cf. Arctos.

‡ Arctūrus, i, m. [ʼΑρκτοῦρος, fr. ἄρκτος, οὐρά], I. the chief star in the constellation Bootes (Arctophylax), near the tail of the Great Bear. Its setting (Oct. 29) was usually accompanied by storms. II. (meton.) 1. the whole constellation Bootes: Arcturi sidera, Virg. 2. the rising of A.: sub ipsum Arcturum, id.

(1) Arctus, i, f. See Arctos.

(2) arctus, a, um. See (2) artus.

arcŭātus, a, um, part. from arcuo. Cf. (1) arquatus.

arcŭla, ae, f. [dim. arca], I. a small box or casket: esp. (a) a painter's colour-box; (b) a lady's dressing-case, jewel-case, scent-box, pounce-box. Hence, II. (metaph. of an ornate style): Isocratis discipulorum arculas, the rouge-pots.

arcŭo (arquo), āre, āvi, ātum, (arcus), trans. v. make in the form of a bow, bend, curve: currus arcuatus, a curved carriage, Livy; opus, arched, or built upon arches, Plin.

arcus (arquus), ūs, m. [deriv. dub.], I. a bow. II. (meton.) 1. the rainbow; pluvius describitur arcus. 2. an arch, archway, vaulted roof: e tofis nativum duxerat arcum; arcum facere e cloacis, to make an arch out of a sewer, i.e. make much ado about nothing. 3. a triumphal arch. 4. anything in a bow shape, e.g. a bay, harbour, back of a chair; a curve, winding, bend, loop; one of the five parallel circles into which the heaven is divided.

ardālĭo, ōnis. See ardelio.

(1) ardĕa, ae, f. [cf. ἐρωδιός, a heron or hern.

(2) Ardĕa, ae, f. the chief town of the Rutuli, 20 miles S. of Rome, and the capital of Turnus.

Ardĕas, ātis, adj. [(2) Ardea], of Ardea.

Ardĕātīnus, a, um, adj. [id.], of Ardea.

ardēlĭo (ardăl-), ōnis, m. [ardeo], a busybody, jack-of-all-trades; a meddler, a Paul Pry.

ardens, ntis, pres. part. from ardeo. As adj. 1. burning, glowing, fiery, blazing, hot. 2. impetuous, eager, dashing, impassioned, ardent. Compar. ardentior; superl. ardentissimus.

ardenter, adv. [ardens], ardently, hotly, eagerly, passionately. Compar. ardentius; superl. ardentissime.

ardĕo, ēre, arsi, [aridus], intrans. v. I. take fire, be on fire, be consumed, rage, burn: (poet.) have one's house on fire. II. (fig.) 1. flash, sparkle, glow, glitter, shine. 2. be inflamed or fired (with any strong emotion, passion, etc.): burn, rage, glow; be eager, long (in the poets with obj. infin.): ardet abire fugax, esp. (poet.) burn with love, be madly in love; deus arsit in illâ (cf. (1) in, A. III. 2), Ov.; arsit virgine raptâ, Hor.; sc with obj. acc. (poet.) love madly, passionately: ardebat Alexin, Virg.; arsit adulteros crines, Hor.

ardesco, ĕre, arsi, [ardeo], incept. v. I. take fire, kindle, burn. II. (fig.) 1. gleam, glitter; in mucronem ardescere, to take a sharp and bright point (of a poniard). 2. be inflamed, kindle (with love, anger, etc.). 3. grow hotter, livelier, more intense, or more furious, increase in violence: fremitus ardescit equorum; ardescente pugnâ.

ardor, ōris, m. [ardeo], I. a burning heat; a flame, fire, blaze, glow. II. (fig.) 1. (of the eyes) sparkling fire, flash, brilliancy. 2. (of the external appearance) fire, animation. 3. (of the passions) ardour, vehemence, enthusiasm, eagerness, ardent desire. 4. passionate love; sc with obj. gen. III. (meton. poet.) the object of a passionate love; a ‘flame’: tu primus et ultimus illi Ardor eris, Ov.

Ardŭenna, ae, f. the Ardennes, a vast forest in N.E. Gaul, which extended, in Caesar's time, from the Rhine and the Treviri to the Nervii.

arduum, i, n. See arduus.

arduus, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.], I. high, elevated, towering aloft, uplifted; lofty, steep. As subst. arduum, i, n. (pl. ardŭa, ōrum), a steep place, steep, height: per arduum scandere; arduus montis. II. (fig.) 1. difficult of access or attainment, laborious, arduous. As subst. arduum, i, n. a difficulty, matter of difficulty: nec fuit in arduo scietas, there was no difficulty about alliance. 2. troublesome, disagreeable. 3. (of fortune) res arduae, difficulties; adversity, Hor.

āre-. See arefacio.

ārēa, ae, f. [deriv. dub.], I. 1. an open space, a building-site. 2. a piazza, square, recreation-ground. 3. a court-yard, area. 4. a threshing-floor. 5. (=spatium) a round-the circus; a race-ground, course: vitae tribus areis peractis, the three periods of life, i.e. boyhood, manhood, and the turn of life. Hence (fig.), ‘a field for effort or display, career, scope. II. (poet.) 1. jocosely, of a bald patch on the head, Mart. 2. a halo round the sun or moon, Sen.

Arectaeus, a, um, adj. (poet.) Babylonian: campi, Tibull.

arē-făcĭo (by Anastrŏphe, facio are, poet.), ēre, fēci, factum, [areo], trans. v. make dry, dry up, wither. Pass. arĕfio.

Arēlas, ātis (Arēlātē, ēs), f. a town of Gallia Narbonensis, now Arles.

Aremoricus, a, um. See Armoricus.

ărēna, arenarius, arenivagus, arenosus. See harena, etc.

ārens, ntis, pres. part. from areo. As adj. 1. dry, parched, arid. 2. parched with thirst, thirsty. Poet. as epith. of thirst: sitis, parching, drouthy, Lucr., Ov.

ārĕo, ēre, ŭi, intrans. v. 1. am dry, parched, or withered. 2. am parched with thirst.

ārĕŏla, ae, f. [dim. area], 1. a small open space or square, etc. 2. a garden-bed, Col.

‡ Ārĕŏpăgīta (Ārĭŏ-), ae, m. [Ἀρειοπαγίτης], an Areopagite, a member of the council of the Areopagus, q.v. Ironically in pl. of the senators, 'our Big-wigs,' Cic. Att. i. 16. 4.

‡ Ārĕŏpăgŏs (Ārĭŏ-), (-us), i, m. [Ἄρειος πάγος], the hill of Ares (Mars' Hill), over against the Acropolis at Athens. It was the place of meeting of the highest judicial court, of the same name, which had the trial of capital offences. See Dict. Ant.

ārĕsco, ĕre, [areo], intrans. incept. v. become dry, dry up; languish.

Ārestŏrĭdēs, ae, m. patron., a son or descendant of Arestor; i.e. Argus, Ov.

‡ ārētălŏgus, i, m. [ἀρετᾰλόγος, a prater about virtue], a Stoic or Cynic parasite whose duty it was to amuse the guests at dinner; a romancer, gasconader. Acc. to some, a court-jester, buffoon.

Ārēthūsa, ae, f. [Ἀρέθουσα], the daughter of Nereus and Thetis. Flying from the river-god Alphēus, in Elis, she was changed into a stream, and passing under the sea, became a fountain in Sicily. Cf. Alpheus.

Ārēthūsaeus (-īnus), a, um, adj. of Arethusa, Arethusian.

Ārēthūsis, ĭdis, f. adj. of Arethusa, Arethusa's; poet. epith. of Syracuse, Ov.

Ārētĭnus (Arr-), a, um, adj. of the town Aretium.

Ārētĭum (Arr-), ĭi, n. an important town of Etruria, now Arezzo.

‡ Ārētos, a, um, adj. [Ἄρειος], of or belonging to Ares: iudicium, i.e. the Areopagus, q.v.

Arganthŏnĭăcus, a, um, adj. of Arganthonius.

Arganthŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a king of Gades, who lived to be a hundred and twenty.

Arganthus, i, m. a mountain in Mysia.

Argēi, ōrum, m. pl. I. the name of twenty-seven places or chapels in Rome, consecrated by Numa for religious services. II. images of men, made of rushes, thirty in number, thrown into the Tiber annually on the Ides of May from the Sublician Bridge by the pontifices and Vestals.

argentārĭa, ae, f. [argentarius], 1. (sc. fodina) a silver mine. 2. (sc. taberna) a silversmith's, banker's, or money-changer's booth or shop; a bank. These shops were round about the Forum. 3. (sc. res) the business of a banker, broker, or money-changer: argentariam facere or administrare, to do discounting.

argentārĭus, a, um, adj. [argentum], I. of or belonging to silver: metalla, silver-mines. II. of or belonging to money: taberna, a bank; cura, anxiety about money. As subst. A. argentārĭus, ĭi, m. a private banker or money-changer; a broker (cf. mensarius): ab argentario scribere or solvere, to write an order for payment through or on a banker. B. argentārĭa, ae, f. See argentaria.

argentātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], I. ornamented with silver; silvered over: milites, soldiers whose shields were plated with silver. II. furnished with money, Plaut.

argentĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of silver, silver. As subst. argentĕus, i, m. (sc. nummus), a silver coin. II. (meton.) I. covered, plated, or adorned with silver. 2. silver white, silvery. 3. of the silver age: proles.

argentum, i, n. [cf. ἀργ-ός, white, ἄργ-υρος], I. the metal silver. II. (meton.) 1. silver plate. 2. coined silver; money; wealth.

Argestēs, ae, m. [Ἀργέστης], the W.N.W. wind.

Argēus (-īus), a, um, adj. [Ἀργεῖος], Argive, Grecian.

Argi, ōrum, m. pl. See Argos.

Argilētānus, a, um, adj. of, in, or upon the Argiletum, q.v.

Argilētum, i, n. [? argilla; the 'marl-bed'], the name of a part of Rome in the Vicus Tuscus, chiefly inhabited by mechanics and booksellers; the Paternoster Row of Rome. [It is sta. written, by Tmesis, Argi letum, with allusion to the death of Evander's friend Argus.]

argilla, ae, f. [ἄργιλλος, cf. ἀργός, white], white clay, potter's earth, marl.

Argĭnūsae (-aussae), ārum, f. pl. [Ἀργινοῦσσαι, sc. νῆσοι], a cluster of three small islands off the coast of Asia Minor, not far from Lesbos, where the Athenians under Thrasybūlus gained a signal victory over the Lacedæmonians under Callicratidas, B.C. 406.

Argīvus, a, um, adj. [Ἀργεῖος], I. of Argos, Argive: augur, i.e. Amphiaraus. II. (poet.) = Grecian. In pl. the Greeks. Gen. pl. Argivûm for Argĭvorum.

Argō, ūs, f. [Ἀργώ], the ship Argo, which carried Iason and his companions to Colchis in quest of the Golden Fleece.

Argŏlĭcus, a, um, adj. [Ἀργολικός], I. Argolic, Argive. II. (poet.) = Grecian.

Argŏlis, ĭdis, f. [Ἀργολίς], an Argive woman. Also (poet.) as f. adj. Grecian, Ov.

Argŏnautae, ārum, m. pl. [Ἀργοναῦται], the crew of the Argo, the Argonauts, who sailed with Iason to Colchis.

Argŏnautĭcus, a, um, adj. relating to the Argonauts. Argŏnautica, ōrum, n. pl. the title of a poem by Valerius Flaccus.

Argŏs, i, n. (only nom. and acc.), also Argi, ōrum, m. pl. I. Argos, the capital of the province Argolis in the Peloponnese, sacred to Iuno, and famed for its horses. II. (poet.) = Greece.

Argŏus, a, um, adj. [Ἀργῷος], of or belonging to the ship Argo or the Argonauts.

argūmentātĭo, ōnis, f. [argumentor], I. an adducing of proof, argumentation. II. the proof itself.

argūmentor, āri, ātus sum [argumentum], intrans. dep. 1. adduce a proof of or about a thing, prove by reasoning. 2. adduce something as or in proof. 3. make a conclusion, conclude.

argūmentum, i, n. [arguo], I. 1. an argument, evidence, proof. 2. a sign by which anything is known; a mark, indication, emblem. II. 1. the subject-matter, theme, contents, argument of a drama, speech, letter, etc. 2. (meton.) a play, fable, poem, etc.: sumque argumenti conditor ipse mei. 3. an artistic representation; device, scene, group in painting, sculpture, etc. III. (fig.) a representation or statement of any kind; a real plot, something tangible; actuality, reality, truth: tabulae novae quid habent argumenti, nisi ut, etc., what is their aim, or meaning? tota fabella, quam est sine argumento, how meaningless!

argŭo, ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, [cf. ἀργός, arg-entum], trans. v. I. 1. make clear, show, declare, prove, be a proof of, indicate. Pass. with reflex. force, betray one's-self: laudibus arguitur vini vinosus Homerus. 2. argue, maintain. Ov. II. 1. (with cause of complaint, etc., in gen. or with prep. de, or indic. clause as obj.) accuse, charge with; censure, reproach, blame: viros mortuos summi sceleris; de quibus quoniam verbo arguit; me Arguit incepto rerum accessisse labori. 2. convict, denounce as false, refute.

Argus, i, m. [Ἄργος], the hundred-eyed keeper of Io, slain by Mercury. Iuno placed his eyes in the peacock's tail.

argūtātĭo, ōnis, f. [argutor], a creaking: lecti, Catull.

argūtē, adv. [argutus], sagaciously, acutely, ingeniously. Compar. argutius; superl. argutissime.

argūtiae, arum, f. pl. [id.], 1. liveliness, activity ; animated expression, animation. 2. genius, wit ; witty remarks, badinage. 3. niceness of expression, subtlety : argutiis persequi, to refine upon, split hairs about a thing.

argūto, āre, [id.], trans. v. prate of, harp upon.

argūtŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. argutus], 1. somewhat subtle : libri. 2. a little loquacious.

argūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from arguo. As adj. I. clearly perceptible to the senses. Hence, (a) (of objects of sight) active, lively : manus ; ocelli, expressive ; caput (equi), clear cut, fine, well-shaped and set on ; (b) (of smells) pungent, searching : odor ; (c) (of sounds) clear, distinct, penetrating, shrill, ear-filling : hirundo, twittering ; olor, tuneful, melodious ; anser, cackling ; lacus, noisy ; ilex, rustling, whispering ; pecten, rattling, shrill, humming, whirring ; serra, grating ; solea, creaking ; (d) (of persons) rattling, noisy, wordy. II. clearly perceptible, pronounced, conclusive : candidus argutum sternuit omen amor. III. (of mental qualities) sagacious, shrewd, acute, subtle-minded, witty, racy ; sts. artful, cunning, sly. Compar. argutior ; superl. argutissimus.

Argynnus, i, m. a Boeotian youth who was drowned in the Cephisus.

‡ argȳraspis, ĭdis, adj. [ἀργύ-ρασπις], having a silver shield.

Argȳrīpa (-ippa), ae, f. See Arpi.

Ariadna, ae (-ē, ēs), f. [Ἀριάδ-νη], daughter of Minos. Having rescued Theseus from the Labyrinth, she fled with him to Greece, was abandoned by him at Naxos, and was there found by Bacchus, who married her, and made her crown a constellation.

Ariadnaeus, a, um, adj. of Ariadne, Ariadne's.

Āricīa, ae, f. I. a town of Latium, now La Riccia, on the Appian Way, 16 miles from Rome. Diana had a grove and temple there. II. a nymph, wife of Hippolytus and mother of Virbius.

Āricīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aricia.

āridŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. aridus], somewhat dry, parched, or shrivelled.

āridus, a, um, adj. [areo], I. dry, parched, sapless, arid, withered. As subst. āridum, i, n. a dry place ; dry land. II. (meton.) I. parched with thirst, thirsty. 2. (poet.) causing thirst, parching. 3. (of sound) crackling, snapping ; fragor. III. (fig.) I. shrivelled, shrunk, lean, meagre. 2. poor, indigent, poverty-stricken. 3. (of style) dry, uninteresting. 4. unfruitful, unimaginative, stupid : pueri, Suet. 5. stingy, Ter., Plaut.

ārĭēs, ārĭētis (in oblique cases poet. scanned trisyll. ārĭētis, etc.), m. [deriv. dub.], I. a ram. II. (meton.) 1. the ram of Phryxus, one of the signs of the zodiac ; sts. poet. by Synecdoche, the Golden Fleece. 2. battering-ram ; crebro ariete, with frequent strokes of the battering-ram, Virg. 3. a shore, prop, buttress. 4. a sea-monster.

ārĭētātio, ōnis, f. [arieto], a butting like a ram.

ārĭēto, āre, āvi, ātum, (arietat, trisyll. in Virg.), intrans. and trans. v. butt like a ram ; batter, strike violently.

Ārimaspi, ōrum, m. pl. a one-eyed people in the N. of Scythia.

Ārĭminensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Ariminum.

Ārĭminum, i, n. a town of Umbria, now Rimini, at the mouth of the river Ariminus.

Ārĭōbarzānēs, is, m. a king of Cappadocia. ārĭōla, ariolor, ariolus. See har-.

Ārĭon, ōnis (Gk. acc. Ārĭŏnă), m. [Ἀρίων], 1. a famous musician of Methymna, rescued from drowning by a dolphin. 2. a horse gifted with speech, sent by Neptune to Adrastus.

Ārĭŏnius, a, um, adj. of Arion, Arion's.

Ārĭŏpāgītes, ae. See Areopagites.

Ārĭŏvistus, i, m. a German chief in Caesar's time.

Ārisba, ae, f. 1. a town of Troas. 2. a town of Lesbos.

ārista, ae, f. [deriv. dub.], I. the beard of grain. II. (meton.) 1. the head or ear itself ; hence (poet.) in pl. summer-time, harvest-time : aliquot aristas, harvests, Virg. 2. an ear of spikenard, Ov. 3. (poet.) the hair of men, Pers.

Āristaeus, i, m. [Ἀριστα῀ος], a son of Apollo and Cyrene, born in Libya, but by Virgil connected with Thrace, where he fell in love with Eurydice. He taught men cheese-making, bee-keeping, etc., and was worshipped in Arcadia and the I. of Cea or Ceos.

Āristarchus, i, m. [Ἀρίσταρ-χος], I. a famous critic of Alexandria, flourished B.C. 156. He published an edition of Homer. II. (appel.) any critic.

Āristīdēs, is, m. [Ἀριστείδης], 1. an Athenian, surnamed 'the Just,' the rival of Themistocles. 2. the author of a licentious romance called Milesiaca.

Āristippus, i, m. [Ἀρίστιππος], a native of Cyrene, disciple of Socrates and founder of the Cyrenaic School of philosophy ; flourished about B.C. 370.

Āristius, i, m. a Roman name ; e.g. Aristius Fuscus, a literary man, and intimate friend of Horace.

Āristo, ōnis, m. a Stoic philosopher of Chios, pupil of Zeno ; flourished about B.C. 260.

‡ āristŏlŏchĭa, ae, f. [ἀριστολο-χία], the herb birthwort.

Āristophānes, is, m. [Ἀριστο-φάνης], 1. the famous comic poet of Greece, about B.C. 444-380, contemporary of Socrates. 2. an eminent grammarian of Byzantium, about B.C. 264. The use of Greek accents is due to him.

Āristophānēus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of Aristophanes, Aristophanean.

Āristotēlēs, is, (gen. Aristoteli, Cic.), m. [Ἀριστοτέλης], a native of Stagira, pupil of Plato, teacher of Alexander the Great, and founder of the Peripatetic School of philosophy, B.C. 384-322.

Āristotēlēus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of Aristotle, Aristotelian.

‡ ārithmētica, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. [ἀριθμητική, sc. τέχνη], the science of numbers, arithmetic.

‡ ārithmētĭcus, a, um, adj. [ἀριθμητικός], of or belonging to numbers or arithmetic, arithmetical. As subst. ārithmētĭcă, ōrum, n. pl. arithmetic.

Āriūsius, a, um, adj. of Ariusia, in the I. of Chios : vina, i.e. Chian, Virg.

arma, ōrum, n. pl. [cf. ar-, mus ; ἀσ-, ἁραρίσκω], I. lit. things fitted to the body ; equipments of every kind ; armour (whether for offence or defence), esp. the shield ; weapons, arms ; means of attack or defence. Prov. armis et casside, with might and main. II. (meton.) 1. war, warfare, battle. 2. (abstr.=concr.) armed men, warriors, troops, forces : neutra arma secutum, i.e. neither side or party. 3. (cf. Gk. ὅπλα) implements, tools, utensils, gear ; i.e. Cerealia, hand-mills, or, baking-troughs, Virg. Aen. i. 177 ; sts. the tackle of a ship (including rudder, sails, mast, etc.) : colligere arma, to reef the sails. III. (fig.) defence, protection.

armāmenta, ōrum, n. pl. [arma, 4], implements, utensils, gear ; esp. the tackle of a ship, rigging, cordage.

armāmentārium, ĭi, n. [armamenta], an armoury, arsenal.

armārium, ĭi, n. [arma], 1. a chest, safe, cupboard, clothes-press, cabinet, ambry. 2. a book-case.

armātūra, ae, f. [armo], I. armour, equipment. II. (abstr.=concr.) armed soldiers, always with adj. levis (=velites), light-armed troops, i.e. without the heavy armour of the legionaries.

(1) armātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from armo. As adj. armed, equipped, furnished. As subst. armātus, i, m. an armed man, soldier.

(2) armātus, ūs, m. [armo], I. armour, equipment. II. (meton.) armed soldiers. (Only in abl. sing.)

Armēnia, ae, f. a country of Asia, divided by the Euphrates into two unequal parts called Maior (now Kurdistan) and Minor (now Anatolia).

Armĕniăcus, a, um, adj. Armenian.

Armēnius, a, um, adj. Armenian. As subst. Armēnius, ĭi, m. an Armenian.

armentālis, e, adj. [armentum], of or belonging to a herd or drove of cattle.

armentārius, a, um, adj. [id.], pertaining to a herd. As subst. armentārius, ĭi, m. a herdsman, neatherd.

armentum, i, n. [arimentum; aro], I. cattle for ploughing; a herd; in pl. often, cattle. II. (meton.) a drove or herd of horses or other large animals.

armĭ-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [arma; fero], I. armour-bearing, armed; warlike. 2. producing arms or armed men: sulcus.

armĭ-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [arma; gero], 1. bearing arms or weapons, warlike. As subst. A. armiger, gĕri, m. (a) an armour-bearer: Iovis, i.e. the eagle; (b) an attendant, adherent, henchman. B. armigĕra, ae, f. a female armour-bearer. 2. producing arms or armed men: humus, i.e. the field at Colchis whence the armed men sprang.

armilla, ae, f. [armus], an ornament for the arm; armlet, bracelet.

armillātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part., 1. wearing a bracelet. 2. wearing a collar: canes.

Armilustrium, ĭi, n. See Armilustrum.

Armilustrum, i, n. a place in Rome where the consecration of arms (Armilustrium) was held annually, Oct. 19th.

Arminius, ĭi, m. [cf. Hermann], a chief of the Cherusci, who defeated the Romans under Varus, A.D. 9.

armĭ-pŏtens, ntis, adj. [arma; potens], powerful in arms, warlike, warrior, lord of arms.

armĭ-sŏnus, a, um, adj. [arma; sono], resounding or clashing with arms, clad in ringing arms.

armo, āre, āvi, ātum, [arma], trans. v. I. furnish with weapons, arm, equip, pass. reflex. arm one's-self. II. fit out, furnish; esp. for purposes of war. III. (fig.) excite, stir up, provoke: Claudii sententia consules armabat in tribunos.

Armŏrĭcus (Arēmŏrĭcus), a, um, adj. [Celtic ar, on; mor, the sea], on the sea-coast, Armoric. As subst. Armŏrĭcae, ārum, f. pl. the provinces on the N.W. coast of Gaul between the Seine and the Loire, in Normandy and Brittany.

‡ armus, i, m. [ἁρμός, ἀραρίσκω], I. the shoulder where it fits the shoulder-blade; the forearm or quarter, usually of an animal; sts. (of men) the shoulder, upper arm; (poet.) the arm. II. the flank or side of an animal.

Arnē, ēs, f. [Ἀρνη], a woman who betrayed her country for gold, and was changed into a jackdaw.

Arnĭensis, e, adj. of or belonging to the Arnus: tribus, i.e. situated on the Arnus.

Arnus, i, m. a river of Etruria, now the Arno.

ăro, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. ἀρ-όω], trans. v. I. plough, till (the ground): Litus arare, prov. of labour lost. Sts. without obj. acc. Hence, II. (meton.) 1. pursue agriculture, live by husbandry. 2. acquire by tillage, gain, Cic. 3. (poet.) cultivate, i.e. inhabit. III. (fig.) (a) (of a ship) plough the waves; (b) (of wrinkles or age) furrow; (c) (poet. of writing) score, scratch, or scrawl over, i.e. with the stilus.

Arpi, ōrum, m. pl. a town of Apulia, founded by Diomēdes, at first called Argos Hippium, and afterwards Argyripa.

Arpīnas, ātis, gentile adj. of Arpinum. As subst. a native of Arpinum.

Arpīnum, i, n. a town of Latium, the birthplace of Cicero and Marius.

Arpīnus, a, um, adj. 1. of Arpi. 2. of Arpinum: Arpinae chartae, i.e. Cicero's writings.

(1) arquātus (arcŭātus), a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [arquus=arcus], bent, arched.

(2) arquātus, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.; prob. akin to Sanscr. arkás, beam; cf. ἠλεκτρον], of a bright yellow colour: morbus, i.e. the jaundice. As subst. arquātus, i, m. a jaundiced person.

arquītĕnens, arquus. See arc-.

arr-. See adr-.

Arrētīnus, Arrētium. See Aretinus, Aretium.

arrha (arra), ae, arrhăbo (arrăbo), ōnis, m. [Hebrew word], earnest-money, a deposit.

Arrĭa, ae, f. the wife of P. Thrasea Paetus.

Arruns. See Aruns.

Arruntĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman nomen.

ars, artis, f. [cf. ἀρ-αρίσκω, arma], I. 1. skill in any work, occupation, etc. 2. any profession, pursuit, calling, art (whether of freemen, or of the lower classes and of slaves). (Poet.) ars meri, i.e. dancing, Ov. 3. in pl. learning and knowledge generally; accomplishments. II. (meton.) 1. science, knowledge. 2. the theory of any art or science; a system, method. 3. a treatise, esp. on rhetoric or grammar. 4. moral skill, workmanship, handicraft: arte laboratae vestes. 5. an artistic object, a work of art: clipeum . . . Didymaonis artes. 6. in pl. (personified), the Muses: Artium chorus. 7. means, resources: mille nocendi Artes. III. (of a moral character) 1. principles of conduct, qualities, gifts, habit, practice: multae sunt artes eximiae, huius administrae comitesque virtutis; hac arte Pollux . . . arces attigit igneas; animus insolens malarum artium. 2. (poet.) of plants, artificial form, style, Virg. G. ii. 52. 3. (in a bad sense) artifice, craft, cunning, stratagem.

Arsăcēs, is, m. the name of the founder of the Parthian empire.

Arsăcĭdae, ārum, (poet. Arsacidum), m. pl. patron. [Arsaces], the descendants or successors of Arsaces; sts. the Parthians, Persians.

Arsăcius, a, um, adj. id.], of Arsaces; Parthian, Persian.

Arsĭa Silva, ae, f. a forest in Etruria, the scene of a battle between the Tarquins and the Romans.

Arsĭnŏē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. [Ἀρσινόη], 1. the name of several females amongst the Ptolemies. 2. the name of several cities.

‡ arsis, is, f. [ἄρσις, a-raising], the rise of the voice on a syllable; opp. to thesis.

arsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ardeo.

Artăbānus, i, m. 1. a Parthian king. 2. a commander of Xerxes' bodyguard.

Artăcĭē, ēs, f. a fountain in Laestrygonia.

artātus (arct-), a, um, pert pass. part. from arto. As adj. 1. narrow, close. 2. (of time) short.

Artaxăta, ōrum, n. pl. (-a, ae, f.) the capital of Armenia Maior, built by Artaxias on the Araxes.

Artaxerxes, is, m. the name of four Persian kings.

artē (arctē), adv. [artus], I. closely, tightly, fast, firmly; (of soldiers) in close order. II. (fig.) in a narrow compass, narrowly; briefly, shortly: arte appellare aliquem, to shorten one's name in pronunciation. Compar. artius; superl. artissime.

Artĕmis, is, f. [Ἄρτεμις], a Greek goddess identified with the Roman Diana.

Artĕmĭsĭa, ae, f. wife of Mausōlus, king of Caria, in whose memory she built the Mausōlēum at Halicarnassus.

Artĕmĭsĭum, ĭi, n. a promontory on the N. coast of Euboea.

‡ artēria, ae, f. (-ium, ĭi, n.), [ἀρτηρία], 1. the windpipe; also, since it consists of two parts, in pl. artĕriae, ārum, f. and -a, ōrum, n. 2. an artery.

‡ arthrĭticus, a, um, adj. [ἀρθριτικός], gouty.

artĭcŭlāris, e, adj. [articulus], pertaining to the joints: morbus, i.e. gout.

artĭcŭlātim, adv. [articulo], I. joint by joint, piecemeal. II. (fig.) (of style) point by point, distinctly, clearly.

artĭcŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [articulus], trans. v. lit. divide into joints; hence (fig. of style), utter distinctly, articulate.

artĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. artus (2)], I. 1. a small connecting member or limb, a joint; a knuckle; a finger: articulorum dolores, i.e. the gout. 2. (of plants) a joint, knot. II. (fig.) 1. (of style) a member, part, division. 2. (of time) a point, a moment: in ipso articulo, at the very nick of time. 3. (of other things) a part, division, point, space: per eosdem articulos (i.e. honorum) et gradūs producere, the same stages, etc.

arti-fex, fĭcis, m. f. [ars; facio], A. as subst. I. an artist, artificer. II. (fig.) 1. a master in anything, an 'artiste.' 2. a maker, originator, inventor, actor, author, contriver. B. as adj. I. skilled in, clever, practised, dexterous: miles decollandi artifex; artifices Natura manūs admovit; (poet. with prolat. infin.) negatas artifex sequi voces, clever in imitating, Pers. II. (passively) 1. skilfully made or prepared, artistic, finished, ingenious, artificial: artifices vivida signa boves; vultus. 2. (poet.) (of a horse) well-broken, trained, Ov.

artificiōsē, adv. [artificiosus], with art, skilfully. Compar. artificiosius; superl. artificiosissime.

artificiōsus, a, um, adj. [artificium], I. (a) full of art, skilful, artistic, accomplished; (b) made with art, artificial, ingenious. II. (opp. to naturalis) according to the rules of art.

artificium, ĭi, n. [artifex], I. the occupation of an artifex; a profession, trade, handicraft. II. (meton.) 1. skill, knowledge, ingenuity. 2. a theory, system. 3. dexterity, ingenuity, technical skill, knack. 4. craft, cunning, artifice; a skilful contrivance, trick.

artissimē, adv. superl. of arte, q.v.

‡ (1) artĭus, a, um, adj. [ἄρτιος], complete, perfect, Suet.

(2) artĭus (arct-), adv. compar. of arte, q.v.

arto (arct-), āre, āvi, ātum, [artus (1)], trans. v. I. draw close together, compress, contract. II. (fig.) limit, curtail, abridge.

‡ artŏcrĕas, ātis, n. [ἀρτόκρεας], a largess of bread and meat, Pers.

‡ artŏlāgănus, ., m. [=ἀρτολάγανον], a savoury cake, flavoured with wine, milk, oil, lard, and pepper.

‡ artopta, æ, m. [ἀρτόπτης], a mould in which to bake bread or pastry. Acc. to some, a baker.

(1) artus (arc-), a, um, adj. [cf. ar-ma], I. narrow, close, confined: strait: compages, close-fitting, Virg. As subst. artum, i, n. a narrow place, space, or passage. II. (fig.) 1. straitened, scanty, small. 2. needy, indigent: res artae, straitened circumstances, distress. 3. close, stringent, severe: iura; artior somnus, a sounder sleep; vincula amoris artissima, a most intimate union of affection; artissimae tenebrae, very thick darkness; artior petitio, i.e. more closely contested, harder.

(2) artus, ūs, m. [id.], I. a joint (mostly in pl.). II. (meton.) the limbs; sts. (poet.) the body, frame.

ārŭla, æ, f. [dim. ara], a small altar.

ārundĭfer, ārundĭnĕus, ārundĭnōsus, ārundo. See harund-.

Arŭns (Arr-), untis, m. (Etruscan Arnth), I. an Etruscan name of younger sons, while the elder was called Lar or Lars. II. (a) a younger brother of Lucumo, i.e. L. Tarquinius Priscus; (b) a younger son of Tarquinius Superbus; (c) a seer, Luc.

Ārŭpīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Arupium, a town of Illyria.

ārŭspex, with its derivatives. See haruspex.

arvālis, e, adj. [arvum], pertaining to a cultivated field. Fratres Arvāles, a college of twelve priests, who yearly, on May 15th, propitiated by litanies and sacrifices the favour of the country gods. Cf. Ambarvalia.

Arvernī, ōrum, m. pl. a people of Gaul, whose name survives in Auvergne.

arvīna, æ, f. grease, fat, lard, suet, tallow.

arvum, i, n. See arvus.

arvus, a, um, adj. [ar-o], that has been ploughed (but not sown). As subst. arvum, i, n. (sc. solum), cultivated or ploughed land; an arable field, a field. Arva are, fields used for growing any kind of crops. II. (meton. poet.) 1. a region, country. 2. (poet.) fields, plains, Arva Neptunia, i.e. the sea. 3. land, a shore, coast: iamque arva tenebant (angues).

arx, arcis, f. [arceo], I. 1. a castle, stronghold, fortress, citadel; esp. the Capitol at Rome, the place used as an observatory by the augurs: arcem suis finibus impositam adorti, a fort commanding their territory; cf. Gk. ἐπιτείχισμα. Prov.: arcem facere e cloaca, to make a mountain of a mole-hill, make much ado about nothing. 2. (fig.) a refuge, bulwark, protection, defence. II. (meton.) 1. a height, summit, eminence; (a) of mountains; (b) of Olympus or heaven; (c) a house-top. 2. anything lofty, or built or placed in a lofty spot. 3. (fig.) height, head, summit, pitch, pinnacle: eloquentiae; belli.

as (assis), assis, m. [εἷς, Dor. αἷς, Tarent. ἆς], I. (lit. unity, a unit, as a standard for coins, weight, measure, etc. The as consisted originally of twelve unciae, for each multiple of which, and for some fractions there were distinct names: uncia, one-twelfth; sextans, two-twelfths, or one-sixth; quadrans, three-twelfths, or one-fourth; triens, four-twelfths, or one-third; quincunx, five-twelfths; semisis (semis), six-twelfths, or one-half; septunx, seven-twelfths; bessis (bes), eight-twelfths, or two-thirds; dodrans, nine-twelfths, or three-fourths; dextans or decunx, ten-twelfths, or five-sixths; deunx, eleven-twelfths; as, twelve-twelfths, or the unit. II. a copper coin so called; (value about ½d. English money); sts. called as libralis, or aes grave, from the ancient custom of weighing money; it was uncoined (aes rude) till the time of Servius Tullius. It was originally a pound, but was in course of time reduced to half an ounce: ad assem perdere, to lose to the last farthing. 2. since inheritance, and other money matters, were calculated by the notation of the as given above: haeres ex asse, sole or universal heir; haeres ex semisse, heir to half the estate; haeres ex dodrante, heir to three-fourths of the estate; etc. 3. a pound (in weight), Ov.

Asbŏlus, i, m. [ἀσβόλη, soot], 'Sooty,' one of Actaeon's hounds.

asc-. For words not found with this beginning, see adsc-.

Ascălăphus, i, m. [Ἀσκάλαφος], a son of Acheron and Orphne, changed into an owl by Persephone for betraying to Pluto that she had eaten part of a pomegranate.

Ascānius, ĭi, m. also called Iulus, son of Aeneas and Creusa, and founder of Alba Longa.

‡ ascaules, is, m. [ἀσκαύλης], a bagpiper.

ascĭa, æ, f. 1. a carpenter's axe or adze. 2. a mason's trowel. 3. a hoe or mattock.

Asciburgium, ĭi, n. a town on the Rhine, now Asburg.

Asclēpĭădes, æ, m. 1. a famous physician of Bithynia, friend of Crassus. 2. a blind philosopher of Eretria. 3. a Greek poet, inventor of the lyric metre named after him.

‡ ascŏpēra, æ, f. [ἀσκοπήρα], a leathern travelling-bag or knapsack.

ascr-. See adscr-.

Ascra, æ, f. a village of Boeotia on M. Helicon, the birthplace of Hesiod.

Ascraeus, a, um, adj. I. of or from Ascra: senex, i.e. Hesiod. As subst. Ascraeus, i, m. (sc. vir), Hesiod. II. (meton.) 1. of or belonging to Ascra or Hesiod: carmen, i.e. the Works and Days of Hesiod. 2. of Helicon, Heliconian: fontes, Propert.

Ascŭlānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Asculum.

Ascŭlum (Asclum), i, n. the chief town of Picenum.

Asdrŭbal. See Hasdrubal.

āsella, æ, f. [dim. asina], a small she-ass; a female ass colt.

āsellus, i, m. [dim. asinus], 1. a little ass, an ass colt. 2. (fig.) of a sensualist, Iuv.

Ăsĭa, æ, f. [Ἀσία] I. a town of Lydia, which gave its name to the surrounding region. II. Asia Minor, which as a Roman province included Mysia, Lydia, Caria, and Phrygia. III. one of the three great divisions of the world. [The quantity of II. III. is generally short (Ăsia).]

Asĭānus, a, um, adj. [Ἀσιανός], of or belonging to the Roman province of Asia. As subst. Asiani, ōrum, m. pl. 1. the inhabitants of the province of Asia. 2. the equites who farmed the revenues of the province.

Asiāticus, a, um, adj. [Ἀσιατικός], Asiatic. As subst. Asiāticus, i, m. a cognomen of Cornelius Scipio, the conqueror of Antiochus, B.C. 190.

āsilus, i, m. a gad-fly, breeze, horse-fly.

āsina, ae, f. [asinus], a she-ass.

Asīniānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the gens Asinia or an Asinius.

Asīnius, ĭi, m. a Roman name. The most famous of the gens Acilia was Asinius Pollio, orator, poet, and historian of the Augustan age, friend and patron of Virgil, Horace, and other literary men (B.C. 76-4).

āsinus, i, m. [akin to ὄνος], I. an ass. II. (fig.) a blockhead, simpleton.

Āsis, idis, f. adj. (poet.) Asian, Lydian. As subst. (sc. terra), Asia, Ov.

Āsĭus, a, um, adj. I. of Asia I. : palus, the Asian mead, a marshy tract on the banks of the Cayster, in Lydia. II. of Asia Minor, Asiatic. As subst. Āsĭa, ae (sc. terra),=Troas.

Āsōpĭădēs, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Asopus ; esp. Aeacus.

Āsōpis, idis (ĭdŏs), (Gk. acc. Āsōpĭdă), f. patron. a daughter of Asopus ; (a) Aegina, mother of Aeacus ; (b) Eudne. As adj. (poet.) Boeotian, Stat.

Āsōpŏs (-us), ī, (Gk. acc. Āsōpŏn), m. [Ἀσωπός], 1. a river of Boeotia ; personified, the father of Aegina, Eradne, and Euboea. 2. a river of Thessaly.

‡ āsōtus, i, m. [ἄσωτος], a profligate, debauchee.

asp-. For words not found with this beginning, see adsp-.

Aspărăgium, ĭi, n. a town in Illyria, on the river GenusSus.

‡ aspărăgus (asph-), i, m. [ἀσπάραγος (ἀσφ-)], asparagus.

Aspăsia, ae, f. a famous Athenian hetaera, friend of Socrates, and mistress of Pericles.

as-pello, ĕre, [abs, pello], trans. v. drive away, remove.

Aspendĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aspendos : Aspendius citharista, prov. of one who has an eye to number one, Cic.

Aspendŏs (-us), ī, f. [Ἄσπενδος], a city of Pamphylia, on the Eurymedon.

(1) asper, ĕra, ĕrum, (aspris, sync.=aspĕris, Virg.), adj. (deriv. dub.), I. 1. rough, uneven, rugged : Rubigo, i.e. rough with blight, Ov. As subst. aspĕrum, i, n. a rough place. 2. of raised work, bas-relief, etc. : aspera signis poculа, embossed, stamped ; nummus, not worn, newly coined. 3. (of the sea) stormy, tempestuous. 4. prickly, thorny : barba : sentis ; rubus. II. (meton.) 1. (of taste or smell) harsh, sour, sharp, acrid, pungent : vinum ; sapor. 2. (of sound) jarring, grating ; hence, (poet.) epith. of the letter R. 3. (in rhetoric) rugged, irregular. 4. (of climate, weather, etc.) inclement, boisterous : asperrimo hiemis, in the extreme rigour of winter. III. (fig.) A. 1. (of the character, disposition) rough, harsh, violent, cruel, unkind, rude ; (of a coquette) coy, dour, frowning : Pholoe, Hor. 2. (of a manner or rule of life) austere, rigid : Stoicorum doctrina. 3. (of animals) fierce, intractable, wild, savage, dangerous. B. (of things) adverse, calamitous, perilous, distressing, painful, trying. As subst. aspĕra, ōrum, n. pl. adversities. C. (of language) abusive, biting, bluff, ill-natured, rude : verba ; facetiae. Compar. asperior ; superl. asperrimus.

(2) Asper, ĕri, m. a cognomen of the tribune L. Trebonius.

aspĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from aspero.

aspĕrē, adv. [asper], 1. roughly, harshly. 2. (fig.) unkindly, bitterly, rudely. Compar. asperius ; superl. asperrime.

aspĕrĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. roughness, unevenness : saxorum ; viarum. II. (meton.) 1. harshness, acidity, tartness : vini. 2. shrillness, roughness : vocis ; soni. 3. inclemency, rigour : hiemis ; frigoris. III. (fig.) A. 1. severity, austerity, austere living : Stoicorum. 2. fierceness, cruelty, harshness, savageness, asperity : naturae ; patris. 3. coarseness of manner or appearance, want of polish : agrestis. B. adversity, trouble, difficulty : rerum ; belli. 2. harshness or ruggedness of style or language, coarseness : verborum.

aspernans, ntis, part. from aspernor.

aspernātĭo, ōnis, f. (aspernor), a despising, disdain.

a-spernor, ārī, ātus sum, [ab ; sperno], trans. dep. I. 1. cast off, disdain, spurn, despise, reject. 2. (with infin.) scorn fully refuse, Tac., Stat. II. (fig.) cast a slur upon, deny : patriam. Sts. aspernor is used pass.

aspĕro, āre, āvī, ātum, [asper], trans. v. I. make rough or uneven, roughen. II. furnish with a rough or jagged edge : sagittas ossibus ; hence, whet, sharpen : pugionem. III. (fig.) 1. make fierce, irritate, exasperate, provoke : ne lenire neve asperare ominа videretur, i.e. to aggravate the charges. 2. (poet.) give a fierce or savage look to : lumina, Claud.

‡ aspis, idis (Gk. acc. aspĭda), f. [ἀσπίς], a viper, asp, adder.

asportātĭo, ōnis, f. [asporto], a carrying off or away.

as-porto, āre, āvī, ātum, [abs : porto], 1. carry or take off or away. 2. (of persons) transport, convey.

asprētum, i, n. [asper], a rough or uneven place.

aspris, sync. for asperis, from (1) asper.

ass-. For words not found with this beginning, see ads-.

assa. See assus

Assărăcus, i, m. [Ἀσσαράκος], king of Troy, son of Tros, father of Capys, grandfather of Anchises : Assaraci gens or domus, i.e. the Romans ; Assaraci nurus, i.e. Venus ; frater, i.e. Ganymede.

asser, ĕris, m. [? adsero (2)], I. a pale, stake, post, joist, beam : falcātus, a long pole with a sharp curved iron head, used in sieges for cutting down the garrison on the walls. 2. a palisade-pole.

(1) assĭdŭus (ads-), a, um. See adsiduus.

(2) assi-dŭus, a, um, adj. [as ; do ; an as-giver], I. a tribute or rate-payer (a name given by Servius Tullius to the citizens of the upper classes, in opp. to the proletarii, q.v.). II. (meton.) a rich man, capitalist, Plaut. As adj. (fig.) first-rate, capital : scriptor, id.

(1) assis, is, m.=as.

(2) assis, is, m. f.=axis.

assŭla (acs-, ast-), ae, f. [dim. axis], 1. a small board or plank, a lath. 2. (meton.) a chip, splinter, shaving.

(1) assum, i, n. See assus.

(2) assum. See adsum.

assus, a, um, adj. [cf. ἄζω], I. roasted, roast. As subst. assum, i, n. roast meat : vitulinum, roast veal. II. (meton.) dry : sudatio, a vapour-bath. As subst. (a) assa, ōrum, n. pl. a hot-air chamber, a sweating-bath ; (b) assa, ae, f. (with or without nutrix), a dry-nurse, Iuv.

Assўrĭa, ae, f. [Ἀσσυρία], a district of Asia between Media, Mesopotamia, and Babylonia. Sts. more widely used for the entire country watered by the Euphrates and Tigris, and likewise for the Assyrian Empire.

Assўrĭus, a, um, adj. Assyrian. Sts. (poet.) Syrian, Median, Phoenician, Indian, etc., Oriental. As subst. m. pl. the Assyrians.

(1) ast-. For words not found with this beginning, see adst-.

(2) ast, conj. See at.

asta, ae, f. See hasta.

Astăcidēs, ae, m. patron. a son or descendant of Astacus, i.e. Melampus, Ov., Stat.

Astăcus, i, m. [Ἄστακος], the father of Melampus.

Astartē, ēs, f. [Ἀστάρτη], Ashtaroth or Ashtoreth, a Syro-Phoenician goddess, identified with Venus.

Astĕrĭa, ae (-ē, ēs), f. 1. daughter of the Titan Coeus, and sister of Latona. She was changed into a quail, and gave the name to Ortygia (quail island), afterwards called Delos. 2. the mother of the Tyrian Hercules. 3. a female name, Hor.

(?) ‡ astĭcus, a, um, adj. [ἀστικος, of the city] : ludi, games in the city in honour of Bacchus, Suet.

Astraea, ae, f. [Ἀστραία], daughter of Zeus and Themis, goddess of justice. During the Golden Age she lived on earth, but finally abandoned it and became a constellation (either Virgo or Libra).

Astraeus, i, m. [Ἀστραῖος], a Titan, husband of Eos (Aurora), and father of the winds, who are thence called Astraei fratres, Ov.

‡ Astrăgălizontes, um, m. pl. [οἱ ἀστραγαλίζοντες, the dice-players], a famous group of statuary by Polycletus.

astrĭ-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [astrum; fero], I. starry. II. placed among the stars, Mart.

astrĭ-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [astrum; gero], star-bearing, starry, Claud., Stat.

‡ astrŏlŏgĭa, ae, f. [ἀστρολογία], knowledge of the stars, astronomy.

‡ astrŏlŏgus, i, m. [ἀστρολόγος], 1. an astronomer. 2. (in later Latin) an astrologer.

‡ āstrum, i, n. [ἄστρον], I. one of the heavenly bodies; a star. II. in pl. (meton.) (a) height: turris educta sub astra; (b) heaven, the sky. III. (fig.) heaven, immortality: sic itur ad astra.

‡ astu (-y), n. indecl. [ἄστυ], a city; esp. Athens.

astŭla, ae. See assula.

Astur, ŭris, adj. of Asturia, Asturian. As subst. an Asturian.

Astŭra, ae, f. the name of a river and town in Latium, near which Cicero had an estate.

Asturco, ōnis, m. [Astur], an Asturian horse, Spanish nag, palfrey.

Astŭria, ae, f. a province of Hispania Tarraconensis.

astus, ūs, m. [deriv. dub.], craft, trickery, cunning (as a single act, opp. to astutia, the habit of cunning). Mostly in abl. sing.=adv. deftly, skilfully. In later Latin in nom. acc. pl.

astūtē, adv. [astutus], craftily, cunningly, adroitly. Compar. astutius; superl. astutissime.

astūtĭa, ae, f. [id.], 1. (in a good sense) adroitness, dexterity. 2. (in a bad sense) the habit or practice of cunning, craft, slyness. In pl. astūtiae, ārum, f. practices of chicanery.

astūtus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [astus], shrewd, sagacious. More freq. in a bad sense, sly, cunning, artful. Compar. astutior; superl. astutissimus.

asty. See astu.

Astўăgēs, is, m. [Ἀστυάγης], 1. the last king of Media, father of Mandane, and grandfather of Cyrus (c. 594-559). 2. an enemy of Perseus, changed into stone by the Medusa's head.

Astўănax, actis, m. [Ἀστυάναξ], the son of Hector and Andromache.

Astўlos, i, m. [Ἄστυλος], a centaur and seer.

Astўpălaea, ae, f. [Ἀστυπάλαια], one of the Sporades, in the S. of the Aegean.

Astўpălaeensis, e, adj. of or from Astypalaea.

Astўpălēĭus, a, um, adj. poet.= preceding.

‡ āsўlum, i, n. [ἄσυλον], a place of refuge, sanctuary, asylum; esp. that opened by Romulus at Rome.

‡ āsymbŏlus, a, um, adj. [ἀσύμβολος], that does not pay his share at a feast, scot-free, Ter.

‡ āsyndĕton, i, n. [ἀσύνδετον], absence of conjunctions, a figure by which connecting particles are omitted: e.g. urbe, domo socias.

at, ast, conj. [cf. ἀτ-άρ], 1. as a strongly adversative conj. introducing an emphatic statement different from and opposed to the preceding one: but, yet, on the other hand: non placet M. Antonio consulatus meus; at placuit P. Servilio. 2. (in objections) but, on the contrary: quid tandem te impedit? mosne maiorum? at persaepe etiam privati in hac re publica perniciosas cives morte multārunt. 3. at enim, at vero, sts. at alone (to introduce an objection which must be answered, like ἀλλὰ νὴ Δία in Greek), but, it may be said; but, it is alleged; but, you will say: at enim, cum permagna praemia sunt, est causa peccandi. At vero malum est liberos amittere. Malum, nisi hoc peius sit, haec sufferre et perpeti. At memoria minuitur. Credo, nisi eam exerceas. At non formosa est, at non bene culta puella. 4. (in exclamations) but! una mater Cluentium oppugnat. At quae mater! ay, and what a mother! 5. (in imprecations, prayers, wishes, and to denote sudden or strong emotion) nay, then: at vobis male sit, malae tenebrae Orci! At tu, nauta, vagae ne parce malignus arenae . . . Particulam dare. At, o deorum quidquid in caelo regit Terras et humanum genus, Quid iste fert tumultus? 6. (=at tamen) at any rate, but yet, at least (in the apodosis of a conditional sentence): si mortalia temnitis arma, At sperate deos, etc. Liceat haec nobis, si oblivisci non possumus, at tacere. 7. (to introduce an explanation) now: at illi foeda cicatrix . . frontem turpaverat oris. 8. to mark transitions or carry on a narrative, like δέ in Greek), e.g. the opening of Virgil's 4th Aeneid, At regina gravi iamdudum saucia cura, etc. 9. (techn. in religious formulae, esp. in vows), in that case, then: Bellona, si hostis victorem duis, aut ego templum tibi voveo, Livy.

Ātăbŭlus, i, m. a hot south-easterly wind prevailing in Apulia, now called Altino; the sirocco.

Atăcinus, a, um, adj. I. pertaining to the river Atax, in Gallia Narbonensis. II. a cognomen of the poet P. Terentius Varro, the author of an Argonautica (B.C. 82-38).

Ătălanta, ae (-ē, ēs), f. [Ἀταλάντη], 1. a daughter of Schoeneus, king of Boeotia, famed for her swiftness in running. 2. a daughter of Iasius, king of Arcadia, beloved by Meleager.

ătăt, attat, also several times repeated attatae, atatatae, etc., interj. expressive of pain, grief, annoyance, fear, surprise, etc., tut tut! dear me!

Ătăvus (-ŏs), i, m. [at=ad; avus], I. a great-great-great-grandfather. II. (meton.) an ancestor, forefather: Maecenas, atavis edite regibus.

Ătax, ăcis, m. [Ἄταξ], a river in Gallia Narbonensis, now the Aude.

Ateius. See Atteius.

Ătella, ae, f. an ancient town of the Osci, in Campania.

Ātellānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Atella. Atellānae fabulae (fabellae), or simply Atellānae, popular farces written in Oscan dialect, which originated in Atella. They were distinguished from the mimes by the absence of low and coarse buffoonery. As subst. Ātellānus, i, m. an actor in an Atellan farce, Suet.

Ātellānĭcus, a, um, adj.=preceding.

āter, tra, trum, adj. [deriv. dub.], I. black (opp. to albus); coal-black, sable, dark. II. (poet.)= atratus, clad in black: lictores. III. (fig.) 1. black, dark, dismal, gloomy. 2. calamitous, fatal: dies atri (in the Roman Calendar), unlucky days; they were marked with coal, lucky days with chalk. 3. malicious, virulent, poisonous, deadly: versus; dens; serpens; tigris.

Āternum, i, n. a town of Samnium at the mouth of the river Aternus, now Pescara.

Āthămānes, um, m. pl. the men of Athamania, a country in the S. of Epirus.

Āthămānis, ĭdis, f. an Athamanian woman.

Āthămantēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Athamas, Athamantic: sinus, Ov.; aurum, i.e. the golden fleece of Phrixus, Mart.

Āthămantĭădes, ae, m. patron. a son of Athamas, i.e. Palaemon.

Āthămantis, ĭdis (-ĭs), f. patron. a daughter of Athamas, i.e. Helle.

Āthămānus, a, um, adj. of Athamania, in Epirus.

Āthămas, ntis, m. [Ἀθάμας], king of Orchomenus, son of Aeolus, and father of Phrixus and Helle. He had also two sons, Learchus and Melicertes, by Ino. Being seized with madness, he slew Learchus and threatened Ino, who threw herself, with Melicertes, into the sea. They were changed into sea deities, Ino becoming Leucothea and Melicertes Palaemon.

Athēnae, ārum, f. [Ἀθῆναι], Athens, the capital of Attica.

(1) Athēnaeus, a, um, adj. [Ἀθηναῖος], Athenian, Lucr.

(2) Athēnaeus, i, m. [Ἀθηναῖος], a learned Greek grammarian about A.D. 230, author of the Deipnosophistae.

Athēniensis, e, adj. of Athens, Athenian. As subst. Athēniensis, is, m. an Athenian.

Athēnio, ōnis, m. a slave, leader of a slave rising in Sicily.

‡ athĕŏs (-us), i, m. [ἄθεος], an atheist.

Athĕsis, is, m. a river of Upper Italy, now the Adige or Etsch.

‡ athleta, ae, m. [ἀθλητής], a wrestler, athlete, prize-fighter.

Athō, ōnis (?), (dat. Athō, acc. Athō, Athon, Athōnem, abl. Athōne), ae, f. a town of the Volsci, now Atina.

Atīnas, ātis, gentile adj. of Atina. As subst. Atīnas, ātis, m. a man of Atina.

Atlantēus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Atlas: Pleiades. II. of M. Atlas; hence, West African, Libyan; Atlantic.

Atlantiădēs, ae, m. patron. a son or male descendant of Atlas: (a) Mercury, grandson of Atlas; (b) Hermaphroditus, great-grandson of Atlas.

Atlantiădis, ădis, f. patron, a daughter or female descendant of Atlas.

Atlanticus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to M. Atlas; hence, West African, Libyan: mare, the Atlantic.

Atlantĭdes, um, f. pl. See Atlantis.

Atlantis, ĭdis, f. adj. I. of or belonging to M. Atlas: silva, i.e. a forest of citrus trees, Luc. II. of or belonging to Atlas. As subst. a daughter of Atlas; epith. of Electra and Calypso. In pl. Atlantĭdes, um, f. the Pleiades.

Atlas, ntis, m. [Ἄτλας], I. a high mountain in Mauretania. II. 1. a Titan, king of Mauretania, son of Iapetus and Clymene, changed into the mountain which bears his name, and on which the heaven rested. 2. (meton.) a giant: hence, a dwarf's nickname, Iuv.

‡ ătŏmus (-os), i, f. [ἄτομος], an indivisible particle, an atom. Democritus held that all things were composed of atoms.

atque (āc before consonants only), conj. [ad-que, and so sts. written], I. 1. and also, and I may say, or rather, and. It adds something important, while ct associates things of equal importance. 2. (in combinations) (a) atque adeo, and even in fact, and, and what's more; (b) atque hic, is, and that too, and besides: duabus missis cohortibus, atque his primis legionum duarum; negotium magnum est navigare, atque id mense Quintili; (c) alius atque alius, one and another; now this, now that. II. (in comparisons) (a) (after adjj. or advv. denoting equality) as, with: magistrum equitum pari ac dictatorem imperio fugavit; (b) (after adjj. or advv. denoting difference, contrariety, etc.) than, to: cuius ego salutem non secus ac meam tueri debeo, i.e. just as much as; non alius atque sum, not different to what I am; (c) (post, for quam with comparatives) than: haud minus ac iussi faciunt; non tuus hoc capiet venter plus ac meus; artius atque hederā procera adstringitur ilex. III. (to denote the rapid and sudden sequence of one act or event upon another) and then, straightway; and lo, when, lo: vir gregis ipse caper deerraverat, atque ego Daphnin Aspicio. Dixerat; atque illam media inter talia ferro Conlapsam adspicunt comites. IV. (to connect an adversative clause) and yet, notwithstanding: ego quia non rediit filius, quae cogito? Atque ex me hic natus non est, sed ex fratre. V. and so, and thus, accordingly: ac de primo quidem officii fonte diximus.

atqui (adqui), conj. [at, qui, abl. of quis, indef.], I. (to connect an adversative clause or assertion) and yet, but yet, anyhow: vitas hinnuleo me similis, Chloe, . . . Atqui non ego te . . . frangere persequor. 2. (introducing an objection which needs to be considered) yet but, nevertheless, but indeed, but anyhow: magnum parras, vix credibile. Atqui Sic habet; non sum apud me. Atqui opus est cum maxime ut sis. 3. (to introduce a fresh step in the reasoning) but, but now, now: haud si virtutes pares sunt inter se, paria esse etiam vitia necesse est; atqui pares esse virtutes facillime potest perspici.

Ātrăcĭdes, ae, m. patron. a son of Atrax; poet. for Caeneus, a Thessalian.

Ātrăcis, ĭdis, f. adj. a Thessalian woman; epith. of Hippodamia. Cf. Atrax.

Ātrăcĭus, a, um, adj. [Atrax], I. of or from Atrax, in Thessaly, Atracian. II. (meton. poet.) Thessalian: ars, i.e. magic, for which the Thessalians were famous, Stat.

ātrāmentum, i, n. [ater], I. any black liquid. 2. ink. 3. a blacking, lacquer, or varnish.

ātrātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [ater], clothed in black, dressed in mourning; poet. of the horses of the sun under an eclipse, Propert.

Atrax, ăcis, m. [Ἄτραξ], a town in Pelasgiōtis, in Thessaly.

Atrĕbas, ātis, m. an Atrebatian.

Atrēbātes, um (-i, ōrum), m. pl. a people in Gallia Belgica, whose name survives in Artois and Arras.

Ātreus, ei (-ĕos), (dissyll.), acc. Atrĕa, m. [Ἄτρεύς], king of Mycenae, son of Pelops and Hippodamia, brother of Thyestes, and father of Menelaus and Agamemnon.

ātrī-cŏlor, ōris, adj. (poet.) [ater], black or dark-coloured: Cadmi filiolis atricoloribus, i.e. letters written in ink, Auson.

Ātrĭdes, ae, m. patron. I. a son or male descendant of Atreus. In pl. Ātrĭdae, ārum, m. the sons of Atreus, i.e. Menelaus and Agamemnon. II. (poet. iron.) the commander-in-chief, i.e. the emperor (Domitian): Itur ad Atrīden, Iuv.

ātrĭensis, e, adj. [atrium], belonging to the atrium. As subst. ātrĭensis, is, m. (sc. servus), a house-steward, 'maître d'hotel.'

ātrĭŏlum, i, n. [dim. atrium], a small atrium; esp. a second or back atrium with sleeping-rooms ranged round it.

ātrium, ĭi, n. [ater: acc. to some =αἴθριον], I. an entrance-room, hall; the large reception and living-room next to the entrance, which formed one of the two principal parts into which a Roman house was divided. See Rich, Dict. Ant. II. (meton.) 1. the house; in pl. halls, rooms (generally): nec cantent Phrygias atria nostra tubas. 2. the court or hall of a temple or other public building: in atrio Libertatis. 3. atrium auctionarium (and sts. absol.), an auction-hall, auction-room.

ātrōcĭtas, ātis, f. [atrox], 1. harshness, hideousness, horribleness, enormity, revoltingness (of external objects): sceleris; temporum. 2. (of the mind or manners) savageness, inhumanity, barbarity, sternness, severity. 3. strictness, exactness.

ātrōcĭtĕr, adv. [id.], fiercely, harshly, cruelly, violently, indignantly; atrocius accipere, look on with disgust. Compar. atrocius; superl. atrocissime.

‡ Ātrŏpŏs, i, f. [Ἄτροπος, not to be turned], one of the three Parcae.

ātrox, ōcis, adj. [ater], 1. horrible, horrid, hideous, frightful, shocking, revolting. 2. gloomy, sullen, harsh, savage, inhuman, fierce. 3. stern, stubborn, uncompromising: praeter atrocem animum Catonis.

Atta, ae, m. I. Atta, a name given to people who walk on tiptoe. II. the comic poet, T. Quinctius Atta, who died B.C. 78.

(1) attactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from attingo.

(2) attactus, ūs, m. [attingo], only in abl. sing., touch, contact.

‡ attăgēn, ēnis, m. (-ēna, ae, f.), [ἀττα γήν], a grouse, heath-cock.

Attălēa. See Attalia.

Attălenses, ium, m. pl. the men of Attalea or Attalia.

Attălia (-ēa), ae, f. [Ἀττάλεία], the name of a city, (a) in Mysia, (b) in Pamphylia, (c) in Galatia.

Attălĭcus, a, um, adj. [Attalus], of or belonging to Attalus: urbes, i.e. Pergamus, Tralles, Thyatira, etc.; condicionibus, terms such as an Attalus could offer, i.e. by offering all the wealth of Attalus; vestes, i.e. of cloth-of-gold, the invention of Attalus. As subst. Attălica, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. vestimenta, or aulæa), cloth-of-gold garments, tapestry, etc.

Attălus, i, m. the name of several kings of Pergamus. The most famous, Attalus III., made the Roman people heir to his vast wealth, which was proverbial.

attămĕn, conj. but yet, but nevertheless, at any rate. See at, ĕ, and tamen.

attat, attate. See atat.

attĕgia, æ, f. [deriv. dub.], a Moorish hut or wigwam.

attemperātē (adt-), adv. [attemperatus], seasonably, opportunely.

attempto (adt-), attento, āre, āvi, ātum, [ad; tempto, tento], trans. v. 1. strive after, essay, attempt, make trial of, take in hand. 2. assail, attack; solicit, tamper with.

at-tendo (adt-), ĕre, tendi, tentum, [ad; tendo], trans. and intrans. v. I. stretch, stretch towards, turn towards. II. (fig.) 1. animum (animos) adtendere, animo adtendere, or adtendere (absol.), to give attention to, take heed to; consider, mind, mark, observe. 2. (with dat.) attendere alicui rei, devote one's self to, give attention to, study: eloquentiæ. 3. (with acc. of person or thing) mark, observe, notice: Cic., Sall.

attentē (adt-), adv. [(1) attentus], attentively, carefully. Comp. attentius; superl. attentissime.

attentĭo (adt-), ōnis, f. [attendo], application: animi.

attento, āre. See attempto.

(1) attentus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from attendo. As adj. attentive to, intent on, earnestly engaged or engrossed in. 2. careful, frugal, niggardly.

(2) attentus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from attineo.

attĕnŭātē (adt-), adv. [attenuatus], simply, without ornament: dicere.

attĕnŭātus (adt-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from attenuo. As adj. 1. impaired, weak, reduced, enfeebled. II. (of style) (a) shortened, brief, concise; (b) too refined, affected; (c) simple, unornamented, meagre, bald.

at-tĕnŭo (adt-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. make thin, weaken, enfeeble, impair, reduce, diminish, waste away, attenuate. II. abase, make mean, bring low.

at-tĕro (adt-), ĕre, trīvi (sts. poet. tĕrŭi), trītum, traj. trans. v. I. rub against; rub polish. II. (meton.) wear away by rubbing; hence, impair, injure, destroy: bucula surgentes atterat herbas, trampl upon, bruise. III. (fig.) grind down, impoverish, ruin: nec publicanus atterit, impoverish. In pass. attĕror, suffer dumage, get the worst of it.

at-testor (adt-), ārī, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. bear witness to, attest, corroborate. 2. call to witness.

at-texo (adt-), ĕre, ŭi, xtum, trai. trans. v. I. weave on or to a thing. II. (fig.) tack on, add.

Atthis (Attis), ĭdis, f. adj. [Ἀττίς], Attic or Athenian. As subst. 1. an Attic or Athenian woman; esp. (a) Philomela, and hence (meton.), a nightingale; (b) Procne; and (meton.) a swallow. II. one of Sappho's friends. III. (sc. terra) Attica.

Attĭānus (Acc-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Attius or Accius.

Attĭca, æ (-ē, ēs), f. [Ἀττική], I. a province of Greece, with Athens for its capital. II. the name of the daughter of T. Pomponius Atticus.

(1) Attĭcē, ēs, f. See Attica.

(2) Attĭcē, adv. in the Attic or Athenian style or language. Cf. (1) Atticus, II.

(1) Attĭcus, a, um, adj. [Ἀττικός], I. Attic, Athenian. As subst. Attĭci, ōrum, m. pl. the Athenians. II. (fig.) Attic (as being the height of refinement, etc.); exquisite, delicate, polished, refined, superior: lepos; aures, critical.

(2) Attĭcus, i, m. the surname of T. Pomponius, Cicero's friend.

attĭnĕo (adt-), ēre, tĭnŭi, tentum, [ad; teneo], trans. and intrans. v. ; A. (trans.) I. hold to or near. II. hold fast, keep, retain; check, hinder, detain, keep in play, engage. B. (intrans.) I. (fig.) stretch out, reach. II. only in 3d person, mostly sing. 1. hoc ad me (me) attinet; haec attinent; hoc attinet (absol.), this belongs to, has to do with, concerns me: quod ad eam civitatem attinet, as regards that city; quae nihil attinent, what is irrelevant. 2. hoc attinet, haec attinent, attinet (with inf. as subj.), it concerns, it is of importance, it matters: quid attinet tot ora navium gravi Rostrata duci pondere? what avails, what boots it that, etc.?

at-tingo (adt-), ĕre, tĭgi, tactum, [ad; tango], trans. v. I. 1. come in contact with, touch. 2. reach, arrive at: cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit, Caes.; si te his attigerit terris Aurora morantem, overtake, find, Virg. 3. touch by striking, strike, assail, attack. 4. touch or border upon, lie near to: eorum fines Nervii attingebant. II. (fig.) 1. affect, concern, touch: si qua de Pompeio nostro . . . cura te attingit. 2. belong or appertain to, relate or have reference to; be attached to, accompany; be adapted to: labor non attingit decus. 3. touch upon (in speaking), mention slightly, hint at: rem paucis. 4. enter upon, take in hand, have to do with, engage in, dabble in: militiam; Graecas literas; poëticen.

Attĭn, ĭnis (Attis, ĭdis; Ătys, yos), m. [Ἄττιν, Ἄττις, Ἄτυς], a young Phrygian shepherd beloved by Cybele.

Attis, ĭdis, f. adj. See Attihis.

Attĭus (Accius), ĭi, m. a Roman name. 1. L. Attius; see Accius. 2. Attius Navius, an augur in the time of Tarquinius Priscus. 3. T. Attius, an orator of Cicero's day.

at-tollo (adt-), ĕre, [ad; tollo], trans. v. I. 1. lift on high, raise, elevate: attollo me, or attollor (reflex.), I raise myself up, rise, stand erect, appear. 2. (of building) erect, raise, construct: molem, Virg. II. (fig.) raise, elevate, sustain; extol, aggrandise, magnify; render prominent, distinguish: in malus attollere, exaggerate.

at-tondĕo (adt-), ēre, tondi, tonsum, [ad; tondeo], trans. v. 1. clip, shear, crop, shave. 2. lop off, prune: vitem. 3. gnaw at, nibble, browse, crop (in feeding): virguita.

attŏnĭtus (adt-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from attono. As adj. 1. thunderstruck, stunned, crazed, astounded, amazed; struck with alarm, terrified; bewildered, perplexed, paralysed, confounded. 2. seized with inspiration, inspired, frenzied.

at-tŏno (adt-), āre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. stun, strike with awe or amazement, startle, terrify, drive distracted, make infuriate.

attonsus (adt-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from attondeo.

at-torquĕo (adt-), ēre, [ad; torqueo], trans. v. hurl or swing up.

attractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from attraho. As adj. drawn, contracted (of the brow).

at-trăho (adt-), ĕre, traxi, tractum, trans. v. I. draw or drag to one. II. (fig.) draw, attract, win, allure; move, incite.

at-trecto (adt-), āre, āvi, ātum, [ad; tracto], trans. v. I. touch, handle. II. (fig.) lay hands upon, appropriate, meddle with.

at-trĕmo, ĕre, traj. v. tremble at, Stat.

at-tribŭo (adt-), ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, traj. trans. v. I. 1. assign, allot, commit, make over to: video cui Apulia sit attributa. 2. (techn. t.) (a) give public money on account: pecuniam redemptori attribuendam curent; (b) (of public estates or property) make over, assign, Suet. Also of private assignments. II. (fig.) 1. annex, join, attach. 2. attribute, ascribe, impute to. 3. impose as a tax or tribute: his rebus omnibus terni (sc. nos) in singula millia aeris attribuerentur.

attribūtio (adt-), ōnis, f. [attribuo], 1. the assignment of a money debt. 2. (in gram.) an attribute, predicate.

attribūtus (adt-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from attribuo.

(1) attritus (adt-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from attero. As adj. I. worn with rubbing, rubbed off, wasted: vomer, rubbed bright, polished. II. (fig.) 1. ruined, broken down: opes. 2. shameless, impudent, hardened: frons, i.e. so smooth that shame could not cling to it, Juv.

(2) attrītus, ūs, m. [attero], a rubbing against, friction.

Attys, yos. See Atys.

Atūrus (-urrus), i, m. a river of Aquitania, now the Adour.

Ātys (Attys), yos, m. [Attus, Attys], 1. a son of Hercules and Omphale, the mythic father of Lydus and Tyrrhenus. 2. the ancestor of the gens Atia. 3. the grandson of Latinus and father of Capys. 4. cf. Attius.

au, interj. See (1) hau.

auceps, cŭpis, m. [contr.=avi-ceps; avis; capio], I. 1. a bird-catcher, fowler. 2. (poet.) a poulterer, game-dealer, Hor. II. (fig.) one who is on the look out for anything, a catcher-up, Cic., Plaut.

auctĭo, ōnis, f. [augeo], I. an increasing, increase. II. a sale (by increase of bids); a public sale, auction. III. (meton.) the goods on sale at an auction.

auctiōnārius, a, um, adj. [auctio], of or belonging to an auction: atria, auctioneering rooms; tabulae, catalogues of sale.

auctiōnor, āri, ātus sum, [id.], intrans. and trans. dep.; A. (intrans.) hold an auction or sale. B. (trans.) buy at a sale. (Rare.)

auctĭto, āre, [freq. aucto], trans. v. increase largely and systematically, Tac.

aucto, āre, [freq. augeo], trans. v. increase, enlarge; endow largely.

auctor, ōris, m. f. [augeo], I. one who produces, creates, causes, originates, promotes; (a) a creator, progenitor, founder, sire (of a family); nobilitatis; generis; (b) a builder, founder: Troiae Cynthius auctor; murorum templi; (c) an inventor: obsunt auctoribus artes. II. 1. (meton.) the originator, executor, doer, author, cause, source (of anything); facti; carminis; vulneris; muneris, i.e. the giver or sender; suam quisque culpam auctores ad negotia transferunt, i.e. the guilty or responsible parties. 2. a person responsible for any saying or writing; an authority (in anything); a security, witness, announcer, reporter, informant: rerum, i.e. an historian; non si mihi Iuppiter auctor Spondeat; Polybius, bonus auctor in primis; criminis ficti; pluvine, harbinger. Hence, auctor esse (with acc. and inf.), to report, vouch: Fabius Rusticus auctor est scriptos esse . . . codicillos. 4. a suggester, counsellor, adviser, instigator, promoter: quid mihi es auctor? (=quid mihi suades) what do you advise me? (with ut (ne) and subj.) mihi ut absim vehementer auctor est; (with obj. clause) ego tibi non sim auctor . . . te profugere; (with gen. gerund.) restituendae tribuniciae potestatis. Hence, me, te, eo auctore (abl. abs.), at my, your, his instance; by my advice; on my recommendation, or responsibility. III. (political techn. t.) 1. auctor legis, (α) a mover or proposer of a law; (β) a backer or supporter of a law; (γ) a ratifier or confirmer of a law (of the senate); hence, auctores facti, to give approval, sanction. 2. (poet.) a lawgiver: legesque feret iustissimus auctor. 3. auctor consilii publici, the responsible adviser of the policy of the state. IV. (legal techn. t.) 1. a seller, vendor: si malus auctor, a malo; non habet ius ad ullo; beneficii populi Romani. 2. a guardian, trustee (of women and minors): dos quam mulier nullo auctore dixisset. 3. a witness to a marriage contract: nubit genero socrus, nullis auctoribus. 4. an agent, representative, spokesman; champion, defender, backer, partisan: auctorem senatus exstinctum laeti tulit; alhquid opis pro sua quisque parte ferre potuisset, si auctor adfuisset, i.e. had there been any one to back us up.

auctōrāmentum, i, n. [auctoro], 1. a contract or stipulation, whence arises an obligation to serve; a bargain. 2. wages, pay, hire: servitutis.

auctoritas, ātis, f. [auctor], I. a producing, production, invention, source, origin. II. 1. (a) a deliberate opinion, judgment, view; (b) advice, persuasion, instigation. 2. (a) personal weight, moral influence, character, authority: vir summa auctoritate et religione et fide; (b) worth, value, importance, consequence, estimation, credit: publicarum tabularum huius auctoritatem, this place of dignity. 3. a precedent, pattern, model: omnium superiorum auctoritatem repudiare; auctoritas disciplinaque rei publicae capessendae, a pattern and lesson, i.e. a model system of politics. 4. warranty, surety; grounds for belief, credibility. 5. a record, document, documentary evidence, credentials: hoc tabulis privatis publicisque auctoritatibus vobis planum facienus. 6. the name of; the title is security for something, a guarantee: cum auctoritates principum coniurationis colligeret. 7. the names of persons present at the drawing up of a decree of the senate. III. 1. injunction, direction, bidding, command: auctoritatem Caesaris persecuta est. 2. (political techn. t.) (a) the will of the senate; a decree or resolution of the senate. The term was used when a tribune's veto had prevented a regular decree (consultum) from being passed; (b) auctoritas populi, the will or decision of the people; (c) (in pl.) official documents, the resolutions or decrees of civic corporations: civitatum auctoritates ac litteras. 3. power, authority, ability, licence: legum dandarum; peccandi. IV. (legal techn. t.) right of possession, legal ownership: ADVERSUS . HOSTEM . ÆTERNA . AVCTORITAS, against a stranger the right of ownership is inalienable, i.e. no length of possession can give a stranger a title to the property of a Roman citizen.

auctōro, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], I. become security for. II. se auctorare, or pass. reflex. auctorari, to bind or engage one's self; esp. of gladiators, etc., to hire out or sell one's self or services, surrender one's self.

auctumnālis (aut-), e, adj. [auctumnus], of or belonging to autumn, autumnal.

auctumnus (aut-), a, um, adj. with old participial ending: cf. termination -ομενος in Gk., and alumnus [auctus: augeo]; autumnal: frigus. As subst. auctumnus (aut-), i, m. I. the increasing season; Autumn. II. (meton.) the produce of autumn (i.e. wine, fruits, a vintage, harvest, etc.).

(1) auctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from augeo. As adj. enlarged, increased. Compar. auctior.

(2) auctus, ūs, m. [augeo], I. an increasing, augmenting, increase, growth, addition. 2. (meton.) increased size, expansion, bulk: fluminum auctūs, swollen rivers.

aucŭpium, ĭi, n. [auceps], I. birdcatching, fowling. II. (meton. poet.) winged game, birds caught. III. (fig.) a catching at, lying in wait for: verborum, i.e. quibbling; hoc novum est aucupium, this is a new fetch.

aucŭpo, āre, trans v. See aucupor.

aucŭpor, āri, ātus sum, [auceps], dep.; A. (intrans.) go birdcatching or fowling. B. trans. (fig.) give chase to; be in quest of, be on the look-out for, hunt up, watch for, snatch eagerly at, catch at: tempus; somnos. N.B. active form aucŭpo, āre, freq. in Plaut. of eavesdropping or playing the spy.

audācia, ae, f. [audax], I. boldness, daring, courage, intrepidity. 2. (in a bad sense) audacity, presumption, impudence, effrontery. 3. (in pl. abstr.=concr.) deeds of daring or recklessness, unscrupulous acts.

audăcĭter (-acter), adv. [id.], 1. boldly, daringly, courageously; recklessly, audaciously. Compar. audacius; superl. audacissime.

audax, ācis, adj. [audeo], 1 daring (in a good sense), bold, resolute, courageous; more freq. rash, venturesome, presumptuous, foolhardy, reckless, unscrupulous. Constr. with abl. gen., infin. and prep. ad. 2. (meton.) violent, fierce: Cerberus. Compar. audacior; superl. audacissimus.

audens, ntis, part. from audeo. As adj. daring, bold, intrepid, fearless. Compar. audentior; superl. audentissimus.

audentĕr, adv. [audens], boldly, fearlessly, confidently Compar. audentius.

audentĭa, ae, f. [id.], 1. boldness, daring, assurance, confidence (in a good sense). 2. (fig.) licence.

audĕo, ēre, ausus sum, subj. pres. ausim (? akin to aveo), semidep. intrans. and trans.; A. (intrans.) 1. dare, venture, be bold, courageous: (poet. in pregn. sense, =audenter ire), audere in proelia, march or muster boldly, Virg. B. (trans.) with acc. of thing ventured, venture, dare: extrema; immane nefas; sperare.

audibam, sync. for audiebam.

audiens, ntis, part. from audio, (a) as subst. a hearer, auditor; (b) as adj. (with dat.), obedient to: dicto.

audientia, ae, f. [audio], a hearing, listening; attention: audientiam facere alicui, to command silence or procure a hearing for a person.

audin', by apocope for audisne?

audĭo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, imperf. sync. audibam [akin to auris; Sanscr. root AV-S Gk. ἀϝ, cf. ἀ-ί-ω, hear; Curtius, 386, 403], trans. v. I. 1. hear, perceive, or understand by hearing; learn by report, am orally informed, read in history. In phrases: (a) audire aliquid de aliquo, to hear something of a person; (b) aliquid in aliquem, to hear something against a person; (c) audito, abl. abs. impers., on receipt of the news that (with acc. and infin.): audito venisse nuntium. 2. listen to a person or thing, give attention to, heed; esp. (a) (of pupils) receive instruction from, hear lectures from, study under: Cleanthes qui Zenonem audivit; (b) (of judges) audire aliquem, aliquid, or de aliqua re, hear, examine into, sit in judgment on; (c) (of prayers, etc.) lend an ear to, hear, regard, grant. II. (meton.) 1. hear, pay heed to, thing with approval; assent to, agree with; approve, allow: nec Homērum audio, qui ait; sts. absol. in admissions, istum exhederare in animo habebat. Audio (that I will listen to, granted); nunc dicis aliquid quod ad rem pertineat, Cic.; non audio, I won't hear of it, id. 2. listen to, heed, obey; freq. with dat.: non si me satis audias, speres; neque audit currus habenas; (with dat.) istis magis audiendum censeo; si potest tibi dicto audiens esse quisquam. 3. hear one's-self called, be named or styled, pass for: tu recte vivis, si curas esse quod audis; subtilis rerum index et callidus audis; (poet. with infin.) quod barathrum fodisse audit Amphitryoniades, is reputed to have dug, Catull. Hence, bene or male audire, to be well or evil spoken of, have a good or bad name. Cf. Gk. κλύω, ἀκούω, and καλῶς or κακῶς ἀκούειν.

auditĭo, ōnis, f. [audio], I. 1. a hearing, listening. 2. hearsay. II. (meton.) a report, sts. in pl.: auditiones fictae, false reports, hearsay.

auditor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a hearer, auditor. 2. a pupil, disciple. Cf. audio, 2 (a).

auditōrium, ĭi, n. [auditor], I. a place for hearing; a lecture-room, hall of justice. II. (meton.) the hearers, the audience.

(1) auditus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from audio.

(2) auditus, ūs, m. [audio], I. 1. a hearing, listening. 2. a listening to for instruction, attention. II. (meton.) 1. a rumour, report; intelligence. 2. the sense of hearing, the hearing.

aufĕro, ferre, abstŭli, ablātum, [ab, fero], trans. v. I. carry off, take or bear away, remove; with reflex. pron. take one's-self off, withdraw, retire. II. (fig.) carry away, divert, mislead, dupe: Colchis ablate venenis; Ut me malus abstulit error! III. 1. take or snatch away, withdraw, remove; take by force, wrest from, rob, steal. 2. take off, kill, destroy, consume. 3. do away with, cease from, lay aside: auferte metus; aufer abhinc lacrimas; iurgium hinc auferas, a truce to. Sts. (poet.) with obj. infin.: aufer Me vultu terrere, forbear to. IV. 1. carry off as the fruit of one's labour, etc.; gain, obtain, get, acquire: famam; paucos dies ab aliquo; inultum nunquam id auferet, he shall not get off unpunished for it, Ter.; (absol.) haud sic auferent, they shall not get off thus cheaply, id. Sts. with ut: ut in foro statuerent (statuas) abstulisti, you extorted from them the placing of statues in the forum. 2. (fig.) derive knowledge, grasp a fact, understand: quis est in populo Romano qui hoc non ex priore actione absulerit?

Aufĭdēna, ae, f. a town in Samnium on the river Sagrus.

Aufĭdus, i, m. the chief river of Apulia, now the Ofanto. As adj. (poet.) Aufidus, a, um, of Aufidus; ironis; stagna.

aufŭgĭo, ĕre, fūgi, fŭgĭtum, [ab; fugio], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) flee, run away, escape. B. (trans.) flee from: blanditias.

Augē, ēs, f. [Αὐγη], daughter of Aleus, mother of Telephus by Hercules.

Augēas. See Augias.

augĕo, ēre, auxi, auctum, [cf. [αὐξάνω], trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) I. increase, enlarge, augment, strengthen, develop, expand: auxerunt blandae grandia dona preces, i.e. backed up, seconded. 2. endow, enrich, load with, bless; adorn, advance, improve, add lustre to: consilio, auctoritate, sententia, augeri senectus solet; amplis honoribus solum pomis, pile up; genus virtute. B. (intrans.) increase, grow: locum augendi, room for increase, Cic.

augesco, ĕre, [incept. augeo], intrans. v. begin to grow, wax greater, grow, increase.

Augĭas (-ēas, -ās), ae, m. [Αὐγείας, Αὐγέας], a king of Elis, one of the Argonauts. The fifth labour of Hercules was to cleanse in one day the stables of Augeas, containing 3000 head of cattle, which had been uncleansed for thirty years.

augmĕn, ĭnis, n. [augeo], an increase, enlargement, addition.

augŭr (old form auger, qs. avi-ger), gŭris, m. f. [avis; ger-o, or prps. from avis, and GAR- root of garrio (γηρύω)], lit. a bird-manager. I. an augur, soothsayer, diviner (who predicts the future by the feeding, cries, or flight of birds). II. (meton.) 1. a diviner, seer. 2. a forteller, prophet, presager: veri; futuri; aquae. 3. an interpreter: nocturnae imaginis. 4. in app.=adj. prophetic, Virg.

augŭrālis, e, adj. [augur], of or belonging to an augur, augural: libri. As subst. augūrāle, is, n. 1. a space on the right side of the general's tent in a Roman camp, where the augurs were taken; hence (meton.) the general's tent, headquarters. 2. the augur's staff or crosier.

augŭrātio, ōnis, f. [auguror], a divining, soothsaying.

(1) augŭrātus, a, um, part. (a) from auguror. (b) from augur. Augŭrāto, abl. abs. impers. after taking auguries. Cf. auspicato.

(2) augŭrātus, ūs, m. the office of an augur.

augŭrium, ĭi, n. [augur], I. the science of augury (cf. augur); augury: agere, to take an augury. II. (meton.) 1. divination in general, soothsaying, prophecy, interpretation. 2. a presentiment, foreboding: fallitur augurio spes bona saepe suo. 3. an omen, prognostic, token, presage.

augŭrius, a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to an augur, augural: ius.

augŭro, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) act as an augur, take auguries for something; hence, (fig.) look carefully round, examine (as an augur would). B. (trans.) I. consecrate by auguries: in augurato templo ac loco. II. (meton.) conjecture, surmise, forebode, presage.

augŭror, āri, ātus sum, [id.], trans. and intrans. dep. 1. take auguries, augur, divine, prophesy, predict, foretell. 2. (meton.) surmise, conjecture, guess.

Augusta, ae, f. the name of several towns: Augusta Taurinōrum, now Turin; Praetoria, now Aosta; Vindelicorum, now Augsburg.

Augustālis, e, adj. of or pertaining to the Emperor Augustus, Augustan: sodales or sacerdotes, a college of twenty-one priests instituted by Tiberius in honour of Augustus. Augustus also founded an order of priests called Augustales to superintend the worship of the Lares Compitales.

Augustānus, a, um. See Augustianus.

augustē, adv. [augustus (II.)], reverently, sacredly. Compar. augustius.

Augustiānus (-tānus), a, um, adj. [(2) Augustus], of or pertaining to Augustus, Augustan. As subst. Augustiāni (-tāni), ōrum, m. pl. 1. a body of imperial knights instituted by Nero. 2. the men of a city called Augusta.

Augustŏdūnum, i, n. a town of the Aedui, now Autun.

(1) augustus, a, um, adj. [augeo], lit. consecrated, devoted; often joined with sanctus. I. venerable, honourable, sacred, august. II.

imposing, stately, majestic. Compar. augustior; superl. augustissimus.

(2) Augustus, i, m. [(1) augustus], the surname of C. Octavius Caesar (afterwards C. Julius Caesar Octavianus), conferred by the senate and people B.C. 27. The title was afterwards assumed by all the Roman emperors; equivalent to 'Majesty,' or 'Imperial Majesty.' As adj. Augustus, a, um, 1. of or belonging to Augustus, Augustus's; imperial. 2. mensis Augustus, the month of August (previously called Sextilis), named after the emperor.

(1) aula, ae (old gen. aulai), f. [αὐλή], I. 1. an open court; a farm-yard: pastoris, i.e. a sheep-pen. 2. an inner court or hall of a house = atrium. II. (meton.) 1. a palace, royal court. 2. (poet.) the queen-bee's cell. 3. princely power or dignity. 4. the persons belonging to the court, the court, courtiers.

(2) aula=olla, q.v.

‡ aulaeum, i, n. [αὐλαία], 1. a piece of tapestry, arras, hangings; a curtain, screen, canopy. 2. the drop-scene or curtain of a theatre, consisting of a piece of embroidered tapestry rolled round a spreader let into a recess in front of the stage. This curtain was lowered (hence, aulaea premuntur or mittuntur) when the acting began, and drawn up again (hence, aulaea tolluntur) when the scene or play was over. In the process of drawing it up, the figures embroidered on it, as their heads and arms gradually rose to view, would seem to be lifting the curtain; hence, intexti tollant aulaea Britanni (Virg. G. iii. 25). 3. a coverlet of tapestry for sofas or dining-couches. 4. (poet.) the drapery of a heavy voluminous toga, luv.

Aulerci, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe of Gallia Celtica.

Aulestes, ae, m. a Tuscan.

Aulētes, ae, m. [αὐλητής, flute-player], the surname of the exiled Egyptian king Ptolemy.

aulicus, a, um, adj. [(1) aula], of a prince's court, princely. As subst. aulici, ōrum, m. pl. courtiers.

Aulis, ĭdis, (acc. Aulidem, Liv.; Aulin, Luc.; Aulida, Ov.), f. [Αὐλίς], a seaport in Boeotia, whence the Greeks sailed for Troy.

‡ auloedus, i, m. [αὐλῳδός], one who sings to the flute.

Aulon, ōnis, m. a mountain near Tarentum, famed for its vineyards.

Aulus, i, m. a Roman praenomen, abbr. to A.; e.g. A. Albinus.

‡ aura, ae, (old. gen. aurai), f. [αὔρα], cf. ἀω, ἀημι; Sanscr. AV-, VA-, blow], I. 1. air (in motion), a breath of air, a breeze, a soft or gentle wind; sta. a violent wind, gale. 2. breath, breathing: flammas exsuscitat aura. II. (fig.) (a) breath, air, wind: rumoris; tenuis famae; (b) popularis aura, the breeze of popular favour; sts. without popularis: aurā non consilio ferri. III. (meton.) 1. (a) the air (mostly in pl.); the sky, firmament, heaven; the atmosphere: vitales aurae, the breath of life; (b) the upper world (opp. to Hades); (c) (fig.) daylight, publicity: sub auras ferre, to bring to light, publish. 2. vapour, exhalation, odour, scent. 3. a bright light, gleam, sheen: auri. 4. lit. the air that conveys the sound; hence, sound, tone, voice, echo, report, Propert., Virg.

aurārius, a, um, adj. [aurum], of or pertaining to gold, gold-: metalla, gold-mines. As subst. aurārius, ae, f. (sc. fodina), a gold-mine.

aurātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part., as if from auro [aurum], I. overlaid, plated, ornamented, or enriched with gold, gilded, gilt: tecta; tempora, i.e. with golden helmet; lacerti, i.e. with bracelets of gold; sinus, i.e. with a golden clasp, or interwoven with threads of gold. II. of gold, golden: pellis; lyra; monilia.

Aurēlius, ĭi, m. a Roman name. As adj. Aurēlius, a, um, of Aurelius, Aurelian: via; lex. Forum Aurelium, an Etrurian town on the Via Aurelia.

aurĕŏlus, a, um, adj. [dim. aureus], I. delicately or daintily gilded; gold, golden: malum. As subst. aurĕŏlus, i, m. (sc. nummus) a gold coin=100 sesterces; a guinea. II. (fig.) fair as gold, beautiful: pedes, dainty, delicate, Catull.; libellus.

aurĕus, a, um, adj. [aurum], I. of gold, golden: corona; fibula. As subst. aurĕus, i, m. (sts. with nummus), a gold coin=100 sesterces; a guinea. II. enriched or ornamented with gold, gilded. III. (fig.) 1. of the colour of gold, golden. 2. beautiful as gold, precious, fair, lovely; magnificent, matchless, first-rate, superb.

aurichalcum. See orichalcum.

auricilla (ōricilla), ae, f. [dim. auricula], a tiny ear-lobe, Catull.

auri-cŏmus, a, um, adj. [aurum; coma], 1. with golden hair. 2. (poet.) with golden leaves or foliage.

auricŭla, ae, f. [dim. auris], the ear-lobe; the ear.

auri-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [aurum; fero], yielding or producing gold, gold-bearing: amnis, i.e. the Pactolus.

auri-fex, fĭcis, m. [aurum; facio], a worker in gold, goldsmith.

auriga, ae, m. f. [aurea, a bridle; ago], I. 1. a charioteer, driver. 2. (poet.) a groom, ostler. II. (meton.) 1. a helmsman, pilot, Ov. 2. as a constellation, the Waggoner, Cic.

aurigārius, ĭi, m. a charioteer in the circus races.

aurigātĭo, onis, f. [aurigo], a driving of a chariot in the course.

auri-gĕna, ae, m. [aurum; gigno], gold-begotten; epith. of Perseus. Cf. Danae.

auri-gĕr, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [aurum; gero], gold-bearing: tauri, i.e. with gilded horns.

aurigo, āre, āvi, ātum (also aurigor, āri, dep.), [auriga], intrans. v. be a charioteer, drive a chariot.

auris, is, f. [for aus-is; akin to αὖς=οὖς; cf. ausculto, audio; Curtius, 403], I. an ear. In phrases: (a) in or ad aurem (in aure) dicere, admonere, etc., to whisper in one's ear; (b) aurem vellere, to pull one's ear by way of a reminder or admonition; (c) auribus dare or servire, to earwig a person, humour or flatter one; (d) in aurem or utram vis aurem dormire, to sleep soundly. II. (fig.) the ear (as distinguishing sounds), the hearing, taste: Maeci iudicis aures. III. (meton.). hearers, auditors: cum tibi sol tepidus plures admoverit aures. 2. the ear of a plough, the mould- or earth-board, placed on each side of the share-beam, Virg.

auritŭlus, i, m. [dim. auritus], the long-eared one; Master Long-Ears, i.e. the ass, Phaedr.

auritus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [auris], I. having large or long ears, long-eared. II. (fig.) attentive, listening: quercus, Hor.

aurōra, ae, f. [cf. αὔως, Aeol.= ἠώς, dawn], I. 1. the dawn, daybreak, morning. 2. (personified) Aurora, the goddess of the dawn, daughter of Hyperion, wife of Tithonus and mother of Memnon. II. (meton.) the East: a Gadibus usque Auroram.

aurum, i, n. I. gold. II. (metonym.) anything made of gold; (a) a golden goblet; (b) a chain, ring, bracelet, brooch, clasp, necklace, trinkets of gold; (c) gold plate; (d) a bit, yoke, or harness of gold; (e) a knot or band of gold for the hair; (f) gold coin, money; (g) the golden fleece. III. (fig.) the sheen or lustre of gold, gold colour. IV. (poet.) the Golden Age, Hor., Ov.

Aurunci, ōrum, m. pl. a people of Latium on the Liris. Their town Suessa Aurunca, now Sessa, was the birthplace of Lucilius.

Aurunca, ae, f. an old town in Campania; cf. Aurunci, and Lucilius.

Auruncus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Aurunca: senes, Virg.

ausculto, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. auris], freq. v. (a) with dat. give ear to, listen to; (b) with dat. or abs. obey, heed.

ausim, ausis, ausit, . . . ausint, sync. subj. pres. from audeo.

Ausŏnēs, um, m. pl. [Αὔσονες], the old inhabitants of the W. coast of Campania. Hence (poet.) the inhabitants of Southern Italy.

Ausŏnia, ae, f. a poetic name for Central and Lower Italy; cf Ausones.

Ausŏnĭdae, ārum (-ūm), m. patron. the inhabitants of Ausonia; the Italians.

Ausŏnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Ausones or Ausonia; hence (poet.) Italian, Latin, Roman: terra; urbes; os, i.e. the language of Rome; aula, i.e. the imperial palace at Rome. As subst. Ausŏnĭi, ōrum, m. pl. the Ausonians; Italians.

Ausŏnĭus, idis, adj. f. Ausonian; Italian, Roman.

auspex, ĭcis, m. f. [for avispex; avis; -specio], I. a bird-seer, i.e. one who observes the flight, singing, or feeding of birds for the purpose of foretelling the future; a soothsayer, diviner. II. (meton.) 1. a leader, guide, director, founder, author, protector, favourer: auspice Teucro; auspice Musâ, at the prompting of the Muse; dīs auspicibus; cf. auspicium. 2. (techn. t.) the omen-taker who witnessed the marriage-contract and was present at the marriage ceremony to see that it was legally valid: nubit genero socrus, nullis auspicibus, nullis auctoribus; veniet cum signatoribus auspex. III. (poet.) as adj. favourable, auspicious, lucky: victoria; clamor, Claud.

auspicātō, abl. abs. of perf. part. used impersonally [auspicor], 1. after taking the auspices, under due auspices. 2. (used adverbially) under a good omen, auspiciously, luckily, in a lucky moment.

auspicātus, a, um, perf. part. from (a) auspicor, having taken the auspices previous to an undertaking, i.e. having duly or formally begun: sic auspicatus bella non melius gerit; (b) from auspico, consecrated by auspices; begun after taking the auspices, happily begun; happy, successful: non auspicatos impetus, unblest assaults. Compar. auspicatior.

auspicium, ii, n. [auspex], I. divination from the observation of birds, augury, auspices: Auspicium habere, to have the right of taking auspices, a prerogative of patrician magistrates, but in time of war possessed exclusively by the imperator, or commander-in-chief. Accordingly, all achievements were said to be performed under his auspices, even in his absence; and a victory gained by one of his legati was said to have been won auspiciis consulis, ductu legati. Hence, II. 1. chief command, guidance, leadership, rule, direction, authority, right, power: communem hunc ergo populum paribusque auspicamus auspiciis; intonsi Catonis, i.e. exampli, Sil. 2. will, inclination: ducere vitam auspiciis meis, to live at my own discretion, as it seemeth me good. III. (meton.) an omen, sign, presage: auspiciis manifesta fides; auspicium facere, to give an omen, sign, or token: lendi one's sanction to a person. IV. (fig.) a beginning: totus ab auspicio ne foret annus iners, i.e. from its opening day, Ov.

auspĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, [auspex]; A. (intrans.) take the auspices. B. (trans.) take as an augury: mustelam.

auspĭcor, āri, ātus sum, [id.], dep.; A. (intrans.) take the auspices. B. (trans. or absol.) begin after taking the auspices; make a beginning; begin, enter upon: auspicandi gratiâ tribunal incredi, i.e. for the sake of inaugurating his office; militiam; (with infin.) cantare, Suet.

auster, tri, m. [cf. αὔω], the drying wind; hence, I. the south wind. II. (meton.) 1. the south country, the South. 2. (poet.) the wind (in general), any wind.

austērē, adv. [austerus], rigidly, severely.

‡ austērus, a, um, adj. [αὐστηρός), I. harsh, sour, tart, pungent. II. (fig.) 1. severe, grave, strict, crabbed. 2. hard, irksome: labor. Compar. austerior.

austrālis, e, adj. [auster], from the south wind or south, southern: cingulus, i.e. the torrid zone.

austrīnus, a, um, adj. [id.], southern.

ausum, i, n. [audeo], a bold or daring action, an enterprise, venture.

ausus, a, um, perf. part. from audeo.

aut, conj. [cf. αὖ, αὖτε, αὐτάρ], 1. or: incute vim ventis submersasque obrue puppes. Aut age diversos. Sts. aut=nec when a negative precedes: nec sera comantem Narcissum aut flexi tacuissem vimen acanthi, Virg. Freq. in poetry. 2. or else: aut (sts. poet. aut . . . vel), either . . . or; hoc aut verum est aut falsum. Aut is used (a) where the difference between things is sharply defined and important; (b) where two things mutually exclude each other. Sts. aut=at the difference as unimportant. 3. or else, or if not . . . then, otherwise, or rather, or at least. Aut is often used with reference to a condition or alternative previously implied: e.g. crudelis somni, quid me tenuâtis inertem? Aut semel aeternâ nocte premenda fui, or else I ought to have waked sooner, or I ought to have slept for ever.

autem, conj. [akin to aut], 1. but, however, now, on the other hand; moreover, too, again: Urgeo . . . a nullo videbatur; ipse autem nemo quem videbat, whereas; liberae suntaedes, liber sum autem ego, I too am free. Autem corrects slightly, introducing a different statement, in continuation of the preceding, without really setting it aside (Roby, § 2209). 2. (in picking up a word, narrative, statement, train of thought, argument, etc.), again, moreover, furthermore, you must know: nunc quod agitur agamus. Agitur autem liberine vivamus an mortem obeamus. Rogatu sociorum atque nominis Romani populi Romani, meorum autem necessariorum. nomen hominis audacissimi detuli. Orationes Caesaris mihi vehementer probantur; legi autem complures. 3. (in questions) to express surprise, indignation, etc.: quid tibi vis? ego non teneam meam? Oh. Tuam autem furcifer? yours, do you say? yours, indeed? scoundrel! Also (followed by immo, immo vero, in corrections), sed ferendus tibi in hoc meus error: ferendus autem? immo vero etiam adiuvandus, you must put up with my mistake here; put up with it, do I say? nay, you must even abet it. Sts. 'sed' precedes; a colloquial idiom common in the comic poets: sed quid ego haec autem nequidquam ingrata revolvo? why in fact? why indeed? N. B. autem never stands first in a sentence; usually it follows the first word.

‡ autheps̆a, ae, f. [αὐθέψης, a self-cooker], a self-acting cooking apparatus, a kitchener.

‡ autŏgrăphus, a, um, adj. [αὐτόγραφος], written with one's own hand, autograph, Suet.

Autŏlўcus, i, m. [Αὐτόλυκος], a son of Hermes (Mercury) father of Anticlēa, Ulysses' mother. He was famous as a typical thief.

‡ autŏmătŏn (-um), i, n. [αὐτόματον], a self-acting machine, an automaton, Suet.

Autŏmĕdon, ontis, m. [Αὐτομέδων], I. the armour-bearer and charioteer of Achilles. II. (appel.) a charioteer (cf. a 'Jehu'): Tiphys et Automedon dicar amoris ego.

Autŏnŏē, ēs, f. [Αὐτονόη], a daughter of Cadmus, and mother of Actaeon.

Autŏnŏēĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Autonoe: heros, i.e. Actaeon.

autumnalis, autumnus. See auctumnalis, etc.

autŭmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [prob. lengthened form of aio], say ay, affirm, protest, aver, pronounce, call, name.

Auvōna, ae, m. a river of Britain, now the Avon.

auxĭlĭāris, e, adj. [auxilium], I. aiding, assisting, helping, auxiliary. 2. (military techn.) auxiliary: cohortes; stipendia meren, to serve as an auxiliary. As subst. auxĭlĭāres, ium, m. pl. (sc. milites), auxiliary troops, auxiliaries, i.e. not legionaries. II. of or belonging to auxiliaries: stipendia, Tac.

auxĭlĭārius, a, um, adj. 1. helping, aiding, auxiliary. 2.=auxiliaris, I. 2.

auxĭlĭātor, ōris, m. [auxilior], a helper, assistant.

(1) auxĭlĭātus, a, um, perf. part. from auxilior.

(2) auxĭlĭātus, ūs, m. help, aid, Lucr.

auxĭlĭor, āri, ātus sum, [auxilium], traj. dep. help, aid, assist, succour; (poet.) relieve, cure.

auxĭlium, ii, n. [augeo], I. help, aid, assistance, remedy, relief, succour. II. (meton.) 1. mostly in pl.; a means or source of aid, means of assistance, resources: cum (mare) tumet, auxiliis adsidet ille suis; ferre, to render help, aid. 2. auxilia, orum, n. pl. helpers; esp. (milit. techn. t.), auxiliary troops, auxiliaries, contingents (of allies or mercenaries); reinforcements. Sts. in sing.: mittat ut auxilium sine se verbisque precatur Et lacrimis.

auxim, auxītis (=auxerītis), sync. subj. perf. from augeo.

Auximātes, ium, m. pl. the men of Auximon.

Auximon (-um), ī, n. a town of the Piceni, now Osimo.

avārē, adv. [avarus], covetously, greedily, avariciously.

Avāricensis, e, adj. of or from Avaricum.

Avāricum, ī, n. a town of the Bituriges, in Aquitania, now Bourges.

āvāritĭa, ae (-ēs, ēī), f. [avarus], covetousness, greediness, avarice, cupidity, rapacity.

āvārus, a, um, adj. [aveo (1)], 1. covetous, greedy, avaricious. As subst. āvārus, ī, m. a miser. 2. eagerly desirous of, eager for, hankering after: (with gen.) praeter laudem nullius avaris.

āvectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from aveho, carried away, departed.

ā-vĕho, ĕre, vexī, vectum, trans. v. carry off or away, transport, convey; sts. with acc. of place whither: domum; Aegyptum; alias oras. In pass. reflex. be carried away; ride or sail away.

Āvella, Avellānus. See Abella, etc.

ā-vello, ĕre, vellī or vulsī, vulsum, trans. v. 1. pluck, pull, or tear away or off, rend away. 2. separate by pulling; part or remove forcibly, sever: de matris amplexu; complexu avolsus Iuli.

āvēna, ae, f. [deriv. dub.]. I. oats. II. (meton.) 1. any stem or stalk of grain, a straw. 2. (poet.) a Pandean pipe (made of the stalk of the wild oat), an oaten-pipe, shepherd's pipe.

(1) Āventīnus, ī, m. (sc. Mons). the Aventine, one of the seven hills of Rome, included in the city by Ancus Martius. Also, Aventinum, ī, n. As adj. Aventīnus, a, um, of the Aventine: Diana, i.e. because she had a temple there.

(2) Āventīnus, ī, m. a son of Hercules.

(1) āvĕo (hăv-), ēre, trans. v. long for, crave, wish or desire eagerly.

(2) āvēo (hăv-), ēre, (only in imperat. and infin.) intrans. v. be or fare well. Imperat. āve, āvēto, āvētĕ, (a) hail! good morning; how are you to-day? Caesar simul atque Have mihi dixit, statim exposuit quid de te audisset. Cic.; (b) matutinum portat ineptus Ave, Mart.; iam satis est, Afer; non vis avere; vale, id.; (b)=vale, and joined with it in the formula of farewell to the dead: Ave atque vale, farewell, good-bye, thrice repeated.

Āvernā, ērum, n. pl. (sc. loca). I. the neighborhood of Lake Avernus; see (1) Avernus. II. the lower world; see (2) (3) Avernus.

Āvernālis, e, adj. [Avernus], of or from Avernus.

(1) ‡ Āvernus, a, um, adj. [ἄορνος, without birds], I. birdless, without birds: loca, i.e. where birds cannot live, Lucr. II. of or belonging to Lake Avernus: valles; freta. As subst. Avernus, ī, m. or Lăcus Āvernus, the Lake Avernus, in Campania, near Cumae and Puteoli. The vapours from its waters were fatal to birds flying over it; hence the name Aornos (ἀ-ὄρνις). Near it was the grotto of the Cumaean Sibyl.

(2) Āvernus, ī, m. [id.], I. (poet.) the infernal regions, the lower world; one of the fabled entrances to which was near Lake Avernus.

(3) Āvernus, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to the lower world: Iuno, i.e. Proserpine; stagna; tenebrae. 2. (poet.) = Acheron, Stat.

ā-verro, ĕre, verrī, trans. v. sweep off.

āverrunco, āre, āvī, ātum, [averruncus, an averter], trans. v. (religious techn. t.) avert, remove.

āversābĭlis, e, adj. [aversor], from which one has to turn away, loathsome.

āversĭo, ōnis, f. [averto], a turning away: ex aversione = adv. from behind.

(1) āversor, āri, ātus sum, [freq. avertor], dep.; A. (intrans.) turn aside or away. B. (trans.) turn away from one's-self; reject, scorn, repulse, decline, shun: amicum; preces; adulationem.

(2) āversor, ōris, m. [id.], an embezzler, purloiner.

āversus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from averto, turned or turning away, withdrawn, retiring. As adj. 1. 1. turned away; having the back or head turned: hostis, i.e. in retreat; charta, the back of the paper; lectica, the further side of the sedan-chair. 2. on the back side, behind, back: et adversus et aversus, both before and behind; ne aversos nostros adgrederentur, from behind, in the rear; aversos boves traxit, dragged backwards, i.e. tail foremost. As subst. āversum, ī, n. (only in pl.) the hinder part, back; aversa insulae. 3. turned away or withdrawn from: milites aversi a proelio. 4. retired, secret: trames. II. (fig.) disinclined, alienated, set against, opposed to, hostile, unfriendly: aversus a Musis; (with dat.) mercaturis; amici, estranged friends. Compar. aversior; superl. aversissimus.

ā-verto, abverto (-vorto), ĕre, tī, sum, I. turn off or away, turn or push aside, avert, remove, keep off: aliquid ab oculis; regem Italiā; in fugam classem; (poet. without prep.) regnum Italiae Libycas averteret oras, Averto me, or averti me, or reflexive force, I turn aside or away, depart, withdraw, retire, swerve; poet. with acc. = ἀποστρέφεται, equus fontes avertitur, turns himself away from, i.e. shuns, deserts, by Synesis. Also (poet.) averto aba. = averto me, retire, withdraw: dixit, et avertens rosea cervice refulsit; prora avertit, swerves. II. carry off, drive away; appropriate, steal, embezzle: pecuniam publicam. III. (fig.) divert, alienate, estrange: animum a pietate; legiones a Bruto.

āvĭa, ae, f. [avus], I. a grandmother. II. (meton.) an old wife's fable, grandmotherish notion, prejudice, Pers.

āvĭārius, a, um, adj. [avis], of or belonging to birds: rete, a birdnet. As subst. āvĭārium, ĭī, n. 1. a place where birds are kept, an aviary, poultry-yard. 2. a haunt of birds: inculta aviaria, i.e. the woodlands.

āvĭdē, adv. [avidus], eagerly, greedily. Compar. avidius; superl. avidissime.

āvĭdĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], 1. eagerness, longing: sermonis; imperandi. 2. greediness, covetousness, avarice.

āvĭdus, a, um, adj. [(1) aveo], I. 1. longing, eager, desirous. 2. (with gen., prep. in and acc., and infin.) eager for, desirous of, longing for: laudis; belli gerendi; avida in (in regard to) novas res ingenia; (poet. with infin.) avidus committere pugnam. II. 1. greedy of gain, covetous, avaricious. 2. voracious, ravenous; greedy, gluttonous, insatiable. III. (fig. of space) vast, wide, Lucr. Compar. avidior; superl. avidissimus.

āvis, ĭs (abl. āvĕ and avī), f. I. a bird. II. (meton.) a sign, omen: mala avi, under an evil omen; bonis avibus, with favourable auspices; cf. augurium, auspicium.

āvītus, a, um, adj. [avus], 1. of or from a grandfather; ancestral, hereditary. 2. (meton.) very old, ancient, aged: merum.

āvius, a, um, adj. [via], I. without a beaten way, pathless, untrodden, unfrequented, solitary, lonely, remote: virgulta; montes. As subst. āvium, ĭī, n. (mostly in pl.) a pathless place, by-way, unfrequented spot, wild: Oceani avia, the trackless Ocean. II. (poet.) out of the right path, wandering, astray. III. inaccessible, unapproachable, Livy.

āvŏcātĭo, ōnis, f. [avoco], a calling off or away, a diversion, interruption.

ā-vŏco, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. I. call off or away: partem exercitūs ad bellum. II. (fig.) 1. call off, withdraw, divert, remove, separate. 2. interrupt, hinder, distract.

ā-vŏlo, āre, āvī, ātum, intrans. v. 1. fly away. II. 1. hasten or flee away, hie, take wing, vanish 2. (of dying persons) depart.

āvolsus, a, um. See avulsus.

āvulsus (-volsus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from avello.

āvunculus, ī, m. [dim. avus], a mother's brother, maternal uncle. (A father's brother is patruus.) Avunculus magnus, a great-uncle; avunculus major (or sts. avunculus alone), a great-great-uncle.

āvus (āvŏs), ī, m. 1. a grandfather, grandsire. 2. (meton.) an ancestor, forefather.

‡ Axĕnus Pontus, i, m. [ἄξενος, inhospitable], the ancient name of the Euxine. axis, is, m. [cf. ἄξων], I. an axle-tree, axle: fagineus: axis stellatus, (poet.) a wheel with iron spokes, by means of which towers used in sieges were moved up to the walls. II. (meton.) a car, carriage, waggon, chariot. III. (a) the axis of the earth; (b) the pole, esp. the North Pole; (c) the heavens, the sky: axem stellis arden tibus aptum; sub axe, under the open heaven; (d) a region of the heavens, clime: Boreus: Hesperius. IV. a pin or pivot on which a door or gate turns, Stat. V. (=assis) a plank, Caes.

Axŏna, ae, m. a river of Gallia Belgica, now the Aisne, a tributary of the Oise.

(?) axŭlus (acsŭlus), i, m. [dim. axis], a round post: crura pouticuli axulis stantis redivivis, poor posts that have done duty before.

B.

B, b, n. indecl. or f. the second letter of the Latin alphabet, corresponding to Gk. β, sts. to π or φ.

‡ bābae (păpae), interj. [βαβαί, παπαῖ], in exclamations of surprise or joy, bless my soul! good gracious! huzza!

(?) Bābȳlo, ōnis, m. [Babylon], the name of a slave, or acc. to some, a banker, capitalist.

Bābȳlon, ōnis, f. (Gk. gen. Bābȳlōnŏs, acc. Bābȳlōnā, [Βαβυλών]), I. the ancient capital of Chaldaea, built on both banks of the Euphrates. II. (poet.)=Parthia: Babylon spolianda tropaeis Ausoniis, Luc.

Bābȳlōnĭa, ae, f. the district between the Euphrates and the Tigris, of which Babylon was the capital.

Bābȳlōnĭcus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. I. of Babylon or Babylonia, Babylonian: Babylonii numeri, Babylonian or Chaldaean calculations, i.e. astrology. So (poet.) Babylonica doctrina. As subst. Bābȳlōnĭca, ōrum, n. pl. Babylonian tapestry. II. (poet.) Syrian.

bāca (bacca), ae, f. [deriv. dub.], I. a berry; the fruit of various trees, esp. the olive. II. a berry-shaped jewel, esp. a pearl.

bācātus (bacc-), a, um, adj. formed like part. [baca], set or adorned with pearls, pearl-: monile.

bacca, baccātus. See baca, bacatus.

baccar (bacchar), ăris, n. also bacchăris, is, f. [βάκχαρις], a plant from whose root an oil was extracted; the foxglove, or perhaps the Celtic valerian.

Baccha, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. [Βάκχη], a female votary of Bacchus, a Bacchanal.

Bacchānal, ālis, n. a place devoted to the worship of Bacchus. In pl. Bacchānālĭa, ĭum, (sts. -lōrum), a feast of Bacchus; orgies, revels: Bacchanalia vivere (poet. cogn. acc.), to live in rakish debauchery.

bacchans, ntis, part. from bacchor. As adj. frantic, wild, raging, furious. As subst. Bacchantes, ĭum (um), f. pl. the Bacchantes or Bacchae; cf. Baccha.

bacchātĭo, ōnis, f. [bacchor], a revelling, riotous conduct.

bacchatus, a, um, perf. part. from bacchor. Used passively (poet.): virginibus bacchata Lacaenis Taygeta, T. the revel-ground of Spartan maidens; lit. revelled over by Spartan maids; bacchatam iugis Naxon, N., whose ridges are the haunts of Bacchus' revellers.

Bacchēĭus (-ēus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Bacchus, Bacchic.

Bacchĭădae, ārum, m. pl. [Βακχιάδαι], the descendants of Bacchis, the Heraklid, the Bacchiadae, who being banished from Corinth went to Sicily and founded Syracuse.

Bacchĭcus, a, um, adj. [Βακχικός], of Bacchus, Bacchic.

Bacchis, ĭdis, f. [Βάκχις], 1.=Baccha. 2. one of Terence's female characters.

(1) Bacchĭus, a, um, adj. [Βάκχιος]=Bacchicus.

(2) Bacchĭus, ĭi, m. the name of a gladiator.

bacchor, ārī, ātus sum, [Bacchus], intrans. dep. I. celebrate the orgies or mysteries of Bacchus. II. revel, rave, rant; rush about wildly or frantically. III. (fig.) 1. am furious, rage: bacchante vento. 2. am inspired, or enthusiastically moved: bacchatur vates.

Bacchus, ĭ, m. [Βάκχος], I. the wine-god, son of Iuppiter and Semele. He was also the patron of poets. II. (meton.) 1. the cry 'Io Bacche,' with which Bacchus was invoked: audito Baccho. 2. the vine: Bacchus amat colles. 3. wine: Laestrygonia Bacchus in amphorâ; Bacchi Massicus umor.

baccĭfer. See bacifer.

Bacēnis, is, f. a forest in Germany, separating the Suevi from the Cherusci, identified with the present Thüringerwald, Erzgebirge, and Riesengebirge.

bācĭ-fer (bacc-), fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [baca; fero], berry-bearing, esp. of the olive-tree.

bācillum, ĭ, n. [dim. baculus], 1. a small staff, stick, or wand; a cane, walking-stick. 2. a lictor's wand or baton.

Bactrā, ōrum, n. pl. [Βάκτρα], the capital of Bactria, now Balkh, on the river Bactrus.

Bactrĭa (-ĭāna), ae, f. a province of the Persian Empire, now Bokhara.

Bactrĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Bactria, Bactrian.

Bactrŏs (-us), ĭ, m. a river on which Bactra was built, now the Dehas.

băcŭlum, ĭ, n. (also -us, ĭ, m.), [cf. βάκτρον, βαίνω], 1. a staff, stick. 2. an augural staff. 3. a sceptre.

Baetĭca. See Baeticus.

Baetĭcātus, a, um, adj. [Baetis], clad in a robe of Baetic wool.

Baetĭ-cŏla, ae, adj. [Baetis; colo], dwelling on the Baetis.

Baetĭ-gĕna, ae, adj. [Baetis; gigno], born on the Baetis.

Baetĭcus, a, um, adj. [Baetis], of, on, or belonging to the Baetis: lacerna, i.e. made of Baetic wool. As subst. Baetĭca, ae, f. (sc. provincia), the province of Baetica in S. Spain, now Andalusia, famed for its olives and wool of a naturally yellow or drab colour.

Baetĭs, is, m. (acc. Baetin), a river in S. Spain, now the Guadalquivir.

Bagōas, ae, (-us, ĭ), m. I. a eunuch at the Persian court. II. (poet.) a harem-keeper, a guarder of women, Ov.

Bagrăda (-as), ae, m. a river of N. Africa, near Utica.

Baiae, arum, f. pl. I. a town in Campania, the Brighton of the Romans. II. (meton.) for any watering-place.

Baiānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Baiae.

bājŭlo, āre, [bajulus], trans. v. carry a load of anything: effusam alvum; sarcinas.

bājŭlus, ĭ, m. a porter, carrier, day-labourer; sts. used=adj.

‡ bālaena (-ēna), ae, f. [φάλαινα], a whale.

bālānātus, a, um, adj. [balanus, II. 2], scented with balanus or balsam.

bālans, ntis, part. from balo. As subst. (poet.) a sheep: balantûm gregem.

‡ bālānus, ĭ, f. rarely m. [βάλανος], I. an acorn. II. (meton.) any fruit of similar shape; a date; a chestnut. 2. the Arabian behen- or ben-nut, from which a valuable perfume was extracted; stes. oil of ben, balsam: pressa tuis balanus capillis.

(1) bălātro, ōnis, m. [=blatero], a buffoon, one who lives by his wits; acc. to some, a parasite, trencher-friend.

(2) Bălātro, ōnis, m. a Roman cognomen.

bālātus, ūs, m. [balo], a bleating.

balbē, adv. [balbus], stammeringly, lispingly.

(1) balbus, a, um, adj. [cf. βαρβαρος], stammering, stuttering, lisping: balbâ de nare loqui, to talk with a nasal twang.

(2) Balbus, i, m. a Roman cognomen.

balbūtĭo (-ūttĭo), īre, [balbus], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) I. stammer, lisp. II. (fig.) speak indistinctly or obscurely, give an uncertain sound. B. (trans.) lisp out something: illum Balbutit Scaurum, he lispingly or cowardly calls Scaurus.

Bălĕārĕs (Bălĭārĕs) insŭlae, or Bălĕārēs, ĭum, f. pl. the Balearic Islands, Majorca and Minorca, in the Mediterranean, whose inhabitants were famed for their slinging.

Bălĕārĭcus, a, um, adj.=Balearis.

Bălĕāris, e, adj. of the Balearic Isles, Balearic: funda. As subst. Bălĕāres, ĭum, m. pl. the men of the Balearic Isles.

Bălĭāris, Bălĭārĭcus. See Balearis, etc. bălĭnĕae, bălĭnĕum. See balneum.

bălista. See ballista.

Ballio, ōnis, m. a pimp in the Pseudolus of Plautus; hence, any worthless character, blackguard.

ballista (bāl-), ae, f. [βάλλω], a ballista; an engine of war used in sieges for hurling heavy stones or other projectiles. See Dict. Ant.

ballux. See balux.

balnĕae. See balneum.

balnĕārĭus (bălĭnĕārĭus), a, um, adj. [balneum], of or belonging to a bath: fur, i.e. that knows about the baths. As subst. balnĕārĭa, ōrum, n. pl. a set of baths, or bathing-chambers.

balnĕātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a bath-keeper. 2. a bath-slave or attendant.

balnĕŏlum, i, n. [dim. balneum], a small bath.

‡ balnĕum (bălĭnĕum), i, n. in pl. mostly heteroel. balnĕae, arum, f., sts. balnĕa, ōrum, n. [βαλανειον], a bath, a place for bathing. The sing. form usually of the bathing-rooms in a private house; the pl. of public baths.

bālo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. cry baa, bleat.

‡ balsămum, i, n. [βάλσαμον], 1. the gum of the balsam-tree, balm of Gilead, balsam. 2. the balsam-tree.

baltĕus, i, m. (poet. pl. baltĕa, ōrum, n.) 1. a belt, shoulder-belt, baldric (for the sword or quiver). 2. a woman's girdle, waistband. 3. a horse's girth; sts. an ornamental horse-collar. 4. (poet.) the belt of the heavens, the zodiac: stellatus. 5. a space between the tiers of seats in an amphitheatre, a landing, lobby, Calpurn. 6. (poet.) a leathering, strappado, whalloping.

bălux (ball-), ūcis, f. [Spanish word], a nugget of gold; gold-dust.

Bambălĭo, ōnis, m. [βαμβάλειν], 'stammerer;' a cognomen of M. Fulvius, the father-in-law of Antonius.

Bandūsĭa, ae, f. a fountain, according to some, near Horace's Sabine farm, according to others, about six miles from Venusia, the birthplace of Horace.

Bantĭa, ae, f. a town of Apulia, now Banzi.

Bantīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Bantia.

‡ Baptae, ārum, m. pl. [βάπται], the Baptae; priests of the Thracian Cotytto.

‡ bărathrum, i, n. [βάραθρον], I. an abyss, chasm, gulf; barathro donare, i.e. to squander. II. (meton.) the lower world, the infernal regions. III. (fig.) the belly, maw; hence, a greedy man is called barathrum macelli, the abyss or gulf of the provision-market.

(1) barba, ae, f. a beard (of men or animals): barbam vellere, to pluck a person's beard (by way of insult): sapientem pascere barbam, to cultivate the philosopher's beard, i.e. turn Stoic. The ancient Romans wore the beard and hair long; hence, dignus barbâ maiorum, a man who deserves to be ranked with the worthies of the olden time.

(2) Barba, ae, m. a Roman name.

barbārē, adv. [barbarus], I. like a foreigner. II. 1. rudely, ignorantly, in bad taste, unconventionally. 2. roughly, ruthlessly, cruelly, ruffianly.

barbărĭa, ae (-ēs, ēi), f. [id.], I. a foreign country; i.e. every country not Greek or Roman; also (collect.) barbarians or nations: Graecia barbariae lento collisa duello, i.e. Phrygia, Hor.; fluctuum totius barbariae ferre urbs una non poterat, i.e. the whole Empire of the East, Cic. II. (fig.) 1. rudeness, want of refinement or cultivation, ignorance: turba et barbaria forensis, the illiterate rabble that throng the forum. 2. grossness, boorishness, want of civilisation, savageness, barbarity. 3. (abstr. for concr.)=barbari, the uncivilised world; poetae nomen nulla barbaria violavit, no people however rude.

barbărĭcus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of or belonging to a foreign people, foreign, outlandish, strange, barbarous. As subst. barbărĭcum, i, n. a foreign land. II. (meton.) rude, uncouth, uncivilised, barbarian.

barbărĭēs, ēi, f. See barbaria.

‡ barbărus, a, um, adj. [βάρβαρος], I. 1. foreign, strange, barbarous, i.e. not Greek or Roman; often (poet.) Oriental; Phrygian. In barbarum (used adverbially), in foreign fashion. As subst. barbărus, i, m. a foreigner, stranger. 2. foreign, strange (in reference to other countries, as well as Greece and Rome); of a different nation and language: barbarus hic ego sum, quia non intellegor ulli. II. (fig.) 1. rude, uncivilised, outlandish, boorish. 2. savage, barbarous, wild, ruthless. Compar. barbarior barbātŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. barbatus], having a small beard: iuvenes, young exquisites with foppish little beards.

barbātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. (barba), I. with or having a beard, bearded: bene barbatus, with neatly trimmed beard; a sign of foppery; cf. barbatulus: equitare in harundine longâ Si quem delectet barbatum, i.e. come to years of discretion. II. (meton.) 1. a Roman of the olden time (when beards were worn); cf. (1). barba ad fin. 2. a philosopher (since beards were worn by philosophers). barbatus nudus. 3. (of animals) bearded: hirculus. As subst. (poet.) Master Long-Beard, i.e. the goat, Phaedr.

‡ barbĭtŏs, m. rarely f. (acc. barbitŏn: only in nom. acc. and voc. sing.; nom. pl. barbita), [βάρβιτος, -ον], I. a lyre, lute: dic Latinum, Barbite, carmen. II. (meton.) a tune on the lyre: non facit ad lacrimas barbitos ulla meas, Ov.

barbŭla, ae, f. [dim. barba], a little beard.

Barca. See Barcas.

Barcaei, orum, m. pl. [Barce], the men of Barce. Virgil's use of the word (Aen. iv. 43) is an anachronism.

Barcas (Barca), ae, m. [Punic word=lightning], a surname of Hamilcar.

Barcē, ēs, f. [Βάρκη], 1. a town of Cyrenaica in N. Africa, now Merjeh, afterwards called Ptolemais. 2. the nurse of Sichaeus.

Barcīnus, a, um, adj. [Barcas], of the family or faction of Barcas, Barcine: familia; factio.

Bardaei (Vard-), orum, m. pl. a people of Illyria.

Bardăĭcus, a, um, adj. of the Bardaei, Bardaean, Bardaic: calceus, a military boot, [perh.] for the soldiers themselves. As subst. Bardăĭcus, i, m. (sc. calceus), a soldier's boot.

(?) barditus, ūs, m. [bardus], the recital of the German war-song.

bardŏ-cucullus, i, m. [bardus; cucullus], a Gallic cloak of coarse woollen material with a cowl or hood, worn by common people.

(1) bardus, a, um, adj. [cf. βραδύς], dull, stupid.

(2) bardus, i, m. [Celtic word], a Celtic poet and minstrel, a bard.

(1) Bārĕa, ae, m. a Roman cognomen.

(2) Bārēa, ae, f. a town in Hispania Tarraconensis.

Bārīnē, ēs, f. a fickle beauty of Horace's day.

bāris, idos, f. [Egyptian word], a flat-bottomed boat used on the Nile, a barge.

baritus, ūs, m. in some MSS. for barditus, q.v.

Bārium, ĭī, n. a town on the coast of Apulia, now Bari.

bāro, ōnis, m. a blockhead, dunce.

(1) barrus, i, m. [Indian word], an elephant.

(2) Barrus, i, m. a Roman cognomen.

bascauda, ae, f. [British word; cf. basket, and Welsh basgawd], a basket for bread, etc.; acc. to some, a slop-basin.

basiātio, ōnis, f. =[basio], 1. the act of kissing. 2. (meton.) a kiss.

basiātor, ōris, m. [id.], a kisser, one who kisses.

‡ basilicus, a, um, adj. [βασιλικός], 1. royal, princely, splendid. 2. as subst. basilica, ae, f. [βασιλική, sc. οἰκία or στοά], a public building in or near the forum, serving as an Exchange, a Town Hall or Court of Justice, and as a public promenade; a basilica, portico, corridor. Cf. regia.

basio, āre, āvi, ātum, [basium], trans. v. kiss, give a kiss.

‡ bāsis, is (-ŏos), f. [βάσις], 1. a pedestal, font, base: stat basis orba deo. 2. (of a building) the foundation: villae, i.e. the foundation walls. 3. (in mathematics) the base: trianguli.

basium, ĭī, n. [? for suavium], a kiss of greeting, a kiss: basia iactare, to kiss the hand, blow kisses.

Bassăreus (trisyll.), ŏŏs, ĕī, or eī, m. [Βασσαρεύς], a name of Bacchus, as wearing a fox-skin [βασσαρα].

Bassărĭcus, a, um, adj. of Bacchus, Bacchic. Cf. Bassareus.

Bastarnae (-ernae), ārum, m. pl. a warlike German tribe, between the Tyras (Dniester) and the Borysthenes (Dnieper).

Bātāvia, ae, f. the country of the Batavi, now Holland.

Bātāvus, a, um, adj. of Batavia or the Batavi, Batavian; of Holland, Dutch: spuma, Dutch soap, a pomade used by Roman ladies to dye their hair a bright auburn colour, Mart.; auris, id., where Boeotam should be read. As subst. Bātāvi, ōrum, m. pl. the Batavians, a Celtic people inhabiting the insula Batavorum, the island formed by the Rhine, the Maas, and the Waal. Their chief town was Lugdun um (Leyden).

Bāthyllus, i, m. [Βάθυλλος], 1. a favourite of Anacreon. 2. a native of Alexandria, favourite of Maecenas, and noted as a pantomimus, or ballet-dancer.

bătillum (văt-), i, n., also -us, i, m., a small shovel or firepan; a chafing or fumigating-dish, incense-pan.

Băto, ōnis, m. an insurgent leader of the Dalmatians in the time of Augustus, A.D. 6.

Battiădēs, ae, m. patron. [Battus]. I. a son or descendant of Battus, 1. II. (meton.) an inhabitant of Cyrene; esp. the poet Callimachus.

Battĭs, ĭdis, f. the mistress of the poet Philētas of Cos.

Battus, i, m. 1. a native of Thera, founder of Cyrene. The kings of Cyrene retained the name for eight generations. 2. a shepherd whom Hermes turned into a stone for betraying him.

batuo (batt-), ĕre, ŭi, A. (trans.) strike, beat. B. (intrans.) practise fencing.

Bātŭlum, i, n. a town of the Samnites in Campania.

baubor, āri, dep. intrans yelp, bay.

Baucis, ĭdis, f. [Βαυκίς], 1. the wife of Philemon. Philemon and Baucis are the Darby and Joan of mythology. 2. (poet. appel.) an old woman, Pers.

Bauli, ōrum, m. pl. a place near Baiae, now Bacolo.

Bāvius, ĭī, m. a bad poet, contemporary with Virgil and Horace.

bĕātē, adv. [beatus], happily. Compar. beatius; superl. beatissime.

bĕātĭtās, ātis, f. [id.], a happy condition, happiness, blessedness.

bĕātĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [id.], =beatitas.

bĕātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from beo. As adj. I. 1. blessed, prosperous, fortunate, lucky, happy, highly favoured. 2. well-to-do, wealthy, rich. II. (fig. of things) rich, fruitful, abundant, magnificent: gazae; auriferi riga beata Tagi, i.e. wealth-producing. Compar. beatior; superl. beatissimus.

Bebriacensis, Bebriacum. See Bedr-.

Bēbrўcĭus, a, um, adj. of Bebrycia or the Bebrycians. The Bebrўces were a Thracian tribe in Bithynia, whose king, Amycus, was slain by Pollux.

Bēdrĭăcensis (Bebr-, Betr-), e, adj. of Bedriacum.

Bēdrĭăcum (Bebr-, Betr-), ĭ, n. a small place in Cisalpine Gaul between Verona and Cremona, the scene of the defeat both of Otho and the Vitellian troops.

Belga, ae, m. See Belgae.

Belgae, ārum, m. pl. a warlike race of mixed German and Celtic origin, who inhabited the N. E. of Gaul.

Belgĭcus, a, um, adj. of the Belgae, Belgic. Belgĭca, or Gallĭa Belgĭca, ae, f. the part of Gaul between the Seine and the Marne and the mouths of the Rhine.

Belgĭum, ĭī, n. a part of Gallia Belgica inhabited by the Bellovaci, Atrebates, and Ambiani.

Bēlĭdēs, ae, m. patron. a son or descendant of Belus; esp. Danaus and Aegyptus, Lynceus, son of Aegyptus, and Palamedes.

Bēlĭs, ĭdis, f. patron. a daughter or female descendant of Belus. Im pl. Bēlĭdes, um, the granddaughters of Belus, the Danaids.

bellārĭa, ōrum, n. pl. [bellus], confectionery, sweetmeats, bonbons, dessert.

bellātor, ōris, m. [bello], I. a warrior, soldier. Poet. in app.= adj. martial, warlike; esp. with equus. II. (meton. poet.) 1. a war-horse, charger, luv. 2. a pawn in chess: bellatorque sua prensus sine compare bellat, Ov.

bellātrix, ĭcis, f. [id.], a female warrior: diva, i.e. Pallas. As adj. warlike, pertaining to war.

bellax, ācis, adj. [bello], fond of war, warlike, martial.

bellē, adv. [bellus], 1. fairly-well, passably well, prettily, nicely, gracefully, in a well-bred manner: belle se habere, belle esse, to be in pretty good health; minus belle se habere, to be rather out of sorts. 2. (as an interj.) very fine! pretty good! Euge et belle. Superl. bellissime.

Bellĕrŏphon, entis, (Bellĕrŏphontes, ae), m. the son of Glaucus, and grandson of Sisyphus; mounted on the winged horse Pegasus he slew the Chimaera.

Bellĕrŏphontēus, a, um, adj. of Bellerophon, Bellerophon's: equus, i.e. Pegasus.

bellicōsus, a, um, adj. [bellum], warlike. Compar. bellicosior; superl. bellicosissimus.

bellĭcus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of or belonging to war, military; warriors; virtus; navis. As subst. bellĭcum, i, n. a signal for marching or for battle; always with some part of verb canere. II. (poet.) fond of war, fierce in war, warlike.

belli-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [bellum; fero], waging war, martial, Claud.

belli-gĕr, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [bellum; gero], waging war, martial, valiant, Ov.

belligĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], intrans. v. wage or carry on war, fight.

belli-pŏtens, ntis, adj. powerful or mighty in war. As subst. the war-god; epith. of Mars.

bello, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. make war, war, fight. With cogn. acc. bellare bellum, to conduct a war.

Bellŏcassi, ōrum, m. pl. a people of Gallia Belgica, on the Seine; their capital was Rotomagus (Rouen).

Bellōna, ae, f. [bellum], the goddess of war, sister of Mars; an ancient Sabellian deity. Her worship was characterised by frenzy and fanaticism.

bellor, āri, [id.], intrans. dep. make war, war, fight.

Bellŏvăci, ōrum, m. pl. a people of Gallia Belgica, between the Seine, Oise, and Somme. Their name survives in Beauvais.

bellŭa. See belua.

bellum, i, n. [old form duellum; duo], I. war, warfare, hostilities: domesticum, civil war; inferre, to make war (of offensive hostilities). In locat. belli, in war, during war; usually with domi. II. (meton.) a fight, combat. III. War, personified.

bellŭōsus, a, um. See beluosus.

bellus, a, um, adj. [for benulus, dim. benus=bonus], 1. pretty, elegant, charming, nice: bellus homo, a gallant, beau, ladies' man. 2. (of things) delightful, agreeable, fine, excellent (often ironical). 3. in fine feather, brisk, lively. Superl. bellissimus.

bēlŭa (bell-), ae, f. [? akin to θήρ], I. 1. a large animal or beast of any kind, a monster; e.g. an elephant, whale, lion, etc.; esp. an elephant: Inda; Gaetula; Lernae, i.e. the Hydra. 2. one of the lower animals: quantum natura hominis pecudibus reliquisque beluis antecedat. II. (fig.) 1. (as a term of reproach) beast, brute. 2. (of abstract objects) a monster, Suet., Cic.

bēlŭōsus (bell-), a, um, adj. [belua], teeming with monsters: Oceanus.

Bēlus, i, m. [Βῆλος=Bel or Baal], I. the mythic founder of Babylon. 2. the father of Aegyptus and Danus. 3. a king of Tyre, father of Dido. 4. a river of Phoenicia, now Nahr Naman.

Bēnācus, i, m. now Lago di Garda, a lake of N. Italy, out of which the Mincius flows.

bĕnĕ, adv. [benus=bonus], 1. well, ably, rightly, honourably. 2. to good purpose, really, fully, properly, correctly, completely. 3. prosperously, happily, successfully, satisfactorily, advantageously. 4. (with adjj. and advv.=valde), very, largely, extremely: bene nummatus; bene fidum pectus; bene mane, full early; bene renitus; bene libenter. 5. in phrases: (a) bene consulere alicui, to take due precautions for a person's interests, have his welfare at heart; (b) bene facere, to do or make something well or ably; bene facere alicui, to do one a service, oblige. Hence, bĕnĕfăcta, ōrum, n. pl. services, benefactions. Di tibi bene faciant, Heaven bless you! Bene facis, bene fecisti, bene factum, I thank you; I am obliged to you; thanks! I am delighted. So, bene narras, thanks for telling me; bene vocas, I am obliged to you for your invitation, etc.; (c) bene dicere, to speak well, correctly, or eloquently; sts. to speak words of good omen. Bene dicere alicui, speak well of a person, say something in his favour, praise him: bene audire (cf. καλῶς ἀκούειν), to be well spoken of; (d) bene est (impers.), an epistolary formula; it is well; si vales, bene est; ego valeo (abbr. S. V. B. E. E. V.); (e) bene est mihi, it goes well with me, I am well off, I am satisfied, have good cheer, enjoy myself; bene erat (nobis) non piscibus urbe petitis, sed pullo atque haedo, we regaled ourselves, not with fish fetched from town, but with chicken or kid; (f) bene habet, it is well; it is all right. So, bene (se) habere, to be well off; (g) bene agitur cum aliquo, a person is well treated, is well off, comes off well; (h) bene rem gerere, to be successful; res bello bene gestae, military successes; (i) bene vertere (in wishes): quod bene vertat, may it turn out well! quod di bene vertant, may the gods grant success, good luck be with you! Hos illi—quod nec bene vertat—mittimus haedos, we are sending him these kids—bad luck to him! (j) (in leave-taking, colloq.) bene ambulato, good-bye; a pleasant walk to you! 6. (as an exclamation of approbation, applause, etc.) bravo! good! well done! excellent! 7. cum quo dormiat ilia. Bene mihi, bene vobis, bene amicae meae! Compar. melius; superl. optime (optume).

bĕnĕfăcio, fēcī, factum. See bene, 5.

bĕnĕ-factum, i, n. [bene; facio], 1. a good or honourable act, praiseworthy action, heroic deed. 2. a benefit, service, kindness.

bĕnĕfĭcentĭa, ae, f. [beneficus], kindly treatment of others, kindness, beneficence.

bĕnĕfĭcentĭor, bĕnĕficentissimus. See beneficus.

bĕnĕfĭcĭārius, a, um, adj. [beneficium], pertaining to a favour. As subst. bĕnĕfĭcĭārii, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. milites), 1. privileged soldiers, who had honorary exemption from fatigue duties, e.g. foraging, intrenching, etc. 2. soldiers who had received grants of land, Caes. B.C. i. 75.

bĕnĕfĭcium, ii, n. [beneficus], I. a kindness, favour, service, benefit: beneficio, through favour, by the aid or help of; beneficio tuo salvus, thanks to you; meo beneficio, on my recommendation; beneficii sui facere (habere) aliquid, to make dependent on one's favour, reserve to one's-self. II. (political techn. t.) 1. a distinction, favour, privilege, patronage: in beneficiis ad aerarium delatus est, he was recommended to the treasury for promotion. It was usual for governors of provinces and generals on their return to Rome to send in a list, headed "beneficia," of prominent members of their suite or staff. Beneficia populi Romani, is a common term for public patronage. 2. military promotion (cf. beneficiarius): per beneficia Nymphidii, i.e. because they had been promoted by Nymphidius; beneficii sui centuriones, i.e. who had been promoted by himself. 3. a privilege, right: liberorum, exemption from the office of judge on the ground of having a certain number of children, Suet.

bĕnĕ-fĭcus, a, um, adj. [bene; facio], beneficent, liberal, generous, obliging. Compar. irreg. beneficentior; superl. beneficentissimus.

Bĕnĕventānus, a, um, adj. of or from Beneventum.

Bĕnĕ-ventum, i, n. [venio], now Benevento, a town in Samnium on the Via Appia. Up to B.C. 268 it was called Maleventum on account of its unhealthiness.

bĕnĕvŏlē, adv. [benevolus], kindly, with good-will.

bĕnĕ-vŏlens, ntis, adj. wishing well, kindly disposed, obliging. As subst. m. f. a well-wisher, friend.

bĕnĕvŏlentĭa, ae, f. [benevolens], good-will, benevolence, favour, friendliness, kindly feeling.

bĕnĕ-vŏlus, a, um, adj. [volo], well-wishing, friendly, kind, well-disposed, favourable, benevolent. Compar. irreg. benevolentior; superl. benevolentissimus.

bēnīgnē, adv. [benignus], I. in a kindly or friendly manner, graciously, courteously. Benigne facere alicui, to do a favour or show a kindness to one. II. abundantly, liberally, generously. III. in phrase: Benigne dicis, or simply Benigne, a formula of declining with thanks, You're very kind: I am much obliged to you; at tu quantum vis tolle. Benigne. (Cf. καλῶς, καλλιστα, ἐπαινῶ, in Greek.)

bēnīgnĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], 1. friendliness, kindness, affability, courtesy, benignity. 2. generosity, bounty, liberality, favour.

bēnīgnus, a, um, adj. [benegenus; gigno], 1. kindly natured, well-disposed, kind, good, friendly, gracious. 2. pleasant, agreeable, gentle, mild, favourable. 3. (poet.) propitious, lucky: dies. 4. liberal, bountiful, generous, obliging. Poet. with gen.: vini somnique benignus, freely indulging in wine and sleep. 5. (of things) yielding freely, fertile, fruitful, abundant: humus messes terra benigna dabat. Compar. benignior; superl. benignissimus.

bĕo, āre, āvi, ātum, [deriv. dub.], trans. v. bless with fortune's gifts, make happy, prosperous, or rich; enrich, bless, gratify; munere; divite libertate. In colloq. language: Beas or Beasti, you delight me; I am rejoiced to hear it.

berbex. See verrex.

Bērēcyntĭus (Bērĕcynth-), a, um, adj. of or from Berecyntus, a mountain in Phrygia, sacred to Cybele; Berecynthian: mater, i.e. Cybele; tibia or cornu, i.e. the curved Phrygian flute used in Cybele's worship; heros, i.e. Midas, son of Cybele; furor, the frenzy of the Galli, or priests of Cybele. As subst. Bērēcyntĭa (Berecynth-), ae, f. (sc. dea, or mater), a title of Cybele.

Bērēnīcēus (-caeus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Berenice, the daughter of Ptolemy Philadelphus. Her famous hair was changed into a constellation.

Bĕrŏē, ēs, f. [Βερόη], 1. one of the Ocean nymphs. 2. the nurse of Semele. 3. the wife of Doryclus.

Bērōnes, um, m. pl. a people of Hispania Tarraconensis.

Bērōsus, i, m. a priest of Belus at Babylon, famed as an historian and astrologer, B.C. 261-246.

‡ bĕrўllus, i, m. (Gk. acc. beryllŏn), [Βήρυλλος], I. a beryl. II. (meton.) a beryl ring, Propert.

Bĕrўtus, i, f. now Beyrout, a seaport of Phoenicia; as a Roman colony, called Felix Julia.

bes, bessis, m. [bi-as, a two-as], I. eight-twelfths or two-thirds of anything; e.g. one of the fractional parts of the 'as' (eight unciae). Faenus ex triente Id. Quint. factum erat bessibus, on July 15th the rate of interest was raised from one-third per cent. per month (=four per cent. per annum) to two-thirds per cent. per month (=eight per cent. per annum). II. (meton.) the number eight; hence Martial's epigram (xi. 36) on the custom of drinking as many cyaths as there were letters in a name: quincunces et sex cyathos bessemque bibamus GAIUS ut fiat IULIUS et PROCULUS, i.e. five-twelfths of a sextarius for Gaius, six-twelfths for Iulius, and eight-twelfths for Proculus.

bessālis, e, adj. [bes], pertaining to or containing eight: scutula, an eight-ounce dish, or a dish eight inches long.

Bessi, ōrum, m. pl. a powerful and warlike people of Thrace.

Bessĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Bessi.

bestĭa, ae, f. [deriv. dub.], I. a brute beast; any creature or animal except man; esp. a wild beast destined to fight with criminals or gladiators; hence, ad bestias mittere or condemnare. II. (fig.) (as a term of abuse) beast! brute!

bestiārius, a, um, adj. [bestia], of or pertaining to beasts: ludus, a fight with wild beasts. As subst. bestiārius, ĭi, m. a beast-fighter, one who fights with wild beasts. Such men were either hired, or were criminals.

bestiŏla, ae, f. [dim. bestia], a little beast, small animal, animalcule.

(1) bēta, ae, f. (also bētis, is), the beet, beetroot.

(2) ‡ bēta, n. indecl. [βῆτα], the Greek letter beta, B, β: hoc discunt omnes ante alpha et beta puellae, before their A, B, C, Iuv. Hence, (poet.) for 'No. 2,' (as alpha is 'No. 1'), Mart.

bētis. See beta.

Bētriācum. See Bedr-.

bētŭla (bētŭlla), ae, f. the birch-tree.

Bīănor, ŏris, m. 1. a centaur. 2. the same as Ocnus, the hero-founder of Mantua.

Bīas, ntis, m. a philosopher of Priene in Ionia, one of the seven sages of Greece, about B.C. 550.

Bibăcŭlus, i, m. M. Furius Bibaculus, a poet of Cremona, ridiculed by Horace.

bĭbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from bibo.

‡ bibliŏpōla, ae, m. [βιβλιοπώλης], a bookseller.

‡ bibliŏthēca, ae (-ē, ēs), f. [βιβλιοθήκη], a library (both the room and the collection of books).

‡ biblŏs (-us), i, f. [βίβλος, βύβλος], the papyrus, or Egyptian flag, of which paper was made.

bibo, ĕre, bĭbi, [cf. πι-νω], trans. v. I. drink: aquam. In phrases (a) Nomen alicuius bibere, to toast any one's name, i.e. drink as many cyathi as there are letters in the name: cf. bes, II.; (b) flumen bibere, to drink of a river, poet. of those who dwell on it or live in the country through which it flows. II. (fig.) drink in, inhale, draw in, absorb, imbibe: bibant violaria, fontem: amphora fumum bibere instituta; arcus bibit aquas, i.e. the rainbow; pugnas et exactos tyrannos . . . bibit aure vulgus, i.e. eagerly listens to.

Bibracte, is, (abl. Bibracte and -i), n. the chief town of the Aedui, afterwards Augustodunum (Autun).

Bibrax, actis, n. a town of the Remi in Gaul, now Bièvre.

Bibrōci, orum, m. pl. a British people in Berks and the adjacent counties.

bĭbŭlus, a, um, adj. [bibo], I. given to drink, drinking freely: (with gen.) Falerni, tipplers of Falernian wine. II. (meton.) I. that sucks in or absorbs moisture, thirsty, spongy, porous, sappy: arena; favilla; lanae, absorbing or taking colours. 2. (poet.) soaked, wet: nubes, charged with rain, Ov. III. (fig.) eager to hear, attentive: aures.

bi-ceps, cĭpĭtis, adj. [bis; caput], having two heads, two-headed: gladius, two-edged; Parnassus, having two peaks or summits.

bi-cŏlŏr, ōris, adj. [bis; color], of two colours: equus, i.e. piebald, dappled.

Bi-cornĭ-gĕr, gĕri, m. [bis, cornu, gero], two-horned; epith. of Bacchus.

bi-cornis, e, adj. [bis; cornu], two-horned: furca, i.e. two-pronged.

bi-dens, ntis, (abl. sing. bidente or -i; gen. pl. bidentum and -ium), adj. [bis; dens], with two teeth: ancora, with two flukes; fortex, with two blades or points. As subst. I. bidens, ntis, m. a strong and heavy two-pronged hoe. II. bidens, ntis, f. an animal for sacrifice, a victim; esp. a two-year-old sheep, either from the two prominent teeth which mark that age, or from having both rows of teeth complete. Hence, (poet.)= ovis, a hogget, a sheep.

bīdentāl, ālis, n. [bidens], I. a shrine consecrated by the augurs, enclosing a place which had been struck by lightning; so called from the custom of sacrificing a young sheep (bidens), at such places. Hence, sts. an accursed spot, Hor. A. P. 471. II. (meton. poet.) the corpse of a person struck dead by lightning, Pers.

Bidensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Bidis.

Bidīnus, a, um, adj.=Bidensis.

Bidis, is, f. a small town W. of Syracuse bī-dŭus, a, um, adj. [bis; dies], continuing two days, of two days: tempus. As subst. bīdŭum, i, n. (sc. tempus), a period or space of two days: castra a quibus aberam bidui (sc. spatio), Cic.; eo biduo, within two days of that time, two days afterwards.

bī-ennĭus, a, um, adj. [bis; annus], of or lasting two years. As subst. biennium, ĭi, n. (sc. tempus or spatium), a period of two years, two years.

bĭfāriam, adv. (sc. partem), [bifarius], on two sides, in two ways, in two parts, double, twice.

bī-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [bis, fero], 1. bearing or blooming twice a year: biferi rosaria Paesti. 2. having two forms: Centauri corpus, Manil.

bī-fĭdus, a, um, adj. [bis; findo], cleft or split in two parts, divided in two.

bī-fŏrĭs, e, adj. [bis; foris], I. having two doors, or folding-doors, or wings. II. (meton.) having two apertures or holes: narium via; biforem cantum, i.e. the double strain of the tibia dextra et sinistra. See Dict. Ant. tibia.

bī-formis, e, adj. [bis; forma], of double form, two-shaped.

bī-frons, ntis, adj. [bis; frons], with two fronts or foreheads; two-headed; epith. of Ianus.

bī-furcus, a, um, adj. [bis; furca], having two prongs or points, two-forked, forked.

bīgae, ārum, f. pl. (also post-Aug. in sing. bīga, ae), [for biiugae, q. equae iugum], I. a pair of horses yoked together by a cross-bar; a double team, span. II. a car or chariot and pair; a two-horsed chariot. So sts. in sing. biga, ae.

bigātus, a, um, adj. [bigae], having the device of a two-horse car [bigae] stamped on it; argentum, i.e. a silver denarius with the biga stamp. Also subst. bigātus, ĭ, m. (sc. nummus)=argentum bigatum, Tac.

Bigerrĭōnes, um, m. pl. a tribe of Aquitania, near the Pyrenees. Their name survives in Bigorre.

bi-iŭgis (bĭj-), e, adj. [bis; iugum], rare form=biiŭgus.

bi-iŭgus (bĭj-), a, um, adj. [id.], yoked two together, yoked in pairs; drawn by a pair (of horses, etc.): certamen, a race between pair-horse chariots. As subst. biiŭgi, orum, m. pl. (sc. equi), 1. a pair of horses yoked abreast. 2. a two-horse car.

Bilbĭlis, is, f. a town of Hispania Tarraconensis, the birthplace of Martial.

bĭ-libra, ae, f. [bis; libra], two pounds.

bĭ-lĭbris, e, adj. [id.], of two pounds' weight or measure.

bĭ-lĭnguis, e, adj. [bis; lingua], 1. having two tongues, double-tongued. 2. speaking two languages: Canusini more bilinguis, Hor. 3. (fig.) double-tongued, false, treacherous: Tyrios, Virg.

bĭlis, is, f. (abl. bili and bile), 1. bile. 2. (fig.) rage, anger, jealousy, ill-temper, madness: splendida (vitrea) bilis, the bright bile, i.e. rage, as opposed to atra (nigra) bilis, melancholy.

bĭ-lix, līcis, adj. [bis; licium], made with two threads, or with a double set of leashes (licĭae): lorica, i.e. double-plated, of double-linked mail.

bĭ-lustris, e, adj. [bis; lustrum], lasting for two lustra, i.e. of ten years' duration: bellum, Ov.

bĭ-mâris, e, adj. [bis; mare], between or belonging to two seas, with two seaboards.

bĭ-mărītus, i, m. [bis; maritus], a bigamist.

bĭ-mātris, e, adj. [bis; mater], having two mothers; epith. of Bacchus.

bĭ-membris, e, adj. [bis; membrum], having double members, two-formed: half-man, half-beast. Esp. both as adj. and subst. of the Centaurs.

bĭ-mestris, e, adj. (abl. bimestri, and poet. bimestrĕ, Ov.), [bis; mensis], of two months' duration; two months old.

bĭmŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. bimus], only two years old.

bĭmus, a, um, adj. [bis; hiemps], lit. of two winters, 1. of two years, lasting two years, two years old: legio, i.e. which has seen more than one year's service. 2. bima sententia, the vote for prolonging a governor's administration of a province beyond the year, Cic.

bīni, ae, a distrib. num. adj. [bis], 1. two apiece, two each, two by two. 2. (with substt. of singular sense and plural form), two: binae litterae; una castra iam facta ex binis videbantur, one camp seemed to have been formed out of two. 3. (of things in pairs) a pair, double, two: bini boves, a span or yoke of oxen; bina hastilia, a couple of spears; bini ludi, two sets of games.

bĭ-noctium, ĭi, n. [bis; nox], a space of two nights.

bĭ-nōmĭnis, e, adj. [bis; nomen], having two names. Only poet. and in gen. sing.

Biōn (Bĭō), ōnis, m. I. a native of Borysthenes, philosopher and satirical poet, noted for his pungent and witty sayings; cf. Bioneus; flourished about B.C. 250. II. a bucolic poet of Smyrna, about B.C. 280.

Bionēus, a, um, adj. of Bion, in Bion's style, i.e. satirical: sermones, Hor.

bĭ-palmis, e, adj. [bis; palmus], two spans long or broad.

bĭ-partītō (bĭpert-), adv. [bis; partior], in two parts or divisions, in two ways.

bĭ-pătens, ntis, adj. [bis; pateo], opening in two ways, opening right and left, swinging wide; sts. having folding doors: tecta.

bĭ-pĕdālis, e, adj. [bis; pes], measuring two feet (in length, width, or thickness).

bīpennĭ-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [bipennis; fero], carrying a two-edged axe.

bĭ-pennis, e, adj. (acc. sing. bipennem; once in Ov. -im; abl. sing. bipenni, once in Tibull. bipenne), [bis; pinna], having two edges, double-edged: ferrum. As subst. bīpennis, is, f. (sc. securis), a double axe, a battle-axe; only in nom. acc. dat. abl. sing., and nom. abl. pl.

bĭ-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [bis; pes], two-footed, two-legged: equi, i.e. sea-horses, Virg. As subst. a two-footed creature, biped.

bĭ-rēmis, e, adj. [bis; remus], 1. pair-oared: scapha. As subst. bīrēmis, is, f. a small boat for sculling. 2. having two banks of oars. Only as subst. f. (sc. navis) a galley with two banks of oars.

bis, num. adv. [for duis, from duo], 1. twice, on two occasions. 2. in two ways, doubly. 3. for the second time (rare). 4. (in combinations) (a) with other numerals, esp. distributives: bis quinque viri; bis quinos dies; (b) bis terve, in two or three instances, i.e. seldom; (c) bis terque, twice or thrice, i.e. repeatedly; (d) bis tanto or tantum, twice as great, twice as much.

Bisaltae, ārum, m. pl. a Thracian tribe on the Strymon.

Bisaltis, ĭdis, f. (acc. Bisaltĭda), a daughter of Bisaltes named Theophane, changed by Neptune into a ewe.

Bisanthē, ēs, f. a Thracian town on the Propontis, now Rodosto.

bisextĭlis, e, adj. [bisextus], containing an intercalary day.

bisextus (bissextus wrongly), i, m. (sc. dies), an intercalary day, because in leap year Feb. 24 (a.d. VI. Kal. Mart.) was reckoned twice over.

Bistŏnēs, um, m. pl. (poet. acc. Bistonas), a Thracian people between Mt. Rhodope and the Aegean. Poet. (meton.) the Thracians generally.

Bistŏnis, ĭdis (-ĭdos), adj. f. Bistonian; Thracian: ales, i.e. Procne, wife of the Thracian king Tereus. As subst. a Thracian woman, Hor.

Bistŏnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Bistones, Bistonian; Thracian.

bĭ-sulcus, a, um, adj. [bis; sulcus], cleft in two, cloven, forked.

Bithynĭa, ae, f. a district of Asia Minor, on the shore of the Euxine, adjoining the Propontis.

Bithynĭcus, a, um, adj. = Bithynus.

Bithynis, ĭdis, f. a Bithynian woman.

Bithynus (Bithynus, Iuv.) a, um, adj. of Bithynia, Bithynian. As subst. Bithyni, ōrum, m. pl. the Bithynians.

Bītō (Bītōn), ōnis, m. son of Cydippe, a priestess of Hera at Argos. See Cleobis.

bĭtūmen, ĭnis, n. bitumen, asphalt.

bĭtūmĭnōsus, a, um, adj. [bitumen], of bitumen.

Bitŭrīges, um, m. pl. a tribe in Aquitania. Their capital was Avaricum, now Bourges.

bī-vĭus, a, um, adj. [bis; via], having two ways or outlets; going in two directions, double: fauces. As subst. bivium, ĭi, n. a place where two ways meet; a road or street which branches off in two directions, a cross-road, corner.

† blaesus, a, um, adj. [Βλαισός], lisping, stuttering; thick of speech, inarticulate.

blandā, adv. [blandus], soothingly, winningly, caressingly, coaxingly, persuasively. Comparblandius; superl. blandissime.

blandīmentum, i, n. [blandior], (mostly in pl.) 1. flattering or complimentary words, blandishment, flattery. 2. an allurement, charm, fascination: vitae. 3. a condiment, seasoning, any stimulant of the appetite.

blandĭor, īri, ītus sum, [blandus], traj. dep. 1. fawn upon, caress, fondle, coax. 2. make flattering or complimentary speeches to, flatter, court, cajole: blandiri sibi, flatter one's self with something, delude one's self. 3. (meton.) be agreeable, please, fascinate, charm; allure, entice, attract. 4. persuade by flattery, coaxingly entreat.

blandĭtĭa, ae, f. [id.], a caressing, coaxing, flattery. In pl. (a) flatteries, blandishments, fondlings, coaxings, cajoleries; (b) allurements, fascinations, charms, enticements.

blandĭtim, adv. [blanditus], in a coaxing or winning manner.

blanditus, a, um, perf. part. from blandior. As adj. charming, agreeable.

blandus, a, um, adj. [=mlandus, akin to μείλιχος, mollis], 1. smooth-tongued, flattering, fawning, caressing, soothing, gentle. 2. likely to win favour, persuasive in voice or manner, winning, propitiating, attractive, fascinating, coaxing, insinuating, seductive. Poet. with prolate indn. blandum ducere, winning enough to lead.

blătĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [akin to βλάξ, stupid], talk idly or foolishly, prate, babble, jabber, gabble.

blatta, ae, f. a cockroach, beetle; a clothes-moth.

blattĕus, a, um, adj. [blatta, purple dye], purple, crimson: tunes.

Boadicea. See Boudicea.

bŏārĭus (bov-), a, um, adj. [bos], of or belonging to neat cattle. Hence, Forum Boarium, the cattle market at Rome, an open space extending from the circus to the river. In it were the famous bronze ox from Aegina, and the Ara Maxima of Hercules.

bōbus. See bos.

Bocchar, ăris, m. I. a king of Mauritania, at the time of the 2d Punic war. II. (meton.) an African, a nigger: Romae cum Boccharе nemo lavatur, no one at Rome takes a bath with Sambo.

Bocchus, i, m. 1. king of Mauritania and father-in-law of Iugurtha, whom he surrendered to Sulla. 2. a son of the preceding.

Boebē-is, ĭdis, f. adj. of or belonging to Boebe or the Lake Boebeïs.

Boebēĭtus, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to Boebe. 2. (meton.) Thessalian.

Boeōtĭa, ae, f. a district of Greece with Thebes for its capital. The stupidity of the inhabitants was proverbial.

Boeōtĭus (Boeōtus), a, um, adj. of Boeotia, Boeotian: auris, i.e. dull, stupid, Mart.; cf. Boeotius. As subst. Boeōtĭi, and Boeōti, ōrum, m. pl. the Boeotians: Boeotum in Boeotorum in crasso iurares aëre natos.

Bōhēmi. See Boii.

BŒI, ōrum, m. pl. a powerful tribe in the centre of Celtic Gaul. They occupied the district now called Bourbonnais. Part of them migrated to Upper Italy, where they long carried on a fierce struggle with the Romans. Another part established themselves in Germany, where they were called Boiemi, Boihemi, Bohemi, whence the name Bohemia.

Bōla, ae, f. an ancient town of the Aequi in Latium.

‡ bōlētus, i, m. [βωλίτης], a mushroom. The boletus was the best kind, and was highly valued.

‡ bōlus, i, m. [βόλος], I. a throw or cast (a) of dice; (b) of a fishing net, and hence II. (meton.), a haul or draught of fishes. III. (fig.) 1. gain, profit: a good haul, prize. 2. a choice bit, tit-bit.

‡ bombus, i, m. [βόμβος], any deep or hollow sound; a humming, buzzing, booming.

bombўcĭnus, a, um, adj. [bombyx], of silk, silken. As subst. bombўcĭna, ōrum, n. pl. silk stuffs or garments.

‡ bombyx, ўcis, m. I. the silkworm. II. (meton.) silk; a silken garment.

Bŏmĭlcar, ăris, m. 1. a Carthaginian general. 2. a Numidian, confidant of Iugurtha, against whom he afterwards plotted, and by whom he was put to death.

Bŏna Dea, ae, f. the goddess of chastity, a mysterious deity, whose temple no male was allowed to enter, and whose worship was confined to women.

bŏnĭtas, ātis, f. [bonus], I. goodness, excellence, superior quality: agrorum, i.e. fertility, Caes. 2. moral goodness, virtue, probity. 3. benevolence, kindness, kind-heartedness, good-nature.

Bonna, ae, f. now Bonn, on the left bank of the Rhine.

Bonnensis, e, adj. of Bonna, or Bonn.

BŎNŌNĭa, ae, f. a town of Gallia Cisalpina, now Bologna.

bŏnum, i, n. 1. a moral good, a blessing. 2. the good, goodness in the abstract, goodness. 3. an external good, a blessing, gain, advantage, profit: bonum publicum, the common weal; (poet. pl.) bonis communibus obsto, Virg.; bono esse alicui, to be of service to; cui bono bono est? for whose advantage is it? 4. in pl. bŏna, ōrum, n. (a) gifts of fortune, advantages, good-fortune: O fortunatos nimium sua si bona norint Agricolas! (b) goods, riches, wealth, personal property: bona eorum diripiunt; (c) good qualities, endowments, gifts (of mind or body): animi; corporis. 5. (with aequum) what is good and fair, justice and equity: aequo et bono, ex aequo et bono. So (gen. of value) aequi bonique facio, I set a certain proper value on; sts. take in good part, acquiesce in (cf. aequus, 4); aliquid boni consulere, to view favourably, be pleased or contented with.

bŏnus, a, um, adj. [old form duonus; cf. bellum], I. 1. morally good, good, honest, honourable, virtuous, upright: vir bonus, a man of honour. 2. good, the good, the virtuous. 2. noble, of good birth. As subst. bŏnus, i, m. a gentleman; in pl. bŏni, the higher classes, the wealthy, =optimates. So mĕlĭōres, um, m. one's betters. 3. brave, gallant: optimis pulque locare quam dicere malebat. II. (of physical or external qualities) 1. of a good quality, good, beautiful, fine, excellent: tempestas; facies, good-looking; aetas, the prime of life. 2. favourable, prosperous, lucky, propitious: bona res; bonus; bona navigatio; melius omen; et dicenda bono sunt bona verba die, i.e. words of good omen; res bonae, prosperity, good-fortune. Di meliora (dent or velint), may the gods grant better things, i.e. heaven forbid! 3. beneficial, fit, suitable, serviceable, valuable, favourable, adapted to, excellent, good for: optima frumentis terra; bona bello Cornus; mons pecori bonus alendo; bonus cantare, prolate infin.), good or skilful to sing; ad meliorandi, better qualified for making raids; melior Lucusta, an improvement on L. 4. large, considerable (in quantity, measure, or magnitude): bona pars hominum; melior pars diei; copia librorum. III. (with ref. to political views) good, well-disposed, i.e. patriotic: civis bonus, a patriot; bona tempora, the good old times. As subst. bŏni, ōrum, m. the well-affected, the patriotic party, the conservative party; patriots; often opposed to improbi; cf. improbus, II. 1. So optĭmi, ōrum, the aristocratic party, opp. to populares. IV. in phrases: (a) bonā venia or cum bonā venia, with your kind leave or permission; (b) bonā pace (cum bonā pace), without quarrelling; bona pace incolentium, i.e. unmolested by the inhabitants; (c) amicitia bona atque honesta, loyal and true; (d) res bonae, articles of luxury; (e) bonae artes (α) the fine arts; (β) an honourable policy or line of conduct; (f) bona verba, (α) kind words; (β) well-chosen expressions; (γ) witticisms, 'jeux-d'esprit'; (g) bonum factum (est), a formula used as a preface of public edicts=take notice; bonum factum, ne quis senatori novo curiam monstrare velit; (h) bona gratia, a friendly footing, amicable terms; (i) in optimam partem accipere, put a favourable construction upon; (j) de aliquo optimum iudicium facere, to express a very high opinion of a person; (k) bono animo esse, (α) to be of good cheer; (β) be friendly disposed: (l) iure optimo, deservedly; cf. (2) ius, I. ad fin., and II. 4. ad fin.; (m) melius fuit (fuerat), it would have been better; (n) in melius ire, change for the better, improve. So, in melius referre, reducere, etc. V. (in familiar addresses) O bone, my good sir! my excellent friend! VI. (as an epith. of the gods, both in positive and superl.) kindly, benignant, propitious. Compar. melior; superl. optimus.

bŏo, āre, intrans. v. cry aloud, shout.

Bŏōtes, ae, m. (acc. Booten, voc. Boote), the constellation Bootes, the Bear-warden. Cf. Arcturus, Arctophylax.

Bŏrĕas, ae, m. 1. the north wind. II. (meton.) the north. III. the mythic father of Calais and Zetes by Orithyia.

bŏrĕus (bŏrĕus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the north wind; northern.

Bŏrўsthenes, is, m. a river of Sarmatia, now the Dnieper, flowing into the Euxine. Near its mouth was the town Borysthenes, or Borysthenis, a colony from Miletus.

Bŏrўsthĕnĭdae, ārum, m. pl. the dwellers on or near the Borysthenes.

Bŏrўsthĕnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Borysthenes.

bŏs, bŏvis, (pl. gen. bŏum; dat. abl. bōbus or būbus), mostly m. but sts. f. [βοῦς], I. an ox, a bull; sts. a cow. In pl. often cattle, kine. Bovi clitellas imponere, to put the panniers on the ox, i.e. on the wrong beast's back, prov. of anything incongruous or unsuitable. II. a kind of turbot.

Bŏspŏrānus, i, m. a dweller on or near the Cimmerian Bosporus.

Bŏspŏrĭus (-ēus), a, um, adj. of the Bosporus.

Bospŏrus (Bosphŏrus), i, m. [Βόσπορος, heifer's ford, from the passage of Io in the form of a heifer], 1. the Thracian Bosporus, now the Channel of Constantinople. 2. the Cimmerian Bosporus, now the Straits of Caffa, Kertch, or Genikaleh, between the Sea of Azov and the Black Sea.

bŏtellus, i, n. [dim. botulus], a small black pudding.

Boudicēa (Boad-), æ, f. a queen of the Iceni. She revolted against the Romans A.C. 61; and being defeated by Suetonius Paulinus, took poison.

bŏvārius. See boarius.

Bŏvīānum, i, n. the chief town of the Pentri in Samnium.

Bŏvillæ, ārum, f. pl. a town in Latium on the Via Appia, about 10 m. from Rome, near which Clodius was killed by Milo (B.C. 52).

Bŏvillānus, a, um, adj. of Bovillae.

‡ brăbeuta, æ, m. [βραβευτής], an umpire.

bracæ (braccæ), ārum, f. pl. (once in Gr. brăca, æ, sing.) trousers, breeches, trews, pantaloons.

brăcātus (bracc-), a, um, adj. I. having or wearing trousers, etc.; cf. bracae; breeched, trousered. II. (fig.) 1. foreign, barbarian: miles. 2. effeminate, Asiatic; because the bracae were regarded as peculiarly an Eastern garment. III. Gallia Brācāta, a department of Gaul, afterwards Gallia Narbonensis.

bracchĭŏlum (brăch-), i, n. [dim. bracchium], a pretty or delicate arm.

bracchĭum (brăch-), ĭi, n. (mostly in pl. bracchia, ōrum), [cf. βραχίων], I. the arm from the hand to the elbow, the fore-arm; while lacertus is the arm from the elbow to the shoulder: dirigere bracchia contra torrentem, to swim against the stream; levi (molli) bracchio aliquid agere, i.e. gently, laxly, superficially. II. (meton.) 1. a crab's claw. 2. an elephant's shoulder-blade. 3. a branch of a tree. 4. an arm of the sea. 5. a branch or spur of a mountain. 6. in pl. (poet.) the sail-yards=antennae. 7. a military outwork or line of communication. 8. (poet.) the side-works or mole used in the fortification of a harbour; a dike.

bractea (brattĕa), æ, f. [cf. βράχω, rattle], a thin layer or plate of metal, gold-leaf, foil: viva, poet. of the gold-tinged fleeces of the Spanish sheep, Mart.

bractĕŏla, æ, f. [dim. bractea], a thin coat or layer of metal, gold-leaf.

brassĭca, æ, f. a cabbage, garden-rocket.

brattĕa. See bractea.

Bratuspantium, ĭi, n. a town of the Bellovaci in Gallia Belgica, now Breteuil.

Brenni. See Breuni.

Brennus, i, m. a leader of the Gauls, who in B.C. 390, defeated the Romans at the Allia, and took Rome.

Breuni (wrongly Brenni), ōrum, m. pl. a Rhaetian tribe in the Tyrol.

brĕvi, adv. (sc. tempore or spatio), [brevis], 1. in a short time, shortly (before or after), soon. 2. (poet.) a short time, a little while: cunctatusque brevi. 3. briefly, in few words.

brĕvia văda, or brĕvia, n. pl. shallows, shoals, sandbanks: in brevia et syrtes urget, Virg.

brĕvĭārius, a, um, adj. [brevis], abridged. As subst. brĕvĭārium, ĭi, n. a summary, abstract, epitome, 'precis': imperii, i.e. a statistical account of the state of the empire.

brĕvĭ-lŏquens, ntis, adj. [brevis, loquor], speaking briefly, brief, laconic.

brĕvis, e, adj. [cf. βραχύς], 1. of little length or extent, short; small, narrow. In breve, into a small space or compass. 2. of small size, short, small, little, diminutive; (of depth) shallow. 3. of short duration, short, brief; short-lived. Ad breve, for a short time. In brevi spatio, or tempore, in brevi, in a short time, shortly; cf. brevi. 4. brief, concise. 5. (of the quantity of a syllable) short: syllaba longa brevi subiecta vocatur iambus. As subst. brĕvis, is, f. (sc. syllaba), a short syllable: dactylus, qui est e longâ et duabus brevibus. 6. (of value, weight, quantity) small: census; pondus. Compar. brevior; superl. brevissimus.

brĕvĭtas, ātis, f. [brevis], 1. (of time or space) brevity, shortness; smallness, narrowness. 2. (of style) brevity, conciseness. 3. shortness, smallness, low stature: corporis. 4. (in prosody) the shortness of a syllable. 5. (of value) smallness: doni.

brĕvĭtĕr, adv. [id.], 1. shortly, briefly. 2. in a small space, at a short distance: omisso arcu, quo brevius valent, throwing aside the bow, which is their strong point at a shorter range. 3. at little length of time: modus breviter sit naribus uncis; spe brevius. 4. (of style) in brief, shortly, in a few words, concisely, summarily. Compar. brevius; superl. brevissime.

brĕvĭus, I. compar. n. from brevis. 2. compar. adv. see breviter.

Briăreus (trisyll.), ĕi, ĕi, or ĕos, m. Briareus, the hundred-handed giant, also called Aegaeon.

Brigantes, um, m. pl. (acc. Brigantas), the most powerful British tribe, occupying the N. of the island.

Brĭmo, ūs, f. [Βριμώ], a name of Proserpine.

Brisēis, idos, f. patron., acc. Brisēidă, voc. Brisēi. [Βρισηΐς], Hippodamia, daughter of Brises, captured by Achilles, and seized by Agamemnon.

Britannĭa, æ, f. Britain, Great Britain (England and Scotland).

Britannĭcus, a, um, adj.=Britannus. As subst. (a) a cognomen of the conqueror of Britain; (b) a son of the Emperor Claudius and Messalina, poisoned by Nero.

Brĭtannus (Brĭt-), a, um, adj. of Britain, British, Britannic. As subst. (sc. homo), a Briton.

Brĭto (Britto), ōnis (ōnis), m. 1. a Briton. 2. an inhabitant of Bretagne, a Breton.

Brĭtŏmartis, is, f. a Cretan nymph.

Brixĭa, æ, f. a town of Gallia Cisalpina, now Brescia.

Brixiānus, a, um, adj. of or from Brixia.

‡ brōma, ătis, n. [βρῶμα], a taste of food, dish.

Brŏmĭus, ĭi, m. [Βρόμιος, noisy], a name of Bacchus (Dionysus), from the noisy character of his revelries. Hence, Brŏmĭus, a, um, adj. (poet.) Bacchic.

Brŏmus, i, m. one of the Centaurs.

Brontes, æ, m. [Βρόντης, thunderer], one of the Cyclopes.

Brŏtĕas, æ, m. 1. one of the Lapithae. 2. twin-brother of Ammon. 3. a son of Vulcan.

Bructĕri, ōrum, m. pl. a German people on the river Amisia (Ems).

brūma, æ, f. [for brevima=brevissima], 1. the shortest day, i.e. the winter solstice. II. (meton.) 1. the winter; winter-time. 2. (poet.) a year.

brūmālis, e, adj. [bruma], I. of or belonging to the winter solstice or shortest day. II. of winter, wintry.

Brundĭsium (Brundŭsium), ĭi, n. a town of Calabria on the Adriatic, with a fine harbour, now Brindisi. The Via Appia ended there.

Brundĭsīnus (Brundŭs-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Brundisium, Brundisian.

Brūtĭdĭus, ĭi, m. a historian of the time of Tiberius.

Bruttĭi, ōrum, m. pl. 1. the Bruttii, who inhabited the S extremity of Italy. 2. (meton.) the country of the Bruttii.

Bruttĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Bruttii.

(1) brūtus, a, um, adj. [akin to βαρύς], 1. heavy, unwieldy, dull: tellus. 2. insensible, senseless; stupid. 3. unreasoning, irrational, brute.

(2) brūtus, i, m. a cognomen of the Iunia gens. 1. L. Iunius Brutus, the first consul. 2. M. Iunius Brutus, a distinguished orator and philosopher, the murderer of Iulius Caesar. 3. D. Iunius Brutus, a fellow-conspirator of the foregoing.

Bŭbăsis, idos, f. adj. of Bubasus or Bubassus, a town in Caria.

Būbastis, is, f. 1. a town in Egypt on the Pelusiac branch of the Nile. 2. the goddess Bubastis, identified with Artemis (Diana), worshipped at Bubastis.

būbīle (bŏvīle), is, n. [bos], an ox-stall, cow-house.

būbo, ōnis, m. (f. once in Virg.), [cf. βύας], an owl; the eagle or horned owl; a bird of ill omen.

būbulcus, i, m. [bubulus], an ox-tender, one who ploughs with oxen, a ploughman; a neat-herd.

būbŭlus, a, um, adj. [bos], of neat cattle or oxen. As subst. būbŭla, ae, f. (sc. caro), beef.

būbus (bŏbus), dat. abl. pl. from bos.

bucca, ae, f. [akin to βύζω, βύκανη], I. the cheek (as filled out in eating, speaking, blowing a trumpet, etc.): buccas inflare, to blow or puff out the cheeks (a sign of anger); rumpere buccas, explode with bombast; scribere (loqui) quidquid in buccam venit, i.e. whatever enters one's head, comes uppermost. II. (meton.) 1. one who puffs out his cheeks; (a) a ranter or declaimer; (b) of a trumpeter; (c) of a parasite. 2. a mouthful: panis, Mart.

buccella, ae, f. [dim. bucca], a small mouthful, tit-bit, 'bonne bouche.' buccĭna, buccĭnātor, etc. See bucina, etc.

buccŭla, ae, f. [dim. bucca], 1. a little cheek or mouth. 2. the cheek-piece of a helmet.

‡ būcĕrĭus (būcĕrus), a, um, adj. [βούκερως, horned like an ox], horned; of or belonging to horned cattle: armenta.

būcētum, i, n. [bos], an ox or cow-pasture, Luc.

‡ būcĭnā (not buccĭna), ae, f. [βυκάνη], 1. a crooked horn or trumpet, used by shepherds, swine- and neat-herds. 2. a war-trumpet. From its being used in setting the night-watches, the word came to be used (meton.) for a watch: e.g. prima bucina; ad tertiam bucinam, etc. It was also used to give notice of the hours of the day, and to summon the Quirites to an assembly. 3. (poet.) a Triton's shell, Ov.

būcĭnātor (bucc-), ōris, m. 1. a trumpeter, bugler, signaller. 2. (fig.) one who trumpets forth, a blurter out: existimationis meae.

‡ būcŏlĭcus, a, um, adj. [βουκολικός], pastoral, bucolic. As subst. būcŏlĭca, ōrum (-ōn, Gk. gen. pl.), pastoral poems, bucolics.

būcŭla, ae, f. [dim. for bovi, cula], a heifer.

būfo, ōnis, m. a toad.

bulbus, i, m. [βολβός], 1. a bulb, bulbous root. 2. an onion.

‡ būleuta, ae, m. [βουλευτής], a councillor, senator, Plin.

‡ būleutērĭum, ii, n. [βουλευτήριον], a senate-house.

bulla, ae, f. I. a bubble, water-bubble. II. (meton.) anything in a globular or bubble shape; (a) a head of a nail; a boss, knob; (b) a stud; (c) an amulet, or locket, mostly of gold, in the shape of a globe, worn round the neck by the children of noble Roman families. A similar ornament made of leather (bulla scortea) was worn by the sons of freedmen and the lower classes. The bulla was laid aside on reaching maturity, and dedicated to the Lares: hence, senior bullā dignissimus, an old man in his second childhood. It was sometimes put round the neck of pet animals.

bullātus, a, um, adj. formed like part. [bulla], 1. bubbled up, inflated: (fig.) nugae, turgid trifles, frothy nothings. 2. wearing a bulla round the neck: heres, i.e. while yet a child.

Bullĭdensis, Bulliensis, Bullis. See Byllis.

bullio, īre, īvi, ītum,=bullo.

bullo, āre, intrans. v. [bulla], bubble up, boil; raise a bubble.

‡ būmastus, i, f. [βούμαστος, cow's udder, or, with large breasts], a kind of grape with swelling clusters; or, shaped like a cow's udder.

Būpălus, i, m. a sculptor of Chios, who caricatured Hipponax, and being in turn satirised by him, committed suicide (B.C. 500).

‡ buphthalmus, i, m. [βούφθαλμος], ox-eye, camomile, a plant used in dyeing, Virg.

būris, is, m. acc. burim, [? βοῦς, οὐρα, ox-tail], the tail of the plough, plough-beam.

Būsīris, idis (ĭdos), (poet. acc. Būsīrin), a king of Egypt who sacrificed strangers to Iuppiter, and was slain by Hercules.

bustŭārĭus, a, um, adj. [bustum], of or belonging to a bustum: gladiator, one who fights round the blazing funeral pile in honour of the dead.

bustum, i, n. [buro=uro], I. a lighted or burnt-out funeral pyre, a funeral pile. II. (meton.) a tomb, burial-place. III. (fig.) 1. (of anything destructive) a tomb, grave, destruction: reipublicae; seque vocat Pereus bustum miserabile nati. 2. (poet.) a battle-field: civilia busta Philippi.

Būthrōtĭus, a, um, adj. of Buthrotum.

Būthrōtum, i, n. and Būthrōtus (-ŏs), i, f. a town of Epirus, now Butrinto.

‡ būthўsĭa, ae, f. [βουθυσία], a sacrifice of oxen.

buxētum, i, n. [buxus], a plantation of box-wood.

buxĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of box-wood. II. of the colour of box-wood, i.e. yellow: dentes.

buxi-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [buxus; fero], producing box-trees or box-wood.

buxum, i, n. I. the wood of the box-tree. II. (meton.) anything made of box-wood; 1. a pipe or flute: inflati murmure buxi. 2. a top: volubile buxum. 3. a comb: crines depectere buxo. 4. a writing-tablet: vulgari buxo sordida cera fuit.

buxus, i, f. [πύξος], I. a box-tree. II. (meton.) a thing made of box-wood; (a) a writing-tablet; (b) a hair-comb, Mart.; (c) a flute or pipe, Virg. Cf. buxum.

Byblis, idis, f. (acc. Byblida, voc. Byblī), a daughter of Miletus; she was changed into a fountain.

Byllis (Bullis), idis, f. a town of Illyria. The inhabitants were called Bullidenses, Bullienses, Bulliōnes, or Bullini.

Byrsa, ae, f. [? Phoenician Bosra, a fortress, confounded with βύρσα, a hide], the citadel of Carthage.

Byzantium (-ōn), ii, n. now Constantinople, or Stamboul, on the Thracian Bosporus.

Byzantĭăcus, a, um, adj.=Byzantius.

Byzantĭus, a, um, adj. of Byzantium, Byzantine.

C.

C, c, n. indecl. or f. the third letter of the Latin alphabet. As an abbr. (a)=Caius (Gaius), a Roman praenomen; (b) inverted, Ↄ, Caia (Gaia); (c) as a numeral, =centum; (d) on voting tablets, =condemno, cf. A; hence it is called littera tristis, opp. to A.= absolvo, called littera salutaris.

căballĭnus, a, um, adj. [caballus], of or belonging to a packhorse or nag: fons, 'hack's fount,' satirically for Hippocrēne, Pers.

căballus, i, m. [καβάλλης], a pack-horse, hack, nag. Optat arare caballus, prov. of a discontented grumbler.

Căbillōnum, i, n. a town of the Aedui in Gallia Celtica, now Chalons-sur-Saône.

Căbīri, ōrum, m. pl. mystic deities worshipped at Samothrace and Lemnos.

‡ căcăbus (cacc-), i, m. [κάκκαβος], a stewing-pan, stock-pot.

-căcātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from caco.

căchinnātĭo, ōnis, f. [cachinno], loud laughing, a guffaw.

căchinno, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. καχάζω], intrans. v. laugh loud or immoderately.

căchinnus, i, m. 1. a loud laugh, peals of laughter; jeering. 2. (meton. poet.) a rippling or plashing (of the sea); cf. Aesch. P. V. κυμάτων ἀνήριθμον γέλασμα.

căco, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. κακάω, κακκάω], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) go to stool. B. (trans.) 1. void: odorem, Phaedr. 2. (fig.) defile with excrement, pollute: cacata charta, Catull.

‡ căcōēthēs, n. indecl. [κακόηθες], a bad habit, mania: scribendi.

‡ căcōzēlus, i, m. [κακόζηλα a bad or awkward imitator, c. mannerist, pedant.

căcūmĕn, ĭnis, n. [deriv. dub.], 1. the top of anything pointed; a peak, summit, top, tip, extremity; a tree-top; a blade or point (of corn, etc.): montis; ramorum. 2. (fig.) the highest point, end, limit.

căcūmĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [cacumen], trans. v. make pointed, point: summas aures.

Cācus, i, m. a giant of the Aventine, who robbed Hercules of the oxen of Geryon, and was slain by him.

cădāver, ĕris, n. [cado], I. a dead body, a corpse, carcass. II. (fig.) (as a term of reproach) a carcass; carrion. III. (meton.) tot oppidūm cadavera, i.e. the wreck or ruins of so many towns.

cădāvĕrōsus, a, um, adj. [cadaver], corpse-like, ghastly.

cădens, ntis, part. from cado, 1. falling: lacrimae. 2. dying: gemitus cadentūm. 3. setting (as the sun, etc.): sidera; Phoebus. 4. failing, going to ruin: patria, Virg.

Cādi, ōrum, m. pl. a town in Phrygia.

Cadmēis, ĭdis, f. adj. I. of Cadmus, Cadmean. As subst. a female descendant or daughter of Cadmus, esp. Ino, and Semele. Pl. Cadmēĭdes, um, the daughters of C., Agāve, Autonoe, and Ino. II. (meton.) Theban.

Cadmēus (-ēĭus), a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Cadmus, Cadmean. As subst. Cadmēa, ae, f. (sc. arx), the citadel of Thebes. II. (meton. poet.) 1. Theban. 2. Carthaginian, Sil. Ital.

Cadmus, i, m. 1. son of Agenor, brother of Europa, founder of the Arx Cadmea at Thebes, and inventor of an alphabet of sixteen letters. 2. of Miletus, the earliest Greek historian, about B.C. 540. 3. a public executioner: the Marwood or Jack Ketch of Horace's day.

cădo, ĕre, cĕcĭdi, cāsum, [cf. Sanscr. ÇAD], I. 1. fall, drop, fall off. 2. (of stars, etc.) set, wane, sink, decline. 3. (of sails) drop, be lowered: vela cadunt. 4. (of a stream) fall, empty itself: amnis Arethō cadit in sinum maris. 5. (of words) be derived, from: habebunt verba fidem si Graeco fonte cadent. 6. (of dice) be thrown or cast, turn up. 7. sink down, sink, settle, fall in: cadunt toti montes; casura moenia Troum. 8. fall in battle, perish, die, be slain (not of a natural death): optimus quisque cadere; sed cadat ante diem; suā manu cecidit; torqueor infesto ne vir ab hoste cadat. 9. (of victims) fall, be slain, be offered: nostrā cadet hostia dextrā; pleno cadit haedus anno. II. (fig.) A. 1. fall or drop from weakness, droop, fail: patriae cecidere manus. 2. decrease, diminish, lessen, fall off: cadunt vires. 3. fall from a favourable position of any kind, lose strength, value, etc.; be undone, be wasted, thrown away, perish, decay, relax, cease, subside, abate: ut cecidit fortuna Phrygum; verba cadunt; ira; cura patrum; amicitia nec debilitari animos aut cadere patitur. So, cadere animo (animis), lose heart, be disheartened. 4. (as the wind) fall, drop, subside, die away, abate: cadunt austri; pelagi fragor. 5. fall into disuse, pass away, grow obsolete: multa renascentur quae iam cecidere, cadentque . . . vocabula. 6. (legal techn. t.) causā (formulā) cadere, or cadere alone, be nonsuited, lose one's cause or suit; be cast or condemned: coniurationis crimine; caderet sub iudice morum. 7. (of stage plays, etc., opp. to stare) fail, be unsuccessful: secura cadat an recto stet fabula talo. B. 1. come, happen, or fall somewhere: in conspectum, i.e. become visible; ne in cogitationem quidem cadit, i.e. one cannot even imagine. 2. (with prepp. in or sub) belong to, be found in or with, apply to, refer to, fit, suit, become: heu cadit in quemquam tantum scelus? Cadit ergo in virum bonum mentiri? does it fall in with the character of, i.e. does it become a man of honour to lie? Non cadit in hos mores . . . ista suspitio, is unsuited to, is incongruous with, does not square with; apte cadere, be nicely adapted. 3. fall upon a definite time: considera, ne in alienissimum tempus cadat adventus tuus. Hence (mercant. techn. t.) fall due: in eam diem cadere nummos. C. 1. cadere alicui, to fall to a person (by lot or otherwise) befall, happen: hoc cecidit mihi peropportune; sunt quibus ad portas cecidit custodia sorti. 2. fall or turn out, happen, occur, come to pass, result: quo res cunque cadent; si non omnia caderent secunda; vota cadunt, i.e. are fulfilled; ad (in) irritum cadere, result in nothing, prove futile, be frustrated. D. (rhet. and gramm. techn. t.) terminate, end, close: verba melius in syllabas longas cadunt.

cădūcĕātor, ōris, m. [caduceus], a herald bearing the caduceus or wand of peace; an officer with a flag of truce.

cădūcĕum, i, n. (-us, i, m.), [cf. κηρύκειον, Aeol. καρύκιον], 1. a herald's wand, orig. an olive stick ornamented with garlands. 2. the wand of Mercury, as the messenger of the gods.

cădūci-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [caduceus; fero], bearing a herald's staff: epith. of Mercury. Also as subst. the wand-bearer, i.e. Mercury.

cădūcus, a, um; adj. [cado], I. that falls, falling, fallen: frondes; lacrimae; (poet. of those who fall in battle) bello caduci Dardanidae. II. 1. doomed to fall: iuvenis, Virg. 2. inclined to fall: vitis. III. (fig.) 1. frail, fleeting, perishable, transitory: fama; spes; res humanae. 2. vain, ineffectual: preces; verba. 3. (legal techn. t.): caducae haereditates, caduca bona, legacies of which the person to whom they were left failed to take possession. As subst. cadūcum, a devise or bequest valid at civil law, but lapsed by some statute; a reversion, a windfall.

Cădurci, ōrum, m. pl. a people in Aquitania; their capital was Divona, now Cahors.

cădurcum, i, n. 1. a quilt or coverlet of Cadurcian linen. 2. (meton.) a marriage-bed, luv.

‡ cădus, i, m. [κάδος], I. a large earthenware jar for liquids, esp. wine, but also used for other purposes: a jar, cask. II. (meton.) 1. wine: Chius. 2. a funeral urn: aënus. 3. (poet. in pl. of the cells of a flute) carmenque recentibus aris Tibia Mydonii libet eburna cadis, i.e. from Phrygian stores, keeping up the metaphor in libet, Propert.

Cădūsii, ōrum, m. pl. a Scythian tribe on the Caspian Sea.

Caecilĭānus, a, um, adj. of Caecilius, Caecilian.

Caecĭlius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. As adj. Caecilius, a, um, Caecilian.

caecĭtas, ātis, f. [caecus], blindness, loss of sight (lit. and fig.).

caeco, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. make blind, blind; sts. dazzle. II. (fig.) 1. blind: mentes. 2. darken, obscure: orationem.

Caecŭbum, i, n. a place in S. Latium famed for its wine.

Caecŭbus, a, um, adj. of Caecubum, Caecuban: ager; vina. As subst. Caecubum, i, n. (sc. vinum), Caecuban wine.

(1) caecus, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.], I. 1. blind, sightless. 2. (fig.) blind, blinded, reckless: furore; cupido; amor sui. Poet. with gen.: fati futuri, i.e. ignorant of. 3. (meton.) random, aimless, meaningless, indiscriminate, vague: vestigia; in nubibus ignes; timor; exsecrationes, ineffectual. II. (passively) 1. that cannot be seen or known, hidden, secret, invisible, obscure, dark: vada; insidiae; scelus; fata; vulnus, unforeseen, from behind. 2. (of sound) dull, low, pent up: murmur. III. 1. dark, gloomy, obscure, thick: carcer; caligo; acervus (of chaos) where the separate parts cannot be seen, confused; vallum, i.e. with the outlets built up; domus, i.e. windowless. 2. (fig.) uncertain, doubtful, obscure, enigmatical: eventus; iussa. Prov.: caecā die emere, i.e. to buy on credit, Plaut. Compar. caecior.

(2) Caecus, i, m. agnomen of Appius Claudius Crassus.

caedēs, is, f. (gen. pl. caedŭm), [caedo], lit. a cutting or lopping, I. (a) (of persons) slaughter, murder, massacre, bloodshed, carnage; (b) (of animals, esp. of victims) slaughter, sacrifice: ferina; bidentium. II. (meton.) 1. abstr.= concr. the persons slain, the slain: caedis acervi; plenae caedibus viae. 2. (poet.) shed blood, gore: caede madentes; permixtā flumina caede.

caedo, ĕre, cĕcīdi, caesum, [Sanscr. root ÇCHID, cut off; Gk. σχιδ-; cf. σχίζω, scindo], trans. v. I. cut, cut off, cut down, fell, hew, hack, slash, lop, prune: silvam; arbores; comam vitis. Prov.: Ut vineta egomet caedam mea, that I may hack my own vineyards, i.e. hurt myself more than anybody else. 2. strike, beat, cudgel, knock at: virgis; saxis; ferulā, in iudicio testibus caeditur, is pressed hard, trounced. II. 1. strike mortally, kill, murder, slay; cut to pieces (of an army or a large body of troops): caeso sparsoros sanguine flammam, i.e. extinguish. 2. offer victims, slay for sacrifice, slaughter: caesis victimis. III. caedere sermones (cf. κόπτειν λόγους, or τὰ ῥήματα), to chat, converse, gossip together.

caelāmēn, ĭnis, n. [caelo], embossed or chased work, figures in relief: clypei.

caelātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who practises the art of chasing in metals and ivory; a carver, graver.

caelātūra, ae, f. [id.], I. the art of chasing in metals or ivory; carving, graving. II. (meton.) the chased work itself.

caelebs (not coelebs), ĭbis, adj. [se=sine; alibus=aliis], I. single, unmarried. As subst. a bachelor, a widower. II. (meton.) 1. of trees not used as supports for training the vine: platanus, the unwedded plane. 2. (of animals) unmated.

caeles (coeles), ĭtis, adj. [caelum], heavenly, celestial. As subst. a denizen of heaven, a heavenly being, a god. Usually in pl.

caelestis (coel-), e, adj. [id.], (poet. abl. sing. caelestĕ, Ov., gen. pl. caelestĭum, Virg.), I. of or pertaining to heaven or the heavens, of the sky, from heaven, heavenly, celestial: aqua, i.e. rain; arcus, the rainbow. As subst. caelestia, ium, n. pl. the heavenly bodies, Cic., Tac. II. (fig.) 1. divine, celestial. As subst. (a) caelestis, is, m. f. a god, a deity; usually in pl.; (b) caelestia, ium, n. pl. heavenly objects, divine things. 2. divine, god-like, heaven-born, magnificent, peerless, matchless (of persons and things).

caelĭbātus, ūs, m. [caelebs], single life, celibacy.

caeli-cŏla (coel-), ae, m. f. (gen. pl. caelicolarum and caelicolûm), [caelum; colo], an inhabitant of heaven; a deity, god.

caeli-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [caelum; fero], supporting the heavens; epith. of Atlas.

caelĭtus, (coel-), adv. [caelum], from heaven.

Caelius, ĭi, m. 1. a Roman gentile name. 2. Caelius Mons, the Caelian Hill at Rome.

caelo, āre, āvi, ātum, ([1] caelum), trans. v. I. make raised work on metals or other materials; chase, carve in relief, grave. II. (meton.) embroider with figures. III. (fig.) of poetry: caelatumque novem Musis opus, polished by the hands of the nine Muses.

(1) caelum, i, n. [caedo], a graving-tool, chisel.

(2) caelum (coelum), i, n. (poet. pl. caeli, acc. caelos, m.), [root CAV-; cf. cavus, hollow], I. heaven, the heavens, the sky. In phrases: (a) de caelo tangi, to be struck with lightning; (b) de caelo fieri, come to pass, appear (of celestial signs); (c) findere caelum aratro, prov. of an impossibility; (d) de caelo servare, to watch the heavens, said of the presiding magistrate at the comitia. See Dict. Ant. comitia, and cf. spectio. II. (meton.) 1. heaven, the regions of air: in caelum tolli. 2. climate, atmosphere, weather, temperature, the air. 3. a region, climate, country: caelum non animum mutant, qui trans mare currunt. 4. light of day, day-time: vesperascente caelo. 5. (poet.) the upper world: ad caelum mittunt in somnia Manes. III. (fig.) 1. heaven, the abode of the gods: te facimus, fortuna, deam caeloque locamus. 2. divine honours, immortality: sperare; caelum accipere, i.e. to be deified, Ov. 3. the summit of happiness, prosperity, honour, etc.

caementum, i, n. [caed-i-mentum; caedo], rough quarry stones, used for building walls; rubble, building material.

caena, and its derivatives. See cena.

Caeneus (dissyll.), ĕos (ĕi), m. (Καινεύς), I. originally a girl named Caenis, afterwards changed by Neptune into a boy. 2. a Trojan.

Caenīna, ae, f. a town of the Sabines, in Latium.

Caeninenses, ium, m. pl. the men of Caenina.

Caenīnus, a, um, adj. of or from Caenina: arx; nomen=Caeninenses.

Caenis, ĭdis, f. 1. see Caeneus. 2. a mistress of Vespasian.

caenōsus (coen-), a, um, adj. [caenum], full of mud, muddy, dirty: gurges, i.e. Styx, luv.

caenum (coen-), i, n. [cunio], I. dirt, mud, mire, filth. II. (fig.) 1. dirt, uncleanness, sewage. 2. (as a term of reproach) dirty fellow, slut, skunk.

caepa (cēpa), ae, f. an onion, Also, caepē (cēpē), is, n. (only in sing.).

Caeraesi (-oesi), ōrum, m. pl. a tribe in Gallia Belgica. Their name probably survives in the river Chiers, near Sedan, a tributary of the Meuse.

Caerē, n. indecl. (poet. gen., Caeritis, abl. Caerētē), a town of Etruria, now Cervetri, called by the Greeks Agylla.

caerēmōnia, ae. See caerimonia.

Caeres, ĭtis and ētis, adj. of or belonging to Caere. As subst. Caerites (Caerētes), um, m. pl. the men of Caere. The Romans, out of gratitude to the men of Caere for giving refuge to the Vestal Virgins when Rome was sacked by the Gauls, B.C. 390, conferred on them the citizenship without the ius suffragii. Hence, when a Roman citizen was disfranchised by the censors and made an aerarian (cf. aerarius), he was said 'in tabulas Caeritum referri,' to be enrolled amongst the Caerites, i.e. to be degraded. The phrase is synonymous with aerarium facere, q.v. Hence, Caerite cerā (= tabulā) dignī, worthy to be placed amongst the Caerites, i.e. to lose our civil rights, Hor.

caerimōnĭa (cēr-), ae, f. [root of sin-cer-us]. I. a sacred rite, religious ceremony. II. (meton.) 1. a holy dread, awe, veneration (showing itself in external worship of the Deity). 2. sanctity, sacredness: legationis.

Caerites, um. See Caeres.

Caeroesi. See Caeraesi.

caerŭlĕus (-lus), a, um, adj. [akin to caesius; or from caelum with change of l to r; cf. Parilia, Palilia], 1. dark-coloured, dark blue, azure, sky-blue, cerulean: aqua; glacies. As subst. caerŭla, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. loca), the azure expanse: caerula caeli. 2. (of the sea) sea-green, azure, deep blue. As subst. caerŭla, ōrum, n. pl. the blue surface of the sea, the sea: caerula verrunt. 3. (of objects relating to the sea) azure: di, sea-deities. 4. (of rivers and river-gods) azure, blue: Thybris; amnis. 5. dark blue, steel-blue, dark-coloured: angues; oculi; caerulea Germania pube, i.e. blue-eyed. 6. dark, gloomy, sable, black: umbra; vittae; cymba (Charontis). 7. dark green, green, greenish: cucumis; coma; arbor.

Caesar, ăris, m. [caesius, from the complexion], a cognomen of the gens Iulia. C. Iulius Caesar, the most famous, born B.C. 100, was assassinated by Brutus and Cassius, B.C. 44. After him the title was borne by all the emperors.

Caesarēa (-īa), ae, f. 1. the capital of Cappadocia now Kesarieh. 2. Caesarea Philippi, now Banias, a city of Palestine, on the Jordan. 3. also called Stratonis Turris, the capital of Palestine under the Romans, on the seacoast.

Caesărĕus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Caesar or the Caesars, Caesarean; imperial.

Caesărĭānus, a, um, adj. Caesarean, imperial: Pallas.

Caesărĭensis, e, adj. of Caesarea.

caesărĭēs, ēi, f. [sc. Sanscr. kesa, hair], I. 1. a fine head of hair, the hair; flowing locks. 2. (rarely) the hair of the beard. 3. (poet.) the hair of dogs, Grat. II. (meton.) of trees; a thick mass of foliage, Ov.

Caesia Silva, ae, f. a forest in Germany between the Lippe and the Yssel.

caesim, adv. [caedo], 1. by cutting, with cuts. 2. (of a weapon) with the edge; opp. to punctim: gladio caesim percutere. 3. (fig.) in short clauses or sections: dicere.

(1) caesius, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.], bluish-grey, (very rare, and only of the eyes): oculi. 2. green-eyed, cat-eyed: leo.

(2) Caesius, ĭi, m. a Roman cognomen.

Caeso (Kaeso), ōnis, m. a Roman cognomen.

caespĕs (not cespes), ĭtis, m. [caedo], 1. a cut sod, turf, a piece of turf. 2. (meton.) a thing made of turf; (a) a hovel, hut, cot, thatched with turf: fortuitum spernere caespitem; (b) an altar of turf: positusque carbo in caespite vivo; (c) a grassy field; turf, sward.

caestus (not cestus), ūs, m. [caedo], a boxing-gauntlet worn by pugilists, consisting of a leather strap bound round the hands and wrists and studded with lead or iron bosses; a knuckle-duster.

caesūra, ae, f. [id.], 1. a cutting. 2. (in prosody) a break in a verse.

caesus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from caedo.

caetĕrus, a, um. See ceterus.

caetra (cētra), ae, f. a small round buckler or target, covered with hide, used by the natives of Spain, Africa, and ancient Britain.

caetrātus, a, um, adj. [caetra], armed with the caetra. As subst. caetrāti, ōrum, m. pl. targeteers.

Caia, ae. See Caius.

Caiānus, a, um. See Gaianus.

Caĭcus (Cāȳcus), i, m. [Κάϊκος], 1. a river of Mysia. 2. a companion of Aeneas.

Caïeta, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. 1. the nurse of Aeneas. 2. a town and harbour of Latium, now Gaeta.

Caĭus (Gaius), (trisyll.), ĭi, m. (fem. form Caia (Gaia), ae), a Roman praenomen. For abbr. see C. The form GAIUS, however, was the only one in use during the Republic and early Empire. Cf. Gaius.

Călăbri, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Calabria.

Călăbrĭa, ae, f. the peninsula in the S.E. of Italy extending from Tarentum to the Prom. Iapygium.

Călăbăr, bra, brum, adj. of Calabria, Calabrian: apes; pascua; Pierides, i.e. of Ennius, a native of Calabria, Hor.

Călacta, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. [Καλὴ ἀκτή], a town on the N. coast of Sicily.

Călactini, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Calacte.

Călăgurris (-gūris), is, f. now Calahorra, a town of Hispania Tarraconensis, on the Ibērus (Ebro); it was the birthplace of Quintilian.

Călăgurrītāni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Calagurris.

Călăis, is, m. 1. a son of Boreas, brother of Zetes, with whom he joined the Argonauts. 2. a fictitious name of a youth in Horace.

călămārĭus, a, um, adj. [calamus], pertaining to a writing-reed: theca, a case for carrying writing-reeds, a pen-case.

Călămis, ĭdis, m. a distinguished Greek statuary.

călămister, tri, m. (-trum, tri, n.), [calamus], 1. a pair of curling-irons, a crisping-pin; so called because the outer part was hollow on the inside like a reed. 2. (fig.) excessive or artificial ornament; (of style) affectation, sentimentalism.

călămistrātus, a, um, adj. [calamister], having the hair artificially curled; crisped, curled, crimped: coma.

călămĭtas, ātis, f. [? calamus, a stalk], 1. blight, disaster, loss, injury, harm, damage. 2. (fig.) misfortune, calamity, defeat, ruin, adversity, distress; often in Cic. euphemistic of convictions involving partial or total loss of civil rights; hence, deprivation of civil rights, disfranchisement, civil disability.

călămĭtōsus, ae, adv. [calamitosus], unfortunately, disastrously.

călămĭtōsus, a, um, adj. [calamitas], 1. full of ruin, ruinous, disastrous, pernicious, destructive: tempestas; bellum. 2. suffering damage, ruined, unfortunate, unhappy. Compar. calamitosior; superl. calamitosissimus.

‡ călămus, i, m. [κάλαμος], I. a cane, reed: Pan primus calamos cerā coniungere plures Instituit. II. (meton.) an object made of cane or reed; (a) a writing-reed, reed-pen; transversum, (b) an arrow: calami spicula Gnosii; (c) a fishing-rod: calamo salientes ducere pisces; (d) a limed-twig for snaring birds: sive petes calamo praemia, sive cane; (e) a reed-pipe, Pan-pipe: calamo trivisse labellum; (f) a sign-post. III. a haulm or stalk of any tall plant, esp. of the reed or cane; a stem, blade: lupini.

‡ călăthiscus, i, m. [καλαθίσκος], a small wicker basket.

‡ calathus, i, m. [κάλαθος], I. a wicker basket; a work basket, fruit basket, flower basket. 2. (meton.) a wooden or metal vessel of similar shape; (a) a cooler, pail, milk-pail: calathis lac exportare; (b) a drinking-cup, wine-cup.

Călātīni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Calatia, now Galazze or Cajazzo, in Campania. In sing. Calatinus, cognomen of M. Atilius.

călātor, ōris, m. [calo], a crier; esp. a servant of priests, Suet.

călātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from calo. Calata comitia, an assembly held by the Pontifices for the purpose of consecrating the Flamines or the Rex Sacrificulus, and for making wills.

Călaurēa (-ĭa), æ, f. a small island in the Saronic Gulf off the coast of Argolis, now Poro: Calaureæ Latoidos arva.

calcăr, āris, n. [calx, calcis], 1. a spur. 2. (fig.) a spur, incentive, stimulus: vatibus addere calcar.

calcātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from calco.

calcĕāmentum (calcĭā-), i, n. [calceo], a shoe or boot; any covering for the feet.

calcĕārium (calcĭā-), ĭi, n. [id.], shoe-money.

(1) calcĕātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from calceo.

(2) calcĕātus, ūs, m. [calceo], a foot-covering, sandal, shoe.

calcĕo (calcio), āre, āvi, ātum, [calceus], trans. v. 1. furnish with shoes, put on shoes, shoe. 2. (of animals whose shoes were not fixed on as with us): mulas, Suet.

calcĕŏlus, i, m. [dim. calceus], a small shoe or boot, a slipper; esp. of those worn by women.

calcĕus, ĕi, (-ĭus, ii), m. [calx, calcis], 1. a half-boot, shoe: mutare calceos, to don the senator's shoe, become a senator. Senators wore buskins, fastened with four straps of black leather and bearing a silver crescent in front. Calceos poscere, i.e. to rise from table, because the shoes were taken off on reclining at table.

Calchās, antis, m. (acc. Calchantă; Calchantem), son of Thestor, the wisest seer of the Greeks before Troy.

Calchēdon, ŏnis. See Chalcedon.

calcĭămentum, calcĭātus, calcĭo. See calce-.

calcĭtro, āre, [calx], intrans. v. 1. strike out with the heels, kick. 2. (fig.) turn restive, be refractory.

calco, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. tread under foot, trample upon: autumnus calcatis sordidus uvis. II. (meton.) 1. walk upon, tread, pace, plod, tramp: calcanda semel via leti. 2. tread or trample in, force or press anything in or upon another, squeeze in: huc ager ille malus dulcesque a fontibus undae Ad plenum calcentur: galeam in vultus. III. (fig.) 1. tread down, trample under foot, oppress: hostem; ius. 2. disdain, despise, spurn: foedus.

calcŭlātor, ōris, m. [calculo], a teacher of figures; an accountant.

calcŭlus, i, m. [dim. calx (2)], I. 1. a small stone, pebble, particle of gravel; (poet.) collect. sing., gravel: dumosis calculus arvis. 2. a stone or pebble used in voting, a balloting-ball (thrown into an urn, a white one for assent or acquittal, a black one for denial or condemnation); hence, a vote, decision, suffrage: calculus . . . demittitur ater in urnam. 3. a pebble used to mark lucky or unlucky days, (if lucky, white, if unlucky, black): o diem notandum candidissimo calculo: calculus diversus bicolorque. II. (meton.) 1. a counter (in reckoning); hence, a reckoning, computation, calculation: ad calculos vocare, to hold to a strict account, take stock of, reckon with. 2. a counter used in playing backgammon (ludus duodecim scriptorum), or draughts (ludus latrunculorum); a piece at chess, a man (at draughts): unus cum gemino calculus hoste perit. 3. a piece used in mosaic work.

caldārius (călīd-), a, um, adj. [caldus], pertaining to or suitable for warming: cella, a room in which a vapour bath was taken, Plin.

caldus, a, um. See calidus.

Călēdŏnĭa, æ, f. the Highlands of Scotland; Scotland.

Călēdŏnĭus, a, um, adj. of Caledonia, Caledonian, Scotch.

călĕ-făcio (contr. calfăcio), ēre, fēci, factum; pass. călĕfio (calfio), [caleo, facio], trans. v. I. make warm or hot, heat: igne focum; balineum calfieri iubebo. II. cause to glow, fuse: ora, Virg. III. (fig.) warm, give one exercise. 2. provoke, raise one's dander; rouse, excite, animate.

călĕfacto, āre, [calefacio], freq. trans. v. heat, warm.

călĕfactus (calfactus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from calefacio.

călĕfio (calfio), fĭēri. See calefacio.

Călendae, Călendārium. See Kal-.

Călēnum, i, n. See Calenus.

(1) Călēnus, i, m. See Fufius.

(2) Călēnus, a, um, adj. of Cales, Calenian: vinum; falx. As subst. Călēnum, i, n. (a) (sc. vinum), wine of Cales; (b) (sc. municipium),—Cales.

călĕo, ēre, ŭi, fut. part. călĭtūrus, (deriv. dub.), intrans. v. I. be warm or hot, be heated, glow: ture calent arae; terrae alio sole calentes. II. (fig.) 1. (a) burn, glow, be roused, inflamed, animated: mero; rabie; spe; ad lucra; (b) burn with love, be passionately enamoured of: amore; femină; 2. be troubled, perplexed, be in hot water: te calere puto; (d) burn, desire eagerly: tubas audire. 2. (of abstract things), (a) be warmly or zealously carried on, be busy: calebant nundinae; res satis calere visa est, i.e. to be quite ripe for execution; (b) be yet warm, new, or fresh: rumores de comitiis caluerunt.

Călēs, ium, f. pl. a town in Campania, now Calvi, famed for its wine.

călesco, ĕre, [caleo], incept. v. 1. grow or become warm or hot. 2. (fig.) become inflamed, glow.

Călētes, um, (-ĭ, ōrum), m. pl. a tribe of Gallia Belgica, near the mouth of the Seine, in what is now the Pays de Caux, in Normandy.

calfăcio, calfactus, calfio. See calefacio.

Calgăcus, i. See Galgacus.

călĭda, æ, f. See calidus.

călĭdus (caldus), a, um, adj. [caleo], I. warm, hot. As subst. călĭda (calda), æ, f. (sc. aqua), hot or warm water, negus. II. (fig.) hot in spirit, ardent, fiery, fierce, passionate, hot-headed, eager, bustling, fussy: consilia, i.e. hasty and ill-considered designs. Compar. calidior (caldior, Hor.); superl. calidissimus.

călĭendrum, i, n. a woman's headdress, a toque; acc. to some, a wig.

călĭga, æ, f. [cf. cal-ceus; calx], a leathern half-boot, esp. that worn by the Roman soldiers, which was strong, and studded with hob-nails.

călĭgans, ntis, part. from caligo (2). As adj. I. gloomy, dark. 2. causing mistiness or giddiness, dizzy: fenestrae.

călĭgātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [caliga], wearing a soldier's boot; booted, stoutly shod. As subst. călĭgātus, i, m. (sc. miles)=gregarius, a common soldier, a private; because the caliga was worn by the rank and file.

călĭgĭnōsus, a, um, adj. [caligo], full of mist, dark, darkness, dark, gloomy, obscure.

(1) călĭgo (call-), ginis, f. [akin to callim=clam; root CAL-; cf. cel-o; καλύπτω], I. a mist, vapour, fog; a cloud of dust, smoke, etc. II. (meton.) darkness, gloom, obscurity, indistinctness: caliginem oculis obfundere, to cause dizziness. III. (fig.) 1. mental blindness or bewilderment, darkness, dimness of perception: caecā mentem caligine consitus. 2. gloom, gloominess, cheerlessness (of circumstances): temporum.

(2) călīgo, āre, [(1) caligo], intrans. v. I. steam, reek. II. (meton.) be gloomy or dark, be in darkness: caligantem nigrā formidine lucum; (nubes) umida caligat circum, lies damp and dark around. III. (fig.) not to see clearly, be in darkness, act blindly: te sine . . . caligant vela carinae, Stat.; Thyestes, i.e. groping in the darkness of the eclipse, Mart.

călīgŭla, æ, f. [dim. caliga], I. a small military boot. II. a surname of the Emperor Caius Caesar, who succeeded Tiberius (A.D. 37-41). He was born A.D. 12, and was brought up amongst the legions in Germany, by whom he was surnamed Caligula, on account of his wearing small caligae, or soldiers' boots.

‡ călix, ĭcis, m. [κύλιξ], I. a cup, goblet: fecundi calices, brimming cups, bumpers. II. (meton.) 1. wine, Catull., Hor. 2. a cooking-pot, pipkin, Ov.

Callaecĭa, Callaecus, Callaicus. See Gall-.

callens, ntis, part. from calleo.

callĕo, ēre, [callum], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. be callous, thick-skinned. 2. (fig.) be hard, insensible, or apathetic. B. (trans.) know by experience, know well, understand: iura; artem; pauperiem pati.

Callĭcrătĭdas, ae, m. a Spartan admiral, successor of Lysander; he was killed at the battle of Arginusae, B.C. 406.

Callĭcŭla, ae, m. a mountain in Campania.

callĭdē, adj. [callidus], 1. skilfully (as the result of training), shrewdly. 2. cunningly, artfully. Compar. callidius; superl. callidissime.

callĭdĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], 1. (in a good sense) skill, address, aptness, readiness, shrewdness. 2. (in a bad sense) cunning, craft, artfulness; stratagem.

callĭdus, a, um, adj. [calleo], 1. well-practised, experienced, expert, adroit, skilful, workmanlike; ingenious, quick, shrewd, clever. (with gen.) rei militaris; (with infin.) condere furto; resonare. 2. crafty, canny, cunning, artful, sly: ad fraudem; consilium; dolus; libelarius, i.e. prompted by cunning, calculating.

Callĭfae, ārum, f. pl. a Samnian town, now Calvise.

calligo. See caligo.

Callimăchus, i, m. a famous poet and grammarian of Alexandria, B.C. 260-240. He was a native of Cyrene. Cf. Battiades.

Callĭŏpē, ēs, (-ēa, ēae), f. [Καλλιόπη, Καλλιόπεια], 1. the Muse of epic poetry; sts. put for any Muse. II. (meton.) poetry.

Callirrhŏē (poet. Callirhŏē), ēs, f. [Καλλιρρόη, Καλλιρόη], 1. the daughter of Achelous, and second wife of Alcmaeon. 2. a fountain near Athens.

callis, is, m. (f. Livy, Lucr.), [deriv. dub.], 1. a footway, mountain-path, cattle-track, path, way. 2. a woodland pasture, defile.

Callisthĕnes, is, m. of Olynthus, a nephew and pupil of Aristotle.

Callistō, ūs, (dat. Callistō, Catull.), f. daughter of Lycaon, and mother of Arcas, changed by Juno into a bear, and made a constellation (Ursa Maior) by Jupiter.

callōsus, a, um, adj. [callum], 1. hard-skinned, thick-skinned, callous. 2. solid, hard, tough: ova, i.e. with thick albumen; or, with hard shells, Hor.

callum, i, n. 1. a hard, thick skin. 2. (fig.) hardness, insensibility, callousness, obtuseness.

‡ (1) călo (kălo), āre, [root kal-, cla-, cf. καλώ, calendae, clamo], trans. v. call, call out, proclaim, summon.

(2) călo, ōnis, m. [cala, a log of wood], 1. a soldier's servant, a camp-porter. 2. a farm-servant; a sedan-bearer; a menial, drudge.

călor, ōris, m. [caleo], I. 1. heat, warmth, glow; esp. (a) the heat of the sun; (b) of fire; (c) summer heat; (d) of a hot wind; (e) fever heat. 2. heat of the human body, vital heat: calor ossa relinquit. II. (fig.) (a) ardour, burning zeal, passion, vehemence: iuvenum; Martius; (b) passion, anger: vina faciunt caloribus aptos; (c) the fire or passion of love, ardent love: videre hanc puriter, pariter traxere calorem; calores Aeoliae puellae; (d) poetic fire, inspiration: Pierius.

Calpē, ēs, f. one of the Pillars of Hercules, now Gibraltar.

caltha, ae, f. a marigold.

călumnĭa (kăl-), ae, f. [calv-o, calvor, I deceive], 1. trickery, chicanery, artifice, trickery, cabal. 2. a pretence, evasion, subterfuge; sophistry. 3. a false statement, fallacy, misrepresentation. II. 1. (legal term) a false accusation, malicious plea, a perversion of law and justice; slander, detraction, libel. 2. the bringing of an action in bad faith; dishonest litigation: calumniam iurare, to take an oath that one has good grounds for one's prosecution, i.e. that the action is brought in good faith. 3. a conviction for malicious prosecution: scito C. Sempronium Rufum calumniam tulisse, has been convicted of bringing a malicious action. III. (fig.) an ungrounded apprehension: calumnia timoris=vanus timor.

călumnĭātor (kăl-), ōris, m. [calumnior], one who makes a trade of bringing false charges; a perverter of law, slanderer, detractor, caviller.

călumnĭor (kal-), ārī, ātus sum, [calumnia], trans. and intrans. dep.; A. (trans.) 1. accuse falsely, slander, revile, disparage, misrepresent, censure, cavil at: calumniari se, disparage or underrate one's-self. 2. act in a false light, misrepresent. B. (intrans.) practise trickery or subterfuge. 2. (meton.) be unduly or groundlessly alarmed: calumniabar ipse.

calva, ae. See calvus.

calvĕo, ēre, [calvus], intrans. v. am bald.

calvĭtĭēs, ēi, f. [id.], =calvitium.

calvĭtium, ii, n. [id.], baldness.

(1) calvus, a, um, adj. [cf. Germ. kahl], I. bald, hairless. As subst. calva, ae, f. (a) a bald pate; (b) nut with a smooth shell. II. bare: calvae restes, (poet.) vines without leeks or onions on them, Mart.

(2) Calvus, i, m. a Roman name. C. Licinius Calvus, orator and poet, and friend of Catullus, lived B.C. 82-47. Impeached Vatinius, B.C. 54.

(1) calx, calcis, f. (rarely m.), [transp. from λαξ, for κλαξ], I. the heel: calcibus caedere, petere, to kick; calces remittere, to fling out one's heels, kick; adversus stimulum calces (iactare), prov. to kick against the goad. II. (meton.) the foot: calcem calce terit, Virg.

(2) calx, calcis, f. (sts. m.), [γάλαξ], I. 1. limestone, lime; mortar. 2. chalk. II. (meton.) the chalked rope which marked the boundary of the racecourse; hence, the goal: ad carceres a calce revocari, to return from the finish to the starting-place.

Călydon, ōnis, f. [Καλυδών], a town of Aetolia, on the Evenus, near which was the haunt of the Calydonian boar, killed by Meleager.

Călydōnis, ĭdis, f. adj. a Calydonian woman; esp. Deianira, Ov.

Călydōnĭus, a, um, adj. of Calydon, Calydonian: sus, i.e. the boar killed by Meleager; heros, i.e. Meleager; amnis, i.e. the Achelous, separating Aetolia from Acarnania; regna, i.e. Aputia, because Diomedes, king of Apulia, was grandson of Oeneus, king of Calydon.

Călymnē, ēs, f. an island in the Aegean, now Kalimno, famed for its honey.

Călypsō, ūs, (acc. Calypsō), f. [Καλυψώ], a nymph, daughter of Atlas, inhabiting the island of Ogygia, on which Ulysses was wrecked.

‡ călyx, ȳcis, m. [κάλυξ], the bud, cup, or calyx of a flower.

Cămaldūnum (Camalod-, Camulod-), i, n. the capital of the Trinobantes, now Colchester, (less probably Maldon), founded by the Emperor Claudius, A.D. 43.

cămăra. See camera.

Cămărīna (Cămērīna), ae, (Gk. acc. Cămărīnān), f. a town on the SW. coast of Sicily: fatis nunquam concessa moveri, forbidden by the fates to be moved; from the oracle which became proverbial, Μὴ κίνει Καμάριναν, ἀκίνητος γὰρ ἀμείνων, i.e. Let well alone.

Cambȳses, is, m. 1. the father of the elder Cyrus. 2. king of Persia, son and successor of the elder Cyrus, reigned B.C. 529-522.

cămella, ae, f. [dim. camera], a small wooden bowl used as a crater.

‡ cămēlus, i, m. [κάμηλος], a camel.

Cămēna (Cāmoena), ae, f. [old form Casmena according to some =Camena, connected with carmen=casmen, from root kas-, or cas-, say, sing.], I. a Muse. The Camenae or old Italian goddesses of literature, who had a temple by the Porta Capena, were often identified with the Greek Muses. II. (meton.) poetry, a poem, song, verse: primâ dicte mihi, summâ dicende Camenâ.

‡ cămĕra (cămăra), ae, f. [καμάρα, κάμπτω], 1. a vaulted roof or ceiling of wood and plaster; hence, a vaulted building, a vault. 2. the cabin of a ship. 3. a small roofed vessel used by privateers on the Black Sea.

Cămĕrĭa, ae, f. (Cămĕrium, ii, n.), a town in Latium.

Cămĕrīna, ae. See Camarina.

Cămĕrīnum, i, n. a town in Umbria (anciently Camers), now Camerino, on the borders of Picenum.

Cămĕrīnus, i, m. 1. a Roman poet of the time of Ovid. 2. a cognomen of the gens Sulpicia; hence, Cămĕrini, (poet.), people of Crete.

cămĕrus. See camurus.

Cămilla, ae, f. 1. a daughter of the Volscian king Metabus; she assisted Turnus against Aeneas, and was slain by Aruns. 2. see Camillus (1).

Camillus (casmillus), i, m. (? dim. form; cf. camena, casmena), a noble youth who waited on the flamines; a youth-priest. Similarly, the maidens who attended the flaminicae were called camillae.

Camillus, (2) i, m. a cognomen of the gens Furia. M. Furius Camillus, censor B.C. 403, took Veii, and freed Rome from the Gauls.

‡ cāmīnus, i, m. [κάμινος], 1. a smelting-furnace. 2. a smith's forge, a smithy, Iuv., Virg. 3. a fire-place or hearth for warming a room, or for cooking, Hor. 4. (meton.) the fire on the hearth: udos cum foliis ramos urente camino. Prov.: oleum addere camino, to throw oil on the fire, i.e. make bad worse, Hor.

‡ cammărus (gamm-), i, m. [κάμαρος], a sea-crab, lobster, prawn.

Cămoena. See Camena.

Campānia, ae, f. a district of Italy, whose capital was Capua.

Campānĭus, a, um, adj.=Campanus.

Campānus, a, um, adj. of Campania, Campanian: urbs, i.e. Capua, Virg.; supellex, i.e. cheap earthenware; morbus, a wart to which the people of Campania were subject; pons, i.e. over the Savo, three miles from Sinuessa; Via, a branch of the Via Appia. As subst. Campāni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Campania.

campester (-tris), tris, tre, adj. [campus], I. of or belonging to a plain or the open country, of the lowlands; flat, level; on level ground: Scythae, the Scythians of the steppes. As subst. campestrĭa, ĭum, n. pl. (sc. loca), flat or level ground, open country. II. 1. of the Campus Martius: proelia; arma. As subst. campestre, is, n. (sc. subligaculum), a wrestling-apron, a kilt, worn by gladiators, athletes, etc., who mostly practised in the Campus Martius; also, drawers worn under the toga, in place of the tunic. 2. pertaining to the Comitia held in the Campus Martius: gratia; certamen.

campus, i, m. [probably for scampus, cultivated ground; cf. σκάπτω], I. 1. a plain, field; open country. 2. an open space; esp. the Campus Martius (Mavortis, Virg.), or Campus, at Rome, a grassy plain on the banks of the Tiber, the resort of the Romans for games, military and gymnastic exercises, etc.; also used as the place of assemblage at the Comitia Centuriata. II. (meton.) 1. (a) the exercises, games, etc., held in the Campus Martius: fugio Campum lusumque trigonem; gaudentem ludis et post decisa negotia Campo; (b) the elections held there, the comitia: venalis. 2. (poet.) a level surface, e.g. of the sea or a rock; aquarius; campos liquentes, campus salis; immotâ attolliturundâ Campus (=saxum). 3. (poet. meton.) the produce of the field, the crop; moriturque ad sibila campus, Stat. III. (fig.) a field of action, career, opportunity: magnus est in republicâ campus, multis apertus cursus ad laudem.

cămŭr (cămūrus, cămĕrus), a, um, adj. [cf. κάμπτω, camera], crooked or curved inwards, crumple-horned.

Cănăcē, ēs, f. 1. a daughter of Aeolus. 2. a hound's name. 3. a girl's name.

cānālis, is, m. (rarely f.), [cf. canna; χαίνω], 1. a pipe, trough, channel of water, conduit: potare canalibus undam. Canalis in foro, the gutter, kennel. 2. (fig.) a narrow alley, avenue, or passage in a town: canalis in Capitolio est, canali uno discretae.

cancelli, ōrum, m. pl. [for canceruli, dim. (2) cancer], 1. bars, lattice, grating, trellis-work; a balustrade, railings; the bar in a court of justice: circi, i.e. the wooden enclosure or railings set up to mark the place for the Ludi; a barrier. 2. (fig.) boundaries, limits: cancellos egredi.

(1) cancer, cri (cancĕris, Lucr.), m. [cf. καρκίνος], 1. a crab, sea-crab, river-crab. II. (meton.) the Crab, name of the signs of the zodiac: sub sidere Cancri. 2. the region of the South: ter gelidas Arctos, ter Cancri bracchia vidit, Ov. III. (in medicine) a cancer: malum immedicabile cancer.

(2) cancer, cri, m. a lattice.

candĕfăcio, făcĕre, fēci, factum, [candeo], trans. v. 1. make dazzlingly white. 2. bring to a white heat.

candĕfio, fĭĕri, factus sum, pass. of candefacio.

candēla, ae, f. [id.], 1. a candle of wax or tallow, a taper. 2. a torch or flambeau. 3. a rope coated with wax to preserve it from decay.

candēlābrum, i, n. [candela], 1. a candlestick. 2. a lamp-stand. 3. a lamp-pillar, candelabrum.

candens, ntis, pres. part. from candeo. As adj. 1. glistening, glowing, bright, white, dazzling white. 2. white hot: Stygiâ candentem tinxerat undâ (ensem). 3. hot, burning: globos; Phoebus. Compar. candentior; superl. candentissimus.

candĕo, ēre, ŭi, [deriv. dub., cf. canus, caneo], intrans. v. 1. be white, shine, glitter, glisten. 2. (meton.) be at white heat, be hot, glow. 3. (fig.) glow with passion, be inflamed: ira.

candesco, ĕre, ŭi, [incept. from candeo], intrans. v. 1. grow or become white, begin to glisten. 2. (meton.) become white hot, begin to glow.

candidātōrĭus, a, um, adj. [candidatus], of or belonging to a candidate or candidates: munus.

candidatus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [candidus], clad or dressed in white. As subst. candidātus, i, m. I. a candidate for office, so called from the toga candida worn in canvassing for votes: praetorius, i.e. for the praetorship; aedilitatis; candidatus Caesaris, a nominee of the emperor; Candidati Principis, special quaestors nominated by the emperor, whose duty it was to read the imperial rescripts to the Senate. II. (fig.) one who strives after or aims at a thing; an aspirant, claimant, candidate, Plin., Quint.

candidē, adv. [id.], 1. in bright white: vestitus. 2. clearly, sincerely.

candidŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. candidus], glittering white.

candĭdus, a, um, adj. [candeo], I. 1. of a bright or dazzling white (opp. to niger), resplendent, brilliant, bright, white, glistening, radiant: lux; stella; toga, i.e. artificially whitened by chalk or fulling; cf. candidatus; pŭpulus, i.e. the silver poplar; lilia. Prov.: Candida de nigris et de candentibus atra facere, also nigrum in candida vertere, to make black white. 2. = candidatus, clothed in white: pompa; turba; Roma (=Romani). 3. with a fair complexion, fair, beauteous, lovely: Dido; puella; cervix. II. (fig.) (a) of the voice; clear, silver; (b) (of style) clear, perspicuous, artless; (c) (of character) spotless, pure, guileless, sincere, frank, open, upright, impartial: pectus; anima; lector; iudex; (d) happy, favourable, fortunate, lucky, joyous, cheerful: dama; pax; dies natalis, convivia; Candidus lapillus (calculus), a white pebble to mark lucky days. Candida sententia, a vote of acquittal, a white pebble being used to acquit, and a black one to condemn; cf. calculus, I. 2. III. (meton.) clear, beautiful, fair: nube solet pulsâ candidus ire dies; Favonii, bringing fair weather, bright, cloudless. Compar. candidior; superl. candidissimus.

candor, ōris, m. [candeo], I. 1. a clear lustrous whiteness, dazzling brightness, brilliancy, glitter, radiance. 2. whiteness of the skin or complexion, fairness, beauty: puellae. II. (fig.) (a) (of style) brilliancy, splendour; (b) (of mind or character) sincerity, frankness, candour, openness; sts. purity, spotlessness. III. heat, glow.

(1) cānens, ntis, part. from caneo. As adj. I. hoary, grey, greyish, white: pruina; gelu; senecta. II. (meton. poet.) aged: lumina, Virg.

(2) cănens, ntis, part from cano.

(3) Cănens, ntis, f. daughter of Ianus, and wife of Picus.

cănĕo, ēre, ŭi, [canus], intrans. v. be grey or hoary, be white.

‡ cănĕphŏrŏs, i, (-phŏra, æ), f. (nom. pl. cănĕphŏroe = κανηφόροι; acc. pl. cănĕphŏrŏs), (κανηφόρος, basket-carrier), a young Athenian maiden who carried on her head a flat basket containing the sacred things in processions at the festivals of Demeter, Bacchus, and Athena. Female figures of this kind were favourite subjects with sculptors and painters.

cănesco, ĕre, [incept. caneo], intrans. v. 1. grow grey, grow or become white or hoary, whiten. 2. (fig.) grow old or stale, become effete or 'passé.'

Cangi, ōrum, m. pl. a people in the W. of Britain.

cănĭcŭla, æ, f. [dim. canis], I. a small dog or bitch. II. (meton.) 1. the Dog-Star: flagrans; sitiens. 2. the worst throw with dice, i.e. when aces were turned up on all the four tali with which the game was played: damnosa. the unlucky ace.

Cănĭdĭa, æ, f. a sorceress mentioned by Horace; her real name was Gratidia.

Cănĭnĕfas (Cann-), ātis, gentile adj. of or belonging to the Caninefates, a tribe who lived on the Batavorum Insula: ala; tumultus. As subst. m. pl.

Cănĭnĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the gens Caninia, or Caninius.

Cănĭnĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman name.

cănĭnus, a, um, adj. [canis], I. of or belonging to a dog or hound, canine, dog-, dog-like: pellis; rictus. II. (fig.) snarling, snappish, vindictive: verba.

cănis, is, m. f. (gen. pl. canum), [cf. κύων], I. a dog, hound, bitch. II. (as a term of reproach or contempt) cur, dog. III. (meton.) 1. the Dog-Star; cf. canicula, II. 1. 2. (mythically), (a) Cerberus; (b) Scylla's dogs; (c) Infernae canes, i.e. the hounds of Hecate; (d) semidei canes, i.e. the Egyptian Anubis, etc. 3. the worst throw with the dice; the dog-throw, ace; cf. canicula, II. 2.

‡ cănistrum, i, n. [κάναστρον, a reed basket], a large, flat open basket; a bread-, fruit-, or flower-basket, esp. for religious purposes.

cănĭtia, æ, rare=canities.

cănities, f., only in nom. acc. abl. sing. [canus], I. a grey or greyish-white colour; hoariness: lupi; pennis, i.e. white feathers. II. (meton.) 1. grey or white hair. 2. hoary age, old age.

canna, æ, f. [cf. κάννα; probably for cania, the sounding-pipe; cf. can-o, Nettleship], 1. a reed, cane: salustris. 2. (meton.) anything made of reed or cane: (a) a reed-pipe, Pan-pipe, flute: arguta; (b) a canoe: Micipsarum.

‡ cannăbis, is, f. (-um, i, n), [κάνναβις, κάνναβος], hemp.

Cannae, ārum, f. pl. a village of Apulia, memorable for the defeat of the Romans by Hannibal, B.C. 216.

Cannensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Cannae: pugna; clades.

Canninĕfātes, um, pl. See Caninefas.

căno, ĕre, cĕcĭni, cantum, [Sanscr. root ÇANS- or ÇAS-; cf. casmen, carmen], intrans. and trans. v. properly, utter a solemn or ceremonial form of words, in verse or prose, prophetic or otherwise; A. (intrans.) produce harmonious sounds; sing, play (on an instrument); sound, resound: canet frondator; movit lapides canendo; tibiis (cithară) canere, to play on the flageolet, guitar; intus et foris canere, to play on the inside and out, i.e. to strike the chords of the lyre with the plectrum in his right hand (foris canere), and to thrum with the fingers of the left hand (intus canere) simultaneously; or, acc. to some, intus canere, to keep the music to one's-self, i.e. look after number one; iunctis canendo arundinibus, by playing on his pipe of reeds; maestae cecinere tubae; avibus canunt silvae. B. (trans.) 1. sing, recite, utter, rehearse, compose: carmina. 2. sing of, celebrate in verse, speak in praise of: arma virumque; reges et proelia; canitur nomen meum. 3. publish abroad, announce: fama fuit quam infecta canit. 4. foretell, predict, prophesy, recite, interpret, speak ominously of (because the earliest oracles and prophets spoke in verse): oracula; fata; cane talia Dardanio capiti, croak thy solemn bodings. 5. play, measured or stately tones, repeat: ipsa memor praecepta canam. 6. utter in a sing-song tone, chaunt, drawl, drone: eandem cantilenam; sts. intrans.: more Asiatico. 7. use charms or incantations: deducere cornua lunae canendo. C. (military tech. t.) 1. (trans.) cause to sound, blow: classicum cani iubet; signa canere, to give the signal for battle; buccina iussos cecinit recessus, gave the signal for retreat; tuba tumii commissos ludos, proclaims the games begun. 2. (intrans.) sound, be sounded, be given: priusquam signa canerent; Hasdrubal receptui cecinit (= cani iussit), had the recall sounded. Sts. impers. si receptui cecinisset, if the recall had been sounded.

Cănōpēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Canopus: litora.

(1) Cănōpus, i, m. 1. a city of Egypt, near Alexandria, on the western mouth of the Nile. 2. (meton.) (a) Lower Egypt; (b) Egypt generally.

(2) Cănōpŏs (-us), i, m. the brightest star in the constellation Argo.

cănor, ōris, m. [cano], song, melody, music, tune, tone: tubae, clash, peal.

cănōrus, a, um, adj. [canor], 1. musical, melodious, harmonious: vox; avis. As subst. cănōrum n, i, n. resonance, full clear tone: canorum illud in voce. 2. (meton.) sing-song, prettily sounding: nugae.

Cantabrĭa, æ, f. Cantabria, the country of the Cantabri.

Cantabrĭcus, a, um, adj. of Cantabria.

Cantăber, bra, brum, adj. Cantabrian. As subst. Cantăber, bri, m. a man of Cantabria, in the N. of Spain, a Cantabrian: bellicosus.

cantāmen, ĭnis, n. [canto], an incantation, charm, spell.

cantātor, ōris, m. [id.], a singer, minstrel.

cantātrix, īcis, f. adj. [id.], that sings, musical. As subst. a songstress, female singer.

cantĕrĭus (canth-), ĭi, m. [cf. κανθάριος, a pack-ass], a gelding. Prov., canterius in fossă, the horse in the ditch (where he is useless), i.e. the game isn't worth the candle. Livy.

‡ canthărĭs, ĭdis, f. [κανθαρίς], a kind of beetle; the Spanish fly.

‡ canthărus, i, m. [κάνθαρος], 1. a drinking-cup with handles, a tankard, pot. 2. a kind of seafish, the sea-bream.

‡ canthus, i, m. [κάνθος], 1. the tire of a wheel. 2. (meton. poet.) the wheel itself, Pers.

canticum, i, n. [cantus], I. 1. a solo, monody, in the Roman comedy, accompanied with music and dancing; agere. 2. a song, ballad, air. II. (meton.) a sing-song delivery (in oratory).

cantĭlēna, æ, f. [cantillo], 1. an old, hackneyed song or ditty, a jingle: cantilenam eandem cane, sing the old, old song; harp upon the same string. 2. a song strain, air.

cantĭo, ōnis, f. [cano], I. a sing ing, playing. II. (meton.) 1. a song. 2. an incantation, charm, spell.

cantĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. canto], trans. v. sing or play repeatedly.

Cantium, ĭi, n. Kent.

cantiuncŭla, æ, f. [dim. cantio], a low, soft song.

canto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. cano], trans. and intrans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. sing, play: cantando victus; fidibus; ad manum histrioni, to chaunt in accompaniment to the gesticulation of the actor. 2. declaim in a sing-song manner, drone, drawl. 3. (of instruments) sound, resound, peal: tibia; buccina. B. (trans.) 1. sing, sing of, celebrate in song or verse: convivia; cantari dignus; per totum cantabinur orbem, shall be in everybody's mouth, a household word. 2. (of an actor) take a part, act, recite: Niobeu. 3. (of modulated reading) recite in a humdrum, sing-song way, din into one; harp upon, reiterate: harum mores. C. (religious techn. t.) 1. pronounce as a magic formula; use incantations or spells, charm, bewitch: cantando rumpitur anguis; cantata luna, fabled, i.e. magic, bewitched; uva. 2. produce by magic, charms, spells, etc.: soporem.

cantor, ōris, m. [cano], 1. a singer, musician, minstrel ; poet. 2. one who recites in set phrases : formularum : cf. canto, B. 3. 3. an extoller, eulogist. 4. an actor, player.

cantus, ūs, m. [id.], 1. singing, playing, music, song. 2. a song, melody, tune, strain, note, air (of men, animals, birds, or instruments of music) : Sirenum ; cicadae ; galli ; tibiae. 3. a prophecy, prediction : veridicos cantus. 4. a magic song, incantation, spell, charm : cantu somnos spargere.

Cănŭlēius, a, um, adj. the name of a Roman gens.

cānus, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.], I. 1. white, hoary : aqua, white with foam, frothy ; pruina, hoar-frost ; favilla, grey, ash-coloured ; mala, downy. 2. (of the hair of aged persons) grey, hoar, grey-headed : capilli ; senectus. As subst. cāni, ōrum, m. pl. sc. capilli), grey hairs. II. (meton.) hoary, old, ancient, venerable, time-honoured : fides ; Vesta ; iura.

Cănūsīnātus, a, um, adj. formed like part. wearing a garment made of wool from Canusium.

Cănūsīnus, a, um, adj. of Canusium, Canusian. As subst. (a) Cănūsīnus, i, m. a man of Canusium : bilinguis, with his mongrel gretzis (of Oscan and Greek) ; (b) Cănūsīna, ae, f. (sc. vestis), a garment of Canusian wool.

Cănūsium, ĭi, n. a town of Apulia on the Aufidus, built by Diomedes, now Canosa.

Căpănēĭus (-ēus), a, um, adj. of Capaneus, Capaneus's : conjunx ; tela.

Căpăneus (trisyll.), ei, (-ĕos, ĕi), (acc. ĕă, voc. eu), m. [Καπανεύς], one of the seven chiefs before Thebes, struck by Zeus with lightning.

căpax, ācis, adj. [capio], I. able to hold or contain much ; large, roomy, spacious, wide : urna ; domus ; portus. Sts. with gen. able to contain, large enough for : circus capax populi. 2. (fig.) capable of, of ability or fitness for, great enough for, equal to, susceptible, apt : imperii ; animus ad praedo cepta ; ingenium, great, enlarged. Compar. capacior ; superl. capacissimus.

căpădo, ĭnis, f. [capio], a sacrificial bowl or cup.

căpădunc̆ŭla, ae, f. [dim. capedo, q.v.].

(1) căpella, ae, f. [dim. caper], I. a she-goat. II. a star so called in the constellation of Auriga : signum pluviale. III. a piece of statuary, Cic.

(2) Căpella, ae, m. the name of a Roman elegiac poet.

(1) Căpēna, ae, f. an ancient town of Etruria, founded by the Veientes.

(2) Căpēna, Căpēna Porta. See Capenus.

Căpēnas, ātis, gentile adj. of or from Capena. As subst. Căpēnas, ātis, m. (a) (sc. ager), the district of Capena ; (b) a man of Capena, pl. Căpēnātes ; (c) a stream in the grove of Feronia.

Căpēnus, a, um, adj. of Capena : luci. Capena Porta or Capena, the Capene Gate at Rome, at the commencement of the Appian Way, under a branch of the Marcian aqueduct : madida.

căper, pri, m. [cf. κάπρος, wild boar], I. a he-goat, a goat. II. (meton.) 1. the smell of the armpits. 2.=capella, II.

căpesso, ĕre, īvi, ītum, [freq. capio], trans. v. 1. snatch up or seize, lay hold of : cibum. 2. strive to reach or attain to, try to get, make for, repair to, seek ; Italiam. 3. (fig.) take in hand zealously, undertake, engage in, administer, manage : rem publicam ; fugam, take to flight ; lussa, execute, perform ; tuta capessere, adopt a safe policy.

Căpētus, i, m. a king of Alba.

Căphăreus (Căphēreus, trisyll.), ĕi, ĕ, or ŏos, (acc. Căphărĕă, voc. Căphăreu), a promontory of Euboea, now Capo d'Oro, where the Greeks were wrecked on their return from Troy.

Căphărĕĭus, a, um, (quadrisyll.), adj. of Caphareus : aqua. Also scanned Căphărēĭa : saxa, Propert.

căpillāmentum, i, n. [capillus], a wig, peruke.

căpillārĕ, is, n. (sc. unguentum), [id.], pomade, pomatum.

căpillātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], having long hair, hairy : capillato consule, when the consul wore his hair long, i.e. ever so many years ago, in the olden time. Cf. barba, barbatus. As subst. a youth of fashion, a young don or squire. Compar. capillatior.

căpillus, i, m. [akin to caput and κεφαλή], 1. the hair of the head. 2. the hair of the beard. 3. the hair of animals.

căpio, căpĕrĕ, cēpi, captum, [deriv. dub.], trans. v. ; A. 1. lay hold of, take, seize : saxa manu ; arma, take up. 2. (a) make one's self master of, take, make prisoner : oppidum ; captos hostes ; (b) take possession of, seize, occupy, reach, attain to, enter into : montem ; locum ; loca, take up positions (milit. techn. t) ; insulam (portum) capere, reach, arrive at, make the island (harbour) ; (c) take, catch, hunt down : pisces ; cervum. B. 1. captivate, charm, allure, fascinate, tempt, attract, ensnare : hunc capit argenti splendor, Hor. ; inque figura Capta dei nymphe est, is charmed with, Ov. ; vellŭ in, Hor. III. 2. take unawares, delude, mislead, surprise, betray, seduce, deceive : dolis ; arte ; verbis. C. 1. deprive one of his physical or intellectual powers (only in pass., and with abl. of respect) ; mutilate, maim, disable ; impair : Hannibal altero oculo capitur ; oculis capti talpae, i.e. blind ; mente captus, crazed, infatuated, insane, mad. Rarely with gen. animi captus, Tac. Also absol. mens capta (animus captus), infatuation, craziness, madness. 2. of inanimate objects : navis onere capta, i.e. overloaded. D. choose, select : locum oculis ; castris locum ; arbitrum. E. 1. acquire, get, obtain, receive : gloriam ; nomen ; pecuniam. Often joined with conciliare in a bad sense, to exact or take a bribe : quid est aliud capere conciliare pecunias? Cic. ; saevitiae capturumque pecuniam rem, Tac. 2. inherit, succeed to, obtain : regnum ; ex hereditate nihil capit. 3. (of revenues, profits, etc.) receive, enjoy, derive, reap : fructum ; pretium laborum. 4. (of offices, duties, work, etc.) enter upon, take upon one's self, undertake, assume, begin : consulatum ; rempublicam ; moderamina (navis) ; initium, begin, start, commence. 5. put on, assume, adopt, take : novas figuras ; faciem ; gestum ; prudentiam ; patrium animum. 6. (of the feelings, etc.) seize, take possession of, affect, move, overcome : infelix, quae tanta animum dementia cepit ; senatum metus cepit. 7. (of impressions, feelings, etc.) conceive, entertain, experience, suffer : hanc amicitiae ab aliquem gaudia ; voluptatem. 8. (of loss, injury, etc.) suffer, be subjected to, sustain : darent operam consules, ne quid respublica detrimenti caperet. F. 1. take in, receive, be large enough for, comprise, hold, contain : admissas aquas alveus ; parva tabella capit ternos utrimque lapillos. So, non capio, not to be large enough, be too small for : una domo iam capi non possint. 2. (fig.) admit of, hold, bear, be capable of : vix spes ipsa suas capit ; infirma aetas maiora non capiet. 3. (of the mind) take in, embrace, comprehend, grasp : rationem alicuius rei ; somnium laetius quam quod mentes eorum capere possent.

căpis, idis, f. [? capio], an earthenware wine-jug with one handle, of antique form, used for religious purposes.

căpisso=capesso.

căpistro, āre, āvi, ātum, [capistrum], trans. v. tie with a halter, halter, bridle, muzzle.

căpistrum, i, n. [capio], I. a halter, head-stall. II. a nose-piece or muzzle with spikes, used in weaning calves, kids, etc. III. (fig.) mātrĭmŏnĭālĕ capistrum, the matrimonial halter.

căpĭtālis, e, adj. [caput], I. relating to a matter of life and death, deserving severe punishment, criminal, capital : nefas ; periculum, peril of life ; res capitalis, a crime punishable with death or the loss or curtailment of civil rights. As subst. căpĭtal (-āle), is, n. punishment by death or loss of civil rights, banishment, etc. ; capital crime. II. (fig.) 1. dangerous, pernicious, deadly, mortal : odium ; ira ; pestis. 2. that is at the head, chief, first, pre-eminent, firstrate : iugenium ; iocus. Compar. capitalior.

Căpĭtīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Capitium, now Capizzi, in S. Sicily.

(1) căpĭto, ōnis, m. [caput], one who has a large head, big-headed.

(2) Căpĭto, ōnis, m. a Roman cognomen.

Căpĭtōlĭnus, a, um, adj. [Capitolium], of or belonging to the Capitol, Capitoline: clivus, the road leading up to the temple of Iuppiter; ludi; quercus, a crown of oak given to successful competitors in the games in honour of Capitoline Iove. Domitian instituted a quinquennial literary contest in honour of the Capitoline Iove. As subst. Căpĭtōlini, ōrum, m. pl. persons who had charge of the Capitoline games.

Căpĭtōlium, ĭi, n. I. the Capitol at Rome, on the Tarpeian Rock, where was a temple of Iuppiter. II. (meton.) the citadel of other towns.

căpĭtŭlum, i, n. [dim. caput], 1. a small head. 2. (meton.) fellow, chap: lepidissimum.

Cappădŏcĭa, ae, f. a province of Asia Minor, N. of Cilicia and S. of Pontus.

Cappădŏcus, a, um, adj. of Cappadocia, Cappadocian. As subst. Cappădŏca, ae, f. (sc. lactuca), a kind of lettuce.

Cappădox, ŏcis, m. 1. a Cappadocian. 2. the river from which the country is said to take its name.

‡ căpo, ōnis, m. [κάπων], a capon.

‡ căppăris, is, (acc. -im or -in), [κάππαρις], 1. a caper-bush. 2. a caper.

căpra, ae, f. [caper]. I. a she-goat: fera capra=caprea. II. (meton.) 1. the smell of the armpits. 2. a star in the constellation of Auriga; cf. (1) capella, II.

caprārius, ĭi, m. a goat-herd.

căprĕa, ae, f. [capra], a wild she-goat, roe. Capreae lupis inungere, mate roes with wolves, prov. of something unlikely or impossible. Capreae (also Caprae) Palus, a piece of boggy ground in the Campus Martius.

Căprĕae, ārum, f. pl. an island in the Etruscan Sea, off Campania, now Capri.

Căprĕensis, e, adj. of Capreae.

caprĕŏlus, i, m. [dim. caprea], I. a wild-goat, chamois, roebuck. II. a brace or stay (in carpentry), Caes.

Căprī-cornus, i, m. [caper; cornu], a sign of the zodiac which the sun enters at the winter solstice.

căprī-ficus, ī, f. [caper; ficus], a wild fig-tree.

căprī-gĕnus, a, um, adj. [caper; gigno], goat-born, of the goat kind.

caprī-mulgus, i, m. [caper; mulgeo], a milker of goats; a country bumpkin.

căprīnus, a, um, adj. [caper], of or belonging to a goat, goat's: lac. Prov.: rixari de lana caprina, to brawl about goats' wool, i.e. fight for straws; much ado about nothing.

caprī-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [caper; pes], goat-footed: epith. of Fauns, Satyrs, and Pan.

(1) capsa, ae, f. [capio], a circular box or case with a lid, esp. for books; a school-boy's satchel; a despatch-box.

(2) Capsa, ae, f. a town in N. Africa destroyed by Marius.

capsārius, ĭi, m. [capsa], a slave whose duty it was to carry his young master's book-case to and from school.

Capsenses, ĭum, m. pl. the men of Capsa.

capsŭla, ae, f. [dim. capsa], a small box or case: homo de capsulā, or ex capsulā totus, a man who looks as if he had just come out of a bandbox.

(1) capta, ae, f. See captus.

(2) Capta, ae, f. a name of Minerva.

captātĭo, ōnis, f. [capto], a reaching after or catching at something.

captātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who reaches after or strives to get something, an aspirant. 2. a will-catcher, legacy-hunter, fortune-hunter.

captātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from capto, eagerly sought, watched or laid in wait for: Hesperie; tempus; sermo.

captĭo, ōnis, f. [capio], 1. a deceiving; fraud, deceit. 2. a fallacious argument, sophism. 3. (meton.) a disadvantage, injury, loss.

captĭōsē, adv. [captiosus], sophistically.

captĭōsus, a, um, adj. [captio], 1. apt to take one in, fallacious, deceptive. 2. sophistical. Compar. captiosior.

captīvĭtas, ātis, f. [captivus], 1. captivity, a being made prisoner. 2. (meton.) a body of prisoners or captives. 3. a taking, capture: urbium.

captīvus, a, um, adj. [capio], I. 1. taken prisoner, captive. As subst. (a) captīvus, i, m. a prisoner of war (or otherwise) a captive; (b) captīva, ae, f. a female prisoner or captive. 2. (of animals) caught or taken: ferae; pisces. 3. (of things) taken in war, taken as spoil, captured: aurum; naves. II. (meton.) of or belonging to captives: cruor; sitis.

capto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. capio], trans. 1. to try to catch, strain at, clutch, snatch, chase: aëra naribus, snuff the breeze; aëra auribus, listen for the gale; frigora, court, woo. 2. (fig.) (a) strive after, aim at, lay out for obtaining, covet, court, long for: misericordiam, make an appeal to, Cic.; populi suffragia; risum; (b) lie in wait for, seek to entrap, entice, allure: sermonem; hostem insidiis; (c) (of fortune-hunters) practise legacy-hunting; bid for, pay court to: testamenta senum; homines.

captūra, ae, f. [capio], 1. a taking, catching. 2. (meton.) (a) what is caught, prey, quarry; (b) gain, earnings.

(1) captus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from capio. As subst. captus, i, m. (capta, ae, f.), a prisoner of war, captive.

(2) captus, ūs, m. [capio], 1. a taking, seizing, laying hold, grasp: trium digitorum, as much as one can grasp with three fingers, a pinch. 2. power of comprehension, capacity, character: ut est captus servorum, considering what slaves are, taking the average of slaves, Ter.; ut est captus Germanorum, considering the notions of the Germans, Caes.

Căpŭa, ae, f. the chief city of Campania, noted for its luxury.

căpŭlus, i, m. [capio], 1. a bier, tomb. 2. a handle, haft: aratri; falcis. 3. the hilt or guard of a sword.

căpŭt, căpĭtis, (abl. capite and -i), n. [cf. κεφαλή], I. the head (of men and animals); supra caput esse, to impend, be imminent; capita conferre, to confer, be closeted with. II. (meton.) 1. (a) a person, man, individual; in pl. often as we say, 'souls': carum; quot capitum; vivunt totidem studiorum Milia; capitum Helvetiorum milia CCLXIII; singula capitia, a captive apiece; in capita, per head, or for each person. (b) of lands: trigunta capitum fetus, a litter of thirty young. (c) a head, chief, leader, principal: coniurationis; reipublicae; (c) a chief town, capital: totius Graeciae Thebae; orbis terrarum; (d) the main or principal point, the chief thing: artis; sati beate vivendum; litterarum; cenae, the principal dish, 'pièce de resistance'; (e) a section, division, chapter, passage, paragraph: legis; epistolae; (f) (of money) the capital, principal: quinas hic capiti mercedes exsecat. 2. (a) the head, top, extremity, point, summit (of a thing): papaveris; montis; (b) a fountain-head, source, spring, origin: aquae; fontis; (c) (rarely) the mouth, embouchure, of a river: multis capitibus in Oceanum influit. III. (fig.) (a) life: capitis periculum adire, to risk one's life; capitis poena, capital punishment; capitis accusare, indict on a capital charge; so, damnare, absolvere; (b) a man's standing as a citizen, his rights of liberty, citizenship, and family; civil and political status. A iudicium capitis was not necessarily a trial for life, but one which affected a man's privileges and standing as a citizen, the loss of which was called deminutio capitis, civil degradation. Hence, capitis minor, (where capitis is gen. of respect), one who has lost his rights. Cf. capitalis, I.

Căpўs, pўis, (acc. Capўn), m. 1. the son of Assaracus, and father of Anchises. 2. a Trojan, the founder of Capua. 3. the seventh king of Alba.

Car, Cāris, (acc. pl. Cāras), a man of Caria, a Carian.

Cărăcalla, ae, m. a Roman emperor (A.D. 211-217).

Caractăcus (Caratăcus), i, m. Caradoc, king of the Silures in Britain.

Cărălis (Călăr-), is, f. (also -es, ium, pl.), the chief city of Sardinia, now Cagliari.

Cărălītāni, ōrum, m. pl. the people of Caralis.

carbāsă, ōrum, n. pl. See carbasus.

carbāsĕus (-Inus), a, um, adj. [carbasus], of flax-stuff, of cloth, fine linen or lawn: sinus; vela, i.e. canvas.

‡ (1) carbāsus, i, f. (heterocl. pl. -a, ōrum, n.), [κάρπασος], I. 1. fine Spanish flax. 2. flax-stuff, fine linen, cambric, lawn. II. (meton.) anything made of it; a cloth, clothing; a linen garment; (b) a curtain, awning; (c) sail-cloth; the sail of a ship; (d) the Sibylline books, made of linen; (e) a napkin.

(2) carbāsus, a, um, adj. of linen, linen: lina, i.e. colours, or a standard of embroidered linen.

‡ carbātĭnae, ārum, f. pl. [καρβατίναι], a pair of rustic brogues, made of undressed leather.

carbo, ōnis, m. [deriv. dub.], I. charcoal, a coal. 2. a piece of charcoal for writing, marking, etc. Prov.: Carbonem pro thesauro invenire, to find coal instead of a treasure, i.e. to be disappointed.

carcer, ĕris, m. [deriv. dub.], I. 1. an enclosed place; a gaol, prison; esp. the Tullianum or state prison at Rome. 2. (meton.) (a) (abstr.=concr.) imprisoned criminals: in me carcerem effudistis; (b) a gaol-bird, rascal. II. 1. the barrier or starting-place in a racecourse; mostly in pl. because the careers were enclosed stalls in which the chariots were kept while waiting the start. Cf. calx and meta. 2. (fig.) a commencement, beginning, start: ad carceres a calce revocari.

‡ carchēsĭum, ĭi, n. [καρχήσιον], 1. a Greek drinking-cup, or goblet, with handles; mostly in pl. 2. the upper part of a mast, the mast-head: summi carchesia mali.

‡ carcinōma, ătis, n. [καρκίνωμα], a cancer, cancerous ulcer. Used by Augustus as a term of reproach to describe Julia and her son Agrippa, Suet.

‡ Carcĭnōs (-us), ī, m. [καρκίνος], the constellation Cancer.

Cardăces, um, m. [Κάρδακες, Persian word], a body of Persian infantry, hereditary like the Turkish Janissaries.

‡ cardĭăcus, a, um, adj. [καρδιακός, καρδία, the heart], having the heartburn, or a pain in the stomach, dyspeptic. As subst. one who has a pain in or disease of the stomach, one who has heartburn or dyspepsia.

Cardĭānus, a, um, adj. of or from Cardia, a town on the Thracian Chersonese.

cardo, ĭnis, m. [cf. κραδάω, brandish; κράδη], I. the pivot and socket on which the doors or gates of the ancients revolved: a hinge: stridentes cardine portae. II. (meton.) (a) a turning-point, pivot; a pole: caeli; mundi; (b) a cardinal point of the world: occiduus; Eous; (c) a season, time of life: extremi cardinis annos. III. (fig.) a critical point of affairs, crisis: tanto cardine rerum.

cardŭus, ī, m. a thistle.

cārē, adv. [carus], dearly, at a high price. Compar. carius; superl. carissime.

cārectum, i, n. [carex], a sedge-plot, sedge-bed.

cārendus, a, um, gerundive from careo, that must be foregone or done without, Ov.

cārens, ntis, pres. part. from careo. As adj. deprived of, without: luce, i.e. dead, Virg.

cārĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, [akin to κείρω, καρήναι, shear], v. with abl. also, (archaic) with acc. I. 1. be without, not to have, be free from: culpā; morte; dolore. 2. go without, forego, with from: vino; lucundius est carere quam frui. 3. keep away from, hold aloof, absent one's-self: foro, senatu; adspectu civium. II. be deprived of, lose, forfeit, want, miss: consuetudine amicorum; urbe, i.e. be an exile; virque mihi dempto fine carendus abest, i.e. and I must bear his loss for ever. Also, impers. in Ter. with gen. tui carendum quod erat (σου στερητέον ἦν).

Cārēs, um, m. pl. (Gk. acc. Carās), the men of Caria, the Carians.

cārex, ĭcis, f. reed-grass, sedge.

Cāria, ae, f. a province of Asia Minor, in its S.W. corner.

cārica, ae, f. See Caricus.

Cārĭcus, a, um, adj. of Caria, Carian. As subst. cārica, ae, f. (sc. ficus), a dried fig. Figs and dates were often sent as New Year's gifts.

cārĭēs, em, e, f. only in nom. acc. and abl. sing. (akin to careo, cassus), decay, dry-rot, worm-dust.

cārīna, ae, f. [akin to careo, caries, cassus], I. the lower part of the hull of a vessel; the hull, bottom. II. (meton.) 1. a vessel, boat, ship, craft. 2. (poet.) the breast or chest of a dog, or other animal, Nemes. III. in pl. Carīnae, ārum, the Keels, a fashionable quarter of Rome on the W. end of the Esquiline (Mons Oppius), between it and the Coelian Hill: lautae.

cārĭōsus, a, um, adj. [caries], decayed, rotten: dentes; amphora, crumbling to pieces; vina, flat; senectus, withered, cranky.

‡ cāris, ĭdis, f. [καρίς], a small sea-crab or lobster, a prawn.

cārĭstĭa. See Charistia.

cārĭtas, ātis, f. [carus], 1. dearness, high price, costliness: annonae. Also, absol. in caritate (i.e. annonae), in time of dearth. 2. affection, love, high regard, esteem: patriae, love for one's country; civium, i.e. felt by one's countrymen. 3. (meton.) caritates, pl. beloved objects (qui cuique cari sunt).

Carmēlus, i, m. Mount Carmel, on the coast of Phoenicia.

(1) carmen (old form casmen), ĭnis, n. [cf. cano, camena], properly, a solemn or ceremonial utterance, in verse or prose, prophetic or otherwise, I. 1. a poem; poetry (epic, lyric, dramatic, etc.), verse, song; a verse, a lay, strain. 2. a lyric poem, an ode: carmine tu gandes, hic delectatur iambis. 3. a book or canto of an epic poem. II. 1. a poetic inscription: tumulo superaddite carmen, an epitaph. 2. an oracle, prophecy, prediction (as being generally given in verse): Cumaeum. 3. a magic formula, incantation, charm: carmina possunt deducere Lunam. 4. a religious or legal formula: lex horrendi carminis. III. 1. a tune, strain, air, note, song (both vocal and instrumental): lyrae; harundineum; cygneum.

(2) carmen, ĭnis, n. [caro (1), I card], an iron comb for carding wool or flax.

Carmenta, ae, (-is, is), f. [carmen, the prophetic one], the mother of Evander, who went with him from Arcadia to Latium, and uttered oracles on the Capitoline Hill.

Carmentālia, ĭum, n. pl. the festival of Carmentis in January, patronised by matrons, because the foretold the fortunes of their children.

Carmentālis, e, adj. of or belonging to Carmentis: flamen. Carmentalis Porta, a gate at Rome through which the Fabii marched to their death at the river Cremera, afterwards called Porta Scelerata.

Carmentis, is, f. See Carmenta. Also adj.=Carmentalis.

Carmōnenses, ĭum, m. pl. the men of Carmo, or Carmōna, in Hispania Baetica.

Carna, ae, f. [prob. a corruption from Cardina or Cardĕa, the hinge-goddess. Ovid connects the name with caro, carnis], the goddess of gates, who presided over family life and the health of man.

Carnĕădes, is, m. a philosopher of Cyrene (213-129 B.C.).

carni-fex (carnŭfex), fĭcis, m. [caro (carnis); facio], I. an executioner, hangman. II. (fig.) 1. as a term of abuse or reproach; cut-throat, scoundrel, ruffian. 2. a tormentor, murderer. As adj. (poet.) murderous, torturing, deadly: avis, i.e. the vulture; pedes, poet. of gouty feet; epula.

carnĭfĭcīna (carnŭf-), ae, f. [carnifex], I. the office of executioner or hangman. 2. (meton.) a dungeon where criminals were executed, the place of torture, the rack. 3. (fig.) torture, execution.

carnĭfĭco (carnŭf-), āre, āvī, ātum, [id.], trans. v. execute, behead.

carnis, is. See caro (2).

carnŭfex, ĭcis. See carnifex.

Carnŭtes, um, (-i, ōrum), m. pl. a Celtic tribe between the Seine and the Loire; their chief town was Autricum, now Chartres.

(1) cāro, ēre [root car-, cut; cf. κείρω], divide; card (wool, flax).

(2) cārō, carnis, (carnāis, is), f. [cf. κρέας], I. flesh, flesh-meat. II. (as a term of contempt) carrion: caro putida, Cic.

Carpāthĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Carpathus, Carpathian: mare; vates, also senex, i.e. Proteus.

Carpāthŏs (-us), i, f. an island in the Aegean Sea between Crete and Rhodes, now Scarpanto, which gave its name to the sea around it.

carpentum, i, n. a two-wheeled carriage with a hood and curtains, used mostly by Roman ladies. Also, a kind of state mourning-coach or hearse.

Carpēsĭi, or Carpētānĭ, ōrum, m. pl. a powerful people of Hispania Tarraconensis.

Carpi, ōrum, m. pl. a Dacian tribe on the Danube.

carpo, ĕre, psi, ptum, (root car-, cut; cf. κείρω, καρπός), trans. v. 1. pick, pluck, cull, gather (fruit or flowers): rosam; poma. 2. take off, crop for food, browse or graze on (of animals): gramen; pabula. 3. tear off, pull away, pluck: summas medias inter cornua setas. 4. draw off or card (wool, etc.); spin: vellera; pensa. 5. tear, rend, lacerate: crinem genasque. II. (fig.) 1. pluck, snatch, gather: gaudia. 2. enjoy, spend, make use of, use, taste: diem; quietem; aurae vitales, i.e. breathe. 3. pull to pieces, carp at, slander, revile, attack, censure: absentem; maligno sermone; libellos. 4. wear away, prey upon, weaken, consume, destroy: vires; curā carpitur; cardo medullas ignis imitit. techn. t.) harass, inflict injury upon: agmen hostium; novissimum agmen. III. (meton.) 1. pluck or gather in small pieces; hence, divide, separate, cut up: in multas parvasque partes carpere exercitum. 2. pick and choose, select, single out. 3. cut up, carve: leporem, mullum, pisces. 4. (of an action) perform bit by bit: (a) viam, iter, etc., take one's way, traverse (a path); (b) prata, rura, take to the fields; campos, scour; (c) mare, litora, pass over, sail over or along; (d) fugam, take to flight, fly.

carptim, adv. [carptus, carpo], I. by pieces, piecemeal, bit by bit, in detached portions, separately, in detail. II. (meton.) 1. at different points or places, on different sides: agredi. 2. at different times, some at one time and some at another.

carptor, ōris, m. [id.], a carver.

carptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from carpo.

Carrae (Carrhae), ārum, f. pl. the Haran or Charran of the Bible, in Mesopotamia, where Crassus was defeated by the Parthians, B.C. 53.

carrūca (-cha), ae, f. a sort of travelling carriage on four wheels. See Dict. Ant.

carrus, i, m. (-um, i, n.), [Celtic word], a small two-wheeled cart used for transporting baggage, etc.

Carsĕŏlānus, a, um, adj. of Carseoli: ager.

Carsĕŏli, ōrum, m. pl. a town of the Aequi in Latium, now Carsoli.

Carthaeus (-ēus, -ēius), a, um, adj. of Carthaea, a town on the S. side of the I. of Ceos; Carthaean: moenia; arva.

Carthāginiensis (Karth-), e, adj. of or belonging to Carthage, Carthaginian. Also as subst.

Carthāgo (Karth-), gĭnis, (locat. Carthagini), [Phoenician word, Carthada, 'New Town;' Hebr. Kirjath], 1. Carthage, in Northern Africa, founded by the Tyrians under Dido. 2. Carthago Nova, New Carthage, now Carthagena, a town of Hispania Tarraconensis founded by the Carthaginians under Hasdrubal, B.C. 243.

Carthēus (-ēius), a, um. See Carthaeus.

Cartismandŭa, ae, f. a queen of the Brigantes in Britain.

cāruncŭla, ae, f. [dim. caro, as if caroncula], a small piece of flesh.

(1) cārus, a, um, adj. 1. dear, costly, of a high price. 2. of value, precious, valued, esteemed; dear, beloved: patria; coniux. As subst. cāri, ōrum, pl. dear or loved ones. Compar. carior; superl. carissimus.

(2) Cārus, i, m. a Roman name.

Carventāna Arx, the citadel of Carventum, a town of the Volsci.

Carvilĭus, I. the name of a Roman gens. II. a British king in Kent.

Cārўae, ārum, f. pl. (also -a, ae), a town of Laconia, with a temple of Diana, hence called Cārўātis or Cārўa.

Cārўātides, um, f. pl. I. the maidens of Caryae, priestesses of Diana, the name of a statue of Praxiteles. II. (in architecture), female figures instead of columns supporting an entablature.

‡ cārўōta, ae, (-is, idis), f. [καρυῶτις], a date (so called from its nut-shape), which was gilded and sent with figs and other sweets as a New Year's gift to friends and patrons.

Cārўstĭus, a, um, adj. of Carystos, Carystian.

Cārўstĭus, a, um, =Carysteus.

Cārўstŏs (-us), i, f. a town of Euboea, now Karysto, famous for its marble quarries.

cāsa, ae, f. [Sanscr. Khad, cover], 1. a cottage, cabin, hut, shed, hovel. 2. a small country-house, bungalow, country-box. Prov.: ita lignis ne praeces, fly not so as to pass the house, i.e. don't overshoot the mark, or, take care you don't jump out of the frying-pan into the fire, Ter. 3. a bower or arbour. 4. a soldier's hut. 5. Casa Romuli, the traditional thatched hut of Romulus on the Palatine, which was kept in repair to the time of the empire.

Casca, ae, m. a Roman cognomen. P. Servilius Casca, tribune of the plebs, B.C. 44 was one of Caesar's assassins.

cascus, a, um, adj. an old Sabine word meaning old.

cāsĕōlus, i, m. [dim. caseus], a small cheese.

cāsĕus, i, m. cheese.

‡ cāsĭa, ae, f. [κασία], 1. wild cinnamon, or, perhaps, lavender, or spurge-flax. 2. mezereum, a fragrant shrub-like plant.

Cāsĭlinum, i, n. a town of Campania on the Vulturnus, near Capua.

Cāsĭnas, ātis, gentile adj. of or from Casinum, a town in Latium.

Cāsĭus, a, um, adj. of or from Mons Casius, on the coast of Egypt, near which was the grave of Pompey.

Casmēna. See Camena.

casmilus. See camillus.

Caspēria, ae, f. a Sabine town in the Tiber valley.

Caspĭi, ōrum, m. pl. the name of Scythian tribes who dwelt round the Caspian Sea.

Caspius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Caspii, or the Caspian Sea; Caspian: mons; regna. As subst. (a) Caspiae Pylae, or Portae, (or Caspiae alone), ārum, f. pl. the Caspian Gates, passes through the mountains near the Caspian Sea; (b) Caspium Mare, n. the Caspian Sea, a salt-water lake in Asia, the largest in the world.

Cassander, dri, m. a son of Antipater, and king of Macedonia.

Cassandra, ae, f. a prophetess, daughter of Priam and Hecuba, murdered by Clytaemnestra.

Cassandreus, ei, (trisyll.) m. the man of Cassandrea, a town of Macedonia; i.e. the tyrant Apollodōrus, who reigned there.

(?) cassē, adv. [cassus], in vain.

casses, ĭum, m. pl. (in sing. only acc. cassem, and abl. casse), 1. a hunter's net, snare, toil. 2. (meton.) a spider's web. 3. (fig.) snares, plots.

Cassi, ōrum, m. pl. a British tribe in Herts, whence prps. Cassiobury.

Cassiānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cassius.

cassĭda, ae, f. a by-form of (1) cassis.

Cassĭŏpē, ēs, (-ēa, ae), f. 1. the wife of Cepheus, and mother of Andromeda. She was made a constellation. 2. a town in Corcyra.

(1) cassis, ĭdis, (-ĭda, ae), f. a helmet or casque of metal; also, any helmet. Cf. galea.

(2) cassis, is, m. a hunter's net, snare. Only in acc. abl. sing. See casses.

Cassitĕrĭdes, um, f. pl. [κασσίτερον, tin], the tin-islands, now the Scilly Islands.

Cassius, ĭi (-i), m. a Roman name. The gens Cassia produced many distinguished men, amongst whom was C. Cassius Longinus, one of Caesar's assassins.

Cassivellaunus, i, m. Caswallon, a British chief defeated by Caesar.

cassus, a, um, adj. 1. empty, void, hollow: nux; canna, useless, barren. 2. (with abl.) deprived of, devoid of, wanting, without: lumine, i.e. dead; aethere. 3. (fig.) vain, useless, without effect or result, fruitless: vota. In cassum or incassum, adv. in vain, to no purpose, fruitlessly.

Castălĭa, æ, f. a fountain on Mt. Parnassus, sacred to Apollo and the Muses, who were hence called Castălĭdes.

Castălĭdes, idis, f. adj. Castalian: undæ; Castalides sorores, i.e. the Muses.

Castălĭus, a, um, adj. of Castalia, Castalian: fons; arbor, i.e. the laurel.

‡ castănĕa, æ, f. [κάστανον], 1. a chestnut-tree. 2. a chestnut; pls. in app. castaneæ nuces.

castē, adv. [castus], 1. purely, uprightly, guiltlessly. 2. chastely, piously, virtuously. Compar. castius; superl. castissime.

castellānus, a, um, adj. [castellum], of or belonging to a fort: triumphi, i.e. for the capture of a fort. As subst. castellāni, ōrum, m. pl. the garrison.

castellātim, adv. [id.], lit. castle-wise: dissipati, i.e. in detached parties.

castellum, i, n. [dim. castrum, for casterulum], 1. a bastion, redoubt, fort, fortress, stronghold. 2. a mountain village, station (generally fortified): castella in tumulis. 3. (fig.) a stronghold, defence, shelter: omnium scelerum.

castīgātĭo, ōnis, f. [castigo], 1. a correcting, chastising, punishment, reprimand. 2. (meton.) a trimming, lopping, or pruning of plants.

castīgātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who corrects or chastises, a reprover, critic.

castīgātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from castigo. As adj. of faultless shape, shapely, perfect, refined; or, perhaps, smooth in surface, polished, unwrinkled: frons; pectus.

castīgo, āre, āvi, ātum, [castus, ago], trans. v. 1. correct, chastise, punish. 2. reprimand, censure, reprove. 3. goad, egg on, put on one's mettle. 4. set right, correct, amend (a fault, work, etc.): carmen. 5. bind close, confine; restrain, check: ventrem, put on short commons.

castimōnĭa, æ, f. [castus], purity of morals, purity, chastity, morality.

castĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], purity of morals, morality, chastity.

‡ castor, ōris, m. (Gk. acc. castŏra), [κάστωρ], the beaver.

(2) Castor, ōris, m. 1. son of Iuppiter and Leda, twin-brother of Pollux and Helen. Their reputed father was Tyndărus, hence they are called Tyndăridæ. Castor and Pollux formed the constellation of Gemini (the Twins), invoked by sailors. Castor was famed for his skill in boxing. His temple, on the S. side of the Forum, was used as a treasury. Hence, vigilem ponendi Castora numi; ad Castoris (sc. aedem), as we speak of S. Paul's. In pl. Castŏres, um, i.e. Castor and Pollux: locus Castorum vocatur. 2. a grandson of Deiotarus. 3. a comrade of Aeneas.

castŏrĕum, i, n. [(1) castor], castor, a strong-smelling secretion of the beaver. Sts. in pl.

Castŏrĕus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Castor.

castra, ōrum. See castrum.

castrensis, e, adj. [castrum], of or belonging to a camp, camp-.

castro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. castrate, spay. 2. (fig.) weaken, impair, check, restrain.

castrum, i, n. [cf. casa], A. in sing. a stronghold, fort. Castrum Inui or Castrum Inuis, a town of Latium, near Ardea. B. in pl. castra, ōrum, n. I. a fortified camp, an encampment: ponere, to pitch one's camp; munire, to form (i.e. fortify) a camp (by throwing up an earthwork and trench round it); movere, break up the camp, decamp. II. (meton.) 1. the troops in camp: castra fremunt. 2. a day's march (because a camp was pitched every evening): tertiis castris. 3. military service, campaigning, a campaign: per signa decem felicia castris, Luc.; magnum in castris usum habebant. 4. (poet.) the cells of bees; a hive, Virg. III. (fig.) a side, party, sect, faction: nil cupientium, Hor.

Castŭlo, ōnis, m. f. a town of Hispania Tarraconensis, now Cazlona. Adj. Castŭlonensis, e, of Castulo.

castus, a, um, adj. [cf. καθαρός], 1. morally pure, guileless, spotless. 2. chaste, virtuous; matres; domus. 3. pious, religious; sacred, holy: sacerdotes; nemus. 4. innocent, upright, honourable.

cāsū [casus], 1. adverbial abl. by chance or accident, accidentally. 2. =dat. casui.

cāsŭla, æ, f. [dim. casa], a small cottage or hut.

cāsūrus, a, um, fut. part. from cado, about to fall, doomed to fall.

cāsus, ūs, m. [cado], I. 1. a falling, fall: nivis. 2. an overthrow. 3. an occurrence, event, contingency, chance, accident, emergency; esp. a disastrous event, mishap, evil plight, misfortune, calamity. 4. chance, occasion, opportunity: victoriae. 5. danger, adventure, peril: casus evaserat omnes. 6. (euphem.) death: si quis casus puerum egerit Orco. II. (fig.) 1. (of time) the end, close: extremae sub casum hiemis. 2. a fall, false step, error, peccadillo, III. (in Gram.) case: rectus, i.e. the Nominative.

‡ Cătăbathmŏs (-us), i, m. [Κατάβαθμος], a sloping tract of land, with a seaport of the same name, considered as the boundary between Egypt and Cyrenaica.

‡ cătăchrēsis, is, f. [κατάχρησις], an improper use of a word.

‡ cătădrŏmus, i, m. [κατάδρομος, a running down], a rope extending in an inclined plane from a platform to the ground, for acrobatic performances.

‡ cătăgrăphus, a, um, adj. [κατάγραφος], painted, coloured. As subst. in pl. cătăgrăpha, ōrum, n. (and prps. -i, ōrum, m.), profile paintings; figures in perspective, or foreshortened.

Cătălauni (Cate-), ōrum, m. pl. a Gallic people and town now Châlons-sur-Marne.

‡ cătălectĭcus, a, um, adj. [καταλεκτικός leaving off]: versus, a verse that wants a syllable at the end.

Cătămeitus (-ītus), i, m. another name of Ganymedes.

Cătāna, Cătānensis. See Catina, etc.

‡ cătăphracta (-ēs), æ, m. [καταφράκτης], a coat of mail.

‡ cătăphractus, a, um, adj. [καταφρακτος, covered up], clad in mail; armed ' cap-à-pie.'

‡ cătăplus, i, m. [κατάπλους, a putting in to shore], abstr.=concr. a ship or fleet on its way to port.

‡ cătăpulta, æ, f. [καταπέλτης], a catapult, a military engine for discharging heavy darts, stones, etc.

‡ cătăracta, æ, f. (-ēs, æ, m.), [καταράκτης], 1. a cataract, cascade. 2. a portcullis, drawbridge. 3. a sluice, floodgate.

‡ cătasta, æ, f. [κατάστασις], a stage or platform on which slaves were exposed for sale.

cătĕa, æ, f. (Celtic or German word), a harpoon.

(1) cătella, æ. See (1) catellus.

(2) cătella, æ, f. [dim. catena], a small chain, Hor.

(1) cătellus, i, m. (-a, æ, f.), [dim. catulus], 1. a little dog, puppy, whelp. 2. (as a term of endearment) ' old chappie,' ' you young dog.'

(2) cătellus, i, m., also cătella, æ, f. [for catenulus dim. catena], a small chain.

cătēna, æ, f. I. 1. a chain. 2. a fetter, shackle. II. (meton.) a chain or series of things connected together. III. (fig.) a restraint, bond, barrier.

cătēnārĭus, a, um, adj. [catena], of a chain: canis, a yard or watch-dog kept chained up.

cătēnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cateno, 1. chained, fettered: taberna, i.e. barred and chained for the night, Iuv. 2. (fig.) strung or linked together, intertwined: palaestra; labores, i.e. continuous.

cătĕrva, æ, f. a crowd, troop, horde, band, company; often of soldiers, esp. of infantry, an escort, suite; (of animals) a flock.

cătervārius, a, um, adj. [caterva], of or belonging to a crowd or troop: pugiles, i.e. who fought in companies, and not in pairs.

cătervātim, adv. [id.], by companies, in troops or bands, by droves, by flocks.

‡ cătthădra, ae, f. [καθέδρα], 1. a chair, used mostly by women or effeminate men: longa, or supina, an easy or lounging chair; strata, i.e. cushioned. 2. a professor's chair. 3. a sedan-chair. 4. a writing-table, escritoire.

cătthedrālĭcius, a, um, adj. [cathedra], of or belonging to an easy chair; effeminate, Mart.

Cătĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Catius.

Cătĭlīna, ae, m. I. L. Sergius Catilina, a Roman noble who, in B.C. 63, headed a conspiracy which was baffled by Cicero. II. (appel.) a man like Catiline, a conspirator.

Cătĭlĭnārĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Catiline, Catilinarian.

(1) cătillus, i, m. (-um, i, n.), [for catinulus, dim. catinus], 1. a small bowl, dish, or plate, Hor., Juv. 2. a stud or ornament on a scabbard.

(2) Cătillus (Cătĭlus), i, m. a son of Amphiarus, and brother of Coras and Tiburtus, with whom he founded Tibur, hence called moenia Catili.

Cătīna (Cătăna), ae (also -ē, es), f. a town of Sicily, now Catania, at the foot of Mt. Aetna.

Cătīnensis (Cătă-), e, adj. of or from Catina. In pl. Cătīnenses, ium, m. the men of Catina.

cătīnus, i, m. (-um, i, n.), [cf. κατινον], 1. a deep dish for vegetables, fish, poultry, etc. 2. a private dish. 3. a censer. 4. a crucible.

Cătĭus, ĭi, m. 1. an Epicurean philosopher, who died about B.C. 45. 2. a character satirised by Horace under a fictitious name.

Cativolcus (Catu-), i, m. a king of the Eburones.

Cāto, ōnis, m. [catus, 1], a Roman cognomen; 1. M. Porcius Cato, surnamed Censor or Censorius, also Cato Maior, noted for his stern morality and his inveterate hatred of Carthage. Author of the Origines and De Re Rustica (B.C. 234-149). 2. M. Porcius Cato, surnamed Uticensis, great-grandson of the Censor. After the defeat of Scipio at Thapsus (B.C. 46), he committed suicide at Utica rather than fall into the hands of Caesar. 3. Valerius Cato, a poet and grammarian of Sulla's time. 4. (appel.) a man like Cato, a stern, austere character.

Cātōnĭānus, a, um, adj. of Cato; Cato's.

Cātōnĭni, ōrum, m. pl. the friends or partisans of Cato.

‡ cātōnĭum, ĭi, n. [κάτω], the Lower World, Cic., in a pun.

catta, ae, f. a cat or martin.

Catti, ōrum. See Chatti.

cătŭla, ae. See catulus.

Cătullĭānus, a, um, adj. of Catullus.

Cătullus, i, m. 1. C. Valerius Catullus, a Roman poet, born in or near Verona, B.C. 86. Died about B.C. 47. 2. a writer of mimes in Iuvenal's day. 3. an informer of Iuvenal's day.

(1) cătŭlus, i, m. I. a young or small dog, puppy. II. (meton.) a cub, whelp; the young of animals, esp. of quadrupeds; but also (poet.) a snake's brood

(2) Cătŭlus, i, m. the cognomen of the gens Lutatia.

Cătŭrĭges, um, m. pl. an Alpine tribe in Gallia Narbonensis. Their name survives in the modern Chorges.

cătus, a, um, adj. 1. sharp. 2. shrewd, clever. sagacious. Poet. with proiat. iufin. skilled; iaculari. 3. sly, cunning.

Caucăsĭus (-ĕus), a, um, adj. of or from Mount Caucasus, Caucasian: volucres, i.e. vultures, alluding to the punishment of Prometheus.

Caucăsus, i, m. a mountain chain in Asia between the Black and Caspian Seas.

Cauci, Cauchi. See Chauci.

cauda (cōda), ae, f. the tail of animals. Caudam trahere, drag one's tail behind one, i.e. be a laughing-stock. Caudam iactare, to wag the tail, fawn upon; or, show one's-self off (like a peacock).

caudex (codex), ĭcis, m. I. 1. the trunk of a tree, stock, stem. 2. a clog chained to the feet of slaves by way of punishment. II. (fig.) a term of reproach, blockhead, numskull. III. a memorandum book; an account-book, ledger (originally made of thin tablets of wood, coated with wax and bound together). See Dict. Ant.

Caudīnus, a, um, adj. of Caudium, Caudine. Furcŭlae Caudĭnae, the Caudine Forks, a pass where the Roman army surrendered to the Samnites, 321 B.C.

Caudĭum, ĭi, n. a town of Samnium, near Beneventum. Cf. Caudinus.

caulae (caullae), ārum, f. pl. [cavile, cavus], 1. an opening, hole, passage, aperture. 2. the gate of a sheep-cote; a fold, pen, enclosure.

caulĭcŭlus (cōl-), i, m. [dim. caulis], 1. a small stem or stalk. 2. a small cabbage.

caulis (cōlis), is, m. [καυλός], 1. the stalk or stem of a plant. 2. a cabbage, colewort.

Caulon, ōnis, m. (Caulōnĭa, ae, f.), a town of Bruttium.

Caunĕus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Caunus, Caunian. As subst. (a) Caunēi, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Caunus; (b) Caunēa, ae, f. (sc. ficus), a Caunean fig.

(1) Caunus (-ŏs), i, f. a city of Caria.

(2) Caunus, i, m. a son of Miletus.

caupo (cōpo), ōnis, m. [cf. κάπηλος; capio], 1. a taverner, keeper, landlord, host. 2. a petty tradesman, retail dealer.

caupōna, ae, f. [caupo], 1. an inn, hostelry, tavern. 'cubaret,' 'estaminet.' 2. a retail shop. 3. a hostess, landlady.

caupōnor, ārī, ātus sum, [id.], intrans. dep. 1. keep a retail shop or tavern. 2. with cogn. acc. trade or traffic in a thing: bellum.

caupōnŭla, ae, f. dim. [caupona], a small inn or tavern, a low café, pot-house.

Caurus (Cōrus), i, m. the north-west wind.

causa (caussa), ae, f. [obsol. caudo, smite, cut; hence, a thing decided], I. 1. a cause, reason, motive, inducement: in causā esse, to be the cause of a thing, be responsible for it. 2. occasion, opportunity. 3. adverbial abl. causā, with gen. or possessive pron., for the sake of, on account of: honoris causā; meā causā, in my own interest, on my own account; verbi causā, to take an instance; animi causā, by way of amusement. II. 1. good reason, just cause, grounds for a thing: cum causā, with good reason; sine causā, without good reason, unwarrantably. 2. a feigned cause, pretext: fingere; inferre, to offer a reason; per causam, under the pretence or pretext. 3. an apology, excuse. III. (legal techn. t.) a cause, legal process, lawsuit: agere; defendere causam obtinere (tenere), to win upon a cause; causā cadere, be non-suited (see cado, II.); causam dicere, (a) defend one's-self, be placed on trial; (b) make a defence (as an advocate). IV. (meton.) 1. a cause, party, faction. 2. a friendly relation, connection. 3. a condition, situation, state, position, circumstances: in eam causā esse; alia causa facta est, the aspect of the case is changed: 4. a cause or business undertaken for any one, commission, employment: cui sententus dederat publice causam ut mihi gratias ageret, had commissioned, empowered, Cic. 5. a disease, malady. V. (rhet. techn. t.) matter, subject-matter, subject.

causārĭus, a, um, adj. [causa, IV. 5], sick, diseased, ill. As subst. causārĭi, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. milites), soldiers discharged on sick leave, invalided.

‡ causĭa, ae, f. [καυσία], a broad-brimmed felt hat, sombrero.

causĭdĭcus (causs-), i, m. [causa; dico], a pleader, counsel, advocate (who took fees).

causor (caussor), ārī, ātus sum, [causa], trans. and intrans. dep.; A. (trans.) give as a reason or excuse, make a pretext, plead, allege: negotia; valetudinem. B. (intrans.) make excuses.

causa, caussarius. See causa, etc.

cautē, adv. [cautus], 1. cautiously, warily, carefully. 2. with security, safely. Compar. cautius; superl. cautissime.

cautēs, is, f. [akin to cos, cotis], a pointed rock, crag.

cautim, adv. [cautus], cautiously, warily.

cautio, ōnis, f. [caveo], 1. a taking care, carefulness, wariness, precaution. With obj. gen. a means of avoiding; vitiorum. 2. in phrases, (a) Mihi cautio est (=cavendum est), I must take care; (b) mea cautio est, I must see to it; (c) res multas cautiones habet, the question has several points requiring caution; (d) res cautionem non habet, the matter does not admit of precaution. 3. (legal techn. t.) a security, bond, warranty (both verbal and in writing).

cautor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who is on his guard. 2. one who protects another, a protector, champion.

cautus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from caveo. I. 1. made safe, secured: ab incursu belli; nummos, i.e. on good security. 2. (fig.) safe, secure: in eam partem peccant quae est cautior. II. as adj. 1. careful, wary, cautious, prudent. 2. sly, cunning, shrewd. Compar. cautior; superl. cautissimus.

cāvaedium, ī, n. (=cavum aedium), the inner and open court of a Roman house. See Dict. Ant.

cāvendus, a, um, gerundive, [caveo], to be avoided or guarded against.

cāvē, and poet. cāvĕ, imper. of caveo, look out! beware!

cāvĕa, ae, f. [cavus], I. 1. a den, cavern, cave. 2. a cage or den for wild beasts. 3. a coop; a birdcage. 4. (poet.) a bee-hive. II. 1. the seats or benches occupied by spectators in a theatre or amphitheatre: prima, or ima, media, summa or ultima, the lowest, middle, or upper tier (the lowest being the seat of honour). 2. (meton.) the circle of spectators; the spectators, audience.

cāvĕo, ēre, cāvi, cautum, intrans. and trans. v.: A. (intrans.) 1. be on one's guard, be cautious, take heed, take care, beware: (a) absol., cavendum est; (b) with prep. ab and abl., ab homine impuro, ab insidiis, be on one's guard against; (c) with abl., malo; (d) with final nē, cavendum est nē nodum putemur quaerere, we must avoid going, take measures not to go, etc.; (e) with ut ne, quod ut ne accidat cavendum est; (f) without ne (so only in imper.), cave faxis te quidquam indignum, beware of doing, take care not to do; cave dixeris, don't speak of it; (g) with final ut, deos cavere ut tuto libertas defendi possit, take care that . . ., make arrangements that . . . II. 1. (legal techn. t.) provide, order, stipulate, prescribe, make conditions: cautum est lege XII. Tab. ut: testamento cavere ut dies natalis ageretur. 2. (mercantile techn. t.) (a) cavere ab aliquo, take security from a person, procure bail or surety, secure one's self; (b) with dat. or abl., give security to a person, guarantee; civitates obsidibus de pecunia cavent, give security for the money with hostages, i.e. give hostages as a guarantee for the money. III. cavere alicui or alicui rei, take precautions for a person or thing, provide for, protect: quique aliis cavit non cavet ipse sibi; cavere alicui in iure (of lawyers), to attend to a person's interests in a lawsuit, i.e. give one legal advice. B. (trans.) 1. beware of, guard against, provide against, foresee: periculum; hunc tu caveto, avoid. Sts. with infin. in prohibitions, cave verseris; cave capro; commisisse. 2. (in boxing) ward off a blow, parry.

cāverna, ae, f. [cavus], 1. a cave, cavern, hollow, grotto, vault. 2. the hold of a vessel: puppis.

cāvillātĭo, ōnis, f. [cavillor], 1. a jeering, scoffing, gibing, raillery. 2. sophistry, pedantry.

cāvillātor, ōris, m. [id.], a joker, giber, jester.

cāvillor, āri, ātus sum [akin to caveo], intrans. and trans. dep.: A. (intrans.) 1. quibble, cavil. 2. vent one's wit, jeer, gibe, jest. B. (trans.) make sport of, banter, mock, taunt, criticise, satirise.

cāvo, āre, āvi, ātum, [cavus], trans. v. make hollow, hollow or scoop out, excavate: lintres; parmam galeamque gladio, i.e. pierce, stave in.

cāvum, i, n. See cavus.

cāvus, a, um, adj. [cf. κοῖλος, κενός], I. hollow, hollowed, excavated: concha; ilex; flumina, i.e. running in deep beds, and so, shallow, waterless: nubes, i.e. shrouding or enfolding mist. As subst. cāvum, i, n., and cāvum, i, n., a hollow, hole, cave, cavern. II. (poet., of a vision) insubstantial, empty, hollow: volitare cavā sub imagine formae, Virg.

Cāÿcus. See Caicus.

Cāÿster, tri, m. See Caystros.

Cāÿstrius, a, um, adj. of or from the Caystер: ales, i.e. the swan.

Cāÿstrŏs (-us), i, m. a river of Lydia and Ionia, now the Kitchik-Minder, frequented by water-fowl, esp. swans.

-cĕ, demonstr. strengthening particle affixed to cases of hic, ille, iste, esp. those ending in s; e.g. huiusce, hunce; illiusce, illosce; istiusce, etc. From these, with the interrog. particle -nĕ originated inclīne (hiccine), hocine? etc. Cf. siccine.

Cēa (Cĭa), ae, f. Cea or Ceos, one of the Cyclades, the birthplace of Simonides, now Zia.

Cēbenna. See Cevenna.

Cebrēnis, ĭdos, (acc. Cebrenĭda), f. patron. a daughter of Cebren, a river-god of Troas.

Cĕcrŏpia, ae, f. (sc. arx), the citadel of Athens, founded by Cecrops. Hence (poet.) by meton.=Athens.

Cĕcrŏpĭdes, æ, m. patron. I. a son or descendant of Cecrops; voc. Cĕcrŏpĭdā, i.e. Theseus. 2. (meton.) (a) one of noble descent; (b) an Athenian.

Cĕcrŏpis, ĭdŏs (-ĭdis), (voc. Cĕcrŏpi), f. I. 1. a daughter of Cecrops. 2. (meton.) an Athenian woman. II. as adj. of Attica, Attic: terra; ales, i.e. Procne.

Cĕcrŏpĭus, a, um, adj. I. of Cecrops, Cecropian. 2. Athenian, Attic: apes; cothurnus.

Cĕcrops, ŏpis, m. the first king of Attica, and mythic founder of Athens; called geminus, as being half-man and half-serpent.

(1) cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans., traj., and traj. trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. move, pass, go, walk. 2. (a) go away, withdraw, retire: patriā; moenibus; also with prepp. de and ex; (b) cedere loco, abandon one's post; (of a soldier) retreat; (c) cedere foro, withdraw from the market, i.e. not to be seen on 'Change (techn. t. for being insolvent or becoming bankrupt); give one's creditors the slip, be a defaulter; (d) cedere bonis or possessionibus alicui, to resign one's property, etc., in favour of another. 3. turn out, happen, result: bene cedere, i.e. succeed, prosper; male, turn out ill, fail. 4. Cedere pro aliquā re, be equivalent to, be taken as: equilae pro stipendio cedunt. 5. (fig.) pass away, disappear, vanish: e vitā or vitā; memoriā; cessere irae. 6. be changed or pass into something; be substituted for, be equivalent to: nimius honor in solatium cessit, served as a consolation; fortuna in sapientiam cessit, success passed for prudence. 7. give place, give way, submit, yield: locum dare et cedere, i.e. to fall to a person's share or lot, befall, happen, accrue to: cesserunt piscibus undae; cessit victoria Turno; in praedam, or praedae; alicui in usum (cf. usus), pass to one's use, be a life-tenancy. 8. (transitive) yield to, give way to, make room for, make a sacrifice for, succumb to, surrender: tu ne cede malis. 2. yield to in rank, etc., give precedence to, as inferior: salix cedit olivae. 3. yield to a person's wishes, etc., comply with one's wishes, humour: in unum cedere, be unanimous. C. (trajective-transitive), grant, yield, concede, permit, allow something to a person: multa multis. Also with ut and subj., plebes cessit patribus ut tribuni crearentur. Rarely with infin. obj. clause, cessere parentes Aeternum florere genas.

(2) cēdo, old imperat. 2 sing., pl. cēdite, cette, [-ce, q.v. and DA-, root of dare, dedi], 1. pray tell me, say, out with, let us hear: cedo igitur quid faciam? sts. with acc. cedo istuc tuum consilium. Joined with dum (cf. agedum), cedodum, en unquam audisti, etc.? just tell me now. 2. just give or hand me, here with; grant: cette dextras: cedo, inquam, si quid ab Attico. 3. mark! pray consider! cedo nunc illius inimici contionem. 4. cedo ut, grant that, let me: cedo ut bibam.

‡ cedrus, i, f. [κέδρος], 1. a cedar-tree, cedar. 2. cedar-wood. 3. (meton.) cedar oil or gum, used to colour MSS., and to protect them from moths, etc. Hence, carmina limenda cedro; cedro digna locutus.

Cēlădon, ōntis, m. 1. a companion of Phineus. 2. one of the Lapithae.

Cēlaenae, ārum, f. pl. a city of S. Phrygia, on the Maeander, the scene of the punishment of Marsyas by Apollo.

Cēlaenō, ūs, f. (Κελαινώ), 1. one of the Pleiades. 2. one of the Harpies. Hence (meton.), an avaricious woman, a harpy.

Cēlaenaeus, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to Celaenae. 2. of or belonging to Marsyas. See Celaenae.

cēlātor, ōris, m. [celo], a concealer, hider.

cĕlĕbĕr (also cēlēbris, masc.), ĕbris, ĕbre, adj. [? root KAL-; for formation cf. creber, Muliebr, saluber], 1. much frequented, crowded, populous: forum; urbs; dies, i.e. holidays, attended by large gatherings. 2. abounding in, rich in: celeberrima fontibus Ide. 3. abundant, frequent, often repeated, numerous: verba. 4. (meton.) much talked of, celebrated, illustrious, renowned, famous: res; nomen; often with abl.: triumphis; pietate. Compar. celebrior; superl. celeberrimus.

(?) cēlĕberrĭmē, adv. [as if superl. from celebriter], very frequently.

cēlĕbrātio, ōnis, f. [celebro], 1. a large gathering, concourse. 2. a celebration (of games, etc.), a commemoration, festival, gala.

cēlĕbrātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who celebrates, a celebrator.

cēlĕbrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from celebro. As adj. 1. much frequented or resorted to. 2. customary, usual. 3. much talked of, well-known, famous, renowned. 4. solemnly kept, festal, festive: certamina; dies. Compar. celebrior.

cēlĕbris, e, adj. See celeber.

cēlĕbrĭtas, ātis, f. [celeber], 1. a large gathering or assembly, concourse, crowd: in maximā celebritate vivere, to live in the greatest publicity; loci, populousness; viae, a much frequented thoroughfare. 2. fame, renown, distinction.

cēlĕbro, āre, āvi, ātum, [celeber], trans. v. 1. visit frequently, resort to, frequent, haunt, throng: forum; silvas; atria. 2. do something frequently, pursue with diligence, make a practice of, engage in, use, employ: artes; serin ac iocos, employ one's time in, Livy; legem omnibus contionibus suis, promote, strongly recommend, id.; actiones frequentiā urbanā, reinforce, fortify, back up, id. 3. lift up, pack: contiones convicio cantorum. 4. go in numbers to a celebration, attend in large numbers: hence, solemnise, celebrate, keep sacred, festive, etc.: festos dies; sacra natales; orgia, carry in close procession. 5. honour, praise, talk much of, make renowned, render famous, celebrate in song: virtutem; honores. 6. publish abroad, give currency to, proclaim: rem.

Cēlemna (-enna), ae, f. a city of Campania.

cēlĕs, ētis, m. [celo], a swift horse, a racer.

Cēlĕtē, ēs, f. a town of Crete.

Cēlĕtrum, i, n. a town of Macedonia.

Cēlĕus, ēi, m. (Κελεός), king of Eleusis, father of Triptolemus.

cēlĕvĭsō, ōnis, f. [celo], a secret pain.

cēlĕvĭtās, ātis, f. [celer], swiftness, speed, rapidity.

cēlĕvĭtĕr, adv. [celer], swiftly, speedily, promptly, with despatch.

cēlĕvĭtūdo, ĭnis, f. [celer], swiftness, speed, rapidity.

cēlĕx, ĭcis, m. [celo], a racer, a horse.

cēlĭa, ae, f. [caelum], a heavenly goddess.

Cēlĭa, ae, f. 1. a Roman gens. 2. Caecilia Metella, wife of Crassus.

Cēlĭānus, a, um, adj. [Celius], of Celius.

Cēlĭbē, ēs, f. (Κελείβη), a town of Thessaly.

Cēlĭbēs, ētis, m. (Κελεβής), a Thessalian.

Cēlĭbis, ĭdis, f. (Κελείβη), a town of Thessaly.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, a, um, adj. [Celidon], of Celidon.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gens.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Arcadia.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Thessaly.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Achaia.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Boeotia.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Elis.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Laconia.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Messenia.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Phocis.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Thessaly.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Troas.

Cēlĭdŏnĭus, ĭi, m. a river of Troezen

Cenchrĕae, arum, f. pl. the E. harbour of Corinth, on the Saronic Gulf, now Kenkri.

Cenchrĭus (-aeus), a, um, adj. of Cenchreae.

Cenchrĭis, ĭdis, f. the wife of Cinyras.

‡ cenchrys, ĭdis, (κεγχρίς), 1. m. a kind of serpent. 2. f. a kind of hawk.

Cenchrius (-ŭus), ĭi, m. a river in the vicinity of Ephesus.

Cenimagni, ōrum, m. pl. a British tribe in Bedford, Cambridge, and Norfolk.

Ceninae, Ceninensis, etc. See Caen-.

cēnĭto, āre, (freq. ceno), intrans. v. dine much or often.

cēno (caeno, coeno), āre, āvi, ātum, (cena), I. (intrans.) take the midday meal, dine: foras; apud aliquem. Pass. impers. cenaretur; cenatum est. II. (trans.) make a meal of something, dine upon, eat: aprum; septem fercula. III. (with a cogn. acc.) spend in feasting: cenatae noctes.

Cēnŏmāni, ōrum, m. pl. a powerful Gallic tribe who settled in N.W. Italy.

censĕo, ēre, ŭi, sum, [deriv. dub.], trans. v. I. 1. take estimate, assess, rate, register, class. The amount at which the property was rated was in the acc. or abl. e.g.: (a) census equestrem Summam nummorum, III. having the amount of a knight's estate entered against me, i.e. rated as possessed of a knight's estate (400,000 sesterces); (b) capite census, rated by the head, polled. The capite censi were the fifth or lowest class at Rome, who had no fortune, or whose fortune was too small to be definitely fixed. N.B. Lands belonging to Roman citizens, which it was necessary to enter in the Censor's books, were said: censui censendo esse, i.e. to come under such-and-such a schedule. 2. take the census (often in gerund or gerundive). 3. (of the person assessed) make a statement of one's property, enter in one's return to the censors: in tribu ista praedia censuisti? cf. 1. (a). II. (fig.) 1. value, estimate, set a value on, rate: count, reckon: Censendum uil nisi dantis amor; quanti censes? 2. value on account of something (de aliqua re or with abl.): hoc domui debes de qua censeris, for which you pay rent. III. 1. be of opinion, come to a decision; judge, deem, think, hold: Ennius non censet lugendam esse mortem; (sts. with double acc.) quid censes munera terras? 2. pronounce an opinion, give as one's vote, move; vote formally, decree, decide, resolve: captivos reddendos in senatu non censuit; quae patres censuerunt, vos iubete. (Often with ut, ut ne, or ne.) With subj. alone it often has an ironical force: condiscas censeo, I advise you to learn; misereamini censeo. 3. vote a thing to or for one: aram Clementiae censuere. 4. prescribe, fix: fines dolendi.

(2) censĕo, ōre, = succenseo, traj. v. be angry.

censor, ōris, m. [(1) censeo], I. a censor, a Roman magistrate. The censors were two in number, and were appointed at first every five years. Their duties were threefold: the registration of the citizens and the rating of their property (see census), the superintendence of the public morals, and the administration of the arrangements for the collection of the public revenue and the execution of public works. See Dict. Ant. II. one who takes others to task, a censurer; a critic, connoisseur.

censōrĭus, a, um, adj. [censor], I. of or belonging to the censor, the censor's, censorial: nota; severitas; opus, a matter for the censor to deal with, i.e. a breach of contract; homo, one who has held the censor's rank; leges censoriae, (a) the forms of contract entered into by the censors, (b) the code of forms observed by the censors. II. (fig.) severe, captious: lima.

censūra, ae, f. [id.], 1. the office of censor, censorship. 2. censure (moral or literary). 3. judgment, opinion.

(1) census, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) censeo.

(2) census, ūs, m. [(1) censeo], 1. the registration of the Roman citizens and assessment of their property which the censors made every five years; a census: census agere (habere, facere), to hold or take the census; census prohibere, to strike off the burgess-list. 2. (meton.) (a) the censor's list or register, the burgess-roll; (b) the amount of a person's property as rated by the censors: senatorius, the money qualification for a senator, a senator's estate (800,000 sesterces); equester, the estate of an eques (400,000 sesterces); (c) income, property, a man's rent-roll; hence, wealth, fortune, riches: privatus illis census erat brevis; dat census honores.

‡ centaurēum (-ĭon), ĭi, n. (κενταύριον), the herb centaury, a kind of gentian.

Centaurēus, a, um, adj. [Centaurus], of the Centaurs: rixa.

Centaurĭcus, a, um, adj. = Centaureus.

centaurĭon, ĭi, n. See centaureum.

Centaurus, i, m. (Κένταυρος, bull-goader), I. a Centaur. The Centaurs were a savage race who lived in the mountains of Thessaly, noted for their fight with the Lapithae, q.v. They were represented in fable as half horses and half men; hence called bimembres. II. the Centaur Chiron, as a constellation. III. (meton.) the name of a ship which carried a Centaur as its figurehead; the Centaur: magna (fem. by Synesis), Virg.

centēni, ae, a, distrib. num. adj. [centum], 1. a hundred each: centeni quemque sequuntur iuvenes. 2. (poet.) consisting of a hundred, a hundred: sestertia. Also (poet.) in sing.: centena arbore, i.e. with a hundred oars; centeno consule.

centēsĭmus, a, um, ord. num. adj. [id.], the hundredth: centesima et altera lux ab interitu Clodii, a hundred and two days since, etc. As subst. centēsĭma, ae, f. (sc. pars), the hundredth part of a thing: rerum venalium, i.e. one per cent. upon the price of all saleable commodities. (Of interest), centesimae usurae, (also called asses usurae), 1-100th of the capital per month, i.e. 12 per cent. per an. Hence, binae centesimae, quaternae centesimae, 24 per cent. and 48 per cent. per an. respectively. Cf. usura.

centĭ-ceps, cĭpĭtis, adj. [centum; caput], hundred-headed: belua, i.e. Cerberus.

centiens (-ĭes), num. adv. [centum], a hundred times. With or without sestertĭum, = centiens centena milia sestertĭum, 10,000 sestertia, i.e. 10,000,000 sesterces (about £90,000).

centi-mānus, a, um, adj. [centum; manus], hundred-handed: Gyas. [According to some, declined like manus.]

centĭplex. See centuplex.

(1) cento, ōnis, m. (κέντρων), 1. a piece of patchwork, used for clothing, or as a fire-proof curtain or blanket, or as a quilt, etc. 2. a saddle-cloth. 3. a skull-cap. 4. a poem or composition made up of scraps from various authors or parts of an author; a cento.

(2) Cento, ōnis, m. a Roman cognomen.

Centrōnes, um, m. pl. an Alpine tribe.

centum, indecl. num. 1. a hundred. 2. (poet.) indef. for any large number: cyathos; centum puer artium.

Centum Cellae, ārum, f. pl. a seaport town of Etruria, now Civita Vecchia.

centum-gĕminus, a, um, adj. a hundred-fold; epith. of Briareus, a giant with a hundred arms.

centum-vir. See centumviri.

centum-virālis, e, adj. [centumviri], of or belonging to the centumviri: iudicium; hasta.

centum-viri (centum vĭri), ōrum, m. pl. a board of 105 commissioners, a kind of Equity Court for civil suits, esp. causes connected with wills and successions. Under the empire the board consisted of 180 members, with the praetor as president.

centuncŭlus, ĭ, m. [dim. cento], I. 1. a small patch or piece of patchwork; cf. cento. 2. a parti-coloured dress, harlequin suit. 3. a saddle-cloth. II. bindweed.

centŭ-plex (centĭplex), plĭcis, adj. [centum; plico], a hundred-fold.

centŭria, ae, f. [centum], 1. a body or division of a hundred. 2.

(meton.) a division of any kind; e.g. a land-measure,=200 iugera. 3. (milit. techn. t.) a century, company (=half a maniple). 4. a century; one of the 193 subdivisions of the Classes into which Servius Tullius divided the Roman citizens, according to their property. See Dict. Ant. and Mayor; Cic. Phil. ii. § 82, note.

centŭrĭātim, adv. [centuria], by centuries, by companies.

(1) centŭrĭātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from centurio.

(2) centŭrĭātus, ūs, m. [(1) centurio], 1. a division into centuries. 2. the post or office of centurion.

(1) centŭrio, āre, āvi, ātum, [centuria], I. trans. v. divide into hundreds or centuries; arrange in companies: iuventutem; pedites. (As milit. term, only of infantry.) 2. in perf. pass. part.: Comitia Centuriata, the meeting of the people in their centuries, the vote by centuries (to elect the higher magistrates and decide important State questions). This was the highest legislative and elective assembly of the Romans. See Dict. Ant. Hence, Lex Centuriata, a law passed in the Comitia Centuriata.

(2) centŭrio, ōnis, m. [centuria], the officer in command of a century, a centurion; a captain. The centurions were next in rank to the tribuni. There were 60 in a legion.

centŭrĭōnātus, ūs, m. 1. the office of centurion. 2. the issue of centurion's commissions.

Centŭrĭpae, ārum, f. pl. an old town in Sicily, now Centorbi.

Centŭrĭpīni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Centuripae.

centussis, is, m. [centum; as, assis], the sum of 100 asses.

cēnŭla, ae, f. [dim. cena], a small or homely dinner.

Cĕos, 1. See Cea.

cēpa (cepe). See caepa.

Cĕphallēnēs, um, m. pl. 1. the men of Cephallene or Cephallenia (now Cefalonia), the largest island in the Ionian Sea. 2. (meton.) the subjects of Ulysses.

Cĕphaloedis, is, f. (-oedĭum, ĭi, n.), a small town on the N. coast of Sicily, now Cefali.

Cĕphălus, i, m. a grandson of Aeolus, and husband of Procris, q.v.

Cēphēis, ĭdis (-ĭdos), voc. Cēphēĭ, f. patron. a daughter of Cepheus; epith. of Andromeda.

Cēphēius, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to Cepheus. As subst. Cēphēĭa, ae, f. Andromeda, daughter of Cepheus. 2. (meton.) Ethiopian.

Cēphēnēs, um, m. pl. [Cepheus], the people of Cepheus, i.e. the Ethiopians, Ov.

Cēphēnus, a, um, adj. [id.], Ethiopian. Cf. Cephenes.

Cēpheus (dissyll.), ŏos (-ĕi, ei), acc. Cēphĕă, mythic king of Ethiopia, son of Belus, father of Andromeda, and husband of Cassiopea. He was made a constellation.

Cēphīsĭăs (-issĭăs), ădŏs, f. adj. of the Cephisus: ora, i.e. of the Attic Cephisus, on which Procustes lived.

Cēphīsis (-issis), ĭdŏs (-ĭdis), f. adj. of the Cephisus.

Cēphīsius (-issĭus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Cephisus. As subst. Cēphīsius (-issius), ĭi, m. a son of Cephisus, i.e. Narcissus.

Cēphīsŏs (-ĭs), i, or Cēphissŏs (-us), i, m. 1. a river of Phocis and Boeotia. 2. a river-god, father of Narcissus. 3. a river of Attica.

cēra, ae, f. [cf. κηρός], I. wax. II. (meton.) 1. a slab or leaf of wood covered with wax, a wax tablet (for writing on with the stilus). Hence, prima, secunda, etc., cera, the first, second, etc., leaf or page. Illis were generally written on cerae (wax tablets), and the testator's name appeared on the first line of the first page; the names of the heredes followed: praecipuam in tabulis ceram: quid prima secundo Cera velit veteru; Ultima ceris. See Dict. Ant. testamentum. 2. a wax image or likeness cast in wax. These were hung in the atria of families of distinction, and answered to our family portraits: perlege dispositas generosa per atria ceras. 3. a portrait, likeness; sts. of a lover or absent friend. Such were taken during life and artistically coloured. 4. a wax seal. 5. (in pl. poet.) the waxen cells of bee-hives: tenaces Suspendunt cerae, Virg.

Cērambus, i, m. a Thessalian, who was changed into a beetle at the time of Deucalion's flood.

Cĕrămīcus, i, m. [Κεραμεικός, the Potter's Quarter], the name of a district and street within the walls of Athens; also of a suburb (the Outer Ceramicus), which was the burial-place of all persons of distinction, the 'Père la Chaise' of Athens.

cērārium, ĭi, n. (sc. argentum), [cera], wax-money: probably a fee for affixing a seal, like our stamp-duties.

‡ cērastēs (-ă), ae, m. [κεράστης, horned], a horned serpent; the basilisk or cockatrice.

Cĕrastae, ārum, m. pl. a people of Cyprus, changed into bullocks, Ov.

‡ (1) cĕrăsus, i, f. [κέρασος], 1. the cherry-tree, introduced from Pontus into Italy by Lucullus. 2. (meton.) a cherry.

(2) Cĕrăsūs, untis, f. [κερασούς], a town in Pontus, now Keresoun, the native place of the cherry.

cērātum (-ŏtum), i, n. [cf. κηρωτόν], wax salve, lip-salve, cold-cream.

cērātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cero.

Cērāunĭa, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. Saxa), also Cērāunii Montes, m. a ridge of mountains in Epirus, now the Khimara range.

Cērāunĭus, a, um, adj. [Κεραύνιος], 1. of the Ceraunian Mountains, Ceraunian. 2. Ceraunia gemma, a precious stone, so called.

(1) Cĕraunus, a, um, adj. (poet.) =Ceraunius.

(2) Cĕraunus, i, m. a surname of one of the Ptolemies, son of Ptolemy I.

Cerbĕrĕus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cerberus.

Cerbĕrus (-bĕr), i, m. the dog of Pluto that guarded the entrance to Hades. He is variously represented with 3, 50, or 100 heads.

Cercĭna, ae, f. a small island (now Kerkein) off the N. coast of Africa.

Cercĭus, ĭi. See Circius.

‡ cercŏpĭthēcus, i, m. (Gk. acc. cercŏpĭthēcŏn), [κερκοπίθηκος], a long-tailed monkey.

Cercŏpēs um, m. pl. the inhabitants of Pithecusa, changed into monkeys. See cercops.

‡ cercŏps, ōpis, m. [κέρκωψ], a long-tailed monkey.

‡ cercūrus (-ŭrus), i, m. [κερκοῦρος], 1. a light open vessel invented by the Cypriuns; a yacht. 2. a sea-fish.

Cercȳo (-ōn), ōnis, m. (Gk. acc. Cercyona), [Κερκύων], a tyrant and robber at Eleusis, who challenged travellers to wrestle, and slew them when vanquished. He was conquered and killed by Theseus.

Cercȳŏnēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cercyon.

cercȳrus. See cercurus.

‡ cerdo, ōnis, m. [κέρδων, κέρδος], an operative, handicraftsman, a workman of the lowest class. Often in app. with another subst. of the particular trade: sutor cerdo, a journeyman cobbler. In pl. cerdones, the blackguards, the canaille, Juv.

Cērĕālia, ĭum. See Cerealis.

Cērĕālis, e, adj. [Ceres], I. of or belonging to Ceres, sacred to Ceres. As subst. Cērĕālia, ium, n. pl. (sc. sacra), the feast of Ceres, on April 12th. Sts. with Ludi in app. II. (meton.) of or belonging to agriculture, land, crops, grain, bread, etc.: Cerealе solum, the wheaten floor, i.e. a cake of bread used for a table; arma, i.e. implements for grinding and baking. Cereales aediles, two plebeiau aediles instituted by Iulius Caesar for the purpose of superintending the corn-supply at Rome. Cf. aedilis.

cērĕbellum, i, n. [dim. cerebrum], a small brain.

cērĕbrōsus, a, um, adj. [cerebrum], hot-headed, choleric, testy, peppery.

cērĕbrum, i, n. [cf. κάρα, head], 1. the brain. 2. the head, sense, reason, understanding. 3. hot temper: O te, Bolane, cerebri Felicem!

cērēmōnia, ae. See caere-

Cērēs, Cērĕris, f. [root CER-, make: cf. κραίνειν], I. the daughter of Saturn and Rhea, Ops, or Cybele, identified with the Demeter of the Greeks, mother of Proserpine, and goddess of agriculture, esp. of corn, fruits, etc. II. (meton.) 1. the harvest, corn, grain, fruit. 2. food, bread.

(1) cērĕus, a, um, adj. [cera], I. of wax, waxen: imago; simulacra; castra, regna (poet. of beehives). As subst. cērĕus, i, m. a wax taper. II. (meton.) 1. wax-like, wax-coloured, glossy, yellow: pruna. 2. smooth and soft, like wax: bracchia. 3. pliant or soft as wax, easily moulded, plastic (with prolate infin.): cereus in vitium flecti.

(2) cērĕus, i, m. See (1) cereus.

‡ cērinthа, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. [κηρος, ἄνθος], the wax-flower, honeywort; or perhaps savory.

cērītēs, ae, m. also cērītis, ĭdis, f. the wax-stone, a precious stone.

cerno, ĕre, crēvi, crētum, [root KRI- cf. κρίνω], trans. v. I. separate, sift: in cribris omnia cerne cavis. II. (fig.) 1. discern, distinguish, perceive, see; oculis: nati letum; (with n. adj.=adv.) tam cernis acutum, you have such keen sight; aliquid (in) aliquā re cernitur, is conspicuous or patent. 2. (of intellectual objects) perceive, comprehend, recognise: ut cernere cerneres; facile tamorem cerneres; animo cernere (of future events), foresee, have visions of something. 3. decide, determine, decree: quodcunque Senatus creverit agunto. 4. decide by contest or fighting, fight out: ferro. decide or resolve to do something: potius germanum amittere crevi. (Rare use.) 6. (legal techn. t.) resolve to accept an inheritance: heredi tatem.

cernŭus, a, um, adj. [cf. cerebrum, cervix; κάρα], with the head or face to the earth, head foremost, stooping. As subst. cernŭus, i, m. a tumbler, acrobat.

cēro, ĕre, āvi, ātum, [cera], trans. v. overlay or cover with wax, wax; mould in wax: cerata tabella; ceratae puppes, i.e. caulked; arundo cerata.

‡ cērōma, ātis, n. [κήρωμα], 1. an unguent for wrestlers. 2. (meton.) (a) the place where the anointing was done; (b) the ring, palaestra.

‡ cērōmătĭcus, a, um, adj. [κηρωματικός], anointed or smeared with wax ointment.

cērōtum. See ceratum.

cerrĭtus, a, um, adj. formed like part. [contr.=Cererītus, or prps. = cerebritus], Ceres-stricK, frantic, crazed. Some derive from cerrae (gerrae),=nugae. Cf. gerro.

certāmen, ĭnis, n. [(2) certo], I. 1. a contest, struggle, combat, fight, engagement, bout. 2. the contest that took place at public festivals, games, etc.; the lists: certamina ponere (=ἀγῶνα προτιθέναι), institute contests, make a match. II. (meton.) an object of a contest; a target, mark, prize, Ov., Virg. III. (fig.) rival effort, ardour, rivalry, emulation, energy.

certans, ntis, part. from certo. As subst. a combatant, rival.

certātim, adv. [id.], emulously, with rival effort, vying with each other, eagerly, amain, enthusiastically.

certātio, ōnis, f. [id.], a contending, striving, struggling, strife, contest: multae (muictae), (techn. t.), a public discussion as to the imposition or remission of a fine, prosecution of a fine.

certē, adv. [certus], I. certainly, assuredly, surely: certe scio, I am sure that I know, I am quite convinced. 2. with restrictive force) at least, at any rate, at all events. Compar. certius.

(1) certō, adv. [id.], I. with certainty, certainly, of a truth, in fact. Certo scio, I know for certain, I have sure or certain knowledge. 2. firmly, unalterably: certo decrevi me abiturum esse. 3. (in affirm. answers) yes, certainly.

(2) certo, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. cerno], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) I. contend, strive, struggle; engage, fight, combat: armis cum hoste; de principatu; aliquamdiu certatum est (impers.). II. (fig.) 1. contend as a rival, vie with, emulate: officio; solus tibi certat Amyntas. 2. contend at law, go to law, contest a matter: si quid se iudice certes; foro res certabitur. For the phrase certare multam (multatum), see certātio. 3. (with poet. prolate infin.) vie with others in doing something, strive, struggle hard, exert one's self: illudere capto; Phoebum superare canendo. B. (trans.) strive or contend for, contest: certatam lite deorum Ambracium, Ov.; multam, i.e. argue whether the fine shall be paid, Livy.

certus, a, um, adj. [properly part.=cretus, from cerno], I. (of persons) determined to do, resolved or bent upon doing something: certa mori; certus eundi; certus relinquendae vitae; sceleris; consilii, inflexible in purpose. Certum est mihi (tibi, etc.), it is my fixed purpose or determination, I am resolved, I mean or intend: tibi credere; dare lintea retro. 2. (of things) resolved upon, determined, decided, settled, well-defined, fixed, specified, particular, established: dies; sunt certi denique fines; domus; requies; certā sorte, after the lot was decided; linguae tam certa loquentes, so distinctly; lar certus, a house of one's own. II. 1. adequately defined, that may be relied upon, sure, unerring, undoubted, trustworthy, genuine, true: sententia; fides segetis; sagitta; amicus. 2. determined, resolute, unfaltering: pectora. III. 1. certain, sure, proved, established, true: incerta pro certis. Certum scire, to know as a certainty. Certum habere, or pro certo habere, to look on or regard as certain. Certum (n. adj. =adv.) vigilare, to be wide awake. 2. (of the person who is made certain of a thing) certain, sure, positive: certi sumus periisse omnia; with gen., futurorum certi, informed of things to come, Ov.; certus exitii, sure of destruction, feeling destruction inevitable, Tac.; spei, confident in his expectation, id.; certiorem (rarely certum) facere aliquem, to inform or apprise a person of something; tam subitae matrem certam fecere ruinae, Ov.; certiorem me sui consilii (or de sua consilio) fecit. So certior fieri, to be informed. IV. (meton.) certain; particular, definite: certi homines, certain persons whom I could mention. Often with quidam, than which it is more definite.

‡ cērūchi, ōrum, m. pl. [κερούχειν (κέρας, ἔχω)], the ropes or sheets which run from the sail-yards to the top of the mast; the 'lifts.'

cērŭla, ae, f. [dim. cera], small piece of wax: miniata, a crayon of red wax used for erasing, or scoring passages in books.

cērussa, ae, f. white-lead; used by ladies, to produce a white complexion, and by painters; also as a medicine and a poison cērussātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cerussa], painted or coloured with white-lead; enamelled.

cerva, ae f. [cervus], a hind, doe, deer.

cervesia. See cervisia.

cervical, ālis, n. [cervix], a bolster, pillow, cushion.

cervicŭla, ae, f. [dim. cervix], a small neck.

cervinus, a, um, adj. [cervus], of a stag or deer, a stag's or deer's: senectus, i.e. a 'hearty' old age. The deer is said to be very long-lived.

cervisia (-vesia), cervisia, ae, f. [Gallic word], beer, ale.

cervix, vĭcis, f. [from ROO- KAR-, and vincio, or veho; cf. cerebrum, κάρα], I. the nape of the neck; the neck. Sts. (poet.) the head. Often in pl., the neck and shoulders: cervicibus collocare; hence (fig.) cervices subicere (dare, offerre, etc.), to submit tamely; in cervicibus esse, to weigh heavily on, trammel; metaph. from the yoke on oxen. II. (meton.) the neck of anything: amphorae. III. (fig.) boldness, obstinacy, bluster, swagger.

cervus, i, m. [cf. κεραφός, horned], 1. a stag, deer. 2. in pl. (meton.) forked stakes, used to break cavalry charges, etc.; a 'chevaux-de-frise.'

cespes. See caespes.

cessans, ntis, pres. part. from cesso, 1. doing nothing, at rest. 2. (of fields) fallow.

cessātio, ōnis, f. [cesso], 1. a delaying, loitering. 2. a cessation, idling. 3. inactivity, idleness.

cessātor, ōris, m. [id.], a loiterer, idler, shuffler, truant.

cessātus, a, um, pass. part. from cesso, 1. that has ceased to act, is at rest, inactive. 2. left untilled, fallow: arva.

cessĭo, ōnis, f. (1) cedo, a giving up; a formal transfer or conveyances of property.

cesso, āre, āvi, ātum, (freq. cedo), intrans. v. I. 1. be remiss, unpunctual, behind one's time, dally, loiter, linger, play truant. 2. leave off, give over, cease, stop, falter, pause. 3. be slow to do, delay doing. Hence, be inactive, idle, at leisure: cessatum (supine) ducere, to put or lull to rest; cesso amori, I have leisure for love, i.e. yield or devote myself to love. 4. be doing nothing, be at rest, be unemployed or disused, keep holiday; (of fields) lie fallow. II. 1. be wanting or lacking. 2. (legal techn. t.) fail to appear in court, let judgment go by default. III. be in fault, fail, break down, blunder: scriptor, qui multum cessat.

(?) cestĭcus (caest-), a, um, add. [caestus], of or having to do with boxing. See caestus.

‡ cestrosphendōnē, ēs, f. [κεστροσφενδόνη], a military engine for discharging projectiles.

‡ (1) cestus (caest-), or -ŏs, i, m. [κεστός (sc. ἱμάς), embroidered], 1. a band, tie. 2. a belt, girdle; esp. the girdle of Venus; cf. Homer, Il. xiv. 214. 3. a nuptial girdle.

(2) cestus (caest-), ūs, m. See caestus.

cētārium, ĭi, n. [cetus], a fishpond, stew.

cētārius, a, um, adj. [id.], of or pertaining to fish: ludi, i.e. fishermen's games, Tac. Ann. xvi. 21. As subst. cētārius, ĭi, m. a fishmonger.

cētē. See cetus.

cētĕrā (caet-), n. pl.=adv. [ceterus], as for the rest, in all other respects, otherwise.

cētĕrō-quī (-quīn), (caet-), adv. [ceterus, qui; cf. alioqui], for the rest, otherwise.

cētĕrum (caet-), adv. [ceterus, n. acc. sing.=adv.] 1. for the rest, in other respects, otherwise. 2. (to mark a transition) besides, next, moreover. 3. (with restrictive force; esp. after quidem or a negative) but yet, but however, notwithstanding, howbeit.

cētĕrus (not caeterus), a, um, adj. (rare in sing. nom. sing. m. not in use), (deriv. dub.; probably from pronom. root ki- (cf. κεινος), with comparative ending), the rest (as contrasted with some one or more already named or indicated); the other of the same kind; the remainder: de ceteris, as for the rest; in ceterum, for the rest, for the future. In pl.; others (as opposed to one's-self); one's neighbours, fellow-creatures, etc. Et cetera, and so forth.

Cēthēgus, i, m. a Roman cognomen in the gens Cornelia.

Cētō, ūs, f. [Κητώ], the wife of Phorcus and mother of Medusa.

cētŏs, i. See cetus.

cētra, cētratus. See caetr-.

cettē. See (2) cedo.

‡ cētus, i, m. (also Gk. form cētŏs, n., pl. cētē=κήτεα, κήτη), [κῆτος], 1. a sea-monster, whale, shark, etc. 2. a constellation so called.

ceu, adv. and conj. [contr.= ceve; cf. neve, neu], I. adv. as, like as, just as. II. conj. as if, like as if.

Cēus, a, um, adj. of Cea or Ceos, Cean: ngeniae (Camenae), i.e. of Simonides, who was born there.

Ceutrōnes, um, m. pl. a people of Gallia Belgica.

cēva, ae, f. a small cow.

Cēvenna (Cēb-, Gēb-), ae, f. a mountain in the south of Gaul, now the Cevennes.

Cēȳx, ȳcis, m. (Gk. acc. Cēȳcă), a mythic king of Trachis, husband of Alcyone, q.v.

Chābrĭas, ae, m. a famous Athenian general (B.C. 393-357).

‡ chaerē, interj. (=χαῖρε), hail! good-morrow!

Chaerōnēa, ae, f. [Χαιρωνεία], a Boeotian town on the Cephisus, now Capurna, the birthplace of Plutarch, and scene of Philip's defeat of the Greeks, B.C. 338.

‡ Chalcēdōn (Calchēdon), ŏnis, (Gk. acc. Chalcedŏna), f. a town of Bithynia, nearly opposite Byzantium.

Chalcēdōnĭus (Calchēd-), a, um, adj. of Chalcedon, Chalcedonian.

‡ chalcĕus, a, um, adj. [χάλκεος], of brass, brazen. As subst. chalcĕa, n. pl. brazen articles.

Chalcĭdĭcus, a, um, adj. 1. of Chalcis, in Euboea, Chalcidian: versus, i.e. of the poet Euphorion, a native of Chalcis. 2. (meton.) Cumaean: arx, i.e. Cumae, which was a colony of Chalcis.

Chalcĭŏpē, ēs, f. a daughter of Aeetes, sister of Medea, and wife of Phrixus.

Chalcis, ĭdis (ĭdŏs), (Gk. acc. Chalcidă), f. the chief city of Euboea, now Egripo or Negroponte.

Chaldaei, ōrum, m. pl. 1. the men of Chaldaea, the Chaldaeans, a people of Assyria, noted for their knowledge of astronomy and astrology. 2. (meton.) astrologers, soothsayers.

Chaldaeus (-ĭcus), a, um, adj. 1. Chaldaean. 2. (meton.) of astrologers or soothsayers.

‡ chălȳbēius, a, um, adj. [χάλυψ, χάλυβος], of steel, steel; massa.

‡ Chălȳbēs, um, m. pl. [Χάλυβες], a people of Pontus, near Colchis, noted for their ironmines. They were the mythic smiths.

‡ chălybs, ȳbis, m. [χάλυψ], 1. tempered iron, steel. II. (meton.) a thing made of steel; (a) a horse's bit; (b) an arrow-point; (c) a sword; (d) a nail or spike.

‡ chānē (channē), ēs, f. [χάνη, χαίνω, I gape], a sea-fish with a large mouth; called the canna in Italy.

Chāōn, ŏnis, m. a Trojan, mythic ancestor of the Chaones.

Chāŏnēs, um, m. pl. (Gk. acc. Chāŏnās), the Chaonians, a people of Epirus.

Chāŏnĭa, ae, f. the country of the Chaones, where was the forest of Dodona.

Chāŏnĭs, ĭdis (ĭdŏs), f. adj. Chaonian: ales, i.e. one of the oracular doves of Dodona.

Chāŏnĭus, a, um, adj. 1. of Chaonia, or the Chaones, Chaonian. 2. (meton.) (a) of Epirus; (b) of Dodona: pater, i.e. Iuppiter, whose oracle was there; columbae, the oracular doves of Dodona.

‡ Chāŏs (nom. and acc.), abl. Chāō, n. [Χάος], I. 1. empty infinite space. 2. the Lower World. 3. the deity of the Lower World personified, Chaos, mythic father of Nox and Erebus. II. the confused shapeless mass out of which the universe was created, chaos: a Chao, from the earliest times, since the world began. III. (poet.) darkness.

chara, ae, f. a plant, said by some to be the Tartar cabbage, by others the caraway.

‡ chărăcter, ēris, m. [χαρακτήρ], 1. a branding instrument. 2. a mark, brand. 3. (fig.) a distinctive mark, characteristic.

Chărăxus, i, m. 1. one of the Lapithae. 2. a brother of Sappho.

Chārēs, ētis, m. 1. an Athenian general. 2. a statuary of Lindos (B.C. 290). The Colossus of Rhodes was his chief work.

Chărĭclō, ūs, f. the wife of Chiron.

‡ Chărĭstĭa (car-), ōrum, n. pl. [χαρίστια, χαριστεία], an annual family gathering which followed the Parentalia. It was held on Feb. 22, and was a time of mutual goodwill and the adjustment of family feuds.

‡ Chărītes, um, f. pl.=Χάριτες, the Graces. See Gratiae.

Chăron, ontis, m. [Χάρων], the ferryman of the Styx.

‡ charta, ae, f. [ὁ χάρτης; cf. artopta, paenula], I. a leaf or layer of papyrus; paper, writing-paper. II. (meton.) 1. a letter, poem, writing, etc. 2. a book, since several sheets (chartae) united formed a "liber." 3. a thin sheet, layer, plate, or tablet: plumbea, Suet.

chartŭla, ae, f. [dim. charta], a small paper, a billet.

‡ Chărybdis, is (acc. Charybdin (-im), abl. Charybdi), f. [Χάρυβδις], 1. a whirlpool near Messina, opposite Scylla. 2. (fig.) any great danger or difficulty.

Chatti (Catti), ōrum, m. pl. a German people in the modern Hesse.

Chauci, Cauci, (-chi), ōrum, m. pl. a powerful people in the N.E. of Germany between the Amisia (Ems) and the Albis (Elbe).

‡ Chēlae, ārum, f. pl. [χηλαί, claws], 1. the arms of the constellation Scorpio. 2. (meton.) the sign of Libra, or the Scales.

‡ chēlȳdrus, i, m. [χέλυδρος], a water-snake.

‡ chēlys (acc. cheĭn, voc. chelў), f [χέλυς, a tortoise], 1. a lyre made of a tortoise shell. 2. the constellation of the Lyre.

chēragra. See chiragra.

Cherrŏnenses (Chersŏn-), ĭum, m. pl. the inhabitants of the Chersonese.

Cherrŏnēsus (Chersŏn-), i, f. [Χερρόνησος, Χερσόνησος, a peninsula], 1. the Thracian Chersonese, now the Peninsula of Gallipoli. 2. the Tauric Chersonese, now the Crimea. 3. the Cimbric, now Holstein and Jutland.

‡ chersȳdrus (-ŏs), i, m. [χέρσυδρος], a large amphibious serpent.

Cherusci, ōrum, m. pl. a German people between the Weser, the Elbe, and the Hartz Mountains.

‡ chīliarchēs, ae, (-us, i), m. [χιλιάρχης], 1. a Persian officer-commander of the king's bodyguard (the 1000 δορύφοροι); a Vizier. 2. a naval officer, who commanded the marines.

‡ Chīmaera, ae, f. [χίμαιρα, a goat], 1. a fire-breathing monster (lion, goat and dragon) of Lycia slain by Bellerophon. 2. one of the ships of Aeneas.

Chīmaerī-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [Chimaera ; fero], that produced the Chimaera : Lycia.

Chīōnē, ēs, f. 1. daughter of Boreas and mother of Eumolpus. 2. daughter of Daedalion, and mother of Autolycus, slain by Diana.

Chĭos (-us), Ĭi, f. an island of the Aegean, now Scio, on the coast of Ionia, famed for its wine and marble.

‡ chīragra (chĕr-), ae, f. [χειράγρα], gout in the hand.

‡ chīrographum (-ŏn), i, n. [χειρόγραφον], 1. one's own handwriting, autograph. 2. (meton.) (a) a person's writing, manuscript, notes, etc. ; (b) a written contract, bond.

Chīron, ōnis, m. [Χείρων], one of the Centaurs, son of Saturn and Philyra, and tutor of Aesculapius, Achilles, Hercules, etc. He was noted for his skill in divination, medicine, and music, and after death became a constellation.

‡ chīrōnŏmōn, ontis (-untis), m. [χειρονομών, moving the hands], 1. one who moves the hands or gesticulates, a pantomimic actor. 2. one who flourishes his knife in carving.

‡ chīrōnŏmŏs, i, m. See chironomon.

‡ chīrurgus, i, m. [χειρουργός], a surgeon.

(1) Chĭus, i. See Chios.

(2) Chĭus, a, um, adj. of Chios, Chian : cadus ; lapis. As subst. (a) Chĭi, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Chios ; (b) Chĭa, ae, f. [sc. ficus], a Chian fig ; (c) Chium, i, n. (sc. vinum), Chian wine.

chlămȳdatus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [chlamys], wearing a chlamys or Greek mantle.

‡ chlămys, ȳdis, f. [χλαμύς], a light short mantle worn in Greece, and afterwards adopted by the Romans ; a Greek military cloak, a state mantle. See Dict. Ant.

Chlŏē, ēs, f. a Greek female name.

Chlōris, ĭdis, f. I. =Flora, the goddess of flowers. II. a female name, Hor.

Chŏaspes (Chŏaspis), is, m. 1. a river of Susiana, now Kara-Su. 2. a river of India, now the Cabul or the Attock.

Choerĭlus, i, m. a worthless Greek poet in the train of Alexander the Great. There were three other poets of the same name.

‡ chŏrăgĭum, ĭi, n. [χορήγιον, Doric χορᾱγίον], I. the property-room, or green-room, of a theatre. II. the 'properties,' furniture, dresses, etc., of a theatre ; the 'mise-en-scène.'

‡ chŏrāgus, i, m. [χορηγός, Doric χορᾱγός chorus-leader], the person who provided the scenery, dresses, etc., for the representation of a play ; sts. the theatrical and stage-manager. In Greece the choragus provided the Chorus, etc., at his own expense. See Dict. Ant. Choregus.

‡ chŏraula, ae, (-ēs, ae), m. [χοραύλης], a flute-player who accompanied the chorus.

‡ chorda, ae, f. [χορδή], I. 1. the string of a musical instrument. 2. (meton.) the lyre, harp. II. a rope, cord, Plaut.

‡ chŏrēa (chŏrēa), ae, f. [χορεία], a choral dance ; a dance in a ring, dance.

‡ chŏrŏcĭthărista, ae, m. [χοροκιθαριστής], a musician who accompanies a chorus on the cithara.

chors, chortis. See cohors.

‡ chŏrus, i, m. [χορός], I. 1. a dance in a ring, a round dance, choral dance, esp. in religious ceremonies. 2. (poet.) a place for dancing, dancing-ground : Hesperidum. II. (meton.) 1. a band or company of dancers and singers, a choir. 2. the chorus in a Greek tragedy. 3. a company, troop, band, multitude. 4. a cluster of stars : Pleiadum.

Chrēmes, is, (-ētis), (Gk. acc. Chremētā), m. a miser in the comedies of Terence.

Christiānus, a, um, adj. of Christ, Christian. As subst. Christiānus, i, m. a Christian.

Christus (Chrestus), i, m. [Χριστός, the Anointed], Christ, the Messiah.

(1) Chrŏmis, is, acc. Chromin (-in), i. a Centaur. 2. a Satyr. 3. a Trojan.

(2) ‡ chrŏmis, is, m. f. [χρόμις], a sea-fish.

Chrȳsa, ae, and -ē, ēs, f. a town in the Troad, sacred to Apollo.

‡ chrysanthes, ae, m. [χρυσανθής, with flower of gold], the gold-flower, chrysanthemum, Virg.

Chrȳsēis, idis (idŏs), f. patron. the daughter of Chryses, i.e. Astynome.

‡ chrȳsendĕtus, a, um, adj. [χρυσένδετος], set in gold, inlaid with gold. As subst. chrȳsendĕta, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. vasa), dishes of silver with gilt rims ; parcel-gilt or silver-gilt plate.

Chrȳsēs, ae, m. a priest of Apollo at Chryse.

‡ chrȳsĕus, a, um, adj. [χρύσεος], golden. As subst. chrȳsĕa (-ĭa), ōrum, n. pl. golden vessels.

Chrȳsippēus, a, um, adj. of Chrysippus.

Chrȳsippus, i, m. a Stoic philosopher of Soli, in Cilicia (B.C. 280-207), inventor of the argument called sorites.

Chrȳsis, ĭdis, f. a female character in Terence.

‡ chrȳsŏlĭthŏs (-us), i, m. f. [χρυσόλιθος, gold-stone], the topaz.

‡ chrȳsŏphrys, ўŏs, f. [χρυσόφρυς], a sea-fish with a golden spot over each eye.

‡ chrȳsŏprāsus, i, m. [χρυσόπρασος], a precious stone of a golden yellow and leek-green colour.

Chthŏnĭus, ĭi, m. [Χθόνιος], 1. a Centaur. 2. one of the Sparti who sprang from the dragon's teeth.

Chūni (Chunni), ōrum. See Hunni.

Cia. See Cea.

cibārius, a, um, adj. [cibus], I. having to do with food. As subst. cibārĭa, ōrum, n. pl. food, victuals, rations, fare, fodder, maintenance. II. (meton.) ordinary, common : panis.

cibātus, ūs, m. [cibo], food.

cĭbo, āre, ātum, [cibus], trans. v. give food to, feed, fodder.

‡ cibŏrĭum, ĭi, n. [κιβώριον], a drinking-vessel in the form of the pod of the Egyptian bean.

cibus, i, m. [deriv. dub.], I. food, victuals, fare, fodder, nourishment ; sts. bait. II. (fig.) sustenance : furoris ; causa cibusque mali.

Cĭbўra, ae, f. 1. a city of Phrygia Magna. 2. a town in Pamphylia.

Cĭbўrāta, ae, adj. m. f. of Cibyra. As subst. a man of Cibyra (= Κιβυρατης) Cibȳrāticus, a, um, adj. of or from Cibyra: negotia, trade with Cibyra.

cicāda, ae, f. the cicala, tree-cricket, grasshopper.

cicātrix, īcis, f. 1. a scar, cicatrice. 2. a mark or score made on trees by the biting of cattle. 3. (meton.) a seam, patch. 4. (fig.) a healed wound or sore: cicatricem ducere, to heal into a scar, scab over.

cicĕr, ĕris, n. (only in sing.) chick-peas, pulse, vetches: tepidum, pea-soup, pease-pudding.

Cicĕro, ōnis, m. [cicer], a cognomen of the gens Tullia. 1. M. Tullius Cicero, the famous author, orator, and statesman, born at Arpinum, B.C. 106; put to death by order of Antony, B.C. 43. 2. Q. Tullius Cicero, the brother of the foregoing.

‡ cichŏrium, ii, (-ŭm), i, n. [κιχόριον], succory, endive, chicory.

Cicirrus (-rrhus), i, m. [κίκιρρος, = ἀλεκτρυών, Cocky, Bantam], a nickname.

Cicŏnes, um, m. pl. [Κίκονες], a Thracian tribe near the river Hebrus.

cicōnia, ae, f. [cf. κύκνος], 1. a stork. 2. (meton.) a snooks, gesture of contempt.

cicur, ūris, adj. tame: bestia.

(1) cicūta, ae, f. I. hemlock; both the plant and the poison. II. (meton.) a Panpipe, made of hemlock-stalk, or the stalk of similar herbs.

(2) Cicūta, ae, m. the name of a money-lender.

cĭĕo, ēre, cīvi, cītum, [from root KI-; cf. κίω, κινέω, cio], trans. v. I. 1. put in motion, move, stir, shake. 2. rouse, excite, stimulate, disturb. II. raise, cause, produce, utter: gemitus; verba; lacrimas; Martem, i.e. begin. III. call to, call by name, appeal to, summon, invoke: aere ciere viros; Manes. Ciere patrem, to cite one's father, i.e. prove one's free birth.

Cilices, um. See Cilix.

Cilicia, ae, f. a province in the S.E. of Asia Minor.

Ciliciensis, e, adj. Cilician.

cilicium, ii, n. [κιλίκιον], a coarse cloth made of goats' hair, used for tents, horse-cloths, sacks, etc.

Cilicius, a, um, adj. Cilician. Ciliciae Portae, the chief pass between Cappadocia and Cilicia, through the Taurus, now Golek Boghaz.

Cilissa, ae, f. adj. [fem. of Cilix; cf. Phoenissa], Cilician. cilium, ii, n. [root KAL-; cf. celo], an eye-lid, eye-lash.

Cilix, īcis, adj. Cilician. As subst. a Cilician. Pl. Cilices, um, (Gk. acc. Cilicas).

Cilla (Cy-), ae, f. (Gk. acc. Cillăn), a small town in the Troad, with a temple to Apollo.

Cilni, ōrum, m. pl. the name of a powerful Etruscan family, of which the famous C. Cilnius Maecenas was a member. Adj. Cilnius, a, um, Cilnian.

Cilo (Silo), ōnis, m. one that has prominent eyebrows.

(1) Cimber, bra, brum, adj. of the Cimbri, Cimbrian. As subst. Cimber, bri, m. a Cimbrian. In pl. Cimbri, brōrum, m. a Celtic people (= the Cymri), from the Cimbric Chersonese (Jutland). Having invaded Italy, they were defeated by C. Marius near Verona, 101 B.C.

(2) Cimber, bri, m. a Roman name. L. Tillius Cimber was one of Caesar's murderers, B.C. 44.

Cimbricus, a, um, adj. of the Cimbri, Cimbrian.

cimex, īcis, m. a bug.

Cĭmĭnius, a, um, adj. of Ciminus (q.v.), Ciminian.

Cĭmĭnus, i, m. an Etrurian lake, near a mountain-forest of the same name.

Cimmĕrii, ōrum, (also poet. gen. Cimmerĭum, and Cimmerĭon = Κιμμερίων), m. pl. 1. a Scythian people, who dwelt in the Tauric Chersonese (Crimea), and on the Palus Maeotis (Sea of Azov). 2. a mythic people who lived in perpetual darkness. Homer places them in the extreme west. Later writers place them in Italy, near Avernus.

Cimmĕrius, a, um, adj. Cimmerian. Sts. (poet.) of the world below (cf. Cimerii, 2): Lethaeum ratem Cimmerii lacus.

Cĭmōlus, i, f. one of the Cyclades, noted for its fine white earth, used by fullers. Hence, Cimolia creta.

Cimon, ōnis, m. 1. the father of Miltiades. 2. a son of Miltiades, who distinguished himself against the Persians, B.C. 477-452.

‡ cinaedus, i, m. [κίναιδος], an immoral person, dirty fellow, debauchee, pimp. As adj. cinaedus, a, um, shameless, immodest: frons.

Cinăra, ae, f. 1. a small island in the Aegean Sea, now Zinara, noted for artichokes. 2. a Greek female name.

(1) cincinnātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cincinnus], with curled hair, wearing ringlets.

(2) Cincinnātus, i, m. a cognomen of the famous L. Quinctius, called from the plough to the dictatorship, B.C. 458.

cincinnus, i, m. [cf. κίκιννος], 1. a curl of hair, ringlet. 2. (fig.) elaborate oratorical ornament, artificiality; a conceit.

Cincius, ii, m. a Roman name. 1. M. Cincius Alimentus, a plebeian tribune, who passed in 204 B.C. the Lex Cincia, which prohibited advocates from taking fees from their clients, and placed limitations on gifts of property. 2. L. Cincius Alimentus, a Roman historian, contemporary with the 2d Punic War.

cinctūra ae, f. [cinctus, cingo], a girdle.

(1) cinctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cingo.

(2) cinctus, ūs, m. [cingo], 1. a girding; a fashion of wearing the toga. In the cinctus Gabinus part of the toga was thrown over the head, while the other lap passed round the waist behind, and was tied in front, leaving the right arm free. See Dict. Ant. cinctus; toga. 2. (meton.) (a) a girdle, waistband; (b) a short petticoat, kilt.

cinctūtus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cinctus; cf. cornutus], girdle-wearing, kilted Cethegi, i.e. old fashioned, as wearing only the cinctus, or kilt, instead of the tunica.

Cinĕas, ae, m. the famous diplomatist and minister of Pyrrhus, whom he urged to make terms with Rome, B.C. 280.

cinĕfactus, a, um, adj. [cinis, facio], reduced to ashes.

cinĕrārius, a, um, adj. [cinis], having to do with ashes or graves. As subst. cinĕrārius, ii, m. a hairdresser, barber.

Cinga, ae, m. a river of Spain, now the Cinca, which falls into the Ebro.

Cingĕtŏrix, rigis, m. 1. a Celtic rival of Indutiomarus for the leadership of the Treviri. 2. a king of Cantium (Kent).

cingillum, i, n. [dim. cingulum], 1. a small girdle. 2. a joseph or spencer (a jacket worn by females).

cingo, ĕre, cinxi, cinctum, [root KAK-, bend], trans. v. 1. surround, enclose, encompass, encircle. 2. surround with a girdle, gird: ense latus cingit. In pass., with reflexive meaning: cingor. (a) with abl. of thing girded on: cingimur ense (fulgentibus armis, etc.); (b) with acc. of thing girded on: inutile ferrum cingitur, girds on, arms himself with; cf. accingo. (c) (from the practice of girding or tucking up the tunic where activity or exertion were required) gird one's self for action, make ready: cingitur in proelia Turnus; cinctae ad pectora vestes, having their mantles fastened up at their waist; puer alte cinctus, see alticinctus. 3. wreathe, encircle, garland, crown: comam lauro; tempora floribus (ramis vittis, etc.). 4. surround, hem in, invest, besiege; sts. fortify: flumen, pacne opnidum totum cingit; terra mari cincta; urbem obsidione; castra vallo. 5. escort, accompany: virgo cincta matrum nuruumque caterva; latus tibi cingit turba senatus.

cingŭla, ae, f. [cingo], = a girth, surcingle: cingula laedat equum. 2. a man's girdle; cf. cingulum.

(1) cingŭlum, i, n. (-ŭlus, i, m.), I. 1. a band, sash, or girdle; a zone, belt (chiefly worn by women). 2. a bride's zone, or girdle. 3. (mostly pl.) a sword-belt: notis fulserunt cingula bullis. 4. a man's girdle (worn round the tunic, and outside the tunic). II. (meton.) a girdle of the earth, a zone.

(2) Cingŭlum, i, n. a small town of Picenum.

cĭnĭ-flo, ōnis, m. [cinis; flo, an ash-blower], a slave who heated the curling-irons for his mistress's hair, a 'coiffeur.'

cĭnis, cĭnĕris, m. (rarely f.), [cf. κόνις], I. 1. ashes. 2. ashes of a cremated body, ashes of the dead. II. (fig.) 1. death: fama post cineres maior; quodque cinis pauci, hoc mihi vita dedit. 2. a person after death ('dust and ashes'); et mea cum muto fata querar cinere; cinis ventis ferar. 3. a pyre, grave: virtutum omnium acerba cinis, Catull. 4. the ruins of a town reduced to ashes: cineres patriae; hence, in fumum et cinerem vertere, to consume utterly. 5. refuse soil mixed with wood ashes for manure, top-dressing, etc.: cinerem immundum iactare per agros.

Cinna, ae, m. a Roman name. 1. L. Cornelius Cinna, a popular leader, who joined with Marius in the civil war with Sulla. He was consul 86-84 B.C. 2. a son of the preceding, one of Caesar's assassins. 3. C. Helvius Cinna, a Roman poet, friend of Catullus (B.C. 50).

‡ cĭnnămōmum, i, n.=cinnamum.

‡ cĭnnămum (-ŏn), i, n. [κίνναμον], 1. cinnamon: adolebunt cinnama flammae. 2. (meton.) twigs or branches of cinnamon.

Cinnānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cinna.

Cĭnўphius, a, um, adj. 1. of or from the river Cinyphus, Cinyphian. 2. (meton.) African, Libyan: Iuba.

Cĭnўps, nўpis, m. [Κίνυψ or Κίνυφος], a river on the N. coast of Africa, now Wady-Khakan or Kinifo, between the Syrtes. The neighbouring district was famed for its long-haired goats.

Cĭnўraeus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cinyras.

Cĭnўras, ae, (Gk. acc. Cinyrān), m. 1. Cinyras, king of Cyprus, and father of Myrrha and Adonis. 2. a Ligurian chief.

Cĭnўrēius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cinyras: virgo, i.e. Myrrha; iuvenis (heros), i.e. Adonis.

cĭo, cīre, cīvi, cītum, trans. v. =cieo, q.v. The -i stem is rare in the simple verb; the -e stem rare in compounds.

(1) cippus (cīpus), i, m. [cf. scipio], 1. a post or upright block, pillar, boundary-stone. 2. (in military language) a palisade, or stockade, formed of trunks of trees driven into the ground. Rows of these cippi crossing one another served as a redoubt.

(2) Cippus (Cīpus), i, m. a Roman praetor on whose head horns appeared.

(1) circā, prep. with acc., and adv. [?=circum ea], I. prep. with acc. 1. (of place) round about, about, round, all around, in the neighbourhood of, near: animus circa aliquid est, is occupied or engaged with. Cf. εἶναι περί τι, ἔχειν ἀμφί τι. 2. (with pregnant force) to and about, in and about: legatos circa vicinas gentes mittere. Cf. circum, A. 2. 3. (of persons) in attendance upon: multos circa se habebat; omnes circa se largissime prosecutus, to all his personal associates (suite, connections, friends, etc.) he was most liberal. Cf. οἱ περὶ Ἡράκλειτον, Heraclitus and his followers. 4. (of time and number) about: postero die circa eandem horam; circa quingentos capti sunt. 5. (metaph.) about, concerning, with respect to, in the case of: sermo circa rura est; circa deos neglegentior. II. (as adverb) around, about, all around, in the neighbourhood. Sts. like an indecl. adj. with subst., victores omnium circa populorum (i.e. qui circa erant), all the surrounding nations: mediā portā robora legionum, duabus circa portis sociorum equites stabit, i.e. at the two gates on either side (of the centre one).

(2) Circa, ae. See Circe.

Circaeus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Circe, Circe's, Circean: gramen, i.e. magic; moenia, i.e. Tusculum, founded by Circe's son Telegonus.

circā-moerĭum, ĭi, n. [circa; moerus=murus], the space on both sides of a wall.

Circē, ēs (-a, ae), f. a daughter of the Sun, and sister of Aeëtes, famed for her magic arts. She dwelt in the island of Aeaea, where Ulysses was wrecked, and afterwards on the promontory Circeium. See Circeii.

Circēiensis, e, adj. of Circeii. As subst. Circēienses, ium, m. pl. the men of Circeii.

Circēii (trisyll.), ōrum, m. pl. a town of Latium, now Monte Circello, on the promontory Circeium, famed for its oyster-beds, and as being the abode of Circe when she fled from Colchis.

Circensis, e, adj. [circus], of the circus: ludi; pompa. As subst. Circenses, ium, m. pl. (sc. ludi), the games in the Circus Maximus, also called Ludi Magni. See Dict. Ant. Circus.

circĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [circinus], trans. v. 1. make round, round: tympanum. 2. (poet.) describe a curve or circle in one's course; move round, circle round: Cyllenius . . . easdem circinat auras.

‡ circĭnus, i, m. [κίρκινος], a pair of compasses.

circĭtĕr, prep. with acc. and adv. [circus], I. (as prep. with acc.) 1. (rarely, of place) about, round about, on every side. 2. (of time) about, near: octavam circiter horam. II. (as adverb) 1. (of time) about, near: circiter horā decimā noctis ad me venit. 2. (of number) about: circiter pars quarta erat armis instructa.

circŭs, ĭi, m. a violent N.W. wind.

circlus, by sync. for circulus, q.v.

(?) circo, āre, [circus], trans. v. go round, range.

circŭĕo, ire. See circumeo.

circŭ-itio (circŭmĭtio), ōnis, f. [circum; eo], 1. a going the rounds, patrolling. 2. a circumlocution, periphrasis, indirect argument.

(1) circŭitus, ūs, m. [circumeo], 1. a course in a circle, a revolving, revolution. 2. (meton.) a circuit, compass, a way round, a winding or circuitous path: Caesar misit qui cognoscerent qualis in circuitu ascensus (montis) esset, i.e. to ascertain the character of the ascent if one went all round the mountain. 3. (fig.) (a) in rhetoric, a period; (b) a roundabout way of speaking, periphrasis, circumlocution.

circŭlātim, adv. [circulor], 1. in a circle, circularly. 2. in groups or knots.

circŭlātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a strolling juggler, merry-andrew, cheap-jack, mountebank, nostrum-vender, quack. 2. a pedlar.

circŭlātrix, ĭcis, f. of circulator, a female juggler, etc. Sts.=adj. in app. circulatrix lingua, a cheap-jack's slang. See circulator.

circŭlor, āri, ātus sum, [circulus], intrans. dep. 1. form a group about one's-self (for conversation, etc.). 2. gather in groups. 3. walk or stroll about.

circŭlus (sync. circlus), i, m. [dim. circus], I. 1. a circular figure, a circle. 2. (in astronomy) a circular course, orbit, circle. II. (meton.) 1. anything circular; (a) a hoop, ring, collar, necklace, dish; (b) a circle for social intercourse, society, assembly, social gathering, 'coterie'; (c) a ring or knot of people; a class of boys in school.

circum, prep. with acc. and adv. (properly acc. of circus), A. (prep. with acc.) 1. around, about, all round, round about, in the neighbourhood of, near. 2. (with a pregnant force) to and about, in and about, among and around: pueros circum amicos dimittit; cf. circa, I. 2. 3. (of friends, attendants, etc., cf. circa I. 3.) around, in attendance upon: Hectora circum; circum pedes (sc. servi,=servi ad pedes, cf. ad, 9), attendants, lacqueys, Cic. 4. (fig.) against, upon, in dealing with: doli circum haec fungentur inanes, Virg. B. (as adv.) around, about, all round.

(1) circumactus (sts. in tmesis, circum . . . actus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumago.

(2) circumactus, ūs, m. [circumago], a turning round, revolution.

circŭm-ăgo, ăgĕrĕ, ēgi, actum, trans. v. 1. drive or turn in a circle, turn round or about, wheel round. With personal pron., or pass. with reflex. meaning, turn one's-self, shift, change, hurry to and fro: circumagente se vento milites huc illuc circumagi. 2. (of time) circumagi, or circumagere se, to be spent, to pass away: in apparatu ipso annus circumagitur; in ipso conatu circumegit se annus. 3. convert, bring over to one's side: unā voce milites facile circumegit et flexit.

circum-āro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. plough round.

circum-caesūra, ae, f. outline, contour: membrorum.

circum-cīdo, ĕre, cīdi, cīsum, [caedo], trans. v. 1. cut or pare round, lop, trim, clip. 2. (fig.) abridge, diminish, shorten, reduce, retrench, dock, stint.

circum-cingo, ĕre, cinxi, cinctum, trans. v. surround.

circum-circa, adv. all around, on every side.

circumcīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumcido. As adj. 1. scarped: steep, precipitous: collis. 2. abridged, brief.

circum-cīdo, ĕre, sī, sum, [claudo], trans. v. shut in, enclose on every side, surround: cornua ab laboris argento, i.e. surround with a rim of silver (lit. with silver at the rim).

circum-cŏlo, ĕre, trans. v. dwell round about, or near.

circum-curso, āre, trans. and intrans. v. run round about; run hither and thither.

circumdātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumdo, 1. thrown or wrapped round. 2. surrounded: nocte. Post. with acc. in Gk. construction, circumdata corpora amictu, having her body wrapped round: Sidoniam picto chlamydem circumdata limbo, having her Sidonian mantle bordered with an embroidered hem. Sts. in tmesis, bis quaterna circum Terra dati, having twice wound their scaly backs about his neck.

circum-do, dăre, dĕdi, dătum, traj. trans. and trans. v. I. (traj. trans. with dat. of person and acc. of thing) put, set, or place round: Nero milites sibi circumdedit; paci famam circumdedit, he invested peace with glory, i.e. gave it a good name; arma circumdat umeris; urbi murum circumdare; collo dare bracchia circum (by tmesis). II. (trans. with acc. of person and abl. of thing) 1. surround, encompass, enclose, encircle, shut in, invest, wrap around: canibus circumdare saltus; urbem muro. 2. (fig.) limit, restrict, confine.

circum-dūco, ĕre, duxi, ductum, trans. v. I. lead or draw around (both of persons and things). Sts. with double acc.: Quos Pompeius . . . omnia sua praesidia circumduxit. Also, intraus. march round. II. (fig.) 1. sketch in outline, trace: flumen Dubis, ut circino circumductum. 2. enclose in brackets: litteras; verba. 3. lengthen out, prolong, while away: diem. 4. cheat.

circumductus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumduco.

circŭm-ĕo (circŭĕo), īre, īvi (ĭi), circŭĭtum, trans. v. I. 1. go around, march round, traverse, visit. Sts. intrans.: Circuit, et quae sit fortuna facillima tentat. 2. surround, encircle, encompass, enclose: hederae circumeunt caput. 3. go among, go from one to another, go about (canvassing, etc.). II. (fig.) 1. surround, hem in: totius belli fluctibus. 2. circumvent, impose upon, cheat: puerum arte dolosā. Circuit. 3. express by circumlocution: Vespasiani nomen vitabundi circumibant, with prudent circumlocution they avoided the mention of V.'s name.

circum-ĕquĭto, āre, trans. v. ride round.

circŭmĕundus, a, um, gerundive from circumeo; that must be passed round: meta ferventi circumeunda rotā.

circum-fĕro, ferre, tŭli, lātum, trans. v. I. bear or carry round or round about: humanis corporis sanguinem circumtulit, i.e. passed or handed round; acies huc atque huc, hither and thither cast his gaze around. Pass. with reflexive force, go round, revolve: sol ut circumferatur. II. (fig.) 1. spread around, diffuse: incendia et caedes et terrorem. 2. publish abroad, circulate, proclaim divulge, tell everybody: novi aliquam quae se circumferat esse Corinnam. 3. (sacrificial techn. t.) circumferre aquam, to take round water (for purification); hence, purify: ter socios purā circumtulit undā, where Virgil has boldly varied the ordinary construction aquam circum socios tulit, or aquam socis circumtulit.

circum-flecto, ĕre, flexi, flexum, trans. v. bend or turn about.

circum-flo, āre, trans. and intrans. v. blow round about.

circum-fūo, ĕre, fluxi, trans. v. I. 1. flow all around. 2. flock around, encompass, surround; (of snakes) coil round. II. (fig.) have abundance, abound, be rich in, overflow with. Se sts. intrans.

circum-fūsus, a, um, adj. [circumfluo], 1. flowing round, spread around: amnis; umor. 2. flowed around, washed by, surrounded with water: insula. 3. (fig.) (a) edged, bordered: chlamys Maeonio limbo; (b) abounding in, flush: femina genannis; (c) overcharged with, running to waste: meus luxu.

circum-fŏrāněus, a, um, adj. [forum], 1. of or belonging to the neighbourhood of the forum: aes, debts due to the money-lenders who lived near the forum. 2. strolling about from market to market, itinerant: pharmacopola.

circum-fundo, ĕre, fūdi, fūsum, I. 1. pour or shed around. 2. surround, envelop. II. (meton.) 1. pass. with reflexive, crowd or pour around; embrace closely, cling to: hostes circumfunduntur; (with dat.) nunc hac iuveni, nunc circumfunditur illac. Once in Tacitus circumfundo=circumfundor; circumfudit equos, the cavalry surrounded the flanks. 2. enclose, surround, encircle. III. (fig.) environ, surround, hem in, close in upon, overwhelm: praefectum castrorum.

circumfūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumfundo, 1. spread or shed around; surrounding, encircling: aer, the circumambient air. 2. (with reflexive force) (a) thronging or pressing around: circumfusae Dianam nymphae; (b) flinging one's self around, clasping, clinging to: collo parentis.

circum-gĕmo, ĕre, intrans. v. roar around.

circum-gesto, āre, trans. v. carry round.

circum-grĕdĭor, grĕdi, gressus, [gradior], trans. dep. go, walk, or pace round, travel about. Sts. intrans.

circumgressus, a, um, perf. part. from circumgredior.

circum-ĭcĭo (-jĭcio), ĭcĕre, ĭēci, iectum, [iacio], trans. and traj. trans. v. 1. throw, set, or place round: castris vallum. 2. (with abl. of that with which a thing is surrounded) surround, environ.

circumiens, ēuntis, part. from circumeo.

(1) circumiectus (-jectus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumicio. As adj. 1. lying around, surrounding (with dat.): aedificia muris. 2. neighbouring, adjacent. As subst. circumiecta, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. loca), the neighbourhood.

(2) circumiectus (-jectus), ūs, m. [circumicio], a surrounding, encompassing.

circum-ĭnĭcĭo (-ĭnjĭcĭo), ĭcĕre, trans. v. throw up all round: vallum.

circŭmĭtĭo, ōnis, f. See circuitio.

(1) circŭmĭtus (circŭĭtus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumeo. Circumitis castris, after riding round and reconnoitring the camp.

(2) circŭmĭtus, ūs, m. See (2) circuitus.

circum-lăcĕo, ēre, traj. v. lie round about, border on, adjoin. Sts. intrans., Circumiacentes populi, the surrounding peoples.

circum-lăcio,=circumicio, q.v.

circumjectus, a, um. See circumiectus.

circum-jĭcĭo, ĕre. See circumicio.

circumlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumfero.

circum-ligo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and traj. trans. v. I. tie round, bind about; envelop, enclose: ferrum stuppā; umbrā. 2. bind to (by tying around), tie a thing round or to another: natam mediae circumligat hastae, Virg.

circum-lĭno, lĕvi, lĭtum, traj. trans. v. 1. smear a thing all over another, spread over: summis circumlita taedis Sulfura. 2. (trans. with abl. of thing spread on) smear, besmear, overlay, bedaub, coat over (with something); corpora fuco. Also (poet. meton.) circumlita musco saxa, rocks overgrown with moss; circumlitus auro, encrusted with gold. 3. (fig.) embellish.

circumlītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumlino.

circum-lĭo, ĕre, trans. v. flow around.

circum-lustro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. traverse all round.

circum-lŭvio, ōnis, f. [luo], the creation of an island in a river-channel by means of alluvial deposits; the acquisition of the right of property in the same.

circum-mitto, ĕre, mīsi, missum, trans. v. send round.

circum-mūnio, (-moenio, O.L.), īre, īvi, ītum, trans. v. wall up around, surround with walls, secure.

circummūnītio, ōnis, f. [circummunio], an investing of a town; the lines drawn round it: oppidi.

circum-pādānus, a, um, adj. [Padus], situated round the river Po; produced in the neighbourhood of the Po.

circum-pendĕo, ēre, intrans. v. hang around.

circum-plaudo, ĕre, trans. v. applaud on all sides, greet with rounds of applause.

circum-plector, plecti, plexum sum, trans. v. 1. fold one's-self about, embrace, enfold, clasp around. 2. surround, circumvallate: opere, include in the lines of circumvallation.

circum-plico, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. wind, twine, or fold around.

circum-pōno, ĕre, pŏsŭi, pŏsĭtum, trans. v. put, place, or set round.

circum-rētio, īre, īvi, ītum, [rete], trans. v. enclose in or with a net, ensnare.

circum-rīguus, a, um, adj. watered all round.

circum-rōdo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. 1. gnaw or nibble round. 2. (fig.) backbite, carp at.

circum-saepio (-sēpio), īre, saepsi, saeptum, trans. v. hedge or fence round, surround, enclose.

circum-scindo, ĕre, trans. v. tear, rend, or strip all round.

circum-scribo, ĕre, scripsi, scriptum, trans. v. I. draw a line round about, enclose, in a circle. II. (fig.) 1. define, limit, determine: brevi circumscribere, to comprise in a short definition. 2. keep within bounds, circumscribe, hinder, hamper, constrain, confine, limit. 3. impede a person's liberty of action (of the Senate, who had the power of controlling magistrates who exceeded their powers): senatus credo praetorem eum circumscripsisset. 4. circumvent, entrap, ensnare, cheat. 5. defraud, swindle: adulescentulos. 6. embezzle: ab Roscio n.s. occc. circumscripti. 7. cancel, expunge, annul.

circumscriptē, adv. [circumscriptus], in rounded periods: dicere.

circumscriptio, ōnis, f. [circumscribo], 1. an encircling; a circle drawn round a person or thing. 2. an outline, boundary, limit, compass. 3. (fig.) a swindling or defrauding: adulescentium, i.e. of minors by guardians.

circumscriptor, ōris, m. [id.], a swindler, defrauder, cheat.

circumscriptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumscribo. As adj. (rhet.) (a) rounded off, periodic; (b) restricted, strictly limited; condensed, concise.

circum-sĕco, āre, sectum, trans. v. 1. cut or pare round. 2. circumcise.

circum-sĕdĕo (-sĭdĕo), ēre, sēdi, sessum, trans. v. 1. sit around. 2. encamp around, blockade, invest, lay siege to, beset.

circum-sēpio. See circumsaepio.

circumsessio, ōnis, [circumsedeo], a besieging, blockade; the fact or condition of being surrounded.

circumsessus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumsedeo.

circum-sīdo, ĕre, trans. v. set or place one's-self round (in a hostile manner); besiege.

circum-sĭlio, īre, [salio], intrans. v. spring, leap, hop, or frisk around.

circum-sisto, ĕre, stĕti (stīti), trans. and intrans. v. take one's stand around, surround.

circum-sŏno, āre, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) resound on every side, ring, peal, or boom around, etc. B. (trans.) cause to resound, fill with sound. Pass. circumsŏnor, I am dinned about, Ov.

circum-sŏnus, a, um, adj. resounding on all sides: turba canum, baying or yelping round.

circumspectĭo, ōnis, f. [circumspicio], a looking on all sides, a careful inspection, survey.

circum-specto, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) look round carefully, attentively, suspiciously, etc.; search on all sides, keep a good lookout. B. (trans.) 1. gaze around at, take a survey of, examine anxiously, watch keenly. II. (fig.) be on the watch for: defectionis tempus.

(1) circumspectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumspicio. As adj. 1. well considered, heedful, cautious, wary, circumspect, guarded. Compar. circumspectior; superl. circumspectissimus.

(2) circumspectus, ūs, m. 1. a looking around, contemplation. 2. (meton.) a view all round, prospect, survey.

circum-spĭcio, ĕre, spexi, spectum, [-specio], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. look about one, cast a look round. 2. be on the lookout, exercise foresight or caution, take heed. B. (trans.) 1. view on all sides, survey, examine. 2. (poet.) espy or descry in looking round. II. (fig.) 1. survey mentally, consider, weigh, keep in view, get an insight into. 2. look out or about for, search for, be on the watch for: recessum; alium pleno campo.

circumstans, ntis, part. from circumsto. As subst. a bystander.

circum-stĭpo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. surround as a bodyguard or escort.

circum-sto, stĕti, stĭtum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) stand around. B. (trans.) surround, encompass, esp. in a hostile manner, besiege, beset.

circum-strĕpo, ĕre, strĕpŭi, trans. v. 1. surround with a noise, clamour, din, etc. 2. utter clamorously, shout in chorus.

circum-strŭo, ĕre, structum, trans. v. build round a thing, surround with building: effosso et circumstructo jugo, Tiberim lacu, i.e. surrounded with stone seats.

circum-tĕro, tĕrĕre, trans. v. 1. rub around. 2. surround, escort.

circum-textus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumtexo, woven all round, having a hem embroidered with something.

circum-tŏno, āre, ŭi, trans. v. thunder around.

circum-tonsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumtondeo, shorn all round, close-cropped.

circum-undŭlo, adv. from everywhere around, on all sides round.

circum-vādo, ĕre, vāsi, trans. v. 1. assail on all sides, beset. 2. (of fear, panic, etc.) seize upon.

circum-vāgus, a, um, adj. wandering around, encircling: Oceanus, i.e. that flows round the earth.

circum-vallo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. surround with a rampart; blockade. 2. (fig.) beset, beleaguer, encompass.

circumvectio, ōnis, f. [circumveho], the conveyance of goods from one place to another.

circum-vecto, āre, [freq. veho], trans. v. carry around or about. Pass. with reflexive force, (a) ride around, sail or coast around: rura; Ligurum oram; (b) (poet. fig.) treat lightly, describe in passing: singula dum capti circumvectamur amore.

circumvĕhens, ntis, pres. part. from circumvelio.

circum-vĕho, ēre, vexi, vectum, trans. v. carry round. Circumvĕhor, vectus sum, dep. 1. ride or sail around: muliones collibus circumvehi iubet; (with acc. dep. on circum), castra; promontorium. 2. (fig.) describe, traverse: omnia verbis.

circum-vēlo, āre, trans. v. cover round, envelop.

circum-vĕnio, īre, vēni, ventum, trans. v. I. 1. come round; encircle, encompass, enfold, surround. 2. surround in a hostile manner, beset, nostros aperto latere aggressi circumvenere, they left their line of march, and tried to outflank our men by an attack on the exposed flank. II. (fig.) 1. beset, embarrass, harass, distress; ruin, overthrow. 2. cheat, defraud, ensnare, deceive.

circumventus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from circumvenio.

circum-versor (-vorsor), āri, dep. turn one's-self round, Lucr.

circum-verto (-vorto), ĕre, trans. v. turn round. Circumvertere se, or circumverti (pass. used reflexively), to turn one's-self round. Poet. with acc., rota circumvertitur axem, the wheel turns on (around) its axis.

circum-vŏlĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. fly, flit, flutter, or hover around; haunt.

circum-vŏlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. fly or hover round. II. (fig.) hurry to and fro around.

circum-volvo, ĕre, volūtum, trans. v. roll round. Circumvolvere se, or circumvolvi (pass. used reflexively), to roll one's-self around, twine or wind around; revolve around: sol circumvolvitur annuum, i.e. the sun completes the year's full round.

circum-vorto. See circumverto.

circus, i, m. [κίρκος], I. a circular line, circle, ring. II. (meton.) 1. any racecourse. 2. (poet.) the spectators on a racecourse, etc., a concourse. III. Circus Maximus, or Circus, the great racecourse at Rome, between the Palatine and the Aventine, constructed by Tarquinius Priscus. (See Dict. Ant.) It was a low resort, the haunt of fortune-tellers, astrologers, etc.; hence, Circus fallax. Besides the Circus Maximus at Rome, there were (a) the Circus Flaminius, (b) the Circus of Nero, (c) the Circus Maritimus.

‡ Cĭris, is, f. [κείρις], a sea-fowl (according to some, a lark, or a hawk) into which Scylla, daughter of Nisus, was changed.

cirrātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cirrus], curled, with or wearing curls: matutini cirrata caterva magistri, i.e. a class of school-boys of good family: cf. capillati. As subst. cirrāti, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. pueri) curly-pates, i.e. boys of quality, gentlemen's sons, Pers. 2. fringed: cirrata loris Scythae pellis (i.e. scutica), the cat-o'-nine-tails.

Cirrha, ae, f. a town of Phocis, the port of Delphi, which was near it.

Cirrhaeus, a, um, adj. I. of Cirrha. II. (meton.) 1. of Apollo. 2. Delphic, Luc., Stat.

cirrus, i, m. (mostly pl.) I. a lock of curly hair, a natural curl; a tuft of hair. II. (meton.) 1. a fringe (of a garment). 2. an oyster's beard.

Cirta, ae, f. (Phoen. Karth, a city), a city of Numidia, the capital of Syphax and Masinissa.

Cirtenses, ium, m. pl. the men of Cirta.

cis, prep. with acc. only [pronom. stem κι-; cf. -ce, ἑ-κεῖ], 1. on this side, on the near side of, to this side. 2. (of time) within: cis paucos dies.

Cis-alpinus, a, um, adj. lying on this (the Southern or Italian) side of the Alps, Cisalpine.

cĭsĭum, ĭi, n. a two-wheeled carriage; a gig, curricle.

Cis-rhēnānus, a, um, adj. situated on this (i.e. the Western) side of the Rhine.

Cissēis, ĭdis (-dŏs), f. patron. a daughter of Cisseus, i.e. Hecuba.

Cisseus, ĕi, (acc. Cissēa), m. 1. a king of Thrace, father of Hecuba. 2. a Trojan warrior.

Cissis, is, f. a town of Hispania Tarraconensis.

‡ cista, ae, f. [κίστη], 1. a wicker basket with a lid, used for keeping clothes, books, etc. 2. a money-box. 3. a box for the reception of voting-tablets (tabellae). 4. a covered basket, box, or casket, containing the sacred utensils of Bacchus or Ceres.

cistella, ae, f. [dim. cista], a small basket, box, or casket.

cisterna, ae, f. [cista], a subterranean tank or reservoir for water.

cisti-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [cista; fero], bearing a cista. As subst. one who bears a cista; a porter in a Dionysiac procession.

‡ cistŏphŏrŏs (-us), i, m. [κιστοφόρος], I. a bearer of the mystic cista. II. a silver coin, current in Asia, worth about three drachmae, and stamped with the impress of a cista (or perhaps the cistus plant): in cistophoro . . habeo, I have (so much) in Asiatic money.

cistŭla, ae, f. [dim. cista], a small basket, box, or case.

citāriĕr, oli infin. pass.=citari.

citātim, adv. hastily.

citātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cito. As adj. 1. stirred to violent or quick motion; excited, stimulated, impetuous, vehement. 2. quick, rapid, in full career: citato equo, with his horse at full speed, at full gallop; Rhenus citatus fertur, the Rhine runs with a rapid current. Compar. citatior; superl. citatissimus.

citer, tra, trum, adj. (only once in positive), [cis], on this side, on the near side, Cato.

citĕrĭor, us, compar. of citer, 1. on this side, nearer, hither: Gallia, Hither Gaul, i.e. the province S. of the Alps; Hispania, the N. and E. of Spain, afterwards called Tarraconensis. 2. (fig.) nearer, closer, more closely concerning, personal, domestic. 3. (of time) earlier, sooner.

citĕrĭus, compar. of citerior, or of citra.

Cithaeron, ōnis, m. [Κιθαιρών], a mountain in the S.W. of Boeotia, sacred to Bacchus, and famed for its pasturage and wild game.

‡ cithăra, ae, f. [κιθάρα], I. a guitar, lute, cithern; sts. harp, lyre. II. (meton.) 1. the music of the cithara, or of any stringed instrument. 2. the art of playing on the cithara, etc. 3. lyric poetry.

‡ cithărista, ae, m. [κιθαριστής], one who plays on the cithara.

‡ cithăristrĭa, ae, f. [κιθαριστρία], a female player on the guitar.

‡ cithărizo, āre, [κιθαρίζω], intrans. v. play on the cithara.

‡ cithărœdus, i, m. [κιθαρῳδός], one who plays on the cithara and sings at the same time.

citĭmus, a, um, superl. of citer, nearest, closest, next, Cic. See citerior.

Citĭum, ĭi, n. 1. a town in Cyprus, the birthplace of Zeno. 2. a town in Macedonia.

(1) citŏ, adv. [citus], quickly, speedily, forthwith, soon. Haud cito, not easily. Compar. citius: dicto citius, i.e. in an instant, ere he had ended; citius (=potius) dixerim, I should rather be inclined to say. Superl. citissime.

(2) cito, āre, āvi, ātum, freq. (cieo), trans. v. 1. put into quick motion, hasten, urge, incite, stir, stimulate. 2. call, summon; (esp. in law) (a) call a witness, (b) summon into court, put on trial: tota Etruria rea citaretur. 3. appeal to (as evidence or authority), quote, cite: quamvis citetur Salamis; citavi Non audituri numina magna Iovis. 4. call, call by name, mention, proclaim, announce: victorem citari. 5. repeat aloud, rehearse, recite: citaret Io Bacche.

citra, prep. and adv. [citer; as if citerā parte], I. (prep. with acc.) 1. (of place) on this side, on the nearer side of: citra flumen. 2. (of time) within, before: forsitan et Pylius citra Troiam periisset Tempora; citra Kalendas Octobres. 3. (fig.) (a) without reaching, within, not amounting to, less than, short of: nec virtus citra genus est; peccavi citra scelus; aliquid citra fidem est, is of disparagement to one's credit, is discreditable; (b) without regard to, apart from, setting aside, excepting: vir bonus citra virtutem intellegi non potest; citra spectaculorum dies, independently of; (c) (in post-Augustan prose) without=sine: citra aemulum; citra vulnus. II. (adverb) 1. on this side, on the nearer side. 2. short, without reaching the mark: tela hostium citra cadebant; citra quam, less than; (compar.) citerius debito resistit, he stops sooner than he ought.

citrĕus, a, um, adj. [citrus], of the citrus-tree, of citrus-wood: trabs; mensa.

citro, adv. [citer], hitherwards: ultro citroque, to and fro, backwards and forwards; mutually, reciprocally.

citrum, i, n. [citrus], I. citrus-wood. II. (meton.) a table, or other furniture, made of it. Such furniture was very highly prized.

‡ citrus, i, f. [κέδρος, of which it is a corruption], 1. the citrus, an African tree, with sweet-smelling wood peculiarly grained, used in making costly furniture, especially tables. 2. the lemon or citron-tree, also called malus Medica.

citus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cieo, put in motion. As adj. 1. swift, rapid, moving with speed. Compar. citior. 2. (with force of adverb) quickly, with speed: solvite vela citi.

cīvicus, a, um, adj. [civis], of citizens, civic: furor; civica iura respondere, to give an opinion on points of civil law; civica pro trepidis cum tulit arma reis, when your eloquence wielded the arms of a peaceful citizen in behalf of anxious defendants, i.e. when you came forward as their advocate. Civica corona (or civica alone), a civic crown; the chaplet of oak leaves given to one who had saved the life of a Roman citizen.

(1) cīvīlis, e, adj. [id.], I. of or belonging to citizens, civil, civic: bellum; quercus, i.e. the civic crown. See civica corona. Ius civile, (a) 'the law of the land, embracing all the laws which regulate the internal administration of a particular community; (b) the whole body of Roman Law; (c) the older portion of the Roman Law; (d) the political rights of citizens, private rights. II. (meton.) 1. relating to civil life or politics, political, state-: curae; officia. 2. civil (as opposed to military). III. (fig.) conducting one's-self as a citizen should; courteous, kind, affable, gracious: quid enim civilius illo?

(2) Cīvīlis, is, m. a chief of the Batavi.

cīvīlitas, ātis, f. [id.], 1. the art of government, politics. 2. courtesy, affability.

cīvīlitĕr, adv. [civilis], I. as becomes a citizen, citizen-like, in a public-spirited manner, as an equal with equals: cenare; in dissensione domestică civiliter certare, to fight with constitutional weapons, use fair play. II. (fig.) courteously, graciously. Compar. civilius; superl. civilissime.

cīvis, is, m. and f. (abl. sing. civi, but civi often in Cic.), [root KI-, cf. quies, κεῖμαι], 1. a citizen (male or female). 2. a fellow-citizen; a fellow-countryman or countrywoman. 3. (poet.) a native or inhabitant of a country: Lesbius.

cīvĭtas, ātis (gen. pl. civitatium), f. [civis], 1. the condition, privileges, or rights of a Roman citizen; citizenship, the franchise. II. (meton.) 1. the citizens as forming a community, the body of citizens, the state. 2. a city, state, commonwealth, nation. 3. the city, i.e. Rome, Tac.

clādes, is, (gen. pl. cladium), f. [root KAL-, KLA-, σκιτ-; cf. percello], 1. disaster, mischief, loss, harm, injury, destruction; esp. disaster in war, havoc, defeat; not slaughter. II. (metaph.) (of persons) a scourge, bane: Scipiadas, cladem Libyae.

clam, prep. and adv. [root KAL-, hide; cf. celo, καλύπτω], I. (prep. with acc., rarely with abl.) unknown to, without the knowledge of: clam me est, it is unknown to me; clam aliquem habere or ferre aliquid, to keep a thing concealed from a person. II. (adv.) in secret, secretly, unawares: nec id clam esse potuit, nor could the fact be concealed.

clāmātor, ōris, m. [clamo], a noisy declaimer.

clāmātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from clamo, cried out, proclaimed aloud: illa . . . clamata silet, she is silent though her name is called; palma i.e. proclaimed with shouts.

clāmĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. clamo], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans. v.) call out loudly, shout or cry repeatedly, bawl, exclaim. B. (trans.) 1. proclaim, blurt out. 2. call after or on a person.

clāmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [root KAL-, KLA-, cf. κλητός, καλέω], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. call or cry out, shout, exclaim. 2. make a noise, be noisy or clamorous, resound: clamant amnes; cicada clamare occepit; non ulla meo clamat in ore fides, my sincerity never makes itself heard, does not proclaim itself, in my voice. 3. complain, remonstrate, Ter. B. (trans.) 1. call aloud to, call upon, call by name, invoke: morientem nomine clamat. 2. proclaim, declare: clamant te insanum; clamat se causam crimenque.

clāmor (-os), ōris, m. [clamo], 1. a loud cry, shout: clamor supremus, the farewell cry (Have atque Vale) thrice repeated over the dead. 2. an outcry, wailing, shriek, yell, war-cry, battle-cry; (of animals and things) noise, din, roar, etc. 3. acclamation, applause. 4. a hostile call, clamour, outcry.

clāmōsē, adv. [clamosus], noisily, clamorously.

clāmōsus, a, um, adj. [clamor], 1. (active) clamorous, noisy, loud-voiced. 2. (passive) filled with noise, resounding with shouts, cries, etc. Iuv., Mart., Stat.

Clampĕtĭa, ae, f. a town of the Bruttii.

clanculārius, a, um, adj. [clanculum], secret: poeta, a hole-and-corner poet.

clanculum, prep. and adv. [dim. clam, for clamculum], I. (prep. with acc.) without the knowledge of: clanculum patres. II. (adv.) secretly, stealthily.

clandestīnus, a, um, adj. [clam], clandestine, secret.

clango, ĕre, [cf. κλάζω, κλαγγή], intrans. v. clang, clash, ring out.

clangor, ōris, m. [clango], 1. the clang, clash, bray, blare, etc., of trumpets or wind instruments. 2. the cry of birds.

Clānis, is, m. 1. a river of Etruria, falling into the Tiber. 2. a Centaur. 3. a companion of Phineus.

Clānius, ĭi, m. a river of Campania, otherwise called Liternus, which harassed the town of Acerrae by its floods.

clārē, adv. [clarus], 1. brightly, clearly (to the eyes). 2. clearly, distinctly, loudly (to the ears). 3. (fig.) plainly, intelligibly. Compar. clarius; superl. clarissime.

clārĕo, ēre, [id.], intrans. v. 1. be clear or bright. 2. be evident, plain. 3. be illustrious, famous.

clāresco, ĕre, clārŭi, (incept. clareo), intrans. v. 1. grow bright or clear: tecta luminibus. 2. become evident or plain. 3. (of sound) grow louder and louder. 4. become illustrious, famous.

clārĭgātio, ōnis, f. [clarigo], 1. the preliminary demand for redress made by the Fetiales, followed up by a solemn declaration of war. 2. the fine to be paid for discharge of a person caught transgressing certain limits.

(?) clārĭgĭto, āre, [freq. clarigo], reclaim.

clārĭgo, āre, [clarus], intrans. v. (techn. t. of the Fetiales), demand restitution, and proclaim war if redress were refused. Cf. clarigatio.

clārī-sŏnus, a, um, adj. [clarus; sonus], clear-sounding, ringing.

clārĭtas, ātis, f. [clarus], I. clearness, brightness (to the sight). 2. distinctness (to the ear): in voce. II. (fig.) 1. perspicuity. 2. splendour, distinction, renown.

clārĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [id.], I. clearness, brilliancy. 2. (fig.) splendour, renown, grandeur, distinction.

Clārĭus, ă, um, adj. of Claros, Clarian; epith. (a) of Apollo; (b) of the poet Antimachus. As subst. Clārius, ĭi, m. (sc. deus), the god of Claros, Apollo.

clāro, āre, āvi, [clarus], trans. v. 1. make clear or light, illuminate. 2. make plain or evident, illustrate. 3. make illustrious, ennoble.

Clārŏs, i, f. a small town on the Ionian coast, near Colophon, famed for its temple and oracle of Apollo.

clarus, a, um, adj. I. 1. clear, bright: claraque in luce refulsit; Aquilo, i.e. bringing fair weather. 2. brilliant, conspicuous: ferrugine et ostro. 3. (of sound) clear, loud, shrill, distinct: vox; tuba. II. (fig.) 1. plain, evident, manifest, intelligible. 2. illustrious, famous, renowned, distinguished; esp. as a title of public men.

classiārius, a, um, adj. [classis], of the fleet: centurio, a captain of marines. As subst. classiārii, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. milites), marines; naval forces.

classici, ōrum, m. pl. See classicus.

classicŭla, ae, f. [dim. classis], a little fleet, flotilla.

classicus, a, um, adj. [classis], I. of or belonging to a classis; esp. of those who belonged to the first of the six classes of Servius Tullius. As subst. classicum, i, n. 1. the sound or call on the trumpet by which soldiers were assembled; 2. a battle-signal: classicum canere iubet. 2. (meton.) a war-trumpet: classica iamque sonant. II. of or belonging to the fleet: milites; bella; corona, i.e. the corona navalis (see navalis). As subst. classĭcī, ōrum, m. pl. marines, including the ship's company as well as the fighting men. Cf. classiarii.

classis, is, [abl. classi in Virg.), f. [root KAL-, KLA-; cf. clamo, καλέω; Doric κλᾶσις = κλῆσις, a summoning], lit. a muster of the citizens; I. 1. a class or division of the citizens according to the census. Servius Tullius made six classes. 2. the army (called out), the forces; a land army; a corps, force, host: Hortinae classes. 3. the fleet (including the fighting men). II. a fleet: Troia classis adest. III. a class, division: classem ducere, to be the show-boy of a class.

Clastidĭum, ĭī, n. a fortified town in Gallia Cisalpina.

‡ clāthra, ōrum, n. pl. (clāthri, ōrum, m. pl.) (κλῆθρα); bars; a barrier, railing; a trellis or grating.

clatra, clatri. See clathra, clathri.

claudĕo, ēre, also claudo, claudĕre, intrans. v. limp, halt, walk lame, falter.

Claudiānus, e, adj. of or belonging to the emperor Claudius.

(1) Claudiānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to one of the Claudii or the emperor Claudius.

(2) Claudiānus, i, m. a Roman poet of Alexandria, who flourished at the end of the 4th century A.D.

claudĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [claudico], a limping.

claudico (clodico), āre, [claudeo], intrans. v. I. limp, halt, hobble, walk lame. II. (meton.) slant; askew, incline (of a balance). III. (fig.) go lame, be wrong, faulty, defective, be crippled, flag.

Claudĭa, ae, f. a female of the gens Claudia.

(1) Claudĭus (Clōdĭus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Claudian family, or to a Claudius, Claudian; Clodian. As subst. Claudĭa, ae, f. (sc. via), a branch of the Via Cassia, which itself was a branch of the Via Flaminia.

(2) Claudĭus (Clōdĭus), ĭī, m. the name of two illustrious Roman families, the one patrician, the other plebeian; esp. 1. Appius Claudius, the decemvir, B.C. 450. 2. Appius Claudius Caecus, the censor, B.C. 312. 3. P. Clodius Pulcer, the enemy of Cicero, tribune B.C. 58, killed by Milo B.C. 52. 4. Tiberius Claudius, 4th Roman emperor, A.D. 41-54.

(1) claudo (clōdo), ĕre, sī, sum, [root SKLU-, KLU-, shut; cf. clavis, κλαΐς, κλῆις], trans. v. 1. shut, shut up, close. 2. stop or block up. 3. close, bring to an end, conclude, terminate: opus; lustrum; animam laqueo. Claudere agmen, to close or bring up the rear of an army. 4. shut in, shut up, pen up; hem in, surround, encompass, bound, enclose, confine, imprison, shut off, cut off: oppidum portu clauditur; stabulis armenta; silvas indagine; maris magna claudit nos obice pontus. 5. (military term) invest, blockade: urbem obsidione. 6. (fig.) (a) lock up, withhold: benignitatem; (b) (of literary compositions) limit, comprise: numeris sententias; verba imparibus modis, or pedibus senis, i.e. to write in hexameters and pentameters, or in hexameters. 7. (poet.) cover, screen: humeros clipeo; latus, i.e. walk by the side of a person.

(2) claudo, ĕre, =claudeo, q.v.

claudus, a, um, adj. [cf. claudo], I. limping, lame, halting: claudus altero pede. Proverb. Claudus pilam (sc. iacit, or accipit), the cripple plays at ball, i.e. after a fashion, but cuts a sorry figure (said of one who travesties or makes a hash of something). II. (fig.) 1. crippled, disabled, faulty, deficient: naves; carmina altero versu clauda, i.e. elegiac verses, in which every other verse is a foot shorter than the preceding. 2. infirm, wavering: fides.

claustrum (clōstrum), i, n. [claudo], I. 1. a bar, bolt, fastening; a lock, staple: revellere; ianuae claustra pandere. 2. (meton.) a gate: ferrea perpetuā claustra coercent. 3. (fig.) a bar, barrier, bounds: Mundi; Naturae portarum. II. 1. an enclosure: urbis. 2. a dam, dike, breakwater: Lucrino addita. 3. a barrier, barricade: sts. = repagula, q.v. (in military language) a barrier, barricade; entrenchments (whether natural or artificial). 5. a defile, pass: montium; Latii, the key of Latium; Pelori, i.e. the straits of P. 6. a prison, cage; confinement.

clausŭla, ae, f. [id.], I. a close, conclusion, end: epistolae. 2. the close of a period (in rhetoric). 3. the handle of a strigil.

(1) clausus (clūsus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from claudo, 1. shut, closed. 2. shut in or up, enclosed, pent up. As subst. clausum, i, n. an enclosed place: in clauso linquunt; clausa effringere. 3. hidden, concealed, secret: consilia; vulnera surrounded, hemmed in: margine riparum.

(2) Clausus, i, m. a Sabine proper name.

clāva, ae, f. [root KAL-, KLA-, smite; cf. per-cel-lo], 1. a club, cudgel, staff, mace, bludgeon. 2. a heavy stick or foil used in practising sword exercise; the blows were aimed at a stake (palus) or a dummy.

clāvārium, ĭī, n. [clavus], money given to soldiers for shoe-nails; a gratuity.

clāvātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [clava], studded with nails or spikes.

clāvĭcŭla, ae, f. [dim. clavis], 1. a small nail. 2. a tiny tendril.

(1) clāvi-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [clavis; gero], key-bearing: epith. of Ianus, as the god of doors.

clāvis, is, acc. clavim or -em, abl. clavi (clāve, Iuv.), f. [cf. claudo; κλαΐς, κλῆις), 1. a key: claves uxori adimere, i.e. divorce one's wife. 2. a hoop-stick: versi clavis adunca trochi. See trochus, Rich's Dict. Ant. 3. (meton. poet.) any lock or bar: clavim ianua sensit.

clavus, i, m. [cf. claudo], I. 1. a nail: clavum anni (annalem) figere, to drive the nail of the year (into the side wall of the temple of Iuppiter Capitolinus): an ancient method of reckoning time probably of Tuscan origin. The ceremony was performed yearly on the Ides of September by the consul or dictator. 2. clavus trabalis, a large nail for fastening the main beams: rem clavo trabali figere, i.e. to clinch the matter, make it sure. One of these large nails is represented as a symbol of Necessitas, or immutable Destiny. 3. a hobnail, spike, stud: calcor, et in digito clavus mihi militis haeret. 4. a peg or pin of wood. II. (meton.) 1. the handle of the rudder, the tiller; sts. the rudder or helm itself: clavum regit; clavum imperii tenere. 2. a wart, corn. 3. a band or stripe of purple running down the front of the tunic; a broad stripe like a clavus was the distinctive badge of senators; a narrow stripe (angustus clavus), or rather, two narrow stripes running parallel down the front of the tunic, the badge of the equites: clavi mensura coacta est, i.e. the broad stripes of the senator was exchanged for the narrow stripe of the eques (in token of abandonment of public life), Ov.; clavum mutare in horas, i.e. to dress now as a senator, now as a simple eques, Hor. III. (fig.) 1. the beginning of anything: clavum anni movere, to reckon the beginning of the year, Cic.; cf. I. 1. 2. management, direction: imperii, Cic.

Clāzŏmĕnae, ārum, f. pl. an Ionian city on the Bay of Smyrna, the birthplace of Anaxagoras.

Clāzŏmĕnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Clazomenae.

Cleānthes, is, acc. sing. -em (-en), acc. pl. Cleānthas, m. a Stoic philosopher of Assos in Troas, pupil of Crates and Zeno (B.C. 300-220).

Cleānthēus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Cleanthes. II. (meton.) Stoic, Pers.

clēmens, ntis, adj. [root KLI-, gently sloping; cf. clivus], 1. calm, tranquil, gentle, soft. 2. merciful, kind-hearted, forbearing, indulgent. 3. (fig.) mild, softened, not exaggerated: rumor. Compar. clementior; superl. clementissimus.

clēmenter, adv. [clemens], 1. gently, gradually: colles clementer adsurgentes. 2. softly, gently, calmly, placidly, tranquilly. 3. mercifully, indulgently, with for- hearance. Compar. clementius; superl. clementissime.

clēmentĭa, ae, f. [id.], 1. calmness, mildness, tranquillity. 2. indulgence to others' faults, forbearance, mercy, gentleness, clemency. 3. Clemency (personified).

Clĕŏbis, is, m. son of the priestess Cydippe, and brother of Biton. For their filial piety in drawing their mother in the sacred car to the temple of Hera, they were rewarded with the best gift of the goddess, an early death.

Clĕombrŏtus, i, m. a general who commanded the Lacedæmonians at the battle of Leuctra, B.C. 371.

Clĕōnæ, ārum, f. pl. a town of Argolis, where Hercules slew the Nemean lion.

Clĕōnæus, a, um, adj. of Cleonæ: sidus, i.e. the Nemean lion, changed into the constellation Leo.

Clĕŏpātra, ae, f. the daughter of Ptolemy Auletes, queen of Egypt, whose beauty fascinated Julius Cæsar and Antony. She killed herself by the bite of an asp, B.C. 30.

clĕpo, ĕre, psi, ptum, [root KLEP-; cf. κλέπτω], trans. v. steal.

clepsit,=clepserit, old form of perf. subj. from clepo.

‡ clepsȳ̆dra, ae, f. [κλεψύδρα], I. an hour-glass of water, for measuring the time allotted to speakers; a water-clock, clepsydra. II. (meton.) the time measured by the clepsydra: petere clepsydram, to ask leave to speak; dare clepsydram, to grant leave to speak.

clĭbānārĭus, a, um, adj. a trooper in mail-armour, a cuirassier.

clĭens (clīens), ntis, m. [cluo; cf. κλύω, one who hears and obeys], 1. a client (in relation to his patron; cf. patronus); a retainer, dependant, vassal: qui modo patronus, nunc cupit esse cliens; Aeduos eorumque clientes. 2. (fig.) a worshipper, follower, protégé: Bacchi.

clĭenta, ae, f. [cliens], a female client.

clĭentēla, ae, f. [id.], I. 1. the relation of client and patron, clientship; protection, patronage: quarere in cuius fide sint et clientelā. 2. the relation between cities or provinces and families or individuals as patrons: in Antoniorum clientelā antiquitus erant Bononienses. II. (meton.) the relation between states and their dependants; vassalage, alliance. Aeduorum magnae erant clientelae, i.e. they had many states dependent on them. III. (abstr. for concr.) a train of clients or followers; retainers, dependants, vassals.

‡ clĭmactērĭcus, a, um, adj. [κλιμακτηρικός], of or belonging to a climacteric; critical, dangerous.

clĭnāmen, ĭnis, n. [clino], an inclination, swerving.

clĭnātus, a, um, part. from obsol. clino.

Clĭnĭa, ae, m. one of Terence's characters.

Clĭnĭădes, æ, m. a son of Clinias, i.e. Alcibiades.

Clĭnĭas, æ, m. the father of Alcibiades.

‡ clĭnĭcus, a, um, adj. [κλινικός], of or belonging to a bed (κλίνη). As subst. 1. a physician who attends patients in bed, Mart. (Cf. 'Clinical' Lecturer, etc.) 2. an undertaker, Mart.

clĭno, āre, [cf. κλίνω], obsol. trans. v.=inclino.

‡ clĭnŏpălē, ēs, f. [κλινοπάλη], bed-wrestling, Suet.

Clĭō, ūs, f. 1. the Muse of history: Clio Oliusque sorores. 2. a daughter of Oceanus.

clĭpĕātus (clŭp-, clўp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from clipeo. As subst. clĭpĕātus, i, m. (sc. miles), a soldier armed with the clipeus.

clĭpĕo (clŭp-, clўp-), āre, ātum, [clipeus], trans. v. 1. furnish with the clipeus, q.v. 2. engrave or paint upon a clipeus: clipeata imago. See clipeus.

clĭpĕum (clŭp-, clўp-), I, n.= clipeus.

clĭpĕus (clŭp-, clўp-), i, m. [root KLEP-; cf. clepo], I. a large round shield, like the Greek ἀσπίς. See Dict. Ant. Proverb. clipeum post vulnera sumere, i.e. to be too late. II. (fig.) a shield, defence. III. (meton.) a round object in the shape of a shield; (a) the sun's orb or disk: Phoebi clipeus; (b) a meteor; (c) a medallion, a shield or plate of metal or other material, on which a person's bust was engraved, or his profile painted, Tac., Suet.; (d) a regulator of the heat in a vapour-bath, a damper.

clĭtellae, ārum, f. pl. [root CLI-; clino], a pack-saddle; a pair of panniers, saddle-bags. Prov. Clitellas bovi imponere. See bos.

Clĭtŏrĭus, a, um, adj. of Clitor, or Clitorium, in Arcadia. The waters of a spring there made all who drank them wine-haters.

(1) Clĭtumnus, i, m. a river of Umbria, famous for a breed of white cattle.

(2) Clĭtumnus, a, um, adj. of the Clitumnus.

Clĭtus, i, m. a friend of Alexander the Great, by whom Clitus was killed in a drunken fit.

clīvōsus, a, um, adj. [clivus], 1. hilly, steep, on the slope. 2. (fig.) steep, uphill: trames vitae.

clīvus, i, m. [root KLI-; cf. clino, κλίνω], I. a slope, declivity, ascent; a path by which to ascend or descend; a hill, eminence: clivum locare (sc. muniendum), contract for (making) the Clivus, a sloping road leading up to the Aventine at Rome, Ov.; Clivus Capitolinus (also Clivus Sacer), the part of the Via Sacra leading from the Forum Romanum to the Capitol. II. (meton. poet.) anything sloping; a slope, incline: pennas clivo crevisse putes, i.e. that they tapered or overlapped naturally, Ov.; testa subdita clivum (mensae) Sustulit, i.e. the tilt, cant, unevenness, id.; olivos lene iacentes, i.e. the rows of seats (in the amphitheatre) rising in tiers one behind another, Calpurn.

clŏăca, ae, f. [root KLU-, wash; cf. κλύζω], a sewer, drain. Cloaca Maxima, the main sewer at Rome, constructed by Tarquinius Priscus, which discharges into the Tiber. Prov. Arcum facere e cloacā. See arcus, II. 2.

Clŏăcīna, ae, f. See Cluacina.

clod-, for words beginning thus, see under claud-.

Clŏdĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Clodius, the enemy of Cicero. Cf. (2) Claudius, 3.

Cloelĭa, ae, f. a Roman virgin, one of the hostages given to Porsenna, who escaped by swimming across the Tiber.

Cloelĭus, ĭi, m.=Cluilius.

clōstrum, i, n. See claustrum.

Clōta, ae, f. the Firth of Clyde.

Clōthō, f. (only nom. and acc.), [Κλωθώ, the spinner], one of the three Parcae, or Fates.

Clŏăcīna (Clō-), ae, f. [(2) cluo], the Purifier. Venus was worshipped under this title in the Forum at Rome.

clŭdo, clūdus. See claudo, claudus.

clŭens, ntis. See cliens.

Clŭentĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name.

clŭĕo, ēre, also clŭo, ēre, [root KLU-; cf. κλύω], intrans. v. hear one's-self called; be named, called, spoken of, reputed; be said to be, pass for. Pass. clŭĕor, ēri, be named, called, etc.

Clŭĭlĭus, ĭi, m. a king of Alba.

‡ clūnis, is, m. and f. (mostly pl.) [κλόνις], the buttock, haunch.

(1) clŭo, ĕre. See clueo.

(2) clŭo, ĕre, O.L. = purgo, cleanse, [from root KLU-; cf. κλύζω, cloaca].

Clŭpĕa, ae, f. (also -as, ārum), a town and promontory in Africa, also called Aspis.

clŭpĕus, i. See clipeus.

Clūsīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Clusium. As subst. Clusīni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Clusium.

Clūsĭum, ĭi (poet. Clusī), n. a town of Etruria, anciently called Camers or Camars, now Chiusi, the capital of Porsenna.

Clūsius, ĭi, m. [cludo=claudo], the Shutter, a surname of Ianus, whose temple was closed in peace.

clūsus, a, um,=clausus.

Clŭvĭānus, a, um, adj. [Cluvius], of or belonging to a Cluvius, or one of the gens Cluvia.

Clўmēnē, ēs, (Gk. acc. Clўmēnēn), f. daughter of Oceanus, wife of Merops, and mother of Phaëthon by Helios. 2. a companion of Helen.

Clўmēnēis, ĭdis, f. patron. a daughter of Clymene.

Clȳmēnēĭus (-aeus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Clymene: proles, i.e. Phaëthon, Ov.

Clȳmēnus, ī, m. (Κλύμενος), 1. a title of Pluto, Ov. 2. a companion of Phineus, Ov.

clȳpĕa, ae, (-ae, ārum). See Clupea.

clȳpĕātus, clypeo, clypeus, etc. See clip-.

‡ clȳster, ēris, abl. clystēre, (κλυστήρ), a syringe, enema.

Clȳtaemnestra, ae, f. I. a daughter of Tyndarus and Leda, wife of Agamemnon, and mother of Orestes, Iphigenia, and Electra. II. the title of a tragedy of Attius.

Clȳtĭē, ēs, f. one of the daughters of Oceanus, changed into the plant heliotropium.

Cn. abbr. for Cnaeus.

Cnaeus (Cnēus), ī, m. a Roman praenomen.

Cnĭdius, a, um. See Gn-.

Cnĭdŏs (-us), ī, f. See Gnidos.

Cnōsĭăcus, Cnōsĭus, Cnōsis, Cnōsos (-us). See Gno-.

co-, (=com, old form of cum), in composition, before vowels, (a) together, collectively; (b) (intensive) completely.

cō-ăcervo, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. heap or mass together, pile one upon another.

cō-ācesco, ĕre, ăcŭī, incept. intrans. v. get quite acid or sour.

cōactĭo, ōnis, f. [coactus, cogo], a gathering together, collection. Cf. coactor, 1.

cōacto, āre, [freq. cogo], trans. v. constrain, force, Lucr.

cōactor, ōris, m. [cogo], 1. a collector (a) of taxes, (b) of money for goods bought at auctions. 2. one who brings up the rear (of an army): agminis. 3. one who forces or compels.

(1) cōactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cogo. As adj. 1. condensed, compacted, curdled, coagulated. 2. of close texture, thick, felted: vestis. As subst. cōactum, ī, n. (sc. vestimentum), felt, felted cloth; a quilt, mattress. 3. (fig.) forced: lacrimae; legis, i.e. carried by force.

(2) cōactus, ūs, m. (only in abl. sing.), [cogo], compulsion.

cō-aedĭfico, āre, ātum, trans. v. build upon, block up with building.

cō-aequo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. make even, level. 2. (fig.) put on the same level or footing, equalise.

cō-agmentātĭo, ōnis, f. [coagmento], a combination, union.

cō-agmento, āre, āvi, ātum, [coagmentum], trans. v. 1. join or fasten together, cement, unite: verba coagmentata, words nicely adjusted, Cic. 2. (fig.) botch, patch up: pacem.

cōagmentum, ī, n. [cogo], a joining, joint.

cōāgŭlum, ī, n. [id.], 1. rennet: lacte coagula passo, that had known the rennet, i.e. had become curdled, Ov. 2. curdled milk, curds: Mucefacta coagula lacte, curds dissolved, i.e. reduced to a creamy state with (boiling) milk, Ov.

cō-ālesco, ĕre, ălŭi, ălĭtum, (incept. alo), intrans. v. I. 1. grow together with, unite. 2. (fig.) agree, coalesce, combine; esp. with prepp. in, ad. II. 1. grow firm or strong: ilex inter saxa coaluerat. 2. (fig.) strike root, take a firm hold, become consolidated or established: dum Pisonis auctoritas nondum coaluisset; coalitā libertate.

cōālĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from coalesco.

cō-angusto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. bring into a narrow compass, confine, compress.

cōarctātĭo, ōnis, cōarcto. See coart-.

cō-argŭo, ĕre, ŭī, trans. v. I. 1. prove guilty, convict, expose. 2. (with gen. of the charge) convict of: avaritiae. II. 1. prove incontestably, demonstrate, expose: errorem. 2. prove wrong, refute, disprove. 3. betray, disclose: obruta verba refert dominique coarguit aures.

cō-artātĭo (cōarct-), ōnis, f. [coarto], a crowding together.

cō-artō (cōarcto), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. press together, compress, contract, narrow, confine. 2. (fig.) abridge, shorten.

‡ cō-axo, āre, [onomatop. κοάξ], intrans. v. croak.

cōbĭo, ōnis, and cōbĭus, ĭi, m. See gobio.

Cōcălus, ī, m. a king of Sicily who befriended Daedalus.

coccinātus, a, um, adj. [coccinus], clad in scarlet.

coccinĕus, a, um, adj.=coccinus.

coccinus, a, um, adj. [coccus], scarlet-coloured, scarlet. As subst. coccĭna, ōrum, n. pl. scarlet robes.

‡ coccum, ī, n. [κόκκος, the kermes berry, used in dyeing], 1. scarlet dye or colour; scarlet. 2. (meton.) a scarlet robe.

‡ cŏchlĕa (cocl-), ae, f. [κοχλίας], 1. a snail. 2. a cockle or periwinkle. 3. (meton.) a snail-shell.

‡ cŏchlĕar (cocl-), āris, n. [κοχλιάριον], 1. a spoon, an egg-spoon. 2. a spoonful (as a measure).

‡ cochlĕāre, is, n.=cochlear.

cocles, ĭtis, adj. [for scoculus; root SKA-; cf. σκότος], 1. one-eyed. 2. the cognomen of Q. Horatius, who defended the bridge over the Tiber against the army of Porsenna.

Cocosātes (Cocoss-), ĭum, m. pl. a tribe of the Aquitani. The name survives in the modern Causséque, and possibly in Gascogne.

cocta, ae, f. See coctus.

coctĭlis, e, adj. [coquo], 1. baked, hardened by burning. 2. built of burned bricks, brick-: muri.

coctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from coquo; 1. cooked, baked, boiled. As subst. (a) cocta, ae, f. (sc. aqua), water boiled, and then cooled with ice or snow; (b) coctum, ī, n. cooked food, victuals. 2. burned, hardened by burning: robur. 3. made of burned bricks: agger. 4. parched, dry. 5. ripe, mellow.

cōcus, ī, m. See coquus.

Cōcȳtus (-ŏs), ī, m. (Κωκυτός, wailing), a river of Hades.

Cōcȳtĭus, a, um, adj. of or from Cocytus; infernal: virgo, i.e. Allecto, one of the Furies.

cōda, ae, f. See cauda.

Codēta, ae, f. [coda=cauda], a meadow near the Campus Martius, Suet.

cōdex, ĭcis. See caudex.

cōdĭcillus, ī. See codicilli.

cōdĭcilli, ōrum, m. pl. (rare in sing.), [dim. codex=caudex], 1. small tablets for memoranda; a note-book. 2. a short note, billet. 3. a petition, memorial. 4. an imperial order or despatch; a warrant, diploma. 5. a codicil to a will.

Cōdrus, ī, m. I. an Athenian king who sacrificed himself for his country. II. a poet, hostile to Virgil.

coel-, for words not found with this beginning, see cael-.

Coelius, ĭi, m. See Caelius.

cō-ĕmo, ĕre, ēmi, emptum, trans. v. buy from all quarters, buy up.

cō-emptĭo, ōnis, f. [coemo], a purely civil form of marriage, consisting in a symbolic sham sale (per aes et libram), by which the wife was formally conveyed to the husband, and thus was freed from tutela legitima and the burden of sacra privata. See Dict. Ant.

coena, ae, f. See cena.

coenācŭlum, coenātĭo. See cen-.

coenīto, āre. See cenito.

coeno, āre. See ceno.

coenōsus, a, um. See caen-.

coenŭla, ae. See cen-.

coenum, ī, n. See caenum.

cō-ĕo, īre, īvi, (ĭi), ĭtum, intrans. v. I. 1. go or come together, assemble, meet. 2. be joined, unite, combine: donec curvata coirent tuber ad capita. 3. meet in a hostile manner, encounter, come to blows: nec coïere pares. II. (fig.) 1. join together, unite, agree, ally one's-self, combine: dic in amicitiam coeant; (with comp. acc.) coïre in dictatem, to make a compact with, enter into an alliance. 2. couple, pair: cum pare quaeque suo coeunt volucresque feraeque. 3. congeal, thicken, curdle: sanguis coit formidine; frigore terra. 4. (of a wound) close: nondum coeuntia rumpam vulnera.

coepĭo, coepi, coeptum, [co-apio, =apo, get together], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. begin, commence: coepisti melius quam desinis. Often with prolat. infin. 2. (ellipt.=dicere coepi), begin to speak: ita coepit tyrannus. B. (trans.) (rare), begin, commence: orationem. C. coeptus num, coeptus eram, dep. perf. and pluperf. (mostly with pass. infin.) coeptaque sunt pure tradita sacra coli.

coepto, ās, āvī, ātum, [freq. coepī], A. (trans.) begin, commence; seditionem ; pontem. B. (intrans.) make a beginning, begin, commence, attempt, undertake. Often with prolat. infin.

(1) coeptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from coepio; begun, commenced, undertaken, attempted; sts. begun upon, only just begun, unfinished, incomplete. As subst. coeptum, i, n. a beginning, undertaking, attempt, enterprise.

(2) coeptus, ūs, m. [coepī], a beginning, undertaking.

cō-ercēo, ēre, cŭi, cĭtum, [arceo], trans. v. I. 1. enclose completely, hold together, confine, surround: omnia complexu ; nodo crines. 2. hold in confinement, control, restrain, repress, keep under: Styx interfusa coercet (umbras); vitem ; ora frenis. II. (fig.) 1. keep within limits, limit: consilium coercendi imperii; numeris verba, i.e. write verses according to a particular metre. 2. keep in check, control, bring to order, curb, restrain: rabiem; pueros fuste. 3. correct, amend: carmen.

cŏercītio (cŏercĭo, cŏerctio, cŏercĭo), ōnis, f. [coerceo], 1. a restraining ; restraint, repression, check. 2. (meton.) (a) punishment ; (b) the right of coercion or punishing, jurisdiction over.

cŏercĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from coerceo.

coerŭlĕus, coerūlus. See caer-.

coetus, ūs, m. (poet. dat. sing. coetu), [=coitus ; coeo], 1. a coming together, assembling, meeting. 2. a joining together, connection, combination. 3. (meton.) an assemblage, throng, company; (poet.) flock (of birds): coetu litora complent; coetu soluto discedere.

Coeus (dissyll.), ī, m. a Titan, father of Latona.

cōgĭtātē, adv. [cogitatus], with thought, after mature reflection.

cōgĭtātĭo, ōnis, f. [cogito], I. the act of thinking, considering, deliberating, etc., thought, reflection, abstract speculation, meditation. II. (meton.) 1. a thought, purpose, plan, project, judgment. 2. thinking faculty. 3. the imagination, fancy.

(?) cōgĭtātō, abl. abs. of cogitatus,=adv. after deliberation, deliberately, on purpose.

cōgĭtātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cogito. As adj. studied, premeditated: iniuria. As subst. cōgĭtātum, i, n. a thought, reflection, purpose, plan, idea.

cōgĭto, ēre, āvī, ātum, [contr. for co-agito], trans. v. 1. consider thoroughly, ponder, reflect. 2. think of, imagine to one's self, call to mind: maiores et posteros. 3. have such-and-such thoughts about a person, be disposed towards one: amice cogitare de Romanis; graviter cogitare in (adversus) aliquem; male cogitare. 4. deliberately plan, purpose, intend, design.

cognātĭo, ōnis, f. [cognatus], 1. blood relationship, kinship. 2. (abstr.=concr.) relations, kinsfolk ; family, connection: homo summae potentiae et magnae cognationis. 3. (fig.) relationship, agreement, resemblance: artium.

co-gnātus, a, um, adj. [gnascor], I. 1. connected by birth, of the same stock. As subst. cognātus, ī, m. a blood relation, a kinsman (on the father's or mother's side). Also, cognāta, ae, f. a kinswoman. 2. of or belonging to kinsmen: acies ; sanguis ; rogi. II. (fig.) 1. allied to, kindred with: faba Pythagorae cognata. 2. kindred to, related, like, similar: cognata vocabula rebus.

cognĭtĭo, ōnis, f. [cognosco], 1. the process of acquiring knowledge ; acquaintance, study, knowledge. 2. a conception, idea. 3. (legal techn. t.) a judicial inquiry, legal investigation, trial (chiefly criminal): rerum capitalium ; de famosis libellis. 4. (=agnitio, in Terence), recognition, discovery.

cognītor, ōris, m. [id.], (legal techn. t.) 1. an attorney-at-law, an advocate, legal representative. 2. a defender: auctor et cognitor sententiae. 3. a voucher, witness.

cognītūra, ae, f. [cognitor], a State attorneyship or agency (chiefly for the recovery of State debts, confiscated property, etc.).

cognĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cognosco. As adj. known, familiar, acknowledged, approved. Compar. cognitior ; superl. cognitissimus.

co-gnōmen, ĭnis, n. [gnosco, nosco], 1. a name held with the nomen gentile, a family name, surname, e.g. Publius Cornelius Scipio. Sts. a nickname, or acquired name, agnomen. 2. (poet. meton.) a second or alternative name ; a name.

cognōmentum, ī, n. [cognosco], 1. a surname, nickname. 2. (meton.) a name. Cf. cognomen.

cognōmĭnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cognomino. As adj. synonymous: verba.

cognōminis, ĕ, (abl. sing. cognomine, Virg.), adj. [cognomen], of the same name, like named: sts. with gen. or dat.

cognōmĭno, āre, āvī, ātum, [id.], trans. v. 1. furnish with a cognomen, surname. 2. (meton.) name, call, dub.

cognōram, cognōro, cognōrim, for cognoveram, cognovero, cognoverim, from cognosco.

co-gnosco, ĕre, gnōvī, gnĭtum, trans. v. I. 1. become thoroughly acquainted with, learn by inquiry ; take cognizance of, investigate, ascertain, hear of. 2. (in perfect tenses) know, be aware of. 3. perceive, understand, learn. 4. know, recognise, acknowledge. II. (legal techn. t.) 1. investigate judicially, hear and determine a case, try a case: de agro Campano cognoscere ; causā cognitā. 2. (fig.) (of critics) give a thing one's serious consideration, review, examine. III. (military term) reconnoitre: iis ducibus, qui iter cognoverant.

cognosse, cognossem, cognōsti, for cognovisse, etc. etc.

cōgo, ĕre, cōēgi, cōactum, [contr.=co-ago], trans. v. I. 1. drive together, collect ; gather or get together, assemble, convene. 2. draw together, gather into one, unite ; contract, narrow, compress: cornu coacto Phoebe, with horns united, i.e. completing the disc (of the moon's orb at full); clavi mensura coacta est, the width of the stripe was narrowed (cf. clavus, II. 3). Qv. 3. (of liquids) coagulate, thicken, condense, congeal: frigore mella Cogit hiems. 4. (military term) Cogere agmen, to bring up the rear of an army. II. (fig.) 1. bring together, confine, restrict: verba in alternos pedes, i.e. to write in elegiac metre. 2. force, compel, constrain, oblige: iterare cursus Cogor relictos; lacrimae coactae ; quid non mortalia pectora cogis, Auri sacra fames? quercum cuneis coactis scindere, i.e. with wedges driven home. 3. (=colligo) infer, conclude: ex quibus id cogi volumus efficitur et cogitur, Cic.

cōhaerentĭa, ae, f. [cohaereo], a coherence, connection.

cō-haerĕo, ēre, haesi, haesum, intrans. v. I. hold or cling together ; be united, connected, continuous, etc., cohere. II. (fig.) 1. be nearly or closely connected: naturā cohaerentia opinione distrahere. 2. be consistent, harmonise, agree together. 3. hold together, subsist: virtutes sine beatā vitā cohaerere non possunt. III. 1. cling or cleave to, be in close contact with: nec equo meo membra cohaerent. Sts. with prep. cum and abl. 2. agree or harmonise with: cohaerens cum omni corpore membrum esse videatur.

cōhaeres, ēdis. See coheres.

cō-haeresco, ĕre, haesi, [incept. cohaereo], intrans. v. hang together, cohere.

cō-hēres (-haeres), ēdis, gen. pl. coheredum, c. a coheir, fellow-heir.

cō-hĭbĕo, ēre, bŭi, bĭtum, [habeo], trans. v. 1. hold together, hold, contain, bind, confine, enclose: nodo crines ; marem cohibent callosa (ova) vitellum ; carcere ventos. 2. hold in check, arrest, repress, obstruct, restrain, keep under, subdue: iras ; gaudia. 3. keep or ward off from: manūs, oculos, animum ab auro gazāque regiā.

cōhĭbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cohibeo.

cō-hŏnesto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. honour amply, dignify, panegyrise. 2. (fig.) redress, ameliorate.

cŏ-horresco, ĕre, horrŭi, intrans. v. shudder, shiver.

cŏhors (cors, chors), rtis, f. [Sanscr. root HAR-; cf. χόρτος], I. an enclosed place, court-yard ; a farm-yard, cattle-yard, poultry-yard, pen, stye. II. (meton.) 1. a cohort, a body of infantry (the tenth part of a legion,=3 manipuli or 6 centuriae). 2. (poet.) a troop or squadron of cavalry. 3. Praetoria cohors, the Praetorian cohort, (a) a body of picked legionaries who formed a body-guard to the consul or commander-in-chief; (b) the imperial garde du corps, the household troops. 4. allied or auxiliary troops (as opposed to legionaries). 5. a praetor's suite, staff, train, or retinue. 6. any number or crowd, a company, multitude, pack.

cŏhortātĭo, ōnis, f. [cohortor], an exhortation, exhorting; cheering, encouragement; esp. an address to troops (preliminary to an engagement).

cŏhortĭcŭla, æ, f. [dim. cohors], a small cohort.

cō-hortor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. exhort, encourage, cheer, animate; esp. of a general.

cŏĭens, ŭntis, pres. part. from coeo.

cō-inquĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. defile completely, pollute, contaminate.

cŏĭtĭo, ōnis, f. [coeo], 1. a coming together, meeting. 2. a banding together; a coalition, conspiracy: candidatorum consularium.

(1) cŏĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from coëo.

(2) cŏĭtus (coe-), ūs, m. [coeo], 1. a coming together, meeting. 2. a uniting, combination. 3. (meton.) a company, crowd, assemblage. In this sense coetus only is used; poet. dat. sing. coetu.

‡ cŏlăphus, i, m. [κόλαφος], a box on the ear, a cuff.

Colchĭcus, a, um, adj. of or from Colchis, Colchian: venena, i.e. such as Medea used, magic.

(1) Colchis, ĭdŏs (ĭdis), f. a district of Asia, E. of the Black Sea.

(2) Colchis, ĭdŏs (ĭdis), f. adj. Colchian. As subst. a Colchian woman; esp. Medea.

Colchus, a, um, adj. Colchian. Cf. Colchicus. As subst. Colchi, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Colchis.

cŏlendus, a, um, gerundive from colo.

cŏlens, ntis, pres. part. from colo. As adj. (with gen.) attentive to: religionum. As subst. 1. one who cultivates or farms. 2. one who inhabits, a dweller. 3. a worshipper.

cŏlesco, ĕre, contr. for coalesco.

cŏlĕus, i. See culeus.

cŏlĭcŭlus, i. See caul-.

cŏlĭphium (coll-), ĭi, n. the training diet of athletes.

cŏlis, is. See caulis.

col-lăbĕfacto (con-), āre, trans. v. make to totter, dislodge.

col-lăbĕfio (con-), fĭĕri, factus sum, pass. v. I. be made to totter or to shake. II. (fig.) 1. be rendered helpless, be disabled: ut navis tota collabefieret. 2. be brought to ruin, be overthrown.

col-lăbor (con-), ī, lapsus sum, intrans. dep. I. 1. fall together, fall in, become a wreck. 2. fall in a swoon, faint, sink from exhaustion, be prostrate. II. (fig.) fall to pieces, rot, decay, waste away.

col-lăcĕrātus (con-), a, um, adj. completely torn to pieces, mutilated.

col-lacrĭmātio (con-), ōnis, f. [collacrimo], a bursting into tears.

col-lacrĭmo, collacrŭmo (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) burst into tears. B. (trans.) bewail, deplore: casum suum, Cic.

col-lactĕus (con-), i, m. a foster-brother. col-lactĕa (con-), æ, f. a foster-sister.

collapsus (con-), a, um, perf. part. from collabor.

Collātia, æ, f. a town of the Sabines, ten miles from Rome.

Collātīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Collatia, Collatine. As subst. (a) Collātīnus, cognomen of L. Tarquinius, the husband of Lucretia; (b) Collātini, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Collatia.

collātĭo (con-), ōnis, f. [confero], I. 1. a bringing together. 2. a hostile encounter, engagement, shock in battle: signorum. 3. a special contribution or collection of money, etc., for the emperor. II. (fig.) a comparison, similitude.

(1) collātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from confero.

(2) collātus, ūs, m. [confero], a hostile engagement, affray. Only in abl. sing.

col-laudo (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. praise in set terms, praise highly, eulogise.

collecta (con-), æ, f. [colligo], a contribution, one's share of the reckoning.

collecticĭus (con-), or -tĭus, a, um, adj. [(1) colligo], collected together: exercitus, a motley or 'scratch' army; cena, one to which all the guests contributed, like the Greek ἔρανος.

collectio, ōnis, f. [id.], I. a collecting together, gathering. II. (fig.) 1. a summary, recapitulation. 2. a conclusion, inference.

collectĭtius (con-), a, um. See collecticius.

collectus (con-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from colligo.

collēga (con-), æ, m. [(1) lego], 1. one chosen with another; a partner in office, colleague. 2. (meton.) a comrade, associate, fellow.

collēgium (con-), ĭi, n. [collega], colleagueship, one's relation as colleague. II. (meton.) a body of persons holding the same office, or living under common rules; a corporation, guild, college, brotherhood, association, club, union, organisation.

col-lĭbet, collŭbet, (con-), lĭbŭit or libĭtum est, impers. it pleases, it is agreeable (with dat. of person).

col-lĭdo (con-), ĕre, līsi, līsum, [laedo], trans. v. 1. strike or dash together, clash, batter. 2. (fig.) bring into hostile contact, set at variance, make enemies of: collidit gloria fratres; Graecia barbariae lento conlisa duello. Pass. be at variance, conflict, contend.

colligātĭo (con-), ōnis, f. [(2) colligo], 1. a binding together, connection. 2. (fig.) a chain, series, succession.

(1) col-lĭgo (con-), ĕre, lēgi, lectum, [lego, ĕre], trans. v. I. 1. gather together, draw or bring together, collect. Colligere vasa (military techn. t.), lit. pack the baggage; prepare for marching. Colligere (=conferre) sarcinas, to get the men's packs or kits together (before an action). 2. draw together, contract, compress: togam, take or gather up; alitis in parvae colectae figuram, i.e. dwarfed, shrunk; in spiram se colligit anguis, draws himself up into a coil; equos, rein in, pull up; gradum (gressum; vestigia), halt, stop; se colligere in arma, to gather one's self, i.e. crouch, behind one's shield; one on the shield, to recover one's spear (opposed to protendere); colligere arma (poet.) =contrahere vela), to take in the sails. II. (fig.) 1. get together, gain, win, acquire gradually, bring about: auctoritatem; vires sitim, get more and more thirsty; frigus, i.e. get a fit of ague; invidiam, incur. 2. colligere se, to recover one's self, rally. So, colligere mentem, or animum, recover one's senses, courage, presence of mind. 3. weigh, consider. 4. gather, infer, conclude, deduce: sic collige mecum; colligor ex ipso dominae placuisse sepulcro. 5. count up, reckon, include: cur inimicos colligo? ex quo (anno) ducenti ferme et decem anni colliguntur. 6. sum up, recapitulate.

(2) col-lĭgo (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. bind, tie, fasten, or pin together. 2. bind, tie up, pinion. II. (fig.) 1. connect, unite, combine. 2. restrain, stop, hamper, entangle.

col-linĕo (con-), āre, trans. v. direct in a straight line, aim.

col-lino (con-), ĕre, lēvi, litum, trans. v. besmear, plaster over; defile, pollute.

collīnus, a, um, adj. [collis], I. of a hill, hill-; esp. with reference to the Porta Collina, one of the gates of Rome, near the Quirinal. II. of or belonging to the Colline Gate: herbae, i.e. growing near it. Owing to the proximity of the Campus Sceleratus, such herbs were sought by witches.

colliphium, ĭi. See coliphium.

col-liquĕfactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. liquefied, dissolved.

collis, is, m. [? for col-nis; akin to columna], a hill; high ground.

collīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from collido.

collĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from collino.

collŏcātĭo (con-), ōnis, f. [colloco], I. a setting up, placing, arrangement, marshalling: argumentorum. 2. a giving in marriage: filiae.

col-lŏco (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. place, set, establish, post, station, quarter. 2. (poet.) lay one on a bed or couch: puellu-

lam. 3. give a woman in marriage: matrem homini nobilissimo. 4. place at interest, invest, lay out, advance: pecuniam. II. (fig.) 1. put in order, arrange, settle: rem militarem. 2. stow away, deposit. 3. dispose of, accupy, put to use, employ: horas male. Once in Tacitus, without obj. acc.: in prioribus libris satis conlocavi (=scripsi, posui), I have dwelt or treated at sufficient length . . .

col-lŏcŭplēto (con-), āre, āvi, trans. v. enrich, fill a person's pockets.

collŏcūtio (con-), ōnis, f. [colloquor], a conversation, conference.

colloquium (con-), ii, n. [id.], 1. a conversation, discourse, conference, interview, parley. 2. intercourse (by letter), communication: amicorum colloquia absentium.

col-lŏquor (con-), lŏqui, locūtus sum, intrans. and trans. dep.: A. (intrans.) converse or talk with, hold a conversation or conference with, talk together, parley, converse. B. (trans.) talk over, discuss, Nep., Plaut.

collŭbet. See collibet.

collŭbus, 1. See collybus.

col-lūcĕo (con-), ēre, intrans. v. shine brilliantly, be clear or bright, gleam.

col-lūdo (con-), ĕre, lūsi, lūsum, intrans. v. I. 1. (trs.) play or sport with: paribus. 2. play together, dance: summâ nantes in aquâ colludere plumas. II. (legal term) play into another person's hands (to the detriment of a third party), be in collusion with.

collum, i, n. 1. the neck or throat (of men or animals). 2. (meton.) the neck of other things, e.g. a bottle, flask, flower, etc.

col-lŭo (con-), ĕre, lŭi, lūtum, trans. v. wash thoroughly, rinse out.

collūsio (con-), ōnis, f. [colludo], a fraudulent compact between two parties to the detriment of a third; cf. colludo.

collūsor (con-), ōris, m. [id.], a playmate; sts. a fellow-gamester.

col-lustro (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. light up completely, illumine. 2. survey, look around, inspect.

collūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from colluo.

colluvies (con-), ēi, f.=colluvio.

colluvio (con-), ōnis, f. [colluo], 1. collected dirt, filth, offscourings. 2. (fig.) a vile medley, abominable mixture or compound, motley rabble, scum, dregs.

‡ collўbus (collŭbus), i, m. [κόλλυβος], exchange; brokerage.

‡ collўrium, ii, n. [κολλύριον], eye-salve.

cŏlo, ĕre, cŏlŭi, cultum, [root COL-; cf. in-col-a, colonus], trans. v. I. cultivate, till, tend. II. (fig.) 1. cultivate, exercise, practise: bonos mores; artes. 2. bestow care upon, cherish, attend to, take pains with; improve, refine, adorn: vitam; hominum genus; capillos; qualiter in Phrygiâ tu quoque cultus eras, dressed, Ov. 3. honour, worship, pay court to, revere: deos; templum. 4. observe as a feast, keep holy: diem; sacra; festa. 5. (of a deity) haunt, frequent, care for, cherish: Pallas, quas condidit arces Ipsa colat. III. inhabit, live in: stagna colit (anguis). Also, intrans. live, dwell; freq. in Tacitus.

‡ cŏlŏcăsia, ae, f. [-ium, ii, n.), 1. the Egyptian bean; a marsh lily with a red flower. Its leaves were used for drinking-vessels (ciboria). 2. the plant wake-robin (arum maculatum).

cŏlŏna, ae, f. [colonus], a farmer's wife, housewife.

Cŏlŏnae, ārum, f. pl. a town of the Troad.

Cŏlŏnēus, a, um, adj. of or at Colonos, a deme of Attica.

cŏlŏnia, ae, f. [colonus], I. 1. a military outpost, a settlement of Romans amongst a conquered race. 2. a colony, settlement. II. (meton.) 1. the persons composing the colony; colonists, settlers. See Dict. Ant. 2. an estate, farm, Colum.

cŏlŏnĭcus, a, um, adj. [colonia], levied from coloniae, colonial: cohortes.

cŏlŏnus, i, m. [colo], 1. a tiller, farmer, husbandman, yeoman. 2. a lessee, tenant-farmer. 3. a colonist, settler. 4. (poet.) an inhabitant.

Cŏlŏphōn, ōnis, (acc. sing. Colophonem and -na), m. one of the twelve Ionian cities of Asia Minor. It claimed to be Homer's birthplace.

Cŏlŏphōnĭăcus, a, um, adj.=Colophonius.

Cŏlŏphōnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Colophon, Colophonian. As subst. a man of C., a Colophonian.

cŏlor (cŏlōs), ōris, m. [root KAL-, cover; cf. celo, occulo, etc.], I. 1. colour, hue, tint. 2. colouring matter, dye, etc. 3. the natural colour (of the flesh), complexion: color ora reliquit. Homo nullius coloris, (prov.) i.e. an absolute stranger. 4. a beautiful complexion, beauty. II. (fig.) 1. external appearance. 2. condition, state: vitae. 2. quality, order, kind, general character, cast, style. 3. splendour, lustre, brilliancy. 4. (in rhetoric) (a) colouring, embellishment, rhetorical ornament; (b) artifice, pretext, plea.

cŏlōrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from colloro. An adj. 1. coloured. 2. sunburnt, tanned, swarthy. 3. (fig.) glossed over, specious.

cŏlōro, ēre, āvi, ātum, [color], trans. v. I. 1. colour, tinge, dye, tint. 2. darken, embrown, tan, make swarthy. II. 1. imbue; give a colouring, complexion, or character to. 2. gloss over, embellish.

cŏlōs, ōris. See color.

cŏlossēus, a, um, adj. [colossus], on a colossal scale; huge, gigantic.

‡ cŏlossus, i, m. [κολοσσός], a gigantic statue, a colossus. The Colossus at Rhodes, a statue of the Sun-god, was 70 cubits high.

cŏlostra, ae, f. (-um, i, n.), biestings; rennet.

cŏlŭber, bri, m. a snake, serpent.

cŏlŭbra, ae, f. [coluber], a female snake or serpent.

cŏlŭbri-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [coluber; fero], snake-bearing.

cŏlum, i, n. 1. a strainer, colander. 2. a wine-cooler. 3. a creel.

cŏlumba, ae, f. [columbus], a rock-dove, pigeon.

cŏlumbīnus, a, um, adj. [id.], of a dove or pigeon; dove's, pigeon's: ovum.

cŏlumbus, i, m. a cock-dove or pigeon; a dove, pigeon.

(1) cŏlumella, ae, f. [dim. columna], a small pillar.

(2) Cŏlumella, ae, m. a native of Gades, contemporary of Seneca. He wrote a treatise on farming.

cŏlumen (culmen), ĭnis, n. [root KEL-, raise; cf. κολωνός, collis, celsus], I. 1. a summit, top, pinnacle, peak. 2. (fig.) the top, summit, chief: amicorum Antonii. II. 1. a gable-pillar. 2. (fig.) a prop, stay, support: mearum rerum. III. see culmen.

cŏlumna, ae, f. [cf. columen], 1. a column, pillar, post. The columnae of arcades in Rome were used by shopkeepers for the display of wares, catalogues, or advertisements: hence, mediocribus esse poetis . . . non concessere columnae, i.e. the booksellers' shops. 2. (a) Columna Maenia, or Columna, a pillory in the Forum, which was the tribunal of the triumviri capitales in the trial of low criminals, fraudulent bankrupts, etc.; (b) Columna Rostrata, a pillar in the Forum, ornamented with the rostra of captured ships. The first was erected in commemoration of Duilius's victory over the Carthaginians, B.C. 260; (c) Columna Bellica, a small column in the Circus Flaminius, in remembrance of the old custom of declaring war by the fetialis hurling a spear across the enemy's boundary; (d) Columnae Herculis, the Pillars of Hercules, i.e. Calpe (Gibraltar) and Abyla (Ceuta); (e) Columnae Protei, i.e. the island of Pharos and the Egyptian coast, = the eastern extremity of Egypt. 3. (fig.) a pillar: as an emblem of stability and dignity).

cŏlumnārium, ii, n. [columna], a tax levied on householders for the number of pillars contained in their houses.

cŏlumnārius, a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to a column. As subst. an 'habitué' of the Columna Maenia, i.e. a fraudulent debtor, good-for-nothing fellow, fellow, etc.

cŏlurnus, a, um, adj. [euphon. by Metathesis for corulinus, corulnus, from corulus], of hazel, hazel: veru; hastile.

cŏlus, i and -us, ūs, f. (m. in Catullus and Propertius), a distaff.

cŏlustra, ae. See colostra.

com, old form of cum.

‡ cōma, ae, f. [κόμη], I. 1. the hair of the head, the hair; in pl. locks, tresses. 2. the mane (of animals). 3. (poet.) wool, a fleece. II. (meton.) 1. the leaves or foliage of trees, flowers, etc. 2. an ear or blade of corn. 3. the head of a plant. 4. the crest of a helmet. 5. the streaming light of a torch, meteor, etc.

Cōmăgēnē, Cōmăgēnus. See Commu-.

cōmans, ntis, part. from (2) como. As adj. I. 1. with long, wavy, or flowing hair. 2. having a long mane, hairy. 3. with long (horse-hair) crest, crested, plumed: galea. II. (meton.) 1. leafy, in leaf: sera comans Narcissus, late blooming. 2. streaming with light: stella.

cōmātus, a, um, adj. formed like part. [coma], I. 1. having long or flowing hair, hairy. Gallia Comāta, Transalpine Gaul (except Gallia Narbonensis), where it was the fashion to wear long hair: Ligur . . . toti praelate Comatae. II. (meton.) leafy: silva, Val. Fl.

Combē, ēs, f. the mother of the Curetes.

(1) com-bĭbo (con-), ĕre, bĭbi, trans. v. drink up, drink in, absorb, swallow.

(2) combĭbo (con-), ōnis, m. [combibo], a pot-companion.

com-būro (con-), būrēre, bussi, bustum, [buro=uro], trans. v. I. 1. burn completely, burn up, consume: aliquem fumo, i.e. stifle with the smoke of the stake, a form of punishment. II. (fig.) consume with love: ut Semelā est combustus, ut est deperditus Io.

combustus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from comburo.

cŏmĕdim, is, int, old forms of subj. of comedo.

cōm-ĕdo, ēdĕre (esse), ēdi, ēsum (essum; estum), trans. v. I. 1. eat up, devour, consume. II. (meton.) waste, squander: nummos; patrimonium. III. (fig.) 1. comedo me, I devour myself (with grief, etc.); pine, fret, worry. 2. comedere oculis, devour with one's eyes, eye longingly or greedily.

(1) cŏmēs = comedis, 2d sing. pres. from comedo.

(2) cŏmēs, ĭtis, m. f. [con, (1) eo], 1. a companion, comrade, fellow-traveller, associate, partner. 2. a guardian, tutor; sts. = paedagogus. 3. one of a retinue, an attendant, official. In pl. a magistrate's suite, retinue. 4. (under the Empire) one of the imperial court, a court official, courtier. 5. (=cliens) a retainer, follower, Tac., Iuv., Ov.

cōmesse, comesses, comesset, comestis, comesto, contracted forms from comedo.

cōmēsus (cōmestus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from comedo.

‡ (1) cōmĕtēs (-a), ae, m. [κομήτης], a comet; sts. in apposition to sidus.

(2) Cōmētēs, ae, m. one of the Lapithae.

cōmĭcē, adv. [comicus], in the manner of comedy.

‡ cōmĭcus, a, um, adj. [κωμικός], (a) of or relating to comedy, comic; (b) represented in comedy: adulescens; Davus. As subst. 1. a comic actor, comedian. 2. a writer of comedy.

cōmĭnus, adv. See cominus.

cōmis, e, adj. courteous, affable, obliging, kind (in manner and disposition), gracious. Compar. comior.

cōmissābundus, a, um, adj. [comissor], revelling, carousing.

cōmissātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a revelling, carousal, debauch, drinking bout.

cōmissātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who joins in a revel, a reveller, boon companion, noisy visitor.

‡ cōmissor, āri, ātus sum, [κωμάζω], intrans. dep. take part in a procession of revellers: in domum Paulli . . . Comissabere, wilt go to and hold revel in [=comissatum ibis].

cōmĭtas, ātis, f. [comis], courteousness, affability, kindness, obligingness, refinement.

(1) cōmĭtātus, a, um, (a) perf. pass. part. from comito; (b) perf. part. from comitor.

(2) cōmĭtātus, ūs, m. [comitor], 1. an escort, suite, train, retinue, cortège. 2. (meton.) any company, a crowd, gang, band, troop. 3. companionship, presence.

cōmĭter, adv. [comis], courteously, obligingly, kindly, graciously.

cōmĭtĭa, ōrum. See comitium.

cōmĭtĭālis, e, adj. [comitia], of or belonging to the elections: dies (pl.), days on which the comitia could be held.

cōmĭtĭātus, ūs, m. an assembly of the people in the comitia.

cōm-ĭtium, ĭi, n. [con-eo], 1. an enclosure adjoining the Forum, set apart for the popular assemblies in the earliest times; the place of assembly, the voting-ground. In pl. cōmĭtĭa, ōrum, n. the comitia, the assembly of the Roman people for electing magistrates, passing laws, etc.; the elections. 2. (fig.) a place of meeting, senate-house (elsewhere than at Rome).

cōmĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [comes], trans. v. accompany, attend, follow.

cōmĭtor, āri, ātus sum, [id.], trans. dep. act as companion, accompany, attend, follow: supremum comitari honorem, (poet.) to pay the last honour of escort,=supremo . . . honore.

comm-, for words not found with this beginning, see comm-.

com-măcŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. stain completely, defile, pollute, imbrue.

Commăgēnē (Commăg-), ēs, f. the N.E. district of Syria; chief city, Samosata.

Commăgēnus (Comă-), a, um, adj. of Commagene. As subst. Commăgēni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of C.

com-mănĭpŭlāris, is, m. a comrade of the same manipulus.

commĕātus (con-), ūs, m. [commeo], I. a passing hither and thither, a going to and fro, an expedition (to a place and back again), communication, voyage, passage, trip. II. (meton.) 1. a passage, thoroughfare. 2. leave of absence, furlough. 3. a travelling company, transport, convoy, train, caravan. 4. provisions, supplies; sts. military stores in general.

com-mĕmini (con-), isse, defect. trans. v. remember fully.

commĕmŏrābilis (con-), e, adj. [commemoro], worth mentioning, memorable.

commĕmŏrātĭo (con-), ōnis, f. [id.], a recounting, mention, tale.

commĕmŏrandus, a, um, gerundive from commemoro.

com-mĕmŏro (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. say over to one's-self, recount, relate, mention, state.

commendābĭlis, e, adj. [commendo], worthy of recommendation, praiseworthy.

commendātĭcius (-ĭtius), a, um, adj. [id.], commendatory: tabellae, letters of recommendation or of introduction.

commendātĭo, ōnis, f. [commendo], I. a commendation, recommendation. II. (meton.) that which recommends, a recommendation, testimony, set of, ornament, passport.

commendātĭtius, a, um, adj. See commendaticius.

commendātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from commendo. As adj. 1. commended, worthy of commendation, favourably viewed. 2. approved, valued. Compar. commendatior; superl. commendatissimus.

com-mendo (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, [(1) mando], trans. v. 1. put into one's hands, consign to one's care, commit, intrust, commend. 2. recommend, set off to advantage, cause to be valued or appreciated, grace.

commensus, a, um, perf. part. from commetior.

commentārĭŏlum, i, n. [dim. commentarius], a note-book, memorandum-book.

commentārius, a, um, adj. [commentor]. pertaining to thinking or composing. As subst. (a) commentārius, ĭi, m. (sc. liber), a note-book, journal. More freq. in pl. records, papers, memoirs, a sketch, treatise, lecture, commentary; (b) commentārium, ĭi, n. (sc. volumen), 1.= commentarius. 2. a brief.

commentātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a diligent meditation, study, practice. 2. (meton.) a treatise.

commentātus, a, um, perf. part. from (1) commentor: sts. with passive signification.

commenticius (-ĭtius), a, um, adj. [commentus], 1. thought out, invented, of new invention. 2. feigned, pretended, imaginary.

ideal. 3. fabricated, forged, fictitious, false.

(1) commentor, ari, ātus sum, [freq. comminiscor], dep. A. (intrans.) think over thoroughly, consider, study, meditate. B. (trans.) 1. con over (a lesson, speech, etc.), practise, study. II. (meton.) 1. compose, sketch, treat of, explain. 2. meditate, purpose. 3. invent, devise.

(2) commentor, ōris, m. [comminiscor], an inventor, deviser.

commentum, i, n. [id.], 1. an invention, fiction, fabrication. 2. a contrivance, plan, device.

commentus, a, um, perf. part. from comminiscor, in passive sense, contrived, fictitious, devised, forged.

com-mĕo (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. 1. go to and fro, come and go. 2. resort to, visit constantly.

com-mercium (-mircium), ii, n. [merx], I. commerce, traffic, trade. II. (meton.) the right to buy and sell, trading privileges. III. (fig.) intercourse, communication, any interchange, relations with: commercium habere cum Musis; epistolarum, interchange of letters; sortis humanae, the sense of human fellowship.

com-mercor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. buy up, purchase.

com-mĕrĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. 1. deserve fully, receive as one's due. 2. (meton.) commit a fault, be guilty: quid placidae commeruistis oves? Ov., culpam, Ter.

com-mĕrĕor, ēri, mĕritus sum, trans. dep. commit a fault, be guilty.

com-mĕtĭor (con-), īri, mensus sum, trans. dep. 1. measure. 2. (fig.) compare.

com-mĕto (con-), āre, [freq. commeo], go frequently.

commictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from commingo.

com-migro (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. move from one place to another with all one's belongings, change one's home.

com-militium, ii, n. [militia], 1. brotherhood in arms, common service, comradeship. 2. (meton.) companionship, fellowship.

com-mĭlĭto, ōnis, m. a fellow-soldier, comrade.

comminātio, ōnis, f. [comminor], a threatening, menacing.

com-mingo (con-), ĕre, nxi, nctum (mictum), trans. v. befoul, defile.

com-miniscor (con-), i, mentus sum [root MEN-; cf. memini, Minerva], trans. dep. devise, contrive, invent, feign.

com-minor, āri, ātus sum, dep. threaten greatly; esp. of an attack.

com-minŭo, ŭĕre, ŭi, ūtum, trans. v. 1. break into pieces, crush. II. (fig.) 1. lessen, diminish; weaken, impair. 2. make to relent.

com-minus, cominus, adv. [manus], 1. at close quarters, hand to hand. 2. (meton.) near, close at hand, hard by, at close range.

comminŭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from commiuuo.

com-miscĕo (con-), ēre, miscŭi, mixtum (mistum), trans. v. 1. mix together, intermingle, blend. 2. (fig.) unite, join: commixti corpore tantum Teucri, blended in race only, Virg.

commiserātio, ōnis, f. [commiseror], an expression of pity for a person, pathetic description.

com-miseresco, ĕre, trans. v. have pity upon, commiserate. Impers. with acc. of person feeling pity and gen. of obj. pitied: Bacchidem eius commisereseret, Ter.

com-miserŏr, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. commiserate, pity, bewail. 2. (meton.) without obj. acc., make an appeal to the feelings.

commissātio, commissātor. See comiss-.

commissĭo, ōnis, f. [committo], (lit. a setting together in a contest), 1. an exhibition (of public games); the beginning of the games. 2. (meton.) a speech at the opening of the games, a prize essay, showy declamation.

commissum, i. See commissus.

commissūra, ae, f. [committo], (lit. a joining together); a joint, seam.

commissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from committo. As subst. commissum, i, n. 1. an offence, fault, crime. 2. a trust, secret. 3. (legal techn. t.) an incurring of fines, forfeiture of property.

commistus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from commisceo.

com-mītigo, āre, trans. v. soften thoroughly, mash.

com-mitto (con-), ĕre, mīsi, missum, trans. v. I. 1. bring together, combine, unite, join: quā naris fronti committitur; Scylla . . . Delphinum caudas utero commissa luporum, having dolphins' tails joined to a belly of wolves (past part. in middle sense with object acc.). 2. bring together as competitors or antagonists, match, pit, set to fight: licet Aenean Rutulumque ferocem Committas; exiguum dominis commisit asylum. 3. (of a battle, contest) engage in, commence: proelium; certamen; Martem; ludos. So, poet., manum committere Teucris, i.e. to fight with. Pass. impers. priusquam committeretur, before the action began. 4. begin, undertake, set on foot: iudicium inter sicarios committitur. II. (meton.) 1. (a) do wrong, offend, transgress: ut neque timeant qui nihil commiserint; contra legem (in legem, or lege) committere, to act in violation of law; (b) commit (a crime): fraudem; quid meus Aeneas in te committere tantum (potuit)? 2. committere ut . . . (always in a bad sense), act in such a way that, put one's self in the position of, allow one's self: non committam ut tibi ipse insanire videar. Sts. with cur or quare: neque commissum a se intelligeret quare timeret, it was neither conscious of any proceedings on its part to cause apprehension. Poet. with infin.: infelix committit saepe repelli, she exposes herself to be often repulsed. 3. committere poenam, multam, etc., commit an offence involving a penalty or fine, incur it. Hence, in pass. committi, to be forfeited, confiscated: hereditas Veneri commissa. III. intrust, commit, resign: semina sulcis; se populo committere, to venture to appear before the people; so, se in Senatum committere, to venture into the Senate; rem in aciem committere, to hazard a pitched battle.

commixtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from commisceo.

commŏdē, adv. [commodus], 1. as befits, as is well, duly, methodically, fitly, aptly, properly, appropriately. 2. conveniently, suitably, opportunely, readily, comfortably. 3. kindly, obligingly, courteously, in a friendly manner, agreeably. 4.=commodum, adv. Compar. commodius; superl. commodissime.

commŏditas, ātis, f. [id.], I. 1. due proportion, symmetry: membrorum. 2. suitableness, appropriateness, propriety (of style or expression). II. (meton.) 1. fitness, convenience, convenient occasion, favourable opportunity; advantage, benefit. 2. kindness, obligingness, indulgence.

commŏdo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. 1. adjust, adapt. 2. give, lend, proffer, tender, supply: pulvinum alicui. 3. commodare alicui (in) aliquā re, or absol., to do a person a service, accommodate, oblige, help.

(1) commŏdum, i, n. [id.], 1. a convenient time, one's convenience: nostrum commodum exspectare; quas (naves) sui quisque commodi fecerat, which each had chartered for (lit. in relation to) his own service. Adverbially, in abl. of manner, or with prepp. ex, per; commodo meo, tuo, nostro, etc., per commodum, ex commodo, at my, your, our convenience; conveniently, at leisure, Cic., Livy. 2. advantage, profit; one's interests. Adverbially, commodo (sts. per commodum): without injury, without prejudice: quod commodo reipublicae facere posset, as far as he could do it without injury to the state, Caes., Cic., Livy. 3. a reward, gratuity, esp. to soldiers; pay, wages. 4. a privilege, immunity, favour. 5. a useful thing, a good, a blessing. 6. a loan.

(2) commŏdum, adv. [id.], 1. opportunely, just in time, seasonably. 2. just, just now, just then: illa sese interea commodum huc advorterat.

(1) com-mŏdus, a, um, adj. (lit. having a full or proper measure), 1. complete, perfect, proper, of full size or weight: novem Miscentur cyathis pocula commodis, i.e. with bumpers; though some explain to suit the taste of the drinkers, suitably. 2. (rare) in fairly good health: puer commodior est, is going on favourably, Plin. 3. suitable, convenient, advantageous, opportune, fit, appropriate, favourable. Commodum est (-libet), it is agreeable, it suits one. 4. (of persons) affable, obliging, agreeable, serviceable, friendly: mores; donarem pateras commodus et patiens, with obliging acquiescence. Compar. commodior; superl. commodissimus.

(2) Commŏdus, i, m. the Emperor Commodus (A.D. 180-192), son of M. Aurelius.

commoenĭo, īre,=communio.

com-mōlĭor, īrī, ītus sum, trans. dep. design, prepare.

commŏnĕ-făcio, fēcĕre, fēci, factum, pass. -fio, fĭĕri, factus sum, [commoneo], trans. v. 1. put in mind, remind, admonish. 2. (meton.) commemorate, make a flourish about.

com-mŏnĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. put in mind, remind, impress upon one.

com-monstro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. show or point out; give one the cue.

commŏrat, for commoverat, from commoveo.

commŏrātio, ōnis, f. [commoror], a tarrying, sojourning, stopping at a place.

com-mŏrior, mŏri, mortŭus sum, intrans. dep. die with or together.

commŏrit, contr. for commoverit, from commoveo.

com-mŏror, ārī, ātus sum, intrans. dep. stay or stop at a place, sojourn, tarry, wait, linger: commorandi diversorium, a hostelry to sojourn at.

commŏsse, commŏssem, commŏsset, for commovisse, etc., from commoveo.

commōtio, ōnis, f. [commoveo], a movement, disturbance, agitation.

commōtiuncŭla, æ, f. [dim. commotio], fidgetiness, nervousness, qualmishness.

commōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from commoveo. As adj. 1. excited, aroused. 2. unsettled, excitable, passionate. 3. crazed, deranged, Cic., Hor.

com-mŏvĕo, ēre, mŏvi, mōtum, trans. v. I. put in violent motion, agitate greatly, disturb, shake, stir, dislodge, displace, unsettle; (of game) flush, start. II. (fig.) 1. disquiet, disturb, alarm, startle, provoke, excite, make an impression upon, affect, influence strongly. 2. awaken, arouse, stir up: tumultum; dolorem. III. (pass. used reflexively) (a) (of money) circulate: nummus commoveri nullus potest sine quinque praeburas; (b) (of persons) travel about: te commoveri incommodo valetudinis tuae nolo. IV. commovere sacra, to carry about the sacred vessels, etc., which were violently shaken in the Bacchic processions; commotis excita sacris, roused by the waving of the sacred emblems, Virg.

communĭcātio, ōnis, f. [communico], 1. a making common, imparting. 2. (rhet. techn. t.) a taking one's audience into one's confidence.

communĭco (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, [communis], I. 1. divide a thing with another, or with others; communicate, impart, share: at sua Tydides mecum communicat acta; consilia cum aliquo, i.e. make common cause with, join in league with; rem cum aliquo, enter into partnership with. 2. take a share or part, participate in, partake: qui sibi cum illo rationem communicatam putat, that he has a common interest with, is in the same boat with him. II. (meton.) join on to, connect, add in equal proportion: viri quantas pecunias . . . acceperunt, tantas ex suis bonis cum dotibus communicant, they add to the dowries an equal sum from their own fortune.

communĭcor, ārī, ātus sum, dep.=communico.

(1) com-mūnio (-moenĭo), īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. v. 1. fortify on all sides, or completely, intrench. 2. (fig.) strengthen, secure.

(2) communĭo, ōnis, f. [communis], a sharing, partnership, participation, communion, possession in common.

com-mūnis, e, adj. [munus], (lit. serving together), I. shared by all, open to all, common, general, universal, ordinary: salus; ex communi consensu, with the common consent; res communis, the common interest; Erinys, i.e. of both sides; Mars, neutral, i.e. the fortune of war; vitae communis ignarus, ignorant of the usages of society; communi sensu carere, fellow feeling, common sympathy, the feeling of what is due to others, the moral sense, gentlemanly feeling, ordinary tact. As subst. commūne, is, n. 1. a community, state: gentis Pelasgae. 2. (a) that which is common, common property. Once, in Hor. τὸ κοινόν, the public treasury: privatus illis census erat brevis, Commune magnum; (b) in commune, (adverbially), (α) for common use, for the general welfare, advantage, etc.; in concert, with a common object: consulere; conferre, to go halves; ius unguit, in commune (sc. confer) quodcunque est luci; (β) on the whole, generally: in commune Suevi vocantur; (c) in communi libertatem ponere, to place liberty within the reach of all, throw open. II. public: pauca octavi gemis ex communia (sc. local) laudus. III. (fig.) sociable, affable, condescending, unselfish. Compar. communior; superl. communissimus.

commūnĭtas, ātis, f. [communis], 1. community, society, fellowship. 2. public spirit, a sense of what is due to others; cf. communis sensus. 3. affability, condescension.

commūnĭter, adv. [id.], in common, jointly, equally, together, generally.

commūnĭtio, ōnis, f. [(1) communio], roadmaking; the paving the way for something.

commūnĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from communio.

com-mūtābĭlis, e, adj. subject to change, changeful.

commūtātio, ōnis, f. [commuto], 1. a changing, change: aestuum; rerum, i.e. revolution; tanta rerum commutatione (abl. abs.), in such an altered condition of affairs. 2. an interchange.

com-mūto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. change or alter completely, reverse: tabulas publicas, falsify, Cic.; indicium, tamper with, id. 2. exchange, barter. The thing for which the change is made is put in the abl. with or without prep. cum. 3. (absol.) make a change; take up a new line or subject, Plaut., Suet.

(1) cōmo, ĕre, compsi (-msi), comptum (-mtum), [co=con, emo, put together; cf. demo, promo], comb, dress, braid the hair: compta puella comas, having her hair braided (Gk. acc.). 2. arrange, adjust: vestes. 3. (fig.) adorn, deck, set off.

(2) cŏmo, āre, to be furnished with hair; only in partt. comans, comatus.

‡ cōmoedĭa, æ, f. [κωμῳδία], a comedy.

‡ cōmoedus, a, um, adj. [κωμῳδός], of or belonging to comedy: natio, a nation of actors. As subst. cōmoedus, i, m. a comic actor, comedian.

cōmōsus, a, um, adj. [coma], having much hair, shaggy, hairy.

compactio, ōnis, f. [compingo], a joining together.

(1) compactus (compectus), a, um, perf. dep. part. from compaciscor, with pass. meaning. As subst. compactum, i, n. (only in abl.). Compacto or ex compacto, according to agreement, as agreed or bargained.

(2) compactus, s, um, perf. pass. part. from compingo. As adj. joined or set well together, thick-set, firm, compact.

compāges, is, f. [root PAG-; pango], 1. a joining or setting together, fastening, joint. 2. (fig.) framework, fabric, structure, machinery.

compăgo, ĭnis, f.=compages.

com-păr, pārĭs, abl. sing. compārī (-ē), adj. equal to or matching another, very like. As subst. 1. an equal, companion, mate, comrade, yoke-fellow. 2. a consort. 3. the queen at chess, Ov.

compărābilis, e, adj. [(1) comparo], that may be compared.

compărārier, old form of pass. infin. comparari.

(1) compărātio, ōnis, f. [(1) comparo], 1. a comparing, comparison. 2. an agreement, contract: provinciam sorte vel comparatione petiri. 3. a trial of skill, competition.

(2) compărātio, ōnis, f. [(2) comparo], 1. a preparing, preparation, getting ready, providing for 2. a procuring; organisation.

com-parco (-perco), ĕre, si, trans. v. save, lay by, hoard.

com-pārĕo, ēre, ŭi, intrans. v. 1. be evident, appear, be seen. 2. (meton.) be present, exist.

(1) com-pāro, āre, āvi, ātum, [compar], I. 1. set in pairs, pair, match, unite, join. 2. (a) pit or match one person against another ; (b) donum dono, give as a set-off to value received. II. (fig.) 1. place on the same footing, liken, compare : similitudines, i.e. draw comparisons. 2. contrast, show by contrast or comparison. 3. (of magistrates) come to an understanding, arrange, settle : provincias inter se.

(2) com-păro, āre, āvi, ātum, [(1) paro], I. 1. make ready, prepare ; arrange, provide, furnish. 2. get together, muster, equip : arma, milites, classem. II. (fig.) lay down as a principle, institute, appoint, establish, provide : more maiorum comparatum est ; eis utendum censeo quae legibus comparata sunt. III. (meton.) procure, get, acquire, purchase : auctoritatem sibi ; in circo taberнas, to take stalls or boxes at a circus show.

compectum, compectus. See compactus.

compellātĭo, ōnis, f. (2) compello], 1. an accosting. 2. abuse, invective.

(1) com-pello, ĕre, pŭli, pulsum, trans. v. I. drive together, or in a body, collect ; poet. with dat. instead of acc. with prep. : nigro gregi=ad gregem nigrum, Hor. ; hibisco=ad hibiscum, Virg. II. drive, force, constrain, compel.

(2) compello, āre, āvi, ātum, [compello, parallel form ; cf. lavere, lavare, and adpello], trans. v. I. accost, address. II. I. (in a hostile sense) rebuke, chide, upbraid, call names, abuse. 2. (legal techn. t.) arraign, take information against, accuse.

compendiārĭus, a, um, adj. [compendium], having to do with saving or shortening : via, a short road, short cut.

compendĭum, ĭi, n. [compendo, weigh together], I. a saving of expense ; gain made by economy, gain, profit. 2. a shortening, abridgment, saving. 3. (fig.) (of time or space) a saving of time or way ; shortness of way, a shorter route or road : propioribus compendiis ire ; per compendia montis, by a short cut across the mountain.

compendĭātĭo, ōnis, f. [compenso], 1. a balancing of accounts. 2. (fig.) a balancing, equivalent, counterbalance.

com-penso, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. make one thing balance with another, take or give as a set-off or equivalent, compensate for, counterbalance : bona cum vitiis. Sts. with ahl. without prep. cum : tot amissis te compensavimus unum, i.e. I had you to make up for all that I had lost. 2. shorten, save : iter longum.

com-perco. See comparco.

compĕrendĭnātĭo, ōnis, f. [comperendino], the adjournment of a trial till the next day but one.

compĕrendĭnātus, ūs, m. [id.]= comperendinatio.

compĕrendĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [comperendinus ; perendie], trans. v. 1. cite a defendant to an adjourned trial on the next day but one. 2. procure an adjournment of a trial till the next day but one.

com-pĕrio, īre, pĕri, pertum, [root PER-; cf. peritus, experior], trans. v. find out with certainty, ascertain, discover, learn.

com-pĕrior, pĕrīri, pertus sum, trans. dep.,=comperio.

compertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from comperio. As adj. found out, proved, detected, convicted : pecuniam clam egessisse scribae comperti ; (with gen. of the crime) flagitii. Ahl. abs. comperto, the discovery having been made, proof having been given, on ascertaining. In phrases ; compertum est, compertum habeo, I have positive information : aliquid pro re comperta habere, regard a thing as a positive fact.

com-pĕs, pĕdis, (nom. and dat. sing. not found), f. 1. a fetter or shackle for the feet. 2. an anklet, bangle. 3. (fig.) a fetter, bond, chain, band.

compesco, ĕre, scŭi, [compes], trans. v. (lit. fasten together). I. restrain, keep in, check, control, curb : equum habenis ; ramos fluentes, i.e. prune. II. (fig.) I. repress, check, quell, suppress, smother, allay : risum ; vino dolores ; sitim. 2. adjust, regulate : examen.

compĕtĭtor, ōris, m. [competo], a rival candidate, competitor.

compĕtĭtrix, īcis, f. [competitor], a female rival.

com-pĕto (con-), ĕre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, intrans. v. I. come together, meet. II. (fig.) 1. coincide, agree, tally. 2. be suitable, fit, qualified, sufficient.

compĭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [compilo], a pillaging.

com-pĭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. pillage, plunder, rob. II. (fig.) pilfer.

com-pingo (con-), ĕre, pĕgi, pactum, [pango], trans. v. I. join or fasten together, frame, construct. II. (fig.) hustle, thrust, crowd ; impound, put in limbo, confine : sese in Apuliam ; aliquem in carcerem.

compĭtālĭcĭus (-lĭtĭus), a, um, adj. [compitalis], of or belonging to the Compitalia : dies ; ludi.

Compĭtālĭa, e, adj. [compitum], of or belonging to the crossways : Lares. As subst. Compitālĭa, ĭum and ōrum, n. pl. a moveable feast in honour of the Lares Compitales annually celebrated at the cross-roads (compita). See Dict. Ant.

compĭtum, i, n. (mostly pl.), [competo], a place where several roads meet, a cross-road, street corner.

com-plăcĕo, ēre, plăcŭi, and plăcĭtus sum, traj. v. please greatly, charm.

com-plāno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. make even, level ; raise to the ground.

com-plector, ī, plexus sum, trans. dep. I. encircle, take full hold of, compass, surround, embrace, clasp, enfold, grip. 2. comprise, include. II. (fig.) 1. comprehend, understand, grasp. 2. comprise, sum up. 3. receive warmly, treat with affection, cultivate with pleasure, study, care for, value, favour : aliquem beneficio, confer a service on a person ; artes ingenuas ; causam. 4. seize, lay hands upon, make one's self master of.

complēmentum, i, n. [compleo], a filling-up, complement.

com-plĕo, ēre, ēvi, ētum, [root PLE-; cf. plenus], trans. v. I. 1. fill up, fill full, occupy : fossam ; loca milite. 2. make up to the proper number, complete, fill up : convivium vicinorum ; legiones ; naves, i.e. man them. II. (fig.) 1. fill with light, sound, etc. 2. fill with joy, grief, hope, etc. 3. supply fully, furnish : exercitum omni copia. 4. complete, finish completely, fulfil.

complētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from compleo. As adj. 1. filled up, full. 2. finished, perfected, complete.

complexĭo, ōnis, f. [complector], 1. a combination, connection. 2. a syllogism. 3. a dilemma.

(1) complexus, a, um, perf. part. from complector.

(2) complexus, ūs, m. [complector], 1. an embrace, embracing. 2. (fig.) fond or intimate relations with a person : amici de complexu Catilinae ac sinu, the friends of his heart and bosom.

complĭcātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from complico.

complĭcĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from complico.

com-plĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, (post-Aug. ŭi, ĭtum), trans. v. 1. fold together, fold up, fasten up : epistolam. 2. (fig.) roll or wrap up : animi complicatam notionem evolvere, to unfold the idea (of a good man) which is wrapt up in his mind.

complōrātĭo, ōnis, f. [comploro], a loud lamentation or bewailing.

complōrātus, ūs, m. [id.], a loud or violent lamentation.

com-plōro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. lament or bewail loudly or violently.

com-plūres, a and ĭa, adj. several together, very many. As subst. 1. complūres, ium, m. f. several, many persons, etc. 2. complūra, ium, n. pl. many things.

complusculi, ae, a, adj. [dim. complures], a good many, several.

complŭvĭum, ĭi, n. [con, pluo], a square opening in the roof of a Roman house, which sloped so as to carry the rain into the reservoir below (impluvium).

compŏnĭēr, old pres. infin. pass from compono.

com-pōno, ĕre, pŏsŭi, pŏsĭtum, trans. v. I. 1. put, place, set, or lay together ; get together, collect. 2. place close together, join together, unite. 3. form, fashion, build : urbem. 4. set in order, arrange, array ; pack up. 5. pit together, set to fight, match : duos bonos viros inter se. 6. compare, contrast : parva magnis : divis homines ; dicta cum factis. II. (fig.) 1. make up, compose, compound. 2. draw up (in writing), compose, write : edictum ; carmina ; libros. 3. treat of, describe, record : res gestas. 4. put away, put by or on one side, store up : opes. 5. lay out for burial ; inter, bury : toro Mortua componar ; compositique nepos bustis piabat avi. 6. put or lay to rest, put to sleep : se ; membra ; diem. 7. lay to rest, appease ; settle, compose, tranquillise, quiet, calm : motos fluctus ; lites ; discordias. 8. set at one, reconcile : aversos amicos ; ut componeretur (impers.) that a reconciliation should be made. 9. set in order, set right, adjust, arrange, consolidate, regulate, adapt. 10. arrange in agreement, agree upon, settle : dolum ; consilium ; compositi hora, the trysting hour. 11. feign, pretend, contrive, make up : nec bene mendaci risus componitur ore ; in adrogantiam compositus, affecting a haughty demeanour, with a studied air of hauteur.

com-porto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. bring together, carry to one spot, collect, amass, bring in, convey.

com-pōs, pōtis, adj. [potis], 1. having the mastery or control over, having got or obtained, having at one's command (with gen. or abl.) : sui ; mentis or animi, in full possession of one's mental powers, reason, etc. ; voti, having one's vows or wishes realised, successful. 2. partaking of, sharing in.

compōsitē, adv. [compositus], in an orderly manner, regularly, with due arrangement : disserere, in studied and elaborate language. Compar. compositius.

compōsītio, ōnis, f. [compono], 1. a putting together, arranging, compounding. 2. a settlement of a difference, reconciliation. 3. an agreement, compact.

compōsitō. See compositus.

compōsitor, ōris, m. 1. one who puts together in order, a disposer. 2. a composer, author.

compōsitus, sync. compōstus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from compono. As adj. 1. set in order, well ordered, arranged, neat, regular, orderly. 2. fit, suitable, well qualified. 3. quiet, calm, composed, sedate, steady. 4. laid to rest, laid out for burial : somno vinoque ; arma ; cineres. 5. previously arranged, concerted : hora, the trysting hour, Hor. Ex compōsīto, or compōsīto, by agreement, as concerted beforehand, designedly. 6. made up, invented. Compar. compositior ; superl. compositissimus.

compōstus, a, um, sync. for compositus.

com-pōtātio, ōnis, f. a drinking-together = συμπόσιον.

com-pōtor, ōris, m. a pot-companion.

compōtrix, īcis, f. [compotor], a female pot-companion.

com-pransor, ōris, m. a boon companion.

comprĕcātio, ōnis, f. [comprecor], a general and solemn supplication.

com-prĕcor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. pray earnestly to, implore : deos ; caelestûm fidem. Sts. without obj. acc. pray, make supplication.

com-prĕhendo (-prēndo), dĕre, di, sum, trans. v. I. lay hold of on both sides ; seize, clutch at, grasp, catch, arrest. II. (fig.) 1. comprehend, conceive, grasp (by the senses, intellectually) : aliquid animo. 2. comprehend (in words or writing), recount, enumerate, include, comprise, describe : omnes scelerum formas. 3. contain, embrace, include. 4. lay a person under obligation : multos amicitiâ. 5. discover, detect : audaciam.

comprĕhensĭbilis, e, adj. [comprehendo], perceptible, conceivable...

comprĕhensĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], I. 1. the act of laying hold of an object with the hands. 2. a seizure, catching, apprehension, arrest. II. (fig.) 1. a grasping with the senses, perception, comprehension. 2. periodic style, a period, Cic.

comprĕhensus (comprensus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from comprehendo.

comprendo. See comprehendo.

(1) compressus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from comprimo.

(2) compressus, ūs, (found only in abl. sing.) m. [comprimo], 1. a pressing together, pressure. 2. an embrace, cuddle.

com-primo, ĕre, pressi, pressum, [prem], trans. v. 1. press close or tight, keep close. Proverb. : Compressis manibus sedere, to sit with hands folded, i.e. be inactive, play the sluggard. II. (fig.) 1. stop, stay, hold back, check, bring up sharp. 2. keep back, withhold, conceal, secrete : famam captae Carthaginis ; frumentum.

comprōbātio, ōnis, f. [comprobo], approbation, approval.

com-prōbo (con-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. approve thoroughly, sanction. 2. establish, confirm, make good, attest, bear out, justify : consilium hominis comprobat fortuna ; comprobato eorum indicio.

comprōmissum, i, n. [compromitto], the terms of an agreement made by both parties to a suit to abide by the award of an arbiter.

com-prōmitto, ĕre, mīsi, missum, (legal techn. t.) promise to abide by an arbiter's award.

(1) comptus (comtus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from como. As adj. 1. dressed out, decked, adorned. 2. (fig.) elegant, refined, cultivated : sermo ; facundia. Compar. comptior.

(2) comptus (comtus), ūs, m. [como], 1. a braiding of the hair, head-dress. 2. (fig.) a binding tie, bond, band, Lucr.

compulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from compello.

compunctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from compungo.

com-pungo, ĕre, punxi, punctum, trans. v. sting, prick, puncture : barbarum compunctum Thraciis notis, i.e. tattooed.

com-pŭto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. sum up, count, reckon, calculate.

com-putresco, ĕre, putrŭi, intrans. v. become completely rotten.

comtus, a, um. See comptus.

Cōmum, i, n. a town of Gallia Cisalpina, the birthplace of the younger Pliny, now Como.

con, =cum.

cōnămen, ĭnis, n. [conor], an effort, struggle.

(1) cōnātus, a, um, perf. part. from conor. As subst. cōnăta, ōrum, n. pl. (in passive sense) an attempt, venture, undertaking.

(2) cōnātus, ūs, m. [id.], 1. an attempt, effort, endeavour. 2. an undertaking, enterprise. 3. an impulse, inclination, tendency.

con-caedes, ĭum, f. pl. a barricade of timber.

con-călĕfăcio, ēre, fēci, factum, trans. v. warm thoroughly. Pass. con-călĕfio, fiĕri.

concălĕfactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from concalefacio.

con-călesco, ŭi, intrans. v. I. become thoroughly warm, glow. II. (fig.) glow with love.

con-callesco, ĕre, callŭi [incept. calleo], intrans. v. 1. become hard or insensible. 2. become shrewd, dexterous, adroit.

con-cămĕro, āre, ātum, trans. v. vault, arch over.

Concānus, i, m. a Concan. The Concani were a tribe of the Cantabri, in Hispania Tarraconensis.

con-cāvo, āre, ātum, trans. v. hollow out ; curve, arch.

con-cāvus, a, um, adj. completely hollow, vaulted, arched.

con-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans., traj., traj. trans. and trans v. ; A. (intrans.) 1. go away, withdraw, retire, depart : concedite, silvae, away with you ! Concedere vitâ, or concedere alone, to die. 2. give way, yield : tumor et ira. Concessere dolum, i.e. abated. 3. yield one's-self, consent to, go over to, fall under : in paucorum ius atque dicionem ; in gentem nomenque, i.e. be merged in. B. (traj.) 1. give way to, yield to, (an inferior), submit, bow. 2. yield assent to, defer to : liceat concedere veris. 3. make allowance for, pardon : alienis peccatis ; cui (vitio) si concedere nolis. C. (traj. trans.) 1. grant, allow, permit, vouchsafe : amicis quidquid velint, tempus quieti ; (with ut) concedo tibi ut en praetereas ; (with infin.) esse poëtis. 2. yield, resign, give up : peccata alicui, i.e. to pardon a person. Poet. with in and acc. Concessit in iras. . . . Calydônis Dianae, surrendered C. to Diana to vent her rage upon. 3. (=condono), grant as a favour, give up for the sake of, or out of regard to : peccata liberûm parentum miseri-cordiae; Montanus patri concessus est, M. was spared at his father's intercession. D. (trans.) admit, confess: quae nulla esse concedis.

con-cĭlĭbro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. resort to in large numbers, throng, haunt, frequent. II. (meton.) 1. celebrate, keep (a festival, etc.). 2. publish abroad, make known, notify: victoriam.

con-cēnātio, (caen-, coen-), ōnis, f. = σύνδειπνον, a supping together.

concentio, ōnis, f. [concino], a singing together, harmony.

concentus, ūs, m. [id.], 1. a singing together, a playing of musical instruments together: harmony, concert. 2. (fig.) agreement, harmony, concord.

conceptio, ōnis, f. [concipio], 1. a gathering, collection. 2. conception. 3. a drawing up or drafting of legal formulae.

(1) conceptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from concipio.

(2) conceptus, ūs, m. [concipio], 1. a gathering, collection: aquarum. 2. a catching fire: flagrante triclinio ex conceptu camini. 3. a conceiving, pregnancy.

con-cerpo, ĕre, psi, ptum, [carpo], trans. v. I. pluck, pull, or tear in pieces. 2. (fig.) pick to pieces, cut up, revile.

concertātio, ōnis, f. [concerto], a strife of words, controversy, dispute, squabble; in pl. polemics: verborum, verbal quibbling.

concertātor, ōris, m. [id.], a rival.

concertātōrius, a, um, adj. [concertator], controversial, polemical, belonging to debate.

con-certo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. contend warmly, fight, quarrel, dispute.

concessio, ōnis, f. [concedo], an allowing, granting, permission; concession, grant.

(1) concessus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from concedo. As adj. usually permitted, ordinary, permissible, lawful, Tac., Virg.

(2) concessus, ūs, m. (only in abl. sing.), [concedo], 1. withdrawal, retirement: fratrum. 2. permission, leave, admission: Caesaris: ipsorum inter ipsos concessu, by mutual admission.

‡ concha, ae, f [κόγχη], I. a shell-fish; (a) a mussel; (b) a pearl-oyster, and (meton.) a pearl; (c) the purple shell-fish: stratis concha Sidonide tinctis. II. a snail-shell. III. (meton.) a thing shaped like a shell; (a) a Triton's trumpet; (b) the trumpet of Misenus; (c) a salt-cellar; (d) a perfume box, vase: funde capacibus Unguenta de conchis.

conchēus, a, um, adj. [concha], of a shell-fish: baca, a pearl.

‡ conchis, is, f. [κόγχος], lentils boiled with the pods; a bean ragout, stewed beans, Iuv., Mart.

conchȳlĭātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [conchylium], of a rich purple colour.

‡ conchȳlium, ĭi, n. [κογχύλιον], I. 1. a shell-fish, 2. an oyster. 3. the purple shell-fish. II. (meton.) 1. purple colour, purple. 2. purple garments.

(1) con-cīdo, ĕre, cīdi, [caedo], intrans. v. I. 1. fall together, fall to pieces, collapse, tumble down. 2. fall in a swoon, fall dead. 3. (euphem.) be slain: ante aras victima tanta Concidit. II. (fig.) 1. fall and perish, decay, go to ruin, be overthrown, prostrated, etc. 2. lose heart, fail. 3. (of the wind) fall, cease, drop.

(2) con-cīdo, ĕre, cīdi, cīsum, [caedo], trans. v. I. 1. cut up, cut to pieces, chop up. 2. lacerate, score, flay, pummel: virgis; pugnis. 3. cut to pieces in war, kill: multitudinem fugientium. II. (fig.) 1. deal a death-blow to, destroy, annihilate: auctoritatem ordinis. 2. (of a critic) cut up, slash, make mincemeat of: Timocratem totis voluminibus.

con-cĭo, ĕre, cīvi, cītum, trans. v. I. 1. bring together, convoke, collect a crowd. 2. set in violent or rapid motion, shake, stir up; hurl: saxa. II. (fig.) 1. rouse, excite, provoke: hostem; concitus irâ. 2. stir up, produce: iram; seditionem.

concĭlĭābŭlum, ī, n. [concilium], a place of meeting, public place.

conciliātio, ōnis, f. [concilio], 1. a connection, union. 2. a conciliating, a gaining over, attempt to bias another. 3. (philos. techn. t.) an inclination, longing for. 4. a procuring, purchasing, acquisition.

conciliātor, ōris, m. [id.], a provider; a promoter, author: nuptiarum; seditionis. 2. a go-between, mediator: idoneus Germanorum.

conciliātrīcula, ae, f. [dim. conciliatrix], a female go-between, match-maker, blarney.

conciliātrix, ĭcis, f. [conciliator], 1. a female promoter, author, cause: amicitiae. 2. a go-between, match-maker

(1) conciliātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from concilio. As adj. 1. agreeable, popular, beloved. 2. favourable, well inclined.

(2) conciliātus, ūs, (only in abl. sing.), m. [concilio], a joining, union (of bodies, atoms).

concĭlĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [concilium], trans. v. I. bring together, unite. II. (fig.) 1. gain over, win, make friendly, conciliate: animos plebis; Maurorum animos Vitellio. 2. represent a thing as agreeable, put it in a favourable light, recommend: artes dictis; ingenio faciem. III. (meton.) 1. procure, provide, bring about, inflict, establish, produce, acquire, win for one's-self, secure. 2. obtain by purchase, bargain for, get, gain: prodi, male conciliate, come forth, thou vile bargain; pecuniae conciliandae causâ. 3. introduce (a mistress to a lover): non me nuptiasti conciliante viro, on my introduction.

concĭlium, ĭi, n. [con; root CAL-; cf. clamo, καλέω], I. 1. a gathering, assembly, meeting. 2. a council. II. (fig.) a close connection, union, coherence: hoc mihi concilium tecum manebit.

concinnē, adv. [concinnus], neatly, elegantly, tastefully.

concinnĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], neatness, elegance; sts. affectation, mannerism.

concinno, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. join neatly together, arrange, adjust, trim. II. (meton.) 1. prepare, devise; occasion, produce: munusculum tibi; fervorem. 2. (factitive) render, make: viam tranquillam.

concinnus, a, um, adj. 1. well adjusted, well proportioned, happily blended; graceful, elegant, neat, tasteful, comme il faut. 2. pretty, charming: Samos. 3. (meton.) suited to, fit; pleasing, agreeable, complacent: amicis. Compar. concinnior.

con-cĭno, nĕre, cĭnŭi, [cano], intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. sing, play, or sound in concert; sing an accompaniment to. 2. (fig.) harmonise, accord: Stoici cum Peripateticis re concinere videntur, verbis discrepare. 3.=cano, sing. B. (trans.) 1. sing in unison or in concert. 2 sing of, celebrate in song. 3. prophesy, forebode: omen.

(1) con-cĭo, cīre, cīvi, trans. v. =concieo. Cf. cio, cieo.

(2) concio (contio), ōnis, f. See contio.

concĭonābundus, concĭonālis, concĭonor, etc. See cont-.

con-cĭpio, cĭpĕre, cēpi, ceptum [capio], trans. v. I. 1. take hold of, take in, take, draw in, receive, catch, contract: ventum veste; ignem; maculam; dedecus. 2. conceive, become pregnant. II. (fig.) 1. apprehend by the senses, take in, perceive. 2. conceive in the mind, imagine, meditate, harbour, admit: aliquid spe; animo urbes; maiora; scelus; inimicitias; furias, i.e. be possessed by, Virg. 3. (techn. t. of giving words to solemn acts, e.g. treaties, oaths, prayers, etc.) embody in words, formulate: verba, rehearse a set form of words for another to repeat; foedus, couch the treaty in solemn words, formally declare it: Iubius dum vota salutis Concipierent, till they could breathe (in formal language) the vows of a safety they could scarce hope for, Luc.; ferias Latinas, i.e. fix the date of the Latin Festival.

concīsē, adv. [concisus], briefly.

concīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from concido. As adj. broken short, broken up, concise.

concĭtātio, ōnis, f. [concito], I rapid motion, briskness. II. (fig.) 1. excitement, emotion. 2. a rising, sedition.

concĭtātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who excites or rouses, a mover, promoter.

concĭtātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from concito. As adj. 1. swift, at full speed. 2. roused up, violently moved, over-excited, impassioned, impetuous. Compar. concitatior; superl. concitatissimus.

(2) cōnexus (conn-), ūs, m. [connecto], a joining together, combination.

con-fābŭlor, āri, ātus sum, dep. 1. converse together, gossip. 2. (trans.) discuss.

confarrēātio, ōnis, f. [conferreo], the most ancient and solemn form of marriage amongst the Romans, so called from the custom of carrying a flour-cake (far) before the bride. See Dict. Ant.

con-farrĕo, āre, ātum, [farreus], trans. v. marry according to the primitive form; cf. confarreatio.

con-fātālis, e, adj. linked with destiny, decided by fate.

confectio, ōnis, f. [conficio], 1. a making up, composing, arrangement: libri; tabularum. 2. a finishing, completion: belli. 3. a mastication, chewing: escarum.

confector, ōris, m. [id.], 1. an executor, completer, finisher. 2. a destroyer.

confectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conficio. As adj. worn out, exhausted, disabled, used up.

con-fercio, cīre, fertum, [farcio], trans. v. cram together, press closely.

con-fĕro, ferre, tŭli, collātum (conl-), trans. v. I. A. 1. bring together, collect, gather: arcinas, impedimenta, park, lauger, Caes. ✦ contribute: contulit aes populus. 3. in phrases: (a) conferre capita, to confer, deliberate; (b) gradum, walk side by side with one, step together; (c) ferre ac manūs, to fight a pitched battle; certamina belli, engage in strife of battle; so conferre signa, arma, castra, and (poet.) Martem, i.e. to engage; conferre castra castris, to pitch one's camp close to or in view of the enemy's camp; pedem, dextram, i.e. to fight at close quarters; collato gradu (pede) certare, to fight foot to foot. Sts. absol. Metum confer, sit, fight with me; (d) lites, to have a quarrel or dispute with any one; (e) legem, join in bringing forward a law. B. (fig.) 1. join, unite (esp. of conferences, discussions, etc.): familiares sermones, enter into familiar conversation; coram conferre quae volumus licebit, shall be able to meet and discuss what we choose. 2. bring together for comparison, compare: I nunc Sisyphias, improbe, confer opes; nil ego contuleram iucundo sanus amico. 3. compress, condense; abridge: suam verba in versus duos. II. A. 1. bear, carry, convey, direct (in haste, or for safety, etc.): parentes illuc; iter Brundisium versus: se conferre, to betake one's self, remove, go. 2. change, transform: corpus in lucrem. B. (fig.) 1. apply, direct, adapt, devote, transfer wholly: verba ad rem, put one's words into action: operam ad philosophiam; curas cogitationesque in rempublicam. 2. grant, bestow: victoribus praemia; haec tibi contulerunt caelestia munera divi. 3. assign or ascribe to, attribute, lay to the charge of; lay upon, cast upon: res ad imperium decorum: sua vitia et suam culpam in senectutem. 4. (with prep. in or ad), put off, defer, delay, reserve, postpone: omnia in mensem Martium; iter in posterum diem. III. be useful or profitable, serve, be of use: plurimum ad victoriam. Only in 3d person or infin.

confertim, adv. [confertus], compactly, in close order.

confertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from confercio. As adj. 1. closely pressed, packed close, crowded, in close array, serried, in a solid body, dense, compact. 2. (with abl.) stuffed, crammed, choke full: cibo. Compar. confertior; superl. confertissimus.

con-fervē-făcio, făcĕre, trans. v. heat to glowing, melt.

con-fervesco, ĕre, ferbŭi, [incept. conferveo], intrans. v. grow hot.

confessio, ōnis, f. [confiteor], an avowal, acknowledgment, confession.

confessus, a, um, perf. part. from confiteor. As adj. 1. (with active force) that has confessed or pleaded guilty: de confessis supplicium sumendum. 2. (with passive force) acknowledged, admitted, certain: Est confessa, undoubtedly, confessedly; In confesso esse, to be an acknowledged fact, notorious.

con-festim, adv. [cf. festinus], immediately, instantly, at once.

conficiens, ntis, part. from conficio. As adj. 1. productive of, with gen., Cic. 2. methodical, business-like: (with gen.) litterarum, careful in keeping accounts, Cic. Superl. conficientissimus.

con-fĭcio, fĭcĕre, fēci, fectum, [facio], trans. v. I. 1. do thoroughly or completely, execute, accomplish, despatch, complete, finish: negotium; bellum; osteudens confectas flamma Latinas, the completion of the Feriae Latinae, Luc. 2. make, produce, effect, bring about. 3. make up, compose, draw up: libros; tabulae literis Graecis confectae; tabulas, keep books of accounts. 4. pass over, traverse, accomplish: iter; viam longam; immensum aequor. 5. (business techn. t.) close a bargain, settle: de nostra fide spero cum Crassipede nos confecisse. II. (meton.) 1. completely reduce, weaken, wear out, exhaust, destroy, kill, do for, despatch: patrimonium; senectute, dolore confectus; vulnus adactum Conficit. 2. get through, stomach, digest: pavones; cibos; decisse minuti escas conficiunt, i.e. masticate. 3. get together, prepare, provide, procure, secure: pecuniam; armata milia, exercitum, raise, muster; suam tribum necessariis suis, secure the interest of his own tribe for his friends; virginem quam amabat, eam confeci, I put into his power. III. (fig.) (of time) complete, spend, pass: biennium.

confictio, ōnis, f. [confingo], an inventing, fabricating: criminis.

confictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from confingo.

confĭdens, ntis, pres. part. from confido. As adj. self-reliant bold, presumptuous. Superl. confidentissimus.

confidenter, adv. [confidens], with self-reliance, with confidence, with assurance, boldly, presumptuously. Mostly in bad sense.

confidentia, ae, f. [id.], self-reliance, confidence, assurance, boldness, effrontery, presumptuousness. Mostly in bad sense.

con-fīdo, ĕre, fisus sum, semidep. I. (intrans.) feel confident, be assured, rely, presume, indulge the belief. II. (with dat.) believe, trust, rely upon, have confidence in: fidei legionum; sibi; afflictis rebus.

confĭĕri. See confio.

con-figo, ĕre, fixi, fixum, trans. v. 1. nail or fasten together. 2. (meton.) transfix, pierce. 3. (fig.) stab, disable, render powerless.

(?) con-findo, ĕre, trans. v. cleave.

con-fingo, ĕre, finxi, fictum, trans. v. 1. make, fashion. 2. (fig.) feign, fabricate, invent, devise.

con-finis, e, adj. 1. having a common boundary, contiguous, adjoining, neighbouring. With dat.: quā collo confine caput. As subst. (a) confinis, is, m. a neighbour; (b) confine, is, n. a border, confine, frontier. 2. (fig.) nearly related, allied to, of a piece with: studio confinia carmina vestro.

confinium, ĭi, n. [confinis], 1. a common boundary, frontier, borderland; in pl. confines, marches. 2. (fig.) neighbourhood, nearness, line of demarcation.

con-fio, fīĕri, old passive of conficio, be made, done, brought to pass, settled.

confirmātio, ōnis, f. [confirmo], 1. an establishing, confirmation: libertatis. 2. a reassuring, encouragement: animi. 3. confirmatory statement, evidence: perfugae.

confirmātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who is security for payment: pecuniae.

confirmātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from confirmo. As adj. 1. reassured, encouraged, resolute. 2. established, corroborated. Compar. confirmatior; superl. confirmatissimus.

con-firmo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. make firm, strengthen, establish, confirm, brace up. 2. reassure, encourage. 3. maintain, assert, declare positively, give one's assurance: hoc cum mihi non modo confirmasset, sed etiam persuasisset; inter se confirmant, they give mutual assurances, mutually engage. 4. corroborate, prove.

con-fisco, āre, ātum, [fiscus], trans. v. 1. lay by in a safe or coffer, hold in reserve: summam. 2. seize as forfeit to the exchequer, confiscate. 3. (meton.) forfeit one's property, Suet.

confīsio, ōnis, f. [confido], confidence, assurance.

confisus, a, um, perf. part. from confido, having trusted, trusting: pelago confisa serene; confisus amari, believing that I was loved.

confĭt. See confio.

con-fĭtĕor, ēri, fessus sum, [fateor], dep. A. (intrans.) acknowledge, own, confess, avow: admit, grant; consent. B. (trans.) 1. confess, own, admit, etc.: ut sceleris numeros conficeare tui; se victos. 2. (meton.) disclose, show, reveal, betray: confessa vultibus iram; in luce refulsit Alma parens, confessa deam, betraying the goddess (=se deam esse).

confixus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from configo.

conflagrātĭo, ōnis, f. [conflagro], a conflagration, eruption.

con-flagro, āre, āvi, ātum, I. (intrans.) 1. burn up, be consumed or destroyed by fire: classis confligrabat. 2. (fig.) be consumed, blusted; grill, sweller: amoris flammā; invidiae incendio.

conflexus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conflecto, bowed, bent together.

conflictĭo, ōnis, f. [confligo], a striking together, collision, conflict.

conflicto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. confligo], trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) 1. strike or dash against one another. 2. (fig.) conflictari (pass. used reflexively), rub up against, fall foul of; fight, contend, grapple with. Rarely intrans.: ut conflictares malo. B. (trans.) strike to the ground, cause the downfall of, shatter, ruin, harass, distress: rempublicam; variis morbis conflictatus es.

conflictus, ūs, m. [confligo], a collision, conflict.

con-fĭgo, fīgĕre, fixi, fictum; A. (trans.) 1. strike or dash together. 2. (fig.) place in antagonism, contrast, compare. B. (intrans.) clash, struggle, contend, fight.

con-flo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. (of fire) blow up, light up: incendium. 2. (meton.) smelt, fuse; melt down, forge: fulces in ensem. II. (fig.) 1. kindle, inflame: invidiam. 2. scrape together, get up, trump up, plot, raise, procure; produce, cause, occasion: pecuniam; exercitum; alicui periculum.

confluens, ntis, part. from confluo. As subst. confluens, ntis, or confluentes, ium, m. place where two rivers meet, a confluence. Pl. Confluentes, ium, m. the town of Coblentz, at the confluence of the Moselle and the Rhine.

con-flŭo, ĕre, fluxi, intrans. v. 1. flow together, flow so as to unite, unite. 2. (fig.) flow to in abundance, come in shoals, flock, crowd.

con-fŏdĭo, fŏdĕre, fōdi, fossum, trans. v. I. dig thoroughly. II. (meton. and fig.) stab, gore, pierce through, riddle.

confore, fut. infin. from consum.

conformātĭo, ōnis, f. [conformo], 1. a symmetrical forming; shapeliness. 2. (fig.) a fashioning, shaping: animi conformatio et moderatio; vocis, i.e. modulation. 3. (meton.) a notion, idea, embodiment: animi.

con-formo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. bring into shape, form, fashion. 2. (fig.) mould, adapt, train: mentem; mores.

confossus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from confodio.

confractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from confringo.

confrăgōsus, a, um, adj. [cf. confragus], broken, rough, uneven, rugged.

con-frăgus, a, um, adj. [confringo], post. form=confragosus.

con-frĕmo, ĕre, fremŭi, intrans. v. utter a loud or deep sound together, murmur loudly, roar, resound.

con-frĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. rub thoroughly.

con-fringo, ĕre, frēgi, fractum, [frango], 1. break in pieces, smash, shiver. 2. (fig.) break down, humble, destroy, demolish.

con-fŭgio, fŭgĕre, fūgi, intrans. v. flee to, for refuge or help, take refuge with or to, have recourse to.

confŭgium, ĭi, n. [confugio], a place of refuge, shelter. Ov.

confŭi. See consum.

con-fundo, ĕre, fūdi, fusum, trans. v. I. pour together, mingle, blend. II. (meton.) 1. combine, unite, join: duo populi in unum confusi. 2. mingle in confusion, confuse, jumble, bring into disorder: signa et ordines peditum atque equitum; fas nefasque; foedus, i.e. violate, disturb; vultus, mar, maul so as to make unrecognisable, disfigure. 3. pour out, empty: cruorem in fossam. 4. diffuse, spread over. III. (fig.) confound, disturb, disconcert, perplex: confundor imagine noctis.

confūsē, adv. [confusus], confusedly, in disorder. Compar. confusius.

confūsĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a mingling, blending. 2. a combination, union: suffragiorum, i.e. massvoting, i.e. not according to centuries. 3. confusion, disorder: temporum, unsettled times. 4. mental disorder, perplexity. 5. a colouring up, suffusing: oris, blush.

confūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from confundo. As adj. 1. confused, indiscriminate, irregular, disordered, disarranged: facies confusior, i.e. distorted, marred beyond recognition; verba, indistinct. 2. perplexed, disturbed, troubled in spirit, discomposed, muddled. Compar. confusior; superl. confusissimus.

con-fŭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [stem fu- (fud-), Gk. χυ-; cf. fundo, futilis], lit. keep (boiling liquid) within a vessel, keep from boiling over, hence (fig.) 1. keep within bounds, damp, repress, keep down. 2. confute, refute, silence.

confŭtūrum. See consum.

con-gĕlo, āre, āvi, ātum, A. (trans.) 1. freeze up, congeal. 2. harden, thicken, curdle. B. (intrans.) 1. freeze, stiffen. 2. become hard as ice: lingua. 3. (fig.) grow numb, inactive.

con-gĕmino, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. double, redouble: ictus; securim, ply the axe once and again.

con-gĕmo, ĕre, ŭi; A. (intrans.) sigh or groan deeply or loudly, heave a sigh. B. (trans.) lament, bewail, Lucr., Val. Fl.

1 conger (congĕr), gri, m. [γόγγρος], a sea-eel, conger.

congĕries, ēi, f. [congero], a heap, mass, pile.

con-gĕro, gĕrĕre, gessi, gestum, trans. v. I. bear, bring, or carry together; pile up, heap, collect, amass, accumulate. II. (meton.) 1. fling in masses, shower: tela; plagas. 2. build, construct: aram sepulcri; oppida. 3. Sts. without object expressed: notavi Ipse locum aëriae quo congessere palumbes (sc. nidum). III. (fig.) 1. compile. 2. repeat, reiterate. 3. put upon (with good or evil intent), impart, impute, ascribe to: ad aliquem omnia ornamenta; honestuo laudes; crimina in aliquem.

congesticĭus (-titĭus), a, um, adj. [congero], piled up: agger.

(1) congestus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from congero. As adj., pressed together, thick.

(2) congestus, ūs, m. [congero], 1. an accumulation. 2. (meton.) a pile, heap.

congiārius, a, um, adj. [congius], of or containing a congius. As subst. congiārium, ii, n. (sc. donum), 1. a largess of congii of oil, wine, etc., distributed amongst the people. 2. a largess in money; sts. a largess to the troops, for which the proper word is donativum. 3. a gift, present.

congius, ii, m. a Roman liquid measure, containing six sextarii (about a gallon).

con-glăcio, āre, ātum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. turn entirely to ice, be completely frozen. 2. (fig.) get completely benumbed, be inactive. B. (trans.) freeze up, Plin.

conglŏbātĭo, ōnis, f. [conglobo], a heaping, gathering, or massing together.

conglŏbātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conglobo. As adj. globular, Cic.

con-glŏbo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. gather into a ball or round mass: sed complexa meant interse conque globata (=conglobata que, by Tmesis). II. (meton.) press into a mass, crowd together, close up. III. (fig.) accumulate.

conglūtĭnātĭo, ōnis, f. [conglutino], 1. a gluing or cementing together. 2. (fig.) a nice combination.

conglūtĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. glue together, solder, cement. 2. (fig.) join firmly together, unite: totus ex vitiis conglutinatus est, he is one vast compound of vices.

con-grātŭlor, āri, ātus sum, traj. dep. give one joy, congratulate: multitudini congratulantur libertatem restitutam.

con-grĕdior, grĕdi, gressus sum, [gradior], intrans. dep. 1. meet: cum aliquo. 2. encounter in fight, come into conflict, engage, contend: contra ipsum Caesarem est con-gressus armatus; (with dat.) impar congressus Achilli.

congrēgābilis, e, adj. [congrego], apt to congregate, gregarious.

congrēgātio, ōnis, f. [id.], union, society.

con-grēgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. collect in a flock or herd. 2. (meton. and fig.) gather together, assemble, unite, associate. Pass. with reflexive force, congrēgor, assemble in flocks; flock, herd, swarm; unite, associate.

congressio, ōnis, f. [congredior], a meeting, interview, intercourse.

(1) congressus, a, um, perf. part. from congredior.

(2) congressus, ūs, m. [congredior], 1. a meeting, interview. 2. a hostile meeting, encounter, conflict, combat.

congrŭens, ntis, part. from congruo. As adj. 1. agreeing, fit, appropriate, consistent. 2. symmetrical, properly proportioned, harmonious, accordant, uniform.

congrŭenter, adv. [congruens], agreeably, fitly, suitably.

congrŭentĭa, æ, f. agreement, accordance, compatibility.

congrŭo, ĕre, ŭi, [deriv. dub.], intrans. v. 1. come together, meet. 2. (fig.) agree together, suit each other, fit, coincide.

con-icĭo (conjĭcio), icĕre, īci, iectum, (iacio), trans. v. I. throw together; hurl, fling, cast, aim, thrust, throw: Conicio me, I throw myself hastily, betake myself, rush, plunge: in paludem; conicit se in pedes, he took to his heels. II. (fig.) 1. put together logically, conjecture, infer. 2. (in augury) prophesy, interpret. 3. drive, force, direct, turn: aliquem in nuptias; licentiam urbanam oculos in aliquem; se mente ac voluntate in versum, devote one's self. 4. fling upon, lay to the door or account of a person, level at: maledicta in alicuius vitam; petitiones. 5. let fall, utter: vocem; querelas. 6. include into, include in: plura in eandem epistolam.

coniectio (conj-), ōnis, f. [conicio], 1. a casting, hurling: telorum. 2. a putting together, comparing. 3. an interpretation.

conicto (conj-), āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. conicio], trans. v. 1. throw together. 2. infer, conjecture, surmise. 3. prophesy, forebode, interpret.

coniector (conj-), ōris, m. [id.], an interpreter, esp. of dreams.

coniectūra (conj-), æ, f. [id.], 1. an inference, conclusion, guess, surmise. 2. an interpreting, prophesying (with obj. gen.).

(1) coniectus (conj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from conicio.

(2) coniectus (conj-), ūs, m. [conicio], I. 1. a throwing together. 2. (meton.) things thrown together; a pile, heap. II. 1. a throwing, casting, hurling. 2. (fig.) an aiming, directing, turning, levelling: oculorum; minarum.

cōni-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [conus; fero], cone-bearing.

cōnī-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [conus; gero], =conifer.

cōnīsus (conn-), a, um, perf. part. from conitor.

cō-nītor (conn-), ī, nīsus or nixus sum, intrans. dep. 1. put forth all one's strength, strive hard or eagerly, use every effort. 2. bring forth with difficulty, yean: silice in nudā conixa. 3. struggle to reach, scramble: summuun in iugum.

coniŭgālis (conj-), e, adj. [coniunx], of marriage, conjugal: amor; di, who preside over marriage.

coniŭgātor (conj-), ōris, m. [coniugo], an uniter.

coniŭgĭālis (conj-), e, adj. [coniugium], of marriage, conjugal, connubial.

coniŭgium (conj-), ĭi, n. [coniugo], 1. a union. 2. (fig.) a marriage union, wedlock. 3. (meton.) a consort (husband or wife): coniugia Pyrrhi antistuque potitum.

con-iŭgo (conj-), āre, ātum, trans. v. join together, unite.

coniunctē (conj-), adv. [coniungo], 1. conjointly, in connection, simultaneously. 2. intimately: vivere. Compar. coniunctius; superl. coniunctissime.

coniunctim (conj-), adv. [id.], jointly, unitedly, in combination.

coniunctĭo (conj-), ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a joining together, union, connection. 2. (meton.) (a) conjugal union, wedlock: (b) family connection, relationship; (c) connection by friendship, intimacy. 3. (fig.) agreement, sympathy.

coniunctus (coni-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from coniungo. As adj. 1. joined to, near: loca Caesaris castris. 2. agreeing with, in harmony with, conformable to (with prep. cum, dat. and sts. abl.). 3. closely connected, allied, united, friendly, intimate.

con-iungo (conj-), ĕre, nxi, nctum, trans. v. I. join together, unite, couple: calamos cerā. With dat., prep. in and abl., with prep. cum; rarely with abl. only: dextrae dextram; se in negotio; me tecum; ratis coniuncta crepidine saxi, fastened to a pier of rock; so libido scelere coniuncta. II. (fig.) 1. join, unite: civitatem, i.e. form a confederation; so foedus (in love, marriage): aliquam sibi matrimonio. 3. attach by the ties of relationship, friendship, treaty, etc.: multos sibi familiari amicitiā; Ausonios Teucris foedere.

coniunx (coniux, conjux), ŭgis, m. f. (coniungo), 1. a consort, spouse; a husband; a wife. 2. (poet.) a betrothed, a bride.

conīūrātio (conj-), ōnis, f. (coniuro), 1. a conspiracy, plot. 2. (meton.) a band of conspirators.

conīūrātus (conj-), a, um, perf. part. from coniuro, having bound one's-self by oath, having conspired: Graecia Coniurata tuas rumpere nuptias; coniuratos caelum rescindere fratres. As adj. leagued together, confederate, combined: rates; litus; arma. As subst. coniūrātus, ī, m. (sc. homo), a conspirator.

con-iūro (conj-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. I. 1. take an oath together, league together, form a confederacy, combine. 2. take the military oath in a body (not individually): ut omnes iuniores Italiae coniurarent, that all the able-bodied population throughout Italy should muster on emergency. 3. form a conspiracy, plot, conspire: coniuratos caelum rescindere fratres. II. (fig.) combine: alterius sic Altera poscit opem res et coniurat amice, combines in friendly union.

coniux (conj-), ŭgis. See coniunx.

cō-nīvĕo (conn-), ēre, nīvi (nixi), intrans. v. 1. shut the eyes, blink, wink; (poet.) be eclipsed, Lucr. II. (fig.) 1. become drowsy or languid. 2. be unobservant, connive at, wink at: quibusdam in rebus conivео.

cōnīxus (conn-), a, um, perf. part. from conitor.

conj-. See under coni-.

conjĭcio. See conicio. conjux, jŭgis. See coniunx.

coni-. See under coll-. conm-. See under comm-.

connecto. See conecto.

connexio, connexus. See conex-.

connītor. See coni-.

connīvĕo. See coni-.

connūbĭālis, connūbium. See conub-.

Cōnōn, ōnis, m. 1. an Athenian general who defeated the Spartans under Pisander, B.C. 394. (B.C. 413-390.) 2. a mathematician and astronomer of Samos in the 3d century B.C.

‡ cōnōpēum (-ium), ī, n. [κωνωπειον, a mosquito net], a gauze canopy, awning, palanquin.

cōnor, āri, ātus sum, intrans. and trans. dep., endeavour, attempt, try, venture: audax adgressus, idem conari, to make the same attempt; aliquid facere. conp-. See under comp-.

conquassātio, ōnis, f. [conquasso], a severe shaking, shattering.

con-quasso, āre, ātum, trans. v. shake severely, convulse, shatter.

con-quĕror, ī, questus sum, trans. dep. complain bitterly of, deplore; remonstrate.

conquestio, ōnis, f. [conqueror], a loud or bitter complaint, remonstrance.

(1) conquestus, a, um, perf. part. from conqueror.

(2) conquestus, ūs, m. (only in abl. sing.), [conqueror], a loud complaint.

con-quiesco, ĕre, ēvi, ētum, intrans. v. 1. take rest, repose; pause, stop. 2. be or remain at rest, be inactive. 3. (fig.) find rest, peace, recreation; enjoy a respite.

conquiēsse, conquiēsti, for conquievisse, conquievisti, from conquiesco.

con-quīro, rĕre, quīsīvi, quīsītum, [quaero], trans. v. seek for carefully, search for, hunt up.

conquīsītĭo, ōnis, f. [conquiro], 1. a seeking for, hunting up, procuring: pecuniae. 2. (milit. techn. t.) a levying, levy, conscription.

conquīsītor, ōris, m. [id.], a press-master, recruiting officer.

conquīsītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conquiro. As adj. choice, 'recherché.' Superl. conquisitissimus.

conr-. See under corr-.

con-saepĭo (-sēpĭo), īre, ptum, trans. v. I. fence in, enclose: conseptus ager, a park. II. (fig.) hedge in, protect.

consaeptus (-septus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from consaepio. As subst. consaeptum, i, n. 1. an enclosure. 2. a fence, hedge.

consălūtātĭo, ōnis, f. [consaluto], a mutual salutation, friendly greeting (of a number of persons).

con-sălūto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. salute unanimously, greet cordially. Often with two accs., eum imperatorem.

con-sānesco, ĕre, sānŭi, incept. v. become sound, get well, be healed.

con-sanguĭnĕus, a, um, adj. 1. of the same blood ; related by blood. As subst. consanguĭnĕus, i, m. a blood-relation, kinsman, pl. kinsfolk. 2. of a brother or a sister : a brother's, sister's. As subst. (a) consanguĭnĕus, i, m. a brother ; (b) consanguĭnea, ae, f. a sister.

consanguĭnītas, ātis, f. [consanguineus], blood-relationship, kindred.

consātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (i) consero.

con-saucio, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. wound severely.

conscĕlĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conscelero. As adj. utterly wicked, depraved. Superl. consceleratissimus. As subst. conscelĕrātus, i, m. a depraved wretch, out-and-out villain.

con-scĕlĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. pollute with guilt, deprave, dishonour.

con-scendo, ĕre, di, sum, [scando], trans. v. 1. climb, mount : scopulum ; equos. 2. (nautical techn. t.) go on board, take ship, embark ; ste. put to sea : in navem ; navem ; (poet.) with acc. of extension over ; navibus aequor, i.e. embark upon.

conscensĭo, ōnis, f. [conscendo], an embarking.

conscensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conscendo.

conscientĭa, ae, f. [conscio], I. a joint knowledge along with others ; a being privy to, consciousness, cognizance, complicity. II. 1. a knowledge in or with one's-self ; a consciousness, feeling, sense, persuasion. 2. a moral sense or consciousness of right and wrong ; conscience. 3. (a) a good conscience, the feeling that one has acted rightly ; (b) a bad or guilty conscience, remorse. In pl. stings of conscience.

con-scindo, ĕre, scĭdi, scissum, trans. v. 1. cut or tear in pieces. 2. (fig.) cut up, abuse, trounce.

con-scĭo, īre, trans. v. am conscious of (guilt, wrong) : nil conscire sibi.

con-scisco, sciscĕre, scīvi (scĭi), scītum, trans. v. I. resolve in common, resolve upon, approve, decree, appoint : Senatus censuit, conscivit ut bellum fieret ; bellum. II. (meton.) aliquid sibi, or absol. decree or settle something with one's-self ; bring or inflict on one's-self ; (a) (with sibi), mortem, to commit suicide ; (b) exsilium, expatriate one's-self ; (c) absol. without sibi : mortem.

conscissus, perf. pass. part. from conscindo.

consĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conscisco.

con-scius, a, um, adj. [scio], 1. partaking with another in the knowledge of anything ; privy to, aware of : fac me consciam ; conjurationis ; facinori. As subst. conscius, ĭi, m. and conscĭa, ae, f. an accomplice, accessory, confidant, witness. 2. (with sibi) knowing with one's-self, conscious, self-conscious : sibi nullius culpae. Sts. in a bad sense ; conscious of wrong, guilty.

con-scrĭbo, ĕre, scripsi, scriptum, trans. v. I. write together in a list ; (a) enrol, enlist, levy : cohortes ; (b) register, enrol (in a particular class of citizens, as colonists, etc.) : centuriae tres equitum conscriptae sunt ; (c) make lists of voters, with a view to bribery : cum vicatim homines conscriberentur. II. (meton.) draw up in writing, compose, write : legem (techn. t.), make a lex for a subject state ; librum ; imaginem, sketch. 2. (poet.) cover with writing, write all over : membrana vino.

conscriptĭo, ōnis, f. [conscribo], a drawing up in writing : false conscriptiones quaestionum, forged records, depositions.

conscriptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conscribo, enrolled ; esp. techn. t. of senators ; strictly speaking, the term was applied to the plebeians who were enrolled together with the old senators (patres), after the expulsion of the Tarquins, the assembly thus consisting of patres conscripti. Some recent authorities maintain that the title 'Patres Conscripti,' usually employed in addressing the senate, simply = the fathers (patricians) who are on the roll. In sing. conscriptus, i, m. a senator, Hor. A. P. 314.

con-sĕco, āre, sĕcŭi, sectum, trans. v. cut up, cut to pieces.

consecrātĭo, ōnis, f. [consecro], 1. a religious dedication, consecration. 2. a deification (of a Roman emperor). 3. a penal course attaching to the violation of a law.

con-secro, āre, āvi, ātum, [sacro], trans. and traj. trans. v. I. set apart from profane use, dedicate, consecrate, devote to a deity. 2. deify ; enshrine : Liberum ; divitibus insulis. 3. (fig.) immortalise. II. attach a penal curse to a person, execrate, anathematise.

consectārĭus, a, um, adj. [consecto], efficient, effective.

consectātĭo, ōnis, f. [consector], an eager pursuit of a thing.

consectātrix, īcis, f. [consectator], one who eagerly pursues, an adherent, devotee.

consectĭo, ōnis, f. [conseco], a cutting to pieces.

con-sector, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. I. follow eagerly, pursue, hunt, chase, track out. II. (fig.) 1. strive after, emulate, imitate, court. 2. hunt down, pursue, persecute : victos impiacabili odio.

consectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conseco.

consĕcūtĭo (consequ-), ōnis, f. [consequor], a consequence, sequel, connection.

consĕcūtus (consequ-), a, um, perf. part. from consequor.

consĕdi, perf. indic. act. from consido.

con-sĕnesco, ĕre, sĕnŭi, incept. v. 1. grow old together, grow old. 2. (meton.) become weak or infirm, lose vigour, pine, fall into decay or disuse, become obsolete.

consensĭo, ōnis, f. [consentio], I. harmony of feeling, unanimity, agreement. II. 1. a combination, plot. 2. (meton.) a body of associates, conspirators.

(1) consensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from consentio.

(2) consensus, ūs, m. [consentio], united opinion, unanimity, concord, harmony, agreement, consent, coalition. Consensu, or ex communi consensu, by general consent, unanimously. Aliquid in consensum vertit apud Chattos, has become a general custom.

consentānĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], agreeing with, suitable to, becoming fit, convenient : consentaneum est, it is fitting, proper, consistent. As subst. consentānĕa, ōrum, n. pl. corresponding circumstances.

consentiens, ntis, part. from consentio. As adj. in accord, unanimous, sympathetic.

con-sentio, īre, sensi, sensum, intrans. and trans. v. ; A. (intrans.) 1. be of one mind or of the same opinion, agree, be unan'mous, combine. 2. with dat.) agree with or to. 3. conspire, plot, combine : urbem inflammare. 4. harmonise, agree, fit, suit : utrumque nostrum incredibili modo Consentit astrum. B. (trans. and absol.) determine in common, decree, resolve on (consentiri senatui bellum ; bellum erat consensum.

con-sĕpĭo, conseptum. See consaep-.

consĕquens, ntis, part. from consequor. As adj. 1. according to reason, consistent, corresponding, fit. 2. that follows logically, consequent.

consĕquentĭa, ae, f. a consequence.

con-sĕquor, ĭ, sĕcūtus (sequūtus) sum, trans. dep. I. 1. follow at, follow close, pursue : face iactata per eundem saepius orbem Consequitur motis velociter ignibus ignes, i.e. by whirling the torch round and round makes it appear a continuous flame, Ov. 2. come after, succeed, follow, ensue. II. come up with, overtake, reach. III. (fig.) 1. attain, arrive at, reach, obtain, win. 2. take after, copy, imitate, adopt. 3. come up to, do justice to, equal: verbis laudes eius. 4. be up to, 'a cu rant' with, be master of, understand: omnes illorum conatus.

(1) con-sĕro, sĕrĕre, sēvī, sĭtum (sătum), [(1) sero], trans. v. 1. sow, plant. 2. (fig.) strew, cover, spread thick, fill: mentem caligine.

(2) con-sĕro, sĕrĕre, sĕrŭi, sertum, [(2) sero], trans. v. I. 1. tie together, entwine, join, tag, fasten, fit. 2. conserere manum (manus), dextram, pugnam, proelia, etc., to join battle, engage in close fight. So in pass. used reflexively : navis conseritur, is laid alongside. 3. conserere manum (legal term, t.), to join hands in making a claim to a disputed property. The challenge was originally made on the spot by an actual struggle (manum conserere) on the part of the litigants, in the praetor's presence (in iure); afterwards, the parties adjourned from the praetor's presence (ex iure, out of court) to the property in question, joined hands there, and brought back a clod of earth to which they laid formal claim, as representing the estate. II. (fig.) 1. join, unite. 2. employ with hostile intent, bring into conflict, practise: haud ignotas belli artes.

consertē, adv. [consertus], closely.

consertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) consero. 1. joined, interwoven, fastened. 2. thick-set, close, serried: consertae acies : bella bellis, following one upon another; conserta acies, hand to hand or close fighting.

conserva, ae, f. [conservus], a fellow-slave. Sts. in app.=adj.: fores.

conservātio, ōnis, f. [conservo], a keeping, preserving.

conservātor, ōris, m. [id.], a keeper, preserver, saviour, defender.

con-servo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. keep, maintain, preserve. 2. save, spare.

con-servus, i, m. a fellow-slave.

consessor, ōris, m. [consido], a by-sitter, assessor; one who sits next, or near; a neighbour.

consessus, ūs, m. [id.], (lit. a sitting together), (meton.) a number of persons sitting together, an assembly; a caucus; a bench (of jurors), a panel, session: gladiatorum (gladiatorius), theatralis, the spectators assembled at a gladiatorial or theatrical show.

considerātē, adv. [consideratus], cautiously, circumspectly, after due deliberation. Compar. consideratius; superl. consideratissime.

considerātio, onis, f. consideration, reflection.

considerātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from considero. As adj. 1. well considered, maturely reflected upon, deliberate. 2. cautious, circumspect, judicious.

con-sīdĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [deriv. dub.], I. look at closely or attentively, scan eagerly, regard, observe, inspect, examine. II. (fig.) consider, weigh, ponder.

con-sīdo, ĕre, sēdi, sessum, intrans. v. I. 1. sit down together, be seated, settle. 2. hold sessions, sit, have a seat (as judges, in the theatre, etc. etc.): ad ius dicendum : in theatro. 3. (milit. techn. t.) halt, encamp, take up a position. 4. settle down, take up one's quarters or abode. establish one's-self. 5. sink down, subside, give way, collapse, settle: visum considere in ignes Latium. II. (fig.) 1. sink, be plunged, be swamped, be lost to view: utriusque nomen in quaestură. 2. calm down, abate, be quieted: furor.

con-signo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. furnish with a seal, seal, sign. 2. place on record, note down: litteris aliquid. II. (fig.) attest, vouch for, certify.

consiliārius, a, um, adj. [consilium], pertaining to counsel, counselling. As sub. consiliārius, ii, m. 1. a counsellor, adviser. 2. a legal adviser, assessor (in a court of justice).

consĭlior, āri, ātus sum, [id.], intrans. dep. 1. take counsel, consult, deliberate. 2. (with dat. commodi) give counsel, advise: amice.

consilium, ii, n. (root SAD-, SED-, sit, as if consilium; with interchange of d and l; unusual, by some referred to root SAD-, SAL-, go), (lit. a lodging together, meeting), I. deliberation, consultation, consideration: publicum consilium, action of the state; official action; habere, coniurationem nullo publico consilio, without any public authority; ipsorum esse consilium, it was for their consideration, for them to decide: quasi res consilii esset, as if it were a matter for deliberation. II. (meton.) 1. council, advice. 2. a purpose, design, scheme, plan, measure, resolution, intention: habere or inire, to form a plan; capere, form the design, resolve; take measures; quid sui consilii sit ostendit, what his own plans are. Consilio, modal abl.=adv. intentionally, on purpose. 3. policy, conduct, proceeding: qui se de superioris temporis consilio excusarent, for their conduct in time past. 4. tactics, generalship, stratagem. 5. judgment, wisdom, prudence, tact, statesmanship: vir et consilii magni et virtutis; meo consilio uti, to act on my own responsibility; consilio, modal abl. =adv. rationally : res gerere. B. I. abstr. for concr. an advising body, an assembly for deliberation, consultation, etc., a council, committee: summum, the supreme deliberative body, i.e. the senate; a bench of judges, jury, esp. the body of assessors who assisted the quaestor; in consilium vocare, to appoint to be a iudex, empanel; in consilium mittere, to call upon the jurors to give their verdict; de consilii sententiă, with the concurrence of his advisers, upon the advice of the bench. The jurors were said ire in consilium. 2. a council of war. 3. a counsellor, adviser: illa Numae coniunx consiliumque fuit, Ov.

con-simĭlis, e, adj. quite like, similar in all respects, equal. With gen. and dat.

con-sīpio, sīpĕre, [sapio], intrans. v. keep one's presence of mind, be quite in one's senses.

con-sisto, ĕre, stĭti, stĭtum, intrans. v. I. 1. take one's stand, stand still, stop, remain: frigore constitit Ister, has been frozen. 2. cum aliquo, stand and talk with a person, confer. 3. take one's place, post one's-self: constitit in digitos arrectus uterque. 4. have a place of business, or a stand for begging: ede ubi consistas, where you hang out. 5. (milit. techn. t.) take up a position, be posted, make a stand: in orbem, form into a hollow square, so as to face the enemy all round. 6. (of ships) run aground. Caes. II. (fig.) 1. stand, remain, rest, pause, stay, stop. 2. find a foothold, keep one's footing, maintain one's ground, take a firm stand, stand steady, be settled, persevere: mente, be at ease in one's mind, be master of one's senses. 3. subsist, continue, exist, abide: fines Quos ultra citraque nequit consistere rectum. 4. settle (in a place): Latio consistere Teucros. 5. consist in or of, depend upon: maior pars victus in lacte consistit; in hoc victoriam puto consistere. 6. be, exist, take place: non in te quoque constitit idem Exitus. 7. come to a stand, be at a standstill, cease: cum ad Trebiam terrestre constitisset bellum. 8. agrees: verbis cum Aristona, Cic.

consĭtio, ōnis, f. [(1) consero], a sowing, planting.

consĭtor, ōris, m. [id.], a sower, planter.

consĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) consero. 1. planted, sown. 2. thickly set, dotted, overgrown: freta consita terris; ager arbutis. 3. (fig.) (in a bad sense) covered over, smothered: caligine mentem.

con-sōbrīna, ae, f. a first cousin.

con-sōbrīnus, i, m. [soror], 1. a sister's child. 2. a brother's or sister's child, first cousin.

con-sŏcer, ĕri, m. a joint father-in-law, father of one's son-in-law.

consŏciātio, ōnis, f. [consocio], an association, union.

consŏciātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from consocio. As adj. united; superl. consociatissimus.

con-sŏcio, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. share equally; associate, ally, unite, join, connect.

consōlābilis, e, adj. [consolor], that may be consoled.

consōlātio, ōnis, f. [id.], I. a consoling, consolation, comfort. II. (meton.) 1. a consolatory discourse. 2. encouragement, encouraging assurances.

consōlātor, ōris, m. a consoler, comforter.

consōlātōrĭus, a, um, adj. of consolation, consolatory.

con-sōlor, ārī, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. console, comfort, encourage, cheer. 2. solace, alleviate, soothe.

con-sŏno, āre, ŭī, intrans. v. 1. sound together, resound, re-echo. 2. (fig.) sound in unison with, accord, harmonise, agree.

con-sŏnus, a, um, adj. 1. sounding together, in harmony, in unison. 2. (fig.) in keeping with; suitable, proper.

con-sōpĭo, īre, ītum, trans. v. put to sleep, lull, render comatose, stupefy.

con-sors, sortis, adj. 1. having an equal share, partaking of in common, sharing. As subst. consors, sortis, m. f. (a) a companion, partner, colleague, comrade; (b) a husband; (c) a wife; (d) a brother or sister: Ledaea gemelli, i.e. Helen; (e) a kinsman. 2. (poet.) of a brother or sister, kindred: sanguis; pectora. 3. (poet.) held in common, jointly owned, united, common: tecta; casus.

consortĭo, ōnis, f. [consors], partnership, association.

consortĭum, ĭi, n. [id.], 1. partnership. 2. fellowship, participation, society.

conspargo, consparsus. See conspergo.

conspectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conspicio. As adj. 1. plainly seen, visible. 2. striking the eye, remarkable, conspicuous, admirable. Compar. conspectior.

(2) conspectus, ūs, m. [conspicio], I. 1. (active) a looking at, beholding, look, sight, view. 2. notice, attention, observation: exii ne qui conspectus fieret aut sermo. II. (passive; meton.) object of sight, presence: vester, your assembly before my eyes, the sight of you assembled. III. (fig.) mental view, survey: animi.

con-spergo (-spargo), ĕre, si, sum, [spargo], trans. v. sprinkle, scatter, strew.

conspersus (-sparsus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from conspergo.

conspĭcātus, a, um, perf. part. from conspicor.

conspiciendus, a, um, gerundive from conspicio, remarkable, conspicuous, distinguished.

con-spicio, spĭcĕre, spexī, spectum, [specio], trans. v. 1. observe, behold, view, espy, descry, see, perceive. 2. look at with attention, notice, gaze at, contemplate. Pass. conspicī, to attract notice, be conspicuous, distinguished, remarkable: prima bonis animi conspicerere tui. 2. (ng.) perceive mentally: mentibus.

conspĭcor, ārī, ātus sum, [root SPEC-; cf. specio], trans. dep. catch sight of, descry, observe, perceive.

conspĭcŭus, a, um, adj. [conspicio], 1. easy to see, visible. 2. (fig.) that attracts notice, conspicuous, striking, remarkable, distinguished.

conspīrātio, ōnis, f. [conspiro], 1. agreement in feeling, unanimity, common consent. 2. (in a bad sense) a conspiracy, plot.

conspīrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. with middle force, from conspiro, 1. having leagued together, or entered into a conspiracy. As subst. conspīrāti, ōrum, m. pl. conspirators. 2. acting in concert.

con-spīro, āre, āvī, ātum, intrans. v. I. blow or breathe together. II. (fig.) 1. agree together, harmonise, accord, unite, combine. 2. (in a bad sense) plot, conspire, league together.

con-sponsor, ōris, m. a joint surety.

con-spŭo, ĕre, ŭtum, trans. v. spit upon; slobber or sputter over.

con-spurco, āre, ātum, trans. v. defile, pollute.

con-spūto, āre, ātum, [freq. conspuo], trans. v. spit upon (in contempt).

conspūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conspuo.

constans, ntis, pres. part. from consto. As adj. I. 1. standing firm, unchanging, invariable, constant, steady, firm, steadfast: fides; aetas, in full vigour, i.e. middle age; rumor, generally current. II. (fig.) 1. consistent. 2. (of persons and things) of strong character, steady, resolute, stable, morally courageous: homo; adversus metus; an ire cominus constantius foret, whether it would be the more vigorous policy. III. costing: odia constantia mamo, that will cost you dear. Compar. constantior; superl. constantissimus.

constanter, adv. [constans], 1. firmly, steadily, unalterably, constantly. 2. evenly, uniformly, consistently; with one voice. 3. steadily, resolutely, persistently, obstinately, with calm courage. Compar. constantius; superl. constantissime.

constantĭa, ae, f. [id.], I. firmness, steadiness, constancy, perseverance: vocis et vultūs; amicitiae longae. II. (fig.) 1. consistency, harmony, symmetry. 2. firmness of character, a firm or resolute bearing, steadfastness, resolution, moral courage, calm self-possession, steady bravery.

constat, impers. v. See consto.

consternātio, ōnis, f. [(2) consterno], 1. alarm, dismay, panic. 2. outbreak, disorder, mutiny.

consternātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) consterno.

(1) con-sterno, ĕre, strāvī, strātum, trans. v. 1. strew over, cover; bridge over, pave, floor, thatch, etc.; spread. 2. throw down, overthrow.

(2) consterno, āre, āvī, ātum, [(1) consterno, parallel form], I. (rare) overthrow. II. startle, alarm, dismay, disconcert; throw into excitement, confusion, terror, etc. 2. work up by means of fear, drive by intimidation: ad arma.

con-stĭpo, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. pack or crowd closely together.

con-stĭtŭo, ĕre, ŭī, ūtum, (statuo), trans. v. I. A. 1. place, put, set, station: taurum ante aras. 2. draw up, post (of troops); moor: navem, classem. 3. bring to a stand, halt: agmen. B. 1. put together, stack: impedimenta. 2. construct, erect, set up, build, raise, establish, found, create: urbem; sepulcrum; castra. II. (fig.) 1. establish, set in order, regulate, organise, consolidate. 2. (judicial techn. t.) bring about, institute: iudicium de pecuniis repetundis; accusationem; ab iisdem iudicibus locus ei primus constitutus est, his cause was placed first by the judices on the roll for trial. 3. appoint, delegate, instal: aliquem sibi aliquem toris in loco; regem. 4. appoint, fix, define, settle, determine: diem concilio; conditor urbis in anno Constituit menses quinque bis esse suo. 5. (business techn. t.) appoint, agree upon, concert; make an appointment: diem cum legatis; cum aliquo ut; si constitueris cuipiam te . . . venturum; nocturnae Numa constituebat amicae, used to make assignations with; vadimonia constituta, appointments to appear in court. 6. come to a conclusion, decide, resolve: bellum cum Germanis gerere; sic iusti constituere senes. Also with ut.

constitūtio, ōnis, f. [constituo], 1. a disposition, nature. 2. a regulation, arrangement, organisation.

constitūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from constituo. As adj. 1. arranged, disposed, constituted: respublica, well ordered; bene de rebus domesticis, well off, in good circumstances; bene natura, of a good natural disposition. 2. fixed, settled.

constitūtum, ī, n. [constituo, II. 5], an agreement: ad constitutum, by appointment.

con-sto, āre, stĭti, stātum, fut. part. constātūrus, I. 1. agree, correspond, be consistent with: ne constet mihi scis; sibi et rei iudicatae. 2. (of money accounts) tally, be correct, balance: ratio constat. II. 1. stand firm, remain unmoved, unbroken, unchanged, settled, steadfast, etc.; continue, last, endure, be maintained: hanc tu videt caelo constare sereno, that all is settled; flamina non constant, are unsteady; utrimque fides constitit; uti numerus legionum constare videretur. 2. stay, remain, abide, sojourn: in oppido. 3. (of reports, facts, etc.) be generally recognised, admitted, established, certain, settled, well known: quod nihil nobis constat, because we have no certain evidence. Impers. constat, (a) it is generally agreed; it is well known, certain, evident, it is an established fact: constat Aventinae temuisse cacumina silvae; Caesarem primum bellum gesturum constabat; (b) there is an agreement: inter Aricinos Albanaque tempora constat, i.e. the calendars of Aricia and Alba tally: constabat inter omnes, all were agreed; (c) constat mihi, etc., it is my fixed resolve, I am determined. 4. exist. 5. (with prep. in or ex) consist, be composed of; depend or be based.

upon: e dulci constat olivo; (rarely with abl. only) ceterarum rerum studia et doctrinâ et praeceptis et arte constare. III. (business techn. t.) stand at or in, cost (with abl. or gen. of price): multo sanguine victoria nobis constitit; nemo dabit regum quanti subsellia constant; cladibus Urbi Constatura fides superûm.

constrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (I.) consterno, strewn, covered over, etc.: navis, decked. As subst. constrātum, i, n. 1. a covering. 2. a deck, flooring.

constrictio, ōnis, f. [constringo], a fastening together; a putting books in cases.

constrictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from constringo. As adj. compressed, compact. Compar. constrictior.

con-stringo, ĕre, inxi, ictum, trans. v. I. 1. fasten, bind tight together: pigmora signo, (poet.) seal. 2. fetter, tie hand and foot, put in confinement. 3. pinch up, compress: dimidio constrictus cammarus ovo, garnished with sliced egg. II. (fig.) 1. hold fast, tie down, hamper, restrain, keep in check. 2. bring into a narrow compass.

constructio, ōnis, f. [construo], 1. a joining together, building, framing. 2. arrangement, connection.

constructus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from construo.

con-strŭo, ĕre, strŭxi, structum, trans. v. I. heap together, heap up, pile. II. raise, construct, erect, build, frame: navam; sepulcrum; nidum. III. set in order, arrange regularly: dentibus in ore constructis manditur cibus.

constuprātor, ōris, m. [constupro], a debaucher, ravisher.

con-stupro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. debauch, ravish, demoralise.

Consŭālĭa, ium, n. pl. games in honour of the god Consus, q.v.

con-sŭāsor, ōris, m. a counsellor, one who advises strongly.

con-sŭē-făcio, ĕre, fēci, factum, [consueo, facio], trans. v. accustom, habituate, train; [ue is treated as one syllable in poets, except Lucretius].

consuemus, consueram, consuerim, consuesti, sync. for consuevimus, consueveram, consueverim, consuevisti, etc. See consuesco.

con-sŭĕo, ēre, obsol. v. be wont.

con-sŭesco, ĕre, suēvi, suētum (trisyll. in poet.), A. (trans.) accustom, habituate, inure, train. B. (intrans.) 1. accustom one's self, acquire a habit: adeo in teneris consuescere multum est, so much does habit count for in things of tender growth. Perf. consuevi (used as present), I have accustomed myself, I am wont. So plpf. as imperf. 2. (cum aliquo), be intimate with.

consŭētūdo, dĭnis, f. (quadrisyll. in poet.), [consuesco], 1. habit, practice, custom, routine, use; prevalent mode or form, usage: nil consuetudine maius; maiore strepitu quam populi Romani ferit consuetudo, than is the usual custom of, is usual with the Roman people. Consuetudine, ex or pro consuetudine, according to custom, in the usual manner. 2. close or familiar intercourse, intimacy, companionship.

consŭētus, a, um, (trisyll. in poet.) perf. pass. part. from consuesco. As adj. habitually used or frequented, accustomed, usual, customary, often to be translated as adv., according to one's wont. Superl. consuetissimus.

consŭl, ŭlis, m. (abbr. cos., in pl. coss.), [root SAL-, go, cf. salio, exsul; or more prob. root SAD-, SED-, sit, cf. sedeo, consilium; Nettleship, Contrib. to Lat. Lex. p. 26; P.S.L.G. p. 36; Curtius, 240, 548], (lit. one who abides with, a comrade, colleague), I. a consul, one of the two chief magistrates annually elected by the Roman people: consul iterum, tertium, quartum, factus est, he was made consul for the second, third, or fourth time. Ante me consulem, before my consulship. In abl. with the name of one or both consuls to express a particular year: anno quinto decimo postquam Consule Tullo, i.e. 66 B.C.; M. Messalâ et M. Pisone consulibus (coss.), in the consulship of M. Messala and M. Piso. Hence, poet. (meton.) a year: amphora centeno consule facta minor; bibi tibi consule tricesimus instat, i.e. you are now nearly sixty years old. II. a proconsul, Livy, Nep.

consŭlāris, e, adj. [consul], 1. of or belonging to the consul, or the consuls, consular: aetas, the legal age which qualified for the consulship, viz. forty-three (cf. annus, annalis); comitia, for the election of consuls; vinum, i.e. labelled with the name of the consul in whose year it was made; (sts.= obj. gen.) impedimenta, obstacles thrown in the consul's way. 2. of consular rank: homo. As subst. consŭlāris, is, m. 1. one of consular rank, an ex-consul. 3. (sc. legatus), a legate named by the emperor to govern an imperial province.

consŭlāriter, adv. [consularis], like a consul, as a consul ought.

consŭlātus, ūs, m. [consul], the consulship, consulate, office of consul.

consŭlo, ĕre, ŭlŭi, ultum, (con; root SAL-; cf. consul), trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) 1. go to for advice, ask one's direction, consult: Apellen tragoedum uter illi maior videretur; speculum; (with double acc.) nec te id consulo. Esp. of consulting a deity, oracle, omens, etc.: Iovem; Phoebi oracula; spirantia exta. 2. (legal techn. t.) to take counsel's opinion, consult: qui de iure civili consuli solent. The formula was, Licet consulere? 3. ask the opinion of the senate, people, etc.: senatum de foedere; populum; plebem. 4. deliberate upon, consider: rem nulli obscuram; re consultâ: Galli quid agant consulunt. II. (meton.) boni (optimi) consulere, to take in good part, put a good construction on, view favourably, make the best of, view contentedly: carmen nostrum consule, Roma, boni (gen. of price). B. (intrans.) I. 1. take counsel, deliberate, consult: consulite in medium; praesidium consulenti curiae. 2. (with ut.) take counsel for, study the interests of, provide for, promote the welfare of: reipublicae; liberis suis. II. (meton. Roby, § 1191); and cf. aequus II. (fig.) 4. 1. take measures, come to a resolution, adopt a policy: qui reges atque populi male consulerint; crudeliter in victos; de nullis infestius consuluerunt. 2. give advice: tun' consulis quicquam? what? you give any advice (worth having)? i.e. much good your advice is! Ter.

consultātio, ōnis, f. [(2) consulo], 1. a deliberation, consultation. 2. an asking of advice, inquiry.

consultē, adv. [consultus], deliberately, with prudence. Compar. consultius.

(1) consulto, adv. [id.], deliberately, designedly, on purpose.

(2) consulto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. consulo]; A. (intrans.) 1. deliberate, consult, reflect. 2. (with dat.) have a care for, regard the interests of. B. (trans.) ask counsel of, consult: me qui spernentur amantes Consultent.

consultor, ōris, m. [consulo], 1. a counsellor, adviser. 2. one who asks another's advice; a client (a lawyer being consultus): sub galli cantum consultor ubi ostia pulsat.

consultum, i, n. [id.], 1. a consultation, inquiry (of a deity). 2. the result of consultation: a decision, decree, resolution, measure: senatûs, or as one word senatusconsultum; qui consulta patrum servat. 3. (poet. meton.) advice, oracular reply: dum consulta petis.

consultus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from consulo. As adj. 1. well considered, prudent, studied. 2. consulted for advice, esp. on legal points; hence, skilled, learned, practised (esp. in law), with gen. of the kind of learning: iuris (sts. iure) consultus, experienced in jurisprudence; (cf. iuris consultus. The less freq. form iure consultus seems to be used always as subst., a lawyer); insanientis sapientiae. As subst. consultus, i, m. a legal expert, jurist, a lawyer: tu consultus modo rusticus: cf. iuris consultus. His advice (responsa) was given gratuitously. Superl. consultissimus.

con-sum, fŭi, fŭtūrum, fŏre, be, come about.

consummātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from consummo. As adj. paragon, perfect. Superl. consummatissimus.

con-summo, āre, āvi, ātum, [summa], trans. v. 1. 1. sum up. 2. make up, complete: quae consummatur partibus una dies, one whole day, which is made up of four quarter days, i.e. an intercalary day every fourth year. II. (meton.) finish, accomplish: proelia, ream. III. (fig.) bring to perfection.

con-sūmo, ĕre, sumpsi, sumptum, trans. v. I. 1. take in at once, take all in: tela omnia pectore; hastam manu, fully grasp. 2. eat up, devour, consume. II. (fig.) 1. squander, waste, wear out, destroy: fortunas sociorum. 2. annihilate, kill. 3. exhaust by using, use up, run through: cum mare cum terras consumpserit, aëra tentet; omnem materiam ficti. 4. (with prep. in and acc.) take up thoroughly, use wholly and solely, spend: tota ubera in natos; pharetrae pondus (the contents of his quiver) in arcus. 5. (with prep. in and abl.) bestow, employ, spend, use: curam in re unā; omne meum studium in Plancii honore. 6. (of time) spend, pass; waste: diem (techn. t.), talk out, a form of instruction in the Roman senate; cf. diem dicendo eximere. 7. (poet. of space) take up, cover completely: terga monstri consumunt pelagus.

consumpse, consumpsti, for consumpsisse, consumpsisti, from consumo.

consumptor, ōris, m. [consumo], a consumer, destroyer.

consumptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from consumo.

con-sŭo, ĕre, sŭtum, trans. v. sew or stitch together; patch up, darn.

con-surge, ĕre, surrexi, surrectum, intrans. v. I. 1. rise up together, arise, get up: consurgitur (impers.) ex consilio, they rise from the council; consurrectum est, they rose in a body. 2. rise (in height), grow up: geminae quercus. II. (meton.) rise up with hostile intent, rise, revolt: in arma; consurgunt partes.

consurrectĭo, ōnis, f. [consurgo], a general rising, a rising as one man: iudicum.

Consus, i, m. an ancient Roman deity, the god of Counsel, identified by Livy with the Equestrian Neptune. His festival (Consualia) was celebrated annually on Aug. 18, the anniversary of the rape of the Sabine maidens. See Dict. Ant.

con-sŭsurro, āre, intrans. v. whisper together.

consūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from consuo.

con-tăbesco, ĕre, ŭi, intrans. v. waste or pine away.

contăbŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [contabulo], a flooring, planking; story, floor, stage.

con-tăbŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [tabula], trans. v. cover or line with planking board over; furnish with floorings, stages, or stories: turres; murum turribus, i.e. line the wall with wooden bastions built in stories (tabulata).

contăbundus. See cunctabundus.

(1) contactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contingo.

(2) contactus, ūs, m. [contingo, through root TAG-; cf. tango], 1. the act of touch, contact. 2. a contagion, infection, taint. 3. (fig.) contagion of example, contamination.

contăges, is, f. [id.], touch, contact.

contăgĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a touching, contact, touch. 2. noxious contact, infectious touch, contagion. 3. (fig.) contamination, pollution, infection.

contăgium, ĭi, n. = contagio. Only poet. and in pl.

contāmĭnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contamino. As adj. polluted, tainted, defiled, filthy, impure. Superl. contaminatissimus.

con-tāmĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [for contagmino; root TAG-; tango], trans. v. 1. bring into contact; jumble together, blend, amalgamate: multas Graecas fabulas. 2. bring into noxious contact; infect, pollute, defile, contaminate, taint, stain. 3. (fig.) vitiate, corrupt, spoil, mar, debase.

contans, contanter, contātio, contātor, contātus. See cunctans, etc.

contectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contego.

con-tĕgo, ĕre, texi, tectum, trans. v. I. cover up. II. (fig.) 1. hide, conceal; dissemble. 2. protect, shield.

con-tĕmĕro, āre, āvi, trans. v. defile, pollute, violate.

contemnendus, a, um, gerundive from contemno. As adj. despicable, contemptible, mean: non contemnendus, considerable.

con-temno, ĕre, tempsi, temptum, trans. v. think slightingly of, express contempt for, despise, disdain; make light of, defy, brave.

contemplātĭo, ōnis, f. [contemplor], 1. a careful observation, survey, contemplation. 2. a regard, consideration.

(1) contemplātor, ōris, m. [id.], an observer.

(2) contemplātor, fut. imperat. from contemplor.

(1) contemplātus, a, um, perf. part. from contemplor.

(2) contemplātus, ūs, m. (only in abl. sing.) [contemplor], contemplation, consideration.

con-templor, āri, ātus sum, [templum], trans. dep. carefully observe, survey, contemplate, mark, consider, notice.

contemptim, adv. [contemno], slightingly, contemptuously.

contemptĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a despising; contempt, disdain, scorn, defiance.

contemptĭus, compar. adv. [contemptus], with greater contempt; cavalierly.

contemptor, ōris, m. [contemno], a despiser, scorner: vitae, that holds life cheap. Sts. in app. = adj.: animus.

contempfrix, tricis, f. [contemptor], a despiser, scorner.

(1) contemptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contemno. As pass. part. and adj. despicable, pitiable, vile, abject. Compar. contemptior; superl. contemptissimus.

(2) contemptus, ūs, m. [contemno], 1. a despising, contempt, scorn, disregard. 2. an object of scorn, contempt, etc.: brevitas nostra Gallis contemptui est (dat. of purpose).

con-tendo, ĕre, di, tum, trans. and intrans. v. I. A. (trans.) 1. stretch or draw tight, tighten, strain. II. (meton.) 1. hurl, discharge, shoot: tela. 2. (with cursum), direct or steer one's course, go, march: ad hunc (in his wake) alii cursum contendere iussi. 3. traverse: tantum itineris. 4. contrast, compare: id cum defensione nostrā contendito. III. (fig.) 1. bend, strain, exert: omnes nervos. 2. strive earnestly after, be eager for, solicit: beneficium. 3. ask earnestly, solicit, beg: aliquid ab aliquo. 4. strive to gain, make every effort to effect, make a push for: id sibi contendendum existimabat. 5. assert strenuously, maintain. B. (intrans.) (fig.) 1. exert one's-self, strive with all one's might, make all haste, be eager, anxious: quae proxima libera cursu contendunt petere; locum oppugnare. 2. push forward, make one's way, march rapidly; strive to reach: in Italiam; ut eruptione factā ad salutem contenderent; oculo contendere, to reach with the eyesight. 3. fight, strive, contend, dispute. Impers. equestri proelio contendebatur. 4. (at auctions) compete with, bid against.

(1) contentē, adv. [(2) contentus], with effort, earnestly.

(2) contentē, adv. [(2) contentus], under restraint, closely.

contentĭo, ōnis, f. [contendo], I. 1. a straining, effort. 2. (with obj. gen.) a struggle, eager competition for: honorum. 3. sustained effort in speaking, oratory: vis orationis est dupiex, altera contentionis, altera sermonis (ordinary conversation). II. 1. a contention, strife, dispute, rivalry, struggle: esse in contentione, to be a subject of dispute, Cic. 2. a relative estimate, comparison, contrast: hominum ipsorum; dignitatis, fortunarum.

(1) contentus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contendo. As adj. 1. stretched tight, strained, tense. 2. (fig.) straining, eager, intent.

(2) contentus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contineo. As adj. contented, satisfied, content.

con-terminus, a, um, adj. having a common border, bordering upon, nigh to. As subst. conterminum, i, n. a confine, border.

con-tĕro, tĕrĕre, trīvi, trītum, trans. v. I. 1. break or bruise completely, pound. 2. wear away by blows or friction; waste, destroy. II. (fig.) 1. consume, spend: vitam; otiosum tempus. 2. use up, waste, exhaust, wear out. 3. stamp out, efface: iniurias oblivione.

con-terrĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. terrify, affright.

conterrĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conterreo.

contestātus, a, um, perf. part. from contestor in passive sense; tried, proved.

con-testor, ārī, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. call to witness, invoke. 2. (legal techn. t.) contestari litem, to commence a suit. Litis contestatio was the last stage of the proceedings before the praetor (in iure), when, the praetor having allowed an action, those present were called upon to attest the nature of the issue to be tried.

con-texo, ĕre, xŭi, xtum, trans. v. I. weave or bind together, twine, braid, plait; fasten together, brace. II. (meton.) build, construct, frame: puppes tenui cannā. III. (fig.) 1. make of a piece, compose: extrema cum primis. 2. put together, compose: crimen (cf. πάντειν δόλους); librum.

contextē, adv. [contextus], in close connection.

(1) contextus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contexo. As adj. connected, cohering.

(2) contextus, ūs, m. [contexo], a joining together; texture, connection.

con-ticesco, ĕre, ticŭi, [incept. conticeo; taceo], intrans. v. become still, cease speaking, be silent, hushed.

contignātio, ōnis, f. [contigno], (lit. a joining together of joists and rafters); a story, floor: murorum, a timber platform laid across the walls.

con-tigno, āre, ātum, [tignum], trans. v. join with beams; furnish with a floor, platform, or story.

contīgŭus, a, um, adj. (contingo), 1. (active) touching, adjoining, neighbouring. 2. (passive) within reach, within range of; (with dat.) hastae.

continens, ntis, part. from contineo. As adj. I. 1. able to command or restrain one's-self; self-disciplined, moderate, temperate. 2. (of place) bordering upon, adjacent, near at hand, neighbouring. 3. (fig.) following, close upon; next. II. holding together; continuous, unbroken, uninterrupted: agmen; bella; silvas ne paludes habere, to have an uninterrupted tract of forest and marsh land; terra, the mainland; ripa, litus, the mainland coast. As subst. continens, ntis, (abl. sing. e or i), f. the continent, mainland.

continenter, adv. [continens], 1. temperately, moderately. 2. continuously, uninterruptedly, without intermission, in unbroken succession.

continentĭa, ae, f. [contineo], self-restraint, command of self; moderation, temperance.

con-tinĕo, ēre, ŭi, tentum, [teneo], trans. v. I. 1. hold together, contain, include. 2. bound, shut in, enclose. 3. hold, keep, retain: Dumnorigem in officio, Caes.; contine te in perennibus studiis, persevere in, Cic. 4. keep in, confine, detain: exercitum castris; quae, i. q. remain, continue. II. (fig.) 1. hold in, restrain, check, stop: vix me continui . . . quin clamarem. Pass. contineri (used reflexively), to restrain one's-self, refrain. 2. comprise, include, contain: fabula . . . stultorum regum, populorum continet aestus. 3. (pass.) (a) with abl. alone; be dependent upon, consist in, be confined to: quibus legibus in singulis civitatibus respublica contineatur; (b) with prep. in and abl.; be comprised or centred in: forum, in quo omnis aequitas continetur, which is the nucleus of all that is fair and just.

(1) con-tingo, ĕre, tĭgi, tactum, (tango), A. (trans.) I. 1. touch: osculo, i. e. kiss. 2. extend to, reach; border upon: fines Arvernorum; ss. with dat.: ripae fluminis. 3. attain to, arrive at, hit, reach. II. (fig.) 1. affect, seize upon: quos publica quoque contingebat cura. 2. (esp. in perf. pass. part.) taint, pollute, defile: scelere; violatione templi, implicated in. 3. be connected with, have access to, have intercourse with; interest, concern: deos quoniam propius contingis; consultatio Romanos nihil contingit. 4. befall, happen to (mostly of favourable events): cui sic meritо qui tibi nuper honos. Impers.: non cuivis homini contingit adire Corinthum, is lucky enough.

(2) contingo (-tinguo), ĕre, trans. v. wet, moisten, sprinkle, season, anoint, dye.

continŭātĭo, ōnis, f. [continuo], an unbroken series, succession, continuance.

continŭātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from continuo, joined on to, adjoining.

(1) continŭo, adv. [continuus], 1. forthwith, immediately, at once, from the first. 2. without interval, directly: summam spem civium continuo adolescens superavit. 3. as a logical consequence, therefore (only in negat. sentences): non continuo sum sicarius, i. e. it does not follow of course that I am.

(2) continŭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], A. (trans.) I. 1. join together in an unbroken series, connect, unite, make continuous: Mygdoniis campis regnum Alyattei; latus lateri, walk or sit side by side: pontem, i. e. throw a bridge over. 2. keep on uninterruptedly or without intermission, do one thing after another, in succession: iter; somnos; dapes, serve course after course; magistratum, i. e. to keep themselves in office (of the tribunes by the exercise of their veto); consulatum alicui, to elect him to the consulship two years in succession. B. (intrans.) 1. last, continue, Plin.

continŭus, a, um, adj. [contineo], 1. holding together; unbroken, uninterrupted, continuous: continui montes ni dissocientur opacā Valle, the hills form a chain (which would be) unbroken save that they are divided by a shady valley; Leucada continuam veteres habuere coloni, i. e. annexed to the continent. As subst. continŭus, i, m. a constant or close attendant, inseparable friend: principis. 2. (of time, etc.) following regularly, one after another, without intermission, successive: dies quinque ex eo die; continuā nocte, on the following night.

contĭo (concĭo), ōnis, f. [for co-ventio; convenio], I. 1. a public meeting formally summoned by the higher magistrates, but not invested with any legal powers: contionem advocare, to formally summon a meeting; habere, to hold a public meeting. 2. (also II. 1. 2. a military assembly. II. (meton.) 1. a speech, harangue (before a public meeting); a stump oration: contionem habere; to deliver a speech; contionem dare (in contionem) producere), to give one leave to address a meeting. 2. a place for speaking, tribune; the rostra; hustings.

contiōnābundus (concio-), a, um, adj. [contionor], as if speaking before a public meeting; in the attitude of a demagogue, or a general haranguing the troops. Sts. with acc.: haec contionabundus circumibat homines.

contiōnālis (concio-), e, adj. [contio], of or belonging to public meetings: hirudo aerarii, the rabble of treasury leeches.

contiōnārius (concio-), a, um, adj. (id.), of or belonging to public meetings, that frequents public meetings: populus.

contiōnātor (concio-), ōris, m. [contionor], a speaker at a public meeting; esp. one who adopts the language of the hustings, a demagogue, agitator.

contiōnor (concio-), ārī, ātus sum, [contio], intrans. dep. 1. meet in public, hold a meeting. 2. address a public meeting, harangue, make a speech, spout. Also with acc. 3. (with object clause) say in public: cum Lepidus contionaretur se consentire cum Antonio.

contiuncŭla (concī-), ae, f. [contio], a short popular harangue.

contor, ārī. See cunctor.

con-torquĕo, ēre, torsi, tortum, trans. v. turn, twist or swing with effort, wrench; turn about; hurl, whirl, dart.

contortē, adv. [contortus], intricately.

contortĭo, ōnis, f. [contorqueo], a twisting, intricacy, complication.

contortor, ōris, m. [id.], a wrester: legum, a petti-fogger.

contortŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. contortus], somewhat intricate, mazy.

contortus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contorqueo. As adj.

(of style) 1. forked out, energetic, forcible. 2. involved, intricate, complicated.

contrā, prep. with acc. and adv. [as if contera parte, from obsolete adj. con-ter-us; cf. exterus; extra, etc.]. I. A. (prep. with acc.) 1. (of place) over against, opposite, facing. 2. against, in opposition to, contrary to: contra aliquem venire, to appear (in court) against a person, oppose. 3. in return for: poma, venunt contra aurum, i.e. for their weight in gold, Varr. B. (prep. with dat.) in return for: non carum fuit auro contra, i.e. it was worth its weight in gold. Only in Plautus and Terence. II. (as adv.) 1. on the opposite side, opposite, over against, face to face, in the opposite direction. 2. on the other hand, in return. 3. on the contrary, just the contrary, in an opposite manner, contrariwise. With accusque, quasi ea res neque sci. contra quam fas erat, amore capta; quod contra atque esset dictum proelium commissesit, contrary to what they had stated. 4. in turn, in reply: Veneris contra sic filius orsus. 5. (quasi-adjectival) (a) the reverse, just the opposite: alia probabilia, alia contra (esse) dicimus; Marius cognoscere quid boni utrisque aut contra esset, what advantages or drawbacks each had; in stultitiā contra est; (b) in opposition, adverse: fortuna contra fuit.

contractio, ōnis, f. [contraho], 1. a drawing together, contraction. 2. a shortening, abridging; smallness, narrow dimensions: pagināe. 3. (fig.) a straitening: animi, i.e. depression of spirits, despondency.

contracto, āre. See contecto.

contractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contraho. As adj. drawn together, huddled up; drawn tight, shrivelled, contracted, close, narrow, cramped, straitened, limited, restricted: frigus (i.e. quo contrahuntur), cramping cold, cold and cramp, Virg.; frons, knitted; locus; paupertas; quid sit optimum contra male contractis rebus pro bono, what is best in our sad straits. Compar. contractior.

contrā-dīco, ĕre, xi, ctum, intrans. v. 1. speak on the other side, i.e. as counsel for the adversary. 2. come forward as accuser, make charges against a person. 3. oppose, object, urge in reply. 4. (with dat.) gainsay, contradict.

contrādictio, ōnis, f. [contradico], a contradiction, counter-argument, objection, opposition, protest.

con-trāho, ĕre, xi, ctum, trans. v. I. 1. draw together, get together, muster, assemble. 2. draw in, contract, bring into smaller compass, lessen, narrow, straiten, abridge: vela, i.e. take in, furl; caelum, overcast; frontem, knit the brow; contracto melius parva cupidine Vectigalia porrigam. II. (fig.) 1. draw on, bring on one's self, incur, produce, contract: mihi nimicitias iram; amplius negotii; causam certaminis; amicitiam. 2. make a contract, conclude a bargain: res rationesque contractae, business and commercial (monetary) transactions; res contractarum fides, fidelity in bargains; ex rebus contrahendis, from all cases of contract. Hence (meton.) cum aliquo contrahere, to have dealings with, associate with. 3. draw in, lessen, cramp, restrain: rogo ne contrahas ac demittas animum, I beg you not to be disheartened and cast down; appetitus.

contrārie, adv. [contrarius], in an opposite direction, antithetically.

contrārius, a, um, adj. [contra], I. (of place) lying over against, opposite, facing: Phrygiae contraria tellus; vulnera, wounds in front; in contrarium partem, in opposite directions. II. (fig.) 1. contrary, opposed, opposite: dum vitant stulti vitia, in contraria currunt. As subst. contrārium, ii, n. the opposite, reverse. Ex contrario (adverbially), on the contrary. 2. at variance, antagonistic, hostile, injurious, inexpedient.

contrectābiliter (-tract-), adv. [contrectabilis], so as to be felt all over.

contrectātio (-tract-), ōnis, f. [id.], a stroking, fondling, caressing.

contrecto (-tracto), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. handle, thumb (books), touch all over, rummage, feel. 2. handle roughly, outrage. II. (fig.) overhaul, contemplate, ponder.

con-trēmisco, ĕre, ŭi, A. (intrans.) 1. tremble all over, quake. 2. (fig.) waver: fides virtusque nunquam contremuit. B. (trans.) tremble at: periculum.

con-trēmo, ĕre, ŭi, intrans. v. tremble greatly, quake.

con-tribŭo, ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, trans. v. 1. incorporate, annex; unite: Calagurritani, qui erant cum Oscensibus contributi, were in federation with. 2. impart, contribute: Spercheides undae Contribuere aliquid.

contribūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contribuo.

con-tristo, āre, āvi, ātum, [tristis], trans. v. make sad or gloomy, cast a gloom over, sadden.

contritus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contero. As adj. worn out, obsolete, trite.

contrōversia, ae, f. [controversus], a dispute, debate, quarrel, controversy; in pl. grounds of quarrel: sine controversiā, unquestionably, indisputably.

contrōversiōsus, a, um, adj. [controversia], under dispute, debatable, questionable.

contrō-versus, a, um, adj. [for contra-versus], 1. (lit. set opposite); hence (fig.), disputed, controverted: ius, a disputed point of law. 2. quarrelsome.

con-trūdo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. thrust or crowd together.

contrūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contrudo.

contŭbernālis, is, m. f. [contubernium], I. 1. one who shares the same hut; a tent-companion, comrade, messmate. 2. (meton.) an aide-de-camp, military attaché; a young man of good family who was on the staff of a general on foreign service. II. (fig.) 1. an intimate friend, comrade, crony, mate, chum. 2. the husband or wife of a slave. Such persons cohabited without being legally married. 3. a compound householder.

con-tŭbernium, ii, n. [taberna], I. tent-companionship, comradeship. II. (meton.) 1. the close intercourse of a general with the young men on his staff: contubernio aestimare; contubernio patris militare; cf. contubernalis, 2. 2. companionship, intercourse, attendance (of teachers, friends, etc.). 3. a dwelling together, foregathering. 4. cohabitation, esp. of slaves. III. (concr.) 1. a military tent shared by two soldiers and their corporal (decanus, or caput contubernii); a mess-tent, mess. 2. any dwelling shared by several persons. 3. the quarters of a pair of slaves.

con-tŭĕor, ēri, tŭĭtus sum, trans. dep. 1. regard carefully, survey fully, look or gaze at, behold. 2. (fig.) consider, observe, examine.

contŭĭtus, a, um, perf. part. from contueor.

contŭmācia, ae, f. [contumax], 1. obstinacy, stubbornness, insubordination, bravado, defiance. 2. (in a good sense) firmness, inflexibility.

contŭmāciter, adv. [id.], 1. in a defiant manner, dogmatically, with stubbornness, insubordination. 2. with firmness. Compar. contumacius.

con-tŭmax, ācis, adj. [root TEM-; cf. con-temno], obstinate, unruly, stubborn, defiant, unyielding; impracticable, unmanageable, refractory. Compar. contumacior; superl. contumacissimus.

con-tŭmēlĭa, ae, f. [root TEM-; cf. contumax], 1. an affront, insult, indignity, disrespect, taunting or insolent language, reproach: ad contumeliam omnia accipere, to take everything as an insult. Ter. 2. (meton.) rough usage, buffeting, injury, damage.

contŭmēliōsē, adv. [contumeliosus], insultingly, in abusive language. Compar. contumeliosius; superl. contumeliosissime.

contŭmēliōsus, a, um, adj. [contumelia], full of abuse or invective, insulting, disrespectful. Compar. contumeliosior; superl. contumeliosissimus.

con-tŭmŭlo, āre, trans. v. 1. heap up like a mound. 2. cover with a mound; bury.

con-tundo, ĕre, contŭdi, contūsum, (-tunsum), trans. v. I. 1. bruise, crush, pound, bray, grind to pieces, flatten. 2. (poet.) knock up, disable, cripple: articulos. II.

(fig.) break down, destroy, crush, subdue, demolish, quell.

contunsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contundo.

contŭor, ĭ, =contueor.

conturbātio, ōnis, f. [conturbo], confusion, disquiet, agitation.

conturbātor, ōris, m. [conturbo, II. 2], (lit. one who gets into difficulties); poet. in apposition=adj.: macellus; aper, i.e. that will make one bankrupt, ruinous.

conturbātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conturbo. As adj. confused, distracted, disordered. Compar. conturbatior.

con-turbo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. throw into confusion, disturb, confuse, disorder: ordines militum; omnes rationes meas conturbasti, you have upset all my calculations. II. (fig.) 1. embarrass, distract, disquiet, perplex. 2. (business techn. t.) conturbare rationes (rationem), or simply conturbare, to wreck one's accounts; hence (of fraudulent bankrupts), to wreck one's bankrupt, smash: utrum igitur me conturbare oportet? sic Pedo conturbat, Matho deficit; hence (poet.), conturbare basia, make a hash of the total of kisses, i.e. kiss without counting.

‡ contus, i, m. [κοντός], a punt-pole; a pole, pike.

contūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from contundo.

cōnubĭālis (conn-), e, adj. [conubium], pertaining to wedlock, conjugal. [Mostly quadrisyll. conūbĭālis, in poets; cf. conubium.]

co-nūbium (conn-), ĭi, n. [con; nubo], I. wedlock, marriage. Often in pl. II. (meton.) 1.=ius conubii, the right of intermarriage. 2. union, connection. [In poet. often scanned as trisyll. e.g. cōnŭbjo, cōnŭbĭis, by synizesis. See Munro, Lucr. iii. 776, who regards the u as short.]

‡ conus, i, m. [κῶνος], 1. a cone, shape like a cone. 2. (meton.) the apex of a helmet, to which the crest was attached; crest, tip, peak.

con-vălesco, ĕre, valŭi, intrans. v. 1. begin to grow strong, gain strength; become consolidated. 2. regain health, get well, recover.

con-vallis, is, (abl. sing. convalle), f. 1. a valley enclosed on all sides, basin. 2. a defile, valley.

con-văso, āre, āvi, ātum, [(2) vas], trans. v. pack up; decamp with; cf. colligere vasa.

con-vecto, āre, trans. v. collect and carry off, bring together, fetch in, convey in quantities.

con-vector, ōris, m. [conveho], a fellow-passenger (on board ship).

con-vĕho, vĕhĕre, vexi, vectum, trans. v. carry or bring together, collect, fetch in.

convectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from conveho.

con-vello, ĕre, velli (rarely -vulsi), vulsum (volsum), trans. v. 1. tear up, tear away, wrench off, pull or pluck up. 2. (milit. techn. t.) convellere signa (vexilla), to pull up the standards, i.e. decamp. II. (meton.) tear to pieces, mangle, rend, cleave, shatter: dapes avido dente; glaebam vomere; aequor; naves convolsae undis. III. (fig.) 1. uproot, overthrow, undermine, subvert, make to waver, bring to nought, invalidate, nullify. 2. rend, torture: verbis pectus.

convĕna, ae, adj. m. f. [convenio], coming together, meeting. As subst. convĕna, ae, m. f. one of a company. In pl. assembled strangers, riff-raff, vagabonds.

convĕniens, ntis, pres. part. from convenio. As adj. 1. agreeing, consistent, harmonious, on good terms: bene conveniens lugum, well-matched. 2. suitable, appropriate, agreeable, fitting. 3. fitting well: toga. Compar. convenientior; superl. convenientissimus.

convĕnienter, adv. [conveniens], agreeably to, suitably, fitly, conformably, consistently.

convĕnientia, ae, f. [id.], a meeting, accord, agreement, harmony, conformity, suitableness, fitness.

con-vĕnio, īre, vēni, ventum, A. (intrans.) I. 1. come together, come where others are, meet, assemble, unite. 2. convenire in manum, pass into the absolute control of a husband. See Dict. Ant. conventio; matrimonium. II. (fig.) 1. agree together, suit: non bene conveniunt . . . maiestas et amor, ill-suited upon, arranged: haec fratri mecum non conveniunt, in this my brother and I are not agreed; or, this does not apply to my brother as it does to me, does not suit him as it does me; cf. convenio, II. 3; nem convenitnam putmus; pax convenit; eo signo quod convenerat revocantur; si in eo manerent quod convenisset. Pass.: pacem conventam; quibus conventis. Also impers. convĕnit, it is agreed, then is an understanding: mihi cum aliquo convenit; saevis inter se convenit ursis; exercitus, uti convenerat, Numidiā deductus. 3. be convenient, fitting, appropriate, meet, becoming, suitable, adapted (with prepp. ad, in, inter, cum, or dat.): erat nemo in quem ea suspicio conveniret; viris labor convenit; (poet. with infin.) nec mea conveniunt duro praecordia versu Caesaris nomen condere; where the ordinary constr. would be praecordiis convenit. Also impers. convĕnit, it is meet, right, proper, fitting, becoming, etc.: unum illud esse tempus quo maxime contendi conveniat; ita commendare Satyros conveniet; ad bellum navigare qui convenit? i.e. what is the good of it? B. (trans.) 1. go to find a person, visit, call upon, meet, accost: nemo adhuc convenire me voluit cui fuerim occupatus; cui persuaderi posse non arbitror ulai erit conventus, without a personal interview. 2. (legal techn. t.)=in ius vocare, summon, sue: paternos amicos appellare et convenire.

conventĭcŭlum, i, n. [dim. conventus], 1. a meeting, association. 2. a place for meeting, rendezvous.

conventio, ōnis, f. [convenio], 1. a meeting. 2. a compact, agreement.

conventum, i. See (1) conventus.

(1) conventus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from convenio. As subst. conventum, i, n. an agreement, contract, covenant.

(2) conventus, ūs, m. [convenio], I. 1. a meeting. 2. an assembly, concourse: conventus trahit in medios. II. (meton.) 1. an assize district or circuit of the proconsul. 2. the place where the assizes were held. 3. the day or days of sessions. 4. the sessions, assizes: conventus agere, to hold a court or assize. 5. an assemblage of persons in a province to attend a court of justice; sts. the crowd attendant on a law-court. 6. an association or corporation of Roman citizens residing in a province.

con-verro, rĕre, verri, versum, trans. v. 1. sweep together. 2. (fig.) sweep into one's own clutches.

conversātio, ōnis, f. [conversor], 1. frequent use. 2. intercourse, society. 3. frequent abode.

conversio, ōnis, f. [converto], I. a revolution, revolving: astrorum. II. (fig.) change, alteration, subversion.

con-verso, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. turn round constantly: se. Conversor, pass. used reflexively, 1. abide, live. 2. associate with.

(1) conversus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from converro.

(2) conversus, perf. pass. part. from converto.

con-verto (-vorto), ĕre, ti, sum, trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) I. 1. turn, turn round; wheel round. Convertere se or converti, pass. used reflexively, turn one's self, turn round. 2. convertere signa, aciem, change front, wheel round, face about: conversa signa intulerunt, they wheeled round and charged; in fugam convertere, to put to flight. II. 1. bring to bear, turn, direct: in me convertite ferrum; iter in provinciam; tigna contra vim fluminis. Convertere se, or converti, pass. used reflexively, turn one's-self, betake one's-self, turn. 2. divert, attract (attention of): vire elephas albus volgi converterat ora. 3. change, alter, transform: classem in nymphas; castra castris, lit. change camp with camp, i.e. constantly form a new camp in rear of and in contact with the old one. 4. translate: libros Graeco in Latinum. B. (intrans.) 1. turn one's-self, turn. 2. change, come round.

con-vestio, īre, īvi, ītum, trans. v. clothe or cover completely.

convexus, a, um, adj. [conveho]; A. 1. arched, vaulted, convex, rising into a round form on the exterior: caelum. 3. converging, sloping: vertex; iter, upward; vallis. B. as subst. convexum, i, n. (more freq. in pl. convexa, ōrum), 1. a vault: caeli, the canopy of heaven, Virg.; supera, id. 2. a slope, hollow: classem in convexo nemorum oculit, i.e. in a cove with overhanging woods; dum montibus umbrae lustrabunt convexa.

conviciātor (convĭ-), ōris, m. [convicior], a scoffer, reviler.

conviciŏr (convĭ-), āri, ātus sum, intrans. dep. revile, rail, wrangle.

con-vīcium (convĭ-), ii, n. [akin to vox, vocis], I. 1. a din, loud noise, clamour, outcry, row. 2. railing words, wrangling, squabbling, slanging, altercation. 3. abuse, reviling, reproach, censure. II. (meton.) a) abstr.=concr., a chatterbox, scandalmonger, rowdy: nemoris convicia, picae (=conciatores), the charivari of the forest, Ov.

convictĭo, ōnis, f. [convivo], a living together, intercourse.

convictor, ōris, m. [id.], a table companion, messmate, intimate friend.

(1) convictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from convinco.

(2) convictus, ūs, m. [convivo], I. a living together, common board, home-society; intimacy. 2. a social gathering, dinner-party; a set.

con-vinco, ĕre, vīci, victum, trans. v. I. master completely, Lucr. 2. convict a guilty person: illo convincar iudice turpis ego. Also with gen. or abl. of charge: latrocinii; scelere. 3. prove against a person; demonstrate, prove, establish; svaritiam; te nihil didicisse; aliquem immemorem amici.

con-vīso, ĕre, trans. v. survey, examine.

convītior, convītium. See convicior, convicium.

con-vīva, ae, m. f. [vivo], a messmate, guest.

convīvālis, e, adj. [convivium], of or belonging to a feast, etc.; convivial: fabulae, table-talk.

convīvārier, old infin. pres. from convivor.

convīvātor, ōris, m. [convivor], an entertainer, host.

con-vīvium, ĭi, n. [vivo], I. a dinner-party, entertainment, banquet, feast. 2. (meton.) the diners, the company, guests: nequitiam vinosa tuam convivia narrant.

con-vīvo, ĕre, vixi, victum, intrans. v. I. live together. 2. be one's guest: non convivere licet.

convīvor, āri, ātus sum, [conviva], intrans. dep. feast, banquet; give parties.

convŏcātĭo, ōnis, f. [convoco], a convoking, summoning.

con-vŏco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. call together, convoke, summon.

con-vŏlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. fly or flock together.

convolsus, a, um,=convulsus.

convŏlūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from convolvo.

con-volvo, ĕre, volvi, vŏlūtum, trans. v. I. roll or wrap together; roll round, coil. 2. wrap up.

con-vŏmo, ĕre, trans. v. cover with vomit, bespew.

convorto, convorsus. See converto convulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from convello.

cō-ŏpĕrĭo (contr. cōperio), īre, ŭi, ertum, trans. v. I. cover over, cover up, hide: aliquem lapidibus, i.e. stone to death. 2. (fig.) overwhelm: famosis versibus.

cōoptāssint, 3d pl. old perf. subj. of coopto.

cōoptātĭo, ōnis, f. [coopto], election into a corporate body by the existing members.

cō-opto (contr. copto), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. elect into a corporate body, nominate, admit, elect.

cō-ŏrĭor, ōrīri, ortus sum, intrans. dep. arise, spring up, rise with force, break forth.

(1) cōortus, a, um, perf. part. from coorior.

(2) cōortus, ūs, m. [coorior], a rising.

cōpla, ae. See copula.

Cōōs. See Cos.

cōpa (cūpa), ae, f. [copo=caupo], a singing and dancing girl who frequents taverns; a hostess, barmaid, tavern-waitress.

cōpārio, īre, contr.=coopario.

† cōphĭnus, i, m. (κόφινος), a wicker basket, hamper.

Cōpae, ārum, f. pl. a town in Boeotia, whence the lake Copais took its name.

cōpĭa, ae, f. [co-ops], I. 1. abundance, plenty, fulness, copiousness; a supply, quantity, number: alicui copiam frumenti facere, to furnish one with a supply of corn; copia narium, les trésors de l'odorat, a store of nosegays, bouquets, i.e., every sweet flower. 2. ability, power, means, opportunity, facility: dare or facere copiam, to grant permission or opportunity; (a) (with gen. gerund): fandi; spectandi; (b) (with infin.) solvere vincla urbis Dardaniae. Pro copiā, according to one's ability: pro rei copiā, considering the means at one's disposal, as one's means allow. II. (meton.) 1. wealth, riches, resources; both sing. and pl. 2. (milit. techn. t.) a) forces, troops; mostly pl.; (b) supplies. 3. the goddess of Plenty. 4. (with obj. gen.) access to a person: obsecrat ut sibi eius faciat copiam.

cōpĭŏlae, ārum, f. pl. [dim. copia], a handful of troops, a small corps.

cōpĭōsē, adv. [copiosus], 1. abundantly, in great abundance, with ample supplies, plentifully, liberally. 2. (of style) eloquently, fluently. Compar. copiosius; superl. copiosissime.

cōpĭōsus, a, um, adj. [copia], 1. well supplied, having abundance, rich, well-stored, abounding. 2. plentiful, copious. 3. rich in language, fluent, eloquent.

† cōpis, ĭdis, f. (κόπις), 1. a cutlass, scimitar. 2. a hunting-knife.

cōpla, ae. See copula.

cōplātus, a, um, contr.=copulatus.

cŏpo, ōnis, m. See caupo.

cōpōna, ae, f. See caupona.

† copræ, ae, m. (κοπρίας, a dirty fellow), a low buffoon, who acted as court jester to the emperors.

† copta, ae, f. (κοπτή), a hard biscuit, almond-cake.

copto, āre. See coopto.

Coptos, i, f. an ancient city of the Thebaid, or Upper Egypt.

cōpŭla (sync. cōpla), ae, f. [contr. for coapula; con; apio], a tie, band, bond: copula dura tenet canem, a leash. In pl. hold-fasts; grappling-irons, grapnels, Caes.

cōpŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [copulo], a coupling, joining, uniting.

cōpŭlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from copulo. As adj. 1. joined together, closely connected. 2. (active) binding: (compar.) nihil copulatius, quam morum similitudo bonorum.

cōpŭlo (cŏplo, Lucr.), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. couple, join, bind together, leash, link. 2. (fig.) unite, cement.

cŏqua, ae, f. [coquo], a cook.

cŏquo, cŏquĕre, coxi, coctum, [Sanscr. PAK-, bake; Gk. πεπ-, πέσσειν, πεπτός; cf. columba, palumbes; colo, πόλις], I. 1. cook, dress, boil, seethe, bake, roast. II. (meton.) 1. parch, dry. 2. dry up, burn, scorch. 3. forge (of metals): fornacibus acra. 4. turn, taint: praesentes Austri, coquite horum obsonia. 5. ripen, mature, mellow: coma; messem. 6. (=concoquo), digest: cibus coctus. III. (fig.) 1. mature, concoct; devise, scheme: consilia; bellum. 2. keep in a ferment, vex, fret, worry, harass: quae (cura) nunc te coquit; ardentem curaeque iraeque coquebant.

cŏquus (cŏcus), i, m. a cook.

cŏr, cordis, n. [cf. καρδ-ία], I. the heart; esp. as the seat of the passions and affections. Cordi esse alicui, to be at one's heart (? locative, not dat.); to be agreeable to, please, be dear. II. (meton.) 1. the mind, intellect, judgment: hebeti cognoscere corde; cf. † learn by heart; acuens mortalia corda; instructa sunt mi in corde consilia omnia, i.e. in my head. 2. the stomach: in cor Trajecto lateris capitisve dolore. 3. a person: iuvenes, fortissima corda, your stoutest hearts.

Cŏra, ae, f. a town of Latium in the Volscian territory.

† cōrallium (cŏrallium, cŏrallĭum, cŏrallum), ĭi, n. (κοράλλιον, κουράλιον), red coral.

Cŏrălli, ōrum, m. pl. a people of Lower Moesia, on the Ister.

cōram, prep. with abl. and adv. [con; os, oris], I. as prep. in the presence of, before: ne pueros coram populo Medea trucidet. As prep. rare in Cic. and Augustan Latin; freq. in Tac. II. as adv. face to face, before one's eyes, to one's face, openly: coram adesse, to be present in person; coram perspicere, cernere, etc., to see with one's own eyes.

Cōrānus, a, um, adj. of or from Cora.

corbis, is, m. f. a wicker basket of conical shape: messoria, a basket used for measuring corn in the ear; cf. modius.

corbīta, ae, f. (sc. navis), a ship carrying a corbis at the mast-head, a slow-sailing vessel for carrying corn; a merchantman. Hence, corvette.

corbŭla, ae, f. [dim. corbis], a little basket.

corcŏdīlus. See crocodilus.

corcŭlum, i, n. [dim. cor], 1. a little heart. 2. (fig.) sweetheart.

Corcȳra, ae, f. now Corfu, an island in the Ionian Sea, off the coast of Epirus; identified with the Homeric Scheria.

Corcȳraeus, a, um, adj. of or from Corcyra. Corcyraean. As subst. Corcȳraei, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Corcyra, the Corcyraeans.

cordātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cor], judicious, sagacious, shrewd.

Cordŭba, ae, f. now Cordova, a town of Hispania Baetica, the birthplace of Lucan and the two Senecas. Adj. Cordŭbensis, e.

‡ cordȳla, ae, f. [κορδύλη], the young fry of the tunny-fish; 'white-bait.'

Corfiniensis, e, adj. of or from Corfinium: clementia, i.e. displayed at C.

Corfinium, ĭi, n. a strongly fortified town of the Peligni; the capital of the Italian confederacy in the Social War, which under the name of Italica was intended to supplant Rome.

‡ cōriandrum (-drŏn), i, n. [κοριαννον], coriander, an aromatic garden seed.

cōrĭārius, ĭi, m. [corium], a tanner, currier.

Corinna, ae, f. 1. a Greek poetess of Tanagra, about B.C. 490, contemporary with Pindar. 2. the feigned name of Ovid's mistress, generally believed to have been Iulia, daughter of Augustus.

Corinthiăcus, a, um, adj. Corinthian.

Corinthiārius, ĭi, m. a worker or dealer in Corinthian bronze.

Corinthiensis, e, adj=Corinthius.

Corinthius, a, um, adj. of Corinth, Corinthian. As subst. (a) Corinthii, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Corinth; (b) Corinthia, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. vasa), works of art, bronzes from Corinth.

Corinthŏs (-us), i, (Gk. acc. sing. Corinthŏn), f. 1. Corinth, a city of the Peloponnesus, situated on the Isthmus of Corinth. It was taken and sacked by L. Mummius, B.C. 146. Proverb.: Non cuivis homini contingit adire Corinthum [οὐ παντὸς ἀνδρὸς εἰς Κόρινθον ἐσθ' ὁ πλοῦς], It isn't every one who is lucky enough to get to Corinth. 2. (meton.) the spoils of Corinth, a whole Corinth full of bronzes, etc.: captivum portatur ebur, captiva Corinthus.

Cōriōlānus, a, um, adj. of or from Corioli. Hence, Coriolanus, the surname of C. Marcius, who captured the Volscian town of Corioli, B.C. 493.

‡ cŏrium, ĭi, n. [χόριον], skin of animals, hide, leather. Proverbs: de alieno corio ludere, i.e. to take one's pleasure at another man's expense; corio suo ludere, to play to lose one's own leather, play a losing game. Canis a corio nunquam absterrebitur uncto (καλὲπόν χορίω κύνα γεῦσαι, it's bad to give a dog a taste of paunch); cf. 'Don't let the cat to the cream.'

Cornēlia, ae, f. 1. the mother of the Gracchi. 2. wife of Crassus, afterwards of Pompey the Great.

Cornēliānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Cornelius, Cornelian. Cornēliāna Castra, the site of the camp in Africa, E. of the estuary of the Bagradas, occupied by L. Corn. Scipio in the 2nd Punic War.

(1) Cornēlius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Cornelian gens, Cornelian.

(2) Cornēlius, i, m. a Roman gentile name.

cornēolus, a, um, adj. [cornus], horn-like, horny.

(1) cornĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], 1. of horn, horny, horn-. 2. hard as horn.

(2) cornĕus, a, um, adj. [cornus], of the cornel-tree, of cornel-wood: virgulta; hastilia.

corni-cen, cĭnis, m. [cornu; cano], a horn-blower, bandsman.

cornĭcor, ārī, intrans. dep. [cornix], croak, caw.

cornĭcŭla, ae, f. [dim. cornix], a small or poor crow, a jackdaw.

Cornĭcŭlānus, a, um, adj. of or from Corniculum.

cornĭcŭlārius, ĭi, m. [cornĭculum], a soldier who had been presented with a cornĭculum and promoted; an adjutant.

(1) cornĭcŭlum, i, n. [dim. cornu], 1. a little horn. II. (meton.) a gorget, a horn-shaped ornament bestowed on soldiers for distinguished service, and worn on the helmet.

(2) Cornĭcŭlum, i, n. an ancient town in Latium.

Cornĭfĭcius, ĭi, m. a Roman name. 1. Q. Cornificius, rhetorician and grammarian, friend of Cicero. 2. a Latin love-poet, friend of Catullus.

corni-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [cornu; gero], having or wearing horns, horned. Poet. as subst. 1. a horned monster. 2. a horned river-god.

corni-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [cornu], horn-footed, hoofed. As subst. (poet.) 1. a horse. 2. (in pl.) Pan and the Satyrs.

cornix, īcis, f. [cf. κορώνη], a crow. Proverb.: cornicum oculos configere, to gouge the crow's eyes, i.e. to take in knowing ones. In Propert. iv. (v.) 16 there is a further allusion to the use of crows' eyes in magic potions.

cornū, ūs, n. [akin to κέρας], I. a horn; an antler. II. (meton.) A. things like horn in shape; (a) an elephant's tusk: Indicum; (b) the point or horn of the moon; (c) the ends, points, or extremities of the yard-arms; (d) the arms or branches of a river; hence, perhaps, river-gods are represented with horns; (e) the projecting sockets in which the crest of a helmet was fixed: cornua cristae, the branching plumes; (f) points, arms, promontories, projections of land: ultima praeruptā cornua mole rigent; inclusum cornibus aequor; (g) the peaks of a mountain; (h) the tips or extremities of a bow; (i) the ornamental knobs or tips affixed to each end of the cylinder on which MSS. were to unclasp, outstank, Livy, xxii. 47; cornua alicuius tenere, (fig.) to support one's flanks, i.e. be his main support on either side. B. of things made of horn or horny in substance; (a) a lantern; (β) a bow: adducto torquentem spicula cornu; (γ) a pipe or funnel: latices infundere cornu; (δ) an oil cruet: cornu oleum instillat; (ε) a drinking-horn; (ζ) a metal trumpet (originally of horn); a horn: non tuba directi, non aeris cornua flexi; (η) a hoof; (θ) a bird's bill or beak; oraque cornu Indurata rigent; (ι) a wart: frons cornu exsecta; (κ) the sides of a lyre (originally of horn). III. (fig.) 1. as the symbol of power, strength, courage, etc.: venerunt capiti cornua sera meo; addis cornua pauperi; cornua sumere, to pluck up courage. 2. as the symbol of plenty, fertility: apparetque beata plena Copia cornu. Hence, Bacchus in the poets is often represented with horns: Bacche, veni dulcisque tuis e cornibus uva Pendeat.

Cornūcōpiae, the horn of plenty; the horn of Amalthea, the goat-nurse of Iuppiter, represented as filled with corn, fruit, and flowers, as the emblem of Fortune, Happiness, and Concord.

(1) cornum, i, n. [cornus], 1. the cornel cherry. 2. (meton.) a javelin of cornel-wood.

(2) cornum, i, n.=cornu.

(1) cornus, i, f. 1. a cornel cherry-tree. 2. (meton.) a javelin of cornel-wood.

(?) (2) cornus, ūs, m.=cornu.

cornūtus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cornu], horned.

Cōroebus, i, m. a Phrygian, son of Mygdon, ally of Priam.

cōrolla, ae, f. [dim. corona], a small wreath, chaplet.

cŏrŏllārĭum, ĭi, n. [corolla], 1. a wreath of thin metal leaves, silvered or gilt, given to favourite actors. 2. (meton.) crown-money; gratuity, honorarium.

‡ cŏrōna, ae, f. [κορώνη], I. 1. a wreath, garland, chaplet (of leaves). Sub coronā vendere, to sell by auction. Captives exposed for sale wore chaplets on their heads, a symbol that the seller gave no warranty. So sub coronā emere, venire, venundari. 2. a tiara, coronal: accensa coronam insignem gemmis; duplicem gemmis auroque coronam. II. (meton.) 1. of things in the form of a crown; a circle, crowd, ring, throng, cordon; esp. a line of troops for blockading or defensive purposes. 2. the (Northern) Crown; Ariadne's crown, which was made a constellation: Gnosia stella Coronae.

Cŏrōnae, ārum, f. pl. the twins who rose from the ashes of the Theban Orion's daughters, Ov.

Cŏrōnaeus (-ēus), a, um, adj. 1. of Coróne, a town in Messenia. 2. of Coronéa.

cŏrōnārĭus, a, um, adj. [corona], of or belonging to a wreath, garland, or chaplet: aurum, a purse of gold sent by the provinces to a victorious commander, for making a triumphal crown. As subst. cŏrōnārĭus, ĭi, m. (-a, ae, f.), one who makes or sells garlands, wreaths, etc.

cŏrōnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from corona. As adj. wearing a wreath, chaplet, or garland; wreathed, festooned.

Cŏrōnē, ēs, f. a town in Messenia.

Cŏrōnēa, ae, f. a town in Boeotia, S.W. of the Copaic Lake, where the Spartans under Agesilaus gained a victory over the Greek States, B.C. 394.

Cŏrōnēus (-ēus), a, um. See Coronaeus.

Cŏrōneus (trisyll.), ei, m. a king of Phocis.

Cŏrōnĭdēs, ae, m. patron. (2) Coronis, the son of Coronis by Apollo, i.e. Aesculapius.

‡ (1) cŏrōnis, ĭdis, f. [κορωνίς], a curved line or flourish, like a bird's wing or beak, at the end of a chapter, book, or scene of a play.

(2) Cŏrōnis, ĭdis, f. a daughter of the Thessalian Pilegyas, and mother of Aesculapius.

cŏrōno, ārē, āvī, ātum, [corona], trans. v. I. 1. furnish with a garland; crown, wreathe, festoon. 2. crown as a victor, award the prize to; (pass. with cogn. acc., cf. στεφανοῦσθαι Ὀλύμπια, νικᾶν Ὀλύμπια), coronari Olympia, to be crowned at the Olympic games. II. (meton.) form a ring or cordon round, beset, encompass, encircle: omnem abitum custode; silva coronat aquas. III. (? fig.) fill up to the brim: vina coronant; cf. Hom. κρητῆρας ἐπεστέψαντο ποτοῖο. But it is best taken literally.

corpŏrĕus, a, um, adj. [corpus], 1. of the body, bodily, corporeal. 2. of flesh, fleshy.

corpus, ŏris, n. [Sanscr. root KAR- (kra-), make; cf. creo, crescо), I. 1. a body, material substance; an atom: quot haberet corpora pulvis, grains, Ov. 2. the body of an animal, esp. of man; fleshy substance, flesh: quo cibo fecisti tantum corporis? have you gained so much flesh? Poet. often pl. for sing., corpora sparere quae fractus potuit lacerata per agros Corpora. 3. a lifeless body, corpse. II. (meton.) 1. a person, individual. Often periphrastic: delecta virûm corpora=delecti viri. 2. (of animals) frame, shape: corpora magna bovum; mastrum. 3. a body (composed of united parts), framework, structure, mass: navium; mens agitat molem et magno se corpore miscet. 4. (of fortifications) the 'enceinte': totum corpus coronā militum cingere. 5. a community, body corporate, corporation; body politic. 6. (of books, etc.) a collection, volume.

corpuscŭlum, i, n. [dim. corpus], a small body, elementary particle, atom.

cor-rādo (conr-), ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. scrape or rake together.

corrāsus (conr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from corrado.

correctĭo (conr-), ōnis, f. [corrigo], an amendment, reform, improvement.

corrector (conr-), ōris, m. [id.], a corrector, reformer, improver, censor, moralist.

correctus (conr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from corrigo.

cor-rĕpo (conr-), ĕre, pŭi, ptum, intrans. v. 1. creep, crawl; slink, sneak. 2. (fig.) cower, wince: membra pavore.

correptē (conr-), adv. [correptus], shortly (of a syllable). Compar. correptius.

correptus (conr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from corripio.

cor-rīdĕo (conr-), ēre, intrans. v. laugh on all sides.

corrĭgia (conr-), ae, f. [corrigo], a shoe-string, boot-lace.

cor-rĭgo (conr-), ĕre, rexi, rectum, trans. v. 1. set straight, put to rights. II. (fig.) alter for the better, amend, improve, reform, correct; sts. of compositions: quidquid corrigere est nefas; corrige, sodes, Hoc, aiebat, et hoc.

cor-rĭpĭo (conr-), ĕre, rĭpŭi, reptum, [rapio], trans. v. I. 1. take hold of (mostly of a rapid act), seize, snatch up: corripere corpus or sese, fling one's self, start up, hurry away; ex somno; e stratis; intro me corripui timidus. 2. clutch at, lay hands upon, plunder, carry off: pecunias. 3. attack (as an accuser, informer): accusatione; corripitur a delatoribus. 4. (of the action of fire or disease) seize upon, attack, carry off: flamma Corripuit tabulas; nec singula morbi Corpora corripiunt. 5. draw in, contract, shorten, abridge, reduce: moras; impensas. II. (meton.) 1. press hotly on, speed along, dash on to, tear over, scour: viam; campum; spatia. The idea of seizing the road expresses hurry. Cf. Catull. viam vorabit, and Shakespeare, Hen. IV. ii. i. 1. 47. 2. shorten, quicken: gradum. III. (fig.) 1. reprove, rebuke, chide, rate: impransi correptus voce magistri. 2. (of the passions, emotions, etc.) sweep along, seize, ravish, captivate, transport: correptus militiā; hunc plausus hiantem corripuit; correpta cupidine; imagine formae.

corrŏbŏrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from corroboro; strengthened, invigorated, grown inveterate.

cor-rŏbŏro (conr-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. strengthen, invigorate, brace up: se, develop one's powers.

cor-rōdo (conr-), ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. gnaw to pieces.

cor-rūgo (conr-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. get together by asking, summon, collect.

corrōsus (conr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from corrodo.

cor-rūgo (conr-), āre, ātum, [ruga], trans. v. wrinkle up, cause to curl: nares, i.e. cause disgust.

cor-rumpo (conr-), ĕre, rūpi, ruptum, trans. v. I. 1. bring to naught, destroy, ruin, weaken, spoil, disfigure, injure, taint, infect, adulterate: corrumpor, pass. used reflexively, become bad, decay, spoil. 2. change by fermentation: umorem in quandam similitudinem vini. II. (fig.) 1. corrupt, seduce, demoralise, entice, mislead, bribe. 2. bias, warp, seek to blind. 3. bring to naught, spoil, mar, ruin, damage, defeat, thwart, pervert, garble.

cor-rŭo (conr-), ĕre, rŭi, ŭtum, intrans. v. I. 1. fall in a heap, fall down, tumble; sink, collapse, fall lifeless. 2. (fig.) go to ruin, break down. B. (trans.) 1. throw together or in a heap. 2. fall upon; overthrow, Catull., Lucr.

corruptē (conr-), adv. [corruptus], corruptly, viciously. Compar. corruptius.

corruptēla (conr-), ae, f. [corrumpo], 1. a corrupting, corruption, bribery, seduction. 2. (meton.) a corrupter, seducer, bane.

corruptĭo (conr-), ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a corrupting, bribing. 2. a corrupt condition, unsoundness.

corruptor (conr-), ōris, m. [id.], a corrupter, ruiner, seducer, briber.

corruptrix (conr-), trĭcis, f. [corruptor], a female corrupter or seducer. Also as adj. corrupting, demoralising.

corruptus (conr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from corrumpo. As adj. I. 1. spoiled, injured, marred, damaged, made worse, adulterated: cererem corruptam undis. 2. wasted away, out of condition, lean: boves. II. (fig.) bad, corrupt; tainted, infected, pestilent. Compar. corruptior; superl. corruptissimus.

cors, cortis, f. See cohors.

Corsĭca, ae, f. the name of an island in the Mediterranean.

Corsĭcus, a, um, adj. of or from Corsica, Corsican.

Corsus, a, um, adj.=Corsicus.

cortex, ĭcis, m. rarely f. [Sanscr. root CAR-, cut; cf. κείρω, κορμός] I. 1. the outer bark of a tree; rind, shell, hull. 2. the bark of a cork-tree, cork: levior cortice. Proverb.: Nare sine cortice, to swim without cork, i.e get on without assistance. II. (meton.) 1. a cork for casks, etc., a stopper, bung. 2. a cork float, buoy.

corticĕus, a, um, adj. [cortex], of bark or cork: signa, i.e. cork floats, Auson.

cortīna, ae, f. 1. a round kettle, caldron, vat. 2. the lid of the tripod of Apollo, made in the shape of a caldron, on which the priestess sat to deliver oracles; hence (poet.) for the Delphic tripod, or the oracle delivered from it, Virg. 3. a tripod-shaped altar as a sacred offering: aureas cortinas Apollini dedicavit.

Cortōna, ae, f. an ancient Etrurian city, N.W. of the Trasimene Lake.

Cortōnensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Cortona.

cōrŭlētum, i, n. See coryletum.

cōrŭlus, i, f. See corylus.

Cōrus, i, m. See Caurus.

cōrusco, āre, [cf. κορύσσω], A. (trans.) move rapidly or tremulously; wave, shake, brandish. B. (intrans.) 1. vibrate, quiver, flutter. 2. flash, gleam, glance, glitter, shimmer.

cōruscus, a, um, adj. 1. quivering, waving. 2. flashing, gleaming, glancing.

corvus, i, m. [cf. cornix; κόραξ, κορώνη], I. a raven, carrion-crow. Proverb.: Corvos in cruce pascere, i.e. be crucified like a slave. II. (meton.) 1. a grappling-iron. 2. a crane. 3. a crowbar.

Cōrȳbantēs, ĭum, m. pl. See Corybas.

Cōrȳbantĭus, a, um, adj. of the Corybantes.

Cōrȳbās, antis, m. a Corybant, a fanatic priest of Cybele so called.

Cōrȳcĭădēs, um, f. pl. (sc. nymphae), the nymphs of the Corycian cave on Mt. Parnassus; i.e. the Muses.

Cōrȳcĭus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to the Muses. See Corycides. II. of or from Coryca in Cilicia, Corycian: lubrica Corycio quamvis siut pulpita nimbo, i.e. with saffron-water spray. Cf. (2) Coryca.

‡ (1) cōrȳcus, i, m. [κώρυκος], a leathern sack filled with bran, sand, etc., and hung up in the gymnasium for the athletes to exercise their strength upon; a 'punching' apparatus, something like the quintain. Hence (fig.), Bestia, coryca laterum et vocis, a practising-ground for lungs and voice.

(2) Cōrȳcus (-ŏs), i, m. a town in Cilicia, with a harbour and famous grotto, famed for its saffron.

Cōrȳdōn, ōnis, (Gk. acc. Cōrȳdōna), m. a shepherd's name.

cōrȳlētum (cōrŭ-), i, n. [corylus], a hazel thicket or copse.

‡ cōrȳlus (cōrŭlus), i, f. [κόρυλος], a hazel or filbert tree.

cōrymbĭfer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [corymbus; fero], wearing clusters of ivy berries; epith. of Bacchus.

‡ cōrymbus, i, m. [κόρυμβος], I. a cluster of fruit or flowers, esp. of ivy berries. II. (meton.) the wreath of ivy leaves and berries worn by Bacchus and his followers.

‡ cōrȳphaeus, i, m. [κορυφαῖος], a head-man, leader.

Cōrȳthus, i, m. an ancient town of Etruria, afterwards Cortona.

‡ cōrȳtos (-us), i, m. [γωρυτός], a bow-case, a quiver.

(1) cōs, cōtis, f. [Sanscr. KA, whet; cf. catus, cautes], I. a flint, flint stone. 2. a hone, whetstone, grindstone.

(2) Cōs (Cŏŏs, Cōus), i, f. one of the Sporades Ise. in the Aegean, off the coast of Caria, now Kos or Stanco. It was the birthplace of Apelles, Hippocrates, and Philetas, and was noted for its wine and the manufacture of light gauze dresses.

Cōsa, ae (-ae, ārum), f. 1. an Etruscan town. 2. a town of Lucania, near Thurii.

Cōsānus, a, um, adj. of or from Cosa.

Coscōnĭus, ĭi, m. 1. C. Cosconius, praetor during Cicero's consulship. 2. a writer of epigrams and a critic, Mart.

‡ cosmēta, ae, m. [κοσμήτης], a wardrobe-slave, valet.

‡ cosmĭcus, a, um, adj. [κοσμικός], of the world. As subst. I. cosmĭcŏs, i, m. a man of the world. 2. cosmica, ōrum, n. pl. worldly matters, the pomps and vanities.

Cosmĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cosmus. As subst. Cosmĭānum, i, n. (sc. unguentum), Cosmus' bouquet.

Cosmus, i, m. a perfumer of Rome, the Rimmel of Martial's day.

cōss. (COSS.) See consul.

Cossus, i, m. a Roman name. A. Cornelius Cossus won the spolia opima from Tolumnius, king of the Veientines, B.C. 437.

costa, ae, f. I. a rib; side of an animal. II. (meton.) a side, a wall: ratis; aheni.

‡ costŏs (-us), i, f. [κόστος], an Oriental aromatic plant used in perfumery.

costum, i, n. [costus], an aromatic plant; the perfume made from it, spikenard.

Cōsȳra (Coss-), ae, f. an island in the Mediterranean, near Malta, now Pantellaria (? Gozo).

cŏthurnātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cothurnus], buskined, i.e. tragic, sublime; sts. epic.

‡ cŏthurnus, i, m. [κόθορνος], I. 1. a high (Greek) hunting-boot, laced up in front. 2. a boot with thick soles, worn by tragic actors: a buskin. II. (meton.) (a) tragedy; (b) tragic style, elevated style (in poetry).

cōtidiānus, cotidie. See cottid-.

Cōtĭso, ōnis, m. a Dacian prince defeated by M. Crassus, B.C. 30.

‡ cottăbus, i, m. [κότταβος], I. an Athenian after-dinner amusement. See Dict. Ant. 2. (in comedy) a clap, stroke, Plaut.

cottăna, ōrum, n. pl. small Syrian figs.

cottidiānus (cōtid-, cŏtĭd-, quŏtid-), a, um, adj. (cottidie), 1. of every day, daily; usual, ordinary. 2. recurring every day, intermittent: febris, Ter.

cottidiē (cōtidiē, quŏtidiē), adv. [quot, dies], every day, daily.

Cottiānus, a, um, adj. (also Cottĭus, a, um), of Cottius, Cottian: Alpes Cottiae, the Cottian Alps.

Cottius, ĭi, m. the king of several Ligurian tribes in the Cottian Alps, contemporary and friend of Augustus.

Cottus. See Cotys, I.

cōtŭla (cŏtȳla), ae, f. [κοτύλη], a small measure containing half a sextarius (about a pint).

cōturnix, ĭcis, f. a quail.

Cōtus, i, m. See Cotys, I. cōtȳla, ae, f. See cotula.

Cōtys, ȳŏs (ȳis), (acc. -yn), I. (masc.) the name of several kings of Thrace. The forms Cōtus (Cottus), i, are also found. II. (fem.) a Thracian divinity, also called Cotytto, the goddess of lewdness.

Cōtyttĭa, ōrum, n. pl. the rites of Cotytto, or Cotys.

Cōtyttō, ūs, f. See Cotys, II.

(1) Cōus, i, f. See Cos.

(2) Cōus, a, um, adj. of or from Cos, Coan: artifex, i.e. Apelles, poeta, i.e. Philetas. As subst. (a) Cōum i, n. (sc. vinum), Coan wine; (b) Coa, ōrum, n. pl. Coan garments, made of fine gauze or transparent silk.

cōvĭnārĭus (covinn-), ĭi, m. sts. with eques, a soldier who fought from a war-chariot.

cōvĭnus (cōvinnus), i, m. [Celtic word], I. a war-chariot of the Belgae and ancient Britons. 2. a travelling-carriage, tilbury, sulky, buggy.

coxa, ae, f. the hip; the hip-bone.

coxendix, ĭcis, f.=coxa.

crābro, ōnis, m. a hornet.

Crăgŏs (-us), i, m. a mountain range and promontory in Lycia.

‡ crambē, ēs, f. [κράμβη], cabbage, kale. Proverb.: Crambe repetita (δὶς κράμβη θάνατος), a 'échauffé' of cabbage, or, Cab- bage, with cabbage to follow, i.e. too much of a good thing; cf. 'toujours perdrix.'

Crānon (Crann-), ōnis, f. a town of Thessaly, near Larissa.

Crantŏr, ŏris, m. 1. the armour-bearer of Peleus. 2. a philosopher of the Old Academy, who flourished B.C. 300.

‡ crāpŭla, æ, f. (κραιπάλη), headache, indigestion, etc., after a drinking-bout; surfeit, debauch.

crās, adv. I. to-morrow. As subst. cras, n. indecl. to-morrow: cras istud, Postume, quando venies? II. 1. on or for the morrow, Mart. 2. (poet.) hereafter, Hor., Ov.

crassē, adv. [crassus], 1. coarsely, rudely, grossly. 2. hazily, dimly.

crassĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [id.], thickness, density.

(1) crassus, a, um, adj. [Sanscr. kar-, weave; cf. crates], I. 1. thick, dense, fat, plump, solid, gross, coarse: cruor, clotted; paludes, rank, muddy, miry; farrago, fattening. 2. (of the atmosphere) thick, dense, heavy, dull, murky, hazy. II. (fig.) thick-headed, dull, stupid; uncouth, clumsy.

(2) Crassus, i, m. a family name in the gens Licinia. Esp. 1. L. Licinius Crassus, the famous orator, contemporary of Cicero; consul B.C. 95. 2. M. Licinius Crassus, the triumvir, who defeated Spartacus, B.C. 71. He died in the Parthian war, B.C. 53.

crastīnus, a, um, adj. [cras], of to-morrow, to-morrow's; next day's. As subst. crastīnum, i, n. to-morrow, the morrow. In crastinum, for the morrow, till to-morrow.

Crătaeĭs, ĭdŏs (-ĭdis), f. the mother of Scylla.

crātēra, æ, f.=crater.

‡ crātēr, ēris, (Gk. acc. sing. -ērā; nom. pl. -ēres; acc. pl. -ēras), m. (κρατήρ), I. a large mixing bowl containing wine and water from which the drinking-cups were filled. II. (meton.) 1. a cup, goblet. 2. a bowl, jar; an oil-jar, Virg. 3. the crater of a volcano. 4. the constellation of the Bowl. 5. a sobriquet of Baiae, 'The Basin.' 6. a pail, basin, Plin.

Crătĕrŏs (-us), i, m. 1. a general of Alexander the Great. 2. a leading physician at Rome in Cicero's day.

crātes. See cratis.

Crāthis, ĭdis, f. a river in Lower Italy whose waters were said to dye the hair red.

crātĭcŭla, æ, f. [dim. cratis], a gridiron.

Crătīnus, i, m. a famous Greek poet of the Old Comedy (B.C. 519-422).

Crătippus, i, m. a Peripatetic philosopher of Mytilēne who settled at Athens, where Cicero's son was his pupil, B.C. 44.

cratis, is, f. [Sanscr. KART-, weave; cf. crassus], I. 1. wicker-work, a hurdle. 2. a drag or harrow of osier hurdles. 3. a hurdle (thrown over criminals and piled up with stones). 4. (pl.) fascines, gabions. II. (meton.) any wattled work, natural or artificial; (a) the framework of a shield; (b) the framework of the human breast, i.e. the ribs: spina, i.e. the backbone; (c) the framework of a honeycomb: favorum, i.e. the latticed combs, or cells; (d) a crate or rack for hanging bacon, etc.; (e) =testudo, the continuous covering, formed by locking their shields over their heads, under which a scaling party advanced to the attack, Luc. Cf. testudo.

crĕātĭo, ōnis, f. [creo], (of magistrates) a choice, appointment.

crĕātor, ōris, m. [id.], a creator, maker, founder, author, parent, father.

crĕātrix, trīcis, f. [creator], a parent, mother.

crĕātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from creo, created, born, sprung from; with abl. of origin.

crĕber, bra, brum, adj. [root KAR-, KRA-, make; cf. creo, cresco], I. thick, close, repeated, frequent, numerous, constant, in quick succession, at short intervals: inhelitus, panting, hurried; tela, i.e. in showers; Auster, i.e. with incessant blasts. Crebra, n. pl.= adv. frequently, ever and anon; (equus) pede terram Crebra ferit. II. (meton.) 1. abounding with or in, crowded: creber harundinibus lacus. 2. (of style, speech, etc.) full, teeming, pregnant: sententiis; sane in eo creber fuisti, you were very full on this point, i.e. you frequently said. Compar. crebrior; superl. creberrimus.

crēbresco (-besco), ĕre, brŭi, (brŭi), [creber], incept. v. intrans. 1. become frequent, increase, gain strength, grow strong: auræ, freshen. 2. (of a report or rumour) be noised abroad, become rife, prevail.

crēbrĭtās, ātis, f. [id.], thickness, closeness, frequency.

crēbrō, adv. [id.], in close, quick succession, often, oftentimes, frequently, repeatedly. Compar. crebrius; superl. creberrime.

crēdĭbĭlis, e, adj. [credo], worthy of belief, credible, likely, probable. Compar. credibilior.

crēdĭbĭlĭtĕr, adv. [credibilis], credibly, in a colourable manner.

crēditor, ōris, m. [credo], a creditor.

crēditus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from credo. As subst. crēditum, i, n. a loan, trust.

crē-do, dĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, (Sanscr. krat, trust; (2) do), I. (traj. trans.) 1. give as a loan, lend: alicui grandem pecuniam; (without direct obj.) populus. 2. (meton.) commit, intrust, confide, consign: arcana libris; se ponto. II. (traj.) 1. trust to, confide in, trust: nimium ne crede colori; non bene ripæ Creditur (impers.), it's ill trusting to the bank. 2. believe in, credit. In affirmations, etc. (parenthetically), mihi crede (credite), take my advice, take my word for it, I warrant you. III. (trans.) hold as true, believe: libenter homines id quod volunt credunt; aliquid alicui, take something on some one's word. Of persons only poet. and in pass.: at certe credar mihi, ait, si verba sequetur Exitus, (= credetur nobis, impers.); pro magno teste vetustas Creditur; Cassandra non unquam credita Teucris. IV. 1. be of opinion, think, suppose, believe: crēdĭtis avectos hostes? ait; male credebar sanguinis auctor ego; inhospita tesqua Credis. 2. (absol.) credo, I suppose, I dare say, I fancy, I should think, methinks, no doubt. In this sense parenthetic, and often ironical.

crēdŭlĭtās, ātis, f. [credulus], easiness of belief, credulity.

crēdŭlus, a, um, adj. [credo], I. 1. ready to believe, credulous, confiding, fond: in vitium credulus, prone to believe in a fault. 2. (with dat.) believing in: non ego credulus illis, I do not believe them. II. (passive) readily or easily believed: fama.

Crēmĕra, æ, m. a small stream in Etruria, memorable for the slaughter of the Fabii, B.C. 477.

Crēmĕrensis, e, adj. of the river Cremera.

crēmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [Sanscr. kar, heat, burn; cf. κέραμος], trans. v. consume with fire, burn, fire.

Crēmōna, æ, f. a town on the Po in Gallia Cisalpina.

Crēmōnensis, e, adj. of or belonging to Cremona.

Crēmōnis Iŭgum, a part of the Pennine Alps, now Grimsel; or, perhaps, Cramont, beside the Little S. Bernard.

crēmor, ōris, m. a thick juice obtained from grain; a cream, emulsion; broth, porridge.

(1) crĕo, āre, āvi, ātum, [Sanscr. kar, kra; cf. cresco], trans. v. 1. beget, create, make, produce, be the parent of, (of animals) breed. 2. (of magistrates) elect, appoint, make, choose. 3. (fig.) bring about, cause, occasion.

(2) Crĕo (Crēon), ntis, m. 1. a king of Corinth, whose daughter Glauce or Creusa married Iason. 2. brother of Iocasta, the wife of Laius, king of Thebes.

crēper, ĕra, ĕrum, adj. [Sabine word], dark, dim, uncertain.

‡ crēpīda, æ, f. (κρηπίς), properly a thick sole worn by the Greeks and laced over the instep; a sandal. Proverb.: Ne sutor supra (ultra) crepidam, let the cobbler stick to his last.

crēpĭdātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [crepida], wearing sandals, sandalled.

crēpīdo, dĭnis, f. (κρηπίς), I. a basement, foundation, base. II. (meton.) 1. a causeway; 'trottoir.' 2. a walled embankment, quay.

pier; brink, edge, margin (of a river, harbour, etc.).

crēpitācŭlum, i, n. [crepito], a rattle.

crēpĭto, āre, freq. [crepo], intrans. v. rattle, clatter, patter, rustle, crackle, ring, clink, tinkle.

crēpĭtus, ūs, m. [id.], a rattling, clattering, pattering, rustling, crackling, creaking, ringing, clinking, tinkling: armorum; dentium, chattering: digitorum, snapping (as a gesture of contempt, or as a means of summoning a slave).

crĕpo, āre, ŭi, ĭtum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. rattle, clatter, crackle, smack, crack, creak, rustle, tinkle, clink. 2. (meton.) snap with a noise: remi. B. (trans.) 1. make to sound, cause to rattle; jingle, chink: sonum; aureolos. II. make a noise about, rattle on about, prate of: militiam; sulcos et vineta.

crĕpundĭa, ōrum, n. pl. [crepo], a child's rattle; toys, playthings; charms, amulets.

crĕpusculum, i, n. [creper; for crepersculum], twilight, dusk.

crērint, sync. = creverint, from cerno.

Crētæ, Crētis, m. a Cretan. Pl. Crētēs Gk. acc. Crētās.

cre-sco, ĕre, crēvi, crētum, [incapt. creo, q.v.], intrans. v. I. grow, spring up, arise. II. 1. grow (in size, height, etc.), wax larger, swell, increase, gather strength, thrive, multiply. 2. (fig.) make progress, thrive, rise, become famous, prominent.

Crēsĭus (Cressius), a, um, adj. of Crete, Cretan.

Cressa, æ, f. adj. [Κρῆσσα; cf. Cilissa, Phœnissa], Cretan: pharetra: nota, i.e. made with Cretan earth, or chalk, a white mark: cf. creta, II. As subst. a Cretan woman; esp. Ariadne.

cresse, sync. = crevisse, from cresco.

Crēta, æ, f. (-s, ōs, Gk. acc. Crēten), f. Crete, now Candia, an island in the Mediterranean.

crēta, æ, f. [orig. adj. from (1) Creta], I. 1. a white clay found in Crete, Cretan earth; marl; chalk: creta solidanda tenaci; rapidum cretæ Oaxen, the chalk-rolling Oaxes. 2. (as a cosmetic) fine pipe-clay; pearl-powder. 3. a plastic clay used for seals; cf. cretula. II. (fig.) a white mark (for lucky days, as unlucky days were marked with charcoal): cretā an carbone notari.

Crētæus, a, um, adj. Cretan. As subst. Crētæus, i, m. the Cretan, i.e. Epimenides, Propert.

crētātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [creta], plastered, whitened; powdered. Cf. (2) creta, I. 2, and candidatus, candidus.

Crētē, ēs, f. See Creta.

Crētensis, e, adj. Cretan. As subst. Crētenses, ĭum, m. pl. the men of Crete.

Crēticus, a, um, adj. Cretan. As subst. Crēticus, i, m. an agnomen of Q. Metellus, who subdued Crete, B.c. 69-71.

crētio, ōnis, f. [cerno, II. 6], a declaration on the heir's part of his acceptance of an inheritance: simplex, an isolated acceptance, i.e. no other persons decided to accept, Cic.

Crētis, ĭdis, f. adj. Cretan: nymphæ pavisse feruntur Cretides.

crētōsus, a, um, adj. [(2) creta], abounding in white clay or marl, chalky: rura Cimoli.

crētŭla, æ, f. [dim. id.], a plastic clay used in sealing letters (γῆ σφαγιστρίς).

(1) crētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cerno.

(2) crētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cresco, arisen, sprung from, born, descended: Troiano a sanguine Crēmus: (with abl. of origin alone) Pandarus et Bitias Idæo Alcanore creti.

Crĕūsa, æ, f. 1. daughter of Creon, king of Corinth, and wife of Iason; also called Glauce. Her death was caused by a poisoned robe sent by Medea. 2. a daughter of Priam, and wife of Aeneas.

cribrum, i, n. [root KRI-, separate: cf. κρίνω, cerno], a sieve, strainer, riddle.

crīmĕn, ĭnis, n. [cf. cerno; κρίνω, cribrum], I. 1. a charge, accusation, a count, (of an accusation or indictment); a reproach: aliquid alicui crimini dare, to charge something against a person, lay it to his charge; esse in crimine, to stand charged; here in crimen veniet, will get the blame: crimina belli, the calumnies which make a pretext for war. 2. (meton.) an object of reproach, a scandal: perpetuæ crimen posteritatis eris. II. 1. (= res criminosa), a criminal act viewed as the foundation for a charge: a fault, offence, wrong, crime; guilt. See Catil. in Cic. Lib. § 7. 2. (meton.) (a) an object representing a crime: pictas vestes, caelestia crimina, i.e. which witnessed to the crimes of the gods; (b) a cause of crime; a guilty cause, a culprit, delinquent, se causam clamat crimenque; Baiae, crimen amoris, aquae.

crīmĭnātio, ōnis, f. [criminor], an accusation, incrimination.

crīmĭnātor, ōris, m. [id.], an accuser, traducer, calumniator.

crīmĭnor, āri, ātus sum, [crimen], trans. dep. 1. charge, accuse, incriminate, impeach. 2. find fault with, denounce, make reflections upon.

crīmĭnōsē, adv. [criminosus], by way of accusation, so as to imply guilt, in censorious terms, scandalously. Compar. criminosius; superl. criminosissime.

crīmĭnōsus, a, um, adj. [crimen], 1. full of charges, accusations, invective, etc.; slanderous, scurrilous, abusive. 2 blameworthy, culpable.

Crīmīsus (-issus), i, m. a river in the W. of Sicily.

crīnālis, e, adj. [crinis], I. of the hair, hair-: vittae, i.e. hair-bands; aurum, a hair-band of gold; or, perhaps, a hair-pin or comb. As subst. crīnāle, is, n. a hair-pin, comb for the hair. II. furnished with hair-like feelers: polypus, Ov.

(?) crīni-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [crinis; gero], wearing long hair.

crīnis, is, m. I. hair; esp. of the head. In pl. sts. a lock of hair, a curl. II. (meton.) 1. the tail or train of a comet or shooting-star. 2. a feeler of a polypus, etc.

crīnītus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [crinis], I. having long hair, hairy. 2. crested, waving: triplici iubâ galea. 3. with hairlike tail: stella, i.e. a comet.

crispo, āre, ātum, [crispus], A. (trans.) 1. curl, crisp, crimp. 2. make to wave, ruffle, roughen; agitate, shake. 3. wave, brandish, swing. B. (intrans.) curl, jerk: naso crispante, Pers. Only in pres. part.

crispŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. id.], curled, having curled hair.

(1) crispus, a, um, adj. I. curled, crimped. II. (meton.) 1. (of persons) curly-headed. 2. (of things) (a) crisp, wavy, rumpled, wrinkled, gnarled; (b) in waving motion, quivering. Superl. crispissimus.

(2) Crispus, i, m. a Roman surname.

crista, æ, f. [akin to κόρυς], I. 1. the tuft, crest, top-knot, or comb of a bird. 2. the crest of a serpent. II. (meton.) the crest (of a helmet), plume.

cristātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [crista], I. tufted, crested, having a comb or top-knot: ales, i.e. the cock. II. wearing a plume or crest: Achilles.

Critĭas, æ, m. a pupil of Socrates, and one of the thirty tyrants at Athens.

‡ crĭticus, a, um, adj. [κριτικός], capable of judging. As subst. criticus, i, m. a critic.

Crītō (-ōn), ōnis, m. I. a friend and pupil of Socrates. 2. the name of a physician.

Crītōbūlus, i, m. a pupil of Socrates.

Crītōlāus, i, m. a Peripatetic philosopher sent by the Athenians as ambassador to Rome, B.c. 155.

Crŏcălē, ēs, f. [κροκάλη, many-pebbled], a nymph, daughter of Ismenus, Ov.

crŏcĕus, a, um, adj. [crocus], I. of saffron, saffron-: crocei odores, i.e. sweet-smelling saffron, Virg. II. (meton.) saffron-coloured, yellow, golden.

‡ crŏcĭnus, a, um, adj. [κρόκινος], = croceus. As subst. crŏcĭnum, i, n. (sc. oleum), saffron-oil.

‡ crŏcŏdīlus (by Metathesis corcŏdīlus), i, m. [κροκόδειλος], a crocodile.

crŏcŏs. See crocus.

‡ crŏcŏta, æ, f. [ὁ κροκωτός, sc. χιτών), a saffron-coloured robe or gala dress for women, worn at the festivals of Dionysus; also worn by priests of Cybele. It was adopted by Roman ladies and by effeminate dandies.

(1) crŏcus, i, m. (-um, i, n.), [κρόκος], I. saffron. II. (meton.) 1. essence of saffron, saffron-water, used as a perfume for sprinkling the stage. 2. saffron colour.

(2) Crŏcus (-ŏs), i, m. a youth changed by the gods into a saffron plant.

Croesus, i, m. I. the last king of Lydia, famed for his wealth; reigned B.C. 560-546. II. (appellative) a Croesus, a rich man, millionaire.

Crŏmyōn, ōnis, (acc. sing. Crŏmyŏnă), a town on the Saronic Gulfs, famous for its wild sow, which was killed by Theseus.

‡ crŏtălistrĭa, æ, f. [κροταλίζω), a female castanet-player.

‡ crŏtălum, i, n. [κρόταλον), a castanet, rattle, bell.

Crŏto (-ōn), ōnis, m. f. an Achaean city on the E. coast of Bruttium, the residence of Pythagoras and the athlete Milo.

Crŏtōnĭātēs, æ, m. an inhabitant of Crotona.

crŭcĭāmentum, i, n. [crucio], torture, anguish.

crŭcĭātus, ūs, m. [id.], I. 1. torture, torment (at the executioner's hands); a torturing, execution. 2. anguish, agony, pain, suffering. II. (meton.) an instrument of torture.

crŭcio, āre, āvi, ātum, [crux], trans. v. 1. torment, torture, inflict pain on. 2. (fig.) distress, afflict, rack.

crŭdēlĕ, neut. adj.=adv. [crudelis], cruelly.

crŭdēlis, e, adj. [root KRU-; cf. crudus, cruor], 1. hard-hearted, harsh, cruel, barbarous, unmerciful, pitiless. 2. (of things) painful, grievous. Compar. crudelior; superl. crudelissimus.

crŭdēlĭtas, ātis, f. [crudelis], cruelty, barbarity, harshness.

crŭdēlĭtĕr, adv. [id.], cruelly, harshly. Compar. crudelius; superl. crudelissime.

crŭdesco, ĕre, crŭdŭi, [crudus], incept. intrans. v. lit. become raw; grow harsh or violent, grow worse and worse, grow fiercer and fiercer.

crūdĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], indigestion.

crūdus, a, um, adj. [root KRU-; cf. cruor, crudelis], I. all bloody, bleeding, raw. II. (meton.) 1. (of food) raw, uncooked, undressed; undigested. 2. (of persons) dyspeptic. 3. made of raw hide or untanned leather: caestus; pero. 4. untrimmed, unwrought, unfinished, rough: crudo cortice hasta. III. (fig.) 1. unripe, immature, under age. 2. young, fresh; vigorous, hearty: servitium, i.e. untried, new; senectus. 3. (of poetry) rough, harsh, unpolished. 4. harsh, stern, cruel, bloody, inhuman: Atreus; belia. 5. low, raffish, uncivilised. 6. (of reading) undigested, not maturely considered. Compar. crudior; superl. crudissimus.

crŭentē, adv. [cruentus], bloodily, cruelly.

crŭento, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. 1. make bloody or gory, stain with blood. 2. (meton.) dye red; stain. 3. (fig.) draw one's blood, wound: haec te cruentat oratio.

crŭentus, a, um, adj. [cruor], 1. bloody, blood-stained, gory. 2. (meton.) blood-red, crimson, damask. 3. (fig.) delighting in blood, murderous, bloodthirsty; bloody, cruel: Achilles; irae; gaudens Bellona cruenta (neut.), in deeds of blood. Compar. cruentior; superl. cruentissimus.

crŭmēna (-ĭna), æ, f. [deriv. dub.), a leathern pouch or purse.

crŭor, ōris, m. [cf. κρύος; crudus], I. 1. blood from a wound, blood when shed, gore. Cf. sanguis. 2. (rarely, and poet.), blood in the body,=sanguis. II. (fig.) bloodshed, murder.

cruppellārĭi, ōrum, m. pl. [Celtic word], a class of men who fought completely armed in steel.

crūs, crūris, n. the leg (below the knee); the shank, shin.

crusta, æ, f. [cf. crudus], I. a hard external formation, crust, coating, rind, shell, bark, etc., (poet.) tile. II. 1. stucco-work; mosaic work: Phrygiis sola levia consere crustis, inlay your floors with mosaics of Phrygian marble. 2. embossed work; esp. figures in low relief (opp. to emblemata) embossed on goblets, etc.: Heliadum crustas capaces, i.e. large goblets embossed with figures in amber, luv.

crusto, āre, āvi, ātum, [crusta], trans. v. coat, overlay, plaster, encrust; emboss with figures.

crustŭlum, i, n. [dim. crustum], a small cake, tartlet; pastry, confectionery.

crustum, i, n. [cf. crusta], a piece of bread, cake, or pastry.

Crustŭmĕri, ōrum, m. pl., Crustŭmēria, æ, f. (-ium, ĭi, n.), also Crustŭmium, ĭi, n. an ancient town of the Sabines, about 15 miles from Rome.

Crustŭmīnus (Crustŭmĭus), a, um, adj. of Crustumium or Crustumeria. As subst. Crustŭmini, ōrum, m. pl. the men of C.

crux, crŭcis, f. 1. a cross, an instrument of torture on which slaves and criminals were impaled or hanged. 2. (fig.) mental anguish; trouble, misery; a plague, pest: Abi in crucem, or in malam crucem, go to perdition! be hanged to you!

‡ crypta, æ, f. [κρύπτη], 1. a covered gallery, cloister. 2. a subterranean passage, vault, grotto, tunnel, sewer: Suburrae, i.e. the main drain of the Suburra.

‡ crypto-porticus, ūs, f. [κρυπτός], a covered gallery, arcade.

‡ crystallĭnus, a, um, adj. [κρυστάλλινος], of crystal, crystal, crystalline. As subst. crystallĭna, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. vasa), crystal vases, vessels of pure white glass.

‡ crystallum, i, n. (-us, i, f.), [κρυστάλλος], I. rock-crystal, crystal. II. (meton.) 1. a crystal goblet, a goblet of pure white glass. 2. a gem, precious stone in a ring: aquosa.

‡ crystallus, i, f. See crystallum.

cŭbans, ntis, part. from cubo. As adj. I. confined to one's bed, laid up, ill. II. sloping, low-lying, Hor., Lucr.

cŭbĭcŭlāris, e, adj. [cubiculum], of or belonging to a bedchamber.

cŭbĭcŭlārĭus, a, um, adj.=cubicularis. As subst. cŭbĭcŭlārĭus, ĭi, m. a chamberlain, groom of the bedchamber, valet-de-chambre.

cŭbĭcŭlum (sync. cŭbĭclum), i, n. [cubo], I. a room furnished with a sofa or bed, a bedchamber, sleeping apartment. 2. the imperial box at the circus or amphitheatre.

cŭbīle, is, n. [id.], I. 1. a place to lie down in, a resting-place; a couch, bed; esp. the marriage-bed. 2. a chamber. 3. (of animals) a lair, den; a kennel, hole, sty; a hive (of bees). II. (fig.) a lair, den: pecunia vestigiisne nobis odoranda est, an ad ipsum cubile venire possumus?

cŭbĭtāl, ālis, n. [id.], a cushion to recline upon, an elbow-cushion.

cŭbĭtālis, e, adj. [cubitum], lit. of the elbow; an ell long, a cubit high.

cŭbĭto, āre, āvi, [freq. cubo], intrans. v. lie down often, recline, repose.

cŭbĭtum, i, n. (-us, i, m.), [cubo], I. the elbow, the arm below the elbow; cubito tangere, to nudge: in cubitum se reponere, to lean again on the (left) elbow, the usual attitude when not eating; cf. cubito remanete presso, with the (left) elbow deep in the cushion, Hor. II. (as a measure of length), a cubit, an ell (18 inches).

cŭbo, āre, ŭi, ĭtum, (irreg. perf. subj. cubāsis=cubaveris; perf. infin. cubāsse), [cf. κύπτω), I. lie down, recline; be on a couch or in bed. 2. sleep, repose. 3. recline at table. 4. keep one's bed, be laid up, ill. 5. (of things) (a) slope, slant; (b) lie calm or unruffled: quā cubat unda freti.

(1) cucullus, i, m. [root KAL-; cf. cella; καλύπτω), I. a hood, cowl. II. a screw-paper, used as a wrapper by chemists and other tradesmen, Mart.

(2) cucullus (better cucullus), i, m. [onomatop. cf. κόκκυξ, κοκκύζω), I. a cuckoo. II. (as a term of insult), lazy loon, lubber: magnā compellans voce cuculum.

cucŭma, æ, f. [coquo], 1. a kettle. 2. a bath-tub, copper.

cucŭmis, ĕris (sts. -is), m. a cucumber.

cucurbĭta, ae, f. I. a pumpkin, gourd. II. a cupping-glass shaped like a gourd.

(1) cūdo, ĕre, trans. v. 1. strike, beat, pound, knock, thresh. Prov.: istaec in me cudetur faba, that bean will be cracked on my head, i.e. I shall suffer for it. 2. hammer, forge, stamp, coin.

(2) cūdo, ōnis, m. a skull-cap of raw hide, worn by Roman light-armed troops.

cuicumŏdi, for cuiuscuiusmodi, gen. of quality, (quisquis, modus), of what sort soever, of whatever kind.

cūiās (quōiās), ātis, gentile pronom. adj. [(1) cuius], of what country? from what place? whence?

(1) cūius (quōius), a, um, interrog. pronom. adj. [quis?], whose? belonging to whom? Dic mihi, Damoeta, cuium pecus? an Meliboei?

(2) cūius (quōius), a, um, rel. pronom. adj. [cuius, gen. of qui], of whom, whose: ut optimā conditione sit is cuia res sit, cuium periculum.

(3) cūius, (ā) gen. of quis, interrog.: (b) gen. of qui, rel. pron.

cūius-mŏdi, gen. of quality, (quis, modus), 1. of what kind or sort. 2. of whatever kind.

cūiusquĕ-mŏdi, gen. of quality, (quisque; modus), of any and every kind.

culcita, ae, f. a mattress, cushion, bed, stuffed with feathers, wool, hair, etc.

culcĭtella, ae, f. [dim. culcita], a small mattress or cushion.

culcĭtra, ae, f.=culcita.

‡ cŭleus (cull-, coll-), i, m. (κολεός, κοιλεός, a sheath], I. a leather sack or bag: in culeum insuere, to sew up in a bag (with a dog, a cock, a viper, and an ape); the punishment of parricides. II. a liquid measure containing 20 amphorae (118 gallons); a pipe or butt.

cŭlex, ĭcis, m. a gnat, midge, mosquito.

cūlĭlus (cūlullus), i, m. [akin to culigna=κυλίχνη], 1. a sacrificial vessel, used by the pontiffs and vestals. 2. a goblet, beaker, Hor.

cūlīna, ae, f. [? for coc-lina; coquo], I. 1. a kitchen. 2. a portable stove, brazier. II. (meton.) fare, cheer; 'cuisine': Murenā praebente domum, Capitone culinam.

cullĕus. See culeus.

culmen, ĭnis, n. [contr. for columen, q.v.], I. 1. the top or summit of anything; 2. a peak, ridge, height. 2. the stalk of a plant. 3. a gable, roof. II. (fig.) the summit, height, acme: fortunae.

culmus, i, m. [cf. culmen, calamus], a stalk, stem, straw, haulm, esp. of grain; straw thatch.

culpa, ae, f. I. 1. blame, fault, moral guilt, crime, error, defect: conferre culpam in aliquem, to throw the blame on a person; culpam invenire, to incur guilt; in culpā esse, to be in fault, to be to blame. 2. (legal term) criminal neglect; thriftlessness: nec sum facturus (rem) vitio culpāve minorem. 3. weakness, esp. of lovers, frailty, unchastity, 'a faux pas,' peccadillo, misconduct, Ov., Catull. II. (meton.) anything mischievous; mischief, bane; a culprit: continuo culpam [sc. ovem nocentem] ferro compesce.

culpātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from culpo. As adj. blameworthy, guilty: Paris.

culpo, āre, āvi, ātum, [culpa], trans. v. 1. blame, censure, condemn, reprove. 2. find fault with, complain of: absque nunc aquas Culpante; culpantur calami.

cultē, adv. [cultus], elegantly. Compar. cultius.

cultellus, i. m. [dim. culter, for culterulus], a small knife.

culter, tri, m. [root KER-; cf. curtus; κείρω, κουρά], 1. a knife (for sacrifices, as well as for ordinary purposes); a butcher's knife, kitchen-knife, pruning-knife. Prov.: sub cultro, i.e. like a victim, with the knife at his throat. 2. a razor: tonsorius. 3. a hunting-knife: venatorius. 4. the coulter of a plough.

cultĭo, ōnis, f. [colo], cultivation, tilling: agri, agriculture.

cultor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who bestows attention and labour on a thing; a cultivator, tiller, dresser, husbandman, farmer. Sts. in app.=adj. bos. 2. one who frequents or dwells in, an inhabitant, tenant: nemorum. 3. a fosterer, supporter, observer: aequi; legum. 4. a worshipper, votary: deorum.

cultrārius, ii, m. [culter], the sacrificing priest's assistant, who despatched the victim by cutting its throat; the slayer of a victim.

cultrix, ĭcis, f. [cultor], 1. a female dweller, inhabitant: nemorum: (poet. with local abl.) montibus, Catull. 2. (of things) a worshipper, votary: foci patella. 3. a cultivator, care-taker, fosterer.

cultŭra, ae, f. [colo'], I. a cultivation; tillage, husbandry, agriculture. II. (fig.) 1. culture, refinement. 2. attendance upon, paying court to: nostris amici.

(1) cultus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from colo. As adj. 1. cultivated, tilled, tended. As subst. culta, ōrum, n. pl. tilled lands, cornfields, meads, orchards. 2. ornamented, adorned, elegant, well got up, spruce, trim, cultivated, polished. 3. waited upon, courted, worshipped. Compar. cultior; superl. cultissimus.

(2) cultus, ūs, m. [colo], I. a cultivation, tillage, farming; a tending, care, attention to, treatment: patrios cultusque habitusque locorum; qui cultus habendo sit pecori. II. (fig.) 1. training, education, culture: recti cultus pectora roborant. 2. mode of life, style of living; culture, civilisation, refinement, elegance: funera sunt pro cultu Gallorum magnifica; gens aspera cultu. 3. self-indulgence, luxury: regio victu atque cultu aetatem agere. 4. style of dress, outward bearing; attire, apparel. 5. rich dress, ornaments of dress, splendour, decoration. 6. respect paid, reverential care, honour, worship, court, attention: deorum; de adventu regis et cultu sui; fallaci veneratus numina cultu.

cūlullus, i. See cullilus.

cūlus, i, m. [cf. κοῖλος], the fundament, breech.

(1) cum (old form com), prep. with abl.; joined to and placed after the abl. of ego, tu, sui, and qui, as mecum, vobiscum, quibuscum. 1. with, together with, along with, in company with: Remo cum fratre Quirinus. 2. (of time) coincidently with: cum primā luce, at daybreak; pariter cum ortu solis, exactly at sunrise. 3. (of coincident circumstances) (a) with, attended by: magno cum dolore loquor; cum bonā alite, under happy auspices; ille (fulvius) suo cum gurgite flavo Accipit venientem; cum pernicie reipublicae, to the ruin of the state; vir haud magnā cum re, of no great property; cultus cum elegantiā et copiā=elegans et copiosus; cum silentio, in silence; cum summo imperio esse, to be in chief command. (b like ἔχων in Greek; containing, wearing, having, etc.: onerariae naves cum mercatu; homines cum gladiis adsunt; madidā cum veste gravatus, all in my dripping garments; cognovi te Romam venisse cum febri. (c) in the phrase cum eo quod, or ut, or ne=on condition that, with the limitation that. 4. (of reciprocal action, or comparison) with: bellum gessit cum Helvetiis; tecum loquar; cum his mihi res sit qui probant, let me deal with those who; conferre Sullam cum Iulio.

(2) cum (quum, quom), conj. [qui], I. (temporal) A. with indic. (a) of present or future tenses; when, in that: cum hunc accusant, Naevium Plautum, Ennium accusant, in that they accuse me, they accuse Naevius, etc.; or, in accusing, in the very fact of their accusing; cum haec leges, habebimus consules. (b) with past tenses, of two strictly contemporaneous events, often with tum in the principal clause; vos tum paruistis cum paruit nemo; tum cum res magnas permulti amiserant, scimus Romae fidem concidisse, at the very time that, etc. (c) in reckoning the length of time, =ex quo tempore; nondum sex menses sunt cum huc commigravit, it is not yet six months since (to the time when) he moved hither. (d) in a frequentative sense=quoties cum rosam videsti, tum incipere ver arbitrabatur, whenever (as often as) he saw a rose, he judged that spring was commencing; cum ad villam veni, delectat me nihil agere. (e) in an inverted construction,=ecce tum; often with repente, interim, iam, etc.: iamscalis egressi milites prope summa ceperant, cum oppidani concurrunt, and suddenly, and at once. Cf. P.S.L.G. § 212; Roby, § 1733. B. with subj. (a) in describing past events, with imperf. or pluperf.: cum ibi venissem, Caium convenī; Epaminondas cum vicisset (having conquered) Lacedaemonios atque ipse gravi vulnere exanimari se videret (and seeing that he), quaesivit salvusne esset clipeus. (β) with iterative force: Zenonem, cum Athenis essem, audiebam frequenter, when I was at Athens (which was more than once). (γ) in a causal sense; because, seeing that, since: quae cum ita sint (this being the case), Catilina, perge quo coepisti. (δ) in a concessive sense; although, whereas: ipse Cicero, cum tenuissimā valetudine esset, ne nocturnum quidem sibi tempus ad quietem relinquebat; cum liber esse posset, servire maluit, whereas he might have been, or, instead of being free: quae cum ita essent, nevertheless. (ε) when a contrast is implied; nobilissimas urbes captas esse commemorem, cum vestros portus in praedonum fuisse sciatis? and yet, while all the time: cum praesertim, and that too, though. (ζ) in a consecutive sense,=quali tempore: erat illud profecto tempus . . cum tu fortissimi viri magnitudinem animi desideres, a time will come when, i.e. such a time that; fuit cum arbitrarer, there was a time when I judged. II. cum . . , tum, both . . and especially, while . . also, not only . . but more, both . . as well as: cum multis in rebus neglegentiā plectimur, tum maxime in amicis et diligendis et colendis. In comparisons and contrasts usually takes subj., and always subj. with the imperf.

Cūmae, ārum, f. pl., also Cȳmē, ēs, a city of Campania, founded by settlers from Cyme in Asia and from Chalcis in Euboea (B.C. 1050): famed for its red earthenware and the Sibyl.

Cūmaeus (Cȳmaeus), a, um, adj. of or from Cumae, Cumaean: vates, i.e. the Sibyl.

Cūmānus, a, um, adj. of Cumae, Cumaean: fictaque Cumanā lubrica terra rotā, i.e. red earthenware from Cumae. As subst. 1. Cūmāni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Cumae. 2. Cūmānum, i, n. an estate of Cicero near Cumae.

cumba, ae, f. See cymba.

cumbo, ĕre, a by-form of cubo; only in compounds, accumbo, recumbo, etc.

cūmĕra, ae, f. (-um, i, n.), a box or pan to keep grain in; a corn-bin, meal-tub.

‡ cūminum (cȳm-), i, n. [κύμινον], cummin; an aromatic plant said to produce paleness; also used as a substitute for pepper.

cum-maximē, also separately cum (quum) maximē, often with nunc, now more than ever, now especially, just now. In adverbial clauses; at the very time when, just when.

cumprimis,=cum primis, with the first; i.e. especially, in particular.

cum-primum (quum), adv. and conj. as soon as possible.

cum (quum) praesertim, and that too, though; when, which makes it the more remarkable.

(1) -cumquĕ (-cunquĕ, quomquĕ), adverbial suffix joined to pronouns and pronom. adverbs, with generalising force, [cumque], -ever, -soever, however, howsoever, whenever; quicunque, quotiescunque, etc.; sts. alone: mihi cunque salve Rite vocanti, whenso'er I call.

(2) cumquĕ==et cum.

cūmŭlātē, adv. [cumulatus], richly, abundantly, amply. Compar. cumulatius; superl. cumulatissime.

cūmŭlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cumulo. As adj. full, complete, perfect: virtus; quam (veniam) mihi cum dederis cumulatam morte remittam, I will repay it in full, tenderly, with interest, at my death (or, by dying). Compar. cumulatior; superl. cumulatissimus.

cūmŭlo, āre, āvī, ātum, [cumulus], trans. v. I. form into a heap, heap or pile up; accumulate, amass. II. (meton.) 1. augment, heighten: bellicam gloriam eloquentiā. 2. fill or heap full, load: overload, overwhelm: altaria donis. III. (fig.) 1. heap up, heap together: benefacta; honores. 2. make up to the full, complete: ad cumulandum gaudium. 3. put the finishing stroke to, crown: si cumulas stupri facta minora notā.

cūmŭlus, i, m. [root KU-, swell; cf. κύω, κύμα], I. a heap, pile, mass. II. (fig.) an augmentation, surplus, overplus, culminating point, crowning addition, something extra: addit, Perfidiae cumulum, falsis periuria verbis; acrumnae, the finishing stroke to your misery.

cūnābŭla, ōrum, n. pl. [cunae], I. a child's cradle. II. (meton.) 1. a resting-place; (a) the chambers or cells of a bee-hive; (b) a bird's nest; (c) a birthplace: Iovis; gentis nostrae. 2. birth, origin.

cūnae, ārum, f. pl. [? for cubinae; cubo], I. a cradle. II. (meton.) 1. a nest of young birds. 2. birth, earliest childhood, infancy: illum primis Ino matertera cunis Educat.

cunctābundus (contā-), a, um, adj. [cunctor], lingering, loitering, dilatory, with an air of hesitation, demurring.

cunctans (cont-), ntis, part. from cunctor. As adj. 1. lingering, loitering, dilatory, laggard. 2. (of things) sluggish, resisting, tough, stiff, stubborn: glaebae. Compar. cunctantior.

cunctanter (cont-), adv. [cunctans], with delay, tardily. Compar. cunctantius.

cunctārier (cont-), old infin. pres. from cunctor.

cunctātĭo, ōnis, f. [cunctor], a delaying, lingering; delay, tardiness, hesitation, doubt; (of troops) a hanging back, reluctance to fight.

(1) cunctātor (cont-), ōris, m. [id.], a delayer, lingerer, loiterer, hesitater (in good or bad sense); a drone, 'fainéant'; one who bides his time, a cool, cautious person.

(2) Cunctātor, ōris, m. [id.], the Delayer; an agnomen of the dictator M. Fabius Maximus, whose masterly inactivity and caution kept Hannibal in check after the battles of Cannae and the Trasimene Lake, and eventually wore him out.

cunctor (contor), āri, ātus sum, [Sanscr. cank-, fear, doubt; cf. σκάνω], 1. linger, loiter, tarry, delay (from caution or indecision); hesitate, doubt, hang back, be reluctant. 2. move slowly, stay, lag. Impers.: non cunctandum existimavit quin pugnā decerteret, he thought he ought not to delay to fight a decisive battle.

cunctus, a, um, (more often cuncti, ae, a), adj. (contr.=coniunctus, or (?) covinctus), in sing. all as a whole; in pl. all in a body, all together; the whole, all, entire: cunctus orbis; cuncta Asia; cuncti cives. Sts. with gen.: hominum cunctos ingenti corpore praestans; cuncta terrarum.

cūnĕātim, adv. [cuneus], in a wedge-like form, in wedge-like masses or columns.

cūnĕātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cuneo. As adj. pointed like a wedge, wedge-shaped. Compar. cuneatior.

cūnĕo, āre, āvi, ātum, [cuneus], trans. v. 1. fasten with wedges, wedge, fasten. 2. make wedge-shaped.

cūnēus, i, m. [cf. Sanscr. çânas; cos, cautes; κώνος], I. 1. a wedge: quercum cuneis coactis scindere, with wedges driven home. 2. (in a ship) the pins or rivets that hold the timbers together: iamque labant cunei. II. (meton.) 1. a column of troops in wedge-like formation: densi cuneis se quisque coactis Adglomerant, in wedge-like phalanx. 2. a wedge-shaped block of seats in a theatre or amphitheatre; the benches: ad tumultum cuneosque theatri. 3. the spectators in the cunei of a theatre: ut vero cuneis notuit res omnibus.

cūnīcŭlōsus, a, um, adj. [cuniculus], 1. abounding in rabbits. 2. cavernous.

cūnīcŭlus, i, m. [Spanish word; κόνικλος, κύνικλος], I. 1. a rabbit, coney. II. (meton.) 1. a subterranean gallery or passage: cuniculos agere, work a mine, burrow, tunnel. 2. a mine (in military operations). III. (fig.) a mine or secret artifice, underhand manœuvre, 'ruse de guerre.'

cunnus, i, m. a coarse and contemptuous term for a loose woman; a wench, punk, trull.

-cunquĕ. See (1) cumque.

(1) cūpa (cuppa), ae, f. [cf. Sanscr. kûpas, an oil-flask], a cask, butt, barrel: vinum de cupā, wine from the wood.

(2) cūpa, ae, f.=copa, q.v.

cupēdĭa, cupēdĭnārius. See cupp-.

cupēdo, ĭnis. See cupido.

cŭpĭdē, adv. [cupidus], eagerly, earnestly, passionately, fondly, warmly. Compar. cupidius; superl. cupidissime.

Cŭpĭdĭnēus, a, um, adj. [Cupido], 1. of or belonging to Cupid, Cupid's: tela. 2. Cupid-like; lovely, charming.

cŭpĭdĭtas, ātis, f. [cupidus], I. 1. an eager desire, longing (in a good sense). 2. over-zeal, over-eagerness: temeritatem cupiditatemque militum reprehendit, Caes. II. (in a bad sense) (a) an ardent desire, passion, lust, greed; (b) avarice, cupidity, covetousness; (c) lust of power, ambition, self-seeking; (d) partisan spirit, spirit of intrigue; (e) goodwill to a person, enthusiasm, devotion: tanta cupiditas apud humiliores.

cŭpīdo (cuppēdo, cūpēdo, Lucr.), ĭnis, f. and sts. m. in poet., always m. in Horace, [id.], I. a desire, strong wish, longing, ambition, eagerness (either in good or bad sense). 2. passion, lust, greed. II. 1. the passion of love: love, desire. 2. desire for riches, covetousness, avarice. III. (personified) Cŭpīdo, ĭnis, m. Cupid, the son of Venus, the goddess of love. In pl. the Loves, the Cupids.

cŭpĭdus, a, um, adj. [cupio], I. 1. desirous, eager, forward, zealous, ambitious; longing for, eager for. 2. (in a bad sense) passionate, selfish, greedy, lustful. II. 1. longing (from love), pining, fond. 2. desirous of money, avaricious, covetous. 3. devoted to a person or a party, partial, attached to: quae maxime vehementer Verris cupidi, violent partisans of V. Compar. cupidior; superl. cupidissimus.

cŭpiens, ntis, part. from cupio. As adj. desirous, desiring, longing, eager for: novarum rerum; Marius cupientissimā plebe consul factus est, to the intense delight of the commons.

cŭpĭo, cŭpĕre, cŭpīvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. and intrans. v. : A. (trans.) desire, wish for ardently, long for: saepe fugam Danai Troiā cupiere relictā; mori; cuperem ipse parens spectator adesset. Sts. absol. be impatient, eager, desire: qui cupit aut metuit; omnibus cupientibus ad hostium castra contendit, all being anxious or eager, i.e. to the delight of everybody. B. (intrans.) wish well to, be anxious to oblige, favour: (with dat.) facere et cupere Helvetiis; (with gen. dependent on causā) qui istius causā cupiunt omnia, who are the defendant's most obedient servants to command; cupio omnia quae vis (colloq.), I am very much at your service.

cŭpītor, ōris, m. [cupio], one who desires or wishes for: matrimonii.

cupītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from cupio.

cuppēdia (cŭp-), ae, f. 1. fondness for dainties, daintiness, 'friandise.' 2. (pl.) titbits, dainties, kickshaws.

cuppēdĭnārius (cŭp-), a, um, adj. [cuppedia], of or belonging to dainties, etc. As subst. cuppēdĭnārius (cŭp-), ĭi, m. a purveyor of choice viands, a caterer of good things.

cuppēdium (cŭp-), ĭi, n. a titbit, delicacy, 'bonne bouche.' Mostly in pl.

(1) cuppēdo (cŭp-), ĭnis. See cupido.

(2) cuppēdo (cŭp-), ĭnis, f. [cupio], a delicacy.

cupressētum, ĭ, n. [cupressus], a cypress grove or plantation.

cupressĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], of cypress, cypress-.

cupressī-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [cupressus; fero], cypress-bearing.

‡ cupressus, ī (less frequently ūs), f. (κυπάρισσος), 1. a cypress-tree sacred to Pluto, and used at funerals. 2. (meton.) a box (capsa) of cypress wood for keeping valuable MSS., Hor. A.P. 332.

cŭr (anciently quor), interrog. particle, [contr. =quare], why? for what reason? wherefore? cur in amicorum vitiis tam cernis acutum? In indirect questions: (a) cur sit lata lex ipsum indicabit tempus; quid fuit causae cur in Africam Caesarem non sequerere? (b) with pregnant force, mostly after verbs expressing anger, surprise, blame, etc.: iracsar amicis Cur me funesto properet arcere veterno, I am angry with my friends for their eagerness to shield me; lit. I am angry (asking) why they are eager. In Oratio Recta the question would be our properatis? gratulor, cur invasit cur silerent; in quo demiror cur . . . dicas. (c)=cuius causā or propter quod; for which cause, reason, etc.; why, on account of which; that on this account: quae-sisse dicitur, quare id faceret, aut quid Cassium commisisset, cur tantā poenā dignus duceretur? multa quidem dixi cur excusatus abirem, I named many reasons for going excused: nec patris Anchisae cinerem manesve revelli Cur (=ut ob causā, ut ob eam rem) mea dicta negret duras demittere in aures, so that on that account, Virg.

cūra, ae, f. [root CAV-; cf. caveo, causa], I. 1. care, attention, interest, thought, pains; regard for, thought of (a person or thing): curae alicui esse, to be an object of care; to have a person's attention; Caesar pollicitus eis sibi eam rem curae futuram esse, that he would attend to the matter, take it in hand, concern himself about it; curae aliquid habere, to have something as an object of care, be concerned about; gratiosi cohortatus ut petitionem suam curae haberent to be zealous in their support of his candidature; in curā esse alicuius rei, to be wrapped in thought about, ponder over. 2. management, administration, charge, oversight; business, work, duty, office, province. 3. care, taking care of, tending; cultivation: boum; lentis. 4. application, diligence: curā vigili omnia perspicere. II. (meton.) 1. care, concern, anxiety, solicitude, unhappiness, trouble, grief. 2. (abstr. for concr. =curator) an attendant, keeper: immundae curae pudicus harae, i.e. the swineherd Eumaeus. 3. the care, pain, pangs, or anxiety of love; love, an attachment: iuvenum curas et libera vina referre. 4. the beloved object, a love, darling, pet, 'protégé': tua cura, Lycoris; iuvenum curae puellae cura; raucae tua cura, palumbes. 5. a written work: quorum in manus cura nostra venerit; prior, i.e. a former edition; curae secundae, a revision; curae rudes, rough copies.

cūrābilis, e, adj. [curo], 1. that causes anxiety, formidable. 2. standing in need of remedy.

cūrālium, ĭi, n. See coralium.

cūrātĭo, ōnis, f. [curo], 1. a taking care, management, charge, administration. 2. the office of curator, a special commissionership; management, administration. 3. (in medicine) a method of treatment, means of cure, application of remedies.

cūrātius, compar. adv. [curatus], more carefully, elaborately, minutely.

cūrātor (anciently coerator), ōris, m. [curo], 1. one who takes the care or charge of something: a manager, overseer, superintendent, keeper; a special commissioner. 2. a guardian, trustee (of a minor, or a lunatic, etc.).

cūrātūra, ae, f. [id.], management, treatment.

cūrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from curo. As adj. 1. earnest, urgent: preces curatissimae. 2. taken care of, attended to, managed. Compar. curatior; superl. curatissimus.

curcŭlĭo (gurgŭlĭo), ōnis, m. a corn-worm, weevil.

Cūrensis, e, adj. of or from Cures.

(1) Cŭres, ĭum, m. f. pl. [Sabine word curis=hasta], I. an ancient town of the Sabines. 2. (meton.) the people of Cures; the Sabines.

(2) Cŭres, ētis, m. a man of Cures: tubicen vicinia Curetis cum quateret saxa Iovis, Prop.

Cūrētēs, um, m. pl. a mythic people of Crete, often identified with the Corybantes as priests of Cybele, who drowned with the clashing of their cymbals the cries of the infant Zeus (Iuppiter).

(1) Cūrētis, ĭdis, f. adj. 1. of or belonging to the Curetes. II. (meton.) Cretan: terra, Ov.

(2) Cūrētis, is, m. an inhabitant of Cures, Propert.

cūria, ae, f. [for coviria, a union of men; or akin to Quiris], I. a curia, ward; one of the thirty sections of the Roman people made by Romulus, ten for each tribe. II. (meton.) 1. a building in which the curiae met for religious services; the chapel or common hall of the curiae. Four of these remained in existence, and were called veteres curiae. 2. the Curia Hostilia, where the Senate held its sittings; the Senate-house. 3. the Senate; esp. as an emblem of law: pro curia inversique mores. 4. the Senators. 5. a council-chamber or council out of Rome: curia Martis Athenis, i.e. the Areopagus.

cūriālis, e, adj. [curia], of the same curia. As subst. cūriālis, is, m. one of the same curia, a wardsman.

Cūriānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Curius or the Curii, Curian.

Cūriātii, ōrum, m. pl. an Alban gens. Three brothers of this family fell fighting with the three Roman Horatii.

cūriātim, adv. [curia], by curies.

Cūriātius, ii, m. a Roman name.

cūriātus, a, um, adj. [curia], of or belonging to the curiae: Comitia, in which the people voted in curiae. See Dict. Ant.

Cūrii, ōrum, m. pl. poet.=Curtii: Curios fratres et Horatia pila.

cūrio, ōnis, m. [curia], 1. the priest of a curia. The president of the thirty curiones (see curia) was called Curio Maximus. 2. a crier, herald: epigrammata curionе non egent.

cūriōsē, adv. [curiosus], with care or nicety; carefully, diligently; inquisitively. Compar. curiosius; superl. curiosissime.

cūriōsitas, ātis, f. [curiosus], curiosity, inquisitiveness.

Cūriōsōlītes, um (-æ, ārum), m. pl. a Celtic tribe in Armorica; their name survives in Corseult, near Dinan.

cūriōsus, a, um, adj. [cura], 1. full of care or pains, painstaking, careful, assiduous, punctilious, particular, nice. 2. eager in looking into things; (in a bad sense) inquisitive, prying, meddlesome, officious. As subst. cūriōsus, i, m. a spy, scout, busybody. Compar. curiosior; superl. curiosissimus.

cūris (quiris), ĭtis, f. [Sabine word], a spear.

Cūrius, ii, m. Curius; esp. M. Curius Dentatus, consul B.C. 290, conqueror of the Samnites and of Pyrrhus, noted for his frugality and virtue. As appell. a brave, moderate, and virtuous man: qui Curios simulant et Bacchanalia vivunt.

cūro, āre, āvi, ātum, [cura], trans. v. 1. take care of, care for, pay attention to, mind, tend, see to, be concerned about; heed, regard: corpus curare, to look after one's self, take refreshment. Sc. pelliculam, cutem, curare, to make one's self comfortable, take care of number one: cf. genium curare. 2. be anxious, take care (with ut and subj.): cura ut valeas (a formula in concluding letters), take care of your health, farewell: (without ut) simplici myrto nihil adlabores sedulus curo, I desire you in your diligence to add nothing, I have no desire that you should take pains to add anything, Hor. 3. (with acc. and gerundive) have something done, order: fratrem interficiendum; obsides inter eos dandos curavit, procured an exchange of hostages. Sts. with perf. pass. part.: inventum curabo. 4. (with infin.) make it one's task or business, take the trouble to do a thing. 5. superintend, manage, preside over, arrange, plan, administer; often techn. of civil and military administration; sts. absol. take the lead, command, be in charge. 6. (medical term) treat, dress, heal, cure. 7. (business techn. t.) (a) raise (money), arrange to pay, Cic.; (b) settle, pay: redemptori tuo dimidium pecuniae curavi (sc. solvendum); Bruto curata hoc anno talenta circiter C.

currĭcŭlum, i, n. [dim. currus], I. 1. a racing-car, chariot. 2. a race-ground, course. In pl. the rounds, circuits of a course. Cf. spatium. 3. a running, race: curriculo currere, to run hurriedly, in all haste. II. (meton.) a course, career.

curro, ĕre, cŭcurri, cursum, (root KAR-, move quickly; cf. coruscus, celer), trans. v. 1. run. Proverbs: (a) Currentem incitare, to spur the willing jade; (b) Aselum In Campo doceo currere, teach an ass to gallop like a racer, i.e. throw away one's labour. 2. (of any rapid motion) fly, scud along, hasten, pass, quickly, sail, shoot, glide, speed on. 3. (with acc. of space traversed) run over, speed along: iter; aequor; saecla; (with cogn. acc.) stadium.

currus, ūs, m. [curro], I. a chariot, car, wain; sts. a triumphal car, or a war-chariot. II. (meton.) 1. a chariot and horses, team: neque audit currus habenas. 2. the carriage-part of a plough on wheels; the plough in motion. 3. (poet. of a ship) volitantem flamine currum, a car to scud before the breeze.

cursim, adv. [id.], hastily, speedily.

cursĭto, āre, [freq. curso], intrans. v. run hither and thither, run about.

(1) cursor, ōris, m. [curro], I. 1. a runner in a race. 2. a courier, post. 3. a running footman, lackey. II. (meton.) a charioteer, racing jockey: cupidi cursor frena retentat equi.

(2) Cursor, ōris, m. the Runner; a surname of L. Papirius.

cursus, ūs, m. [curro], I. 1. any rapid movement from one place to another; a running, race, course, chase, flight, passage, route, voyage, march, journey: cursum tenere, to keep a straight course; cursum exspectare, i.e. wait for a fair wind. 2. running speed, pace: ut (equorum) cursum adaequarent, they kept up with the full gallop; magno cursu, at the top of their speed. 3. (poet.) mode of running or walking, gait. II. (fig.) a way, road, direction, course, progress, advance: In cursu esse, to be going on, advancing, in progress, in mid career.

Curtĭus, ii, m. a Roman name; esp. (a) Mettus (Mettius) Curtius, a Sabine warrior, and (b) M. Curtius, a Roman warrior, who jumped on horseback in full armour into a chasm in the forum.

Curtius Lăcus, a chasm in the forum which closed up after the famous leap of M. Curtius, B.C. 362.

curto, āre, āvi, ātum, [curtus], trans. v. cut short, diminish.

curtus, a, um, adj. [Sanscr. çar, cut; cf. κείρω, κουρά], shortened, mutilated, broken; short, small, scanty; humble, unpretending: vasa, mulus, docked, docked, bobtailed; res; Iudaei, i.e. circumcised. With abl. shorn of, docked of: temone iugum.

cūrŭlis, e, adj. [currus], 1. of or belonging to a chariot: equi, horses provided by the censors at the public cost for the chariot races in the Circus. Sella curulis, or absol. cūrŭlis, the ivory chair of office used by the consuls, praetors, censors, and curule aediles of Rome: triumphus, a regular triumph, in which the general entered the city on a car; cf. ovatio. The adj. was probably applied first to the magistrates, as having the privilege of riding in a chariot, and then to the chair; but some derive the word from root CUR- (cf. curvus), referring to the crooked legs of the chair. As subst. cūrŭlis, is, f. pl. cūrŭles, curule offices, i.e. the dictatorship, consulship, censorship, praetorship, and curule aedileship. 2. (meton.) of or belonging to a sella curulis, curule: aedilis; magistratus; ebur (=sella curulis), with fasces, i.e. the consulship, Hor.

curvāmen, ĭnis, n. [curvo], a bending, curve: ripae; spinae, an arching spine.

curvātūra, ae, f. [id.], 1. a bending, bend. 2. (meton.) a rim: rotae.

curvātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from curvo, curved, bent, bowed, arched: unda, formed into a crest; ignes, crescent, i.e. of the new moon.

curvo, āre, āvi, ātum, [curvus], trans. v. I. curve, bend, bow, arch, make crooked, form into a crest. II. (fig.) bend, prevail upon: nec vir Pieriā pellice saucius Curvat (=suadet ut) supplicibus tuis Parcas).

curvus, a, um, adj. [akin to κυρτός, bent; circus, gyrus; cf. κορώνη, corona], 1. crooked, bent, curved, rounded: vallis, winding; aequor (=curvatum), over-arching. 2. bowed, stooping: arator; senecta. II. (fig.) (=non rectus), crooked, perverse, warped: mores. As subst. curvum, i, n. what is crooked, a curved line: curvo dignoscere rectum, i.e. right from wrong; rectum discernis, ubi inter Curva subit. With the Stoics a straight line (rectum) represented the path of virtue, a crooked line, or crooked lines, the path of vice.

cuspis, ĭdis, f. I. 1. the pointed end or head, the sharp point, of anything. 2. a spear-point. 3. a spear-head projecting from the top of a thyrsus: tectā cuspide thyrsos. 4. the spear-head affixed to the top of a Roman standard. II. meton. 1. a spear, lance, javelin; a hunting-spear: sts. an arrow. 2. the point of a spit, a spit. 3. the pointed end of Neptune's trident: the trident itself. 4. a sting of a scorpion or bee.

custōdia, æ, f. (custos), I. 1. the act or duty of guarding, a watching, watch, guard, charge, ward. 2. (meton.) a guard, watch, post; soldiers on guard, sentinels, warders: servat custodia fossas; custodias laxare, to thin the outposts; of less pers. relaxat vigiliae. Livy. 3. a place where a watch is kept, a guard-house, constituted station. II. 1. custody, confinement, imprisonment, arrest: in custodiam habitus, put into confinement and kept there; cf. (I) in. B. II. liberi. custodia, free custody. Instead of being committed to prison, persons were sometimes intrusted to the charge of magistrates or senators, who were responsible with their own lives for their safe keeping. 2. (meton.) (a) a place of confinement, a prison, gaol, keep; (b) persons in confinement, prisoners, captives custōdio, īre, īvī (ĭī), ītum, (id.), trans. v. 1. guard, be a guardian of, watch, keep, protect, preserve, keep safe. 2. keep close, keep confined: ventos custodit et arcet Aeolus egressu. 3. keep up, maintain, preserve, secure: dicta litteris; teneriores annos ab iniuriā. 4. keep in hand, keep back, lock up, reserve. 5. keep watch, take care (with ut or ne).

custos, ōdis, m. f. [Sanscr. root SKU-; cf. κεύθω (root κυθ-), hide], 1. a guardian, keeper, watcher, overseer, constant attendant, protector; freq. of a tutelary deity. 2. =paedagogus, q.v. 3. a sentinel, warder; sts. in a bad sense, a spy. 4. a gaoler, keeper. 5. (techn. t.) a petty-ing officer, whose duty it was to scrutinise the votes at the Comitia; a teller. 6. an umpire, referee, Hor., 7. (of things) a receptacle, depot; case, casket: teloruni, i.e. a quiver.

cuticula, æ, f. [dim. cutis], the skin.

cūtis, is, f. [Sanscr. root SKU-, cover; cf. σκύτος, κύτος], I. the skin; properly, the human skin; sts. of the lower animals, as distinct from pellis, the outer skin, or hide. Curare cutem, to make one's self comfortable, take care of number one. Cute perditus, lost to all sense of shame. Ego te intus et in cute novi, I know you inside and out, i.e. thoroughly, closely, to a T. II. (meton.) 1. hide, leather. 2. a coating, rind. III. e.g. 1. the surface, outside of a thing.

Cyānē, ēs, f. a Sicilian nymph, changed into a fountain which bore her name.

Cyānēae, ārum, f. pl. [Κυάνεαι νῆσοι or πέτραι], the Dark Rocks; 130 two small rocky islands, also called Symplegades, at the entrance of the Euxine.

: cyānĕus, a, um, adj. [κυάνεος], 1. dark blue, glossy blue. 2. of or belonging to the Cyaneae, Cyanean.

: cȳăthus, ī, m. [κύαθος], a ladle for filling the drinking-cups (poculа, calices, etc.) from the crater. Toasts were often drunk in cups containing as many cyathi as there were letters in the toasted person's name. 2. (as a measure), the twelfth part of a sextarius; a noggin.

: cȳbaeus, a, um, adj. pertaining to transport: navis, a transport, or merchantman. As subst. cȳbaea, æ, f. (sc. navis), a transport, argosy.

(1) Cȳbēlē, ēs, (-a, æ), also Cȳbēbē, ēs, f. [Κυβέλη, Κυβήβη], a Phrygian goddess, also called Rhea, worshipped at Rome as Ops or the Magna Mater. Her priests were called Galli, and Corybantes or Curetes.

(2) Cȳbēlē, ēs, (-a, æ), f. a mountain in Phrygia.

Cȳbēlēius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cybele or Mount Cybele: mater, or dea, i.e. Cybele: frena, i.e. of the lions which drew her chariot.

Cȳbēlus, ī, m. =(2) Cybele.

: Cȳbiosactes, æ, m. [κυβιοσάκτης, a dealer in salt fish], a nickname of the thirteenth Ptolemy and of the Emperor Vespasian.

: cȳbium (-ĭŏn), ĭī, n. [κύβιον], salt tunny-fish.

cyclădātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [cyclas], wearing the cyclas.

Cyclădes, um, f. pl. [Κυκλάδες], a cluster of islands in the Aegean, round Delos. The sing. form Cyclas, ădis, acc. Cyclăda, is rare.

: cyclās, ădis, f. [κυκλάς, circular], a dress worn by women, of fine material, with a border of purple or gold all round it.

: cyclĭcus, a, um, adj. [κυκλικός, circular], cyclic. The authors of poems relating to the Trojan war, or to events preceding or following it, were classed together as Cyclic poets, or poets of the Epic Cycle, which formed a period of mythic story down to the death of Ulysses. The Iliad and Odyssey were originally comprised in the Cycle, but in course of time the name of Cyclic writers came to be applied only to the inferior poets.

Cyclōpius (-ēus, -ēus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Cyclopes, Cyclopean.

Cyclops (Cȳcl-), ōpis (acc. sing. Cyclōpa or -ōpem), m. [Κύκλωψ, round-eyed], a Cyclops. The Cyclopes were a savage race of one-eyed giants dwelling in Sicily. The chief of them was Polyphemus. A later tradition makes them the workmen of Hephaestus (Vulcan), who forged thunderbolts for Zeus. Cyclopa saltare, to dance the Cyclops dance (cognate acc.); so Cyclopa moveri.

Cȳcnēius (Cygn-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Cycnus, son of Hyrie and Apollo.

: cȳcnēus (cygn-), a, um, adj [κύκνειος], of a swan, a swan's.

: (1) cȳcnus, cȳgnus (cygnus), i m. [κύκνος], 1. a swan. 2. (meton. from the legends of the sweet notes of the dying swan), a poet. Dircaeus, i.e. Pindar.

(2) Cycnus (Cygnus), ī, m. the name of several persons said to have been changed into swans: 1. a Boeotian, son of Apollo by Hyrie. 2. a son of Poseidon slain by Achilles. 3. a son of Sthenelus, king of the Ligurians, and a friend of Phaethon.

Cȳdippē, ēs, f. 1. the mistress of Acontius. 2. a Nereid.

Cȳdnus (-ŏs), ī, m. a river of Cilicia.

Cȳdōn, ōnis, m. I. an inhabitant of Cydon, or Cydonia, a town in Crete. II. (meton.) a Cretan.

Cȳdōnĭātae, ārum, m. pl. the men of Cydonia.

Cȳdōnēus, a, um, adj. =Cydonius.

Cȳdōnĭus, a, um, adj. 1. of or from Cydonia, Cydonian. As subst. cȳdōnĭum, ĭī, n. (sc. mālum) a quince.

Cygnēius, cygnēus, cygnus. See cycn-.

: cȳlindrus, ī, m. [κύλινδρος], 1. a cylinder; 2. a roller (for levelling the ground, etc.). 3. an ear-pendant.

Cȳlla, æ. See Cilla.

Cȳllārus (-ŏs), ī, m. (Gk. acc. Cyllarŏn), 1. the horse of Castor, given him by Juno; according to Virgil, the horse of Pollux. 2. a Centaur.

Cȳllēnē, ēs (-æ), f. a mountain in Arcadia, sacred to Hermes (Mercury), thence called Cyllenius.

Cyllēnēus (-aeus), a, um, adj of or from Cyllene, Cyllenian.

Cyllēnius, a, um, adj. 1. =Cylleneus: proles, i.e. Mercury. As subst. Cyllēnius, ĭī, m. Mercury, who was born on Mount Cyllene. 2. (meton.) of or belonging to Mercury; proles, i.e. Cephalus: ignis, the planet Mercury.

Cyllēnis, ĭdis, f. adj. Cyllenian; of Mercury: harpe.

Cȳmae, ārum. See Cumae.

Cȳmaeus, a, um, adj. 1. of or from Cyme. 2. =Cumaeus.

: cymba (cumba), æ, f. [κύμβη], a small boat, canoe, skiff. Often, Charon's boat.

: cymbălum (-ŭm), ī, gen. pl. (poet.) cymbalŭm, n. [κύμβαλον], a cymbal.

: cymbium, ĭī, n. [κυμβίον], a bowl with two handles shaped like a boat (cymba); a basin. Cf. 'sauceboat.'

Cȳmē, ēs, f. 1. a town of Aeolis, the mother-city of Cumae. 2. = Cumae, q.v.

cȳmbŭla, ae, f. [dim. cymba], a little boat.

cȳmīnum, i. See cuminum.

Cȳmŏdŏcē, ēs, (-ēa, ae), f. a Nereid.

Cȳmŏthŏe, ēs, f. a Nereid.

cȳnĭcē, adv. [cynicus], in the manner of the Cynics.

‡ Cȳnĭcus, a, um, adj. [κυνικός, dog-like], of the Cynic philosophers, Cynic. As subst. Cȳnĭcus, i, m. a Cynic philosopher; a Cynic, as the followers of Antisthenes were called: nudi dolia, i.e. of Diogenes.

‡ cȳnŏcĕphălus, i, m. [κυνοκέφαλος, dog-headed], the dog-faced baboon.

‡ Cȳnŏsūra, ae, f. [κυνόσουρα, dog's tail], the constellation of the Lesser Bear.

Cȳnōsūris, ĭdis (-ĭdŏs), f. adj. of or belonging to Cynosura: stellis Cynosuridos Ursae.

Cynthĭa, ae. See Cynthius.

Cynthĭus, a, um, adj. of or from Mt. Cynthus; worshipped on Mt. Cynthus. As subst. A. Cynthĭa, ae, f. 1. the Cynthian goddess, Cynthus' queen, i.e. Diana. 2. = Luna: gravido pluvialis Cynthia cornu. 3. a female name. B. Cynthĭus, ĭi, m. the Cynthian god, the Lord of Cynthus, i.e. Apollo.

Cynthus, i, m. a mountain of Delos, the birthplace of Apollo and Diana, who were hence called Cynthius and Cynthia respectively.

‡ (1) cȳpărissus, i, f. [κυπάρισσος], a cypress-tree. Cf. cupressus.

(2) Cȳpărissus, i, m. a youth, son of Telephus, changed into a cypress.

Cȳpria, ae. See Cyprius.

Cȳpris (Cȳpr-), ĭdis, (ĭdŏs), f. adj. Cyprian; esp. as a title of Venus, the Cyprian goddess.

Cȳprĭus (Cȳpr-), a, um, adj. of or from Cyprus, Cyprian. As subst. Cȳprĭa, ae, f. (sc. dea), the Cyprian goddess, i.e. Venus.

(1) Cȳprus and Cȳprus (-ŏs), i, (Gk. acc. Cyprŏn), f. the island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean, one of the chief seats of the worship of Venus (Aphrodite), hence called Cypris and Cypria.

Cȳrēnae, ārum, f. pl. and Cȳrēnē, ēs, f. a Greek city in N. Africa, founded by Battus, the capital of Cyrenaica, and birthplace of Callimachus, Aristippus, and Eratosthenes.

Cȳrēnaeus, a, um, adj. of or from Cyrene. As subst. Cȳrēnaeus, i, m. 1. a man of Cyrene. 2. a Cyrenaic philosopher of the school of Aristippus.

Cȳrēnāĭcus, a, um, adj. of Cyrene, Cyrenaic: philosophia, the school of philosophy founded by Aristippus. As subst Cȳrēnāĭci, ōrum, m. pl. the Cyrenaic philosophers, followers of Aristippus.

(1) Cȳrēnē, ēs, f. See Cyrenae.

(2) Cȳrēnē, ēs, f. a nymph, mother of Aristaeus by Apollo.

Cȳrēnensis, e, adj. of Cyrene. As subst. a man of Cyrene.

Cyrnēus, a, um, adj. of or from Cyrnos, or Cyrnus, the Greek name of Corsica; Corsican.

Cȳrus, i, m. 1. the founder of the Persian empire, son of Cambyses (B.C. 559-529). 2. Cyrus the Younger, son of Darius Nothus, killed at Cunaxa, B.C. 401. 3. an architect of Cicero's day.

Cȳtaeaeus, a, um, adj. of or from Cytae in Colchis, the birthplace of Medea; hence (meton.) Medean, magical: carmina.

Cȳtaeus, a, um, adj. = Cytaeaeus; Cytaean, Colchian.

Cȳtaeis, ĭdis (ĭdŏs), f. adj. the Cytaean woman; i.e. Medea.

Cȳthēra, ōrum, n. pl. an island in the Aegean, N.W. of Crete, now Cerigo, sacred to Venus, who was hence called Cytherea.

Cȳthērē, ēs, f. a name of Venus from the I. Cythera.

Cȳthērēa, Cȳthērēĭa, ae, f. See Cytherea, Cythereus.

Cȳthērēĭădes, ădis (ădŏs), f. adj. of or belonging to Cythera, or to Venus.

Cȳthērēĭus, a, um, adj. 1. of the I. Cythera, Cytherean. 2. of or belonging to Venus: menses, i.e. April; heros, i.e. Aeneas. As subst. Cȳthērēĭa, ae, f. a name of Venus.

Cȳthĕrēus, a, um, adj. = Cythereius. As subst. Cȳthērēa, ae, f. the goddess of Cythera, i.e. Venus.

Cythĕrēĭăcus, a, um, adj. = Cythereius.

Cythĕrēĭus, ĭdis (ĭdŏs), f. adj. the Cytherean goddess, i.e. Venus.

Cythnŏs (-us), i, f. one of the Cyclades.

‡ cytīsus, i, m. f. (cytīsum, i, n.), [κύτισος], the shrubby lucerne, trefoil, clover, medicago.

Cytōrĭăcus, a, um, adj. of or from Mt. Cytorus: pecten, i.e. of boxwood.

Cytōrĭus, a, um, adj. = Cytoriacus.

Cytōrŏs (-us), i, m. a mountain in Paphlagonia famed for its boxtrees, with a town of the same name.

Cyzĭcēnus, a, um, adj. of or from Cyzicus. As subst. Cyzĭcēni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of C.

Cyzĭcŏs (-us), i, f. (Cyzĭcum, i, n.), a city on the Mysian Propontis. For its loyalty during the war with Mithridates it was made a Libera Civitas.

D.

D, d, n. indecl. or f. the fourth letter of the Latin alphabet. As an abbr. (a)=Decimus, a Roman praenomen; (b) as a numeral, =500; (c) in titles, inscriptions, etc.: D. Iulius,=Divus Iulius; D.M. = Dis Manibus; D.O.M.= Deo Optimo Maximo; D.D.= Dono dedit; D.D.D.=Dat, dicat, dedicat; D.S.P.=De suâ pecuniâ; D. (epistolary)=Dabam, or Data (est epistola); a.d.=ante diem.

Dăae, ārum. See Danae.

Dabar, ăris, m. a Numidian who was on intimate terms with Bocchus.

Dācia, ae, f. the province Dacia, corresponding to the modern Wallachia, Transylvania, Moldavia, and part of Hungary.

Dācicus, a, um, adj.=Dacus. As subst. Dācicus, i, m. (sc. nummus), a gold coin of Trajan's reign.

Dactўli Idaei, ōrum, m. pl. priests of Cybele so called.

‡ dactўliŏthēca, ae, f. [δακτυλιοθήκη], 1. a case for finger-rings. 2. a collection of gems.

‡ dactўlus, i, m. [δάκτυλος, a finger], a dactyl, the metrical foot ¯ ˘ ˘.

Dācus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Daci, Dacian. As subst. Dācus, i, m. a Dacian. See Dacia.

Daedălēus (-ēius), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Daedalus, Daedalean: iter or opus, i.e. the Cretan Labyrinth.

Daedălīōn, ōnis, m. a brother of Ceyx, changed into a hawk.

(1) ‡ daedălus, a, um, adj. [δαίδαλος], 1. variegated, of various colours, gay; curiously or skilfully wrought. 2. elegant, artificial, deft, artistic, masterly, skilful, versatile, inventive; (poet. with gen.) verborum.

(2) Daedălus, i, Gk. acc. Daedalŏn, m. [δαίδαλος, skilful], the mythic architect of the Cretan Labyrinth, father of Icarus.

Dāhae (Dăae), ārum, m. pl. a Scythian tribe E. of the Caspian.

Dalmăta (Delm-), ae, m. a Dalmatian.

Dalmătĭa (Delm-), ae, f. a country on the E. coast of the Adriatic.

Dalmătĭcus (Delm-), a, um, adj. of Dalmatia, Dalmatian.

(1) dăma (damma), ae, m. more often f. I. a buck, doe, deer, fallow-deer. II. (meton.) venison.

(2) Dăma, ae, m. a slave's name.

Dămălis, is, f. a woman's name.

Dămascēnus, a, um, adj. of or from Damascus. As subst. (a) Dămascēnus, i, m. a man of Damascus; (b) Dămascēnum, i, n. (sc. prunum), a Damascus plum, a damson.

Dămascus (-ŏs), i, f. the ancient capital of Syria.

Dămăsichthŏn, ōnis, m. a son of Amphion and Niobe.

Dămăsippus, i, m. 1. an adherent of the Marian faction, put to death by Sylla. 2. a contemporary of Cicero, satirised by Horace.

damna, ae, See dama.

damnātĭo, ōnis, f. [damno], condemnation; with gen. of the crime charged.

damnātōrĭus, a, um, adj. [damnator], condemnatory.

damnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from damno. As adj. 1. guilty, criminal. 2. abhorred, hateful: noctes, by hypallage for damnatorum noctes, darkness of the doomed. Compar. damnatior.

damno (dampno), āre, āvi, ātum, (damnum), trans. v. I. 1. condemn, declare guilty, sentence, doom by sentence, with gen. or abl. (a) of the charge, (b) of the penalty: (a) ambitūs; sceleris; rei capitalis; eodem crimine; (b) capitis; mortis; octupli; longi laboris. These genitives of the penalty are probably to be referred to the gen. of value or amount at which. Also with prep. de: de maiestate damnatus. 2. bind a person to any special act (by will), hold under obligation: gladiatorum centum paris populo dare. Hence, voto or voti aliquem damnare (of a deity who has granted a prayer accompanied by vows), condemn a person to pay, i.e. bind him to pay his vows; damnabis tu quoque votis: civitas damnata voti. 3. sentence, adjudge, devote, consign; with dat. of the person in whose favour the verdict is given: Stygioque caput damnaverat Orco; Ilion . . . mihi Castaeque damnatum Minervae. 4. censure, find fault with. II. (meton.) seek to effect a person's condemnation, prosecute.

damnōsē, adv. [damnosus], ruinously, prodigally.

damnōsus, a, um, adj. [damnum], 1. full of hurt or injury, injurious, pernicious, hurtful, ruinous, destructive: canicula, the unlucky ace (in playing dice). Cf. canicula, 3; canis, 5. 2. wasteful, prodigal, spendthrift.

damnum (-pnum), i, n. [for damenum, what is paid as a fine, (=τὸ δεδόμενον), old participial form from dare; cf. alumnus], I. 1. loss, hurt, damage, injury, harm: facere, to sustain an injury, suffer a loss. 2. a fine, penalty: morte, exsilio, vinclis, damno coercent; correcta oblivia damnis. II. (meton.) a source of loss or damage, bane, scourge.

Dāmŏclēs, is, m. a Syracusan courtier of the elder Dionysius.

Dāmoetas, ae, m. a shepherd's name.

Dāmon, ōnis, m. 1. a musician and sophist at Athens in the time of Pericles. 2. a Pythagorean, famed for his friendship with Phintias. 3. a goatherd's name.

dampno, dampnum. See damn-.

Dănaē, ēs, f. daughter of Acrisius, and mother of Perseus by Zeus, who visited her in a shower of gold. Italian legend made her the foundress of Ardea and mother of Daunus.

Dănaēĭus, a, um, adj. of Danae: heros, descended from Danae, i.e. Perseus.

Dănaïdes, um, f. pl. the daughters of Danaus, the Danaids, who, with the exception of Hypermnestra, murdered their husbands on the wedding night. For this they were condemned to pour water unceasingly into a perforated vessel.

(1) Dănaus, i, m. a king of Argos, son of Belus, and twin brother of Aegyptus.

(2) Dănaus, a, um, adj. 1. (lit.) belonging to Danaus. 2. (meton.) Greek, Grecian. As subst. Dănai, ōrum, and sync. Dănăum, m. pl. the Argives; the Greeks; esp. (poet.) the Greeks before Troy.

dane = dasne? from do, dare.

Dānŭvĭus (-ŭbĭus), ĭi, m. the Danube; properly, the Upper Danube only.

‡ daphnē, es, f. [δάφνη], a bay-tree, laurel-tree.

(2) Dāphnē, es, f. 1. the daughter of Peneus, beloved by Apollo, and by him changed into a bay-tree. 2. a beautiful spot in Syria near Antioch, with a grove and temple of Apollo.

Dāphnis, ĭdis (-īdŏs), acc. Daphnīn (-im), m. a Sicilian shepherd-poet, son of Hermes, and mythic inventor of pastoral poetry.

‡ daphnōn, ōnis, acc. -ōna, m. [δαφνών], a grove of bay-trees, laurel plantation.

[daps], dăpis, f. [root DA-, distribute; cf. δαπάνη, δαίω, δείπνον], I. a sacrificial feast. II. (meton.) usually in pl., a banquet, repast, meal; food, meat (nom. sing. and gen. pl. are not found).

dapsĭle, adv. [dapsilis, δαψιλής, abundant, plentiful], sumptuously, bountifully.

Dardāni, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe in the S.W. of Moesia.

Dardānĭa, ae, f. the country of Dardanus or the Dardani; hence, (poet.) Troy. 2. a city on the Hellespont, S.W. of Abydos, built by Dardanus; whence the name Dardanelles.

Dardānĭdēs, ae, m. patron. 1. a son or descendant of Dardanus; esp. Aeneas. In pl. the Trojans.

Dardānis, ĭdis (-īdŏs), f. adj. Dardanian, Trojan. As subst. 1. a daughter or descendant of Dardanus. 2. a Trojan woman.

Dardānĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Dardanus or the Dardani; Trojan.

(1) Dardānus, i, m. the son of Zeus and Electra, mythical ancestor of the Trojans, and founder of the city Dardania.

(2) Dardānus, a, um, adj.=Dardanius.

Dārēs, ētis, acc. Dārēn, Dārēta, Dārētem, m. a Trojan boxer.

Dārīus (Dārius), i, m. I. the name of several Persian kings, the last being conquered by Alexander the Great, B.C. 333. II. (meton.) also dāricus, [δαρεικός], a daric, a Persian gold coin called after Darius I., the first Persian king who coined money.

dătio, ōnis, f. [do], 1. the act of giving. 2. the right of giving or conveying away property, surrender.

Dătis, ĭdis, m. a Median general defeated at Marathon, B.C. 490.

dător, ōris, m. [do], a giver.

dătus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from do. As subst. dătum, i, n. a gift, present.

Daulĭās, ădis, f. adj. of Daulis, Daulian: ales, i.e. the nightingale or the swallow. Cf. Philomela, Progne. As subst.=Progne, q.v. In pl. Daulĭădes puellae, i.e. Progne and Philomela.

(1) Daulĭs, ĭdis, f. a city of Phocis, the scene of the story of Tereus, Progne, and Philomela.

(2) Daulĭs, ĭdis, f. adj.=Daulias.

Daunĭa, ae, f. (sc. terra), the land of Daunus, i.e. Apulia.

Dauniācus, a, um, adj.=Daunius.

Daunĭās, ădis, f. adj. of Daunus, Daunian. As subst. (sc. terra), the part of Apulia near Mt. Garganus; Apulia.

Daunĭus, a, um, adj. of Daunus, Daunian; Apulian; sts. (poet.) Italian, Roman.

Daunus, i, m. a mythic king of Apulia, son of Pilumnus and Danae, and father of Turnus.

Dāvŏs (-us), i, m. a name of Roman slaves; esp. in Comedy.

dē, prep. with abl. only, I. 1. (of place), down from, from, from off, away from: de muro se decere; abeat de corpore hivor. 2. (of source or abode), from, of; de scripto dicere, from a written paper, from MS.; de re virgine aliquem nosse, to know by sight; de fonte situm levare; Priami de sanguine Pyrrhus; de summo loco, of the highest rank; copo de viâ Latinâ. 3. (denoting material) of; de marmore signum; de templo carcerem facere; de virgine lecimus ursam. 4. (denoting partition) from, among, of, out of: una de multis; homo de comitibus meis; iis stipendium de publico statuit; de meo, at my expense; de lucro iam quadriennium vivimus, my life for four years on the gain has been a matter of pure good luck. 5. (denoting respect) of, concerning, for, with respect to, about, in the matter of: ut taceam de me; legati de pace; de nihilo irasci; de Gallis triumphavit, over the Gauls; de te? what of you? de hoc? what is done with respect to my brother? i.e. what will become of him? 6. (denoting cause, etc.) from, on, on account of, for, because of, in accordance with: id nisi gravi de causâ non fecisset, for some important reason; de consilio legatorum, by the advice of the envoys; quâ de causâ, for which reason; gravior de vulnere. 7. (of time), (a) immediately after, at; de primâ luce, at daybreak; de tertiâ vigiliâ; de mediâ nocte; (b) ere the close of, during, in the course of: de nocte, in the night; de die, in day-time, during the day; de multâ nocte, in the dead of night. 8. (of manner, in many adverbial phrases) from, according to: de integro, over again, afresh; de gradu, de genu pugnare, to fight on foot, on the knees; de more, according to custom. II. (without a case) only in phrase, susque deque (q.v.), up and down; anyhow, of no consequence. [In composition de becomes short before a vowel or h; e.g. dēambulo, dēhisco.]

dĕa, ae, [dat. abl. pl. dĕābus], f. [deus], a goddess.

dē-albo, āre, āvi, ātum, [albus], trans. v. whiten all over, whitewash, stucco, plaster.

dēămātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deamo, desperately or dearly loved, idolised, darling.

dē-ambŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [deambulo], a promenading.

dē-ambŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. take a set walk or constitutional, promenade.

dē-āmo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. love to desperation, dote on, idolise. Colloq., as a formula of returning thanks: deamo te. I'm heartily obliged to you, you're a trump.

dē-armo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. disarm.

dē-bacchor, āri, ātus sum, intrans. dep. rave one's-self out, rave till one is tired; revel wildly or uncontrollably.

dēbellātor, ōris, m. [debello], a conqueror, subduer.

dēbellātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from debello, fought out, fought to the death. Abl. abs. impers. dēbellātō, the war being concluded, at the conclusion of hostilities.

dē-bello, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) bring a war or hostilities to an end, fight it out. Often impers. B. (trans.) 1. fight out, fight to the death: rixa super mero debellata. 2. war down, crush in war, completely vanquish: superbos.

dēbens, ntis, part. from debeo. As subst. m. a debtor.

dēbĕo, ēre, bŭi, bĭtum, [contr.=de-habeo], trans. and intrans. A. (trans.) 1. owe: pecuniam alicui. Prov.: Animam debere, of one who is over head and ears in debt. In pass. to be due. II. (fig.) 1. owe as a debt or duty, have to repay, be answerable for. 2. (with infin.) be bound, be under obligation to do something; ought, must. 3. owe something to some one, be indebted to a person for: qui debere salutem Conĭteor. 4. set apart as due, destine, devote: Aenean scis Deberi caelo; fatis debitus. B. (intrans.) be indebted to a person, be under obligations to: fac me multis debere.

dēbĭlis, e, adj. [contr. for debabilis, unhandy], I. disabled, feeble, weak, crippled. II. (fig.) enfeebled, weak, impotent, flabby. Compar. debilior.

dēbĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [debilis], disablement, weakness, infirmity, feebleness, lameness, impotence.

dēbĭlĭtātĭo, ōnis, f. [debilito], an enfeebling, disablement, crippling; weakness, frailty.

dēbĭlĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [debilis], trans. v. I. disable, cripple, maim, weaken, incapacitate, enfeeble. II. (fig.) unman, dishearten, crush, put 'hors de combat.'

dēbĭtio, ōnis, f. [debeo], an owing, a debt: pecuniae.

dēbĭtor, ōris, m. [id.], a debtor, one who owes.

dēbĭtum, i, n. See debitus.

dēbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from debeo, due, destined. As subst. dēbĭtum, i, n. a debt, obligation, duty.

dē-canto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. sing over and over. 2. sing to tedious- ness; repeat something trite and hackneyed. 3. rehearse, recite, chant. B. (intrans.) leave off singing.

dē-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans. v. I. 1. withdraw, depart, retire; with abl. depart from: campis; pugnā. 2. (official techn. t.) quit one's province at the expiration of one's term of office: mostly with dē (ex) provinciā, or simple abl. 3. (with dat., sts. also with dē viā) retire before or in favour of, get out of the way of, make room for, give precedence to: senae nocti; calori; sanctis divis; decedam ego illi dē viā. Cf. ἐξίστασθαι, ἐκστῆναι τινι. Pass. impers.: decedi, to have room made for one, to take precedence. II. (fig.) 1. go off, abate, cease; depart, disappear. 2. draw to a close, decline, go down, set: sol decedens; te veniente die, te decedente canebat. 3. depart (from life), die. 4. depart, swerve, deviate from; give up, resign, forego, yield: de possessione; de sententiā; sts. with abl. alone, sententiā; fide. 5. (of travellers) turn aside (to put up at an inn), quit the road. With a play on the words, cf. I. 3.: sic hominem accipiemus ut moleste ferat se de viā decessisse. 6. give way to, yield. 7. turn out, result.

Dēcēlēa (-ĭa), ae, f. a deme of Attica on the borders of Boeotia, fortified by the Spartans in the Peloponnesian war.

(?) dē-cello, ĕre, intrans. v. turn aside.

decem, num. indecl. [cf. δέκα], I. ten. II. (meton.) for any considerable number.

Decembĕr, bris, (sc. mensis), m. the tenth month of the Roman year, reckoning from March; December. As adj. of December: Kalendae; libertate Decembri Utere, i.e. of the Saturnalia.

decem-iŭgis, is, adj. [iugum], with ten yokes. As subst. m. [sc. currus], a ten-horse chariot.

decem-pĕda, ae, f. [pes], a measuring-rod, ten feet long, used by surveyors, architects, etc.

decempĕdātor, ōris, m. [decempeda], a land-surveyor.

decem-plex, plĭcis, adj. [plico], ten-fold.

decemprīmi (dēcem prīmi), ōrum, m. the presidents of the decuries composing the Senate in a municipium or a colonia. They formed a special committee, and represented the community on embassies.

decem-scalmus, a, um, adj. having ten tholes, i.e. with ten oars.

decemvirālis, e, adj. (decemvir), of or belonging to the decemvirs, decemviral.

decemvirātus, ūs, m. the rank or office of a decemvir, the decemvirate.

decem-vīri, ōrum (-ūm), m. pl. [vir], the decemvirs, or board of ten commissioners for drawing up laws (legibus scribendis), who prepared the XII. Tables, B.C. 452. There were also decemvirs for other purposes. See Dict.

dēcennis, e, adj. [annus], of ten years, lasting ten years.

dēcens, ntis, part. from deceo. As adj. 1. seemly, becoming, proper. 2. well proportioned, symmetrical, graceful, fair, comely. Compar. decentior; superl. decentissimus.

dēcentĕr, adv. [decens], becomingly, properly, appropriately, gracefully. Compar. decentius.

dēcentĭa, ae, f. [id.], seemliness, comeliness.

dēcĕo, ēre, ŭi. See decet.

dēceptor, ōris, m. [decipio], a deceiver.

dēceptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from decipio.

‡ dēcĕris, is, f. [δεκήρης ναῦς], a ship with ten banks of oars.

dē-cerno, ĕre, crēvi, crētum, trans. and intrans. v. I. (of the Senate, or of a magistrate, judge, etc.) decide, determine; move, vote for; pronounce a decision; pass a decree: multitudo a me postulavit ut id decernerem, vote for. 2. (fig.) decide, determine, judge. II. 1. decide or determine (by combat): pugnam. 2. fight decisively; fight, contend: ferro. III. make up one's mind, determine, resolve: Rhenum transīre; non decernis, Taure, quid esse velis.

dē-cerpo, ĕre, cerpsi, cerptum, [carpo], trans. v. I. pluck off, cull, gather (fruit, etc.), crop. II. (fig.) take away from, detract from. III. gather, get, enjoy: fructus ex re.

dēcertātio, ōnis, f. [decerto], decisive conflict, struggle.

dē-certo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. fight to the end, fight a matter out, fight a decisive battle; often with abl. pugnā, proelio, manu, etc. Sts. impers., decertatum est. 2. struggle fiercely or earnestly, contend; strive, vie: inter se; (poet.) with dat.) Africum decertantem Aquilonibus. B. (trans.) (poet.) 1. fight or struggle for: decertata regna. 2. fight out: decertatos labores, i.e. ended by fighting.

dēcessio, ōnis, f. [decedo], 1. a going away, withdrawal, departure; esp. (techn.) of a magistrate quitting his province; cf. decedo, I. 2. 2. a diminution, decrease, disappearance.

dēcessor, ōris, m. [id.], one who withdraws or retires; esp. (techn.) a retiring officer, a predecessor in office; cf. decedo, I. 2.

dēcessus, ūs, m. [id.], 1. a going away, withdrawal, departure; esp. (techn.) of the retirement of a magistrate from his province; cf. decedo, I. 2. 2. a departure from life, decease. 3. a decrease, disappearance; retreat: aestus, ebbing of the tide.

dēcĕt, dēcŭit, ēre, [cf. Sanscr. dacas, fame; δοκέω], trans. and intrans. Only in 3 pers. and infin.: often with noun, mostly with neut. pron. or infin. or sentence for subject: it becomes, is seemly, is becoming, is fit, behoves, is proper, beseems: perge, decet; pulla decent niveas; erubuisse decebat. Sts. with dat.: locum editiorem quam victoribus decebat.

Dēcĕtĭa, ae, f. a town of the Aedui on the Liger, now Décize.

(1) Dēcĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Decius.

(2) Dēcĭānus, i, m. a Roman surname.

Decĭdĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman name. L. Decidius Saxa was a Spanish officer who served under I. Caesar.

(1) dē-cido, ĕre, cĭdi, [caedo], I. 1. fall down or down from, fall off. 2. fall dead, dying, die. II. (fig.) fall away, drop, fail, sink, perish.

(2) dē-cīdo, ĕre, cīdi, cīsum, [caedo], trans. v. I. cut off, slip; ramos; pennas. II. (fig.) 1. decide, determine, put an end to, settle: rem, negotia. 2. (absol.) decidere (i.e. rem) cum aliquo, strike a bargain with a person, come to terms, make a composition: non erit uncia tota. Decidat decem quā pater ipse deūm, Jove himself will not have one-twelfth of the amount wherewith to compound with you; won't be able to pay a shilling in the pound; decidere iactu cum ventis, i.e. by throwing the cargo overboard.

dēcĭdŭus, a, um, adj. [(1) decido], falling off, deciduous.

dēcĭēs (dēciens), num. adv. [decem], I. ten times. Decies centum, or centena millia sestertium, decies centena, decies sestertium, sts. decies alone, often written in figs. 1,000,000 sesterces. II. (meton.) time after time, repeatedly, frequently.

dēcĭma, ae. See decimus.

dēcĭmānus (dēcŭm-), a, um, adj. [decimus], I. of or belonging to the tenth part: ager, that pays tithes: frumentum, the tithe of corn, viz. one-tenth of the produce paid as a land-tax. Cf. decima. As subst. dēcĭmānus (dēcŭm-), i, m. a contractor who farmed and collected the public tithes (decumae). a tithe-farmer or lessee: (b) dēcĭmāna (dēcŭm-), ae, f. the wife of a decumanus. II. of or belonging to the tenth legion: miles. Decumana porta, the central and main entrance-gate in a Roman camp on the side furthest from the enemy and facing the porta praetoria. Decumanus limes, a line drawn east and west. As subst dēcĭmāni (dēcŭm-), ōrum, m. pl soldiers of the tenth legion. III. (meton.) large, immense.

dēcĭmo (dēcŭmo), āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. decimate, select every tenth man by lot for punishment.

dēcĭmum, n. adj. used = adv., for the tenth time.

(1) dēcimus (dēcŭ-), a, um, adj. [decem], tenth: vastius insurgens decimae ruit impetus undae. The tenth wave was supposed to be the largest. As subst. dēcĭma (dēcŭ-), æ, f. (sc. pars), 1. a tenth part, tithe-offering, tithe. After any great success, a Roman would offer a tenth by way of a thank-offering, mostly to Hercules. As the public shared in these costly entertainments, they came to be a means of winning popularity. 2. a land-tax, consisting of a tenth of the produce, levied on the occupiers of estates in Italy and the provinces; more often in pl.

(2) Dēcĭmus, ĭ, m. a Roman praenomen; abbr. D. Fem. form, Dēcĭma, æ.

dē-cĭpĭo, cĭpĕre, cēpi, ceptum, [capio], trans. v. 1. entrap; deceive, cheat, beguile: decipimur specie recti; (poet.) with gen. in f.k. constr. with the idea of deprivation: laborum, is beguiled of his toils (κλέπτεται τῶν πόνων), Hor. 2. (poet.) counterfeit, disguise, Auson., Stat.

dēcīsio, ōnis, f. [(2) decido], a decision, settlement, agreement.

dēcīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) decido.

(1) Dēcĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. Three of this plebeian gens, grandfather, father, and son, devoted themselves to death for their country; the first (consul B.C. 340) in the Latin war; the second in the Samnite war, B.C. 295; the third, B.C. 279, in the war with Pyrrhus.

(2) Dēcĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to one of the Decii.

dēclāmātĭo, ōnis, f. [declamo], 1. practice in public speaking, delivery, declamation. 2. (meton.) a subject for declamation; ut declamatio fias. 3. loud talking, bluster, ranting, tirade.

dēclāmātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who practises delivery, a rhetorician, declaimer.

dēclāmātōrĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to the practice of public speaking or delivery, declamatory: opus, the craft of the rhetorician.

dēclāmĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. declamo], intrans. v. 1. practise delivery, declaim rhetorically. 2. talk loudly, bluster.

dē-clāmo, āre, āvi, ātum, 1. intrans. v. practise public speaking, rehearse for delivery in public, declaim rhetorically. 2. speak loud, bluster, inveigh violently, rant.

dēclārātĭo, ōnis, f. [declaro], a disclosure, avowal.

de-clāro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. make quite clear or plain, express openly, manifest, declare, disclose. 2. declare publicly, proclaim officially: meminit . . se consulem declaratum. II. (fig.) demonstrate, prove, explain, show, manifest.

dēclīnātĭo, ōnis, f. [declino], 1. a turning aside, swerving motion; with obj. gen., a turning aside from, avoidance of, shirking: laboris; periculi. 2. (in rhetoric) a digression. 3. (in grammar) inflexion of words.

dēclīnis, e, adj. [id.], turning aside; retreating.

dē-clīno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. 1. turn aside or away, change the direction of, make to swerve or deviate. 2. bend down, droop, lower: lumina somno. II. (fig.) 1. avoid, shun, shirk, struggle to escape from: vitia; leges iudicii. 2. (in grammar) inflect, decline. B. (intrans.) 1. turn away, step aside, deviate, swerve; withdraw, digress: de via; Cyrus in asperam Declinat Pholoen, has a penchant for. 2. decline, decrease: paullatim amor.

dē-clīvis, e, adj. [clivus], 1. sloping downwards, shelving, on the descent or slope; steep. As subst. dēclīvĭs, is, n. a slope, declivity. 2. (fig.) declining, downward: iter senectae.

dēclīvĭtas, ātis, f. [declivis], a slope, declivity.

dēclīvus, a, um, adj. = declivis.

dēcocta, æ, f. See decoctus.

dēcoctor, ōris, m. [decoquo], a bankrupt, spendthrift.

dēcoctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from decoquo, boiled down. As subst. (a) dēcocta, æ, f. (sc. aqua), water boiled and cooled with snow, iced water; (b) dēcoctum, i, n. a medicinal drink. As adj. (fig.) refined (metaph. from boiling down wine): si forte aliquid decoctius audis.

dē-collo, āre, āvi, ātum, [collum], trans. v. decapitate, behead.

dē-cōlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [colum], intrans. v trickle away, ooze away.

dē-cŏlor, ōris, adj. I. 1. having lost its natural colour, discoloured, stained. 2. dark, swarthy: Indus. II. (fig.) defaced, disfigured, faded, tarnished; degenerate, disgraceful; aetas, i.e. in comparison with the golden age: fama.

dēcŏlōrātĭo, ōnis, f. [decoloro], a discolouring.

dē-cōlōro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. deprive of the natural colour, discolour, stain.

dē-cŏquo, quĕre, coxi, coctum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. 1. boil down, boil away. 2. melt down. 3. boil, dress by boiling, cook. II. (fig.) 1. reduce, consume; waste, squander. 2. ruin: hunc alea decoquit. 3. ripen, mellow: decocta suavitas. B. (intrans.) run through one's property, become bankrupt, fail.

dēcor, ōris, m. [deceo], 1. what is becoming or seemly; propriety. 2. grace, elegance, beauty, charm. 3. decoration, ornament.

dēcŏrē, adv. [decorus], suitably, with propriety; gracefully, charmingly.

dēcŏro, āre, āvi, ātum, [decus], trans. v. 1. adorn, grace, embellish, beautify. 2. (fig.) distinguish, honour.

dēcōrus, a, um, adj. [decor], I. becoming, proper, seemly. As subst. dēcōrum, i, n. 1. (τὸ πρέπον), propriety. 2. a fitting accessory, appropriate ceremony, honour, etc. II. 1. graceful, beautiful, charming, elegant, handsome. 2. beautified, adorned, decorated, ornamented.

dē-crĕpĭtus, a, um, adj. [crepo], lit. noiseless; very old, decrepit.

dēcrĕram, decrĕrim, decrĕsse, for decreveram, etc. See decresco.

dē-cresco, ĕre, crēvi, crētum, intrans. v. I. grow less, decrease, diminish, lessen. II. fade from sight, vanish.

dēcrētum, i, n. [decerno], I. a decree, decision, order, resolution (of any judicial or political body): extremum atque ultimum, the order of emergency, by which the Senate conferred extraordinary powers on the Consuls. II. (meton.) a principle, doctrine, precept.

dē-culco, āre, [calco], trans. v. tread down, trample under foot.

dēcŭma, dēcŭmānus. See decim-.

dēcŭmātes, ĭum, pl. adj. [decimus], subject to tithe: agri, lands which pay tithe. Cf. decumae.

dē-cumbo, ĕre, cŭbŭi, intrans. v. 1. lie down. 2. fall (as a gladiator).

dēcŭria, æ, f. [decem], I. a decury, body of ten. II. (meton.) a division, section, class: iudicum.

dēcŭriātĭo, ōnis, f. [(1) decurio], a portioning out into decuries, or sections.

(?) dēcŭriātus, ūs, m. [id.], a division into decuries, or squads of ten.

(1) dēcŭrio, āre, āvi, ātum, [decuria], trans. v. divide into decuries; esp. portion out a constituency into sections, for the purpose of canvassing, bribing, etc.: organise.

(2) dēcŭrio, ōnis, m. [id.], 1. the head of a decuria, or squad of ten men, in a cavalry regiment. 2. a provincial senator in municipia and coloniae; cf. decemprimi. 3. a superintendent, marshall: cubicullariorum, i.e. high chamberlain.

dē-curro, ĕre, cŭcurri (curri), cursum, intrans. v. I. 1. run down; flow, sail, swim, move swiftly. 2. (with acc. of space traversed) run over from one end to the other; complete, perform: decursa novissima meta est: septingenta milia passuum. 3. (milit. techn. t.) charge, advance, manœuvre; sts. walk or run in armour (at a general's funeral), march past; cf. decursio, decursus. II. (fig.) 1. have recourse to, tend, betake one's-self: ad miseras preces: decurritur (impers.) ad id unum ultimum atque extremum S.C. 2. (with acc., cf. I. 2.) run over, treat of. 3. run out; complete, finish: vitam.

dēcursĭo, ōnis, f. [decurro], 1. a running down. 2. a military evolution, march past, review, manœuvre; hostile attack, raid. 3. a running or walking in armour at the funeral of a general; a solemn march past.

(1) dēcursus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from decurro.

(2) dēcursus, ūs, m. [decurro], I. a running down, downward course, descent. II. (meton.) 1. the end of a course, the run in, finish. 2. a military evolution, review; hostile attack; cf. decursio, 2. 3. a solemn march past; cf. decursio, 3. III. (fig.) 1. a completed course or career; decursu honorum (=decursis honoribus), at the close of my official career. 2. a course, career.

dē-curto, āre, trans. v. cut off, mutilate.

dēcus, ŏris, n. [Sanscr. daças, fame; cf. decet], I. 1. ornament, embellishment. 2. beauty, grace, charm. 3. glory, honour, splendour; often, military glory; pl. honourable achievements, distinctions. II. moral dignity, honour.

dēcussis, is, m. [decem, as], I. the number ten. II. (meton.) 1. the intersection of two lines crosswise, like the Roman numeral X. 2. a coin, value ten asses, marked with the letter X.

dēcussus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from decutio.

dē-cŭtio, cŭtĕre, cussi, cussum, [quatio], trans. v. shake down or off, dash off.

dē-dĕcet, dĕcĕre, dĕcŭit, mostly in 3 pers. or infin., 1. does not become, is unseemly; quam nec ferre pedem dedecuit choris. Often impersonal; it misbecomes. 2. (personal) dishonour, disgrace: si non dedecui tua iussa; Atticus Claudiorum imagines dedecere videbatur.

dē-dĕcŏr, ŏris, adj. (poet.) unseemly, dishonourable.

dē-dĕcŏro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. mar the beauty of; disgrace, dishonour.

dē-dĕcōrus, a, um, adj. disgraceful, shameful.

dē-dĕcus, ŏris, n. 1. dishonour, disgrace, infamy, shame. 2. that which causes shame, a disgrace, blot. 3. a disgraceful act; moral dishonour, vice, turpitude.

dēdĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [dedico], a dedication, consecration.

dē-dĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. affirm, declare, announce. II. (religious techn. t.) consecrate, dedicate: aedem Saturno; quid dedicatum possit Apollinem Vates, i.e. enshrined, in his shrine; te absque magnifică, Concordia, dedicat aede Livia, i.e. enshrines thy image. III. (meton.) 1. dedicate, inscribe a composition to any one. 2. dedicate, consecrate, devote a thing to any special use or purpose. IV. (legal techn. t.) make a return of one's property for the census.

dēdĭcŏr, old infin. pass. from dedo.

dē-dignor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. reject as unworthy, disdain, refuse. Non dedignor, I condescend.

dē-disco, ĕre, dĭdĭci, trans. v. unlearn, forget: dedidicit iam pace ducem, forgot the general, i.e. was no better than a civilian.

dēdĭticĭus (-ĭtĭus), a, um, adj. [dedo], belonging to a capitulation or surrender. As subst. dēdĭticĭus, ĭi, m. 1. one who has formally surrendered; a prisoner of war. 2. a freedman who had been branded while a slave.

dēdĭtĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a capitulation, surrender: in deditionem venire, to capitulate, make a formal surrender; in deditionem accipere (recipere), to admit to a surrender.

dēdĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dedo. As adj. given up to, addicted to, devoted to, engrossed in; eager: with dat. or prep. in and abl. Compar. deditior; superl. deditissimus.

dē-do, ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, trans. v. 1. give up, abandon, surrender, resign, yield, consign; esp. as military techn. t., surrender to the enemy, give up: auctores belli; se suaque omnia; manus, (poet.) = dare manus, submit, surrender, give way. II. (fig.) dedicate, devote, sacrifice, consecrate, apply, yield: patriae nos dedere debemus; cineri Assyrios odores; se litteris; se ad audiendum. Deditā operā, or deditā, absol., on purpose, intentionally.

dē-dŏcĕo, ēre, trans. v. untеach, cause one to unlearn; teach one not to do: aliquem geometriam; populum falsis uti Vocibus.

dē-dŏlĕo, ēre, dŏlŭi, intrans. v. give over grieving, cease to grieve.

dē-dŏlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. hew or chop away, hew smooth. II. (meton.) cut or chisel into shape; glaze over, inlay. III. (fig.) slash, belabour.

dē-dūco, ĕre, duxi, ductum, trans. v. I. 1. lead, fetch, bring, or draw down. 2. draw off, withdraw: exercitum; legionem. 3. (nautical techn. t.) (a) draw down (from the dockyard or the stocks), launch: naves; classem; (b) draw a ship into port: onerarias naves in portum. 4. lead, conduct, escort; techn. t. (a) of planting a colony: colonias; (b) of quartering troops, posting sentinels, etc.), send to their posts or stations: praesidia; vigiliae deducebantur; (c) escort from home (as a mark of respect): haec ipsa sunt honorabilia, assurgi, deduci, reduci; (d) introduce a ward, man to a matron or guardian: ita eram deductus ad Scaevolam; (e) conduct a bride to her husband's house, take home: uxorem; quo (= ad quos) primum virgo quaeque deducta est (ac. domum); (f) lead about in a public procession or pageant: in patriam deducam Musas; invidens Privata deduci superbo Non humilis mulier triumpho. 5. force away, remove, carry off: dominam Ditis thalamo. 6. draw out, weave, spin: pollice filа; stamina; (meton.) vetus in telа deducitur argumentum, is interwoven, represented, delineated, on the fabric. 7. draw down sails (from the yards); unfurl, set them: velа; tota malo Carbasa. 8. draw or drag downwards, lower: deducentia ramos Pondere poma suo. 9. draw off, take off: vestes. 10. (legal techn. t.) (a) formally eject from a disputed possession: aliquem de fundo. See Dict. Ant.

vindicatio; (b) bring into court, bring to trial: lis ad forum deducta est. II. subtract, deduct, withdraw, diminish. II. (fig.) 1. lead or draw away, withdraw; lead, bring, puide: aliquem de fide; aliquem ad eam sententiam; deducta memoria, drawn, traced. 2. bring down, reduce: ne rem in summum periculum deducant; re in controversiam deductā, being made a subject of dispute; rem in eum locum deduxit ut diceret, he went so far as to say; audi quo rem deducam, the issue to which I bring the matter. 3. mislead, seduce, bias, induce: adolescentibus et oratione magistratūs et praemio deducta. 4. (metaph. from irrigation, or pipes from planting a colony) transfer, transplant: Aeolium carmen ad Italos modos, i.e. adapt. 5. (metaph. from weaving, etc.), (a) spin out; turn out, compose (as a poet): tenui deducta poemata filo, i.e. finely wrought, elaborate; (b) draw out, make fine, attenuate: deductum carmen, a fine-spun, slender, i.e. trivial lay (Virg.). 6. trace down, derive: nomen ab Anco; nostrā deducit origine nomen.

dēductĭo, ōnis, f. [deduco], 1. a leading away, drawing off, diversion: Albanae aquae. 2. a planting of a colony. 3. a quartering of soldiers. 4. a formal ejection from a disputed possession: ut moribus deductio fieret; cf. deduco, I. 10 (a). 5. a deduction, abatement. 6. a deduction, inference: rationis.

dēductor, ōris, m. [id.], one who escorts a statesman, or a candidate for office, as a mark of respect (cf. deduco, I. 4 (c)); an attendant.

dēductus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deduco. As adj. 1. drawn or bent downward: nasus deductior, i.e. aquiline. 2. fine spun, slender; humble, modest: carmen, Virg. 3. drawn out, drawling: vox. Compar. deductior.

deeram, deero. See desum.

dē-erro (dissyll. in poet.), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. stray away go astray, lose one's way.

deest, deesse. See desum.

dē-faeco (-fĕco), āre, āvi, ātum [faex], I. cleanse from dregs, refine, purify. II. (fig.) clear, set at ease.

dē-fătĭgātĭo (dēfēt-), ōnis, f. [defatigo], 1. a tiring out, fatiguing. 2. utter weariness, exhaustion.

dē-fătigo (dēfēt-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. tire out, completely weary, exhaust.

dē-fătiscor. See defetiscor.

dēfæco. See defaeco.

dēfectĭo, ōnis, f. [deficio], 1. a revolt, rebellion. 2. a failing away, failing, failure: virium. 3. an eclipse. 4. bodily exhaustion, faintness, swooning. 5. (fig.) defectio animi, despondency, faint-heartedness.

dēfector, ōris, m. [id.], a revolter, rebel.

(1) dēfectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deficio. As adj. 1. weakened, worn out, weak: annis leo; lingua; poples. 2. unsupported, in want; left without, deprived of; (with abl.) solito defecta favore; pilis, i.e. bald. Compar. defectior; superl. defectissimus.

(2) dēfectus, ūs, m. [deficio], 1. a falling off, failure, failing, lack, disappearance: lactis; animi, a swoon; solis, i.e. an eclipse.

dēfendĭĕr, old infin. pass. from defendo, Virg.

dē-fendo, dĕre, dī, sum, trans. v. I. keep or ward off, parry, repel: solstitium pecori. II. 1. defend, guard, protect, preserve: myrtos a frigore; muros bello. 2. (absol.) give protection, make a stand. III. (fig.) 1. defend, support, maintain: auctoritatem; causam, conduct a case (as counsel for plaintiff or defendant). 2. allege in defence, maintain: defendor fecisse, it is maintained that I did. 3. have an object in view, strive for: sciunt me id maxime defendisse, ut . . .

dēfensio, ōnis, f. [defendo], a defending, defence; plea.

dēfensito, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. defenso], trans. v. practise defending.

dēfenso, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. defendo], trans. v. 1. ward off or repel diligently. 2. guard, defend.

dēfensor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who wards off or averts. 2. a defender, protector, champion.

dē-fĕro, ferre, tŭli, lātum, trans. v. I. bring or carry down; bring from one place to another; convey, carry. II. (fig.) 1. hand over, offer, confer, grant, give. 2. report, bring information, announce. 3. refer: rem ad consilium. 4. (legal techn. t.) (a) nomen alicuius, or aliquem, make a formal declaration before the praetor of the name of the person to be accused and the crime charged; impeach, indict; (b) bring forward, denounce. 5. (polit. techn. t.) (a) aliquid ad aerarium, deposit in the treasury, register; (b) aliquem ad aerarium, enter a person's name at the treasury, i.e. recommend for patronage, etc.; (c) in censum, return (to the censors) for assessment.

dē-fervesco, ĕre, fervi and ferbŭi, intrans. v. boil away, cease boiling; cool down, be allayed.

dēfessus, a, um, part. from defetiscor.

dēfĕtīgātio, defetigo. See defat-.

dē-fĕtiscor (-fătiscor), ī, fessus sum, intrans. dep. become tired out; grow wearied, faint, exhausted.

dēfexit, for defecerit, from deficio.

dēficiens, ntis, part. from deficio. 1. failing, not sufficing for (with acc.). 2. deficient, exhausted.

dē-ficio, fĭcĕre, fēci, fectum, [facio], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. fail, be wanting; run out, disappear, come to an end, expire, wane, faint. Deficere animo, to lose heart, despond. II. (fig.) 1. fall away, revolt; forsake, abandon. 2. fail, become bankrupt. B. (trans.) be wanting to, fail, desert, forsake, leave. Pass. deficior, (a) be left in the want of: tempore deficiar, tragicos si persequar ignes; (b) be failed, deserted, betrayed by: ab arte mea.

dē-fīgo, ĕre, fixi, fixum, trans. v. I. fix or fasten down, drive in, plunge or fix into, fasten to. II. 1. fix, fasten, render immovable, set, rivet. 2. let fall, cast down: oculos. 3. strike motionless, astound. 4. (religious techn. t.) declare firmly or unalterably. 5. bind by a spell, bewitch: nomina cerā, from the practice of making a wax image of a person devoted to destruction and sticking needles in it. 6. post up, placard; expose, gibbet: culpam; flagitia.

dē-fingo, ĕre, finxi, trans. v. shape, fashion; botch: Rheni luteum caput, makes muddy, muddles.

dē-finio, īre, īvi, ītum, trans. v. I. mark off, set bounds to, limit, terminate, define. II. (fig.) 1. define, determine, explain. 2. limit, confine, restrict. 3. finish, make an end of.

dēfinītē, adv. [definitus], precisely, explicitly.

dēfinītio, ōnis, f. [definio], a limiting, defining, definition, explanation.

dēfinītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from definio. As adj. definite, precise, explicit.

dē-flo, flāre, pass. of deficio used reflexively, be wanting, fail. Only in infin. and 3 person.

dēfŭi. See deflo.

dēflagrātio, ōnis, f. [deflagro], 1. a burning down, complete destruction by fire. 2. (fig.) annihilation, destruction.

dē-flagro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. burn down, be totally consumed by fire. II. (fig.) 1. perish. 2. burn out, cease burning; abate. B. (trans.) I. burn completely. II. (fig.) destroy utterly.

dē-flecto, ĕre, flexi, flexum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. bend or turn aside, turn another way, divert; turn off, ward off. 2. bend or turn downwards, droop. B. (intrans.) turn off or aside, swerve.

dē-flĕo, ēre, ēvi, ētum, intrans. and trans. v. 1. weep violently, lament. 2. bewail, deplore.

dēflexus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deflecto.

dē-flōresco, ĕre, flōrŭi, intrans. v. shed its flowers or blossoms; cease flowering, fade, wither.

dē-flŭo, ĕre, fluxi, fluxum, intrans. v. I. 1. flow down. Poet. with cogn. acc. lacrimas, gush with tears. 2. descend, float, trail, slide, slip; light down, alight. 3. (fig.) come to in plenty or in full flow; pass. II. 1. flow or pass away. 2. (fig.) be spilled or frittered away, ebb away, vanish, disappear, depart, escape; fall off, desert.

dēflŭus, a, um, adj. [defluo], flowing or floating down, falling down, downward.

dē-fŏdio, fŏdĕre, fōdi, fossum, trans. v. I. 1. dig down, dig deep. 2. bury in the earth. II. (fig.) hide, conceal.

dēfŏre, fut. infin. from desum.

dēformātio, ōnis, f. [(2) deformo], a disfiguring, defacing.

dē-formis, e, adj. [formal, I. 1. misshapen, deformed, ill-shaped; unsightly, hideous, ugly. 2. (fig.) loathsome, disgusting, disgraceful, debasing. II. shapeless, unsubstantial: animae.

dēformĭtas, ātis, f. [deformis], 1. deformity; ungainliness, ugliness, hideousness. 2. (fig.) moral deformity, flaw; baseness, vileness; discredit.

(1) dē-formo, āre, āvi, ātum, [forma], trans. v. bring into shape, form, fashion, depict, delineate.

(2) dēformo, āre, āvi, ātum, [deformis], trans. v. 1. put out of shape, disfigure, spoil, mar, make hideous. II. (fig.) disparage, dishonour.

dēfossus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from defodio.

dē-fraudo (-frūdo), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. defraud, cheat.

dē-frēnātus, a, um, adj. [freno], unbridled, unchecked.

dē-frico, āre, cŭi, cātum or ctum, trans. v. rub down, rub hard; scour.

dēfrictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from defrico.

dē-fringo, ĕre, frēgi, fractum, [frango], trans. v. break down, break off, break to pieces.

dēfrŭto. See defraudo.

dēfrŭtum, i, n. [for defervitum, sc. mustum], must boiled down, syrup.

dē-fŭgio, fŭgĕre, fūgi, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) flee away, escape. B. (trans.) flee away from, shirk, shun, avoid.

dēfunctus, a, um, perf. part. from defungor, 1. having gone through, discharged, or finished any task, duty, etc., quit of: (with abl.) pelagi periclis; laboribus; (without abl.) naves, their service o'er. 2. defunctus vitā, or absol., deceased, dead.

dē-fundo, ĕre, fūdi, fūsum, trans. v. pour down, pour out.

dē-fungor, i, functus sum, dep. with abl., have done with, discharge, fulfil, bring to an end; am quit of. Sts. absol. make an end of all: defunctus sum, I've finished.

dēfūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from defundo.

dē-gĕnĕr, ĕris, abl. sing. degeneri, adj. [genus], I. degenerate, spurious, bastard; poet. with gen. of respect, or Gk. gen. with idea of deprivation: patrii oris, not falling short of your sire's eloquence. II. (fig.) ignoble, base, mean-spirited, abject.

dēgĕnĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [degener], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) degenerate, lose its character, deteriorate. B. (trans.) I. cause to degenerate or deteriorate, impair: ni degeneratum (neut. pass. part. expressing abstr. notion) in aliis huic quoque arcori officisset, had not the fact that he had degenerated, i.e. his degeneracy, detracted from this merit. II. (fig.) dishonour.

dē-glŭbo, ĕre, ptum, trans. v. peel, strip; flay.

dē-go, gĕre, dēgi, [de, ago], trans. v. spend, pass: vitam, diem, etc. Sts. intrans. live: ille potens sui Laetusque deget.

dē-grandinat, impers. v. it hails violently; or prps. it ceases hailing.

dē-grassor, āri, intrans. dep. 1. rush down. 2. attack fiercely, (poet. with acc.).

dē-grāvo, āre, ātum, trans. v. I. weigh or press down, overpower. II. (fig.) burden, load, embarrass.

dē-grĕdior, grĕdi, gressus sum, [gradior], intrans. dep. step or march down, descend: de pedes, i.e. dismount.

dē-grunnio, īre, intrans. v. grunt or squeak loudly; or, grunt in turn.

dē-gusto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. taste of. II. (meton.) 1. pass slightly over, graze (lances) summum degustat vulnere corpus. 2. (of fire) lick up, lap. III. (fig.) make trial of, try, essay; 'pump' a person.

dē-hinc (sts. monosyll. in poet.) adv. I. 1. from this place, from hence. 2. herefrom, out of this, hence: ut speciosa dehinc miracula promat. II. (of time) 1. henceforth, henceforward. 2. thenceforth, after that. 3. hereupon, next, then, afterwards; in the next place.

dē-hisco, ĕre, hīvi, intrans. v. split open, gape, yawn, part asunder.

dēhŏnestāmentum, i, n. [dehonesto], 1. a dishonour, disgrace, scandal. 2. a disfigurement, blemish.

dē-hŏnesto, āre, trans. v. disgrace, dishonour.

dē-hortor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. advise to the contrary, dissuade.

Dēĭănira, ae, f. a daughter of Oeneus, and wife of Hercules, whose death she caused by sending him a robe dipped in the blood of the Centaur Nessus.

dē-ĭcio (dējĭcio), ĭcĕre, ĭēci, iectum, [iacio], trans. v. I. 1. throw or cast down; hurl down, precipitate; dislodge, overthrow. 2. bring or force down, cause to descend: equum in cavam viam; saxi delectae ad caprae. 3. (milit. techn. t.) dislodge (an enemy) from his position: hostes muro turribusque; praesidium. 4. (of a ship) drive out of its course. 5. bring down, lay dead, fell, kill. 6. (legal techn. t.) eject, dispossess. II. (fig.) 1. cast down, lower: vultum; oculos dejecta decoros, with beauteous eyes downcast (pass. part. in middle sense). 2. dislodge, force away from, remove: aliquem de sententiâ, make him abandon his resolution; de gradu deici, be forced from one's attitude of defence (of a gladiator); hence, (prov.) be thrown off one's guard, be disconcerted. 3. prevent one from obtaining a thing, throw out, disappoint; esp. procure the rejection of a candidate, defeat his candidature; aliquem aedilitate; opinione trium legionum, disappointed in his expectation of three legions; hoc deiecto (abl. abs.), after his fall.

Dēĭdāmĭa, ae, f. daughter of Lycomedes, king of Scyros, mother of Pyrrhus by Achilles.

deiecio, sts. in MSS. for deicio.

dēiectio, ōnis, f. [deicio], 1. a throwing or casting down. 2. an eviction, dispossession.

(1) dēlectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deicio. As adj. 1. sunk down, low. 2. dispirited, downcast.

(2) dēlectus, ūs, m. [deicio], 1. a casting or throwing down: arborum, felling. 2. a waterfall. 3. a declivity, slope, descent.

dēĭĕro (dējŭro), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. swear outright, take a solemn oath.

dēĭn. See deinde.

dēin-ceps, (dissyll. in Hor.), adv. [capio], next in succession; one after another, continuously; in turn, in succession.

dēin-dĕ (dēin, abbr.), but dēinde (dissyll.), dēin (monosyll.), in the best authors, adv. I. (of place) from there, thence forward. 2. (of time) thereafter, thereupon, then, after that; from this time forward. 3. (of order) afterwards, next in order, then; secondly; in fine, lastly.

Dēĭŏtārus, i, m. a tetrarch of Galatia, made king by the Senate for his loyalty to Rome in the Mithridatic wars. A speech of Cicero in his defence is extant.

Dēĭphŏbus, i, m. a son of Priam.

dejectio, dejectus, dejero. See dei-.

dē-jĭcio. See deicio.

dē-jūro. See deiero.

dē-lăbor, i, lapsus sum, intrans. dep. I. glide, slip, or sink down; descend, fall. II. (fig.) 1. come down, drop, slide, drift, sink. 2. heel over, incline, lean to, have a penchant for.

dē-lambo, ĕre, trans. v. lick.

dē-lāmentor, āri, trans. dep. lament greatly, deplore.

dē-lasso, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. weary or tire out.

dēlātio, ōnis, f. [defero], an accusation, information against a person, prosecution; cf. defero, II. 4 (a).

dēlātor, ōris, m. [id.], an accuser, informer, denouncer. See Dict. Ant.

dēlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from defero.

dēlēbilis, e, adj. [deleo], that may be effaced, destructible.

dēlectābilis, e, adj. [delecto], delightful, agreeable.

dēlectāmentum, i, n. [id.], a delight, amusement, pastime.

dēlectātio, ōnis, f. [id.], a delighting, delight, pleasure, amusement.

dēlecto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. delicio; cf. allicio], trans. v. entice away, allure, seduce; delight, amuse, charm, entertain, give pleasure to.

(1) dēlectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) deligo. As adj. select: delecti viri, the élite.

(2) dēlectus (dīl-), ūs, m. (1) deligo), 1. a choosing out, selection, choice, distinction. 2. (milit. techn. t.) (a) a levy of troops: habere delectum, to hold a levy, recruit; (b) the troops levied.

dēlēgātio, ōnis, f. [delego], a substitution of another person instead of one's-self as debtor; an assignment of a debt.

dē-lĕgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. send away, despatch. 2. delegate, depute. 3. (fig.) refer. II. 1. confide, intrust, commit, assign. 2. make over, transfer; cf. delegatio. 3. (fig.) ascribe, attribute, impute: servati consulis decus ad servum; scelera ipsa aliis.

dēlēnīmentum, i, n. [deleniо], a charm, blandishment, caress; attractiveness, fascination.

dē-lēnio (dēlīnio), īre, īvi, ītum, trans. v. soothe or soften down, allay; charm, win, captivate, cajole.

dēlēnītor (dēlīn-), ōris, m. [delenio], one who soothes or wins over.

dēlĕo, ēre, lēvi, lētum, trans. v. I. 1. wash or blot out, efface, erase. 2. destroy completely, annihilate, abolish. II. (fig.) finish, put an end to, extinguish: bella.

delĕrat, delĕrit, delĕsset, contr. for deleverat, etc., from deleo.

dēlĕtrix, trīcis, f. [deletor], a female destroyer.

Dēlia, ae, f. 1. (sc. dea), a name of Diana; cf. Delos, Delius. 2. a female name.

Dēlĭăcus, a, um, adj.=Delius.

dēlĭbĕrābundus, a, um, adj. [deliberо], plunged in deep thought.

dēlĭbĕrātio, ōnis, f. [id.], a weighing well, consideration, thought, reflection, discussion.

dēlĭbĕrātīvus, a, um, adj. [id.], relating to deliberation.

dēlĭbĕrātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who takes time to consider, a man of hesitation.

dēlĭbĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from delibero. As adj. resolved upon after deliberation, settled: deliberatâ morte ferocior. Compar. deliberatior.

dē-lĭbĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [de, libro; libra], trans. v. I. weigh well in one's mind, consider maturely, deliberate; take counsel, advise upon: noctem ad deliberandum postulare, ask a night to consider, i.e. politely veto a question by an adjournment. Impers. deliberatur, the question is discussed. II. (meton.) 1. consult an oracle: delecti Delphos deliberatum missi. 2. resolve after deliberation, settle, determine.

dē-libo, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. I. take a drop or taste of, lightly sip. II. (fig.) 1. taste, pluck, gather, enjoy: flos delibatus, picked, choicest, Cic. 2. lessen, disparage, detract from. 3. (poet.) skim: aequora.

dē-libro, āre, ātum, [(4) liber, libri, bark], trans. v. strip off the bark or rind, peel.

dēlībūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from obsol. delibuo, [cf. λείβω, ἀλείφω], 1. smeared over, anointed; soused, reeking. 2. [fig.] plunged over head and ears: gaudio.

dēlicātē, adv. [delicatus], tastily, luxuriously, voluptuously, lazily. Compar. delicatius.

dēlicātus, a, um, adj. [deliciae], I. 1. delightful, charming, choice, beautiful. 2. luxurious, voluptuous. 3. (meton.) tender, delicate. II. 1. addicted to pleasure, self-indulgent, loose, rakish. As subst. dēlicātus, ī, m. (-a, ae, f.), a voluptuary, wanton, rake; a favourite, paramour. 2. spoiled with indulgence, petted, pampered; dainty, fastidious, whimsical, capricious. Compar. delicatior; superl. delicatissimus.

dēlĭcĭa, ae, f. See deliciae.

dēlĭcĭae, ārum, (-ia, ae), f. [-ium, ĭī, n.], [delicio, allure], I. 1. anything that delights; pleasure, luxury. 2. fondness, dalliance, fondling. 3. daintiness, effeminacy, capriciousness; whims and fancies. II. (meton.) 1. a darling, pet, sweetheart, favourite. 2. a man of fashion, a rake.

dēlĭcĭŏlae, ārum, f. pl. [dim. deliciae], a darling, pet.

dēlĭcĭum, ĭī, n. See deliciae.

dēlictum, ī, n. [delinquo], an omission or contravention of duty; an offence, fault, crime.

(1) dē-lĭgo, lĭgĕre, lēgī, lectum, [(1) lego], trans. v. I. pick or choose out, select. 2. gather, cull.

(2) dē-lĭgo, lĭgāre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. tie down, bind or tie fast; fasten, moor.

delinĭo, delinīre. See delen-.

dē-linquo, linquĕre, līquī, lictum, intrans. v. lit. leave undone; [fig.] fail in duty, commit a fault, transgress, offend: deliquere homines adulescentuli; (with cognac.) si quid deliquere; flagitia.

dē-liquesco, ĕre, lĭcŭī, intrans. v. melt away, dissolve, melt.

dēlīrātio, ōnis, f. [deliro], folly, madness, craziness, fatuity.

dē-liro, āre, [lira, a furrow], intrans. v. lit. stray from the furrow, make a balk in ploughing. I. go from the straight line. II. (fig.) be crazy or deranged, act madly, rave, dote: quidquid delirant reges plectuntur Achivi, whatever folly the princes commit.

dēlīrus, a, um, adj. [id.], crazy, mad, senseless, foolish, doting.

dē-lītesco, ĕre, lĭtŭī, [latesco], intrans. v. I. lurk aside, hide one's-self, lie hid, skulk. II. (fig.) take refuge, shelter one's-self: in aliquius auctoritate.

dē-lītigo, āre, intrans. v. rail till one is tired, scold to exhaustion.

Dēlĭus, a, um, adj. 1. of or from Delos, Delian. As subst. Dēlĭus, ĭī, m. (sc. deus), the god of Delos, Apollo. 2. (meton.) sacred to Apollo or Diana: folia, i.e. of bay or laurel.

Delmata, Delmatia, Delmaticus. See Dalm-.

Dēlŏs, ī, Gk. acc. Dēlŏn, f. Delos, one of the Cyclades, an island in the Aegean, the birthplace of Apollo and Diana.

(1) Delphi, ōrum, m. pl. a small town in Phocis, now Kastri, famed for the oracle of Apollo.

(2) Delphi, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Delphi, the Delphians.

Delphĭcus, a, um, adj. of or from Delphi, Delphic, Delphian. As subst. (a) Delphĭcus, ī, m. (sc. deus), the god of Delphi, Apollo; (b) Delphĭca, ae, f. (sc. mensa), a table of marble or bronze in the shape of a tripod.

‡ delphĭn, ĭnis, and delphīnus, ī, m. [δελφίν], 1. a dolphin, porpoise. 2. the constellation of the Dolphin.

Delphis, ĭdis, f. [Δελφίς], a priestess of the Delphic Apollo.

dēlūbrum, ī, n. [deluo, cleanse], lit. a place for purification; a shrine, sanctuary; more often in pl.

dēlūdĭcr, old infin. pass. from deludo.

dē-lūdo, ĕre, sī, sum, trans. v. I. make game of, play one false, disappoint, mock. II. (of a gladiator) cease playing.

dē-lumbis, e, adj. [lumbus], 1. stooping in the loins, lame. 2. (fig.) weak, enervated, emasculated.

dē-lumbo, āre, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. lame in the loins. II. (meton.) bend, crook. III. (fig.) enervate, weaken.

dēlūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deludo.

-dem, a pronominal suffix, [cf. ὅ-δε, οἰκόν-δε]. See idem for isdem; tandem, etc.

dē-mādesco, ĕre, mădŭī, intrans. v. become moist or wet.

dē-mando, āre, āvī, ātum, traj. trans. v. give in charge, intrust, commend, commit.

dē-mano, āre, āvī, intrans. v. flow down, course; filter, trickle.

Dēmărātus, ī, m. 1. a merchant noble of Corinth who settled in Etruria, father of Tarquinius Priscus. 2. a Spartan king, colleague of Cleomenes (510-491 B.C.).

dē-mens, ntis, adj. out of one's mind or senses; mad, raving; witless, foolish. Compar. dementior; superl. dementissimus.

dēmensus, a, um, perf. part. from demetior. As subst. dēmensum, ī, n. a measured allowance (to slaves), rations.

dēmenter, adv. [demens], madly, foolishly. Superl. dementissime.

dēmentĭa, ae, f. [id.], madness, infatuation, folly.

dēmentĭo, īre, [id.], intrans. v. be mad, rave.

dē-mĕrĕo, ēre, ŭī, ĭtum, trans. v. 1. deserve, merit. 2. (with acc. of pers.) deserve well of, oblige, gain the favour of, attach to one's-self. In this sense mostly in dep. dēmĕrĕor, ērī.

dē-mergo, ĕre, sī, sum, trans. v. I. plunge into, dip, sink, immerse, submerge. II. (meton.) force down, send below: plebem in fossas. III. (fig.) sink, depress, overwhelm.

dēmersus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from demergo.

dēmessus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from demeto.

dē-mētĭor, īrī, mensus sum, trans. dep. measure off, measure out.

dē-mĕto, ĕre, messŭi, messum, trans. v. 1. mow down, reap. 2. cull, cut, gather. 3. cut off: ense caput.

dēmigrātio, ōnis, f. [demigro], an emigration.

dē-migro, āre, āvī, ātum, intrans. v. I. change one's abode, move off, remove, depart, emigrate. II. (fig.) depart from life.

dē-mĭnŭo (dī-), ĕre, ŭī, ūtum, trans. v. I. lessen, diminish, impair, abate: aliquid de iure aut de legibus Aeduorum, to trench upon, infringe, the rights or laws of the Aedui. II. (legal techn. t.) alienate property.

dēmĭnūtio (dī-), ōnis, f. [deminuo], 1. a lessening, diminution, decrease, shortening. 2. (meton.) a depreciation, disparagement. 3. (legal techn. t.) the power of alienating property. 4. (polit. techn. t.) deminutio capitis, the abridgment or forfeiture of political and social rights; cf. caput, III. (b).

dēmĭnūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deminuo.

dē-mīror, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. wonder at; wonder. 2. (colloq.) I am at a loss to imagine, I should like to know.

dēmissē, adv. [demissus], 1. low, near the ground. 2. humbly, modestly; abjectly, meanly. Compar. demissius; superl. demississime.

dēmissĭo, ōnis, f. [demitto], 1. a letting down, lowering. 2. (fig.) depression: animi.

dēmissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from demitto. As adj. I. 1. sunken, low-lying, low: loca. 2. drooping, falling, hanging down, downcast, bowed: umeri; caput; vultum demissa, with face cast down (pass. part. in middle sense). II. (fig.) 1. dejected, downcast, disheartened, low. 2. lowly, humble; retiring, shy. 3. low-born, mean. 4. descended, sprung: a magno demissum nomen Iulo.

dē-mĭtigo, āre, trans. v. mollify. Pass. demitigor, I am calming down.

dē-mitto, ĕre, mīsi, missum, trans. v. I. 1. send down, let down, let fall, lower. 2. cast down, thrust, force, plunge, drive. 3. Demittere se, or demitti, pass. used reflexively, let one's-self down, lower one's-self, descend, stoop; get one's-self into a position; give one's-self up to a thing, embark in, plunge into. II. (fig.) let down, allow to sink or settle; cast down, abase; lay low, prostrate: animum (mentem), lose heart, be disheartened; so, sese animo demittere.

‡ dēmiurgus, i, m. [δημιουργός], the title of an official in some of the Peloponnesian states.

dē-mo, ĕre, mpsi (msi), mptum (mtum), [de ; emo], trans. v. take away, take down, withdraw, remove.

Dēmŏcrĭtēus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Democritus.

Dēmŏcrĭtus, i, m. the laughing philosopher of Abdera, founder of the atomic theory (about 460-361 B.C.).

Dēmŏlĭōn, ōnis, m. one of the Centaurs.

Dēmŏlĭŏs, i, m. a Greek chief slain by Aeneas.

dē-mōlior, īrī, ītus sum, trans. dep. cast down, pull down, remove, destroy.

dēmōlītio, ōnis, f. [demolior], a throwing or pulling down, destruction.

dēmonstrātio, ōnis, f. [demonstro], a pointing out, indication ; exhibition ; proof.

dēmonstrātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who points out or indicates.

dē-monstro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. point out, show plainly, indicate. II. (fig.) designate, show, prove, describe precisely, explain, represent, state, make mention.

Dēmŏphōōn, ontis, m. son of Theseus and Phaedra, beloved by Phyllis, queen of Thrace.

dē-mordĕo, ēre, morsum, trans. v. bite off, bite to the quick.

dē-mōrior, mōrī, mortŭus sum, intrans. dep. die off ; die, decease.

dē-mōror, ārī, ātus sum, intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) stay, linger, loiter, tarry. B. (trans.) 1. detain, delay, keep back, stay, restrain. 2. wait for, expect.

dēmorsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from demordeo.

dēmortŭus, a, um, perf. part. from demorior.

Dēmosthĕnēs, is, m. 1. the famous Athenian orator, born B.C. 385, died 322 B.C. 2. an Athenian general in the Peloponnesian war.

dē-mŏvĕo, ēre, mōvi, mōtum, trans. v. 1. move or put away, turn out, withdraw, remove. 2. put out of the way, set aside, depose : loco, i.e. make one give way (metaph. from the palaestra).

demptus (demtus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from demo. Dempto fine, abl. abs. for ever.

dē-mūgītus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [mugio], lit. bellowed over ; filled with lowings or bellowings.

dē-mulcĕo, ēre, mulsi, mulctum, trans. v. stroke down, pat caressingly.

dēmum, adv. [superl. of prep. de, downmost], I. at length, at last ; precisely, just ; indeed, in fact, certainly. Tum demum, then at last, then and not till then, then and then only ; not until. Id demum, that and that only, nothing till we come to that, nothing short of that. Ibi demum, just there. Modo demum, only now, now for the first time. II. (in post-Augustan writers), 1. only, solely, exclusively. 2. at length, at last ; finally.

dē-mūnĕror, ārī, trans. dep. bribe, fee, tip.

dē-murmŭro, āre, trans. v. mutter over softly, Ov.

dēmūtātio, ōnis, f. a changing, alteration.

dē-mūto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. change from a former condition ; sts. alter for the worse.

dēnārius, a, um, adj. [deni], of ten ; containing ten. As subst. dēnārius, ĭi, contr. gen. pl. denariûm, m. (sc. nummus), 1. a Roman silver coin, containing originally ten and afterwards sixteen asses, = about 9½d. of our money. 2. denarius aureus, a gold coin = twenty-five silver denarii. 3. (meton.) (a) an apothecary's weight = drachma ; (b) current coin ; cash : ad denarium solvere, to pay in currency.

dē-narro, āre, trans. v. tell fully, relate, recount.

dē-nāto, āre, intrans. v. swim down.

dē-nĕgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. deny outright, assert a thing is not so, positively say "No." 2. refuse to give, refuse, deny.

dēni, ae, a, contr. gen. pl. denûm, distrib. num. adj. [decem], 1. ten each, ten apiece, ten at a time, by tens. 2. (poet. meton.) (a) ten : bis denas naves ; (b) (in sing.) tenth : luna.

dē-nīcālis (-nĕcālis), e, adj. [nex, necis], purifying from death.

dēnīquĕ, adv. 1. and thereupon, and then ; at length, at last, lastly ; in short, finally ; just, precisely : id denique, just that ; tum denique, just then ; modo denique, now for the first time ; cf. demum. 2. after all, at most, merely : vitavi denique culpam. 3. secondly and lastly, in short, briefly ; in a word, in fact ; at all. 4. in consequence, therefore, accordingly.

dē-nōmĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. specify by name ; name, designate.

dē-normo, āre, ātum, [norma], trans. v. put out of shape, spoil the shape of, make irregular, disfigure.

dē-nōto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. mark out, mark off. II. 1. point out, specify, designate. 2. take note of, mark, observe ; attract notice to a person or thing by looking at. III. (fig.) brand, stigmatise.

dens, dentis, m. [Sanscr. dantas ; cf. ὀδούς, ὀδόντ-ος], I. a tooth ; Indus (Libycus, Erythraeus, Numida), the elephant's tooth or tusk, i.e. ivory. II. (meton.) (a) the fluke of an anchor ; (b) the share or coulter of a plough ; (c) the tooth of a harrow, rake, etc. ; (d) a prong of a hoe ; (e) a pruning-hook, curvo Saturni dente ; (f) the tooth of a saw ; (g) the teeth of a comb ; (h) the teeth of a three-pronged key ; (i) the barb of a hunting-spear. III. (fig.) 1. the tooth of envy ; malice, envy. 2. destructive power, ravage : aevi ; leti, the jaws of death.

densē, adv. [densus], 1. thickly, closely. 2. one close upon the other, rapidly, frequently. Comparr. densius ; superl. densissime.

densō, āre, āvi, ātum, (-ŏ, ĕre, ātum), trans. v. make thick, thicken, set close, close up, huddle, press together, condense : Iuppiter Austris Densat erant quae rara modo ; agmina ; hastilia, i.e. throw in quick succession.

densus, a, um, adj. [cf. δασύς, and dumus], I. 1. thick, dense. 2. close set, closely packed or pressed, condensed. 3. (poet. with abl.) thickly set, thronging, beset, full of, covered with : vallis piceis ; femina crinibus emptis. II. (meton.) 1. thick, frequent, often repeated, following in quick succession. 2. numerous, manifold : divûm amores. 3. strong, i.e. with concentrated force : Aquilo. 4. that makes solid : asperitas frigoris. III. (fig. ; of style) condensed, concentrated ; pithy. Comparr. densior ; superl. densissimus.

dentāle, is, and (poet.) pl. dentālia, ium, n. the share-beam of a plough, to which the vomer was attached. See Rich, Dict. Ant.

(1) dentātus, a, um, denom. adj formed like part. [dens], I. toothed having teeth. II. (meton.) (a) spiked, pointed, cogged ; (b) charta dentata, paper smoothed with the tooth of some animal to procure a glossy surface.

(2) Dentātus, i, m. See Curius.

dentiscalpium, ĭi, n. [dens, scalpo], a tooth-pick.

dē-nūbo, ĕre, nupsi, ptum, intrans. v. I. marry off from home (of the woman). 2. marry in set form. 3. marry beneath one's station.

dē-nūdo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. lay completely bare, make naked, strip, uncover, expose. II. (fig.) 1. disclose, reveal. 2. strip, despoil, divest.

dēnuntiātio (-cĭātio), ōnis, f. [denuntio], an official announcement, declaration, invitation ; warning, menace. Cf. denuntio.

dē-nuntio (-cio), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. announce (officially, by a herald, etc.) ; announce, declare, send word, intimate, give notice ; order, command : bellum ; centurionibus exsequi caedem ; nationibus ut auxilia mittant. 2. (legal techn. t.) Denuntiare testi-monium alicui, or absol. denuntiare, to compel a person to appear as witness, subpoena (lit. signify evidence to a person, i.e. that he will have to give evidence): domum alicui denuntiare, serve a notice at one's house. II. (meton.) announce, signify, foretell, give notice or warning; denounce, menace, threaten.

dē-nŭō, adv. [contr. for de-nŏvo], anew, afresh; again, once more.

Dēōīs, ĭdis (-ĭdŏs), f. patron. the daughter of Deo (Δηώ, Ceres), i.e. Persephone (Proserpine).

Dēōrus, a, um, adj. belonging or sacred to Deo (Δηώ, Ceres).

dē-ōnĕro, āre, ēvi, ātum, trans. v. disburden.

dēorsum (sts. dissyll. in poet.), dēorsus, adv. [contr. for deversum, turned down], downward, down below: sursum deorsum, up and down; deorsum versum, straight down.

dē-osculor, ārī ātus sum, trans. dep. kiss fondly.

dē-păciscor, ī. See depeciscor.

dēpactus, a, um, 1. perf. part. from depaciscor. 2. perf. pass. part. from depango.

dē-pango, ĕre, pactum, trans. v. drive down; set, fix, plant.

dē-parcus, a, um, adj. excessively sparing, stingy, niggardly.

dē-pasco, ĕre, pāvi, pastum, trans. v. I. 1. feed down; feed a flock on, crop off, cause to be eaten down (of the shepherd). 2. feed upon, eat up, graze down (of the cattle). II. (fig.) 1. keep down: luxuries orationis quaedam quae stilo depascenda est. 2. prey upon, waste dē-pascor, ī, pastus sum, trans. dep. I. feed on, pasture on, devour: miseros depascitur artūs (serpens); sonipes frondes depastus amaras. II. (fig.) feed upon; prey upon, consume: aurea dicta; artūs depascitur arida febris.

dēpastus, a, um, 1. perf. pass. part. from depasco, fed upon: altaria; (in middle sense with acc.) saepes Hyblaeis apibus florem depasta salicti, the hedge, whose willow blossoms are sucked by Hybla's bees. 2. perf. part. from depascor, dep.

dē-pĕciscor (-păciscor), ī, pectus (pactus) sum, trans. dep. I. bargain for, agree upon; make a contract, agreement. II. (fig., with abl. of price) bargain for, compound: ut mihi liceat quod amo frui iam depeciscī morte cupio, I am ready to purchase the possession of my darling at the price of my own life.

dē-pecto, ĕre, pexum, trans. v. I. comb down or off; comb, trim. II. (meton.) give one a dressing: eum adeo depexum dabo ut . . .

dēpectus, a, um, perf. part. from depeciscor.

dēpĕcŭlātor, ōris, m. [depeculor], one who embezzles public money; a plunderer.

dē-pĕcŭlor, ārī, ātus sum, trans. dep. plunder, pillage, despoil.

dē-pello, ĕre, pŭli, pulsum, trans. v. I. 1. drive away, drive down, drive off or aside from; remove, banish, expel. 2. dislodge, drive from a position: hostem; gradu depulsus, i.e. disconcerted; cf. deicio, II. 2. wean; sts. with a matre, ab ubere, (a) lacte, etc. II. (fig.) 1. divert, deter, dissuade, hinder, preclude from. 2. put down, put aside, remove, avert.

dē-pendĕo, ēre, intrans. v. I. hang down, hang from or on. II. (fig.) depend upon, be derived from.

dē-pendo, ĕre, di, sum, trans. v. I. lit. weigh out; pay away, pay. II. spend, lay out, bestow; give up, abandon: tempora amori; caput armis. III. (ēē) pay: poenas.

dēperditus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deperdo, utterly ruined or undone; overwhelmed with grief, etc.; desperately in love: sutor inopiā deperditus; sensus omnes; ut est deperditus Io (abl. ='Ioi, or prps. acc., as if deperditus est by synesis=perdite amavit).

dē-perdo, ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, trans. v. 1. lose from one's self, lose quite. 2. ruin or destroy entirely. So only in perf. pass. part. deperditus, q.v.

dē-pĕrĕo, īre, ĭi, intrans. v. 1. go to ruin, perish, be utterly lost, undone. 2. be dying with love for a person: amore alicuius, i n aliquo; sts. with ac., i.lium deperit (=perdite amat) impotente amore, loves to desperation. 3. die.

dēpexus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from depecto.

dēpictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from depingo.

dē-pingo, ĕre, pinxi, pictum, trans. v. I. paint a copy of, portray, paint, depict, represent (in painting). II. (fig. of speech or thought) sketch, describe, portray, conceive. III. embroider, brocade.

dē-plango, ĕre, nxi, trans. v. bewail deeply (by beating the breast): deplangi Cadmeida.

dē-planto, āre, āvi, ātum, [planta], trans. v. 1. take off a shoot. 2. plant, set.

dē-plĕo, ēre, ēvi, ētum, trans. v. empty out, draw off; exhaust.

dē-plexus, a, um, adj. [plector], clasping, clutching, locking in one's grip.

dē-plōro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) weep bitterly, lament. B. (trans.) 1. bewail the loss of, deplore. 2. give up for lost, abandon as hopeless or incurable: spem retinendae Capuae deplorafam esse.

dē-plŭo, ĕre, intrans. v. rain down. Found in a doubtful reading with acc. lacrimas.

dē-pōno, ĕre, pŏsŭi (pŏsīvi, Catull.), pŏsĭtum, trans. v. I. 1. set or lay down, lay aside, put off; lay, place, set; convey for safety, deposit, give in charge. 2. (poet.) bring forth; cradle. 3. stake, wager: vitulam. 4. dedicate: crinem amati. II. (meton.) 1. (of a dying person) lay before the door of the house: ut depositi proferret fata parentis, i.e. aying, at death's door. 2. (of one just dead) lay out, expose as dead: depositum nec me qui fleat ullus erit. III. (fig.) 1. give up, waive, resign one's claim to, see the last of, put away, lay aside, get rid of. 2. intrust, commit to.

dēpŏpŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [depopulor], a laying waste, ravaging.

dēpŏpŭlātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who lays waste, a ravager, marauder.

dēpŏpŭlātus, a, um, 1. perf. pass. part. from depopulo. 2. perf. part. from depopulor.

dē-pŏpŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. and more often dēpŏpŭlor, ārī, ātus sum, dep. I. lay waste, ravage, pillage. II. (fig.) sweep away, destroy.

dēportārĭer, old infin. pass. from deporto.

dē-porto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. carry down, convey away. 2. (polit. techn. t.) bring home in triumph from a province (by sea): victorem exercitum. 3. banish, transport; get rid of. II. (fig.) carry off, get, acquire, win, earn, bring home.

dē-posco, ĕre, pŏposci, trans. v. I. demand earnestly, require urgently, request; imperiously, challenge. II. 1. demand for one's-self, put in a claim to or for; volunteer for: sibi id muneris. 2. demand the surrender of a person (for punishment, death, etc.).

dēpŏsĭtum, i, n. See depositus.

dēpŏsĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from depono, 1. laid down, put off, resigned. 2. (poet. and fig.) laid out as dead, sick to death, at death's door, dying; despaired of, given up. 3. intrusted, left in trust, committed. As subst. dēpŏsĭtum, i, n. a deposit, trust: fallere, to be false to one's trust.

dēprāvātē, adv. [depravatus], perversely, wrongly.

dēprāvātĭo, ōnis, f. [depravo], a distorting, perverting; vitiation, corruption, deformity.

dē-prāvo, āre, āvi, ātum, [pravus], trans. v. 1. distort, pervert. 2. (fig.) pervert, corrupt, deprave.

dēprĕcābundus, a, um, adj. [deprecor], earnestly entreating.

dēprĕcātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a praying against, begging off, deprecation. 2. an imprecation: deorum, a form of words calling on the gods to punish the oath-taker if he lies. 3. (meton.) a prayer for pardon, apology for: inertiae.

dēprĕcātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who averts by praying: periculi. 2. one who prays earnestly for, a spokesman, an intercessor for or in behalf of: salutis meae; eo deprecatore (abl. abs.), by his intercession.

dē-prĕcor, ārī, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. 1. pray against, pray not to have, avert by earnest entreaty, deprecate (with acc. of person or thing, infin., or subj. with ne, quominus, or quin). 2. beseech, beg, entreat, pray to. 3.

intercede or plead for: a populo Romano frātris salutem; pro amico. II. plead in excuse; excuse one's-self: errāsse regem. III. 1. imprecate. 2. curse, execrate, cry down.

dē-prĕhendo (-prendo), ĕre, di, sum, trans. v. 1. seize upon, catch, take unawares, surprise, overtake. II. 1. detect, discover, catch or take in the deed (of wrong). 2. impede, check, confine. III. (fig.) 1. comprehend, perceive, detect, discover, discern. 2. bring into a strait, put in a fix, embarrass.

dēprĕhensĭo, ōnis, f. [deprehendo], a seizing, catching; detection, discovery.

dēprĕhensus (dēprensus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from deprehendo (deprendo), 1. caught, stopped, surprised. 2. storm-caught, overtaken by tempest: nantae. 3. caught in the act, detected, discovered. 4. confined, pent up: flamina silvis.

dēpressus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deprimo. As adj. 1. deep, lying low, depressed. 2. sunk, lowered. Compar. depressior.

dē-primo, primĕre, pressi, pressum, [premo], trans. v. I. 1. press down, weigh or bear down, sink, depress: depresso aratro, i.e. driven deep. 2. sink deep into the ground (e.g. a well); plant deep; dig deep. 3. sink to the bottom, sink (a ship): naves; classem. II. (fig.) depress, crush; put down, suppress.

dē-proelĭor (-praelĭor), āri, intrans. dep. fight to the death, battle fiercely.

dē-prōmo, ĕre, prompsi (-msi), promptum (-mtum), trans. v. draw forth, fetch out; produce.

dē-prŏpĕro, āre, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) make great haste. B. (trans.) hasten on, prepare with haste, despatch.

dē-pūdet, ĕre, pūdŭit, impers. v. 1. one feels shame no longer, one ceases to blush, is lost to shame. 2. one feels greatly ashamed.

dē-pūgis (pȳgis), e, adj. [pyga], thin-haunched; skinny.

dē-pugno, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. fight it out, fight till the last, fight fiercely, contend.

dēpulsĭo, ōnis, f. [depello], a driving away, warding off.

dēpulsor, ōris, m. [id.], one who drives away, repels, overthrows.

dēpulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from depello.

dē-pungo, ĕre, trans. v. prick off, set a mark.

dē-pūto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. lop off, prune, trim: nimias umbras. II. reckon, count, consider, judge.

dē-pȳgis, e. See depugis.

dēque. See susque deque.

dē-questus, a, um, perf. part. [queror], complaining much of, lamenting.

dē-rādo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. scrape off, shave.

dēram, as, at, etc. for deeram. See desum.

Dercētis, is, (-ō, ūs), f. a Syrian goddess, also called Atargatis, by some identified with Aphrodite. She was represented as half woman, half fish, like Dagon of the Philistines.

dērectus, a, um. See directus.

dērēlictĭo, ōnis, f. [derelinquo], a disregarding, neglect.

dērēlictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from derelinquo.

dē-rēlinquo, ĕre, līqui, lictum, trans. v. leave completely, leave behind, abandon, forsake, desert.

dē-rĕpentĕ, adv. on a sudden, suddenly.

dē-rĕpo, ĕre, psi, intrans. and trans. v. creep or crawl down.

dēreptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deripio.

dē-rīdĕo, ēre, rīsi, sum, trans. v. laugh to scorn, scoff at, deride, mock.

dē-rīdĭcŭlus, a, um, adj. very laughable, quite ridiculous or absurd, grotesque. As subst. dērīdĭcŭlum, i, n. an object of derision, a laughing-stock, butt; absurdity, grotesqueness; ridicule.

dē-rigesco, ĕre, rĭgŭi, intrans. v. grow perfectly stiff or rigid; curdle.

dē-rĭpio, rĭpĕre, rĭpŭi, reptum, trans. v. I. tear off, tear away, cast off; pull down, snatch or force down; e caelo deos deripere, proverb. for any great impiety. Cf. the story of Otus and Ephialtes. II. (fig.) detract from.

dērīsor, ōris, m. [derideo], a scoffer, jester, mocker, buffoon; mime actor: derisor vero plus laudatore moveturus, a hypocritical applauder, one who laughs behind your back.

(1) dērīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from derideo.

(2) dērīsus, ūs, m. [derideo], mockery, scorn, derision.

dē-rīvātĭo, ōnis, f. [derivo], a drawing off, turning away, diversion of a stream: fluminum, i. e. a canal.

dē-rīvo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. draw a stream of water from the main, lead, draw off, divert, convey. II. (fig.) turn aside, divert into another channel, shift, draw from, derive.

dēro, contr. for deero. See desum.

dērŏgātĭo, ōnis, f. [derogo], a partial repeal: legum.

dē-rŏgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and traj. v. I. (techn. t.) partially repeal a law, modify it: aliquid de lege. II. (meton.) detract from, take away, withdraw; restrict, diminish, abate: non mihi tantum derogo; omnium iis rerum fides derogatur; nihil universorum iuri derogandum.

dē-rōsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. [rodo], gnawed away, nibbled.

dē-rŭo, ĕre, rŭi, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. throw or cast down. II. (fig.) detract from, take away. B. (intrans.) fall down.

dē-ruptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. [rumpo]. As adj. broken off or away; precipitous, steep. As subst. dērupta, ōrum, n. pl. precipices. Compar. deruptior.

dē-sacro (-secro), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. consecrate, dedicate; devote exyressly.

dē-saevĭo, īre, īi, intrans. v. 1. rage fiercely, rave wildly. 2. rage to exhaustion, spend its fury, cease raging.

dē-salto, āre, ātum, trans. v dances of; accompany with dancing: desaltato cantico abiit.

dē-scendo, ĕre, di, sum, intrans. v. I. 1. climb down, go or come down, descend; often esp. of going down from mansions on the Palatine, etc. to the forum, comitia, Campus Martius, etc.; or (of gladiators) into the arena. 2. pass down, sink into, penetrate: descendere in vias ferum; toto corpore pestis. 3. (poet.) fall, sink, slope. II. (fig.) 1. come down, descend. 2. lower one's-self, fall, stoop, condescend, resort, have recourse to; be reduced to, submit to, agree to (often of a disagreeable duty or alternative): preces in omnes; ad alicuius sententiam; alteram utram ad condicionem descendere volt; ad calamitatum societates, i.e. face them. 3. go to, engage in: in causam, take the matter up; in partes alicui, come over to a person's side, side with; in (ad aciem), take the field, go into battle, engage.

descensĭo, ōnis, f. [descendo], 1. a going down, descending, descent. 2. (meton.) a plunge-bath.

descensus, ūs, m. [id.], a going or coming down, a descent; a downward road.

dē-scisco, ĕre, scīvi (ĭi), ītum, intrans. v. I. withdraw, revolt; desert, go over (to another side), found a renegade. II. (meton.) 1. depart, separate one's-self, get clear; deviate from, fall off, be unfaithful to. 2. fall off, degenerate, alter.

dē-scrībo, ĕre, scripsi, ptum, trans. v. I. 1. copy off; write, draw, trace out; transcribe. 2. sketch off, describe, represent (in painting, etc.), mark off, define, divide, distribute, map out, arrange, draw up. 3. ascribe, apportion, assign, define. II. (fig.) represent, delineate, describe; allude to; compose. [MSS. often have discribo, q.v.]

descriptē, adv. [descriptus] distinctly, precisely.

descriptĭo, ōnis, f. [describo], 1. a marking out, copy, delineation; sketch, plan. 2. a description, representation, definition. 3. a disposition, order, arrangement; distribution, division.

descriptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from describo. As adj. well ordered, arranged, mapped out. As subst. descripta, ōrum, n. pl. records: descripta per dies, a daily journal, diary.

dē-sĕco, āre, sĕcŭi, sectum, trans. v. cut off or away, sever.

dē-secro, āre. See desacro.

dēsectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deseco.

dē-sĕro, ĕre, sĕrŭi, sertum, trans. v. lit. disjoin; quit, leave, forsake, abandon, desert, give up; fail, betray: Hesperiam; fratrem; mensa deserit alta toros, i.e. is taken away from; vadimonia illegal techn. t.), fail to appear before the praetor at the appointed time, allow judgment to go by default. Pass. deseror, poet. with abl. in sense of depriving: deseror coniuge.

dē-sertĭo, ōnis, f. [desero], a deserting, abandonment.

dēsertor, ōris, m. [id.], one who forsakes or abandons; a runaway, deserter, renegade.

dēsertum, i, n. See desertus.

dēsertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desero. As adj. abandoned, lonely, desert, solitary, waste. As subst. dēsertum, i, n. a desert, waste, wilderness. Compar. desertior; superl. desertissimus.

dē-servĭo, īre, traj. v. serve zealously, wait upon; be the slave of, devoted to.

dēsĕs, ĭdis, adj. [desideo], inactive, slothful, idle, indolent. Not found in nom. sing.

dē-sĭdĕo, ēre, sēdi, [sedeo], intruns. v. sit still, loiter, be idle.

dēsīdĕrābilis, e, adj. [desidero], to be desired or regretted, desirable. Compar. desiderabilior.

dēsīdĕrātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a longing or yearning after something, a missing, craving.

dēsīdĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desidero. As adj. longed for, welcome; much regretted or missed.

dēsīdĕrium, ĭi, n. [desidero], I. a longing or yearning desire for something; a sorrowful longing for something lost, regret. II. (meton.) 1. want, need, occasion: cibi potionisque. 2. (in the time of the Empire) a request, petition: militum. III. (fig.) an object of longing or regret; one's heart's desire.

dē-sĭdĕro, ēre, āvi, ātum, [deriv. dub.; cf. considero], trans. v. 1. crave or yearn for something not possessed; look for in vain, long for something lost to us, regret, miss. 2. lose, want. Pass. desideror, I am missing, wanting, lost: Sextilem totum desideror.

dēsĭdis, æ, f. [deses], 1. a sitting still, long rest. 2. inactivity, want of energy, sloth, indolence, idleness. 3. (poet.) sitting at the toilet, Propert. i. 15, 6.

dēsĭdĭōsē, adv. [desidiosus], idly, indolently.

dēsĭdĭōsus, a, um, adj. [desidia]. 1. slothful, lazy, idle. 2. making idle or lazy, do-little. Compar. desidiosior; superl. desidiosissimus.

dē-sīdo, ĕre, sēdi, intrans. v. settle down, subside, sink.

dēsignātĭo, ōnis, f. [desigino], 1. a marking out, a marking off; description, designation, particularisation. 2. a planning, arrangement: totius operis. 3. a nomination, appointment, election (to the consulship or other public office).

dēsignātor (dīss-), ōris, m. one who regwates or arranges; a master of ceremonies; esp. (a) a box-keeper or stall-keeper at the theatre; (b) an undertaker (Hor. Ep. i. 7. 6); (c) a clerk of the course at the Circus games.

dēsignātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from designo, 1. elect; cf. designo, II. 3: consul. 2. unborn, supposititious: civis.

dē-signo (diss-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. lit. mark out in a single line; hence (fig.) plan, design, mark off, trace out, mark, define. II. (fig.) 1. point out, particularise, specify, indicate, describe, represent. 2. dispose, arrange, regulate, assign, appoint. 3. nominate, appoint, elect (to a public office): aliquem consulem. A magistrate duly elected and returned had the title of designatus between the time of the election and his entering upon his office; hence, consul (praetor) designatus, the consul (praetor) elect. 4. commit, perpetrate, do anything out of the way: modo quid designavit? what new prank has he been up to? (See dissigno.) III. (meton.) represent, delineate (in embroidery, tapestry, etc.): Europen.

dē-silĭo, īre, silŭi, sultum, intrans. v. leap down, alight; throw one's self.

dē-sĭno, ĕre, sīvi (sĭi), sĭtum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) leave off, cause to cease, put an end to, cease: Macnalios verus; desine meque tuis incendere teque querellis; veteres orationes a plerisque legi sunt desitae Impers. desinitur; desitum est. N.B. desitus sum is followed by pass. infin. only. B. (intrans.) cease, desist, leave off, stop, end, close: desierant imbres; (with abl.) desine, quaeso, communibus locis. In Gk. constr. (a) (with gen.) querellarum; cf. παύω, λήγω; (b) (with preg. use of prep.) desinit in lacrimas; cf. τελευτᾶν εἰς τι. Colloq. Desine, hold! stop! that's enough! say no more!

dēsĭpiens, ntis, part. from desipio. As adj. foolish, silly.

dēsĭpientĭa, æ, f. [desipio], want of sense, folly.

dē-sīpĭo, sīpĕre, [sapio], intrans. v. be void of understanding; be silly, foolish, play the fool; cast off seriousness, unbend, trifle.

dēsĭsse, dēsĭssem, sync. for desivisse, desivissem from desino.

dē-sisto, ĕre, stĭti, stĭtum, intrans. v. lit. stand off; leave off, give over, desist, cease, stop, halt, stand still; with abl., prepp. de, ab, infin., quin, and (poet.) with dat.: sententiā, waive one's opinion; causā, drop the prosecution.

dēsĭt, 1. sync. for desiit=desivit, perf. from desino. 2. subj. from desum.

dēsĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desino.

dēsōlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desolo, left alone, forsaken, forlorn, isolated; laid waste, desolate; (with abl.) forsaken by, deprived of.

dē-sōlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [solus], trans. v. leave alone; forsake, abandon, make desolate, dispeople.

dē-specto, āre, trans. v. I. look down upon (from a height); overlook. II. (fig.) look down upon, despise.

(1) dēspectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from despicio. As adj. despicable, contemptible. Compar. despectior.

(2) dēspectus, ūs, m. [despicio], a looking down upon; a view down or below, prospect: in mare, a looking down on to, i.e. view over the sea.

dēspĕranter, adv. [despero], hopelessly, despairingly.

dēspĕrātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], hopelessness, despair; recklessness.

dēspĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from despero. As adj. given up for lost, past hope, hopeless, despaired of, desperate, incurable, incorrigible; (of persons) reckless, desperate: pecuniae, i.e. bad debts. Compar. desperatior; superl. desperatissimus.

dē-spĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) give up hope, be hopeless, despair: de republicā; (with dat.) sibi; saluti suae; (with acc. and infin.) quae Desperat tractata nitescere posse, relinquit. B. (trans.) have no hope of, give up for lost: honorem; desperatis nostris rebus.

dēspĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [despicor], a despising; a feeling of contempt.

(1) dēspĭcātus, a, um, perf. part. from despicor. As adj. despised, contemptible. Superl. despicatissimus.

(2) dēspĭcātus, ūs, m. [despicor], a despising: habere (ducere) aliquem despicatui, to hold one in contempt.

dēspĭciendus, a, um, gerundive from despicio, despicable, fit to be looked down upon.

dēspĭciens, ntis, part. from despicio. As adj. despising: (with gen.) sui, wanting in self-esteem; diffident.

dēspĭcientĭa, æ, f. [despicio], a despising, contempt.

dē-spĭcio, spĭcĕre, spexi, spectum, [-specio], trans. v. I. 1. look down on: ab aethere terras. Pass. impers.: collibus occupatis, qua despici poterat, where a view could be obtained over the plain below. 2. (without obj. acc.), look down, glance aside. II. (fig.) despise, disdain, decline, shun: paucitatem militum; despectus tibi sum; laborem.

dē-spŏlio, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. rob, plunder, pillage, despoil: (with abl.) aliquem armis.

dē-spondĕo, ēre, spondi, sponsum, traj. trans. v. promise, pledge: sibi Tarpeias arces; esp. (techn. t.) promise in marriage, betroth: tibi flavam despondet Ianthen. Pass. impers.: intus despondebitur, the troth will be plighted intercede or plead for: a populo Romano fratris salutem; pro amico. II. plead in excuse; excuse one's-self: errāsse regem. III. 1. imprecate. 2. curse, execrate, cry down.

dē-prĕhendo (-prendo), ĕre, dī, sum, trans. v. I. 1. seize upon, catch, take unawares, surprise, overtake. II. 1. detect, discover, catch or take in the deed (of wrong). 2. impede, check, confine. III. (fig.) 1. comprehend, perceive, detect, discover, discern. 2. bring into a strait, put in a fix, embarrass.

dēprĕhensĭo, ōnis, f. [deprehendo], a seizing, catching; detection, discovery.

dēprĕhensus (dēprensus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from deprehendo (deprendo), 1. caught, stopped, surprised. 2. storm-caught, overtaken by tempest: nautae. 3. caught in the act, detected, discovered. 4. confined, pent up: flamina silvis.

dēpressus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deprimo. As adj. 1. deep, lying low, depressed. 2. sunk, lowered. Compar. depressior.

dē-primo, primĕre, pressi, pressum, [premo], trans. v. I. 1. press down, weigh or bear down, sink, depress: depresso aratro, i.e. driven deep. 2. sink deep into the ground (e.g. a well): plant deep; dig deep. 3. sink to the bottom, sink (a ship): naves; classem. II. (fig.) depress, crush; put down, suppress.

dē-proĕlior (-praelĭor), āri, intrans. dep. fight to the death, battle fiercely.

dē-prōmo, ĕre, prompsi (-mi), promptum (-mtum), trans. v. draw forth, fetch out; produce.

dē-prŏpĕro, āre, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) make great haste. B. (trans.) hasten on, prepare with haste, despatch.

dē-pūdet, ĕre, pŭdŭit, impers. v. 1. one feels shame no longer, one ceases to blush, is lost to shame. 2. one feels greatly ashamed.

dē-pŭgis (pŭgis), e, adj. [pyga], thin-haunched; skinny.

dē-pugno, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. fight it out, fight till the last, fight fiercely, contend.

dēpulsĭo, ōnis, f. [depello], a driving away, warding off.

dēpulsor, ōris, m. [id.], one who drives away, repels, overthrows.

dēpulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from depello.

dē-pungo, ĕre, trans. v. prick off, set a mark.

dē-pūto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. lop off, prune, trim: ramus umbras. II. reckon, count, consider, judge.

dē-pȳgis, e. See depugis.

dēque. See susque deque.

dē-questus, a, um, perf. part. [queror], complaining much of, lamenting.

dē-rādo, ĕre, si, sum, trans. v. scrape off, shave.

dēram, as, at, etc. for deeram. See desum.

Dercĕtis, is, (-ō, ūs), f. a Syrian goddess, also called Atargatis, by some identified with Aphrodite. She was represented as half woman, half fish, like Dagon of the Philistines.

dērectus, a, um. See directus.

dērēlictĭo, ōnis, f. [derelinquo], a disregarding, neglect.

dērēlictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from derelinquo.

dē-rēlinquo, ĕre, līqui, lictum, trans. v. leave completely, leave behind, abandon, forsake, desert.

dē-rĕpentĕ, adv. on a sudden, suddenly.

dē-rĕpo, ĕre, psi, intrans. and trans. v. creep or crawl down.

dērĕptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deripio.

dē-rīdĕo, ēre, rīsi, sum, trans. v. laugh to scorn, scoff at, deride, mock.

dē-rīdĭcŭlus, a, um, adj. very laughable, quite ridiculous or absurd, grotesque. As subst. dērīdĭcŭlum, i, n. an object of derision, a laughing-stock, butt; absurdity, grotesqueness; ridicule.

dē-rigesco, ĕre, rĭgŭi, intrans. v. grow perfectly stiff or rigid; curdle.

dē-rĭpio, rĭpĕre, rĭpŭi, reptum, trans. v. I. tear off, tear away, cast off; pull down, snatch or force down: e caelo deos deripere, proverb. for any great impiety. Cf. the story of Otus and Ephialtes. II. (fig.) detract from.

dērīsor, ōris, m. [derideo], a scoffer, jester, mocker, buffoon; mime actor: derisor vero plus laudatore movetur, a hypocritical applauder, one who laughs behind your back.

(1) dērīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from derideo.

(2) dērīsus, ūs, m. [derideo], mockery, scorn, derision.

dē-rīvātĭo, ōnis, f. [derivo], a drawing off, turning away, diversion of a stream: fluminum, i. e. a canal.

dē-rīvo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. draw a stream of water from the main body; draw off, divert, convey. II. (fig.) turn aside, divert into another channel, shift, draw from, derive.

dēro, contr. for deero. See desum.

dērōgātĭo, ōnis, f. [derogo], a partial repeal: legum.

dē-rōgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and traj. v. I. (techn. t.) partially repeal a law, modify it: aliquid de lege. II. (meton.) detract from, take away, withdraw; restrict, diminish, abate: non mihi tantum derogo; omnium lis rerum fides derogatur; nihil universorum iuri derogandum.

dē-rōsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. [rodo], gnawed away, nibbled.

dē-rŭo, ĕre, rŭi, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. throw or cast down. II. (fig.) detract from, take away. B. (intrans.) fall down.

dē-ruptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. [rumpo]. As adj. broken off or away; precipitous, steep. As subst. dērupta, ōrum, n. pl. precipices. Compar. deruptior.

dē-sacro (-secro), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. consecrate, dedicate; devote expressly.

dē-saevĭo, īre, īi, intrans. v. 1. rage fiercely, rave wildly. 2. rage to exhaustion, spend its fury, cease raging.

dē-saltо, āre, ātum, trans. v. dance off; accompany with dancing: desaltato cantico abiit.

dē-scendo, ĕre, dī, sum, intrans. v. I. 1. climb down, go or come down, descend; often esp. of going down from mansions on the Palatine, etc. to the forum, comitia, Campus Martius, etc.; or (of gladiators) into the arena. 2. pass down, sink into, penetrate: descendit in ilia ferrum: toto corpore pestis. 3. (poet.) fall, sink, slope. II. (fig.) 1. come down, descend. 2. lower one's-self, fall, stoop, condescend, resort, have recourse to; be reduced to, submit to, agree to (often of a disagreeable duty or alternative): ad preces in omnes; ad alicuius sententiam; alteram utram ad condicionem descendere volt; ad calamitatum societates, i.e. face them. 3. go to, engage in; in causam, take the matter up; in partes alicui, come over to a person's side, side with; in (ad aciem), take the field, go into battle, engage.

descensĭo, ōnis, f. [descendo], 1. a going down, descending, descent. 2. (meton.) a plunge-bath.

dēscensus, ūs, m. [id.], a going or coming down, a descent; a downward road.

dē-scisco, ĕre, scīvi (-ĭi), ītum, intrans. v. I. withdraw, revolt; desert, go over (to another side), become a renegade. II. (meton.) 1. depart, sever one's-self, get clear; deviate from, fall off, be unfaithful to. 2. fall off, degenerate, alter.

dē-scrībo, ĕre, scrīpsi, ptum, trans. v. I. 1. copy off; write, draw, trace out; transcribe. 2. sketch off, describe, represent (in painting, etc.). 3. mark off, define, divide, distribute, map out, arrange, draw up. 4. ascribe, apportion, assign, define. II. (fig.) represent, delineate, describe; allude to; compose. [MSS. often have discribo, q.v.]

dēscriptē, adv. [descriptus] distinctly, precisely.

dēscriptĭo, ōnis, f. [describo], 1. a marking out, copy, delineation; sketch, plan. 2. a description, representation, definition. 3. a disposition, order, arrangement; distribution, division.

dēscriptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from describo. As adj. well ordered, arranged, mapped out. As subst. dēscripta, ōrum, n. pl. records: descripta per dies, a daily journal, diary.

dē-sĕco, ĕre, sĕcŭi, sectum, trans. v. cut off or away, sever.

dē-secro, āre. See desacro.

dēsectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deseco.

dē-sĕro, ĕre, sĕrŭi, sertum, trans. v. lit. disjoin; quit, leave, forsake, abandon, desert, give up; fail, betray: Hesperiam; fratrem; mensa deserit alta toros, i.e. is taken away from; vadimonia (legal techn. t.), fail to appear before the praetor at the appointed time, allow judgment to go by default. Pass. deseror, poet. with abl. in sense of depriving: deseror coniuge.

dē-sertĭo, ōnis, f. [desero], a deserting, abandonment.

dēsertor, ōris, m. [id.], one who forsakes or abandons; a runaway, deserter, renegade.

dēsertum, i, n. See desertus.

dēsertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desero. As adj. abandoned, lonely, desert, solitary, waste. As subst., dēsertum, i, n. a desert, waste, wilderness. Compar. desertior; superl. desertissimus.

dē-servĭo, īre, traj. v. serve sedulously, wait upon; be the slave of, devoted to.

dēsĕs, ĭdis, adj. [desideo], inactive, slothful, idle, indolent. Not found in nom. sing.

dē-sĭdĕo, ēre, sēdi, [sedeo], intrans. v. sit still, loiter, be idle.

dēsĭdĕrābĭlis, e, adj. [desidero], to be desired or regretted, desirable. Compar. desiderabilior.

dēsĭdĕrātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a longing or yearning after something, a missing, craving.

dēsĭdĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desidero. As adj. longed for, welcome; much regretted or missed.

dēsĭdĕrĭum, ĭi, n. [desidero], I. a longing or yearning desire for something; a sorrowful longing for something lost, regret. II. (meton.) 1. want, need, occasion: cibi potionisque. 2. (in the time of the Empire) a request, petition: militum. III. (fig.) an object of longing or regret; one's heart's desire.

dē-sĭdĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [deriv. dub.; cf. considero], trans. v. 1. crave or yearn for something not possessed; look for in vain, long for something lost to us, regret, miss. 2. lose, want. Pass. desideror, I am missing, wanting, lost: Sextilem totum desideror.

dēsĭdĭa, ae, f. [deses], 1. a sitting still, long rest. 2. inactivity, want of energy, sloth, indolence, idleness. 3. (poet.) sitting at the toilet, Propert. i. 15, 6.

dēsĭdĭōsē, adv. [desidiosus], idly, indolently.

dēsĭdĭōsus, a, um, adj. [desidia], 1. slothful, lazy, idle. 2. making idle or lazy, do-little. Compar. desidiosior; superl. desidiosissimus.

dē-sĭdo, ĕre, sēdi, intrans. v. settle down, subside, sink.

dēsignātĭo, ōnis, f. [designo], 1. a marking out, a marking off; description, designation, particularisation. 2. a planning, arrangement: totius operis. 3. a nomination, appointment, election (to the consulship or other public office).

dēsignātor (dīss-), ōris, m. one who regulates or arranges; a master of ceremonies; esp. (a) a box-keeper or stall-keeper at the theatre; (b) an undertaker (Hor. Ep. i. 7, 6); (c) a clerk of the course at the Circus games.

dēsignātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from designo, 1. elect; cf. designo, II. 3: consul. 2. unborn, supposititious: civis.

dē-signo (dīss-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. lit. mark out in a single line; hence (fig.) plan, design, mark off, trace out, mark, define. II. (fig.) 1. point out, particularise, specify, indicate, describe, represent. 2. dispose, arrange, regulate, assign, appoint. 3. nominate, appoint, elect (to a public office): aliquem consulem. A magistrate duly elected and returned had the title of designatus between the time of the election and his entering upon his office; hence, consul (praetor) designatus, the consul (praetor) elect. 4. commit, perpetrate, do anything out of the way: modo quid designavit? what new prank has he been up to? (See dissigno.) III. (meton.) represent, delineate (in embroidery, tapestry, etc.): Europen.

dē-sĭlĭo, īre, sĭlŭi, sultum, intrans. v. leap down, alight; throw one's self.

dē-sĭno, ĕre, sīvi (sĭi), sĭtum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) leave off, cease to desire, put an end to, cease: Maenalios versus; desine meque tuis incendere teque querellis; veteres orationes a plerisque legi sunt desitae Impers. desinitur; desitum est. N.B. desitus sum is followed by pass. infin. only. B. (intrans.) cease, desist, leave off, stop, end, close: desierant imbres; (with abl.) desine, quaeso, communibus locis. In Gk. constr. (a) (with gen.) querellarum; cf. παύω, λήγω; (b) (with preg. use of prep.) desinit in lacrimas; cf. τελευτᾶν εἰς τι. Colloq. Desine, hold! stop! that's enough! say no more!

dēsĭpiens, ntis, part. from desipio. As adj. foolish, silly.

dēsĭpientĭa, ae, f. [desipio], want of sense, folly.

dē-sĭpio, sĭpĕre, [sapio], intrans. v. be void of understanding; be silly, foolish, play the fool; cast off seriousness, unbend, trifle.

dēsĭsse, dēsĭssem, sync. for desivisse, desivissem, from desiuo.

de-sisto, ĕre, stĭti, stĭtum, intrans. v. lit. stand off; leave off, give over, desist, cease, stop, halt, stand still; with abl., prepp. de, ab, infin., quin, and (poet.) with dat.: sententiā, waive one's opinion; causā, drop the prosecution.

dēsĭt, 1. sync. for desiit=desivit, perf. from desino. 2. subj. from desum.

dēsĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desino.

dēsōlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from desolo, left alone, forsaken, forlorn, isolated; laid waste, desolate; (with abl.) forsaken by, deprived of.

dē-sōlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [solus], trans. v. leave alone; forsake, abandon, make desolate, despeople.

dē-specto, āre, trans. v. I. look down upon (from a height); overlook. II. (fig.) look down upon, despise.

(1) dēspectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from despicio. As adj. despicable, contemptible. Compar. despectior.

(2) dēspectus, ūs, m. [despicio], a looking down upon; a view down or below, prospect: in mare, a looking down on to, i.e. view over the sea.

dēspĕranter, adv. [despero], hopelessly, despairingly.

dēspĕrātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], hopelessness, despair; recklessness.

dēspĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from despero. As adj. given up for lost, past hope, hopeless, despaired of, desperate, incurable, incorrigible; (of persons) reckless, desperate: pecuniae, i.e. bad debts. Compar. desperatior; superl. desperatissimus.

dē-spĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) give up hope, be hopeless, despair: de republicā; (with dat.) sibi; saluti suae; (with acc. and infin.) quae Desperat tractata nitescere posse, relinquit. B. (trans.) have no hope of, give up for lost: honorem; desperatis nostris rebus.

dēspĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [despicor], a despising; feeling of contempt.

(1) dēspĭcātus, a, um, perf. part. from despicor. As adj. despised, contemptible. Superl. despicatissimus.

(2) dēspĭcātus, ūs, m. [despicor], a despising: habere (ducere) aliquem despicatui, to hold one in contempt.

dēspĭciendus, a, um, gerundive from despicio, despicable, fit to be looked down upon.

dēspĭciens, ntis, part. from despicio. As adj. despising: (with gen.) sui, wanting in self-esteem; diffident.

dēspĭcientĭa, ae, f. [despicio], a despising, contempt.

dē-spĭcio, spĭcĕre, spexi, spectum, [-specio], trans. v. I. 1. look down on: ab aethere terras. Pass. impers.: collibus occupatis, qua despici poterat, where a view could be obtained over the plain below. 2. (without obj. acc.), look down, glance aside. II. (fig.) despise, disdain, decline, shun: paucitatem militum; despectus tibi sum; laborem.

dē-spŏlio, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. rob, plunder, pillage, despoil: (with abl.) aliquem armis.

dē-spondĕo, ēre, spondi, sponsum, traj. trans. v. promise, pledge: sibi Tarpeias arces; esp. (techn. t.) promise in marriage, betroth: tibi flavam despondet Ianthen. Pass. impers.: intus despondebitur, the troth will be plighted indoors. II. (fig.) 1. make over, give up, devote. 2. yield, resign; animum, lose heart, despair.

dē-sponso, āre, ātum, [freq. despondeo], trans. v. betroth.

dēsponsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from despondeo, promised; betrothed, plighted.

dē-spūmo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. clear from foam, froth, or scum, skim. 2. throw off (as froth); rutilas arenas. 3. (meton.) work off (the effects of): Falernum. B. (intrans.) 1. void its foam, sliver: (Phoebe) suppositas in herbas. 2. (fig.) cease foaming; abate.

dē-spuo, ĕre, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. spit down, spit away; spit: ter cane, ter dictis despue carminibus (as a means of averting evil); sts. with acc., avert by spitting. 2. (fig.) spit upon; void one's loathing on: in mores. B. (trans.) (fig.) spit upon, void one's rheum upon; reject with scorn, regard with loathing: preces.

dē-squāmo, āre, ātum, trans. v. scale, peel.

dēsse, contr. for deesse. See desum.

dē-sterto, ĕre, tŭi, intrans. v. cease snoring; snore off one's dream.

dē-stillo (di-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. I. run down by drops, trickle, distil. II. (meton.) drip, trickle down.

dēstĭnātĭo, ōnis, f. a setting fast, establishing; a purpose, design, resolution: certus destinationis, fixed in his resolve, resolutely determined.

dēstĭnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from destino, designed, destined. As adj. fixed, decreed, determined. Mihi destinatum est facere aliquid, I am resolved. As subst. (n) dēstĭnātum, i, n. an aim, object, design, purpose, intention, plan. Ex destinato, or destinato, designedly, on purpose, intentionally.

dē-stĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [obsol. stano=statuo; root STA-], trans. v. I. fix down, secure, make fast: anatinas ad malos; halves laqueis. II. (fig.) 1. establish, determine, resolve, purpose, intend, destine, design, devote; appoint, elect. 2. fix upon (as a mark), aim at: oculis plagae destinat ante locum. 3. (business techn. t.) sibi destinare aliquid, set one's heart on a thing, intend to buy. 4. betroth, affiance.

dē-stĭtŭo, ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, [statuo], trans. v. I. set, place. II. 1. put aside, set apart; leave in the lurch, desert, abandon, forsake; sts. without object acc.: fail, balk: si destituat spes. 2. (post.) defraud, disappoint: quā (spe) si destituor: deos mercede pactā. Or, mercede pactā may be abl. abs.

dēstĭtūtĭo, ōnis, f. [destituo], a forsaking, abandoning.

dēstĭtūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from destituo, abandoned, forsaken; robbed of, destitute of.

dēstrictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from destringo. As adj. 1. keen, eager, energetic: accusator (metaph. from a sword which is never sheathed). 2. severe: censura. N.B. MSS. vary between destrictus and districtus.

dē-stringo, ĕre, nxi, strictum, trans. v. I. 1. draw off, strip off (leaves, etc.); gather, pluck. 2. scrape off, scrape (in the bath). 3. unsheathe, draw: gladium. II. 1. skim, graze, slightly wound: aequora alis; pectus arundine. 2. (fig.) criticise, attack, censure: mordaci carmine.

dēstructĭo, ōnis, f. [destruo], a pulling down, demolition.

dē-strŭo, ĕre, struxi, structum, trans. v. I. unbuild; pull down, demolish, destroy, ruin, overthrow.

dē-sub, prep. with abl. below, beneath, under.

dē-sŭbĭto (dē subito). See subitus.

dē-sūdo, āre, āvi, ātum, (intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) sweat greatly; fatigue one's self. B. (trans.) 1. sweat out, exude. 2. (fig.) perform with effort.

dēsuē-făcio, fēcĕre, fēci, factum, [obsol. de-suco; cf. succo], trans. v. disuse, wean away from. Pass. desuefio.

dē-sŭesco (trisyll. in poet.), ĕre, sŭēvi, sŭētum, trans. and intrans. v. I. (trans.) disuse, put out of use. II. (intrans.) become unused, disaccustom one's self. Perf. desuevi, with force of pres.

dēsuētūdo (quadrisyll. in poet.), dĭnis, f. [desuesco], disuse, want of practice.

dēsuētus (trisyll. in poet.), a, um, perf. pass. part. from desuesco, 1. unaccustomed, unused, discarded. 2. unused to, strange: triumphis agmina; corda, i.e. that had ceased to love, vacant.

dēsultor, ōris, m. [desilio], 1. a vaulter, leaper (from one horse to another in the circus). 2. (fig.) amoris, i.e. an inconstant lover.

dēsultōrĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a vaulter (desultor). As subst. dēsultōrĭum, ii, m. sc. equus), a horse trained for the desultor's performances (and therefore out of his place amongst the quadrigae).

dē-sum, esse, fŭi (ee in deeram, deero, deesse, deest, as one syll. in poet.), 1. be away, be wanting, be lacking, fail: hoc unum defuit, this was the only drawback; semper paullum ad summam felicitatem defuisse, there was always a little falling short in point of perfect good luck; nec defuit Polycritus quominus terribilis incesseret, he failed not to make his progress a terror; defuisse conjurationem defuit quin subiret: (poet. with infin.), desunt pendere corollae, fail to hang. 2. fail in duty to, desert, neglect; fail to avail one's self of: haud mihi deero; communi saluti deerat, failed to promote, imperilled; auxiliis salutis.

dē-sūmo, ĕre, sumpsi (mxi), sumptum (mtum), trans. v. pick out, choose, select.

dē-sŭpĕr, adv. from above; overhead, above.

dē-surgo, ĕre, intrans. v. rise from.

dētectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detego.

dē-tĕgo, ĕre, texi, ctum, trans v. 1. uncover, lay bare, expose: caput detectus honestum, with his comely head uncovered (Gk. acc.). II. (fig.) discover, disclose, detect, manifest, betray.

dē-tendo, ĕre, tensum, trans. v. unstretch: tabernacula, take down, strike.

dētensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detendo.

dētentus, a, um, perf. pass. part from detineo.

dē-tergĕo, ĕre, tersi, tersum, trans. v. I. 1. wipe off or away; brush. II. (meton.) 1. clean, scour, cleanse: cloacas. 2. sweep away, unship, foul: remos. III (fig.) 1. take away, remove. 2. clear away, purge, cleanse. 3. (colloq.) make a clean sweep of, melt, clear: primo anno LXXX detersimus.

dētergo, ĕre, = detergeo.

dētĕrĭor, ius, compar. adj. [prep. de, through obsol. adj. deter], less good than, worse, poorer, meaner, weaker. In deterius, for the worse. Superl. deterrimus.

dētĕrĭus, adv. [deterior], worse; less.

dēterminātĭo, ōnis, f. a bounding; boundary, end.

dē-termino, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. mark off with a boundary, fix with limits, bound, limit. II. (fig.) prescribe, determine, settle, assign.

dē-tĕro, tĕrĕre, trīvi, trītum, trans. v. I. rub or wear away, wear out. II. (fig.) 1. rub out, efface: deterret sibi multa Lucilius (sc. lima). 2. diminish, weaken, lessen, impair, disparage.

dē-terrĕo, ĕre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. I. frighten off, prevent, deter, discourage, dissuade: aliquem a consilio; deterrere aliquem ne, quin, quominus, with subj., prevent a person from doing something; rarely with infin. II. (meton.) ward off, avert.

dēterrimus, a, um. See deterior dētersus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detergeo.

dētestābĭlis, e, adj. [detestor], execrable, accursed, shocking, abominable. Compar. detestabilior.

dētestātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a solemn imprecation; exoration, cursing: dira; the curse of hate. 2. a keeping off, averting.

dētestātus, a, um, perf. part. from detestor. In pass. sense, abhorred: bella matribus.

dē-testor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. call the gods solemnly to witness against a person; execrate, curse. 2. call down, imprecate minas periculaque in caput, eorum. 3. abominate, loathe, abhor. II. 1. deprecate, pray for the removal of, call the gods to avert: memoriam consulatūs tui a republicā. 2. (of a deity) turn aside at one's prayer, avert: hoc omen.

dē-texo, ĕre, ŭi, xtum, trans. v. I. weave through, finish weaving, plait: fascellum. II. (fig.) bring to a conclusion, finish.

dētextus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detexo.

dē-tĭnĕo, ēre, ŭi, tentum, trans. v. I. hold off, keep back, withhold, hinder, detain, stay. 2. occupy, engage, prolong, eke out.

dē-tondĕo, ēre, tŏtondi and tondi, tonsum, trans. v. clip off, clip, shear, crop close.

dē-tŏno, āre, tŏnŭi, intrans. v. I. thunder down, thunder loudly; storm. II. 1. cease thundering. 2. (fig.) cease raging: nubem belli, dum detonet omnis, Sustinet, till all the storm be past.

dētonsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detondeo.

dē-torquĕo, ēre, torsi, tortum, trans. v. 1. twist or turn aside, turn off or away, shift, bend. 2. twist out of shape, distort, wrest: verba parce detorta, slightly altered in form.

dētorsus (dētortus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from detorqueo.

dētractātio, detractator. See detract-dētractio, ōnis, f. [detraho], a tracing of, taking away, withdrawal, removal.

dētracto, āre. See detracto.

dētractor, ōris, m. [detraho], a disparager, detractor dētractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detraho.

dē-trăho, trāhĕre, traxi, tractum, trans. v. I. draw off, take away, pull or take off, pull down, take down; 2. withdraw, remove; without obj. acc.: de possessione, make a sacrifice of property. II. (fig.) 1. pull down, lower: rogum maiestatem. 2. withdraw, take away, take; detract from (so as to impair the value of a thing), be a drawback; disparage, depreciate, damage: ne de huius aut arte aut gloriā detraham; honorem debitum ordini.

dētractātio (dētract-), ōnis, f. [detracto], a declining, refusing.

dētractātor (dētract-), ōris, m. id.], one who refuses; (fig.) a disparager.

dē-tracto (-tracto), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. decline, refuse, reject, shirk; sts. without obj. acc. II. pull down with violence; hence (fig.) lower in estimation, disparage, depreciate, cast a slur upon, detract from: ingenium Homeri.

dētrīmentōsus, a, um, adj. [detrimentum], injurious.

dētrīmentum, i, n. [detero], 1. loss, damage, injury. 2. the loss of a battle, a defeat.

dētritus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detero. worn, rubbed bare, polished. As subj. trite, hackneyed.

dē-trūdo, ĕre, zi, sum, trans. v. I. 1. thrust or push down, thrust off or away. 2. drive out, thrust forth, dislodge an enemy. 3. (legal techn. t.) dispossess, forcibly eject. II. (fig.) 1. force, drive, reduce: sin necessitas nos ad ea detruserit quae . . . ; aliquem in paupertatem. 2. (of time) put off, postpone, defer: comitia.

dē-trunco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. cut or lop off. 2. mutilate, behead.

dētrūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from detrudo.

dē-tŭmesco, ĕre, tŭmŭi, intrans. v. cease swelling, subside.

dē-turbo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. thrust or cast down, knock or beat down, dislodge: nostros de vallo lapidibus caputque ferinae (poet. dat. = in terram), strikes it down to the earth. II. (fig.) dash from, deprive of: with prepp. de, ex, or abl.

dē-turpo, āre, trans. v. deface, disfigure.

Deucălĭōn, ōnis, m. son of Prometheus, king of Phthia, in Thessaly. In his reign a deluge took place, from which he and his wife Pyrrha were the only mortals saved. When bidden by the oracle to throw stones behind them, those of Deucalion became men, those of Pyrrha became women.

Deucălĭōnēus, a, um, adj. of Deucalion, Deucalion's.

dē-unx, uncis, m. [uncia], an as, less by an uncia; eleven-twelfths of anything; (poet.) potare deunces, goblets holding eleven-twelfths of a sextarius, i.e. eleven cyathi: usurae deunces, eleven per cent.

dē-uro, ĕre, ussi, ustum, trans. v. 1. burn up, reduce to ashes. 2. (meton.) blast: hiems arbores deusserat.

dĕus, i, voc. sing. deus: pl. nom. dēi, dii, dī; gen. deōrum, deūm; dat. abl. dēīs, diis, dīs (dii, dīis are pronounced di, dii), m. (weak form of dius; cf. divus, Sanscr. dêvas, god; root DIV-, shine), I. a god, deity; sts. (poet.) a goddess: descendo ac ducente deo, = dea or numine. Ellipt. phrase: di meliora, sc. duint, = dent, or ferant (velint), Heaven forbid! II. (fig.) (of great or fortunate persons): te in dicendo semper putavi deum, the perfect ideal; deos propius contingis, you have access to the great dēustus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deuro.

dē-ūtor, i, dep. with abl. misuse, maltreat.

dē-vasto, āre, ātum, trans. v. lay waste.

dēvectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from deveho.

dē-vĕho, ĕre, vexi, vectum, trans. v. carry away, bring down, convey, transport. Pass. devehor, used reflexively; go down, descend: Veliam (acc. of motion to); Rhenо.

dē-vello, ĕre, velli (volsi), vulsum, trans. v. pluck or tear away; pull down, tear off dē-vĕlo, āre, trans. v. unveil, uncover.

dē-vĕnĕror, ārī, ātus sum, trans. dep. I. worship. 2. avert by prayer, deprecate.

dē-vĕnio, īre, vēni, ventum, intrans. v. I. come or go down: come to, reach, arrive at: in Scythiam; (poet. without prep.) loca lustos. II. (fig.) descend, betake one's self to, be reduced to, come to, reach; happen, befall.

dē-verbĕro, āre, āvi ātum, trans. v. cudgel soundly.

(1) dē-versor (-versor), ārī, ātus sum, intrans. dep. go to lodge, put up (as a guest), lodge.

† (2) dēversor, ōris, m. [devertol, one who lodges; an inmate, guest.

dēversōrĭŏlum, i, n. (dim. deversorium), a small lodging.

dēversōrĭus (dīv-), a, um, adj. [deversor], pertaining to a lodging; for lodging, fit to put up in. As subst. dēversōrĭum (dēvors-), ii, n. 1. a lodging, inn, hostelry. 2. a resort, retreat, shelter.

dē-vertĭcŭlum (dēvert-, dēvort-), i, n. I. 1. a by-path, side-way. 2. (fig.) a digression, deviation. II. 1. an inn, lodging; back alum, rookery. 2. a retreat, refuge.

dē-verto (-vorto), tĕre, tī, sum, trans. and intrans. A. (trans.) turn away, turn aside. B. (pass. devertor, used reflexively; (a) turn one's self out of the way; turn to, have recourse to: ad magicas artes; (b) put up at, lodge at; (c) take a by-path to: nulla priorum Castalium undā devertor avrita vilior. B. (intrans.) 1. = devertor: turn aside; turn or go towards; go on a visit, put up, lodge. 2. (fig.) digress.

dē-vescor, i, trans. dep. eat up, devour.

dēvexus, a, um, adj. [devehol, I. on the descent, descending, inclining downward, sheering, steep. II. (fig.) 1. setting, waning: Orion; devexo Olympo (abl. abs.), as heaven sinks down, i.e. as the day declines. 2. inclining, declining: aetas. Compar. devexior dēvictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from devinco.

dē-vincĭo, īre, nxi, nctum, trans. v. I. bind down, tie fast; bind, fasten, fetter. II. (fig.) bind, unite closely; engage, oblige, lay under obligation; enthral, transmel.

dē-vinco, ĕre, vīci, victum, trans. v. I. conquer completely, vanquish: devicta bella (epith. transferred from the conquered people), wars in which ye have been victorious. II. (fig.) overpower, overrule.

dēvinctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from devincio. As adj. strongly attached, devoted to.

dēvītābĭlis, ōnis, f. [devito], an avoiding dē-vīto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. avoid wholly, shun.

dē-vius, a, um, adj. [via], off the road, out of the way, retired, sequestered; (poet.) inaccessible: rura; scortum, outlying; avis, the unpiqued, timid one; limina. As subst. dēvia, orum, n. pl. I. 1. lonely or remote places. 2. zone astray, roaming: uxores oleutis mariti. II. (fig.) 1 erratic, inconstant, fickle: (poet. with genit.) aequi. 2. out of place, irrelevant.

dē-vŏco, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. 1. call or summon away, bring down by calling 2. (fig.) lead on to, allure, entice, bring: in dubium, bring into danger, expose to risk.

dē-vŏ̄, āre, āvī, intrans. v. I. fly away, fly down. II. (fig.) fly, hasten.

dē-volvo, ĕre, vŏlvī, vŏlūtum, trans. v. I. roll down, cast down headlong; dash to the ground. Pass. devolvor, used reflexively: roll one's-self down, fall headlong; sink. II. 1. roll or wind off (sc. from the colus): fusis mollia pensa (i.e. in fusos). 2. (poet.) deploy: agmen mocnibus.

dēvŏrans, ntis, part. from devoro. As adj. eager, greedy.

dē-vŏro, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. I. gulp down, swallow, bolt, devour. II. (fig.) 1. accept eagerly and greedily, devour. 2. swallow anything disagreeable; stomach, brook: paucorum dierum molestiam. 3. gulp down, repress: lacrimas. 4. waste, consume.

dēvorsor, dēvorto. See dever-.

dēvortĭum, ĭī, n. a by-road: devortia itinerum, places lying out of the regular roads.

dēvŏtio, ōnis, f. [devoveo] 1. a devoting, consecrating. 2. a curse, imprecation. 3. sorcery, witchcraft; a magical incantation, spell.

dēvŏtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from devoveo. As adj. given up to, addicted to, devoted, attached to; staunch, faithful. Compar. devotior; superl. devotissimus.

dē-vŏveo, ēre, vōvi, vōtum, trans. v. I. 1. vow away; vow, consecrate, devote; esp. to a deity. 2. devote to destruction, doom, curse: devoti sanguinis actas, accursed. II. (meton.) give up, devote, sacrifice, attach: suos annos tibi; se amicitiae alicuius. III. subject to spells, bewitch: num te carminibus nunc te pollentibus herbis Devovit . . anus?

dēvulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from devello.

dextans, ntis, m. [for de-sextans], an as, less by ten uncias; a sixth-of; ten-twelfths or five-sixths of anything.

dextella, ae, f. [dim. dextera], a little right hand.

dexter, tĕra, tĕrum, more often -tra, -trum, adj. [cf. δεξιός, δεξιτερός], I. on the right hand or right side, to the right, right: quo mihi dexter abis? in dextrā tela tuere mauu. As subst. dextĕra (dextĭra), ae, f. (sc. manus), A. the right hand. Ad dexteram (dextram), to the right. Ab dextera, or dexterā (dextrā), only, on the right. B. (meton.) 1. the sword-arm; hence, valour, doughty deeds: dextera per ferrum, pietas spectata per ignes. 2. the right hand of friendship; hence, a pair of right hands clasped, made of gold, silver, etc., as a pledge of friendship and goodwill: miserat civitas Lingonum . . dextras, hospiti insigne. 3. the hand in general: opime sacrum rapiente dextrā. C. (fig.) the right hand, as an emblem of friendship, loyalty, etc., etc.: renovare dextras; dominorum fallere dextras (=fidem), to break allegiance to their lords. II. (fig.) 1. handy, dexterous, adroit, skilful. 2. opportune, proper, suitable. 3. favourable, propitious, fortunate. Compar. dexterior, ius, = dexter, I.; but only when two are spoken of: rota; armus. Superl. dextĭmus (-ŭmus), a, um. As subst. dextĭmi, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. homines), the extreme right of an army.

dextĕra, ae, f. See dexter.

dextĕrē (dextrē), adv. [dexter], skilfully, adroitly; happily. Compar. dexterius.

dextĕrĭor, ius. See dexter.

dextĕrĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], adroitness, aptness, readiness.

dextĭmus, a, um. See dexter.

dextrē, adv. See dexterе.

dextrorsum (-sus), also dextrōversum (-vorsum), adv. [verto], towards the right, to the right.

dextŭmus, a, um, = dextimus.

(1) dī-, in compounds = dis-. See (1) dis-.

(2) dī = dii, dei. See deus.

Dīa, ae, f. the old name of the island Naxos.

Diablintes, um, m. pl. a branch of the Aulerci in Gallia Lugdunensis, N. of the Loire. Their name survives in Jablins, near the modern Mayenne.

‡ diădēma, ătis, n. [διάδημα], properly, the royal head-dress of Eastern monarchs; diadem, tiara; crown.

‡ diaerĕsis, is, f. [διαίρεσις], a division of one syllable into two; e.g. siluae for silvae.

‡ diaeta, ae, f. [δίαιτα], 1. a way of living, prescribed regimen, diet. 2. a day-room; a suite of rooms.

(1) diălectĭcē, adv. dialectically.

(2) ‡ diălectĭcē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. the art of dialectic, logic.

‡ diălectĭcus, a, um, adj. [διαλεκτικός], belonging to debate, dialectical. As subst. 1. diălectĭcus, i, m. a dialectician, logician. 2. diălectĭca, ōrum, n. pl. logic.

‡ diălectos (-us), i, f. [διάλεκτος], a dialect.

Diālis, e, adj. [root DIV-, bright; cf. Diespiter], 1. of or belonging to Jupiter: flamen, the priest of Jupiter. As subst. Diālis, is, m. (sc. flamen), the special priest of Jupiter. 2. of or belonging to the flamen Dialis.

‡ diălŏgus, i, m. [διάλογος], a dialogue.

Diāna, and (poet.) Diāna, ae, f. 1. daughter of Jove and Latona and sister of Apollo, goddess of the chase, identified with the Greek Artemis; known as Diana on earth, Luna or Phoebe in heaven, and Hecate in the lower world. II. (meton.) the moon.

Diānius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Diana: turba, Diana's pack, i.e. dogs, hounds. As subst. Diānium, ii, n. 1. a shrine of Diana. 2. a promontory in Spain.

diāria, ōrum, n. pl. [dies], the daily allowance of a slave or soldier; rations.

‡ diātrēta, ōrum, n. pl. [διάτρητος, bored through], cut glass cups with open or filigree work on them.

‡ dibăphus, a, um, adj. [δίβαφος, twice dipped], double-dyed; purple. See Mayor, Iuv. i. 27. As subst. dibăphus, i, f. the purple state-robe of the augur, or other high magistrate.

dic, 2 sing. imperat. from dico.

‡ dica, ae, f. [δίκη], a lawsuit, action: tibi scribam dicam, I will bring an action, issue a writ against you; sortiri dicas, = sortiri iudices.

dīcācitas, ātis, f. [dicax], wit, banter.

dicātio, ōnis, f. [dico], a formal attaching of one's-self to another state.

dicax, ācis, adj. [(2) dico], witty, rallying, bantering, pert.

dicĭer, old infin. pass. from (2) dico.

dicio (dītio), ōnis, f. [root DIC-; cf. condicio], jurisdiction, sovereignty, sway, rule, power: suae dicionis aliquem facere, bring under one's sway (possess. gen. = predicate). Only in gen. dat. abl. acc. sing.

dīcis causā or gratiā, for form's sake, to save appearances. [Probably from (2) dico.]

(1) dico, āre, āvi, ātum, [root DIK-, show; cf. δείκνυμι, dico], trans. v. I. 1. proclaim. 2. dedicate, consecrate, devote. 3. rank as a god, deify. II. set apart, appropriate, give up: se Remis in clientelam, attached themselves to the Remi as dependent states; se alii civitati (in aliam civitatem), i.e. become a citizen of another state.

(2) dico, ĕre, dixi, dictum, [root DIC-; cf. dicio], trans. v. I. 1. say, tell, mention, name, pronounce, utter, speak, put into words, express. Vel dicam = vel potius, or rather. Ut ita dicam, if I may so say. Ut dicitur, quod dicitur, (τὸ λεγόμενον), as the proverb says. Dixi, I have said my say, I am done. Dictum ac factum, or dictum factum, (ἅμα ἔπος ἅμα ἔργον), no sooner said than done; instantly; dicto citius, ere he had ended. Dicenda tacenda, i.e. every possible subject, whatever came uppermost. 2. assert, declare, affirm. 3. speak, deliver, rehearse: causam, plead a cause, esp. as defendant; answer to a charge, make one's defence; ius (of the praetor), lay down the law for the iudices; hence, (of magistrates, generally), administer justice. 4. appoint, name: arbitrum bibendi; consulem. 5. assign, appoint, fix upon, settle: pretium muneri; diem, name a day; esp. (legal techn. t. of state trials) give one formal notice of impeachment before the comitia, summon, indict. 6. tell, notify, warn: dicebam, mediocre hoc desisse capillos. 7. describe, relate, sing of, celebrate (in prose or verse). 3. speak of by name, name, call: te crudelem nomine dicit. 9. enjoin, command: est fuga dicta mihi. 10. predict, foretell: fata Quiritibus. II. (meton.) 1. I mean (so and so): nec quemquam vidi, qui magis ea . . . timuerit, mortem dico et deos, I mean, namely, to wit. 2. promise: ut non sit contra officium non facere quod dixeris; dictorum conventorumque constantia.

‡ dicrōtum, ī, n. [δίκροτος, two-oared], a galley with two banks of oars, a bireme.

Dictaeus, a, um, adj. of or from Dicte, Dictaean; (meton.) Cretan.

dictamnus, ī, f. (-um, ī, n.), the herb dittany.

dictāta, ōrum, n. pl. [dictatus; dicto], 1. passages read aloud by the master, and taken down and committed to memory by the pupils; lessons, exercises. 2. rules, precepts; text-book.

dictātor, ōris, m. [dicto], 1. a magistrate elected by the Romans in emergencies, with absolute power for six months. 2. the chief magistrate of other cities of Italy; e.g. Alba, Lanuvium, Tusculum.

dictātōrius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a dictator, the dictator's: maiestas; invidia, i.e. of which he was the object.

dictātūra, ae, f. 1. the office of dictator, dictatorship. 2. the task of dictating to pupils (with a play on the word).

Dictē, ēs, f. a mountain in Crete.

‡ dictērium, ii, n. [δεικτήριον], a joke, jest, witticism.

dictio, ōnis, f. [(2) dico], 1. a saying, speaking, uttering, delivery: causae, a defence, answer to a charge. 2. style of speaking; oratory. 3. an oracular response, prediction.

dictito, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. dicto], trans. v. 1. say often, repeat, exclaim; state emphatically. 2. plead constantly as causas.

dicto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. say often, pronounce repeatedly, reiterate. 2. repeat (for another to take down in writing or say after you), dictate. Hence, (techn. t. of a money-lender) dictate the form the borrower's IOU is to take, or the entry to be made in his books; lend: dictantis quod tu nunquam rescribere possis. II. (meton.) 1. improvise, make, compose, draw up: carmina; testamentum. 2. prescribe, appoint, command, order dictum, ī, n. [(2) dico], 1. a word, saying. 2. a maxim, proverb, law. 3. a witticism, jest, bon-mot, repartee. 4. an order, command, injunction, recommendation: dicto (dat.) audiens, obedient, under discipline; dicto non audiens, mutinous. 5. a prediction, prophecy. 6. a promise. 7. (in pl.) an author's work, writings; poetry.

dictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dico.

Dictynna, ae, f. [Δίκτυννα, from δίκτυον, a hunting-net], a title of Diana, and of the nymph Britomartis.

Dictys, ȳos, m. 1. a mariner. 2. a Centaur. 3. a fisherman of Seriphos.

dīdūcus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) dido.

(1) dī-do (dis-do), ĕre, dĭdĭdi, dĭdĭtum, trans. v. give out, spread abroad, distribute, disseminate.

(2) Dīdō, ūs (-ōnis), acc. Dīdō, f., also called Elissa, daughter of Belus, wife of Sychaeus, queen and mythic founder of Carthage.

dī-dūco, ĕre, duxi, ductum, trans. v. I. draw apart, lead in different directions, separate, distribute, disperse, break up, divide, sunder, split: bracchia, wave one's arms apart (in dancing). II. (fig.) divide, separate, part; distract: diducta civitas; in curas animus diducitur omnes.

dīductus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from diduco.

dīēcŭla, ae, f. [dim. dies], a little day; a brief respite.

dies, diēī (dīī, dīē, dīēs), dat. diēī (dīē), m. and f. in sing., in pl. always m. [Sanscr. DI-, DIV-, shine; cf. deus, Diespiter], I. 1. a day (of twenty-four hours). In dies, from day to day by day (of a process going on from day to day). 2. a set day, appointed time, term; pay-day: diem dicere; dies legis, a time fixed by law; ad diem, to the day, at the appointed time. In this sense often fem. 3. day (opposed to night): day, daytime, daylight, light of day; quantum fuit diei spatium, as the length of daylight allowed; multo die (abl. abs.), when day was far advanced, late in the day; diem noctemque, day and night, i.e. uninterruptedly; unus die, at daybreak; de die, cf. de, 7 (b). 4. a birthday, = dies natalis. 5. a day of death, one's last day: obire diem, to die. II. (meton.) 1. a day, i.e. the events of a day: quos ille dies sustinuerit. 2. the mood or humor of the day: unum diem dif-fŭgio, fūgēre, fūgi, [dis-, fugio], intrans. v. flee in different directions, disperse, scatter, disappear.

diffŭgium, ĭi, n. [diffugio], a fleeing away, dispersion.

dif-undo, ĕre, fūdi, fūsum, [dis-, fundo], trans. v. I. pour out, spread by pouring, diffuse: vinum, rack off from the dolium; bottle. II. (meton.) spread out, spread, scatter: signa caelo; cornua late diffundantur, branch widely. III. (fig.) 1. spread, diffuse. 2. make an outlet for, give vent to, disperse; lessen, weaken: iram flendo; dolorem. 3. expand (with joy, etc.); unbend, cheer: vultus; animos; diffusus nectare.

diffūsē, adv. [diffusus], diffusely, copiously, in extenso.

diffūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from diffundo. As adj. 1. spread abroad, spread out, widespread, large in extent. 2. (fig.) diffuse, discursive. Compar. diffusior.

digamma, ătis, (-ŏn, ĭ), n. (-ŏs, i, f.). 1. the letter digamma F, represented in Latin by V or F. 2. (meton.) a cipher, i.e. F, for 'fenus': Deli digamma tuum videram, i.e. your ledger, rent-roll.

Digentĭa, ae, f. a stream, now the Licenza, flowing into the Anio through Horace's Sabine farm.

dī-gĕro, gĕrĕre, gessi, gestum, trans. v. 1. carry in different directions, distribute, divide, separate. 2. set in order, arrange, settle: digestos numerare colores. arrange in order and count. 3. plant out, transplant. 4. digest: cibum; (fig.) senium, i.e. endure. II. (fig.) 1. divide out, distribute: tempora annum. 2. set in order, arrange, settle: omne ius civile in genera; omina, i.e. explain, interpret. 3. dissolve, consume, absorb.

digestĭo, ōnis, f. [digero], 1. arrangement, division. 2. digestion.

digestus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from digero.

Digiti Idaei, ōrum, m. pl.= Δάκτυλοι Ἰδαῖοι, priests of Cybele, so called.

digĭtŭlus, ĭ, m. [dim. digitus], a little finger.

digĭtus, ĭ, m. [root DEK-; cf. δέχομαι, δάκτυλος], I. a finger: pollex, the thumb; medius (infamis, impudicus), the middle finger; per digitos nunuerare, to count on the fingers, reckon; hence, ad digitos venire, to be reckoned; tuos digitos novi, I know your powers of ready reckoning; ad digitum pugnare, to fight till the finger was held up (in token of submission), i.e. to the last; or, to fight till the people lowered their thumbs (in token of their desire to spare a gladiator's life); tollere digitum, (a) (of a gladiator) to raise the finger in token of submission, succumb, (b) to hold up the finger at an auction, i.e. make a bid. II. (meton.) 1. a toe. 2. a twig. 3. (as a measure of length) an inch; the 16th part of a foot: digitum (transversum) discedere, to swerve a finger's-breadth.

dī-glădĭor, āri, intrans. dep. fight on different sides; fight fiercely.

dignātĭo, ōnis, f. [dignor], 1. a deeming worthy; esteem, favourable regard. 2. (meton.) dignity, honour, reputation, rank, post of dignity.

dignātus, a, um, perf. part. from dignor, 1. deigning, condescending. 2. perf. pass. part. from digno, deemed worthy: coniugio Veneris.

dignē, adv. [dignus], worthily, as one deserves, fittingly, becomingly. Compar. dignius.

dignĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. worthiness, worth, merit. II. (meton.) 1. rank, standing, consideration due to one, honour, dignity, grandeur, stateliness, an imposing presence; sts. beauty: suae dignitatis esse statuebat, to be in accordance with his dignity. 2. official rank, honourable employment; position, importance. 3. (in pl. abstr. for concr.) men of eminence: cum dignitates abessent. 4. (of things) worth, value, excellence, beauty.

digno, āre, [id.], trans. v. deem worthy: (with abl.) qui laude dignentur.

dignor, āri, ātus sum, [id.], trans. dep. 1. deem worthy or deserving of: aliquem aliqua re. 2. (with double acc.) deem worthy to be something: O felix, si quem dignabitur, inquit, ista virum. 3. deign, condescend: cui se pulcra viro dignetur iungere Dido.

dī-gnosco (-nosco), ĕre, trans. v. know apart, distinguish, discern.

dignus, a, um, adj. [root DOK-; cf. Sanscr. daças, fame; decus, decet], worthy, deserving; (of things) fit, suitable, proper. With abl., sts. with gen. (not in Cic.); with pro (= match with); with ad, and neut. acc. prom. or adj.; with qui, sts. ut, and subj.; e.g. dignus qui ametur, worthy to be loved; and (poet.) with infin; sts. with supine in -u. Compar. dignior; superl. dignissimus.

dī-grĕdĭor, grĕdi, gressus sum, intrans. dep. 1. go apart, go aside, separate from, part; go away, depart. 2. (fig.) deviate, depart, digress.

digressĭo, ōnis, f. [digredior], a going apart, parting, separating; deviation, digression.

(1) digressus, a, um, perf. part. from digredior.

(2) digressus, ūs, m. [digredior], a parting, separating, withdrawal, departure; digression.

dī-grunnĭo, īre, intrans. v. grunt or squeal hard.

dĭi, 1. nom. and voc. pl. from deus. 2. old gen. of dies.

dī-iūdĭcātio, ōnis, f. [diiudico], a deciding, discerning.

dī-iūdĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. judge between, decide by judging, settle, determine. 2. distinguish, discern.

diiunctē (diĭj-), adv. [diiunctus], separately, in a logically contradictory manner. Compar. diiunctius: non satis quae diiunctius dicuntur intellegis, what is put in the form of a logical dilemma.

diiunctio (diaĭ-), ōnis, f. [diiungo], 1. separation, disunion, diversity. 2. an opposition of two contradictory propositions in logic.

diiunctus (diaĭ-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from diiungo. As adj. 1. separate, distinct, remote. 2. (of style) disjointed, disconnected. 3. logically opposed, contradictory. Compar. diiunctior; superl. diiunctissimus.

dī-iungo (diaĭ-), ĕre, iunxi, iunctum, trans. v. I. disjoin, disunite, separate: iuvencos, unyoke. II. (meton. and fig.) divide, separate, part, remove.

dī-lăbor, ī, lapsus sum, intrans. dep. 1. slip, fall, or melt away, dissolve, break up. 2. (of persons) disperse, flee, escape, desert: exercitus amisso duce brevi dilabitur. 3. (fig.) slip away, vanish: memoriā. II. fall to pieces, go to ruin, decay, consume away; perish, be lost. Prov. Male parta male dilabuntur, ill got, ill spent; lightly come, lightly go.

dī-lăcĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. tear apart or in pieces, dismember, rend asunder.

dī-lămĭno, āre, [lamina], trans. v. split in two.

dī-lănĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. tear in pieces, mangle: dilaniata comas (Gk. acc.), with her hair rent.

dī-lăpido, āre, [lapis], trans. v. lit. throw away like stones; chuck away, squander.

dilăpsus, a, um, perf. part. from dilabor, fallen apart from, passed away, lost, vanished.

dī-largior, īri, ītus sum, traj. trans. dep. give away liberally, lavish: aliquid alicui.

dīlātĭo, ōnis, f. [differo], a putting off, delaying, deferring, delay.

dīlāto, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) spread out, expand, enlarge, extend, dilate: (fig.) litteras, pronounce broadly. B. (intrans.) extend.

dīlātor, ōris, m. [id.], a delayer, procrastinator, dilatory person.

dīlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from differo.

dī-laudo, āre, trans. v. praise warmly.

(1) dilectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from diligo. As adj. loved, beloved, dear. Compar. dilectior; superl. dilectissimus.

(2) dilectus, ūs, m. See delectus.

dīligens, ntis, part. from diligo. As adj. 1. heedful, accurate, painstaking, scrupulous, precise, exact: (with gen.) omnis officii; (with dat.) publicis equis adsignandis et alendis. 2. frugal, thrifty, economical. Compar. diligentior; superl. diligentissimus.

dīlĭgenter, adv. [diligens], 1. carefully, with pains, scrupulously, accurately. 2. thriftily, economically. Compar. diligentius; superl. diligentissime.

dīlĭgentĭa, ae, f. [id.], 1. painstaking, heedfulness, exactness, accuracy of arrangement. 2. thrift, economy.

dī-lĭgo, ĕre, lexi, lectum, [(2) lego], trans. v. lit. single out; esteem highly, love, be attached to.

dī-lŏrĭco, āre, ātum, trans. v. lit. uncorslet; tear open: tunicam.

dī-lūcĕo, ēre, intrans. v. (fig.) be clear, evident.

dīlūcesco, ĕre, luxi, [incept. diluceo], begin to dawn, grow light: break (of the day). Cum dilucescret (impers.). Perf. diluxi, shine.

dīlūcĭdē, adv. [dilucidus], plainly, clearly, evidently, distinctly.

dīlūcĭdus, a, um, adj. [diluceo], bright, clear, evident, distinct. Compar. dilucidior.

dīlūcŭlum, i, n. [id.], daybreak, dawn.

dī-lūdĭum, ĭi, n. [ludus], (prop. techn. of gladiators) an intermission between plays; an interval, respite.

dī-lŭo, ĕre, lŭi, lūtum, trans. v. I. wash out, wash away; dissolve, dilute; wet, soak, drench. II. (fig.) wash away, drown, efface, remove; weaken, lessen, impair.

dīlūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from diluo. As adj. diluted, thin, weak.

dīlŭvĭēs, ēi, f. (-ium, ĭi, n.), [diluo], 1. a flood, deluge, inundation. 2. (fig.) desolation, destruction.

dīlŭvĭo, āre, trans. v. [diluvies], deluge, inundate.

‡ dīmăchae, ārum, m. pl. [δι-μάχαι], dragoons.

dī-mădesco, ĕre, dŭi, intrans. v. melt away.

dī-māno, āre, āvi, intrans. v. flow different ways, flow.

dīmensĭo, ōnis, f. [dimetior], a measuring.

dīmensus, a, um, perf. part. from dimetior. With pass. meaning; measured out, proportioned.

dī-mētĭor, īri, mensus sum, trans. dep. measure out.

dī-mĕto, āre, āvi, ātum, and dep. -or, āri, ātus sum, trans. v. lay out by measurement, mark or stake out.

dīmĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [dimico], a fighting, fight, contest, battle, encounter: capitis, a life and death struggle; vitae, a struggle for life, perilous struggle.

dī-mĭco, āre, āvi or ŭi, ātum, intrans. v. fight on different sides; fight, struggle, contend.

dīmĭdĭātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dimidio, halved, half.

dī-mĭdĭus, a, um, adj. [medius], I. half; divided in two, halved. As subst. dimidium, ĭi, n. a half, the half. Abl. dimidio, with compar. (denoting measure of difference), by half. Prov. Dimidium facti, qui coepit, habet, (ἀρχὴ ἥμισυ παντός), Well begun is half done. II. (fig.) half and half (of persons of mixed parentage).

dī-mĭnŭo (dimm-), ĕre, trans. v. break to pieces, smash. See deminuo.

dīmĭnūtĭo, diminutus. See dem-.

dīmissĭo, ōnis, f. [dimitto], 1. a sending in different directions, sending forth, despatch. 2. a dismissing, discharging.

dīmissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dimitto.

dī-mittŏ, ĕre, mīsi, missum, trans. v. I. 1. send here and there, send off or about, despatch. 2. dismiss, break up, dissolve: senatu dimisso; consilium, dismiss the jury, i.e. adjourn the case. 3. disband, discharge: exercitum. II. 1. let go, dismiss, release. 2. let loose, relax: ligulas, i.e. leave them unfastened. III. (fig.) throw away, abandon, lose, sacrifice, give up, renounce, forego.

dīmōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dimoveo.

dī-mŏvĕo, ēre, mōvi, mōtum, trans. v. I. move or put aside, part, divide; displace; remove, disperse. II. (fig.) divert from one's purpose, tempt.

Dindўmēnē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. the goddess of Dindymus, i.e. Cybele.

Dindўmŏs (-us), i, m. (pl. -a, orum, n.), a mountain in Phrygia sacred to Cybele. There was a mountain of the same name in Mysia.

dīnosco, ĕre. See dignosco.

dīnŭmērātĭo, ōnis, f. [dinumero], a counting up, reckoning.

dī-nŭmĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. count up singly, count over, reckon, enumerate. 2. count out money, pay down.

‡ dioeceseis, is, f. [διοίκησις], a governor's jurisdiction, district.

‡ dioecetēs, ae, m. [διοικητής], a royal treasurer.

Diŏgĕnēs, is, m. 1. the celebrated Cynic philosopher, born at Sinope, B.C. 413; died at Corinth, B.C 323. 2. of Apollonia, in Crete, an Ionic philosopher of the 5th century B.C. 3. a Stoic philosopher, teacher of Laelius.

Diŏmēdēs, is, m. 1. a son of Tydeus distinguished at the siege of Troy, mythic founder of Argyripa, or Arpi, in Apulia, also of Canusium and Beneventum. 2. a king of the Bistŏnes, in Thrace, who fed his mares on human flesh. He was killed by Hercules.

Diŏmēdēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Diomedes. As subst. Diŏmēdēa, ae, f. (sc. fabula), an epic about D.

Diŏnaeus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Venus: antrum; Caesar, i.e. descended from Venus through Iulus and Aeneas: mater, i.e. Venus, Dione's daughter.

Diŏnē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. 1. the mother of Aphrodite (Venus). 2. Venus.

Diŏnўsĭa, ōrum, n. pl. the festival of Dionysus (Bacchus). See Dict. Ant.

Diŏnўsĭus, ĭi, m. 1. the Elder, tyrant of Syracuse (430-367 B.C.). 2. the Younger, son of the preceding, also tyrant of Syracuse; expelled 344 B.C. 3. of Heraclea, a pupil of Zeno.

Diŏnўsŏs (-us), i, m. [Διόνυσος], the Greek wine-god, also called Bacchus.

‡ diōta, ae, f. [δίωτη], two-eared, a vessel or jar with two handles; esp. a wine-jar.

Diphilus, i, m. 1. a Greek comic writer of Sinope, contemporary with Menander. 2. an architect.

diplōma, ătis, (dat. abl. pl. diplomatibus, Suet. Tac.), n. [δίπλωμα, a letter folded double], 1. an official letter, passport. 2. a licence, diploma; letters patent.

dīpondĭum. See dupond-.

‡ dipsăs, ădis, f. [δίψας], a Libyan serpent whose bite caused excessive thirst.

‡ dipўrŏs, ŏn, (-us, a, um), adj. [δίπυρος], twice put in the fire.

Dīrae, ārum, f. pl. the Furies. See dirus.

Dircaeus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Dirce, Dircean; (meton.) Boeotian, Theban: cycnus, i.e. Pindar.

Dircē, ēs, f. 1. a fountain near Thebes. 2. the wife of Lycus, king of Thebes, changed into a fountain.

dīrectō (dē-), adv. [directus], straight, exactly.

directō (dē-), adv. [id.], directly, straight, in a straight direction; straightforwardly; in express terms, expressly. Compar. directius.

dīrectus (dē-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from dirigo (derigo). As adj. I. straight, direct; carried on regularly (whether horizontally or perpendicularly); horizontal; level; perpendicular; laid lengthwise, i.e. at right angles. 2. steep, upright: locus ut hinc ex parte directus. II. (fig.) straightforward, without ceremony, blunt, frank, simple, direct.

(1) dīremptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dirimo.

(2) dīremptus, ūs, m. [dirimo], a separation.

dīreptĭo, ōnis, f. [diripio], a pillaging.

dīreptor, ōris, m. [id.], a pillager, robber.

direptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from diripio.

dīrexti, sync. for direxisti, perf. from dirigo.

dīrĭ-bĕo, ēre, ĭbĭtum, [dis-habeo, cf. dirimo, for dis-emo), trans. v. keep apart; (techn. t.) classify or arrange the votes (tabellae) of the tribes or centuries as they were taken from the ballot-box. Ramsay, Rom. Ant. p. 106, takes it to mean distribute the tabellae before the election to the voters as they passed along the pons to vote.

dīribītio, ōnis, f. [diribeo], the classification or sorting of the tabellae used in voting; cf. diribeo.

dīribītor, ōris, m. [id.], an officer who had charge of the ballot-boxes at the Comitia; a sorter of votes; cf. diribeo.

dīribītōrium, ĭi, n. [id.], 1. the office or building in which the voting-tablets were sorted at Rome. 2. the paymaster-general's office under the Empire.

dī-rĭgo (dĭrĭgo), rĭgĕre, rexi, rectum, trans. v. I. 1. cause to move in a straight line or straight forward, put or keep straight, direct, set or draw straight; arrange, draw up; acies, to form a line in battle array; directa pugna, face to face; membrana plumbo directa, ruled with lead, pencil-ruled. 2. guide, direct, aim, steer: cursum; navem; vulnera; hastilia. II. (fig.) 1. set in order, arrange. 2. guide, direct, guide: vitam ad (according to, by) certam rationis normam; honestate dirigenda utilitas est, is to be judged by, measured by, ought to have for its standard.

dīr-imo, ĕre, ēmi, emptum, [dis-emo; cf. diribeo], I. take to pieces, part, divide, separate. II. (fig.) 1. break off, interrupt, break up, dissolve, put an end to. 2. destroy, frustrate, bring to naught, ruin.

dī-rĭpio, rĭpĕre, pŭi, reptum, [rapio], trans. v. I. 1. tear asunder, rend piecemeal, part and scatter. 2. pillage, plunder, sack, carry off. II. (fig.) harass, distract.

dīrĭtas, ātis, f. [dirus], 1. fatality, ominousness. 2. ferocity, cruelty, harshness of temper.

dī-rumpo (dis-), ĕre, rūpi, ruptum, trans. v. I. burst asunder, break or dash in pieces: homo diruptus dirutusque, ruptured and ruined. II. (fig.) 1. break off, sunder. 2. (colloq.) burst with vexation, laughter, etc.

dī-rŭo, ĕre, rŭi, rūtum, trans. v. I. pull asunder, throw down, level, demolish, overthrow, destroy. II. (fig.) ruin: aere dirutus, ruined in pay, said of a soldier whose pay has been stopped by way of punishment: also without aere; homo diruptus dirutusque, ruptured and ruined.

diruptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dirumpo.

dīrus, a, um, adj. [root DI-, hasten, be scared; cf. δεινός], I. 1. frightful, awful, dread, dire. 2. (techn. t. in augury) ill-omened, portentous, dire: aves; omen. As subst. (a) dirae, ārum, f. res), 1. ill-boding things, evil omens. 2. curses, imprecations. So (b) dīra, ōrum, n. pl. curses: me mihi dira precari Cogis. (c) Dirae, ārum, f. the avenging curses (Ἀραί) that wait on crime personified; the Furies. II. horrid, shocking, abominable, cursed, disastrous, wild, fell, cruel, fierce.

dirutus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from diruo.

(1) dis- (dĭ-), inseparable particle, [Sanscr. dvis, twice; cf. δίς, for δϝις], 1. in twain, in different directions, asunder. 2. with negative force, or to denote a contrary, like English un-; e.g. discingo, ungird; displiceo, displease, etc. 3. among, through, between, e.g. dignosco, dispicio. 4. very much, exceedingly; e.g. diligo, differtus. 5. severally, singly; discumeo. Dis- is assimilated before f, g; remains before gutturals, labials, t, ŭ- consonans, and s with vowel. Dibefore sp, sc, st, and other consonants, when the ĭ is lengthened. Note dir- before h or a vowel; and diiudico, but disicio (disjicio), and disiungo or diiungo.

(2) Dis, Dītis, m. [cf. dius, divus], the god of the nether world, identified with Pluto. Often joined with pater.

(3) dis, neut. dĭte, gen. dĭtis, abl. sing. dĭtĕ, pl. dĭtes, ĭa, etc. rich. Compar. ditior; superl. ditissimus.

dis-calcĕātus, a, um, adj. unshod, barefoot.

dis-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans. v. I 1. go different ways; part asunder, divide, separate; open: medium video discedere caelum. 2. (with prep. a or ab) part from; leave, quit, abandon, forsake, desert: ab amicis. II. 1. go away, depart from; (any place or person), leave: ab exercitu; e patriā; de foro; templo. Pass. impers.: ne quo discessum (est); ab concilio disceditur. 2. withdraw, retire, retreat, decamp. 3. get away, get off, come off: victor; graviter vulneratus; aut cum summā gloriā aut sine molestiā. III. (fig.) 1. deviate, swerve from, give up; a fide iustitiāque; ab oppugnatione; de sententiā, change one's mind. 2. (Ab aliquo, or ab aliquā re) depart from considering, leave out of the question, make an exception of: cum a vobis discesserim, when I have excepted you. 3. pass away, vanish, cease: hae sollicitudines discessare. 4. (polit. techn. t.) discedere in alicuius sententiam, divide its favour of a person's measure, vote in its support; cf. ultra, 7. 5. betake one's self, have recourse, resort to.

disceptātĭo, ōnis, f. [discepto], 1. a judicial decision. 2. a judicial investigation, debate, discussion.

disceptātor, ōris, m. [id.], a judicial investigator, arbitrator, judge, umpire. Fem. disceptātrix, trĭcis.

dis-cepto, āre, āvi, ātum, [capto], trans. and intrans. v. lit. seize hold of und separate, pull apart; 1. decide, determine (a controversy). 2. debate, discuss, argue (of several persons); examine into, investigate (of a single person). 3. contend, strive, dispute. 4. be at stake: in uno praelio omnis fortuna reipublicae disceptat.

dis-cerno, ĕre, crēvi, crētum, trans. v. I. separate, part, divide: telas auro, pick out, interweave with gold; sedes discretas priorum, i.e. separate from Tartarus, far removed. II. (fig.) 1. distinguish, discern. 2. (poet.) decide, settle: litem.

dis-cerpo, ĕre, psi, ptum, [carpo], trans. v. I. tear in pieces, rend or pull asunder. II. (fig.) rend with words, revile: infestis dictis. III. (meton.) scatter, disperse, destroy.

discerptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from discerpo.

discessio, ōnis, f. [discedo], I. 1. a separation (of married people). 2. a division into parties: contionis. II. 1. a going away, departure. 2. (polit. techn. t.) a division of the senate on a motion before them: discessionem facere (of the presiding officer), to take a division, divide the house; cum fieret sine ullā varietate discessio, when an unanimous vote was on the point of taking place.

discessus, ūs, m. [discedo], 1. a going asunder, separation, opening. 2. a going away, withdrawal, departure, removal. 3. (eupheu.) exile, banishment: servavi rem publicam discessu meo.

discĭdium, ĭi, n. [discindo], a tearing apart, division, separation, dissolution (of persons or things); disagreement, discord; divorce.

dis-cīdo, ĕre, [caedo], trans. v. cut in pieces.

discinctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from discingo. As. adj. I. ungirt, loose girt, loose, slack. II. (fig.) 1. at one's ease, at leisure, without restraint, 'en déshabillé'. 2. slovenly, dissolute, loose, profligate: nepos. 3. effeminate, voluptuous.

dī-scindo, ĕre, scĭdi, scissum, trans. v. cleave asunder, cut in pieces, cut up, cut away, rend, divide, sever.

dis-cingo, ĕre, nxi, nctum, trans. v. I. 1. ungird, deprive of the girdle. 2. take off what is girded on; hence, (a) (as a military punishment) take off the sword-belt; disarm, cashier: destrictis gladiis discinctos destituit; (b) deprive of the zona, strip, fleece: tenues Afros. II. (fig.) discingor, pass. used reflexively; be careless, negligent.

disciplīna, ae, f. [for disciplulina; discipulus], I. instruction, teaching, training. II. (meton.) 1. learning, knowledge, skill, science, discipline, moral tone. 2. (a) military training, drill, system; (b) domestic management; (c) rei publicae, the constitution; rei publicae capessendae, system of politics, statesmanship; (d) philosophiae, a school or system of philosophy. 3. a place of training, school. 4. a habit, custom.

discīpŭla, ae, f. [discipulus], a female pupil or scholar.

discīpŭlus, i, m. [disco], a learner, scholar, pupil, disciple.

discissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from discindo.

dis-clūdo, ĕre, si, sum, [claudo], trans. v. I. shut off, keep apart, separate. 2. enclose, part, open: morsus roboris.

disclūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from discludo.

disco, ĕre, dĭdĭci, [root DA-; cf. δεδάως, δεδάσκω], trans. v. learn, become acquainted with, take in knowledge, learn to know.

discoctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from discoquo.

dis-cŏlor, gen. ōris, adj. I. of another colour, differing in colour from (with dat.) vestis falsis discolor alba meis. 2. of different colours, party-coloured. II. (fig.) 1. different from, unlike to. 2. different, various: rerum usus.

dis-convēnio, īre, intrans. v. disagree, be inconsistent. Impers.: disconvenit inter Meque et te, there is a difference.

dis-cŏquo, ĕre, coxi, coctum, trans. v. boil to rags.

discordia, æ, f. [discors]. 1. disagreement, dissension, feud, variance, discord, strife. 2. the goddess of strife, Discord [Ἔρις].

discordĭōsus, a, um, adj. [discordia], full of discord.

discordo, āre, [discors], intrans. v. I. disagree, be at variance, quarrel, have a feud. II. (meton.) 1. differ, disagree, object: si discordet eques. 2. differ from, be unlike to: parcus avaro.

dis-cors, gen. cordis, adj. [cor], I. not of the same mind, disagreeing, at variance, hostile, discordant. II. (meton.) 1. inharmonious, discordant, harsh, jarring. 2. unlike, different.

discrĕpantĭa, æ, f. [discrepo], discordance, inconsistency.

discrĕpātio, ōnis, f. [id.], a dispute, difference.

discrĕpito, āre, [freq. discrepo], intrans. v. differ wholly.

dis-crĕpo, āre, ŭi, intrans. v. I. ring differently; differ in sound, sound differently or discordantly, jar, be out of tune. II. (fig.) 1. disagree, be different; differ, vary. 2. be a matter of dispute: causa latendi Discrepat. More often impers., it is a matter of dispute, it is a moot point.

discrētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from discerno.

dī-scrībo, ĕre, scripsi, scriptum, trans. v. distribute, divide, apportion, assign (amongst several). In this sense MSS. are in favour of form describo; but cf. describo.

discrīmen, ĭnis, n. [for discrimen; discerno], lit. that which intervenes or separates; 1. a space between, an interval, distance, division, separation: parvum leti, but a span from death, a hairsbreadth from death. 2. a parting (of the hair): compositum discrimen erit; discrimina lateri. II. (meton.) 1. decision, difference: septem discrimina vocum, lit. the differences of the seven notes of the lyre, i.e. its seven diverse notes; parvi discriminis (gen. quality) umbrae, scarcely distinguished shades of colour. 2. a decisive point, critical moment, turning-point, crisis: in magno discrimine ponere, reckon as a turning-point, i.e. regard as important. 3. (poet.) distinction, test. III. (fig.) 1. discrimination, discernment: non est consilium in volgo, non discrimen. 2. a dangerous or critical moment, ordeal; risk, hazard, peril, danger: per tot discrimina rerum; videt in summo rem esse discrimine, that matters are desperate.

discrimĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [discrimen], trans. v. I. divide, separate. II. (meton.) mark out, apportion: tempora; agros, show the outline of.

discriptio, ōnis, f. [discribo], a distribution, apportionment, partition, division, arrangement. Often confused in MSS. with descriptio.

dis-crūcio, āre, ātum, trans. v. torture to pieces, torment grievously. Discrucio me, or pass. discrucior, used reflexively, I am vexed, chagrined; sts. with gen. of respect, or locative: animi.

dis-cumbo, ĕre, cŭbŭi, cŭbĭtum, intrans. v. 1. stretch one's-self out (at table), recline, take one's place. Impers. discumbitur. 2. go to bed.

dis-cŭpio, cŭpĕre, intrans. v. eagerly desire.

dis-curro, ĕre, curri and cŭcurri, cursum, intrans. v. run about, run to and fro: totā discurritur urbe (pass. impers.), there is a rush from every quarter throughout the city: Nilus septem discurrit in ora, divides.

dis-curso, āre, [freq. discurro], run to and fro constantly.

discursus, ūs, m. [discurro], 1. a running about, a running to and fro; bustling, bustle; energy, activity. 2. a raid, foray.

‡ discus, i, m. [δίσκος], 1. a quoit; 1. a circular plate of stone or metal, used in gymnastic exercises.

discussus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from discutio.

dis-cūtio, cŭtĕre, cussi, cussum, [quatio], I. 1. dash to pieces, break up, shatter. 2. scatter, disperse. II. (fig.) disperse, dispel, put an end to, frustrate.

dīsertē, adv. [disertus], expressly, clearly; fluently. Compar. disertius; superl. disertissime.

disertus, a, um, adj. [? for disserus, from dissero. Prps. from dis, and art- (ars, artis), accomplished in various ways], I. skilful in speaking, clear or precise in language, fluent; poet. with gen. of respect: loquimur fluenti in wi. As subst. disertus, i, m. (sc. homo), a master of language, fluent speaker. II. (meton.) 1. fluent, eloquent; well expressed. 2. ready, smart: callidus et disertus homo. Compar. disertior; superl. disertissimus.

dis-icio (diss-, disj-), ĭcĕre, ĭēci, iectum, [icio], trans. v. I. 1. cast here and there, toss about, drive asunder, disperse, scatter: corpora ponto; frontem mediam securi, cleave. 2. dash to pieces, throw down, overthrow, destroy. II. (meton.) 1. carry or throw out in different directions: moenia. 2. disperse, rout: eā phalange disiectā. III. (fig.) 1. frustrate, thwart. 2. squander.

disiecto (disj-), āre, [freq. disicio], trans. v. tumble about, scatter.

(1) disiectus (disj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from disicio. As adj. scattered at intervals, in different places: pabulatio.

(2) disiectus (disj-), ūs, m. [disicio], a casting asunder, dispersing.

disjunctē, disjunctio, disjunctus, disjungo. See diiunctе, etc.

dis-pălor, āri, ātus sum, intrans. dep. wander about, straggle, stray.

dis-pando, ĕre, pansum, also dispendo (-penno), ĕre, pessum, trans. v. stretch out, spread out, expand, extend.

dis-păr, gen. păris, abl. sing. pări or pārē, adj. unequal, unlike, different: exemplum grave practebet alex Pegasus et . . . disparem vites, an ill-matched, ill-assorted lover; (with dat.) matrona meretrici; (with gen.) dispar sui atque dissimile.

dī-spargo, ĕre. See dispergo.

dis-părilis, e, adj. unlike, different.

dis-păro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. arrange in different divisions; separate, divide.

dispectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dispicio.

dis-pello, ĕre, pŭli, pulsum, trans. v. drive hither and thither, scatter, disperse, dispel.

dispendium, ĭi, n. [(1) dispendo], lit. a weighing out; cost, expense; loss, damage: morae, i.e. loss of time by delay; viarum, loss of time on a journey; silvae, winding roundabout forest paths.

(1) dis-pendo, ĕre, trans. v. weigh out.

(2) dis-pendo (-penno), ĕre. See dispando.

dispensātĭo, ōnis, f. [dispenso], 1. management, charge, superintendence: aerarii. 2. the office of a dispensator, comptrollership, stewardship.

dispensātor, ōris, m. [id.], a slave who acted as accountant and secretary; a steward, manager cashier, treasurer, paymaster.

dis-penso, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. dispendo], trans. v. I. weigh out; disburse, pay out. II. (meton.) manage, regulate, dispense, arrange, mete out, distribute: mortalia fila; annum; filum candelae, husband it. III. (fig.) regulate, arrange, dispose, order, direct, control; (poet. without obj.) si modo recte Dispensare velis.

(?) disperdĭtio, ōnis, f. [disperdo], a destruction, ruin.

dis-perdo, ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, trans. v. squander, destroy, ruin, spoil: carmen, i.e. murder it.

dis-pĕrĕo, īre, ĭi, intrans. v. perish utterly, be undone. Disperii, I am undone! it's all over with me. Dispeream si, or nisi, may I perish, if; perdition seize me, deuce take me, if, or if not (a strong form of asseveration).

di-spergo (spargo), ĕre, spersi, spersum, [spargo], trans. v. spread or scatter about, disperse, divide, scatter; bestrew, besprinkle.

dispersē, adv. [dispersus], dispersedly, here and there.

dispersim, adv. [id.],= disperse.

dispersĭo, ōnis, f. [dispergo], a scattering, breaking up; urbis.

dispersus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dispergo, dispersed, scattered; here and there, straggling; membrorum collectio, i.e. in different places; dispersa capillos (Gk. acc.), with dishevelled locks.

dis-pertio (-partĭo), īre, īvi, or ĭi, ītum, [partio], trans. v. distribute, divide.

dis-pertior (-partĭor), īri, trans. dep. distribute, divide.

(?) dispertītĭo, ōnis, f. [dispertio], a division, breaking up.

dispessus, a, um, for dispensus. See dispando.

di-spĭcio, ĭcĕre, spexi, spectum, [-specio], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) look on all sides, look around, look attentively. B. (trans.) 1. see through, see clearly, discern, descry, distinguish; get a glimpse of, see from a distance. II. (fig.) 1. (of the mind) perceive, discern, discover. 2. devise, hit upon: iam aliquid dispiciam. 3. consider, think, reflect upon: res Romanas.

dis-plĭcĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, [placeo], intrans. v. displease: displicent nexae philyrā coronae; (with dat.) tanto displiciisse viro. Displiceo mihi, I am out of humour, dissatisfied with myself; sts. I am indisposed.

dis-plōdo, ĕre, plōsum, [plaudo], trans. v. burst asunder with a clap; spread out, extend.

displōsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from displodo.

dī-spōllo, āre, trans. v. plunder, rob, despoil.

dis-pōno, ĕre, pŏsŭi, pŏsĭtum (contr. pōstum, Lucr.), trans. v. I. 1. set in various places, set in order, arrange, dispose, distribute. 2. station, post, draw up (troops, ships, etc.). 3. (poet.) detail, describe: moenia versu. II. (fig.) arrange, regulate, settle.

dispōsĭtē, adv. [dispositus], orderly, methodically.

dispōsĭtio, ōnis, f. [disponо], a regular disposition, arrangement.

dispōsĭtŏr, ōris, m. [id.], an arranger.

dispōsĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from disponо. As adj. well ordered, methodical.

dispōsĭtus, ūs, m. [disponо], a disposition, arrangement.

dis-pūdet, ēre, impers. v. it greatly or thoroughly shames one.

dispulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dispello.

dispŭtātio, ōnis, f. [disputo], a discussion, debate, discourse, argument, dispute.

dispŭtātor, ōris, m. [id.], a disputer, debater, essayist.

dis-pŭto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. 1. reckon over, go through details or items. 2. think over, weigh, investigate. II. (meton.) 1. treat of, discuss; put forward as one's opinion in discussion, maintain. In Cic. only with neut. pron. 2. tell, relate. B. (intrans.) argue about, treat of, debate about, reason: Druides multa de sideribus . . . disputant, they theorise largely.

dis-quīro, ĕre, [quaero], trans. v. examine into, investigate thoroughly.

disquīsītio, ōnis, f. [disquiro], a judicial inquiry, investigation.

dis-rumpo, ĕre. See dirumpo.

dis-saepio (-sēpio), īre, psi, ptum, trans. v. hedge apart, fence off, separate, divide.

dissaeptum (septum), i, n. [dissaepio], a barrier, partition.

dissaeptus (-septus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from dissaepio, 1. fenced off, partitioned. 2. (poet.) unfenced, from which the saeptum has been broken down: agger.

dis-sāvior, āri. See dissuavior.

dis-sĕco, āre, cŭi, ctum, trans. v. cut in pieces, cut up, dissect.

dissectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from disseco.

dis-sēmino, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. sow about, sow broadcast, spread abroad.

dissensio, ōnis, f. [dissentio], 1. difference of opinion, disagreement, dispute, dissension. 2. (fig.) inconsistency, incompatibility.

dissensus, ūs, m. [id.], disagreement, dissension, discord.

dis-sentĭo, īre, sensi, sensum, intrans. v. 1. think differently, differ in opinion disagree, dissent, differ, be at variance. 2. be unlike, differ from, be inconsistent or incompatible with.

dis-sēpio, disseptus. See dissaepio, etc.

(1) dis-sĕro, sĕrĕre, (sēvi), sĭtum, trans. v. 1. sow here and there, scatter seed, sow. 2. plant or set at intervals: taleae . . . dissere bantur.

(2) dis-sĕro, sĕrĕre, serŭi, sertum, trans. v. lit. unravel; argue about, discuss, discourse of, expound, explain; state one's views; publish. Sts. absol. argue, discourse: disserendi ars or ratio, i.e. logic. In Cic. with neut. pron. as obj. acc.

dis-serpo, ĕre, intrans. v. creep about, spread imperceptibly.

disserto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. (2) dissero], trans. v. discuss, debate, argue, treat of, dwell upon.

dissĭcio, ĕre. See disicio.

dis-sĭdĕo, ēre, sēdi, sessum, [sedeo], intrans. v. lit. sit apart. 1. be at a distance, be separated or divided. II. (fig.) be at variance or enmity, disagree; be in revolt. Impers. pass.: histriones propter quos dissidebatur. III. (meton.) be unlike, different to; differ, disagree: toga dissidet impar, is ill-adjusted and sits awry.

dissĭdium, ĭi, n. See discidium, for which it is wrongly read.

dissignātor, ōris. See designator.

dis-signo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. break the seal, open. II. do something startling, play pranks. Cf. designo, II. 4. for which it probably should be read. III. lit. mark out in different directions; hence, dispose, order.

dis-sĭlio, īre, ŭi, [salio], intrans. v. leap or spring apart, fly asunder, split, burst.

dis-similis, e, adj. unlike, dissimilar, different, motley. With gen., dat., inter se, atque, or et, and in Tac. with in and acc. Compar. dissimilior; superl. dissimillimus.

dissimĭlĭter, adv. [dissimilis], in a different manner, differently.

dissimĭlĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [id.], unlikeness, difference.

dissimŭlanter, adv. [dissimulo], with dissimulation, dissemblingly; hiding one's feelings or motives.

dissimŭlantia, ae, f. [id.], a dissembling.

dissimŭlātio, ōnis, f. [id.], a dissembling, dissimulation, concealment.

dissimŭlātor, ōris, m. [id.], a dissembler, concealer.

dissimŭlātus, a, um, perf. pass part. from dissimulo, dissembled concealed, repressed.

dis-simŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [dissimilis], trans. v. lit. make a thing unlike what it is, 1. conceal, disguise, dissemble, hide one's feelings: gaudia; dissimulanda miruli, i.e. that need be disowned; dissimulata deam (perf. pass. part. in middle sense), having the goddess concealed, i.e. disguising her divinity. Sts. without obj. acc.

dissipābilis, e, adj. [dissipo], that may be scattered or dispersed.

dissipātio, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a scattering, dispersion. 2. destruction, ruin.

dissipātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dissipo, scattered, dispersed; irregular, loose. By tmesis, disque supatis, Lucr. i. 651.

dis-sipo (-sŭpo), āre, āvi, ātum, [obsol. sŭpo=iacio], trans. v. 1. spread on all sides, scatter, disperse. 2. put to flight, rout. 3. squander: avitas opes. II. (fig.) spread, publish, disseminate, scatter.

dissĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) dissero, scattered, remote.

dissŏcĭābilis, e, adj. [dissocio], 1. (active) separating, dividing, estranging: Oceanus. 2. (passive) that cannot be united, irreconcilable.

dissŏcĭātio, ōnis, f. [id.], a separation.

dis-sŏcio, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. disunite, estrange, disjoin, sever, separate.

dissŏlūbĭlis, e, adj. [dissolvo], capable of dissolution.

dissŏlūo, dissŏlŭendus, by diaeresis for dissolvo, dissolvendus. See dissolvo.

dissŏlūtē, adv. [dissolutus], loosely, negligently, without stringency.

dissŏlūtĭo, ōnis, f. [dissolvo], I. a breaking up, dissolving, destruction, dissolution. II. (fig.) 1. looseness of character, laxity, indifference; frailty. 2. an abolition, destruction. 3. a refutation, complete answer to: criminum. 4. (of style) an interruption, break.

dissŏlūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dissolvo. As adj. 1. loose, unconnected. 2. lax, indifferent, remiss; licentious, profligate. Compar. dissolutior; superl. dissolutissimus.

dis-solvo, ĕre, solvi, sŏlūtum, trans. v. I. 1. unloose, untie, relax, disjoin, separate, dissolve. 2. (business techn. t.) pay, discharge, settle; vota; as alienum. Pass. dissolvor, used reflexively, free or release one's-self; get out of debt. II. (fig.) 1. dissolve, relax, abolish, destroy, annul. 2. unravel, reply to, refute, completely answer criminationem. 3. release.

dis-sōnus, a, um, adj. 1. differing in sound, discordant, confused. 2. (meton.) not in accord, differing, alien.

dis-sors, gen. sortis, adj. 1. of a different lot, of other fate. 2. not shared, separate, apart.

dis-suādĕo, ēre, sī, sum, trans. v. advise against, oppose by argument, dissuade, resist. Sts. without obj. acc. or obj. clause.

dissuāsĭo, ōnis, f. [dissuadeo], an advising against, opposition to: rogationis.

dissuāsor, ōris, m. [id.], one who advises against, an opposer, dissuader.

dis-suāvior (-sāvior), āri, trans. dep. kiss warmly or fondly.

dissulto, āre, [freq. ‡ dissilio], intrans. v. leap or spring asunder by apart, burst.

dis-sŭo, ĕre, sūtum, trans. v. I. unsew, unstitch; rip up, unlace II. (fig.) undo by degrees, par gently: amicitias.

dis-sŭpo, āre. See disipo.

dissūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dissuo, unstitched, unlaced; fig.) wide open, at full stretch: malae, unhinged.

dis-taedet, impers. v. it quite wearies one; one is disgusted with, loathes.

distans, ntis, part. from disto, 1. distant, far off. 2. differing, distinct.

distantĭa, ae, f. [disto], 1. distance, remoteness. 2. (fig.) difference, diversity.

dis-tendo (-tenno), ĕre, tendi, tentum (tensum), trans. v. I. stretch in different directions, stretch out or apart, extend. II. (meton.) 1. fill out, distend: nectare cellas. 2. torture on the rack. III. (fig.) divide, distract.

distenno. See distendo.

distensus, a, um, for distentus from distendo.

(1) distentus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from distendo, swollen or filled out, distended, full.

(2) distentus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from distineo. As adj. busied, occupied, engaged. Superl. distentissimus.

dis-termĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. separate by a boundary, divide.

dis-terminus, a, um, adj. separated, divided.

‡ distichus, a, um, adj. [δίστιχος], having two rows. As subst. distichŏn, i, n. a couplet, distich (consisting of a hexameter and a pentameter).

distillo, āre. See destillo.

distinctē, adv. [distinctus], clearly, distinctly, with perspicuity. Compar. distinctius.

distinctĭo, ōnis, f [distinguo], 1. a distinguishing, distinction, separation. 2. a difference, contrast. 3. a setting off, ornament.

(1) distinctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from distinguo. As adj. 1. separated, distinct. 2. picked out, distinctly marked, varied, dotted; decorated, adorned. 3. elegant, refined, ornate.

(2) distinctus, ūs, m. [distinguo], a distinction, difference.

dis-tĭnĕo, ēre, tĭnŭi, tentum, [teneo], trans. v. I. 1. hold or keep apart, keep at a distance, separate, divide. 2. keep away, keep back, hinder, detain, prevent, defer. II. (fig.) 1. distract, perplex. 2. occupy, engage.

dis-stinguo, ĕre, nxi, nctum, [root στιϵ-; cf. στίζω, στίγμα, stilus, stimulus], trans. v. lit. mark differently; 1. separate, divide, part. 2. (fig.) distinguish, discriminate. 3. (rhetor. techn. t.) set forth in order: aliquid oratione. II. pick out, dot, streak, spangle, stud, give variety to, throw into relief, set off, decorate, adorn.

di-sto, āre, intrans. v. I. stand apart, be at a distance; be separate, distant, removed. II. (fig.) be distinct, differ; (with dat.) nullum satiae distat inertiae Celata virtus.

dis-torquĕo, ēre, torsi, tortum, trans. v. 1. wrench, twist, distort: oculos, i.e. wink. 2. torture, rack.

distortĭo, ōnis, f. [distorqueo], a distorting, writhing.

distortus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from distorqueo. As adj. 1. wry, twisted, deformed, misshapen: crura. 2. (fig.) travestied, caricatured; perverse, unseemly.

distractĭo, ōnis, f. [distraho], 1. a pulling asunder, division, parting. 2. (meton.) a selling in parcels. 3. (fig.) dissension, discord.

distractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from distrahо. As adj. 1. severed, divided. 2. (fig.) distracted, perplexed. Compar. distractior; superl. distractissimus.

dis-trăho, ĕre, traxi, tractum, trans. v. I. 1. pull asunder, draw or drag apart; sever with violence, part, divide, break up. 2. (techn. t.) sell in parcels, retail; sts. sell. 3. (fig.) distract, perplex. II. 1. draw different ways, tear or draw away, separate, disjoin, remove. 2. alienate, estrange.

dis-tribŭo, ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, trans. v. divide, distribute, deal.

distributē, adv. [distributus], methodically. Compar. distributius.

distributĭo, ōnis, f. [distribuo], a division, distribution.

distributus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from distribuo.

districtē (des-), adv. [districtus], severely, sternly, strictly.

districtus, a, um, perf. pass. part from distringo. As adj. 1. strict, severe. 2. distracted, embarrassed. 3. pre-occupied, engaged with one thing to the exclusion of others, busy. Compar. districtior. [See destrictus, with which it is often confounded.]

dī-stringo, ĕre, strinxi, strictum, trans. v. lit. press asunder, bind apart or by several ties; draw tight, stretch out. II. 1. engage so as to withdraw attention from all else, engross, pre-occupy, engage. 2. encumber, distract, embarrass. [In mss. often confounded with destringo.]

disturbātĭo, ōnis, f. [disturbo], demolition, destruction.

dis-turbo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. break up in disorder, violently separate, disturb. 2. knock to pieces, demolish, destroy. II. (fig.) frustrate, break off, thwart, ruin, abolish.

ditesco, ĕre, incept. v. [dis= dives], grow rich.

‡ dithўrambus, i, m. [διθύραμβος], a dithyrambic poem, orig in honour of Bacchus, a dithyramb.

ditĭo, ōnis, wrong for dicio, q.v.

ditĭor, dītius, dītissimus. See (3) dis= dives.

dĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [dis= dives], trans. v. enrich.

dĭū, adv. [old acc. of duration of time, ? locat. form; see dies], 1. in the day-time, by day; noctu diuque. 2. for a space of time. 3. for a long space of time, a long while, long: quam diu, as long as. 4. long since, a good while ago: iam diu, for a long while now. Compar. diutius, longer, too long; any considerable time. Superl. diutissime, longest: quam diutissime, as long as possible.

diūrnus, a, um, adj. [for diusnus, from dies], 1. of or belonging to the day, daily. As subst. diurnum, i, n. (a) an account-book, day-book, journal, diary: longi transacta diurni. In pl. (sc. acta), the official bulletins of public events of interest, which were daily posted; the daily Gazette; cf. acta; (b) a daily allowance of food, daily rations or wages. 2. begun and ended in a day, lasting a day: fata actutis suis. 3. by day, of the day; labor; nitor in tacita nocte diurnus erat; currus, i.e. of the sun.

dius, a, um, adj. See divus.

diūtĭnus, a, um, adj. [diu], of long duration, long continued, lasting, long.

diūtius. diūtissimē. See diu.

(†) diūturnē, adv. [diuturnus], for a long time.

diūturnĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], long duration, long continuance, length of time.

diūturnus (dĭūturnus in Ovid), a, um, adj. [diu], of long duration, lasting, long, prolonged; (poet.) long lived. Compar. diuturnior.

diva, ae, f. a goddess. See divus.

dī-vārĭco, āre, ātum, trans. v. stretch asunder, set astride.

dī-vello, ĕre, velli (vulsi), vulsum (volsum), trans. v. I. rend or pull asunder, tear or pluck in pieces, tear away, part. II. (fig.) 1. tear violently apart, sunder, dissolve, destroy. 2. separate, remove, estrange, part.

dī-vendo, ĕre, dĭtum, trans. v. sell in lots or parcels, sell piecemeal.

dī-verbĕro, āre, ātum, trans. v. 1. beat asunder, strike and cleave. 2. strike on both sides, flap against: bubis cervix diverberet armos.

dī-verbium, ĭi, n. [verbum], the dialogue of a comedy; sts. (meton.) in pl., comedies.

diversē (-vorsē), adv. [diversus], different ways, in different directions, in a scattered manner; differently, variously. Compar. diversius; superl. diversissime.

diversĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], 1. opposition, contrariety, contradiction, disagreement. 2. diversity, difference, variety.

diversorium, ĭi. See deversorius.

diversus (-vorsus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from diverto. As adj. facing different ways; I. 1. opposite, contrary. 2. (fig.) contrary, conflicting, hostile, at variance, estranged. In diversum, in an opposite direction. E (ex) diverso, on the opposite side, on the contrary. II. 1. in different directions, taking a different way, going aside; on another side, separate, in different places, standing aloof, remote, apart. 2. (fig.) (a) divers, different, unlike, dissimilar. Sts. with gen. (b) wavering, with conflicting feelings; animi (locut.), wavering in purpose. Compar. diversior (-vorsior); superl. diversissimus.

divertĭcŭlum, i. See deverticulum.

divertium, ĭi. See divortium.

dī-verto (-vorto), ĕre, tī, sum, intrans. v. turn in different directions; separate; diverge, differ.

dīvēs, ĭtis, abl. sing. mostly dīvĭte, (also dīti, dītē, q.v.) adj. [? root DIV-, shine; cf. dies], I. rich, wealthy; with gen. or abl., rich, abounding in: agris; opum. As subst. m. a rich man. II. (meton.) 1. rich, costly, splendid, precious. 2. rich in produce, abundant, plentiful. Neut. nom. and acc. pl. do not occur. Compar. dīvĭtior (dītior); superl. dīvĭtissimus (dītissimus).

dī-vexo, āre, trans. v. 1. pull asunder; destroy, ravage. 2. harass, vex.

Dīvĭco, ōnis, m. a chief of the Helvetii.

dī-vīdo, ĕre, vīsi, vīsum, [dis; Sanscr. root VID-, know], trans. v. A. 1. part asunder, separate, divide, dissect, cut in two or more parts: nubila; Galliam in tres partes; muros, make a breach in. II. (meton.) 1. divide among several, apportion, distribute: agros; praedam; sell in lots, or piecemeal. III. (fig.) 1. keep distinct, separate, divide; distribute, apportion: tempora curarum remissionumque; belli rationem; bucina dividat horas, tells the hours, marks their divisions; (polit. techn. t.) divide: sententiam, to take a separate vote on each head of a motion or proposition before the Senate, submit a motion in parts. 2. send in different directions, suffer to diverge: alio mentes, alio divisimus aures. 3. break up, destroy: concentus; regnum ferro. 4. mark the time (of songs), set to music, accompany: grata feminis Imbelli citharā carmina divides. 5. make a breach between, cause dissension between, Proper. B. 1. divide, separate, part from, remove from. 2. (fig.) distinguish, separate, dissect. 3. (meton.) set off, relieve: gemma micat, fulvum quam dividit aurum, i.e. which is set in yellow gold.

dīvīdŭus, a, um, adj. [divido], 1. divisible. 2. divided, parted, separated.

dīvĭnātĭo, ōnis, f. [divino], 1. the faculty of divining, foreseeing, predicting, divination. 2. (meton.) (legal techn. t.) the process of deciding, when two or more prosecutors appeared against the same person, which of them should have the preference. This preliminary process was conducted before an unsworn jury.

dīvĭnē, adv. [divinus], 1. in a godlike manner. 2. by divine inspiration. 3. with more than human excellence; gloriously, admirably, extraordinarily. Compar. divinius.

dīvĭnĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], 1. godhead, divinity. 2. superhuman excellence. 3. the power of divining, divination.

dīvĭnĭtus, adv. [id.], I. from heaven, by the gift or favour of heaven, providentially. II. (meton.) 1. by divine inspiration, prophetically. 2. with marvellous appropriateness, admirably, gloriously, by a happy inspiration.

dīvĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. and intrans. v. 1. foresee, divine; predict, foretell. 2. conjecture, guess, anticipate.

dīvīnus, a, um, adj. [divus], I. 1. of or belonging to a deity, divine celestial. Res divinae, sts. res divinae, religious exercise, divine worship, sacrifice; res divinae humanaeque, all things in heaven and earth, i.e. every conceivable thing; (b) nature, physics (as distinguished from res humanae, morals); (c) natural laws (opposed to res humanae, positive laws). 2. dedicated to a deity, sacrificial: tomacula. II. (meton.) 1. divinely inspired, prophetic: canit divino ex ore sacerdos; (with gen.) imbrium divina avis. As subst. dīvīnus, i, m. a diviner, fortune-teller. 2. supernuman, extraordinary, admirable, splendid; vir; virtus. 3. (as an epithet of the Roman Emperors and their families) imperial: superbiens honore divinae domūs. So, in inscr., D.D.D. i.e. (in) honorem Divinae Domus. Compar. divinior.

dīvīsĭo, ōnis, f. [divido], 1. a division, partition. 2. a violation, dishonouring.

dīvīsor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a divider, distributor. 2. an electioneering agent, bribery agent.

dīvīsse, sync. perf. infin. act. for divisisse, from divido.

(1) dīvīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from divido. As adj. divided, parted. Compar. divisior.

(2) dīvīsus, ūs, m. [id.], a division, apportionment. Only in dat. sing.

Dīvĭtĭăcus, i, m. 1. a Druid and chief of the Aedui, strongly attached to Caesar and the Roman cause. 2. a chief of the Suessiones.

dīvĭtĭae, ārum, f. pl. [dives], 1. riches, wealth. 2. (fig.) richness, copiousness (of style).

dīvŏm = divorum. See divus.

dīvortium (-vertium), ĭi, n. (diverto), 1. a separation; esp. divorce. 2. a place where roads branch off, a cross-way; aquarum, a watershed. Sts. confused with devortium, q.v.

dīvorto, dīvorsus, etc. See diverto.

divulgātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from divulgo. As adj. 1. widespread. 2. trumpery, common-place.

dī-vulgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. spread or publish abroad, divulge, make common. II. (meton.) place at the beck and call of everybody, prostitute.

divulsus (-volsus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from divello.

dīvus (dīus), a, um, adj. [δᾶFος, δῖος; cf. deus], I. of or belonging to a deity; divine, godlike. As subst. (a) dīvus (dīus), m. a god, deity; (b) dīva, ae, f. a goddess. II. (meton.) godlike, more than human, unearthly; extraordinary, splendid, charming: sententia Catonis; poemata. Esp., under the Empire, of the emperors after death; deified: Iulius. Cf. our use of 'sainted,' 'of happy memory.' As subst. dīvum (dīum), i, n. the sky. Sub divo or dio, under the open sky, in the open air; cf. sub love.

dixti, sync. for dixisti. See dico.

(1) dō, dare, dĕdi, dătum, trans. v. [Sanscr. root DĀ-, dadāmi, give; δί-δω-μι], I. A. 1. give, bestow, confer, offer, present; grant, permit, concede, allow; give up, deliver, yield; furnish, afford: obsides; iter alicui: per provinciam; gladiatores, i.e. exhibit a show of gladiators; (with double dat.) patera quae dono mi data est. 2. in phrases: (a) dare animum (animos), inspirit, encourage; (b) dare fabulam, exhibit or produce a play: Menandri Phasma; (fig.) conciliationis et gratiae fabulam dare, romance about an amicable compromise; (c) dare litteras ad aliquem, write a letter; but alicui, give one a letter to deliver; rarely of the bearer, deliver a letter; (d) dare negotium alicui ut, commission or direct one to; (e) dare operam, bestow labour, take pains; (f) dare poenas, give satisfaction, pay the penalty, make atonement, suffer; (g) dare vela, set sail; (h) dare verba (give words only), cajole, cheat, deceive; (i) dat se res, the matter stands or is circumstanced, promises. B. (in military phrases), (a) dare nomina, put down one's name for service, enlist; (b) dare manus, surrender, yield, see quarter; (c) dare terga, turn one's back in flight, take to flight, flee. C. (indicating the limit) put, place, carry: hanc mihi in manum dat; hostes in fugam; dare se in fugam (fugae), betake one's self to flight; dare in viam, set out on a journey; dare se vento, run before the wind; populo, appear in public. D. (indicating the effect) produce, cause, make, bring about, inflict, impose; bring forth; send forth, utter: humum humani; humum saltum; morsus, = mordeo; prolem; fragorem; cantum. Also (poet.) with part. or adj.—e.g. defensum dare=defendere; haec ego vasta dabo=vastabo. E. Dare aliquid alicui, do a thing for the sake of another; honour another; give up, sacrifice a thing to another. F. Dare se alicui or alicui rei, give up, devote, dedicate one's-self to a person or thing; put one's-self in a person's hands. G. tell, announce, mention, communicate, explain: iste deus qui sit da, Tityre, nobis; quamobrem has partes didicerim paucis dabo; pius Aeneas eripuisse datur, is said. II. (fig.) with predicative dat. 1. give, assign, impute, attribute (as a fault, crime, merit, etc.): hoc vitio datur; idne alteri crimini dabis quod tu ipse fecisti? 2. Dare manus (alicui), yield to, acquiesce in; submit, give in. 3. make an admission, grant.

(2) -do, obsol. v. [Sanscr. root DHA-, da=dhāmi, place; cf. τι-θη-μι], place, set. Only in compounds abdo, condo, prodo, etc.

(3) do, acc. sing. of domus by apocope.

dŏcĕo, ēre, ŭi, doctum, [root DA-, DAK-; cf. disco, διδάσκω], trans. v. I. teach, instruct, inform, show, tell, state, point out: rerum causas; nomen patriumque; [with double acc. of person and thing] pueros elementa; (pass. with acc. of thing) motus doceri gaudet Ionicos. 2. (like Gk. διδάσκειν), teach the actors their parts, train them; hence, docere fabulam, to put a play on the stage, bring out, exhibit (a play) vel qui praecertas vel qui docuere togatas.

dŏcĭlis, e, adj. [doceo]. 1. that may be taught, easily taught, docile, teachable: (with gen. after adj. implying knowledge) modorum; pravi. 2. quick of apprehension, inventive. 3. (meton.) easily managed, manageable. Compar. docilior.

dŏcĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [docilis], 1. aptness to be taught, docility. 2. (meton.) tractability, complaisance.

doctē, adv. [doctus], 1. learnedly, skilfully, artistically, scientifically. 2. with taste and culture, like a philosopher. 3. cleverly, shrewdly. Compar. doctius; superl. doctissime.

doctor, ōris, m. [doceo], a teacher, instructor, master, professor.

doctrīna, ae, f. [doctor], I. teaching, instruction, education. II. (meton.) 1. the teaching or instruction given; learning acquired, attainments; science, culture, philosophy. 2. the teaching of a school or sect, a set of tenets, a creed. 3. the habit produced by training or education, principle.

doctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from doceo. As adj. 1. learned, skilled, well versed, experienced: (with gen.) fandi doctissima; (with infin.) sagittas tendere Sericas. 2. possessed of taste and culture; accomplished; esp. poetical, musical, artistic: Athenae; Catullus; doctarum hederae praemia frontium. Often used of poets. As subst. doctī, ōrum, m. pl. the learned, i.e. philosophers by profession. So doctissimi. A learned man' is litteratus. 3. knowing, clever, shrewd. Compar. doctior; superl. doctissimus.

dŏcŭmen, ĭnis, n. = documentum.

dŏcŭmentum, i, n. [doceo], a lesson, example, instructive instance, pattern, warning; proof, evidence, specimen.

Dōdōna, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. I. a city of Epirus noted for its oracular oak grove sacred to Zeus (Iuppiter). II. (meton.) 1. the sacred oak grove of Dodona: cum victum Dodona negaret. 2. the oracle at Dodona.

Dōdōnaeus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of Dodona.

Dōdōnis, ĭdis, f. adj. of Dodona: terra; Thyene, i.e. one of the nymphs of D., who were changed by Jupiter into the seven Hyades.

dōdrans, ntis, m. [de-quadrans, cf. dextans], 1. a fourth-off, i.e. nine-twelfths (unciae), or three-fourths of anything. 2. (as a measure of length) nine inches.

‡ dogma, ătis, n. [δόγμα], a formal opinion, esp. a philosophic tenet, doctrine, dogma.

(1) dōlăbella, ae, f. [dim. dolabra], a small pick-axe, hatchet.

(2) Dōlăbella, ae, m. the name of a patrician family of the gens Cornelia.

dōlăbra, ae, f. [(1) dolo], 1. a mattock. 2. a pick-axe, pick. 3. a hatchet, pole-axe.

(?) dōlābrātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [dolabra], 1. made like a dolabra, or furnished with one. 2. hewn or shaped with a dolabra.

dōlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) dolo.

dōlens, ntis, part. from doleo. As adj. causing pain; painful, distressing, pathetic: nil fertur vidisse dolentius (compar.).

dŏlenter, adv. [dolens], 1. painfully, with pain, in sorrow, pathetically. 2. with feelings of resentment, resentfully. Compar. dolentius.

dōlĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. feel or suffer (bodily) pain, ache; be in travail, labour. 2. feel mental pain; be distressed or sorry, grieve; feel hurt, feel annoyance or resentment, be vexed, indignant. 3. be painful, smart, hurt; sts. with dat. Also impers. dolet, it pains me; I regret, I am grieved. B. (trans.) 1. cause one pain, be painful to, pain. 2. grieve over, lament, deplore, be sorry for.

dōlĭchos, i, m. a gladiator so named.

dōlĭcŏlum, i, n. [dim. dolium], a small crock.

dōlĭtūrus, a, um, fut. part. from doleo.

dōlĭum, ii, n. a large round earthenware vessel with a wide mouth; a vat, jar, crock; often of the so-called tub of Diogenes.

(1) dōlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [root DAL-; cf. δαί-δαλος, δαιδάλλω],, trans. v. I. 1. hew, chop, cut with an axe, chip, carve. 2. (fig.) roughhew, fashion; contrive, devise. II. (meton.) belabour, cudgel, give one a drubbing.

‡ (2) dōlō (-on), ōnis, m. [δόλων], 1. a pike with a small sharp iron point, a sword-stick, dirk, rapier; hence, (meton.) the sting of a fly. 3. a small foresail on a two-masted vessel.

(3) Dōlo (-ōn), ōnis, m. a Trojan spy.

Dōlŏpēĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Dolopes.

Dōlŏpēs, um, m. pl. a people of Thessaly.

Dōlŏpĭa, ae, f. the country of the Dolopes.

dŏlor, ōris, m. [doleo], I. 1. (physical) pain, ache, smart. 2. mental pain, distress, grief. 3. resentment, indignation, chagrin, vexation, annoyance. II. (meton.) a source of pain or grief; a grievance. 2. (rhetor. techn. t.) pathos.

dōlōsē, adv. [dolosus], craftily, deceitfully.

dōlōsus, a, um, adj. [dolus], full of craft, cunning, deceitful, treacherous; (poet., with prolate infin.) amici Ferre iugum pariter dolosi, too treacherous to bear the yoke in common.

‡ dŏlus, i, m. [δόλος], 1. craft, fraud, deceit, guile, deception, stratagem; a trick, cheat: dolus malus (legal techn. t.), criminal fraud, breach of contract, (opposed to bona fides); hence, dolo suo factum, by one's own fault. 2. (meton.) a means or instrument of deceiving; e.g. the Labyrinth, a maze; an angler's bait; fishing-nets, etc.

dŏmābilis, e, adj. [domo], that can be tamed or subdued, conquerable.

(?) dŏmātor, ōris, m. = domitor dŏmesticātim, adv. [domesticus], in the house, at home.

dŏmesticus, a, um, adj. [domus], I. of or belonging to the house, house-: paries; domesticus otior, i.e. in the house, at home. II. 1. of or belonging to one's household or family, belonging to home, domestic, familiar; sts. home-bred, at home, tame: sanguilla. Subst. dŏmestici, ōrum, m. pl. (a) the inmates of a house, members of a family; (b) the household slaves, servants; (c) the emperor's body-guard, household troops. 2. (meton.) belonging to the Imperial household: castra, the household troops, i.e. the Praetorian Guard. III. (opposed to externus), 1. of one's own country or people, domestic, national, native, home, internal, private, civil. 2. one's own, personal: convalescentia commodum. 3. natural to, appropriate, handy: domestica seditioni Tela.

dŏmi, locat. of domus, at home, in the house. See domus.

dŏmicēnium, ii, n. [domus; cena], a dining at home, homely fare.

dŏmicĭlium, ii, n. [domus; root KAT-; cf. celo, cella]: or (?) colo], a dwelling, permanent abode, settled residence, domicile, home.

dŏmicoenium, ii. See domicenium.

dŏmina, ae, f. [dominus], 1. a mistress, lady of the house, lady. 2. freq. as title of goddesses; a sovereign-mistress, queen; so often = adj.: urbs; Roma, imperial Rome; secures, i.e. the fasces. Cf. domus, II. 3. a lady of the imperial family; the empress. (poet.) a mistress, sweetheart; sts. a wife. 5. a lady patron, patroness.

dŏmĭnans, ntis, part. from dominor. As adj. ruling, bearing sway; overpowering: verba, (a) prevailing, i.e. in everyday use, common; (b) literal, unmetaphorical words (cf. κύρια ὀνόματα). Compar. dominantior. As subst. dŏminans, ntis, m. a despot.

dŏmĭnārĭē, old infin. from dominor.

dŏmĭnātĭo, ōnis, f. [dominor], rule, dominion; esp. (in a bad sense), absolute power, despotism, tyranny, overbearing conduct, lordship.

dŏmĭnātor, ōris, m. [id.], a ruler, lord.

dŏmĭnātrix, tricis, f. [dominator], a female ruler, mistress.

(1) dŏmĭnātus, a, um, perf. part. from dominor.

(2) dŏmĭnātus, ūs, m. [dominor], absolute power, despotism, tyranny, sovereignty.

dŏmĭnium, ii, n. [dominus], 1. a feast, banquet. 2. right of ownership, property.

dŏmĭnor, āri, ātus sum, [dominus], intrans. dep. be lord and master, have dominion, bear rule or sway as conqueror, sovereign, etc.; rule, reign, lord it, domineer. Poet. used passively = domus antiqua heu quam dispari Dominare domino!

dŏminus, i, m. [Sanscr. root DAM-, tame; damanas, a subduer, tamer; cf. δαμάω], I. 1. a master, lord, sovereign, ruler; a tyrant, despot. 2. a master of a house; proprietor, owner, lord: navis, the shipowner: convivii, or epuli, or absol., the entertainer, host. 3. the sovereign, the emperor (a title declined by Augustus and Tiberius); edictum domini deique nostri; hence (poet.) = aureus, a gold coin stamped with the emperor's head. 4. a rich patron: sed tener et niveus puris. . . Servatur domino. Often as a courtesy title (cf. Monsieur, mein Herr, Signor, etc.): hospitis adfectu dominum regemque salutat. II. (in app. = adj.) having absolute power; sovereign, imperial: urbs; Roma; secures, i.e. the fasces; dominas manus inicere, privileged, possessing rights of ownership; hasta, the lordly spear; as a symbol of a public auction, which conferred right of absolute ownership (dominium) on the buyer. Cf. hasta.

(1) Dŏmĭtĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Domitius, or the Emperor Domitian.

(2) Dŏmĭtĭānus, i, m. T. Flavius Domitianus, younger son of Vespasian, born October A.D. 51; Roman Emperor A.D. 81-96.

Dŏmĭtius, ii, m. a Roman gentile name. The most famous of the gens were Cn. Domitius Aenobarbus, tribune of the plebs, B.C. 104; and L. Domitius Aenobarbus, brother-in-law of M. Cato, a devoted partisan of the aristocracy, consul B.C. 54. In the civil war he went over to Pompey, and fell, fighting for him, at the battle of Pharsalus, B.C. 48.

dŏmĭto, āre, [freq. domo], trans. v. tame, break in.

dŏmĭtor, ōris, m. [domo], 1. a tamer, breaker. 2. a subduer, conqueror.

dŏmĭtrix, ĭcis, f. [domitor], she who tames or subdues.

(1) dŏmĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from domo.

(2) dŏmĭtus, ūs, m. [domo], a taming.

domnus, i, m. sync. for dominus.

dŏmo, āre, ŭi, ĭtum, [Sanscr. root DAM-; cf. δαμάω, dominus], 1. tame, break in, train: tigrides tumidosque leones. 2. subdue, conquer, vanquish, overcome. 3. (poet.) form, fashion, mold; crush, press.

dŏmŭs, ūs (-i only in comic poets, and locat.), 2d and 4th decl. dat. sing. dŏmŭi or dŏmo, abl. dŏmō, rarely dŏmū. Pl. nom. dŏmūs, gen. dŏmŭum or dŏmōrum, acc. dŏmōs or dŏmūs, dat. and abl. dŏmĭbus, f. [root DAM-; Sanscr. damas, house; cf. δέμω, δόμος], I. a house, home. Dŏmi, locat. at home, in the house: domi meae, at my house. Dŏmō, from home, out of the house; rarely = domi. Dŏmum (dŏmōs), homewards, home, to the house. II. (meton.) 1. any building; an abode, dwelling, home, mansion, residence. 2. one's native place, country, home. Hence, domi militiaeque, at home and in the field, at home and abroad; belli domique, in peace and in war. 3. a household, family, race: saevam Iliopis domum. 4. a philosophic school: Socratica.

dōnārium, ii, n. [donum], 1. the part of the temple where the offerings were kept, a treasure-chamber. 2. a shrine, sanctuary. 3. a votive offering.

dōnātĭo, ōnis, f. [dono], a presenting, donation; a gift, reward.

dōnātīvum, i, n. [id.], a largess, gratuity, bestowed on the soldiers by the emperor.

dōnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from dono, 1. given, presented. 2. presented with a gift.

dōnec, conj. [shortened form of donicum], 1. as long as, while. 2. until, till, up to the last moment that.

dōnĭcum, conj. [doni-, adj. form from root diu-s (see diu, dies), and conj. cum, till the time when], = donec.

dōnĭqué, conj. = donec.

dōno, āre, āvi, ātum, [donum], trans. v. I. 1. give, bestow, confer, present; grant, vouchsafe: (poet. with Gk. infin.) loricam donat habere viro (cf. δώκεν ἀγεῖν). 2. (fig.) give up, yield, surrender. II. 1. remit, forego (a debt, obligation, etc.): mercedes annuas conductoribus. 2. give up, compromise: negotium. 3. forgive, pardon: culpam precibus, cf. condono, II. 2. III. (aliquem aliqua re), present a person with something as a gift: hunc civitate donārunt; cras donaberis haedo. In Terence with double acc.: egone pro hoc te nuntio quid donem?

dōnum, i, n. [do], 1. a gift, present; a prize. 2. a votive offering, sacrifice.

Dōnūsa, ae, f. one of the Sporades Insulae, in the Aegean, near Naxos; called viridis on account of its green marble.

‡ dorcăs, ădis, f. [δορκάς], a gazelle, antelope.

Dorceus, ei, m. [δορκεύς, quick sight], one of Actaeon's hounds.

Dōres, um, m. pl. the Dorians, one of the four Hellenic races. Their conquest of the Peloponnese under the Heraclidae is placed about B.C. 1104.

Dōrĭcus, a, um, adj. 1. of the Dorians, Doric. 2. (meton.) Grecian, Greek.

Dōris, ĭdis, f. I. 1. a sea-nymph, wife of Nereus. 2. a Nereid. 3. (meton.) the sea. II. 1. a country in Hellas, between Thessaly, Locris, and Phocis, the home of the Dorians. 2. a district in the S. W. of Asia Minor, consisting of the Doric settlements there and in the adjacent islands.

Dōrĭus, a, um, adj. Dorian: carmen, i.e. martial music.

dormĭo, fre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, [Sanscr. DRA-, sleep; cf. δαρθάνω], intrans. v. I. sleep, slumber. Used transitively in 3 pers. pass.: tota mihi dormitur hiemps, I sleep throughout the winter. II. (fig.) 1. be at ease, rest, do nothing. 2. be careless, feel secure or safe.

dormĭto, āre, āvi, [freq. dormio], intrans. v. 1. be drowsy or sleepy, fall asleep, nap, doze. 2. (poet., of a lamp) hang fire, flag.

dormītor, ōris, m. [id.], a sleeper.

dormītōrĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], of or for sleeping.

dorsum, i, n. [cf. δειρή, δέρη, neck], 1. the back of an animal, and (poet.) of a man. 2. a ridge of a mountain, rock, etc.: iugi; duplici dentalia dorso, a double-backed share-beam.

dōs, dōtis, f. [do], 1. a marriage portion, dowry. 2. a gift, endowment, quality, qualification, talent, ornament. In pl., natural gifts, advantages, accomplishments; (fig.) delights: silvarum, i.e. the chase.

Dossennus, Dorsennus, (-ōnus), i, m. I. the conventional glutton in the Atellan plays. II. (meton.) a cadging sharper, Hor. Ep. ii. 1. 173.

dōtālis, e, adj. [dos], of or belonging to a marriage portion or dowry; brought in dowry.

dōtātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from doto. As adj. well endowed, richly gifted, dowered; well furnished, provided. Superl. dotatissimus.

(1) dōto, āre, āvi, ātum, [dos], trans. v. endow, portion.

(2) Dōtō, ūs, f. [Δωτώ], a sea-nymph.

‡ drachma (drachŭma), ae, f. [δραχμή], 1. a drachma or drachm; a Greek silver coin. The Attic drachma contained 6 obols, and was of about the same value as a Roman denarius (9½d. of our money). The Aeginetan was worth about 1s. 1½d. 2. (as a weight) the eighth part of an uncia.

‡ (1) Drăcō, ōnis, m. [δράκων], I. a serpent; a dragon. II. (meton.) 1. a cohort's standard. 2. a hot-water boiler. 3. the name of a constellation.

(2) Drăcō, ōnis, m. the Athenian lawgiver (about B.C. 621).

drăcōnī-gĕna, ae, m. f. [draco, gigno], serpent-born, dragon-born: urbs, i.e. Thebes.

Drĕpănă, ōrum, n. pl., (-ē, ōs, f.; -um, i, n.), [δρέπανον, a sickle], a seaport in the N.W. of Sicily, now Trapani.

Drĕpănītānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Drepanum. In masc. pl., the men of Drepanum.

• ‡ drŏmās, ădis, m. [δρομάς, runner], 1. a dromedary. 2. the name of a hound.

‡ drŏmŏs, i, m. [δρόμος], a place for running; esp. the race-course near Sparta.

‡ drōpax, ăcis, m. [δρώπαξ], a pitch-plaister used as a depilatory.

Drŭentĭa, ae, f. a river of Gallia Narbonensis, now the Durance.

Drŭĭdēs, um (-ae, ārum), m. pl. the Druids, an ancient priestly caste in Gaul and Britain.

Drūsīānus (-sīnus), a, um, adj. of or pertaining to a Drusus: fossa, a canal made by Nero Claudius Drusus from the Rhine to the Yssel, communicating with the North Sea.

Drūsilla, ae, f. the name of several females of the Livia gens.

Drūsus, i, m. a surname of the Livia gens. The most famous were, 1. M. Livius Drusus, tribune of the plebs with C. Gracchus, B.C. 122. 2. his son of the same name, an eloquent orator, tribune of the plebs B.C. 91. 3. Nero Claudius Drusus, son of Livia, the wife of Augustus, born B.C. 38. He was younger brother of the Emperor Tiberius, along with whom he defeated the Raeti and Vindelici, B.C. 15.

Dryădēs, um, dat. Dryădăsĭn, f. pl. [Δρυάδες], wood-nymphs, Dryads. In sing. Dryăs, ădis.

Dryantĭdēs, ae, m. patron. a son of Dryas, king of Thrace; esp. Lycurgus.

(1) Dryās, antis, m. 1. a king of Thrace, father of Lycurgus. 2. one of the Lapithae. 3. one of the Calydonian hunters.

(2) Dryăs, ădis, f. [δρυας], a wood-nymph, Dryad.

Drȳmō, ūs, f. a sea-nymph.

Dryŏpē, ēs, f. 1. the mother of Amphissus by Apollo. 2. the mother of Tarquitus.

Dryŏpes, um, m. an ancient people of Epirus. In sing. Dryops, ŏpis, m.

dūbĭē, adv. [dubius], doubtfully, dubiously. Haud dubie, undoubtedly, unmistakeably, positively.

dūbĭētas, ātis, f. [id.], doubt, uncertainty.

Dūbis, is, m. a river of Gaul, rising in Mt. Jura, now the Doubs.

dūbĭtābĭlis, e, adj. [dubito], that may be doubted, doubtful, questionable.

dūbĭtans, ntis, part. from dubito.

dūbĭtanter, adv. [dubitans], doubtingly, hesitatingly.

dūbĭtātĭo, ōnis, f. [dubito], 1. a wavering in judgment, a doubting; uncertainty, doubt, deliberation. 2. hesitation, irresolution, delay, demur: nulla interposita dubitatione, without further ado, promptly.

dūbĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [? for duhibeo, freq. from duhibeo, (duo, habeo), have doubts; cf. δοιάζω], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. 1. waver in judgment or opinion, be uncertain, be in doubt, doubt, question, have misgivings. 2. (fig. of things) be doubtful, uncertain: si fortuna dubitabit, i.e. shall be unfavourable (euphem.). II. be irresolute, waver, hesitate, delay, scruple. (When dubitare means to doubt (that so-and-so is the case), the regular construction is with quin and the subj., if the sentence is negative, or interrogative, which is virtually negative. The acc. and infin. is rare before Nepos. But when dubitare means to hesitate or scruple (about a course of action), and the sentence is negative, or virtually negative, the infinitive generally follows). B. (trans.) (in class. prose only with neut. pron.) I. doubt, question: dicta illaud dubitanda refert. II. (meton.) reflect upon, ponder, weigh, consider, deliberate: percipe quid dubitem, what I am thinking of; dubitaverat Augustus Germanicum rei Romanae imponere, had had thoughts of putting.

dŭ-b-ĭus, a, um, adj. [duo-, with parasitic b], I. moving in two directions alternately, restless, fluctuating: fluctūs. II. (fig.) 1. wavering in opinion, doubtful, uncertain, (with locat. or gen. of relation) animi; vitae. 2. irresolute, undecided, undetermined, hesitating. 3. that is doubted of, not sure, doubtful, dubious, uncertain, indecisive. Dubium est, it is doubtful, uncertain, undecided. As subst. dŭbium, ĭi, n. a thing doubtful, doubt: in dubium vocare, to be doubtful, call in question; in dubium venire, to come into doubt, be doubted, disputed, questioned; in dubio esse, to be in doubt, in question, undetermined; procul dubio, sine dubio, without doubt, undoubtedly, assuredly, unreservedly, doubtless. III. (meton.) 1. not to be trusted, dangerous, perilous, critical, precarious: mare; tempora. In dubio esse, to be in danger. In dubium venire, to come into danger, be imperilled. As subst. dŭbia, ōrum, n. pl., perilous circumstances; perplexity. 2. (poet.) exposed to peril, in danger: dubiam rege, navita, pinum. 3. manifold, various: cena, i.e. distracting from its variety, one of many courses. 4. (poet.) fitful, uncertain, struggling: lux; fulgor solis; dubiae confinia noctis, i.e. twilight.

dūcātus, ūs, m. [dux], military leadership, command.

dūcēnārĭus, a, um, adj. [duceni], containing two hundred; having a fortune of, or receiving a salary of, 200,000 sesterces.

dūcēni, ae, a, gen. ducenūm, num. distrib. adj. two hundred each; two hundred.

dūcentēsĭma, ae, f. (sc. pars), [ducenti], the two-hundredth part; (as a tax) one-half per cent.

dūcenti, ae, a, contr. gen. ducentūm, [duo; centum], two hundred: poet. meton. over and over again.

dūco, ĕre, duxi, ductum, im perat. dūc, [root DUK-, make to move, draw], trans. v. I. 1. lead, conduct, guide; bring forward, fetch, bring, carry, take. Duco me, I betake myself, go. 2. draw, draw forth, draw in, strain, pull, haul; move, ply: ensem vaginā; ilia; vela; remos; bracchia. 3. draw in, inhale; suck, quaff: spiritum; tura naribus; ubera; sucos nectaris. 4. (legal techn. t.) (a) take, carry off, drag a person (into court, to prison, punishment, slavery, etc.); (b) uxorem ducere, to marry; sts. with in matrimonium. 5. (of a general or commanding officer) cause to march, lead; command: exercitum; primum pilum, i.e. be primi pili centurio; see primipilus; ordinem ducere, to be a military officer, hold a commission, i.e. to be a centurion. Sts. absol., march: Fabius medius inter hostium agmen utrumque Romam iugis ducebat. Also, of the troops that form the van, march in front of the column, lead the van. 6. take the lead in anything, be leader; stand in the forefront of, be chief, first in, head: familiam. 7. lead up, conduct, marshal: pompam; funus; choros. 8. form, fashion, shape, mould, construct, make, produce: vivos vultus de marmore; fossam; cuneum, beat or hammer out, forge, trace the line of a trench, trench, etc., carry on, extend, build; cf. Gk. ἐλαύνειν τεῖχος. 9. admit, receive, take, get, acquire: cicatricem; rimam; pallorem, i.e. grow pale. II. (fig.) 1. lead, conduct, guide, draw. 2. order, manage: ludos et inania munera. 3. deduce, derive. 4. entice, attract, induce, allure, charm, influence; (in a bad sense) take in, deceive; poet. with supine; cessatum ducere curam, to charm their care to (take its) rest. 5. draw out, protract, prolong, defer, delay, put off. 6. pass (time), spend; enjoy: aetatem; otia. 7. (business techn. t.) calculate, compute, reckon, estimate. Hence, (meton.) rationem alicuius ducere, have regard to, take into account: commodi; salutis meae. III. (meton.) 1. draw by lot. 2. draw forth, compose (metaph. from spinning): forte epos. 3. reckon, consider, deem, hold, account, esteem, regard, judge: aliquem in numero hostium; ad eas res confidentias biennium sibi satis esse duxerunt.

ductilis, e, adj. that admits of being drawn out or forth, ductile (of metals or water): flumen, channelled.

ducto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. duco] trans. v. I. 1. lead, conduct, draw. 2. take home. II. (fig.) deceive.

ductor, ōris, m. [duco], a leader, commander, general, chief; guide: classis, pilot.

(1) ductus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from duco.

(2) ductus, ūs, m. [duco]. I. 1. a leading, conducting, bringing. 2. guidance, leadership. 3. military lead, command, generalship; often with auspicium, q.v. II. 1. the act of drawing out in length, constructing. 2. an outline. 3. a trailing, length of trail (of a serpent).

dūdum, adv. [for diu-dum]. 1. some time since; a short time since, just now, but lately: ipsa egomet dudum Beroen digressa reliqui. 2. with ut or cum, to denote time immediately past or present: just as, just now . . . when. 3. long, long since, for a long while. Only in combinations: haud dudum, not so very long ago, i.e. just now: quam dudum, how long: iam dudum, q.v.

dŭellator, dŭellĭcōsus, dŭellĭcus, old forms of bellator, bellicosus, bellicus.

Dŭellĭus (Dūĭlĭus, Dūlĭus), ĭi, m. [duellum = bellum], C. Duellius, consul B.C. 260, gained the first naval victory over the Carthaginians, commemorated by the Columna Rostrata in the forum.

Dŭellōna, ae, f. old form of Bellona.

dŭellum, i, n. old form of bellum, [duo. So duis (dvis) becomes bis; dvonus bonus].

dŭim, is, it; pl. duint; old pres. subj. of do, dare = dem, des, det, etc.

dŭis, 1. see duim. 2. old form of bis. Cf. duellum = bellum.

dulcĕ, neut. of dulcis, = adv., sweetly, charmingly.

dulcēdo, ĭnis, f. [dulcis], 1. sweetness. 2. (fig.) pleasantness, agreeableness, delightfulness, charm, sweets.

dulcesco, ĕre, dulcŭi, [id.], incept. v. become sweet.

dulcĭārius, a, um, adj. [id.], having to do with confectionery.

dulcĭ-lŏquus, a, um, adj. [dulcis; loquor], sweetly speaking.

dulcis, e, adj. [? for gulcis, by metathesis; cf. γυκύς. So pulmo, πλεύμων]. 1. sweet (in taste), pleasant. As subst. dulcĕ, is, n. a sweet drink, julep, syrup: lymphamque roganti Dulce dedit. 2. (fig.) pleasant, agreeable, delightful, charming, dear, favourite. Compar. dulcior; superl. dulcissimus.

dulcĭtĕr, adv. [dulcis], sweetly, pleasantly, agreeably, delightfully. Compar. dulcius; superl. dulcissime.

dulcĭtūdo, ĭnis, f. [id.], sweetness, pleasantness, charm.

Dūlĭchĭum, ĭi, n. (-a, ae, f., sc. insula), an island of the Ionian Sea, S. of Ithaca, belonging to Ulysses.

Dūlĭchĭus, a, um, adj. of or from Dulichium: dux, i.e. Ulysses; or (poet.) of or belonging to Ulysses.

dum, temp. conj. [for dium, acc. of dias = dies; cf. diu], lit. the day through, the while. 1. while, whilst, during the time in which, as long as: with indic., when it connects two periods of time of equal length; and usually with (historic) pres. indic. even when past time is referred to: haec feci, dum licuit; dum loquor, hora fugit; dum ea Romani parant, iam Saguntum oppugnabatur. 2. (as an affix) now, yet: (a) with etiam, non, ne, nec, nihil, vix, etc. 3. (as an enclitic; freq. in comic poets with imperat.) now, just, now then; e.g. adesdum, agedum, tacedum. II. until, until that; with indic., unless in oratio obliqua, or unless some idea of expectation, purpose, or watching is introduced, when the subj. proper to final clauses is used. III. so long as, if so be that, provided that, if only; always with subj., and in negative clauses joined with nē.

dūmētum (-ectum), i, n. [dumus], a thicket, bush, brake.

dum-mŏdŏ, conj. if only, provided that, so long as: dummodo pugnando superem, tu vince loquendo.

Dumnŏrix, ŏrĭgis, m. a chief of the Aedui, brother of Divitiacus.

dūmōsus, a, um, adj. [dumus]. full of thickets, bushy, thick set with brushwood.

dum-taxat (dun-), adv. [dum, taxat (taxo), while one touches, or while one estimates], 1. at any rate, so far. 2. merely, only, simply, exactly. 3. (rarely = dummodo) in so far as, provided that.

dūmus, i, m. [for dusmus = densimus; cf. densus, δασύς], a thornbush, bramble, thicket; brushwood.

dŭŏ, ae, ō, contr. gen. dūm, acc. duo or duos, num. adj. [δύο], two.

[dŭō-dē-, minus two; e.g. duodē-viginti, eighteen.] dŭō-dēcĭens (-iēs), num. adv. twelve times.

dŭō-dēcim, num. adj. indecl. [decem], twelve: duodecim (XII.) Tabulae, the famous code of laws drawn up by the first decemvirs, B.C. 451.

dŭō-dēcĭmus, a, um, num. adj. the twelfth.

dŭō-dēni, ae, a, distrib. num. adj. twelve apiece, twelve each; (poet.) twelve.

dŭōdē-dē-quādrāgēsĭmus, a, um, num. adj. (40th – 2), thirty-eighth.

dŭōdē-dē-quādrāginta, num. adj. indecl. thirty-eight.

dŭō-dē-tricĭens, num. adv. twenty-eight times.

dŭō-dē-trīginta, num. adj. in decl. twenty-eight.

dŭō-dē-vīcēni, ae, a, distrib. num. adj. eighteen each.

dŭō-dē-vīcēsĭmus (-vīgēs-), a, um, num. adj. eighteenth.

dŭō-et-vīcēsĭmāni, ōrum, m. pl. [duo-et-vicesimus], soldiers of the twenty-second legion.

dŭō-et-vīcēsĭmus, a, um, num. adj. twenty-second.

dŭō-dē-vīginti, num. adj. indecl. eighteen.

duonus, a, um, old form of bonus. Cf. duellum, bellum.

dŭō-vĭr, vĭri, m., mostly in pl. dŭōvĭri, less correctly dūumvĭri, (written II. vir, II. viri), a duumvir; one of a commission or board of two for various purposes; e.g. duumviri sacrorum, the board who had charge of the Sibylline books; their number was subsequently raised to fifteen; duumviri viri decundo, the chief magistrates in provincial towns.

dŭplex (dūplex), plĭcis, abl. sing. duplicī; duplice in Hor., [duo; plic-o], I. 1. two-fold, double: murus; acies; rates, i.e. a pair of rafts; tabellae, folding tablets, consisting of two leaves joined by a hinge, wire, or string. 2. (fig.) (a) double-faced, double-tongued; false, wily; (b) ambiguous, equivocal. II. (meton.) 1. cloven, split, folded in two, double. 2. (poet.) (of things in pairs) both: palmae. 3. folded in two (for warmth or convenience): amiculum; pannus. See Rich, Dict. Ant. diplois and pallium.

duplĭcārius, ĭi, m. [duplex], a soldier who receives double pay as a reward.

duplĭcĭter, adv. [id.], doubly, on two accounts.

duplĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, [duplex], trans. v. I. 1. double. 2. (fig.) repeat, combine: verba, (a) repeat; (b) form compounds. II. (meton.) 1. enlarge, augment, increase. 2. (poet.) double up; bow, bend double.

duplus, a, um, adj. [duo; cf. Gk. ending -πλοος, διπλόος, διπλοῦς], double, twice as large, twice as much. As subst. duplum, i, n. double, twice as much.

dūpondĭus, ĭi, m., (-ĭum, ĭi, n.), (dipond-), [duo; pondus], the sum of two asses; a coin value two asses.

dūrābĭlis, e, adj. [duro], durable, lasting. Compar. durabilior.

dūr-ăcĭnus, a, um, adj. [durus; acinus], hard-berried.

dūrāmen, ĭnis, n. [duro], the hardening: aquarum, the power which makes water congeal.

‡ dūrătĕus, a, um, adj. [δουράτεος], wooden: equus, i.e. the Trojan horse.

dūrē, adv. [durus], 1. hardly, stiffly, clumsily, awkwardly. 2. harshly, roughly, sternly. Compar. durius.

dūresco, ĕre, ŭi, [id.], incept. v. grow hard, harden, stiffen.

dūrēta, ae, f. [Spanish word], a wooden bathing-tub.

dūrĭtas, ātis, f. [durus], hardness, harshness.

dūrĭtĕr, adv. [id.], 1. hardly, stiffly, clumsily, uncouthly. 2. rigorously, austerely. 3. harshly, roughly, coarsely, rudely, sternly, cruelly: vitae suae durius consulere, give one's self no quarter, contemplate suicide. 4. hardly, unfavourably.

dūrĭtĭa, ae, (-ēs, ēi), f. [id.], I. hardness. II. (fig.) 1. hardness of living, austerity, rigour. 2. harshness, severity. 3. absence of feeling, insensibility, callousness.

dūrĭuscŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. durus], somewhat rough or harsh.

dūro, āre, āvi, ātum, [durus], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. 1. harden, make hard. 2. (meton.) cure, preserve: uvam fumo. II. (fig.) 1. harden with use, labour, etc.; make hardy, inure, brace: durato corde, with invincible fortitude. 2. render callous or insensible, harden, dull, blunt. 3. hold out against, endure: laborem; aequor. B. (intrans.) I. become hard: tum durare solum . . . Coeperit. II. (fig.) 1. be hard, callous, insensible, harsh, stern; steel or harden one's self. 2. be hardened, inured; hold out, endure, persevere: durate, ac vosmet rebus servate secundis. 3. continue in existence, hold out, last, stay, remain: totidem per annos: (poet. with infin.) ut vivere durent, that they may live on. 4. (of space, in Tacitus) extend: colles.

Dūrocortŏrum, i, n. the capital of the Remi in Gallia Belgica, now Rheims.

dūrus, a, um, adj. I. hard (to the touch); tough. II. (meton.) 1. harsh to the taste, rough: durum Bacchi domitura saporem. 2. harsh to the ear, jarring. III. (fig.) 1. harsh, rough, rude, brusque, uncultivated, uncouth, rugged; sts. (in a good sense) hardy, vigorous, tough. 2. hard-hearted, unfeeling, severe, stern, cruel, pitiless, unyielding, inflexible. 3. shameless, brazen, impudent: duri puer oris et audax. 4. hard, toilsome, fatiguing, grievous to be borne, difficult, painful, disagreeable; adverse, unfortunate: si quid erat durius, if things went at all hardly, if any untoward emergency arose. Durum, neut. sing., is sts. used as an interjection. As subst. dura, ōrum, n. pl. hardships, difficulties. 5. jarring to the feelings, harsh, far-fetched (of words and derivations). Cic. Compar. durior; superl. durissimus.

dusmōsus, duumus. See dumosus, dumus.

dŭumvir, ĭ, m. See duovir.

dŭumvirātus, ūs, m. the office of a duumvir, duumvirate.

dŭumviri. See duovir.

dux, dŭcis, m. f. [root DUC-; cf. duco], I. 1. a leader, guide, conductor. 2. a chief, commander, general, captain, officer. II. (meton.) 1. a chieftain, chief, head: armenti, i.e. the bull: gregis, i.e. the ram. 2. a lord, master, ruler: Auster, Dux inquieti turbidus Hadriae. 3. a prince; the emperor: te duce, Caesar; materiam sibi ducis indulgentia quaerit.

duxti = duxisti. See duco.

Dȳmael, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Dyme, or Dymae, a town in the W. of Achaia.

Dȳmantis, ĭdis, f. adj. of Dymas: proles, i.e. Hecuba. As subst. the daughter of Dymas, i.e. Hecuba.

Dȳmās, antis, m. the father of Hecuba.

‡ dynastēs, ae, m. [δυνάστης], 1. a petty prince, chieftain, ruler, or governor. 2. a grandee, potentate (of the triumvirs at Rome).

Dyrrhăchĭum (Dyrrăchĭum), ĭi, n. a coast town in Greek Illyria, formerly called Epidamnus, now Durazzo ‡ dysĕrōs, ōtis, adj. [δύσερως], 1. unfortunate in love. 2. desperately in love.

‡ Dyspăris, ĭdis, m. [Δύσπαρις], Paris of ill-omened name.

E, e, indecl. n. or f., the fifth letter of the Latin alphabet.

ē, prep. See ex.

ē, interj. archaic = ah!

ēă. See is, ea, id.

ēădem. See idem.

ĕăpropter, adv. = propterea, q.v.

ĕapse. See ipse.

ĕă-tĕnus, adv. [is], up to that point, so far; to such a degree.

‡ ĕbĕnus (hĕb-), i, f., m. in Virg., [ἔβενος], the ebony-tree, ebony.

ē-bĭbo, bĭbĕre, bĭbi, bĭbĭtum, trans. v. I. drink up, drain, drink dry: Nestoris annos, drink as many cyathi as Nestor lived years. II. (meton.) absorb. III. (fig.) squander.

ē-blandĭor, īri, ītus, sum, trans. dep. coax out of one; obtain by coaxing or flattery, worm out of one.

ēblanditus, a, um, perf. part. from eblandior used passively: suffragia.

Eboracum (Ebur-), i, n. the capital of the Brigantes in Britain, now York.

ēbrĭĕtas, ātis, f. [ebrius], drunkenness.

ēbrĭōsĭtas, ātis, f. [ebriosus], boozing, sottishness.

ēbrĭōsus, a, um, adj. [ebrius], 1. given to drinking, boozy, lushy, sottish. As subst. ēbrĭōsus, i, m. a toper, sot. 2. making drunk, intoxicating. 3. full of liquor, juicy.

ēbrĭus, a, um, adj. I. 1. that has drunk enough. 2. drunk, intoxicated, tipsy. II. (meton.) 1. soaked, saturated, drenched. 2. abundantly filled, flush, plentiful. III. (fig.) intoxicated, elated: dulci fortunā; dulcis pueri ebrios ocellos, love-laden, swimming, brimming.

ē-bullĭo, īre, īvi (ĭi), intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. bubble forth, 2. (fig.) come to the surface, crop out or up. 3. (slang term) breathe one's last, pop off. B. (trans.) 1. bubble forth, gurgle out: animam. 2. (fig.) vapour about, spout.

ĕbŭlum, i, n. (-us, i, m.), dwarf-elder.

ĕbŭr, ŏris, n. I. ivory. II. (meton. of things made of ivory), 1. (a) a statue; (b) an ivory flute (tibia); (c) a scabbard; (d) the curule chair; (e) a dice-box. 2. (poet., pars pro toto) an elephant. Cf. vellus.

ĕburnĕŏlus, a, um, adj. [dim. eburneus], of ivory.

ĕburnĕus (ĕburnus), a, um, adj. [ebur], 1. of ivory, ivory: ensis, i.e. with an ivory hilt or scabbard. 2. white as ivory: cervix; brachia.

Eburōnes, um, m. pl. a German tribe situated amongst the Belgae, between the Rhine and the Mosa (Meuse).

Eburovices, um, m. pl. a branch of the Aulerci. Their name survives in Evreux.

Ĕbūsŏs (-us), i, f. one of the Pityusae Iae., now Iviza or Yvica.

ē-castor, interj. [(3) e; Castor], so help me, Castor! Ellipt. = me, Castor, iuves. Cf. edepol.

Ecbătāna, ōrum, n. pl., the capital of Media, now Hamadan.

ecca, eccam. See ecce.

eccĕ, demonstr. adv. [en-ce], 1. lo! see! behold! with nom. or acc. In colloq. Latin combined with demonstratives is, ille, iste; e.g. ecca, eccum, eccam, etc.; eccilla, eccillum, etc.; eccistam, etc. 2. (to denote that something is present) here: ecce me, here I am. 3. (to mark a transition) when lo and behold; then, thereupon: ecce tibi, here you have . . . then mark you. Cf. use of καὶ μὴν in Greek.

eccĕre (ĕccĕre), interj. [ecce, and abl. of res], there! It denotes surprise.

eccillam, eccillum, eccistam. See ecce.

‡ ecclēsĭa, ae, f. [ἐκκλησία], 1. an assembly. 2. a Christian Church.

‡ ecdĭcus, i, m. [ἔκδικος], a public advocate, state-counsel, syndic, = cognitor civitatis.

ĕcĕre. See eccere.

ecfātus, ecfĕro, ecfĭo, ecfrēnātē, etc. See eff-.

‡ ĕchĕnēis, ĭdis, f. [ἐχενηΐς, holding ships back], the sucking fish, remora (supposed to have the power of stopping a vessel).

‡ ĕchĭdna, ae, f. [ἔχιδνα], 1. an adder, viper. 2. the Lernaean Hydra, killed by Hercules. 3. a monster, half woman, half serpent, mother of Cerberus.

Ĕchĭdnaeus (-ēus), a, um, adj. of Echidna: canis, i.e. Cerberus.

Ĕchīnădes, um, f. pl. a group of small islands in the Ionian Sea off the coast of Acarnania at the mouth of the Achelous.

‡ ĕchīnus, i, m. [ἐχῖνος], I. 1. a hedgehog. 2. a sea-urchin. II. (meton.) 1. a burr. 2. a vessel shaped like the shell of a sea-urchin, a pitcher or rinsing bowl; or, perhaps, a cruet or caster.

Ĕchĭon, ŏnis, m. 1. one of the Argonauts, son of Mercury. 2. one of the warriors who sprang from the dragon's teeth sown by Cadmus, and aided Cadmus in building Thebes; he was husband of Agave and father of Pentheus.

Ēchĭŏnĭdes, ae, m. patron. the son of Echion, i.e. Pentheus.

Ĕchĭŏnĭus, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to Echion, Echion's. 2. of or belonging to Echion, son-in-law of Cadmus; hence, Cadmean, Theban.

‡ Ēchō, ūs, f. [ἠχώ], I. a nymph who pined for Narcissus till nothing remained of her but her voice. II. echo, reflected sound.

‡ eclŏga, ae, f. [ἐκλογή], 1. a choice selection, album. 2. a collection of short poems.

ec-quando, interrog. adv. [ec-ce + quando], ever, at any time?

ec-qui, ecquae (quă), ecquod, interrog. pronom. adj. [ecce + qui], is there any who? any at all?

ec-quis, ecquid, interrog. pronom. subst. [ec-ce + quis], is there who? is there any one, anything? does anybody, anything? any-sts. with suffix -nam.—Adverbial forms: (a) ecquid, whether? do? does? etc., in emphatic questions. (b) ecquo, anywhither? anywhere?

ec-quo. See ecquis.

‡ ecthlipsis, is, f. [ἔκθλιψις], the elision of final m before a consonant.

ĕcŭlĕus. See equuleus.

ĕcŭs, i. See equus.

ēdācĭtas, ātis, f. [edax], gluttony, greediness.

ēdax, ācis, adj. [(1) edo], 1. given to eating, gluttonous, greedy, rapacious. 2. (fig.) devouring, destroying, corroding, gnawing, carking: poet. with gen.; rerum.

ēdēpol, interj. See Pollux and ecastor.

ēdĕra, ēdĕrĭger, ēdĕrōsus. See hed-.

Ēdessa, ae, 1. a city of Mesopotamia, the capital of Osroëne, the Ur of the Old Test. 2. a city of Macedonia.

ē-dīco, ōre, dixi, dictum, imperat. edice, Virg., trans. and intrans. v. I. 1. (techn. t. of magistrates), declare, publish, make known, proclaim, give official notice of; issue a proclamation. 2. (of the praetor urbanus, on entering office), make a statement of the principles on which he intended to administer justice. II. (meton.) make known, declare, appoint, establish, ordain, order, recommend.

ēdictum, i, n. [edico], I. 1. a proclamation, official notice, edict, manifesto (of the Roman magistrate): ex edicto, by proclamation. 2. the formal statement of the praetor urbanus on his entry into office; see edico, I. 2. These edicts, or bye-laws, being published regularly every year, were called edicta perpetua. See Ramsay, Rom. Ant. p. 243. II. (meton.) 1. an order, command. 2. a playbill, programme.

ēdim, is, It, archaic subj. pres. of (1) edo.

ē-disco, ĕre, dĭdĭci, trans. v. 1. learn by heart, learn in detail or thoroughly. 2. learn, study.

ē-dissĕro, ĕre, rŭi, rtum, trans. v. set forth in full, explain, give an account of, unfold, relate.

ē-disserto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. edissero], set forth in full, explain.

ēdĭtĭcius (-tĭus), a, um, adj. [(2) edo], nominated: iudices, special jurors nominated by the plaintiff, as distinguished from those named by sortitio; cf. (2) edo, I. 6; editio. See Ramsay, Rom. Ant. p. 297.

ēdĭtio, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a putting forth, publishing; edition. 2. a statement, representation. 3. a nomination: tribuum, i.e. of the tribes from which the iudices were to be taken. Cf. editicius; (2) edo, I. 6.

ēdĭtor, ōris, m. [id.], one that puts forth or produces, an author.

ēdĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) edo. As adj. I. high, raised, elevated: editus Austro campus, rising to the south (cf. caelo educere). As subst. ēdĭtum, i, n. a height, elevation. II. (fig.) eminent: viribus editior, superior in strength, stronger.

(1) ēdo, ēdĕre or esse, ēdi, ēsum, [Sanscr. root AD-; cf. ἔδ-ω, ἐσ-θίω], trans. v. I. eat. 2. eat away, prey upon, devour, consume. 3. squander.

(2) ē-do, ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, trans. v. I. 1. give out, put forth, bring forth: animam, breathe out, one's last, expire: edere se, or pass. with reflex. force, to issue forth: (of a river) discharge itself. 2. send out or forth, utter: latratus: murmur. 3. bring forth, produce; beget; geminos Latona; editus in lucem infans: Electram maximus Atlas Edidit, was sire of Mostly in perf. pass. part. ēdĭtus, a, um, begotten, sprung from, descended; with abl. of origin, or prep.: Maecenas atavis edite regibus; edita de magno flumine nympha fui. 4. publish, edit: libros; delere licebit Quod non edideris. 5. set forth (in words), publish, give out, announce, relate, tell, say, declare: ede homini nomen, simul et Romanus an hospes: bella, i.e. sing of, celebrate. 6. (legal and polit. techn. t.) proclaim, represent, give out, declare; nominate, mention, propose: verba: quantum pronluse edidisset deberi, tantum ex edicto dandum erat; socium tibi in huius bonis edidisti Quintium; quaesitorem; tribus, to name the tribes from which the iudices were to be taken in a causa sodaliciorum. Cf. editio, 3; editicius. 7. bring about, produce, effect, cause, make, perform; display, exhibit; exercise, perpetrate: funera ferro; caedem; ludos; gladiatores; exempla cruciatusque in aliquem; scelus in me. III. set high, lift up, raise, elevate: corpus super equum; collis paullulum ex planitie editus.

ē-dōcĕo, ēre, ŭi, ctum. trans. v. teach thoroughly or by heart, instruct, inform in detail, apprise.

ē-dōlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. hew out, make by hewing. 2. (fig.) prepare, finish.

e-dŏmĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from edomo.

ē-dŏmo, āre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. tame or subdue thoroughly, conquer.

Ēdōnus, a, um, adj. of the Edoni; Thracian. As subst. Ēdōni, ōrum, m. pl. the Edoni, a people of Thrace, on the Strymon, votaries of Bacchus.

Ēdōnis, ĭdis, f. adj. Edonian, Thracian. As subst. a Bacchante. [Edōnis, in Lucan.]

ē-dormio, īre, īvi (ĭi), intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) have one's sleep out. B. (trans.) 1. sleep off the effects of: crapulam. 2. sleep out, sleep through: Ilionam, i.e. the part of the sleeping Iliona in the tragedy.

ē-dormisco, ĕre, [incept. edormio], trans. v. sleep off, sleep out.

ēducātĭo, ōnis, f. [(2) educo], a bringing up, rearing, training, education.

ēducātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a bringer up, rearer, trainer. 2. a foster-father. 3. a tutor.

ēducātrix, trīcis, f. [educator], she who brings up, rears, trains, etc.

(1) ē-dūco, ĕre, duxi, ductum, trans. v. I. 1. lead forth, bring or draw out, or forth, draw: educere se, take one's self off, withdraw. 2. (legal techn. t.) bring into court, summon before a magistrate: ad consulem; quisquis erat eductus senator, Metellus duci iubebat, ordered to be taken to prison. 3. (of persons in office) take out with one to one's province, have on one's staff. 4. (military techn. t.) lead out, march out, bring up (troops); sts. absol. of the general, move out, march out. 5. export: equos ex Italiā. II. 1. bring forth, produce, give birth to. 2. bring up, rear; educate; (mostly of bodily nurture). 3. carry upwards, raise to a height; rear, erect, build up; (fig.) extol, exalt; aram sepulcri caelo; mores aureos in astra. 4. pass (time), spend: pios annos.

(2) ē-dūco, āre, āvi, ātum, [(1) educo], trans. v. 1. bring up, rear, train; educate; (chiefly of mental training). 2. (fig.) rear, foster; nourish, support, produce.

ēdūlis, e, adj. [(1) edo], good to eat, eatable, toothsome, palatable. As subst. ēdūlia, ium, n. pl. eatables, victuals.

ē-duro, āre, intrans. v. last out, continue.

ē-durus, a, um, adj. 1. very hard, quite hard. 2. (fig.) harsh, cruel.

Ēētĭon, ōnis, m. the father of Andromache, king of Thebe in Cilicia.

Ēētĭōnēus, a, um, adj. of Eetion.

ef-, in composition = ex; e.g. effarcio, effero.

ef-farcio, (effercio), (ec-f-), ire, rtum, [ec = ex; farcio], trans. v. till out, stuff or stop up, cram.

effātus, a, um, perf. part. from effor. Sts. with pass. meaning, expressed in language, pronounced; defined or designated by the augurs for religious purposes. As subst. effātum, i, n. 1. a prediction. 2. a proposition, axiom.

effectē, adv. [effectus], 1. effectively, in fact. 2. (as interj.), Well said! Hear, hear!

effectĭo, ōnis, f. [efficio], 1. a doing, performing, effecting. 2. an efficient cause.

effector, ōris, m. [id.], an effector, producer, author.

effectrix, trīcis, f. [effector], she who effects, produces, causes.

(1) effectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from efficio. As adj. 1. perfect, complete, thoroughly effective. 2. attained, realised. Neut. Compar. effectius.

(2) effectus, ūs, m. [efficio], 1. accomplishment, execution, performance: effectu carere, to be unsuccessful. 2. effect, result, operation.

effēminātē, adv. effeminately.

effēminātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from effemino. As adj. effeminate, womanish. Compar. effeminatior; superl. effeminatissimus.

ef-fēmino, āre, āvi, ātum, [femina], make womanish or feminine, render effeminate, enervate.

ef-fĕrātus (ecf-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) effero. As adj. wild, savage, uncivilised. Compar. efferatior.

ef-fercio. See effarcio.

effĕrĭtas (ecf-), ātis, f. [efferus], a savage or wild state, savagery.

ef-fero (ecfĕro), ferre, extŭli, ēlātum, [ec = ex; fero], trans. v. I. 1. carry out, bring or carry forth: efferre se, and (poet.) efferre pe-dem, gressum, vestigia, go out, go forth, sally. 2. carry out for burial; bury: anus improba . . . sic est elata; (fig.) meo unius funere elata esset respublica. 3. bring forth, bear, produce. 4. lift up, elevate, raise: aliquem in murum; caput. II. (fig.) 1. set forth, spread abroad, divulge, publish, proclaim, make known. 2. set forth, express, utter, pronounce: animi motus, interprete linguâ. 3. carry too far, carry out of one's self, transport, elate: cunctis ista me laetitiâ extulerunt. In pass. be carried away by one's feelings or passions, be transported, worked up. 4. elevate, extol, exalt, raise, promote, advance. 5. efferre sese, (a) raise or elevate one's self; rise, progress; come to light, be prominent; (b) carry one's self high, be haughty, insolent, proud, elated, boast, run riot. So in pass. efferri, and part. elatus. 6. transfer, copy. 7. support, endure: laborem; or, prps. exert, employ.

(2) ef-fĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [ex; ferus], trans. v. 1. make savage, render wild or fierce, uncivilize: (poet.) aurum, i.e. make weapons of it. 2. exasperate.

effertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from effercio. See effarcio.

ef-fĕrus (ecf-), a, um, adj. [ex; ferus], excessively wild, savage, furious.

ef-fervesco, ĕre, ferbŭi (fervi), [ex; fervesco], incept. v. 1. boil up, boil over, ferment, seethe. 2. grow hot, glow. 3. (fig.) boil with rage, grow violent, break forth.

ef-fervo, ĕre, intrans. v. I. boil up or over. II. (meton.) swarm forth (of bees).

ef-fētus (not -foetus), a, um, adj. 1. that has brought forth young. 2. (meton.) exhausted by bearing. 3. (fig.) exhausted, worn out; past bearing: vires (corporis); veri effeta senectus, powerless to divine, barren of truth (Gk. gen. of respect, or after an adj. expressing want).

efficācitas, ātis, f. [efficax], efficacy, efficiency, power.

efficāciter, adv. [id.], effectually, powerfully. Compar. efficacius.

efficax, ācis, adj. [effĭcio], effectual, acting with effect, efficacious, powerful, almighty, invincible; poet. with infin.; cadus . . . amara Curarum eluere. Compar. efficacior; superl. efficacissimus.

efficiens, ntis, part. from effĭcio. As adj. 1. effecting, effective, efficient. 2. (with gen.) able to effect, produce, or bring about: voluptatis, i.e. the efficient cause of.

efficienter, adv. [id.], efficiently.

efficientia, ae, f. [id.], efficient power, efficiency.

ef-fĭcio, fĭcĕre, fēci, fectum, [ec=ex; facio], trans. v. 1. make completely, complete, accomplish, execute, perform, carry out, effect, render, make, build, form: nil Claudine non efficient manus; iussa parentis; quae res immani corporum magnitudine homines efficit; insula portum Efficit; aliquem consulem, carry through one's election as consul. 2. bring about, bring to pass, cause that, ensure, procure; with ut, nē, rarely quominus, and (poet.) with ellipse of ut: (iumenta) summi ut sint laboris efficiunt, they make them to be capable of the greatest fatigue; efficitur (impers.) ut appareat, it comes to pass, it follows, the result is, that there is seen; hence, there is seen; efficiam posthac ne quemquam voce lacessas. 3. produce, realise, yield: ager plurimum efficit; liciti sunt usque eo quoad se efficere posse arbitrabantur, i.e. to make a profit. 4. make out, show, prove.

effictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from effingo.

effĭĕri, infin. of effio.

effĭgĭes, ēi, (-a, ae, Lucr.), f. [effingo], 1. a likeness, image, portrait, effigy, statue. 2. (fig.) an imitation, copy, symbol, ideal, picture, reflection.

ef-fingo, ĕre, finxi, fictum, [ex; fingo], trans. v. I. 1. form, fashion. 2. (fig.) represent, pourtray, express, give a picture of. II. stroke gently, chafe: manus. III. wipe up, wipe clean: spongiis sanguinem.

ef-fio, fĭĕri, old pass. form from effĭcio.

effĭgĭtātio, ōnis, f. [effligito], an urgent or pressing request; importunity, peremptoriness.

effĭgĭtātus, ūs, m. [id.], an earnest or urgent request.

ef-fĭgito, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. ask for earnestly, request urgently, beg hard: ensem; ut se mitteret.

ef-fĭgo, ĕre, xi, ctum, trans. v. strike dead; kill, destroy.

ef-flo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. blow or breathe out: ignes faucibus; ab ore rosas; animam, breathe one's last, expire. 2. (meton.) say with one's last breath. II. (without obj. acc.) blow or breathe out.

ef-flōresco (ecf-), ĕre, flōrŭi, incept. v. bloom, blossom forth, flourish.

ef-flŭo (ecf-), ĕre, fluxi, intrans. v. I. flow or run out, flow away, escape: (with cogn. acc.): run over with, discharge. II. (meton.) 1. glide, drop, slip: 2. vanish, disappear. III. (fig.) 1. get abroad, ooze out, become known. 2. run to waste; pass away, disappear, vanish: ex animo (mente, pectore), i.e. be forgotten. 3. swoon away, lose consciousness: viso mens aegra efluxit hiatu. 4. melt, dissolve: in lacrimas.

effŭvium, ii, n. [effuo], a flowing out, outflow, outlet.

ef-fŏdio (ecf-, exf-), fŏdĕre, fōdi, fossum, trans. v. 1. dig out, excavate, dig up. 2. scoop out, gouge.

effoeminātus, effoemino. See effe-.

effostus, a, um. See effetus.

ef-for (ecf-), fāri, fātus sum, trans. dep. 1. speak, say, or tell out, utter, pronounce. 2. state (a proposition). 3. (of augurs, relig. techn. t.) define for a sacred purpose, consecrate: templum.

effractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from effringo.

effrēnātē (ecfr-), adv. unrestrainedly, ungovernably, uncontrollably. Compar. effrenatius.

effrēnātio, ōnis, f. ungovernable violence, unbridled fury.

effrēnatus (ecf-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from effreno. As adj. 1. unbridled, without reins. 2. (fig.) uncontrolled, unruly, ungovernable. Compar. effrenatior: superl. effrenatissimus.

effrēnis, e, adj = effrenus.

ef-frēno (ecf-), āre, ātum, trans. v. unbridle, let loose.

ef-frēnus (ecf-), a, um, adj. [ex; frenum], 1. unbridled. 2. (fig.) unrestrained, wild.

ef-fringo, ĕre, frēgi, fractum, trans. and intrans. v. (a) (intrans.) flee away, escape. B. (trans.) 1. flee from, escape, avoid, shun. 2. escape one's notice.

effŭgium, ii, n. [effugio], 1. a fleeing away, flight, escape. 2. a way or means of escape.

ef-fulgĕo, ēre (effulgĕre, Virg.), fulsi, intrans. v. I. shine or gleam forth, glitter. II. (fig.) be conspicuous.

effultus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from effulcio, propped up, supported.

ef-fundo (ecf-), ĕre, fūdi, fūsum, trans. v. I. pour out or forth, shed; carry or drain off water: subitos nimbos, Mart. II. Effundere se, or effundi, pass. reflex., to empty itself, run. III. (meton. of non-fluids) 1. pour out or forth, shower, send or let forth, send in a stream, empty. Effundere se, or effundi, pass. used reflexively, rush in a stream, spread abroad, disperse: agris effusa iuventus. 2. bring forth abundantly, scatter broadcast; fruges Auctumnus. 3. let loose, slacken, let go: habenas; iubam cervice, let it flow, fling it; ungues per lēve, let the nails pass smoothly over the even surface; effusi carcere currus, loosed to full speed, rushing forth. 4. cast out or off, throw over, throw down: solo; equus consulem lapsum super caput effudit, threw him; cf. our slang 'spill.' IV. (fig.) 1. pour out (in words), spout, vent, unbosom one's self of. 2. lavish, run through, squander, waste, spend: patrimonium; omnis Effusus (est) labor. 3. cast away, give up, let go, resign, forfeit: gratiam florentissimi hominis; vitam. 4. effundere se, or pass. used reflexively, abandon one's self to, yield to, indulge in: in aliquâ libidine; in omnes libidines; in lacrimas, vota, i.e. burst into tears, etc.; (poet.) effusi lacrimis; Pompeius in nos suavissime hercule effusus, behaved towards me with the most affable cordiality.

effūsē, adv. [effusus], 1. far and wide, in loose order, in scattered flight. 2. lavishly, profusely, in abundance. 3. extravagantly.

immoderately. Compar. effusius; superl. effusissime.

effūsio, ōnis, f. [effundo]. I. a pouring forth, spilling. II. 1. a pouring forth or rushing out of people. 2. profusion, prodigality. III. extravagance, excess.

effūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from effundo. As adj. I. 1. spread out, extensive, open, wide. 2. relaxed, loose, flowing, streaming, dishevelled. 3. scattered, straggling, in loose order, disordered. II. (fig.) 1. profuse, lavish. 2. extravagant, immoderate, gushing, 'outré'. Compar. effusior; superl. effusissimus.

ef-fūtio (ecf-), fre, ītum, [ex; futio], trans. v. let a thing leak out; blab out, gabble, prate.

ēg-ēlidus, a, um, adj. I. with the chill off, lukewarm; unfrozen. II. very cold, chilly, cool.

egens, ntis, part. from egeo. As adj. needy, necessitous, in want. Compar. egentior; superl. egentissimus.

ēgēnus, a, um, [egeo], 1. in need of, in want of, destitute, void; with gen. or abl. 2. needy, necessitous: res. Compar. and superl. as if from egens.

ēgĕo, ēre, ŭi, [root ag-; cf. ἀχήν, poor, ἄχνια, want; ἄγχω, throttle], intrans. v. I. be in need, be needy, poor, in want. II. (with abl. or gen. of the thing needed). 1. need, want, lack, be in need of; consilio; auxilii. 2. (meton.) (a) be without, be destitute of: auctoritate; (b) want, wish for, call for, require: qui tantuli eget; plausoris; pane mellitis potiore placentis; defensoribus.

Ēgĕrĭa (Aeg-), æ, f. one of the Roman Camenæ, who had a grotto near Rome and who was wife and counsellor of Numa; after his death she was changed into a fountain.

ē-gĕro, ēgĕrĕre, gessi, gestum, trans. v. I. carry or bring out, draw forth; discharge, void. II. (fig.) 1. pour forth, utter: querellas. 2. expel: expletur lacrimis egeritur que dolor. 3. drain, exhaust: egessitque avidis Dorica castra rogis; questu dies, spend.

ēgestas, ātis, f. [egeo], extreme poverty, necessity, want, privation.

egestio, ōnis, f. [egero], a carrying out or forth; an emptying, voiding; a wasting.

(1) ēgestus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from egero.

(2) ēgestus, ūs, m. [egero], a carrying out, emptying, voiding.

ē-gigno, ĕre, trans. v. produce out of.

Egnātĭa (Gnātĭa), æ, f. a town on the coast of Apulia, now Monopoli or Torre d' Anazzo.

ĕgŏ, gen. mei, dat. mihī (mīhī), sync. mī, acc. mē, abl. mē. Pl. nom. acc. nōs, gen. nostrum (obj. gen. nostrī), dat. abl. nōbis, [ἐγώ], 1. I. Emphasized (a) by the suffixes -met and -pte; (b) by repetition. In official language and in poetry nos, etc., often = ego, etc.; in colloq. Latin sts. with sing. adj.: e.g. festina ad nos venire; absente nobis (abl. abs.). 2. (meton.) my house, my home or family; my property: apud me, with me, at my house; ad me,= Ad meam domum, or ad meos; a me,=a meo, from my own purse.

ĕgŏ-met, I myself. See ego.

ē-grĕdĭor, grĕdi, gressus sum, [gradior], intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) I. 1. go out, come forth. 2. climb, mount, ascend. 3. march out, march forth. 4. land (from a ship), disembark. 5. leave the harbour, set sail: e portu; occupat egressas quamlibet ante rates. II. (fig.) digress, depart, wander. B. (trans.) I. pass out of, and so pass beyond; leave, quit: urbem; cf. ἐκβαίνω in Gk. II. (fig.) go beyond, exceed, overstep: praeturam, i.e. rise beyond the praetorship: sexum egressa, forgetting her sex.

ēgrēgĭē, adv. [egregius], excellently, eminently, singularly, specially, admirably. Compar. egregius.

ē-grēgius, a, um, adj. [e; grex], lit. chosen from the herd. 1. distinguished, eminent, peerless, unrivalled, excellent, remarkable, fine, extraordinary, unique: animi (locat. or gen. of respect), noble in soul. As subst. ēgrēgia, ōrum, n. pl. noble deeds, extraordinary merits. 2. illustrious, honourable, highly meritorious. As subst. ēgrēgius, ĭi, m. honour, renown, distinction: publicum, (a) a brilliant career in public; (b) the honour of the state. Tac.

(1) ēgressus, a, um, perf. part. from egredior.

(2) ēgressus, ūs, m. [egredior], 1. a going out, passage out, egress, departure. 2. a disembarking, landing, going ashore; sts. (meton.) a place for landing. 3. a place of egress, passage, the mouth of a river. 4. (fig.) a digression: libero egressu memorare, to relate with free scope, to expatiate.

ēhem, interj. expressive of surprise, Why! Ha! What!

ēheu, interj. expressive of pain or sorrow, Ah! alas!

ēhŏ, interj. Ho! halloa! Sts. with suffix -dum.

(1) ēī, dat. sing. from is.

(2) ei (hei), interj. expressive of grief, Heigho! Oh!

eia (heia), interj. [ēĭa], 1. Hey! now then! Come on! Quick! eia age, rumpe moras. 2. (in remonstrances) Fie! come, come! 3. (expressive of surprise), See, see! I say! eia, ut elegans est!

ē-iăcŭlor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. shoot out, hurl forth.

ē-ĭcĭo (ē-jĭcĭo), ĭcere, ĭēci, iectum, [iacio], trans. v. I. 1. fling out, cast, thrust, or drive out; turn out, eject, expel, banish; throw up; throw off. Elicere se, to fling one's self out, rush forth, dash. 2. bury with indecent haste (cf. effero, I. 2): ubi te exspectatum eiecisset foras. 3. bring (a ship) to land; run ashore, strand, wreck. II. (fig.) cast out, get rid of; scout, reject; hoot off.

ēiĕcĭo, sts. in MSS. for eicio.

ēiectāmentum, i, n. [eiecto], what is cast out, refuse.

ēiectĭo, ōnis, f. [eicio]. 1. a casting out, throwing off. 2. exile, banishment.

ē-iecto, āre, āvi, ātum, [iactо], trans. v. cast forth; throw up, vomit.

(1) ēiectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eicio, cast out or forth; (fig.) outcast, banished. 2. stranded, wrecked; (fig.) ruined. 3. (fig.) scouted, discredited.

(2) ēiectus, ūs, m. [eicio], a casting out, emission.

ējĕro, āre. See eiuro.

ējicio, ĕre. See eicio.

ēiŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [eiulo], a wailing, lamenting.

ēiŭlātus, ūs, m. [id.], a wailing.

ēiŭlo, āre, [eia], intrans. v. cry 'heigho!', wail, lament.

ējūrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eiuro, abjured, renounced.

ē-jūro (ēĭūro, ējĭ-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. renounce or reject on oath, abjure: aliquem (iudicem) iniquum sibi, challenge on oath a person's appointment (as iudex), as being prejudiced; forum, challenge or refuse the jurisdiction of a forum. II. 1. abdicate, surrender, resign: magistratum. Curule magistratus, on quitting office, swore publicly in the forum that they had done nothing contrary to law. 2. forswear, disown, abandon. III. (business techn. t.) eiurare bonam copiam, swear that one has no assets to meet liabilities, swear that one is insolvent.

ēius (ējus), gen. sing. from is; ēius-mŏdi or ēius mŏdi, (gen. of qualitv), (a) of that kind, such,= talis; (b) in such a manner, so,= ita.

ē-lăbor, i, lapsus sum, intrans. dep. I. 1. slip or glide away, get off, get clear, escape. 2. mount, shoot upwards: frondes elapsus in altas (ignis). 3. pass away, disappear. 4. slip from the memory: aliquid memoriā; elapsus de pectore Magnus; elapsa verba. (I. (trans. in pregn. sense) escape from, give a thing the slip: custodias.

ēlăbōrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from elaboro. As adj. carefully worked out, elaborate: cavā testudine flevit amorem Non elaboratum ad pedem, in negligent rhythm, in loose, easy-flowing style.

ē-lăbōro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) take pains, exert one's self, spend one's efforts; work with success, endeavour successfully. B. (trans.) 1. labour at or upon, take pains with, work out, elaborate. 2. procure with effort, wring, force: dulcem saporem.

ē-lamentābilis, e, adj. very lamentable.

ē-languesco, ĕre, langŭi, intrans. v. grow faint or feeble, lose one's vigour, relax, slacken, decay.

ēlapsus, a, um, perf. part. from elabor.

ē-largĭor, īrī, trans. dep. give out, bestow, expend in gifts, spend freely.

ēlatē, adv. [elatus], loftily, proudly. Compar. elatius.

Ēlătēĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ēlătus, one of the Lapithae: proles, i.e. Caenus, son of Elatus.

ēlātĭo, ōnis, f. [effero], 1. a bearing out. II. (fig.) 1. a being carried away, a running riot; transport of pleasure, passion, etc. 2. exaltation, elevation.

ē-lātro, āre, trans. v. bark out, yelp, blurt out.

ēlātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from effero. As adj. 1. elevated, raised. 2. (fig.) elated, proud; (of style) lofty. Compar. elatior.

Elautus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from elavo.

Ēlăver, ĕris, m. a river of Aquitania, now the Allier, which falls into the Liger.

ē-lăvo, āre, lāvi, lautum and lōtum, trans. v. wash out, wash clean, cleanse.

Ēlĕa, ae, f. a Greek town of Lucania, in Latin called Velia, the birthplace of Parmenides and Zeno, founders of the Eleatic school of philosophy.

ēlectē, adv. [electus], choicely, with nicety.

ēlectĭo, ōnis, f. [eligo], a choice selection.

Ēlectra, ae, acc. Ēlectrăn, (-ē, ēs), f. 1. a daughter of Atlas, mother of Dardanus. 2. daughter of Agamemnon and Clytaemnestra, and sister of Orestes.

‡ ēlectrum, ī, n. [ἤλεκτρον], I. 1. amber. 2. (meton.) an article made of amber; a goblet. II. 1. electrum; an alloy of four-fifths gold and one-fifth silver, resembling amber in colour. 2. plate made of the metal electrum; silver-gilt plate.

(1) ēlectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eligo. As adj. picked, selected, choice. Compar. electior; superl. electissimus.

(2) ēlectus, ūs, m. [eligo], a choice: necis.

ēlĕgans (ēlĭg-), ntis, adj. [prob. a by-form of eligens, from eligo], 1. nice, fastidious, precise, particular. 2. tasteful, in good taste, choice, nice, neat, cultivated, refined, exquisite, well-judged, appropriate. Compar. elegantior; superl. elegantissimus.

ēlĕganter, adv. [elegans], in good taste, tastefully, nicely, with refinement, with propriety, appropriately, judiciously, ‘comme il faut,’ blamelessly, correctly. Compar. elegantius; ‡ superl. elegantissime.

ēlĕgantĭa, ae, f. [id.], 1. a being nice or fastidious. 2. good taste, tastefulness, refinement, grace, nicety, neatness, elegance, propriety; purity, blamelessness of life.

‡ ĕlĕgī, ōrum, m. pl. [ἔλεγοι], elegiac verses; an elegiac poem.

‡ ĕlĕgīa (-ēĭă, -ēă, -īă), ae, f. [ἐλεγεία], 1. an elegy. 2. (personified) the Muse of elegy.

‡ ĕlĕgĭdion, ĭi, n. [ἐλεγείδιον], a short elegy, sonnet.

(1) ēlĕgo, āre. See eligo.

(2) ē-lĕgo, āre, āvi, trans. v. bequeath or convey away.

Ēlēlēis, ĭdis, f. a female bacchanal, from the cry ‘eleleu’ (ἐλελεῦ).

Ēlĕleus, ŏŏs, or ei, m. [ἐλελεύ, a cry of the Bacchantes], a surname of Bacchus.

ēlĕmentum, ī, n. [root AL-; cf. alo, alimentum], 1. a first principle, element; in pl., the four elements—fire, water, earth, and air. II. in pl. 1. the alphabet: quartam elementorum litteram, id est D pro. A. 2. the first principles, rudiments (of any knowledge); the A B C of anything. 3. the beginnings, commencement of anything. III. (meton.) elementary scholars, beginners.

‡ ēlenchus, ī, m. [ἔλεγχος], an ear-pendant.

ēlĕphans, ntis. See elephas.

Ēlĕphantīnē, ēs, f. an island in the Nile, opposite Syene, with a city of the same name.

‡ ēlĕphantus, ī, and ĕlĕphās (-phans), antis, m. [ἐλέφας], I. an elephant. II. (meton.) 1. ivory. 2. the disease called elephantiasis.

Ēlēus, a, um, adj. 1. of or from Elis, Elean. 2. (meton. poet.) Olympian, Olympic.

Ēleusin (-is), ĭnis, and -ĭna, ae, f. a town and deme of Attica noted for its mysteries of Demeter (Ceres).

Ēleusīnus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of or from Eleusis, Eleusinian: mater, i.e. Ceres.

ēlēvātĭo, ōnis, f. [elevo], (fig.) a disparaging.

ē-lēvo, āre, ātum, trans. v. I. lift up, raise; carry aloft. II. (fig.) 1. make light, lighten, lessen, alleviate. 2. (metaph. from the lighter scale of the balance) make light of, disparage, detract from, undervalue; weaken, impair, damage.

Ēlĭăs, ădis, f. adj. of Elis; Olympian.

ē-lĭcĭo, lĭcĕre, lĭcŭi, lĭcĭtum, [lacio], trans. v. I. draw out, lure forth, entice, allure, call forth. II. elicit; ascertain.

ēlĭcĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from elicio.

Ēlĭcĭus, ĭi, m. [elicio], a title of Jupiter, as the god from whom omens are elicited, or because his thunderbolts were brought to earth by the Etruscan augurs.

ē-lĭdo, ĕre, līsi, līsum, [laedo], trans. v. I. 1. knock or dash out, force out, squeeze out. 2. (fig.) expel: morbum. II. 1. shatter, break to pieces, crush; throttle, strangle. 2. (fig.) break down, destroy.

ēlĭgans, ēlĭganter, ēlĭgantĭa. See elegans, etc.

ē-lĭgo (ēlĕgo), ĕre, lēgi, lectum, [lego], trans. v. pick out, choose, select.

ē-limĭno, āre, ātum, [limen], trans. v. lit. turn out of doors; (fig.) carry abroad, make public, peach, blab: dicta foras.

ē-limo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. file thoroughly; polish. 2. (fig.) elaborate, finish.

ē-lĭnguis, e, adj. [lingua], 1. speechless, dumb. 2. uneloquent.

ē-lĭquo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. strain out, clarify, filter. 2. (fig.) drawl out.

Ēlis, ĭdis, acc. Ēlĭdem and Ēlin, abl. Ēlĭde and Ēli, f. the most W. district of the Peloponnese, with a capital of the same name, near which the Olympic games were held.

Ēlissa (-īsa), ae, f. another name for Dido.

Ēlissaeus (Ēlīsaeus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Dido; Carthaginian.

Ēlīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from elido.

Ēlius, a, um, = Eleus. In pl. as subst., the men of Elis.

ē-lixus, a, um, adj. 1. boiled, sodden. 2. soaked, wet through, flabby.

‡ ellĕbŏrum (hell-), ī, n., ellĕbŏrus (hell-), ī, m. [ἑλλέβορος], hellebore, a plant used by the ancients as a specific for madness, dropsy, epilepsy, etc. Cf. Anticyra.

‡ ellipsis, is, f. [ἔλλειψις], the omission of one or more words which can be supplied from the context.

‡ ellops (ĕlops, hel-), ŏpis, m. the swordfish, or the sturgeon.

ellum, ellam, ellos, ellas. See en.

ē-lŏco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. let out on hire, farm out.

ēlŏcūtus, a, um, perf. part. from eloquor.

ēlŏgĭum, ĭi, n. [? ἐλεγεῖον], 1. a short pithy saying, maxim, saw, saying. 2. an inscription (on a tomb, door, votive tablet, etc.). 3. a clause in a will. 4. a warrant, writ.

ēlops. See ellops.

ēlŏquens, ntis, part. from eloquor. As adj. eloquent. Compar. eloquentior; superl. eloquentissimus.

ēlŏquentĕr, adv. [eloquens], eloquently. Compar. eloquentius; superl. eloquentissime.

ēlŏquentĭa, ae, f. [eloquor], eloquence.

ēlŏquĭum, ĭi, n. [id.], eloquence, style of words, power of language.

ē-lŏquor, ī, lŏcūtus (lŏquūtus) sum, trans. dep. speak out, declare, utter, pronounce, express.

Ēlōrĭus, Ēlōrus, etc. See Helōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from elavo.

Jus alto gurgite. II. (fig.) show forth, appear unexpectedly, be conspicuous.

ē-migro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. depart, remove, emigrate.

ēmina, ae. See hemina.

ēmīnens, ntis, part. from eminco. As adj. 1. standing out, standing in relief, prominent, projecting; high, lofty. 2. (fig.) distinguished, eminent. As subst. ēminentes, ium, m. pl. men of mark. Compar. eminentior; superl. eminentissimus.

ēmīnentĭa, ae, f. [eminens], I. 1. a standing out, protuberance, projection, prominence. 2. (in painting) the foreground, as opposed to umbra (the background). II. (fig.) excellence.

ē-minĕo, ēre, ŭi, intrans. v. I. 1. stand out, project, be prominent, extend. 2. (in painting) stand out in relief, be prominent; form the foreground; cf. eminentia. II. (fig) 1. stand out, be prominent, conspicuous, plainly seen, distinct. 2. be distinguished, eminent; distinguish one's self, excel.

ē-minŭs, adv. [manus] lit. hands apart; from a distance, at a distance, aloof.

ē-mīror, āri, trans. dep. wonder greatly at, stare in amazement at.

ēmissārium, ĭi, n. [emitto], an outlet, drain.

ēmissārius, ĭi, m. [id.], a scout, spy, emissary.

ēmissio, ōnis, f. [id.], I. 1. a sending forth. II. 1. a power of hurling 2. a letting go.

(1) ēmissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from emitto.

(2) ē-missus, ūs, m. [emitto], a sending forth, emission.

ē-mitto, ēre, mīsi, missum, trans. v. 1. send out, send forth, let out: esse, break out, dart forth; animam, breathe one's last, expire. 2. send out, publish: elegos. 3. emit, utter. 4. let loose, discharge, let go, release, set at liberty, dismiss. Manu emittere aliquem, release from the patria potestas, set free, emancipate. Sts. without manu. 5. cast away, throw off. 6. hurl, shoot, discharge. 7. let drop, let slip, loose.

ēmo, ēre, ēmi, emptum (emtum), [Sanscr. root JAM-, take, hold], trans. v. 1. buy, purchase. II. (fig.) buy up, purchase, get, acquire, procure.

ē-mŏdĕror, āri, trans. dep. moderate, tone down.

ē-mŏdŭlor, āri, trans. dep. sing, celebrate.

ēmŏlimentum. See emolu-.

ē-mŏlĭor, īri, ītus sum, trans. dep. 1. bring out with effort; stir up, agitate. 2. accomplish.

ē-mollĭo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. v. I. render quite soft, soften. II. (fig.) 1. make gentle, refine. 2. weaken, enervate.

ē-mōlo, ēre, ītum, trans. v. grind out thoroughly; grind up, i.e. consume.

ēmōlŭmentum (-īmentum), i, n. [emolo; (?) emolior], grist, profit, advantage, gain, benefit, interest. [In Caes. B. G. i. 34, the right reading is molimento, the e having come from atque preceding.]

ē-mŏnĕo, ēre, trans. v. urgently recommend.

e-mŏrĭor, mŏri (moriri, Ter.), mortŭus sum, intrans. dep. die away, die out, die, decease; perish, be done with.

ēmortŭus, a, um, perf. from emorior.

ēmōstis, sync. for emovistis, 2 pl. perf. act. from emoveo.

ēmōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from emoveo.

ē-mŏvĕo, ēre, mōvi, mōtum, trans. v. move out, move or clear away, remove; push out, tear away; shake, agitate, rack.

Empēdŏcles, is, m. a philosopher of Agrigentum, in the fifth century B.C.

‡ empīricus, i, m [ἐμπειρικός], an empiric; one of a school of physicians who based their knowledge of medicine on practice only.

Empŏrĭae, ārum, f. pl. a town of Hispania Tarraconensis, now Ampurias, near the Pyrenees, founded by the Phocaeans.

‡ empōrium, ĭi, n. [ἐμπόριον], a trading-place, mart, factory, wharf, entrepôt, magazine, market, market-town.

ēmptĭo (emtĭo), ōnis, f. [emo], 1. a buying, purchasing. 2. a thing bought, a purchase.

emptĭto (emt-), āre, avi, ātum, [freq. emo], trans. v. make a practice of buying.

emptor (emt-), ōris, [id.], a buyer, purchaser.

emptus, (emt-) a, um, perf. pass. part. from emo.

ē-mūgĭo, īre, intrans. v. bellow out, cry aloud.

ē-mulgĕo, ēre, lsum, trans. v. 1. milk out. 2. drain.

ēmulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from emulgeo.

ēmunctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from emungo. 1. well wiped, cleaned out; emunctae naris (gen. of quality), of nice or keen discernment, with all one's wits about one. 2. cleaned out, swindled, outwitted, cheated.

ē-mungo, ĕre, nxi, nctum, trans. v. 1. blow or wipe one's nose: saepe emunge, wipe your 'monchoir' rather often. 2. (fig.) clean out, swindle, cheat, bilk, outwit. Cf. ἀπομύσσω.

ē-mūnĭo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. v. I. fortify; secure with a wall. II. (Naeton.) 1. protect, secure. 2. (techn. t. of engineering work) build up, throw up, elevate: murum; silvas ac paludes, clear, i.e. by throwing up causeways. 3. pile up, furnish: boros ostro.

ēn, interj. I. lo! behold! see! (a) with nom.; ens Priamus. (b) with acc.: en quattuor aras; ellum, ellam, ellos, ellas, for en illum, etc., etc. II. (with imperatives, to stimulate), come! now then! III. (in interrogations or exclamations, to call attention to any object or feeling of the moment) why; just say; there! just see! quid ago? en erit unquam ille dies? en quo discordia cives Produxit miseros, there! see whither.

‡ ēnallāgē, ēs, f. [ἐναλλαγή], an exchange; the figure in Grammar by which one part of Speech is used for another; e.g. nos for ego; scire tuum for scientia tua, etc. See P. S. L. G. § 61, iii. (e).

ēnarrābilis, e, adj. [enarro], that may be related or described. Non enarrabilis, that beggars description, unutterable, inexplicable, stupendous ē-narro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. explain in detail, interpret, declare.

ē-nascor, i, nātus sum, intrans. dep. issue forth, spring or sprout up, arise, be born.

ē-nāto, āre, āvi, intrans. v. 1. swim out or away, swim ashore, escape by swimming. 2. (fig.) extricate one's-self, get off.

ēnātus, a, um, perf. part. from enascor.

(?) ēnāvātus, a, um, adj. [navatus], performed, executed.

ē-nāvigo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) sail away. B. (trans.) sail over, traverse by sailing.

‡ encaustus, a, um, adj. [ἔγκαυστος, burnt in], encaustic.

Encĕlădus, i, m. a giant buried under Mt. Aetna.

endō = indu. See in.

‡ endrŏmis, ĭdis, acc. -ĭdă and -ĭdem, f. [ἔνδρομίς], a thick wrapper or cloak worn by athletes after running, etc., as a preventive of cold; sts. made of gayer or finer materials and worn by ladies

Endўmion, ōnis, m. 1. a beautiful youth of Mt. Latmos in Caria, beloved by Selene (Luna), who kept him in a perpetual sleep. 2. (meton.) a handsome boy.

ē-nĕco (-nico), āre, cŭi (cāvi in Plaut.), ctum (less freq. cātum), trans. v. 1. kill off, kill, outright, slay. 2. wear out, exhaust. 3. plague to death, torment, torture.

ēnectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eneco.

ēnervatus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from enervo. As adj. unnerved, weakened, effeminate.

ē-nervis, e, adj. [nervus], nerveless, weak, enervated.

ē-nervo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. lit. take out the sinews; unnerve, unman, weaken, enervate.

Enguīnus, a, um, adj. of or from Enguium or Engyum, a town in the interior of Sicily.

ēnĭco, ēre. See eneco.

ēnim, conj. corroborative and explanatory, [e = i, pronominal stem; nam], I. 1. in fact, indeed, surely, certainly, really, positively; yea, ay; why: ille enim revocatus resistere . . . coepit; quam (suem) pius Aeneas tibi enim tibi maxima Iuno Mactat, yea, to thee; hunc plausus geminatus enim . . . Corripuit, applause as it rolls, ay, rolls again; nec requievit enim, ay, and he rested not. 2. (mostly strengthened by vero) enimvēro, as one word; as might be expected, as a matter of course; yes indeed, naturally; why really, certainly, in very truth. II. (to prove a previous instance) for. Often with ellipse of a clause which must be mentally supplied. Sed enim=ἀλλὰ γάρ, but in fact, however. III. (explanatory) namely, for instance.

ēnimvēro. See enim.

Ēnīpeus, ŏŏs (ĕī or eĭ), m. 1. a river of Thessaly. 2. the river-god. 3. a Roman youth's nom-de-plume.

ēnīsē, adv. See enixe.

ēnīsus, a, um, perf. part. from enitor ē-nītĕo, ēre, ŭī, intrans. v. 1. shine out, shine forth, glisten. 2. (fig.) be conspicuous, distinguished.

ē-nītesco, ĕre, nĭtŭī, [freq. enĭteo], 1. shine forth, shine out. 2. (fig.) become conspicuous, distinguished.

ē-nītor, ī, nixus or nīsus sum, intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) 1. work one's way out with effort, struggle out; force one's way upwards, climb up, mount. 2. struggle to the end, exert one's self, make an effort, struggle, strive; with ut, nē, and sts. with infin.: (with cogn. acc.) quid enĭti aut quid effecre possim, achieve with effort. B. (trans.) 1. give birth to, bring forth: gemellos. 2. climb up, ascend.

ēnixē (ēnīsē), adv. [enixus], strenuously, earnestly, zealously. Compar. enisius; superl. enixissime.

ēnixus (ēnīsus), a, um, perf. part. from enitor. With pass. meaning (impers.): summā ope enisum est ne tale decretum fieret, the utmost efforts were used to prevent. As adj. strenuous, zealous, in earnest. Compar. enixior.

Ennæ, Ennæus, Ennensis. See Henn-.

Ennius, ĭī, m. the father of epic poetry, author of the Annales, a native of Rudiae, in Calabria. (B.C. 239—169.)

Ennōsĭgæus, ī, m. [Ἐννοσίγαιος, earth-shaker], a title of Poseidon (Neptune).

ē-no, āre, āvī, intrans. v. 1. swim out or away, escape by swimming. 2. (meton.) sail or float away (on wings): Daedalus . . . gelidas enavit ad Arctos. II. (poet. with acc. of space traversed) traverse by swimming or flying: orbem.

ēnōdātē, adv. clearly, plainly.

ē-nōdis, e, adj. [nodus], 1. free from knots, smooth. II. (fig.) 1. pliant, supple. 2. clear, plain.

ē-nōdo, āre, āvī, ātum, [id.], trans. v. 1. free from knots. 2. unstring (a bow). II. (fig.) unravel, explain.

ēnormis, e, adj. [norma], 1. out of rule and measure; irregular, unusual, odd. 2. immoderate, enormous, colossal, unwieldy.

ēnormĭtas, ātis, f. [enormis], irregularity, immense size.

ē-nōtesco, ĕre, nōtŭī, intrans. v. become known.

ē-nōto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. mark out, note down.

ensĭ-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [ensis; ferō], sword-bearing.

ensĭ-ger, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [ensis; gero], sword-carrying.

ensis, is, m. [Sanscr. asĭs, a dagger-shaped knife], I. a sword; fig. a knife. II. (meton.) 1. the sword; warfare. 2. military power.

Entellīnus, a, um, adj. of or from Entella, a town in Sicily.

Entellus, ī, m. a Sicilian hero, famed for his boxing.

enthĕātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [entheus], fanatic.

‡ enthĕus, a, um, adj. [ἔνθεος], divinely inspired; fanatic, raving.

‡ enthȳmēma, ātis, n. [ἐνθύμημα], 1. (in logic) a syllogism in which one premiss is suppressed; an enthymeme. 2. (in rhet.) a conclusion drawn from opposites.

ē-nūbo, ĕre, nupsi, intrans. v. marry out of one's rank or home.

ēnūclĕātē, adv. [enucleatus], clearly, plainly.

ēnūclĕātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from enucleo. As adj. (fig.) 1. genuine, unadulterated, pure: suffragia. 2. plain, clear, simple.

ē-nūclĕo, āre, āvi, ātum, [nucleus], trans. v. 1. clear from kernel or husk. 2. (fig.) explain, clear up.

(?) ē-nūdo, āre, trans. v. lay bare.

ēnūmĕrātio, ōnis, f. [enumero], a counting up, enumeration; recapitulation.

ē-nūmĕro, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. count over, count up, reckon through, calculate; enumerate, recount, relate.

ē-nuntiātĭo (-cĭātĭo), ōnis, f. [enuntio], a declaration, enunciation, proposition.

ēnuntĭātum (-cĭātum), ī, n. [id.], a declaration, dogma.

ē-nuntĭo (-nuncĭo), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. tell out, disclose, reveal, declare, report, make disclosures. II. (meton.) express, declare; pronounce, utter.

ēnuptio, ōnis, f. [enubo], a marrying out of one's rank or family.

ē-nūtrĭo, īre, īvi (ĭī), ītum, trans. v. feed, bring up, nurture, support.

Ēnȳō, ūs, f. [Ἐνυώ], the goddess of war; in Lat. Bellona.

(1) ĕo, īre, īvi (ĭī), ītum, [root ι-; cf. εἶμι], intrans. v. (of motion of every kind), I. 1. go, pass, march, travel, walk, ride, sail, fly, swim, etc.; (with cogn. acc.): viam; iter; (with acc. of place whither): Italiam; Afros. Pass. impers. Itur, I, thou, we, they, persons, go. So ibitur, itum est, etc. 2. proceed against, rush, attack: contra hostem; unguibus in genas. 3. pass, pass away, disappear. II. 1. go, pass, proceed, move, advance. I nunc, now then! with all this before you! (a formula of impatient irony or contempt). 2. goes by, pass away; flow. 3. fare, proceed, turn out, happen. 4. (with supine in -um) set about doing, take steps to do a thing: perditum gentem universam. 5. (business techn. t.) go for, be sold at: tot nummis. 6. (polit. techn. t.) pedibus ire or ire in aliquam (alicuius) sententiam, divide or vote in favour of a proposition, measure, etc.: itumque (impers.) in sententiam Rubelli Blandi. So, ire in alia omnia, to vote against a motion, reject it. Cf. alius, 7.

(2) ĕō, adv. [is], I. 1. (a) to that place, thither; (b) to that, thereto; (c) to him, to them; on them. 2. to that end, with that intent, to this result: hoc eo valebat ut . . ., the intention of this was. 3. to such a degree, size, extent; so far, to such a point, pitch, or pass: eo insolentiae processit; cum speramus eo rem venturam ut . . . commodus ultro Arcessas. 4. up to such and such a time; so long, until; usually with usque followed by dum, donec. II. 1. in that place, there, therein; sts. with loci (partitive gen.): res erat eo iam loci, ut. 2. on that ground, for this (that) reason, because of this; therefore, accordingly: eo quod rē frumentariā interdiū posse confīdere, on the ground that they believed; non, pol, quo quemquam plus diligam, Eo feci, I did so, not because I really love any one more. 3. (expressing purpose, motive, etc.) with that intent, with the view: eo . . . quo, in order that (with subj.). 4. (as abl. of measure, with comparatives) by so much, so much; with quo, the . . . the; eo minus, so much the less, all the less; eo gravior est dolor, quo culpa maior.

ĕōdem, adv. [idem], I. 1. to the same place. 2. to the same point, result, etc.: pertinere, to tend in the same direction, point to the same result. 3. to the same person or persons: adiungere, add to the same. II. in the same place; sts. with loci (partitive gen.): res eodem est loci quo reliquisti, remains exactly where, or as, you left it.

Ēōs, only in nom., f. [Ἠώς], 1. the dawn. 2. (meton.) the East.

Ēōus and Ĕōus, a, um, adj. [Eos], I. of or in the morning, morning. As subst. Ēōus, ī, m. 1. the morning star; morning: terras irrorat Eous; primo Eoo, at early dawn. 2. one of the horses of the sun. II. of the East, eastern, orient. As subst. m. an Oriental.

Ēpāminōndas, æ, m. a Theban general, victorious at Leuctra, B.C. 371, killed at Mantinea, B.C. 362.

‡ ĕpănădĭplōsis, is, f. [ἐπαναδίπλωσις], in Gram. a repetition of the same word.

‡ ĕpănălēpsis, is, f. [ἐπανάληψις], a repetition, whereby the same word or words stand at the beginning and end of a line; e.g. et nos ergo manum ferulae subduximus, et nos.

‡ ĕpănăphŏra, ae, f. [ἐπαναφορά], the repetition of a word at the beginning of several successive clauses.

‡ ĕpăphaerĕsis, is, f. [ἐπαφαίρεσις], lit. a second or additional taking away; longam epaphaeresin facit, (of a barber) goes deliberately scraping over and over again.

Ĕpăphus, i, m. the son of Zeus (Jupiter Ammon) and Io, and founder of Memphis, in Egypt.

ĕpastus, a, um, perf. pass. part. [pasco], eaten up.

Ĕpēus, i, m. [Ἐπειός], the Greek who built the Trojan horse.

‡ ĕphēbus, i, poet. gen. pl. ephebûm, m. [ἔφηβος, come to manhood], a youth, at Athens, from 17 to 20 years of age: postquam excesit ex ephebis (ἐξήλθεν ἐξ ἐφήβων), i.e. after he had come to man's estate.

‡ ĕphēmĕris, ĭdis, f. [ἐφημερίς], a day-book, diary, journal, account-book.

Ĕphĕsĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ephesus, Ephesian.

Ĕphĕsus, i, f. a city of Ionia, with a temple of Artemis (Diana).

ĕphippiātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [ephippium], furnished with an ephippium, using a saddle-pad.

‡ ĕphippĭum, ĭi, n. [ἐφίππιον], a horse-cloth, saddle-pad; housings, trappings. Prov. of a discontented grumbler: Optat ephippia bos piger, optat arare caballus.

‡ ĕphŏrus, i, m. [ἔφορος, overseer], an Ephor; a Spartan magistrate, of a board of five, chosen annually.

Ĕphўra, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. 1. the ancient name of Corinth. 2. a nymph who gave her name to Corinth.

Ĕphўraeus (-ēus, ĭus), a, um, adj. of Ephyra, Corinthian.

Ephўrĭădēs, ae, m. patron. a Corinthian.

Ephўrĭădes, ădis, f. adj. Ephyrean, Corinthian.

‡ ĕpĭbăta, ae, m. [ἐπιβάτης], a marine.

‡ ĕpĭcēdion (-ĭum), ĭi, n. [ἐπικήδειον], a dirge.

Ĕpĭcharmus, i, m. a native of Cos, who settled at Syracuse; he was a pupil of Pythagoras, a comic poet, and contemporary of Pindar and Aeschylus. (B.C. 540-443.)

‡ Ĕpĭclēros (-us), i, f. [ἐπίκληρος, an only daughter and heiress], The Heiress,' a comedy of Menander.

‡ ĕpĭcōpus, a, um, adj. [ἐπίκωπος], furnished with oars.

Ĕpĭcūrēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to, Epicurus. Epicurean. As subst. Ĕpĭcūrēi, ōrum, m. pl. the philosophers of the Epicurean School, Epicureans.

Ĕpĭcūrus, i, m. an Athenian philosopher, native of Samos, founder of the Epicurean School, who taught that happiness was the chief good. (B.C. 342-270.)

‡ ĕpĭcus, a, um, adj. [ἐπικός], epic.

‡ Ĕpĭdaphna, ae, f. [ἐπὶ Δάφνῃ] a suburb of Antioch on the Orontes, with a grove and sanctuary of Apollo.

Ĕpĭdaurĭus (-ēus), a, um, adj. of or from Epidaurus, Epidaurian. As subst. Ĕpĭdaurĭus, ĭi, m. (sc. deus), Aesculapius.

Ĕpĭdaurus, i, f. a city of Argolis, on the Saronic Gulf, where Aesculapius was worshipped in the form of a serpent.

Ĕpĭdĭcāzŏmĕnos, i, m. 'The Plaintiff,' a comedy written by Philemon. Also, Ĕpĭdĭcāzŏmĕnē, ēs, f. the ward or heiress who is the subject of a lawsuit; title of a comedy imitated by Terence in his Phormio.

‡ ĕpĭdĭctĭcus, a, um, adj. [ἐπιδεικτικός], for display or showing off.

‡ ĕpĭdīpnis, ĭdis, f. [ἐπιδειπνίς], a dessert.

Ĕpigŏni, ōrum, m. pl. [Ἐπίγονοι], the descendants of the seven chiefs who fell before Thebes with Polynices; the title of a tragedy of L. Attius, translated from Aeschylus.

‡ ĕpĭgramma, ătis, dat. pl. ŏpĭgrammātĭs, n. [ἐπίγραμμα], an inscription; an epitaph; an epigram.

‡ ĕpĭlŏgus, i, m. [ἐπίλογος], a peroration, epilogue.

‡ ĕpĭmēnĭa, ōrum, n. pl. [ἐπιμήνια, provisions for a month], monthly allowance or rations.

Ĕpĭmēnĭdes, ĭs, m. a poet and prophet of Crete.

Ĕpĭmēthĕus, ŏos (ĕi, ei), m. [Ἐπιμηθεύς, after-thought], brother of Prometheus and husband of Pandora.

Ĕpĭmēthis, ĭdis, f. patron., daughter of Epimetheus, i.e. Pyrrha.

‡ ĕpĭnīcĭum, ĭi, n. [ἐπινίκιον], a song of victory, a triumphal song or ode, such as Pindar's.

‡ ĕpĭrēdium, ĭi, n. [? ἐπὶ ; reda], a collar; prps. a trace. Some say, a cart.

Ĕpīrensis, e, adj. of or from Epirus.

Ĕpīros (-us), i, f. [Ἤπειρος, mainland], the N.W. district of Greece.

Ĕpīrŏtĭcus, a, um, adj. of or from Epirus.

‡ ĕpistŏla (-ŭla), ae, f. [ἐπιστολή], a letter (written on paper), an epistle, a playbill posted outside a theatre, a programme, Mart. With prep. ab, denoting office: Narcissus ab epistolis, the private secretary.

‡ ĕpistŏlĭum, ĭi, n. [ἐπιστόλιον], a poor little letter, note, billet.

ĕpistŏlāris (ĕpistŭl-), e, adj. (epistola), of or belonging to a letter or epistle, letter-.

ĕpistŭla, ae. See epistola.

‡ ĕpĭtăphĭum, ĭi, n. [ἐπιτάφιον], a funeral oration.

‡ ĕpĭthălămĭum, ĭi, n. [ἐπιθαλάμιον], a bridal song, nuptial ode or poem, sung outside the bridal chamber.

ĕpĭtŏma, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. [ἐπιτομή], an abridgment, epitome.

‡ ĕpĭtrōpos (-us), i, m. [ἐπίτροπος], a factor, steward.

‡ ĕpŏdēs, um, m. pl. a kind of sea-fish.

‡ ĕpōdōs, i, [ἐπωδός, an aftersong], 1. a short line following a longer, the shorter verse of a couplet. 2. = carmen epodicum, a poem in which such couplets occur; e.g. the couplet metres of Archilochus, and their imitations, the Epodes of Horace, called by him Iambi.

Ĕpŏna, ae, f. [? for Equŏna; equus; cf. ἵππος], the patron goddess of grooms and horses.

‡ ĕpops, ŏpŏpis, m. [ἔποψ], a hoopoe.

‡ ĕpŏs, n., only in nom. and acc. sing., [ἔπος], an epic poem, an epic, heroic.

ē-pōto, āre, āvi, pōtum, trans. v. drink up, drink off, drain, swallow, drink to the dregs.

ēpōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from epoto.

ĕpŭlae, ārum, f pl. [cf. epulum], 1. food, eatables, viands. 2. rich meats; a private entertainment, banquet, feast; sts. a public banquet. Cf. epulum.

ĕpŭlāris, e, adj. [id.], of or at a banquet, pertaining to feasts.

ĕpŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [epulor], feasting.

ĕpŭlō, ōnis, m. [epulum], 1. a feaster, 'bon vivant,' a guest at feasts. 2. one of a corporation of priests, first three, afterwards seven in number (triumviri or septem viri epulones), who superintended banquets in honour of the gods.

ĕpŭlor, āri, ātus sum, [id.], intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) feast, banquet; poet. with abl.: caesis gens est epulata iuvencis, feast upon. B. (trans.) feast upon, eat: Ascanium patriis epulandum ponere mensis.

ĕpŭlum, i, n. [? for edĭpulum; ĕdo], 1. a banquet at a religious festival, a solemn public entertainment: Iovis; funebre. 2. an entertainment, feast: epulum centum dare Pythagoreis Ēpytĭdēs, æ, m. patron. Epytus's son.

Ēpytus, i, m. a Trojan.

ĕquas, æ, dat. abl. pl. ĕquābus, f. [equus], a mare.

ĕquēs, ĕquĭtis, m. [id.], I. a horseman, rider; an outrider, equerry. II. A. 1. a horse-soldier, trooper. 2. (meton. or collective) cavalry, horse-soldiers. B. 1. a knight. Pl. Equites, the Knights, a Roman order, holding rank between the Senate and the Plebs. Equites egregii (also called illustres insignes, speciosi, splendidi, or primores equitum) members of the equestrian order who possessed the census senatorius (1,000,000 sesterces) and were privileged to wear the latus clavus 2. (in sing. collect.) the equestrian order: (poet.) the 14 rows in the theatre next to the orchestra which were appropriated to the Knights, 'the stalls:' satis est equitem mihi plaudere. See Dict. Ant.

ĕquestĕr, tris, trĕ, adj. [eques], 1. of or belonging to a horseman, equestrian. 2. of cavalry, cavalry. 3. of the Knightly order, of the Knights, equestrian: census, the estate of an equestrian 400,000 sesterces); locus; ordo. As subst. = eques.

ĕquestrĭs, adj. = equester, Livy.

ĕ-quīdem, adv. [e, interj.; quidem], 1. (as particle of emphasis), verily, truly, indeed, I make sure. Only with 1 pers. sing. in Cic. 2. certainly, by all means, of course. 3. indeed; followed by sed, verum, tamen, etc. 4. (with ref. to the speaker) for my part, as far as I am concerned.

ĕquĭnus, a, um, adj. [equus], of horses, a horse's, horse-.

ĕquirĭa, ōrum, n. pl. [id.], horse races in honour of Mars, held in the Campus Martius Feb. 27 and March 14 every year. ĕquĭtābĭlis, e, adj. [equito], that may be ridden over.

ĕquĭtātus, ūs, m. [id.], I. a riding. II. 1. cavalry. 2. the equestrian order.

ĕquĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) ride, career. B. (trans.) ride through or over: equitataque summi Culmina Taygeti.

ĕquŏs. See equus.

ĕquŭlĕus (ĕcŭlĕus), i, m. [dim. equus], I. a colt, foal. II. (meton.) 1. a statue of a horse. 2. an instrument of torture so called, a rack.

ĕquŭlus, i, m. [dim. equus], a colt, foal.

ĕquus (ĕquŏs, ĕcus), i, gen. pl. ĕquŭm, m. [cf. Sanscr. açvas; Gk. ἵππος (ἵκκος)], I. a horse; a steed, charger, courser: ex equo, ex equis, on horseback. Equis virisque, equis viris, or viris equisque, with horse and foot; (fig.) with might and main. II. (meton.) 1. a battering-ram. 2. the Trojan horse.

Ĕquus Tŭtĭcus, i, m. a town in Samnium, identified with S. Eleuterio.

ēr (hēr), ēris, m. [χήρ], a hedgehog: Nemes.

ĕra (hĕra), æ, f. [erus], I. the mistress or lady of the house. II. 1. a sovereign-lady, queen, princess; often of a goddess, like Gk. πότνια. 2. a lady-love, mistress.

ē-rādĭco (exr-), āre, āvi, ātum, [radix], trans. v. root up, root out, eradicate.

ē-rādo, ĕre, rāsi, rāsum, trans. v. I. 1. scrape out, scratch out; scrape off; (poet.) shave close: erasæ genæ. 2. strike out, erase. II. (fig.) efface, extirpate, do away with.

‡ ĕrānus, i, m. [ἔρανος], a club, benefit society.

Ĕrāsīnus, i, m. 1. a river of Argolis. 2. a boy's name.

ērāsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from erado.

Ērātō (only in nom.) f. 1. the muse of love-poetry and lyrics; sts. (meton.) a muse. 2. a queen of Armenia.

Ērātosthĕnes, is, m. a distinguished astronomer, philosopher, poet, and geographer, born at Cyrene B.C. 276; died at Alexandria about B.C. 196.

ercisco, ĕrctum. See herc-.

Ērĕbēus, a, um, adj. of Erebus or the lower world.

Ērĕbus, i, m. 1. the god of darkness, son of Chaos and brother of Nox. 2. (meton.) the lower world.

(1) Ērechtheus (trisyll.), ŏos, ĭi, or ei, m. a mythic king of Athens.

(2) Ērechthēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Erechtheus; Athenian.

Ērechthĭdæ, ārum, m. pl. patron. the Athenians; as descendants of Erechtheus.

Ērechthis, ĭdis, f. patron. a daughter of Erechtheus; (a) Orithyia; (b) Procris.

ērectē, adv. [erectus], boldly.

ērectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from erigo. Comp. ērĭgo, i. 1. set up, standing upright. 2. high, lofty. 3. (fig.) lofty, noble, elevated: ingenium; (in a bad sense) carrying one's head high, haughty, stuck up. II. 1. on the stretch, high-strung, intent, attentive, keenly interested, excited. 2. roused to energy, enthusiastic, animated, resolute. Compar. erectior.

ē-rēpo, ĕre, repsi, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. creep out, crawl forth. 2. creep or clamber up. B. (intrans.) creep or crawl over; struggle over: totum agrum genibus; montes.

ērepsēmus, sync. pluperf. subj. 1 pers. pl. from erepo.

ēreptio, ōnis, f. [eripio], a forcible seizure.

ēreptor, ōris, m. [id.], a plunderer, robber.

ēreptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eripio.

ĕres, ēdis. See heres.

Ērētīnus, a, um. adj. of Eretum.

Ērētrĭa, æ, f. the chief city of Euboea.

Ērētrĭensis, e, adj. of or from Eretria, Eretrian.

Ērētum, i, n. an ancient Sabine town.

ergā, prep. with acc. [cf. ergo], 1. over against. 2. towards (of friendly feelings or actions). 3. (rarely) against (of unfriendly feelings or actions). 4. in relation to, as to: inscitia ergā domum suam.

ergastŭlum (-lum), i, n. [ἐργάζομαι], a place of hard labour, house of correction, workhouse (for slaves, debtors, etc.), bridewell, convict station. In pl. the inmates of a workhouse, etc.; a slave-gang, gang of convicts.

Ergenna, æ, m. an Etruscan haruspex.

ergō (rarely ergŏ), adv. and postposition with gen. [for e-reg-o, root REG-; cf. surgo, pergo], lit. from the direction of. A. as adverb, 1. in consequence, therefore, then, so then; sts. ironical, I suppose, then. 2. and so, well, next, to proceed, as I was saying. 3. (indicating a conclusion forced on the speaker to his surprise, annoyance, or grief) and so, so then; and is't and that? Ergo Quinctilium perpetuus sopor Urget! cf. Gk. ἄρα. B. (with gen., and placed after it) in consequence of, for the sake of, on account of, by way of: virtutis ergo; illius ergo Venimus.

ērĭca, æ, (-ē, ēs), f. heather, heath, broom.

Ērichthō, ūs, f. a Thessalian witch consulted by Pompey; hence (poet.) a witch.

(1) Ērichthŏnĭus, ĭi, m. I. a son of Vulcan, mythic king of Athens. 2. a son of Dardanus, father of Tros and king of Troy.

(2) Ērichthŏnĭus, a, um, adj. 1. Athenian. 2. Trojan.

ērĭcius, ĭi, m. [er], I. a hedgehog; urchin. 2. a 'chevaux-de-frise, made of a beam studded with iron spikes, placed across a gateway or breach.

Ērĭdānus, i, m. another name of the Padus (Po).

ērĭ-fŭga (hērĭ-), æ, m. [erus; fugio], a runaway, truant.

ē-rĭgo, rĭgĕre, rexi, rectum, [rego], trans. v. I. 1. raise or lift up, set upright, erect. Erigo me or pass. erigor used reflexively, I raise myself, get up, rise. 2. raise, construct, build, erect. 3. (military techn. t.) march (troops) uphill, post on high ground. II. (fig.) rouse, excite, make confident, cheer, inspirit, prick or spur on: erigimur, we pluck up our spirits.

Ērĭgŏnē, ēs, (-ă, æ), f. 1. a daughter of Icarius, who hung herself for grief at her father's death, and was changed into the constellation Virgo. 2. a daughter of Aegisthus and Clytaemnestra.

Ērĭgŏnēĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Erigone: canis, Ĭ.e. Maera, the dog of Icarius.

ērĭlis (hĕr-), e, adj. See herilis.

Ērinnē, ēs, f. an Aeolic poetess, contemporary and friend of Sappho. (About 600 B.C.)

Ērinўs (Ērinnўs), ўŏs, f. [Ἐρινύς], I. one of the Furies. Pl. Ērinўĕs, the Furies. II. (meton.) 1. a curse, scourge. 2. fury, frenzy.

Ēriphўlē, ēs, (-a, æ), the wife of Amphiaraus, whom she betrayed to Polynices for a golden necklace, for which she was slain by Alcmaeon, her son.

ē-ripĭo, ripŭi, ripĕre, ripŭi, reptum, [rapio], trans. v. I. 1. snatch away, pull, tear, force, or draw out. 2. take or carry away, seize and carry off, withdraw. 3. set free, rescue, save, deliver. Eripere se, take one's-self off, save one's-self, flee, escape. II. (fig.) 1. snatch, wrest, take away, remove, destroy, deprive of: mihi hunc errorem; fugam, snatch a hasty flight. 2. (poet.) hinder, prevent: vix tamen eripiam . . . quin velis; illis eripere verbis mihi sidera caelo Lucere, i.e. you would make me believe that they do not.

Ērisichthon. See Ĕry-.

ē-rōdo, ĕre, rōsum, trans. v. gnaw off, eat or gnaw away, consume.

ērōgātio, ōnis, f. [erogo], a paying out, disbursement, distribution.

ē-rōgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. (techn. t.) pay out or expend (from public treasury with consent of the comitia); vote supplies, draw money with public consent. II. (meton.) 1. pay out, spend, lay out, disburse. 2. bequeath.

ērōsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from erodo.

errābundus, a, um, adj. [erro], wandering to and fro, truant.

errans, ntis, part. from erro. As adj. wandering, roving, gadding.

errāticus, a, um, adj. [errq], wandering to and fro, erratic, roving, rambling, gadding.

errātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a wandering, roving about, losing one's way.

errātor, ōris, m. [id.], a wanderer.

errātum, i, n. [id.], an error, fault, mistake, faux pas; peccadillo.

(1) errātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from erro, wandered over, wandered by, traversed far and wide, ranged.

(2) errātus, ūs, m. [erro], a wandering, roving.

(1) erro, ĕre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. [root ER-, go in search of; cf. ἔρ-χ-ομαι], I. 1. wander up and down, wander, rove; go astray. Pass. impers.: male errātur in agris, 'tis ill wandering, ill fares the wanderer. 2. move sinfully, fly or float about. II. (fig.) 1. err, go wrong, make a mistake, be mistaken. 2. waver, fluctuate, vacillate. III. (with cogn. acc.) wander over, wander by. Only in perf. pass. part.

(2) errō, ōnis, m. [(1) erro], a wanderer, vagrant, vagabond, truant.

error, ōris, m. [id.], I. 1. a wandering, a wandering course, straying, roaming, roving. 2. (fig.) wavering, uncertainty, indecision, misunderstanding, confusion, bewilderment: (with obj. gen.) veri; viarum; hence, (poet.), a puzzle, tangle, maze. II. 1. a going astray, losing one's way. 2. (fig.) an error, mistake, false notion, illusion, misconception. 3. deceit, deception: aliquis latet error. 4. a moral error, fault.

ērŭbescendus, a, um, gerundive from erubesco, of which one should be ashamed, that one need blush for.

ē-rŭbesco, ĕre, rŭbŭi, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. grow red, redden, blush. 2. redden or blush with shame, feel ashamed. B. (trans.) 1. blush on account of, feel shame at. 2. revere, respect: iura fidemque Supplicis.

ērūca, ae, f. 1. a caterpillar, canker-worm. 2. cole-wort, rocket.

ē-ructo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) belch forth. B. (trans.) 1. belch or vomit forth, emit. 2. (fig.) vent, throw off; rap out, blurt out: caedem sonorum sermonibus suis.

ē-rŭdĭo, īre, īvi or Ĭi, ītum, [rudis], trans. v. free from roughness; polish, educate, train, teach, instruct.

ērŭdītē, adv. [eruditus], learnedly. Compar. eruditius; superl. eruditissime.

ērŭdītĭo, ōnis, f. [erudio], 1. an instructing, instruction. 2. (meton.) learning, knowledge, scholarship, lore.

ērŭdītŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. eruditus], somewhat skilled, witling.

ērŭdītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from erudio. As adj. learned, accomplished, thoroughly versed, experienced, skilled. Compar. eruditior; superl. eruditissimus.

ē-rumpo, ĕre, rūpi, ruptum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. cause to break out; force out: erumpere se, force one's way out, break out, burst forth. 2. force one's way out of; escape: nubem. 3. (fig.) give vent to: gaudium. B. (intrans.) 1. break out, burst or sally forth; make a sally or sortie. II. (fig.) 1. fall out, turn out, issue. 2. come to light, be disclosed.

ē-rŭo, rŭĕre, rŭi, rūtum, trans. v. 1. dig out, pluck, root, or tear out, cast forth, dig or tear up: aqua remis eruta, turned up with the oars. II. (fig.) 1. draw out, extract, elicit, rake up, bring to light. 2. rescue, release. 3. overthrow, ruin, destroy.

ēruptĭo, ōnis, f. [erumpo], a breaking out, bursting forth; a sortie, sally, attack.

ēruptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from erumpo.

ērus (hērus), i, m. [Sanscr. root HAR-, seize; cf. χείρ], 1. a master of a house or family (in relation to the servants). II. (meton.) 1. a master, lord, owner, proprietor. 2. a sovereign lord: caelestes, i.e. the gods.

ērŭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eruo.

‡ ervum (hervum), i, n. [ὄροβος], a kind of pulse, the bitter vetch, or tare, wild pea.

Ĕrўcīna, ae, f. [Erycinus], a name of Venus, from Mount Eryx, where she was worshipped.

Ĕrўcīnus, a, um, adj. I. of or from Mount Eryx in Sicily. 2. (meton.) (a) Sicilian; (b) of Venus.

Ĕrўcus, i, m. See Eryx.

Ērўmanthēus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. of or from Erymanthus, Erymanthian.

Ērўmanthĭas, ădis, f. adj. = Erymanthis.

Ērўmanthis, ĭdis, f. adj. Erymanthian: ursa, i.e. Callisto of Arcadia.

Ērўsichthōn (Ĕri-), ōnis, m. a son of the Thessalian king Triopas, condemned to devour his own flesh.

Ērўthēa (-ĭa), ae, f. a small island in the Bay of Cadiz (now Trocadero), the abode of Geryon.

Ērўthēis, ĭdis, f. adj. of Erythea: boves, i.e. Geryon's kine.

Ērythrae, ārum, f. pl. 1. a town of Boeotia. 2. one of the 12 Ionian cities of Asia Minor.

Ērythraeus, a, um, adj. I. of or from Erythrae. II. 1. of Erythrae, mythic king of S. Arabia. Erythraean: mare, (a) the Red Sea; (b) the Persian Gulf; (c) the Arabian Sea. 2. (poet. meton.) Indian: gemma, i.e. a pearl from the Indian Ocean: dens, i.e. ivory.

Ērўx, Ērўcis, m. 1. a mountain in the N.W. of Sicily, with a town of the same name on its W. slope, where Venus had a temple. 2. a son of the Argonaut Butes and Venus, half-brother to Aeneas.

(1) ĕs, 2 pers. sing. from sum.

(2) ĕs, 2 pers. sing. = ēdis, from (1) edo.

esca, ae, f. [for ed-ca; root ED-], 1. food. 2. a bait; hence, (fig.), an enticement: malorum.

escārĭus, a, um, adj. [esca], of food; fit for eating. As subst. escāria, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. vasa), dishes, chargers; dinner services.

ē-scendo, ĕre, di, sum, [scando], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. climb, mount up, ascend. 2. (in pregnant force) disembark and go inland (from the coast): Delphos. B. (trans.) mount: equos; suggestum.

ēscensio, ōnis, f. [escendo], 1. a climbing, mounting up. 2. a disembarkation, landing.

‡ eschătŏcollĭon, ĭi, n. [ἔσχατος, κολλάω], the last page of a papyrus roll.

escit, old fut. of sum, for erit.

ēscŭlentus, a, um, adj. [esca], fit for food, eatable.

ēscŭlētum, ēscŭlētus, escŭlus. See aesc-.

escunt, for erunt, from sum.

ĕsĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. edo], trans. v. eat often.

Esquilĭārius, a, um, adj. [Esquiliae], Esquiline.

Esquilĭae (Exq-, Aesq-), ārum, f. pl. [ex; root col-, the place of those who dwell outside; cf. inquilinus; colo. Sts. derived from aesculus], 1. the largest of the seven hills of Rome, with two projections, M. Cispius and M. Oppius. A. (execution) took place there, and it was used as a burial-place for slaves and criminals. Maecenas cleared and improved the spot, and built a palace there. 2. a quarter of Rome situated on the Esquiline Hill.

Esquilīnus (Exq-, Aesq-), a, um, adj. Esquiline, of the Esquiline Hill. As subst. Esquilīna, ae, f. (sc. porta), the Esquiline Gate, on the Servian Agger, now Porta Maggiore.

Esquilĭus (Exq-), a, um, = Esquilinus.

esse, essem, 1. from sum. 2. for ēdĕre, ēdĕrem, from (1) ĕdo.

essēda, ae, f. = essedum.

essēdārĭus, a, um, adj. [essedum], of or belong ng to a war-chariot. As subst. essēdārĭus, ĭi, m. 1. a British, Gallic, or Belgic warrior who fought from a war-chariot (essedum). 2. a gladiator who fought from an essedum.

essēdum, i, n. rarely -a, ae, f. [Celtic word], 1. a two-wheeled war-chariot of the Gauls and Britons, drawn by two horses. 2. a carriage, modelled like the essedum, used by wealthy Romans. 3. (meton.) a stage (of a journey): Salonem Quinto forsitan essedo videbis.

Esŭi, ōrum, m. pl. a Gallic tribe between the Seine and the Loire.

est, estis, 1. from sum. 2. from (1) ĕdo, for ĕdit, ĕditis.

estur, for ĕditur, from (1) edo.

Esŭbii, ōrum, m. pl. a Celtic tribe near the Veneti.

ēsŭries, ēi, f. [(a) esurio], hunger.

(1) ēsŭrio (ess-), īre, ītum, [desiderat, (1) edo], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) desire to eat, be hungry, hunger. B. (trans.) hunger for, long for, hanker after.

(2) ēsŭrio (ess-), ōnis, m. [(1) esurio], a hungry person, glutton.

ēsŭrītor, ōris, m. [id.], a hungry person, starveling.

(1) ĕsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) ĕdo.

(2) Ēsus (Hĕ-), i, m. a Gallic deity, identified with Mars.

ĕt, conj. [cf. Sanscr. ati, beyond, Gk. ἔτι], 1. and, and further, and that too, also, too, likewise; et . . . et, both . . . and. 2. with idem, alius, etc.: as, than. 3. (of two almost simultaneous events) and then, when: vix prima incoperat aestas Et pater Anchises dare fatis vela iubebat. 4. (to add emphasis in questions or exclamations) also, even, what is more, ay; and after this, and in spite of that. 5. (adversative) and yet, although: in amicitia nihil fictum est, et quidquid est id est verum. 6. (disjunctive) or: fraguit et attollit vires in milite causa.

ĕt-ĕnim, conj. for, and indeed, in fact, moreover.

Ĕtĕŏclēs; is, (ŏŏs), acc. em (ēa), m. son of Oedipus and Iocasta, brother of Polynices.

‡ ētēsĭae, ārum, m. pl. [ἐτησίαι, sc. ἄνεμοι, periodical winds], the N.W. winds which blow in the Aegean for 40 days during the dog-days; trade-winds, monsoons.

‡ ētēsĭus, a, um, adj. [ἐτήσιος], annual, yearly; Etesian; cf. etesiae.

‡ ēthŏlŏgus, i, m. [ἠθολόγος], an actor in a farce, mimic.

ĕtiam, conj. [et, iam], 1. and also, furthermore, likewise, too, besides. 2. even, and even, nay, even. 3. even now, yet, even yet, still. 4. (in interrogations) what? pray? 5. (colloq. in questions that imply command) etiam taces? and are you silent? Do be quiet. Etiam tu huc respondes? and now do you answer me this? Be good enough to answer this. 6. again, once more. Etiam atque etiam, again and again, over and over, repeatedly, constantly, pressingly, earnestly. 7. (in replies) oh yes; to be sure.

ĕtiam dum, even till now, hitherto, still, yet.

ĕtiam-num (-nunc), conj. 1. even now, even yet, still, yet. 2. (of past time) even then, still.

ĕtiam-si, conj. even if, although, notwithstanding.

ĕtiam-tum (-tunc), conj. even then, till that time, till then, still.

Etrūria, ae, f. a country of central Italy, N. of Rome.

Etruscus, a, um, adj. of Etruria, Etruscan: aurum, i.e. the golden bulla worn by freeborn youths, which was of Etruscan origin. As subst. Etrusci, ōrum, m. pl. the Etruscans.

et-si, conj. 1. even if, although. 2. and yet, but yet, however.

‡ eu, interj. [εὖ], well done! good! bravo!

Euadnē (Ēv-), ēs, f. the wife of Capaneus, who threw herself upon his funeral pile, and so perished.

Euan. See Euhan.

Euander (-drus), Ēvander, dri, m. 1. an Arcadian, son of Carmenta, said to have migrated to Italy, and to have founded Pallanteum on the Tiber, 60 years before the Trojan war. 2. an Athenian chaser of silver and statuary brought to Alexandria by M. Antony, and thence to Rome.

Euandrĭus (Ēvan-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Evander.

euans, ntis. See Euhan.

euax, comic interj. joy! huzza!

Euboea, ae, f. a large island in the Aegean, opposite Boeotia, now Negropont.

Euboeus and Eubŏĭcus, a, um, adj. of or from Euboea, Euboean: urbs, i.e. Cumae, in Italy, which was colonised from Chalcis in Euboea. So of the Cumaean Sibyl and the Sibylline books.

Eubŏis, ĭdis, f. adj. Euboean; and (meton.) Cumaean.

Eudēnus (-ŏs), Ēvēnus, i, m. a king of Aetolia, father of Marpessa, in grief for whom he threw himself into the river Lycormas, now Fidhari, which took his name.

Eudēninus (Ēv-), a, um, adj. of the river Euenus.

Eugănēus, a, um, adj. Euganean; of or belonging to the Euganei, a people near the Adige, in Cisalpine Gaul. Their town Altinum was noted for its wool.

‡ eugē, eugĕ, eugae, interj. [εὖγε], well done! bravo! capital!

‡ eugĕpae (eugĭ-), interj. [εὖγε παῖ], bravo, lad!

‡ Euhan, Euan, Ēvan, [Εὐάν], a name of Bacchus. Hence, euhans (euans, ēvans), ntis, part. crying Euhan; poet. with cogn. acc., orgia, holding wild revels with the (Bacchic) cry Euhan.

Euhiās, (Euiās, Ēviās), ădis, f. adj. one who cries euhoe (εὐοῖ); a Bacchante.

(1) Euhĭus (Euĭus, Ēvius), ĭi, Gk. acc. Euhĭon, m. a name of Bacchus, from the cry evoi.

(2) Euhĭus (Euĭus, Ēvius), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Bacchus, Bacchic.

euhoe (dissyll.), euoe, ēvoe, interj. [evoi], a shout of joy at Bacchic revelries.

Eumaeus, i, m. the swineherd of Ulysses.

Eumēdēs, is, m. a Trojan herald, father of Dolon.

Eumēlus, i, m. a king of Patrae.

Eumēnēs, is, m. secretary to Philip and Alexander the Great; on the death of the latter (B.C. 323) he became governor of Cappadocia, Pontus, and Paphlagonia.

‡ Eumĕnĭdēs, um, f. pl. [Εὐμενίδες (sc. θεαί), the kindly goddesses], euphem. title of the Furies.

Eumolpĭdae, ārum, m. pl. a distinguished priestly family at Athens, who claimed descent from the Thracian bard Eumol-pus, the mythic founder of the Eleusinian mysteries, and the first priest of Demeter (Ceres).

eunūchus, i, m. [εὐνοῦχος, a chamberlain], an eunuch.

euoe. See euhoe.

Euphorbus, i, m. the son of Panthous, a Trojan warrior. To prove the identity of his soul with that of Euphorbus, Pythagoras selected the shield of Euphorbus from a number which hung with it in Hera's temple at Argos.

Euphrānor, ŏris, m. a Corinthian painter and statuary, who flourished at Athens, B.C. 336.

Euphrātaeus, a, um, adj. of the Euphrates; Armenian.

Euphrātes, is (? ae), m. 1. the chief river of Syria, now El Frat, which rises in Armenia, and after joining with the Tigris falls into the Persian Gulf. 2. (meton.) the dwellers on the Euphrates.

Euphrŏsȳnē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. one of the Graces.

Eupŏlis, ĭdis, acc. Eupolidem and Eupolin, m. an Athenian poet of the Old Comedy, contemporary with Aristophanes. (446-410 B.C.)

Eurīpides, is (-ae), m. the Athenian tragic poet, born B.C. 480; died at the court of Archelaus, king of Macedonia, B.C. 406. Of his tragedies 19 are extant.

Eurīpidēus, a, um, adj. of Euripides.

‡ eurīpus (-ŏs), i, m. [εὔριπος], I. 1. a narrow channel, strait. 2. the Euripus, the strait which separates Euboea from Boeotia. II. 1. a canal, conduit. 2. a moat which ran round the interior of the Circus Maximus.

Eurōpaeus, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to Europa: dux, i.e. Minos. 2. of Europe, European.

Eurōpē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. I. 1. daughter of Agenor, mother of Minos, Sarpedon, and Rhadamanthus by Zeus, who, under the shape of a white bull, carried her off to Crete. 2. = Porticus Europae, a piazza at Rome, with a statue or a fresco of Iuppiter as a bull carrying Europa. II. the continent of Europe, named after Europe.

Eurōtās, ae, m. the chief river of Laconia, on which Sparta stood.

Eurōus, a, um, adj. [Eurus], eastern.

‡ Eurus, i, m. [εὖρος], I. the S.E. wind; sts. the east wind. II. (poet.) 1. the East. 2. any wind, the wind.

Eurȳălus, i, m. 1. a Trojan, friend of Nisus. 2. a king of Thessaly.

Eurȳdămas, ntis, m. [εὐρυδάμας, wide-ruling], a name of Hector.

Eurȳdĭcē, ēs, f. the wife of Orpheus.

Eurȳlŏchus, i, m. one of Ulysses' companions.

Eurȳmēdon, ontis, m. 1. a river in Pamphylia, the scene of Cimon's victory over the Persians, B.C. 466. 2. a king of the giants.

Eurȳmĭdēs, ae, m. patron. the son of Eurymus, i.e. the seer Telemus.

Eurȳnŏmē, ēs, f. daughter of Oceanus and mother of Leucothoë.

Eurȳpȳlus, ĭdis, f. adj. of Eurypylus; Coan: textura.

Eurȳpȳlus, i, m. 1. a king of Cos. 2. a Thessalian who took part in the expedition against Troy.

Eurysthēnes, is, m. son of Aristodemus, king of Sparta, and twin-brother of Procles.

(1) Eurystheus (trisyll.), ĕŏs, ĕī or eī, acc. Eurysthēa, m. a mythic king of Mycenae who imposed on Hercules his twelve labours.

(2) Eurystheus (quadrisyll.), a, um, adj. of Eurystheus.

Eurȳtĭon, ōnis, m. a Centaur.

Eurȳtis, ĭdis, f. patron. a daughter of Eurytus, i.e. Iole.

Eurytus, i, m. 1. a king of Oechalia killed by Hercules, and father of Iole. 2. a Centaur.

Euterpē, ēs, f. the Muse of music.

Eutrăpēlus, i, m. [εὐτράπελος, ready-witted], a sobriquet of P. Volumnius, an associate of M. Antony, on account of his witty sallies and repartees.

Eutrŏpius, ĭi, m. the author of a compendium of Roman history in 10 books who lived in the 4th century A.D.

Euxīnus, a, um, adj. [εὔξεινος, hospitable], epith. of the Black Sea, Pontus Euxinus; the Euxine. The Greek settlers called it at first Axenos (ἄξενος), inhospitable, but changed the name, from their dislike to words of evil omen. Cf. Eumenides.

Ēvadnē. See Euadne.

ē-vādo, ĕre, vāsi, vāsum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. go forth, get out, get away from, emerge. 2. get off, escape. 3. turn out, fall out, issue, end, result; become; come to pass. II. go up, mount, ascend. B. (trans.) 1. pass beyond, leave behind, pass over, cross. 2. get away from, escape: flammam; hostes. 3. mount up, scale: gradūs altos.

ē-vāgor, āri, ātus sum, intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) 1. wander forth, roam about, range; spread abroad, extend. 2. (of troops) make evolutions, extend, manœuvre. 3. (fig.) break loose; digress. B. (trans.) stray beyond, overstep.

ē-vălesco, ĕre, vălŭi, intrans. v. 1. become strong, gather strength, develop. 2. prevail, come into vogue. 3. (in perf. tense) have strength or power enough for anything, be able, avail: Dardaniae medicari cuspidis ictum.

Ēvan. See Euhan.

Ēvander (-drus), Ēvandrius. See Euander, etc.

ē-vānesco, ĕre, vānŭi, intrans. v. vanish or die away, pass away, disappear, pass into nothing.

ēvānĭdus, a, um, adj. [evanesco], vanishing, passing away.

ēvans, ntis. See Euhan.

ēvāsti, for evasisti, from evado.

ē-vasto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. lay waste utterly, devastate.

ēvax. See euax.

ēvectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eveho.

ē-vĕho, vĕhĕre, vexi, vectum, trans. v. I. 1. carry out or forth; convey out, lead forth: se, sally forth, rush out. Pass. evehi, used reflexively; advance, move forth, move, drift. 2. carry up, convey; upwards. II. (fig.) 1. carry forth, export, spread abroad. 2. raise up, elevate, advance, promote. Pass. used reflexively; rise, mount, ascend. III. (poet.) carry past or beyond: praecipites evecta est pagina gyros: medium campum.

ē-vello, ĕre, velli (vulsi rarely), vulsum, trans. v. pull or tear out, pluck off or away; pluck up by the roots, root up, eradicate.

Ēvēnĭnus, a, um. See Euen-.

ē-vĕnio, īre, vēni, ventum, intrans. v. 1. come out, come forth. 2. (fig.) turn out, fall out, issue, result, happen, come to pass, befall.

ēventum, i, n. [evenio], 1. an occurrence, event. In pl. what befalls one, one's experiences: alterum eventis docentur. 2. a consequence, result, effect, issue (of an action).

ēventus, ūs, m. [id.], I. an occurrence, event; fortune, fate: ex eventu navium suarum, in consequence of what had happened to his ships. II. 1. the outcome, issue, consequence, upshot, result of an action: eventum, a prosperous result, success, good fortune: rei eventum experiri, to try how things would turn out, to take one's chance. 2. (of an epic or dramatic composition) the end, catastrophe, dénoûment: semper ad eventum festinat.

Ēvēnus, i, m. See Euenus.

ē-verbĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. strike hard, beat, flap, slap, stir.

ē-vergo, ĕre, trans. v. send out or forth, pour forth.

ēvērrĭcŭlum, i, n. [everro], a drag-net, seine; dredge.

ē-verro, verrĕre, verri, versum, trans. v. I. sweep out. II. (fig.) clean out, gut, ransack, dismantle.

ēversĭo, ōnis, f. [everto], 1. an overthrowing. 2. overthrow, ruin, destruction.

ēversor, ōris, m. [id.], one who subverts or overturns, a destroyer.

ēversus, a, um, perf. pass. part. (a) from everro, (b) from everto.

ē-verto (-vorto), ĕre, verti, versum, trans. v. I. 1. turn upside down, overturn; upturn: aequora ventis, upheave, roughen: cervicem, twist. 2. upset, overthrow, capsize, throw down, fell. 3. turn out, drive out, eject, evict (from one's property). II. (fig.) overturn, overthrow, subvert, ruin, destroy: respublica eversa atque adflicta, ruined and down-trodden.

ē-vestigātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from obsol. evestigo, tracked out, explored.

Ēvĭās, ădis, f. See Euias.

ēvictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from evinco.

ē-videns, ntis, adj. [video], apparent, visible, manifest, plain, clear, evident. Compar. evidentior; superl. evidentissimus.

ēvidenter, adv. [evidens], evidently, manifestly. Superl. evidentissime.

ēvidentĭa, æ, f. [id.], clearness, distinctness.

ē-vĭgĭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. wake out of sleep, wake up. 2. be wakeful, remain awake, watch, be vigilant. 3. cease watching: etsi nobis, qui id aetatis sumus, evigilatum fere est (impers.), our watch, or sentinelship, is well-nigh over. B. (trans.) 1. watch through, pass in wakefulness: nox evigilanda. 2. (meton.) effect by watching; compose by night or with great care, elaborate: libros.

ē-vilesco, ĕre, vĭlŭi, intrans. incept. v. become utterly vile, grow worthless, be depreciated, lose caste.

ē-vincio, īre, vinxi, vinctum, trans. v. bind up, bind or wind round, crown; with Gk. acc.: suras evincta, having the ankles laced up.

ē-vinco, ĕre, vīci, victum, trans. v. I. 1. vanquish completely, quite subdue, conquer, overcome. 2. (meton.) prevail upon, induce, move. (fig.) get the upper hand completely, carry one's point, succeed in doing something, prevail; prove triumphantly, demonstrate. II. drive out, oust, supplant: platanus caelebs Evincet ulmos. III. ·poet.) pass by in safety, escape, clear: Charybdin.

(?) ē-vĭŏlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. violate. (In Propert. i. 7, 16, the right reading is evoluisse.)

ēvīrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eviro. As adj. unmanly, effeminate.

ē-viro, āre, āvi, ātum, [vir], trans. v. unman, emasculate.

ē-viscĕro, āre, ātum, [viscus], trans. v. disembowel; tear open, rend.

ēvītābĭlis, e, adj. [(1) evito], that may be avoided, avoidable.

(1) ē-vīto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. avoid, shun, balk; meta fervidis Evitata rotis, just cleared, grazed.

(2) ē-vīto, āre, āvi, [vita], trans. v. deprive of life, put to death.

Ēvius, ĭi, m. See Euhius.

ēvŏcātĭo, ōnis, f. [evoco], a calling out or forth, summons.

ēvŏcātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who calls out; a recruiting agent, tout.

ēvŏcātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from evoco. As subst. ēvŏcāti, ōrum, m. pl. (a) soldiers who had served their time, but volunteered at some special call. They formed a distinct corps, and seem to have ranked as centurions; men of the staff-corps; veterans; (b) a select corps of sons of equites who guarded the Imperial bedchamber; Gentlemen-at-arms, Yeomen of the Guard.

ē-vŏco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. call out, call forth, bid to come forth, summon, challenge, invite. 2. bring out, draw forth. 3. call up: animas Orco. II. (techn. t.) 1. call a deity out of a besieged city. 2. summon to appear (at a court of justice, in the senate, etc.). 3. call soldiers out for active service. III. (fig.) call forth, elicit, produce.

ēvoe, interj. See Euhoe.

ēvolgo, āre. See evulgo.

ē-vŏlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. 1. fly out, fly forth or off; fly up, ascend; spring, rush, or dash out. 2. flee away, disappear. 3. soar above others, outstrip.

ēvŏlŭam, ēvŏlŭisse, for evolvam, evolvisse, by diaeresis, from evolvo.

ēvŏlūtĭo, ōnis, f. [evolvo], an unrolling of a MS.; a reading.

ēvŏlūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from evolvo.

ē-volvo, ĕre, volvi, vŏlūtum, trans. v. I. 1. roll out or off, upheave; roll forth. Evolvere se, or pass. evolvi used reflexively, to roll out or forth, glide or crawl away. 2. unroll, unfold; unroll, open a MS., letter, etc.; hence, read, study: vestes; fastos. 3. roll off, unwind; spin to the end: tunc quae dispensant mortalia fata sorores Debuerant fusos evolvisse meos, Parce should have unwound then the spindles that held the threads of my life, i.e. it was time for me to die. Hence (of the Parcae), draw out the threads of destiny; spin: saecula; and (of the god), destine, design: quod solus mortas evoluisse deos. II. (fig.) 1. draw, bring, or thrust out, expel. Evolvere se, to extricate one's-self, rid one's-self. 2. unfold, open, develop; pass in review; recount, relate, disclose: animi complicatam notionem: oras belli; screm fati pectore tu memori nostros evolvere lusus (solitus es), i.e. to quote from memory. 3. revolve, ponder: promissa somni.

ē-vŏmo, vŏmĕre, vŏmŭi, vŏmĭtum, trans. v. I. vomit out, spew forth. II. (fig.) 1. spout forth, vent, discharge. 2. throw up, disgorge.

ēvorsus, ēvorto. See everto.

ē-vulgo (-volgo), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. publish forth or abroad, divulge, expose.

ēvulsĭo, ōnis, f. [evello], a pulling out.

ēvulsus (ēvolsus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from evello.

ex or ē (ex before vowels always, and often otherwise), prep. with abl. only, [cf. ἐκ, ἐξ], I. 1. (of place) out of, from, from off, coming from; on the side of, in the direction of; down from, on, at (=attached to): ex urbe venio; ex arbore pendet; ex equo (equis) pugnare, on horseback; ex utrāque parte, on both sides; ex equo desilire; eductos silvestri ex ubere reges, at the wild beasts' teats. 2. (of time) beginning from, after, since: ex Metello consule; ex hoc tempore, henceforward; ex Kalendis, beginning from; statim e somno lavantur, immediately after; ex itinere oppidum oppugnare, immediately after the march (and as a continuation of it); by a 'coup de main'; cf. 6 infra; diem ex die, from day to day, day after day. 3. (of source, origin, or material) from, of: audita ex te multa quidā sentias; statua ex aere facta; ex Hispaniā quidam, a certain Spaniard; ex essedis pugna, chariot fighting. 4. (of transition) from, after, instead of: ex oratore arator factus est; ex alacri atque laeto hesterno atque demissus. 5. (of partition) out of, from among, of: unus ex amicis meis; ex Afranianis interficiuntur T. Caecilius et praeter eum centuriones quattuor. 6. (of the basis of calculation, standard, cause, etc.) on the footing of; in conformity with, consistently with, in accordance with; from, for, by, in consequence of, by reason of: Aquitania . . . ex tertiā parte Galliae aestimanda, is to be reckoned as a third part; heres ex asse, a sole legatee; ex sententiā loqui, to speak to the point; ex vultu, by the look; ex fide, in good faith; ex pedibus laborat, he has gout in his feet; nomen ex vitio positum; metus ex imperatore, dread of (inspired by) the emperor: ex itinere, on or during the march, while marching, without halting; ex fugā, in a flight, whilst flying; Catilina ex itinere litteras mittit; Hasdrubal ex fugā urbem proximam petierat. The prep. denotes that one action arises out of the other. 7. (with abl. of collective abl. abs.), notwithstanding: ex tanti belli timore. II. in adverbial phrases, for which see the substantives or adjectives with which the prep. is combined; e.g. ex composito; e republicā; e vestigio, etc.

ex-ăcerbo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. exasperate, irritate, embitter.

exactio, ōnis, f. [exigo], I. a driving out, expulsion. II. a demanding, exacting; esp. (of debts) a calling in, collecting. 2. a tax, tribute. 3. superintendence, official inspection of public works. Cf. exactor, II. 2.

exactor, ōris, m. [id.], I. a driver out, expeller. II. 1. an exactor, collector (esp. of taxes); a taxgatherer: supplicii, or mortis, an executioner. 2. an overseer, superintendent; an official examiner of a contractor's work.

exactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exigo. As adj. carefully thought out, ascertained; carefully measured, of nice and perfect finish, precise, accurate; volo, a straightforward purpose; with gen. and with stretch of meaning; Mamurius (utrum) morum fabraene exactior artis Difficile est dicere, whether more perfect in character or more skilled in his art, 'tis hard to say. Compar. exactior.

ex-ăcŭo, ăcŭĕre, ăcŭi, ăcūtum, trans. v. I. make very sharp or ácesco, -ĕre, sharpen, point. II. (fig.) inflame, excite, stimulate.

ex-adversum, ex-adversus, (-adversum, -adversus), adv. and prep. with acc. over against, opposite, facing. In Plautus and Terence sts. with dat.

ex-aedificātĭo, ōnis, f. completion of a building; (fig.) crowning point, completion.

ex-aedĭfico, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. build up, finish the building of; finish, complete.

exaequātĭo, ōnis, f. [exaequo], a making level or equal, levelling, equalisation.

ex-aequo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. make even or level. 2. (fig.) place on a level, make equal, regard as equal, equalise, match: se cum inferioribus: facta dictis (dat.). II. be equal to, equal, resemble: Sabinas.

ex-aestŭo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. boil up, seethe, ferment, surge. 2. get very hot, overheat one's-self. B. (trans.) boil up with, throw off, exhale. Lucr.

exaggĕrātĭo, ōnis, f. [exaggero], (fig.) elevation, loftiness.

ex-aggĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. carry up; heap up. II. (fig.) accumulate, increase, enlarge; magnify, amplify, heighten, elevate.

exăgĭtātor, ōris, m. [exagito], a censurer.

ex-ăgĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. drive out or away, stir up, hunt, chase, rouse, disturb. II. (fig.) 1. rouse, disturb, harass, bully, persecute, confound, disquiet. 2. make a violent set at, attack, censure. 3. stir up, excite, provoke, irritate, incite.

ex-albesco, ĕre, albŭi, intrans. v. become white: turn ashy pale.

ex-ălo, āre. See exhalo.

ex-āmen, ĭnis, n. [for exagmen (exagimen); ex-igo], I. 1. a swarm. 2. (ineton.) a multitude, crowd, shoal, troop, retinue. II. 1. that which adjusts exactly; the tongue (of a balance); the index of a steelyard. 2. (fig.) a gauging, nice discrimination: legum.

exāmĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [examen, II.], trans. v. I. weigh; balance, equalise. II. (fig.) weigh, ponder, carefully examine.

ex-āmussim, adv. [amussis], according to rule; exactly, precisely.

ex-ancĭlo (less correctly -antĭlo), āre, āvi, ātum, (cf. Ancus, ancilia), I. draw out (as a servant). 2. (fig.) go through, suffer, endure, achieve.

exanguis, e. See ex-.

exănĭmātĭo, ōnis, f. [exanimo], a suffocating; breathlessness, esp. from fright; terror, dejection.

exănĭmātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exanimo, rendered breathless, exhausted, disheartened, heart-broken; killed, dead.

ex-ănĭmis, e, and ex-ănimus, a, um, adj. [anima], 1. lifeless, dead. 2. (fig.) half dead with fear, in mortal fear; breathless. Livy, Suet. and poet.

ex-ănĭmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. 1. take the breath away; deprive of air or wind. 2. deprive of life or breath; kill. 3. render breathless, exhaust. II. (fig.) deprive of heart or spirit, dishearten, terrify, make one quail; trouble, agitate.

ex-ānimus, a, um. See exanimis, Lucr., Virg., Tac.

ex-antlo, āre. See exanclo.

ex-āpĕrĭo, īre, āpĕrŭi, āpertum, trans. v. throw wide open.

ex-ardesco, ĕre, arsi, arsum, intrans. v. I. blaze out, flame up; take fire, be on fire, kindle, burn. II. (fig.) 1. be kindled, fired, inflamed, burn; break or burst out; be incensed. 2. rise or increase in value.

ex-āresco, ĕre, ārŭi, intrans. v. become completely dry, dry up, shrivel, shrink.

ex-armo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. deprive of arms, disarm. II. (fig.) disarm, render powerless, incapacitate.

ex-ăro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. plough up, grub up. II. 1. plough, till, cultivate; raise by tilling. 2. furrow, wrinkle: frontem rugis. III. (fig.) scratch (on the wax tablets), trace out letters, scrawl; write, compose, jot down.

ex-aspero, are, avi, atum, trans. v. I. 1. make rough, roughen. 2. sharpen, whet. II. (fig.) chafe, ruffle, provoke, exasperate.

ex-auctōro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. (milit. techn. t.), discharge from service, whether honourably or otherwise; disband; cashier.

ex-audĭo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. v. I. 1. hear from a distance, catch the sound of. 2. hear distinctly. II. 1. hear, perceive by hearing. 2. hearken to, listen to; pay attention to, heed.

ex-augĕo, ēre, trans. v. increase greatly, heighten.

exaugūrātĭo, ōnis, f. [exauguro], a deconsecration.

ex-augŭro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. deconsecrate, apply to profane uses.

ex-caeco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. make blind, blind. 2. (fig.) stop up, obstruct, dam.

ex-calcĕo (-lo), ēre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. deprive of shoes, unshoe. Part. excalcĕātus, a, um, 1. without walking shoes, i.e. with house-shoes on. 2. barefoot. 3. (of tragic actors) without the cothurnus. Sts. (of pantomimists) without either soccus or cothurnus.

excandescentĭa, ae, f. [excandesco], passionateness.

ex-candesco, ĕre, candŭi, intrans. v. give out a white heat, grow hot, kindle, glow.

ex-canto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. chant or charm forth, call forth by incantations.

ex-carnĭfico, āre, ātum, trans. v. 1. cut to pieces. 2. (fig.) torture, torment.

ex-căvo, āre, ātum, trans. v. hollow or scoop out.

ex-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. go out or forth, go away, retire, withdraw. 2. go beyond, rise above. II. (fig.) 1. depart. 2. depart from life, decease, die. 3. advance, proceed, rise; transgress, digress, go beyond or further. 4. go away, disappear. B. (trans.) I. depart from, quit, leave: urbem. II. (fig.) go beyond, surpass, exceed, transcend, overstep; overtop, tower above.

excellens, ntis, part. from excello. As adj. 1. lofty. 2. (fig.) pre-eminent, surpassing, superior. Compar. excellentior; superl. excellentissimus.

excellenter, adv. in a pre-eminent or superior manner, exceptionally, prominently. Compar. excellentius.

excellentĭa, ae, f. pre-eminence, superiority, excellence, perfection.

excelsē, adv. [excelsus], on high; loftily, highly. Compar. excelsius.

excelsĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], loftiness, height.

excelsus, a, um, adj. [excello], I. elevated, lofty, high, tall. As subst. excelsum, i, n. a height. II. (fig.) lofty, sublime. As subst. excelsum, i, n. a lofty station, position of eminence. Compar. excelsior; superl. excelsissimus.

exceptĭo, ōnis, f. [excipio], 1. an exception, restriction, limitation. 2. (legal techn. t.) an equitable plea, or answer to the plaintiff's demand, raised on the part of the defendant and inserted in the praetor's instructions to the judex.

ex-cepto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. excipio], take up, catch up; take in, snuff: auras.

exceptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excipio.

ex-cerno, ĕre, crēvi, crētum, trans. v. sift out, separate; discharge.

ex-cerpo, ĕre, psi, ptum, [carpo], trans. v. I. pick or take out. II. (fig.) 1. choose, select, set aside, single out. 2. except, omit, leave out.

excerptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excerpo. As subst. excerptum, i, n. an extract, selection.

excessus, for excesseris, perf. subj. or old form of perf. subj. like faxis, from excedo.

excessus, ūs, m. [excedo], 1. a departure; esp. a departure from life, decease, death. 2. a deviation, digression.

excetra, ae, f. a snake, serpent, viper; sts. as a term of reproach.

(1) excĭdium, ĭi, n. [excido], overthrow, demolition, ruin, destruction.

(2) excĭdium, ĭi, n., for exscidium, q.v.

(1) ex-cīdo, cīdĕre, cīdi, cīsum, [caedo], trans. v. I. cut out or off, hew down; quarry. II. raze, demolish, destroy, annihilate. III. (fig.) extirpate, banish. IV. castrate.

(2) ex-cīdo, cīdĕre, cĭdi, [cado], intrans. v. I. 1. fall out or down, drop. 2. (of a lot) fall or come out: ut cuiusque sors exciderat. II. slip out or away, escape: vinclis. III. (fig.) 1. drop from, escape or slip from (involuntarily). 2. pass away, be lost, perish, die, disappear. 3. swoon, faint. 4. slip from the memory, be forgotten: excidit tuum: excidit ut peterem (sc. optarem), I forgot to ask. 5. virtually,=pass. of excutio ((ex) reliquā re) be deprived of, lose, forfeit; be disappointed of, miscarry in, fail: cf. ἐκπίπτω in Gk.

ex-cīdo, ĕre, excīsum. See excio, and cf. cieo, cio.

ex-cio, īre, īvi (ĭi), excītum, trans. v. I. call out or forth, summon, bring or draw out. II. (meton.) bring out or forth, produce, raise, cause. III. (fig.) 1. rouse, stir up, excite, terrify, disquiet. 2. stir up, excite: terrorem.

ex cĭpio, cĭpĕre, cēpi, ceptum, (capio), trans. v. I. 1. take out, draw out, withdraw. 2. set aside, exempt; except, make an exception of. Neut. abl. abs. excepto, the exception being made, with the exception that. 3. (legal techn. t.) make legal exception to a thing; refuse to warrant: mentem, nisi litigiosus, Exciperet dominus, cum venderet. II. 1. take to one's self, catch, capture, take, receive. 2. (milit. techn. t.) lie in wait for and catch, await, trap, nest, intercept, surprise: latitantem fruticeto aprum: (fig.) ut praesto esset ille qui fugientes exciperet. 3. receive, welcome, entertain, shelter. 4. take up, take in turn, receive after. 5. come next to, follow after, succeed. III. (fig.) 1. catch up, await, intercept; meet, encounter, face. 2. take on one's self, undertake; pick up, appropriate, lay hold of; overhear. 3. follow upon, succeed. 4. take up (in speaking), answer, rejoin.

excīsio, ōnis, f. [excido], a destroying, destruction.

excīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excido.

excĭtātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excito. As adj. animated, lively, strong, vigorous. Compar. excitatior; superl. excitatissimus.

ex-cĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. excieo], trans. v. I. 1. call out or forth, rouse out; call, wake, or rouse up, summon. 2. start game from their lair; startle, scare. II. (meton.) 1. raise hastily, run up, raise, erect. 2. produce, cause, bring forth. III. (fig.) 1. rouse, excite, stimulate, animate, kindle, provoke. 2. build up, erect, raise. 3. set on one's legs, reinstate: excitata fortuna, fortune in the ascendant, opp. to inclinata.

(1) excĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excieo.

(2) excĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excio.

exclāmātio, ōnis, f. [exclamo], a calling out, outcry, exclamation.

ex-clāmo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) call out, cry aloud, exclaim. B. (trans.) utter aloud, cry or shout out, exclaim: illa exclamat, 'Abi, abi, iam Aeschine:' Brutus crucentum pugionem tenens Ciceronem exclamavit, shouted out (the name of) Cicero.

ex-clūdo, ĕre, clūsi, clūsum, [claudo], trans. v. I. shut out, exclude, refuse admittance to; cut off, remove, separate. II. 1. drive out, put or thrust out. 2. (of birds) hatch: pullos. III. (fig.) exclude, except; hinder, prevent, bar.

exclūsio, ōnis, f. [excludo], a shutting out, exclusion, non-admission.

exclūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excludo.

excoctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excoquo.

excōgĭtātio, ōnis, f. a thinking out, devising, inventing.

excōgĭtātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excogito. As adj. choice.

ex-cōgĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. think out, find out by thinking, devise, contrive, invent.

ex-cŏlo, cŏlĕre, cŏlŭi, cultum, trans. v. I. work carefully, cultivate well. II. (meton.) improve, adorn, trick out. III. (fig.) 1. improve, better, refine, polish, ennoble: exculta hominum vita, i.e. civilisation. 2. honour, worship.

ex-cŏquo, cŏquĕre, coxi, coctum, trans. v. I. 1. boil out, boil away, bake out. 2. (meton.) prepare with fire, purify by fire. II. 1. bake or boil thoroughly. 2. (meton.) (a) melt, fuse, soften, break up: (b) temper, harden: durior et ferro quod Noricus excoquit ignis; (c) dry up, dry. III. (fig.) prey upon, vex.

ex-cors, cordis, adj. [cor], without intelligence, witless, senseless, void of reason, brainless.

(1) excrēmentum, i, n. [excerno], 1. sift'ings, refuse. 2. an excretion, discharge: oris, i.e. saliva; narium, mucus of the nose.

(2) excrēmentum, i, n. [excresco], that which grows out, an excrescence, projection: excrementa manūs, the nails or finger-tips.

ex-crĕo, āre. See exscreo.

ex-cresco, ĕre, crēvi, crētum, intrans. v. I. grow out or forth, grow up, rise up. II. grow big, increase.

(1) excrētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excresco, full grown.

(2) excrētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excerno, separated; (of young animals) dropped, newly born.

ex-crŭcio, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. torture greatly, torment, rack; harass, plague, afflict; sts. with animi (locat.).

excŭbiae, ārum, f. pl. [excubo], 1. a watch by night or day; a lying out on guard, esp. by night; a keeping guard, watch. 2. (meton.) the persons or things keeping watch; a guard, patrol.

excŭbĭtor, ōris, m. [id.], a watchman by night or day; a picket, guard, sentinel, patrol.

ex-cŭbo, āre, cŭbŭi, cŭbĭtum, intrans. v. I. lie out of doors; esp. lie out on guard, keep watch, watch, bivouac. II. (fig.) watch, be watchful, or on the watch.

ex-cūdo, ĕre, cūdi, cūsum, [obsol. caudo, smite, cut], trans. v. I. strike or hammer out. II. (meton.) forge, mould; form, construct, fashion. III. (fig.) compose.

ex-culco, āre, āvi, ātum, [calco], trans. v. I. trample out. 2. tread or trample down, stamp firm or close.

excultus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excolo.

ex-curro, ĕre, cŭcurri (-curri), cursum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. 1. run out, hasten forth. 2. (milit. techn. t.) sally forth, make a raid or sortie. II. run out, range; extend, project. III. (fig.) spread, have free scope, latitude. B. (trans.) run through: prope iam excurso spatio, now that my course is nearly run.

excursio, ōnis, f. [excurro], I. 1. a running out or forth. 2. (milit. techn. t.) a sally, sortie, ski-mish, onset, raid, inroad. 3. a jaunt, trip. II. (fig.) 1. a digression. 2. an outset, commencement.

excursor, ōris, m. [id.], a skirmisher, scout, vedette.

(1) excursus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excurro.

(2) excursus, ūs, m. [excurro]. I. 1. a running out or forth; trip, excursion. 2. (milit. techn. t.) a sally, sortie; raid, inroad; dash forwards, onset. II. (fig.) a digression.

excūsābĭlis, e, adj. [excuso], that may be excused, venial.

excūsātē, adv. [excusatus], without blame, with some justification. Compar. excusatius.

excūsātio, ōnis, f. [excuso], an excusing, excuse, plea; an excusing of one's-self from a duty, a plea for declining an office, etc.

excūsātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excuso. As adj. excused, justified.

ex-cūso, āre, āvi, ātum, [causa], trans. v. lit. release from a charge; free from blame. I. justify, excuse: se, apologise. II. (meton.) 1. allege in excuse, plead by way of excuse. 2. find an excuse for, apologise for 3. (aliquem ab aliquā re, or alicui rei), excuse, absolve, discharge.

excussus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excutio. As adj. thrown forward, stretched out, extended, stiff.

excūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from excudo.

ex-cŭtio, cŭtĕre, cussi, cussum, [quatio], trans. v. I. 1. knock out or off; force, thrust, or drive out, aside, or out of the way; uncoil; shake, toss; knock overboard; throw (as a horse his rider); cause to drop. Hence, in pass. sts.=excido, drop. 2. hurl, discharge, throw forward. 3. shake, stir, turn inside out. II.

(fig.) 1. shake out or off, discard, get rid of forcibly, cast off. 2. remove violently, force or dash to the ground, or away from, wrest, wring. 3. sift, search, scrutinise, rummage, examine, criticise. 4. (pass. reflex.) rouse one's-self. [exseexĕco, execror, exŏquor. See ex-ŏdo, ēdēre, ēdi, ēsum, trans. v. 1. eat up, consume. II. (fig.) feed or prey upon : undermine, destroy, ruin ; consume, corrode.

‡ exĕdra, ae, f. [ἐξέδρα], a conversation-room, parlour, saloon ; a bay or apse furnished with rows of seats.

‡ exĕdrium, ii, n. [ἐξέδριον], a parlour, hall.

exemplār, āris, (-ārē, is, Lucr.), n. [exemplum], I. 1. a transcript, copy. 2. (fig.) a facsimile, likeness, impression, copy : tanquam exemplar aliquod sui intueri. II. 1. a pattern, model, original. 2. a type, instance, specimen.

exemplum, i, n. [eximo], I. a sample. II. 1. an imitation, image, portrait, facsimile, counterpart, draught, transcript, copy. 2. a pattern, model, original, type, example, precedent, case, instance : exempli causā or gratiā, by way of specimen or example, to serve as a pattern. 3. a warning example, punishment, warning : in eos omnia exempla cruciatusque edere ; in exemplo esse, to serve as a warning. 4. a way, usage, manner, kind, fashion, sort : exemplo nubis aquosae, like a watery cloud. 5. the contents, tenour, purport (of a document, letter, etc.) : cur saepius ad me litteras uno exemplo dedisses.

exemptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from eximo.

ex-entĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. ἐξ-ἐντερίζω, ἔντερον], disembowel, draw ; torment, empty.

ex-ĕo, īre, ĭi (īvi), ĭtum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. 1. go out or forth ; depart, quit, withdraw. 2. march out of camp, sally forth. 3. issue forth ; be turned out, produced : currente rotā cur urceus exit? 4. rise upwards, mount up, ascend ; shoot or spring up (of plants, trees) : hic mihi magna domus, celsis caput urbibus exit ; ingens Exiit in caelum ramis felicibus arbos. 5. get off, escape. II. (techn. t.) 1. (of iudices) in reum exire, to go out to consider their verdict upon a defendant ; cf. in consilium ire. 2. (of an official) leave the city, go on foreign service. II. (fig.) 1. go forth, quit, leave ; issue, proceed : de vitā, e vitā, depart from life, die. 2. be published, become generally known, get abroad, be current. 3. run out, extend, be protracted : cui haec fere course : circus in hunc (mensem) exit ; multos exibit in annos Hic furor. 4. run out, expire ; pass away, perish. 5. digress. B. (trans.) 1. go or pass beyond : Avernas valles ; modum. 2. get out of the reach of, avoid, parry, baffle : vim viribus.

exequiae, exequor, etc. See exsequ-.

ex-ercĕo, ēre, cŭi, citum, [arceo], trans. v. I. drive forward, keep in motion, keep busy, keep at work, work at ; till ; ply : tauros ; campos vomere ; telas ; diem, spend the day in toil. II. (fig.) 1. engage busily, occupy, employ. Exerceo me, or exerceor, I exercise or train myself, practise ; find occupation. 2. exercise, train, practise. 3. keep up, keep in practice, exercise, employ, make use of ; follow up, carry into effect, carry on, perform : iudicium (of the praetor), presides at a trial ; scelus. 4. disturb, disquiet, persecute, harass, pester, vex.

exercitātio, ōnis, f. [exercito], exercise, practice ; opportunity for practising ; facility acquired by practice ; ease, readiness, experience (in speaking, etc.).

exercitātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exercito. As adj. 1. well exercised, practised, skilled, trained, versed. 2. troubled, agitated, vexed. Compar. exercitatior ; superl. exercitatissimus.

exercĭtium, ii, n. [exerceo], exercise, manœuvring.

exercĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, (freq. exerceo), trans. v. exercise or practise frequently.

(1) exercĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exerceo. As adj. 1. trained, disciplined. 2. spent in toil ; vexatious, trying, harassing.

(2) exercĭtus, ūs, m. [exerceo], 1. a drilled, trained, disciplined body of men ; an army, force, host. 2. a multitude, host, bevy, flock, gang, etc. 3. the assembly of the Roman people by their centuriae.

exĕro, exertus. See exs-.

exĕsor, ōris, m. [exĕdo], one that eats into or away, an underminer.

exĕsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exĕdo.

exhālātio, ōnis, f. [exhalo], an exhalation, vapour.

ex-hālo (-ălo), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. (trans.) 1. breathe forth, exhale, evaporate. 2. (vitam, animam), breathe one's last, expire. Sts. absolutely. B. (intrans.) steam, reek.

ex-haurio, īre, hausi, haustum, trans. v. 1. draw out or forth, empty by drawing, drain, dry up, exhaust. 2. (fig.) a. shovel up or out, take out, empty out, remove. 2. make empty, exhaust, drain. III. (fig.) 1. take away, remove. 2. absorb, use up, bring to an end, exhaust ; drink deep of, endure to the end, bear the brunt of ; carry out, execute. 3. drain the life-blood of, impoverish.

exhaustus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exhaurio, dried up, drained, exhausted ; suffered till the end, undergone, done and over. As subst. exhaustum, i, n. exhaustion, expenditure : cui labori nunquam satis exhausti est, i.e. which is never satisfied with the pains spent on it, is never at an end.

exhērēdo, āre, āvi, ātum, [exheres], trans. v. disinherit.

ex-hēres, ēdis, adj. disinherited.

ex-hĭbĕo, ēre, hĭbŭi, hĭbĭtum, [habeo], trans. v. I. hold forth, tender, present ; deliver, give up, produce ; utter ; make, render. II. (meton.) show, display, exhibit. III. (fig.) show, exhibit, employ, exercise ; procure, occasion, cause : exhibe vocis fidem, show the fidelity of your words, fulfil your promise.

exhĭbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exhibeo, brought forward, produced, shown : non exhibiti tori, clandestine, illicit unions.

ex-hĭlāro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. make very glad or joyous, gladden, cheer, exhilarate, refresh.

ex-horresco, ĕre, horrŭi, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) shudder exceedingly, be terrified. B. (trans. ; poet.) shudder at, shrink in terror from : vultus amicos.

exhortātio, ōnis, f. [exhortor], an exhortation, encouraging, encouragement.

ex-hortor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. exhort, encourage, cheer.

exĭbilo, exicco, etc. See exsi-.

(?) exĭĕt, 3 sing. fut. ind. from exeo, for exibit. In Hor. C. iv. 4. 65, all good MSS. have evenit.

ex-īgo, īgĕre, ēgi, actum, [ago], trans. v. I. 1. drive out or forth, thrust out, turn out, expel, chase, drive away. 2. turn (a wife) out of doors, divorce. 3. (stage techn. t.) hiss off the stage : fabulas. 4. exact, demand, require, enforce, claim (a debt, penalty, tax, duty, etc.). 5. offer for sale, find a market for : agrum non fructus. 6. measure, weigh, try, examine. II. drive, force, thrust, plunge : ensem Per medium iuvenem. III. (fig.) 1. demand, claim. 2. inquire, question ; ascertain, find out ; think out, plan, consider. 3. weigh, prove, test, carefully examine, adjust nicely, estimate, determine. 4. treat, negotiate. 5. bring to an end, consummate, complete, finish : opus ; medium dies exegerat horas ; per exactos annos, as each year comes round, at the close of every year. 6. spend, pass : annos ; aevum studiis. 7. drive on, impel. 8. (poet.) pass by or beyond.

exiguē, adv. [exiguus], scantily, barely, sparingly ; with minuteness ; in a narrow spirit ; slightly, briefly.

exiguĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], smallness, littleness, shortness, small number, small extent, scantiness, scarcity, brittleness.

exiguus, a, um, adj. [exigo], lit. weighed out, exactly measured ; opp. to abundant, 1. scanty (in quantity or size), limited, small, little, short, petty, mean, poor, meagre, requiring economy, feeble, brief. As subst. exiguum, i, n. a small or trifling quantity, a scrap. Superl. exiguissimus.

exĭlio, īre. See exsilio.

exĭlis, e, adj. [contr. for exigilis ; exigo. Corssen derives from ex, ile, "the flank"], lit. drawn out. 1. thin, slender, spare, lank, meagre, slight, poor, feeble, insignificant, ill-furnished, ill-provided: domus Plutonia, (b) cheerless, (b) unreal, shadowy, unsubstantial.

exīlitas, ātis, f. [exilis], thinness, slenderness, meagreness, poverty.

exīliter, adv. [id.], thinly, meagrely; in a niggard spirit of exactness. Compar. exilius.

exīlium, ĭi, n. See exsilium.

exim. See exinde.

eximiē, adv. [eximius], uncommonly, unusually, exceptionally; exceedingly, in a marked degree: cenare, extravagantly.

eximius, a, um, adj. [eximo], lit. taken from the mass, 1. excepted, exempt: eximium neminem habere, to except none (= eximere). 2. select, choice, unusual, uncommon, extraordinary, superior, distinguished, eminent; poet. with prolate infin., animam servare sub undis, i.e. a crack diver.

ex-īmo, īmĕre, ēmi, emptum, [emo; cf. adimo], trans. v. I. 1. take out or away, remove, withdraw. 2. free, release, deliver, secure. II. (fig.) 1. remove, banish: curas; plurimis mortalium non eximitur (impers.) quin . . . destinentur, most men cannot part with the conviction that . . . 2. release, deliver; exempt, except. 3. take up, consume, waste: diem dicendo, i.e. talk out a motion.

exin, adv. See exinde.

ex-īnānio, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, trans. v. empty completely, clear out, make desolate, depopulate, exhaust, drain, impoverish.

ex-indē, exin by apocope, also exim, adv. 1. from there, from that place, thence. 2. after that, thereafter; thereupon, next, then.

exintĕro, āre. See exentero.

existĭmātio, ōnis, f. [existimo], I. a judging, judgment, opinion. II. what is thought of a person, expressed opinion; reputation, good name, character.

existimātor, ōris, m. [id.], a judge, critic.

ex-istimo, (-īmo), āre, āvi, ātum, [aestimo], trans. v. I. value, estimate, esteem. II. judge, consider, think, regard, deem, reckon; form a judgment, have or express an opinion; criticise.

existo, ĕre. See exsisto.

existūmātio, etc. See existi-.

exĭtĭābilis, e, adj. [exitium], deadly, pernicious, fatal.

exĭtālis, e, adj. [id.], deadly, destructive.

exĭtiōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], destructive, ruinous. Compar. exitiosior.

exĭtium, ĭi, n. [exeo], 1. a going forth, egress. 2. disaster, destruction, ruin, havoc. In pl., kinds, ways, or methods of disaster, etc.

exĭtus, ūs, m. [id.], I. a going out or forth, egress, departure. II. (meton.) an outlet, passage, opening. III. (fig.) 1. a way out, result, issue, event, finish, ending, conclusion, close; sts. a successful ending, success. 2. a way out of a difficulty, means of escape, loop-hole. 3. departure from life, end, decease, death. 4. a starting-point, opening, opportunity.

ex-lex, (lēgis), adj. beyond the control of the law, lawless. Only in nom. and acc.

ex-lĭdo, ĕre. See elido.

ex-mŏvĕo, ēre. See emoveo.

‡ exŏdium, ĭi, n. [ἔξόδιον], 1. a short, humorous interlude or after-piece, attached to the fabulae Atellanae; a farce. 2. (meton.) a conclusion, end.

ex-ŏlesco, ĕre, ŏlēvi, ŏlētum, intrans. v. I. grow up, attain full size. II. 1. grow to an end, stop growing. 2. (meton.) grow old, grow out of date; cease, be disused, forgotten; pass away, die away, disappear.

exŏlētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exolesco, 1. grown up, mature. 2. debauched, dissolute, depraved. 3. old, out of date, obsolete, forgotten.

exolvo, ĕre. See exsolvo.

ex-ŏnĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. disburden, unload, clear, discharge. II. remove, send off. III. (fig.) free, relieve, ease, lighten, disembarrass.

exoptābilis, e, adj. [exopto], very desirable.

exoptātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exopto. As adj. ardently longed for. Compar. exoptatior; superl. exoptatissimus.

ex-opto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. long ardently for, desire greatly, wish for earnestly.

exōrābilis, e, adj. [exoro], easy to be entreated, that may be won or moved by entreaty, accessible to prayer: non exorabilis, inexorable, implacable.

exōrātor, ōris, m. [id.], a successful ambassador or pleader.

ex-ordĭor, dīri, orsus sum, trans. dep. I. lay the warp, commence weaving; weave. II. (meton.) begin, commence.

exordĭum, ĭi, n. [exordior], I. the beginning of a web, the warp. II. (meton.) a commencement, beginning, origin; an introduction, preface.

exōrĭens, ntis, part. from exorior. As subst. m. (sc. sol), the rising sun, the morning; the east.

ex-ŏrĭor, orīri, ortus sum, intrans. dep. rise forth, spring up, start up, arise, appear, become.

exornātio, ōnis, f. [exorno], an adorning; embellishment.

exornātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who adorns or sets off, an embellisher.

ex-orno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. fit out, furnish completely, equip, supply liberally. 2. (without obj. or acc.) make arrangements. II. 1. deck out, adorn, embellish, set off. 2. (comic) trim, quilt, give a dressing to; eum adeo exornatum dabo.

ex-ōro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. move or prevail upon by entreaty; buy off, appease: non exoratus, inexorable. 2. obtain by entreaty. 3. entreat earnestly, try to win by entreaty: pacem divum. 4. avert with prayers, exorcise: noctes.

exors, rtis. See exsors.

(1) exorsus, a, um, perf. part. from exordior; (in pass. sense begun, commenced. As subst. exorsa, ōrum, n. pl. a beginning, commencement, prelude, preamble, undertaking, enterprise.

(2) exorsus, ūs, m. [exordior], a first part, beginning: orationis.

(1) exortus, a, um, perf. part. from exorior.

(2) exortus, ūs, m. [exorior], a coming forth, rising.

ex-ŏs, ossis, adj. without bones, boneless.

ex-oscŭlor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. 1. kiss fondly. 2. admire.

exosso, āre, āvi, ātum, [exos], trans. v. I. take out the bones of, bone; congrum. II. (meton.) make supple or flexible: exossato pectore. III. (fig.) 1. clear from stones. 2. extract the marrow from, impoverish.

‡ exōstra, ae, f. [ἐξώστρα], a stage machine, by which any object required was brought from behind the scenes and exposed to view; hence, (meton.) public view.

exōsus, a, um, part. [odi], 1. (active) hating utterly. 2. (passive) hated utterly.

‡ exōticus, a, um, adj. [ἐξωτικός], outlandish, foreign, exotic.

ex-pallesco, ĕre, pallŭi, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) turn very pale. (trans.) turn pale at, shrink in dread from: Pindarici fontis haustus.

ex-pallĭdus, a, um, adj. exceedingly pale, wan, ghastly.

ex-palpo, āre, trans. v. get by coaxing.

ex-pando, ĕre, pandi, pansum, or passum, trans. v. spread out, expand, unfold, lay open.

expansus and expassus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expando.

expătior, āri. See exspa-.

ex-patro, āre, āvi, trans. v. bring to an end, squander.

ex-pāvesco, ĕre, pāvi, intrans. and trans. v. (intrans.) become greatly frightened. B. (trans.) be greatly frightened at, fear greatly, dread.

expectātio, expecto, etc. See exsp-.

ex-pectŏro, āre, (pectus), trans. v. drive from the breast.

ex-pĕdio, īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, [pes], trans. v. lit. free the feet (from a snare, etc.). I. extricate, disengage, clear, set loose, release. Expedior, passive used reflexively, I clear myself, make my way, pass safely. II. (meton.) 1. fetch out, bring or set forth, produce, make ready, prepare; (of arms, troops, etc.) make or hold in readiness for action. Expedire se, expediri, pass. used reflexively, and sts. expedire without object acc., to hold one's self in readiness for ac- tion; take the field, go on active service. 2. send clear away, despatch: iaculo trans finem expedito, flung clear beyond the mark. III. (fig.) 1. extricate, release, free; make a clear way for, make easy. 2. settle, organise, arrange, set right: mina, i.e. settle, pay. 3. carry out, bring into play. 4. disclose, unfold, unriddle, explain, detail, relate. IV. Expedit (unip.), (it) is serviceable, advantageous, expedient, well worth while.

expĕdītē, adv. [expeditus], without hindrance, readily, promptly, quickly. Compar. expeditius; superl. expeditissime.

expĕdītio, ōnis, f. [expedio], 1. a military expedition, campaign: milites in expeditionem mittere, to send troops on duty requiring rapid movement, i.e. as a flying column. 2. an excursion.

expĕdītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expedio. As adj. 1. unencumbered, disengaged, free, ready for action, prompt. 2. (of troops) without baggage, light armed, in light marching order. As subst. expĕdītus, i, m. a soldier in light marching order. 3. ready to hand, handy, straightforward, easy, unrestricted. In expedito esse (habere), to be (to have) in readiness or at hand.

ex-pello, ĕre, pŭli, pulsum, trans. v. drive or thrust out, drive away, force out, expel, eject, remove.

ex-pendo, ĕre, di, sum, trans. v. I. 1. weigh out, weigh. 2. weigh out (money) in payment, pay out, pay. 3. expensum ferre, set down in one's ledger as paid out: cautos nominibus rectis expendere nummos, to lend money on good security to solvent debtors, or money secured by good names. Cf. expensus. II. (meton.) measure: expenso planta morata gradu. III. (fig.) 1. weigh mentally, ponder, estimate, examine, judge, decide. 2. pay a penalty, suffer: poenas. Also (poet.) pay for, atone for, expiate: scelus.

expensa, ae, f. (sc. pecunia), [expendo], a disbursement, payment.

expensum, i, n. [id.], a sum paid out, disbursement, payment; loan; (in book-keeping) the debtor side of one's ledger. For the phrase ferre (referre) expensum alicui, see expensus.

expensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expendo. Pecuniam expensam or expensum ferre (referre) alicui, to enter a sum in one's ledger as paid to so-and-so, to debit him with a sum, charge it to his account; lend to a person. Also (fig.) of other things, lend, transfer: legio, quam expensum tulit C. Caesari Pompeius. Cf. acceptum, accipio, III.

experge-făcio, fēcĕre, fēci, factum, [expergo; facio], trans. v. waken, arouse, call up, stir, excite.

expergĕfio, fiĕri, pass. of expergefacio.

pergiscor, gisci, perrectus [expergo], intrans. dep. lit. one's-self; wake up, rise up, bestir one's-self.

expergĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expergo.

ex-pergo, ĕre, gi, gĭtum, trans. v. lit. pull out straight; waken, rouse up.

experiens, ntis, part. from experior. As adj. 1. enterprising, active; that has gone through much, sage, experienced. 2. (with gen.) able to go through, habituated or inured to: laborum. Superl. experientissimus.

experientĭa, ae, f. [experior], I. 1. a trial, proof, experiment; mode of proving, test. 2. essay, venture, endeavour. II. (meton.) practical knowledge, experience.

experĭmentum, i, n. [id.], 1. a proof, experiment, trial, test. 2. actual experience: Trebellius nullis castrorum experimentis (abi. of quality). 3. a result, event.

ex-pĕrior, pĕrīri, pertus sum, [root PER-; cf. comperio, periculum; περάω, πεῖρα], trans. dep. I. 1. prove, put to the proof, make trial of, try, test. 2. find, know by experience, taste: amores experietur amaros; puellae Iam virum expertae, i.e. lately wedded. 3. (in a hostile sense) measure one's-self with, try conclusions with, encounter. II. 1. try to do, attempt; make trial of, undergo, experience; (poet. with infin.) coniugis magicis avertere sanos sensus. 2. (legal techn. t.) try or test by law, go to law, take proceedings: experiundi potestas.

experrectus, a, um, perf. part. from expergiscor. As adj. awake, on the alert.

ex-pers, tis, adj. with gen. [pars], 1. having no part in, not sharing in. 2. (meton., with gen.) destitute or devoid of, free from, without: (puella) expers viri, nuptiarum, i.e. unwedded; Chium (vinum) maris expers, undiluted with sea-water (to take off the lusciousness), or, that has never crossed the sea, i.e. sham Chian. Sts. with abl.: famā atque fortunis.

expertus, a, um, perf. part. from experior. In passive sense, 1. proved, tried, known by experience: expertus totiens quam male credis aquae! 2. (with gen.) skilled, experienced in: expertos belli iuvenes. Superl. expertissimus.

expĕtendus, a, um, gerundive from expeto. As adj choice-worthy, desirable.

expĕtens, ntis, part. from expeto. As adj. eager, grasping.

expĕtesso (-isso), ĕre, [intens. from expeto], trans. v. desire eagerly, long for.

expĕtītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expeto.

ex-pĕto, pĕtĕre, pĕtīvi or ĭi, pĕtītum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. seek eagerly, long for, seek after desire, aspire to, aim at. 2. demand, exact; (of punishment or vengeance, etc.) wreak, inflict. 3. reach, attain to: aetatem. 4. seek out, contrive. B. (intrans.) fall out, happen, befall, fall upon.

explātĭo, ōnis, f. [expio], expiation, atonement, satisfaction.

explctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expingo.

expīlātĭo, ōnis, f. [expilo], a pillaging.

expīlātor, ōris, m. [id.], a pillager, plunderer.

ex-pīlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. pillage, plunder, rob.

ex-pingo, ĕre, pinxi, pictum, trans. v. 1. paint over, paint, pourtray. 2. (fig.) depict in words, give a graphic description of.

ex-pĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. atone for, make satisfaction or amends for, expiate, purify. 2. avert by ceremonial sacrifice, etc. 3. visit, avenge: tua scelera in milites. II. (meton.) 1. make amends for, make good, remedy. 2. appease: manes mortuorum.

expīro, āre. See exsp-.

ex-piscor, āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. fish out; hence, make inquiry, search, investigate, take pains to find out.

explānātē, adv. plainly, clearly. Compar. explanatius.

explānātĭo, ōnis, f. [explano], 1. a making clear, explanation. 2. distinct articulation, distinctness.

explānātor, ōris, m. [id.], one whose business it is to explain, an interpreter.

explānātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from explano. As adj. clear, distinct, plain.

ex-plāno, āre, āvi, ātum, [planus], I. flatten, spread out. II. (fig.) make plain or clear, explain.

explaudo, ēre. See explodo.

ex-plēo, ēre, ēvi, ētum, trans. v. I. fill up, fill to the brim, quite fill; cram, glut. II. (fig.) 1. fill up, complete; finish, accomplish. 2. fulfil, discharge, execute. 3. satisfy, satiate, glut; poet. with gen.: animum explēsse iuvabit Ultricis flammae, to have sated my soul with the fire of vengeance.

explērĭēr, explēris, for expleri, pass. infin., and expleveris, 2 sing. fut. perf. or perf. subj. from expleo.

explēsse, explessent, for explevisse, explevissent, from expleo.

explētĭo, ōnis, f. [expleo], a satisfying.

explētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expleo. As adj. full, complete, perfect.

explĭcātē, adv. [explico], plainly, clearly.

explĭcātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. an unfolding, uncoiling. 2. (fig.) an unfolding, expounding, clearing up, explanation; the faculty of explanation, expository power.

explĭcātor, ōris, m. [id.], one whose function it is to explain, an expounder.

explĭcātrix, trĭcis, f. [id.], she who explains or expounds.

explĭcātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from explico. As adj. I. spread out. II. (fig.) 1. plain, clear, straightforward. 2. assured, certain. Compar. explicatior.

(2) explĭcātus, ūs, m. [explico], 1. an unfolding, stretching apart. 2. (fig.) an explanation, exposition.

explĭcĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from explico. As adj. cleared from difficulty, easy, straightforward. Compar. explicitior.

ex-plico, āre, plĭcāvi and plĭcŭi, plĭcātum and plĭcitum, trans. v. I. unfold, uncoil, unwind, undo; lay flat, smooth; spread out, open, loosen. II. (meton.) 1. open out, extend, deploy, display. 2. set out, put on table: convivium. 3. (poet.) lay low (in death). III. (fig.) 1. disentangle, clear from difficulty, set to rights, put straight, tabulate, arrange, settle, organise, adjust; carry safely through, facilitate: nihilo plus explicet ac si Insanire paret, he would clear up matters no more, i.e. would succeed no better, than, etc. 2. free, extricate, release. 3. set forth, unfold, exhibit, explain, detail, treat.

ex-plōdo (-plaudo), ĕre, plōsi, plōsum, [plaudo], trans. v. I. drive off by clapping the hands or flapping the wings; hiss or hoot off the stage. II. (meton.) 1. scare away. 2. reject, abandon, scout.

explōrātē, adv. [exploratus], with certainty, confidently. Compar. exploratius.

explōrātĭo, ōnis, f. [exploro], a searching, examination, taking observations.

explōrātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a searcher, examiner. 2. (milit. techn. t.) a spy, scout, reconnoitrer, vedette. 3. explorator viae, one whose duty it was to clear the way for the Roman emperor.

explōrātōrĭus, a, um, adj. [explorator], that has to do with searching out; of or belonging to a spy or scout.

explōrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exploro. As adj. fully ascertained, known; established, assured, certain, confirmed, trustworthy, safe; omnia se habere explorata dicebant, that they had complete information; pro explorato habere, to regard as a certainty, be convinced; explorato (neut. abl. abs.), it being ascertained; explorato iam profectos amicos, after satisfying himself that, etc.

ex-plōro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. lit. cause to flow out; 1. bring to light, examine, investigate, search out, explore, look out for, discover. 2. (milit. techn. t.) spy out, reconnoitre, ascertain by scouts. 3. ascertain, render certain. 4. try, test, essay, put to the proof; fidem tyranni; suspensa focis explorat robora funus, seasons.

explōsĭo, ōnis, f. [explodo], a hissing or hooting off.

explōsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from explodo.

ex-pŏlĭo, īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, trans. v. I. make quite smooth, polish. II. (fig.) polish, refine, embellish, furbish.

expŏlītĭo, ōnis, f. [expolio], I. a smoothing off, rubbing up, furbishing, polishing, finishing: urbana, i.e. of a town house. II. (fig.) 1. an adorning, embellishing. 2. (in rhet.) stating the same fact in different terms.

expŏlītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expolio. As adj. polished, smooth; stylish; natty.

ex-pōno, ĕre, pŏsŭi, pōsĭtum, trans. v. I. 1. put or set out, set forth, expose to view. 2. (of children) expose, abandon. 3. (naval techn. t.) put on shore, land, disembark: quartā exponimur horā. 4. (business techn. t.) offer to pay, come down with, cash up. 5. leave unprotected, lay open, expose. II. (fig.) 1. set out or forth, lay open, expose, place, present, publish; propound. 2. set forth in words, expound, explain, relate, state, describe, define: exposito (neut. abl. abs. with sentence for subject) quid iniquitas loci posset, after fully stating the material influence of disadvantageous ground. Roby, § 1250.

exporgo, ĕre. See exporrigo.

exporrectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exporrigo.

ex-porrigo (-porgo), ĕre, porrexi, porrectum, trans. v. spread or stretch out, extend, protrude: frontem, straighten out, smoothen.

exportātĭo, ōnis, f. [exporto], a carrying out, exportation.

ex-porto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. bear or carry out, carry forth, convey away, export.

ex-posco, ĕre, pŏposci, trans. v. 1. earnestly ask, beg, entreat, implore. 2. require, demand (the surrender of a prisoner for punishment).

expŏsĭtē, adv. [expositus], plainly, clearly.

expŏsĭtĭo, ōnis, f. [expono], a setting forth, expounding, exposition.

expŏsĭtus (expostus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from expono. As adj. 1. open to all, accessible; (of persons) above board, frank, affable. 2. intelligible, lucid. 3. trite, commonplace, vulgar.

expostŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [expostulo], an expostulation, urgent representation.

ex-postŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. demand vehemently, insist upon, require. 2. demand the surrender of a person for punishment. 3. expostulare aliquid (de aliquā re) cum aliquo, complain about a thing to a person who has done it, call one to account for, upbraid; remonstrate, quarrel; ne illum quidem Iuventium tecum expostulavi, I have not called you to account about that Iuventius even; nihil tecum; cum illo iniuriam. B. (intrans.; sts. with cur or quia) demand; complain, remonstrate.

expostus, a, um, sync. for expositus.

expŏtus, a, um. See epotus.

expressē, adv. [expressus], strongly, distinctly. Compar. expressius.

expressus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exprimo. As adj. 1. standing in relief, prominent, distinct, clear, manifest, plain, visible. 2. fully formed, true to life or nature, lifelike, real. 3. (of pronunciation) distinct, clear; sts. over-accentuated, mouthed: litterae neque expressae neque oppressae. Compar. expressior.

ex-primo, primĕre, pressi, pressum, [premo], trans. v. I. press, squeeze, or force out, wring. II. (meton.) 1. form by pressure, model, represent, cast: ungues. 2. make to stand out in relief, make prominent, develop: singulos artus; lacertos. 3. raise up, carry upwards: turres. III. (fig.) 1. squeeze or wring out, wrest or draw out by force, extort. 2. represent, copy exactly, reproduce, imitate, give prominence to, vividly portray, describe to the life, treat of. 3. render, translate. 4. pronounce, utter, mouth.

exprobrātĭo, ōnis, f. [exprobro], a reproaching, upbraiding.

exprobro, āre, āvi, ātum, [probrum], trans. v. make a matter of reproach, taunt or upbraid a person with something, cast in one's teeth, put forward offensively: ingrato meritum; officia.

ex-prōmo, ĕre, prompsi (promsi), promptum (promtum), trans. v. I. draw out or forth, take or fetch out, produce. II. (fig.) 1. bring or show forth, exhibit, display, discover, exert, practise, give vent to. 2. set forth in language, disclose, declare, utter, explain.

promptus (-promtus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from expromo. As adj. ready, in readiness, in full play.

expugnābĭlis, e, adj. [expugno], that may be taken by assault, liable to capture, assailable, not proof against.

expugnans, ntis, part. from expugno. As adj. efficacious. Compar. expugnantior.

expugnātĭo, ōnis, f. [expugno], a taking of a place by storm, a storming, carrying.

expugnātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who takes by storm, a stormer, conqueror. 2. (fig.) a ravager, violator.

(?) ex-pugnax, ācis, adj. [id.], efficacious. Compar. expugnacior.

ex-pugno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. take or carry by storm, storm, capture, reduce. II. (fig.) 1. subdue, overcome, overpower, conquer, violate. 2. extort, effect. 3. gain by fighting, succeed in accomplishing, carry through: coepta.

expulsĭo, ōnis, f. [expello], a driving out, expulsion.

ex-pulso, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. drive out; let fly, drive: pilam.

expulsor, ōris, m. [expello], one who drives out or expels; an invader, intruder.

expulsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expello.

expultrix, trĭcis, f. [expello], she that drives out or expels.

ex-punctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from expungo.

ex-pungo, gĕre, punxi, punctum, trans. v. lit. prick out; I. 1. cross out, erase, cancel, strike out. 2. discharge, disband. 3. get out of the way. II. reckon up; adjust (accounts).

expŭo, ĕre. See exspuo.

ex-purgo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. purge thoroughly, cleanse. 2. (poet.) cure. II. (fig.) clear from censure, vindicate, justify.

ex-pŭto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. prune. II. 1. consider well, examine. 2. successfully investigate, fathom, penetrate.

ex-quaero, ĕre. See exquiro.

Exquĭlĭae, Exquĭlĭnus, etc. See Esqu-.

ex-quīro, rĕre, quīsīvi, quīsītum, trans. v. (quaero), seek, search or hunt out, search diligently; ask, inquire, reconnoitre carefully, examine; solicit.

exquisītē, adv. [exquisitus], carefully, accurately, particularly, with pains. Compar. exquisitius.

exquisītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exquiro. As adj. carefully sought out, choice, 'recherché'; studied, profound, elaborate, exquisite. Compar. exquisitior; superl. exquisitissimus.

ex-sacrifico, āre, intrans. v. sacrifice.

ex-saevio (exaev-), ire, intrans. v. rage till one is tired, spend one's rage, cease raging.

ex-sanguis (exang-), e, adj. I. drained of blood, bloodless. II. (meton.) pale, wan; (poet.) causing paleness. III. (fig.) feeble, weak, forceless.

ex-sarcĭo (exarcio, exsercio, exercio), īre, sartum, trans. v. patch up thoroughly, repair; repay, reimburse.

ex-sātio (exāt-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. satisfy fully, satiate, sate, glut.

exsātŭrābĭlis, e, adj. [exsaturo], that may be satiated: non exsaturabile pectus, i.e. relentless, implacable.

ex-sātŭro (exāt-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. satisfy fully, satiate, glut, sate.

ex-scendo, ĕre. See escendo.

exscensĭo (excen-), ōnis, f. [escendo], a debarkation, landing.

exscĭdium (excid-), ii, n. [exscindo], a razing to the ground; overthrow, ruin, destruction.

ex-scindo (exc-), ĕre, scĭdi, scissum, trans. v. lit. rend or tear away; raze to the ground, extirpate, destroy utterly.

ex-scrĕo (excr-), āre, trans. v. hawk or cough up, spit out.

ex-scrĭbo (excr-), ĕre, scripsi, ptum, trans. v. I. write out fully, copy. 2. make a copy or replica of a painting, etc. 3. (fig.) take after, resemble.

exscriptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exscribo.

ex-sculpo (exc-), ĕre, sculpsi, sculptum, trans. v. I. 1. scratch, scoop, chisel, carve, cut out. 2. (fig.) extort. II. scratch out erase.

ex-sĕco (exsĕco, exsĭco), āre, sĕcŭi, sectum, trans. v. I. 1. cut out or away, cut off. 2. emasculate. II. (fig.) strike out or off, deduct: quinas mercedes capiti.

exsecrābĭlis (execr-), e, adj. [exsecror], I. (passive) accursed. II. (active) execrating, cursing: carmen, the formula of execration; odium, inveterate, malignant. Compar. exsecrabilior.

exsecrātĭo (execr-), ōnis, f. [id.], 1. an execration, curse, anathema. 2. a solemn oath, in which the juror imprecates curses on himself, if he breaks it.

exsecrātus (execr-), a, um, perf. part. from exsecror. As adj. accursed, abominable, execrable. Superl. exsecratissimus.

ex-secror (execr-), āri, ātus sum, [sacer], trans. and intrans. dep. A. (trans.) lit. banish from sacred rites, excommunicate; hence, curse, execrate. B. (intrans.) utter curses, imprecate. Part. exsecrātus, used reflexively, having taken a solemn oath of imprecations, if the oath is broken; devoting one's self; swearing solemnly: Phocaeorum Velut profugit exsecrata civitas. Also with cognate acc.

exsectio (exsec-), ōnis, f. [exseco], a cutting out, excision.

exsectus (exec-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exseco.

exsĕcūtĭo (exĕc-), ōnis, f. [exsequor], 1. an accomplishing, performing, fulfilment, execution. 2. official management, administration, government. 3. discussion.

exsĕcūtor (exĕc-), ōris, m. [id.], 1. a performer, executor. 2. one who avenges or harbours resentment: inimicitiarum.

exsĕcūtus (exĕc-), a, um, perf. part. from exsequor.

exsĕquens (exĕqu-), ntis, part. from exsequor. As adj. studious of (with gen.).

exsĕquĭae (exĕqu-), ārum, f. pl. [exsequor], I. a funeral train or procession; funeral rites, obsequies. Exsequias ire, to attend a funeral. II. mortal remains, relics.

exsĕquiālis (exĕqu-), e, adj. [exsequiae], of or belonging to a funeral, funereal: sulcus subst. exsĕquiālia, ium, n. pl. funeral rites.

ex-sĕquŏr (exĕquŏr), sĕqui, sĕcūtus sum, trans. dep. I. 1. follow out to the end, follow without intermission, pursue; follow after, accompany; go the whole length of a thing; share to the end. 2. follow to the grave. II. (fig.) 1. prosecute, carry on to the end, effect, perform, accomplish, discharge, fulfil, finish, execute; maintain, enforce. 2. set forth in words, relate, describe, tell, say; treat (a subject). 3. pursue with punishment, punish, avenge.

ex-sercĭo, īre. See exsarcio.

ex-sĕro (exĕro), sĕrŭi, sertum, trans. v. thrust out or forth, put forth, protrude; raise out or up; bare, expose, uncover, display, show, disclose, reveal, evince; exercise, avail one's-self of.

exserto (exerto), āre, (freq. exsero), trans. v. stretch out, thrust forth, protrude; uncover, bare.

exsertus (exert-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exsero, bared, uncovered. As adj. 1. prominent, projecting. 2. open, conspicuous.

ex-sĭbĭlo (exĭb-), īre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. hiss out or forth, puff out or away. 2. hiss off the stage.

exsiccātus (exicc-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exsicco. As adj. dried up, dry; (fig.) well-drained, i.e. solid, not flabby.

ex-sicco (exicc-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. 1. dry up. 2. drain dry.

ex-sĭco, āre. See exseco.

ex-signo (exĭg-), īre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. note or write down in full, register, record.

ex-sĭlio (exĭl-), īre, sĭlŭi (sĭlĭi, Stat.), sultum, [salio], intrans. v. leap or bound forth, spring up, start up; bound, dart; be prominent, protrude.

exsĭlium (exĭlium), ĭi, n. [exsul], I. banishment, exile. II. (meton.) 1. a place of exile, retreat. 2. (abstr. for concr.) in pl.; banished persons, exiles: plenum exsiliis mare.

ex-sĭsto (existo), ĕre, stĭti, stĭtum, intrans. v. I. 1. step out or forth, come forth, emerge, appear, project, spring up, rise above, come to light. 2. proceed, arise, spring, become. II. (meton.) come into existence, arise, be visible, show one's-self. [In class. Latin never 'to be in existence,' 'to be,' 'exist.'] exsŏlūbĭlis, e, adj. [exsolvo], capable of dissolution, easy to be loosed.

exsŏlūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exsolvo.

ex-solvo, ĕre, solvi, sŏlūtum, trans. v. I. 1. unloose, unbind, untie, undo, unfasten; relax, dissolve, melt. 2. set loose, release, free. 3. (business techn. t.) discharge, pay: aes alienum; legata. II. (fig.) 1. throw off, put away, rid one's-self of: metus; obsidium, i.e. raise the blockade. 2. get clear, disentangle; set free, release: legis nexus; aliquem curis. 3. discharge, pay: promissa; ius iurandum; poenas alicui, i.e. award; beneficia, requite. 4. unravel, explain.

ex-somnis (exomnis), e, adj. [somnus], sleepless, wakeful.

ex-sorbĕo (exorbĕo), ēre, sorbŭi, trans. v. 1. suck up, drain, swallow whole. II. (fig.) 1. drain, exhaust, destroy, squander. 2. swallow, put up with: difficultates.

ex-sors (exors), sortis, adj. lit. without the drawing of lots. I. not conferred by lot, special, extraordinary: honorem; equum. II.

(with gen.) having no part or lot in, without a share in, excluded from, destitute of, exempt from. dulcis vitae; pericoli; cos exsors secandi, incapable of cutting.

ex-spătior (expăt-), ārī, ātus sum, intrans. dep. I. wander from the course, range abroad, go far out of the way; spread out, expand, extend; (of rivers) overflow their channel. II. (fig.) launch out, digress.

exspectābilis (expect-), e, adj. [exspecto], that may be looked for, answering to expectation.

exspectātio (expect-), ōnis, f. [id.], a looking out for, awaiting, expectation.

exspectātus (expect-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exspecto. As adj. 1. long looked for, anxiously awaited, expected, longed for, eagerly desired, welcome: quibus Hectora sub Cycneta venis? (with prep. ad, like aptus, idoneus); of whom hopes are entertained: sensi ego in exspectatis ad (with reference to) amplissimam dignitatem fratribus tuis, who had given an encouraging earnest of their qualification for the highest honours of the state. As subst. exspectātum, i, n. expectation formed, anticipation: hosti Ante exspectatum, ere the enemy suspects, ere he is aware. 2. anticipated, foreseen: haud exspectato vulnere. Compar. exspectatior; superl. exspectatissimus.

ex-specto (expecto), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) look out, wait, tarry: rusticus exspectat dum defluat amnis; hanc paludem si nostri transirent hostes exspectabant, to see if our men would cross it; nisi fore exspectatis ut illi faciluam, quae, etc., wait in the expectation that, to see how; quid hostes consilii caperent exspectabat, waited to see what plan the enemy would adopt; exspectari (pass. impers.) diutius non oportere quin ad castra iretur, they ought not to wait longer, there ought to be no further delay, before marching. B. (trans.) 1. look out for, await, expect, hope or long for, desire, anticipate; apprehend, fear, dread. 2. (poet.) look for, require: silvarumque aliae pressos propaginis arcus Exspectant.

ex-spergo (expergo, ex-spargo), ĕre, spersum, (spargo), trans. v. 1. sprinkle out, scatter abroad, diffuse. 2. besprinkle, bespatter.

exspersus (expersus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exspergo.

ex-spēs (expes), (only in nom. sing.), adj. without hope, hopeless, in despair; with gen.; vitae.

exspīrātio (expir-), ōnis, f. [exspiro], a breathing out, exhalation.

ex-spīro (expīro), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) breathe out or forth, blow forth, emit, exhale, give out. Exspirare animam, vitam, etc., breathe one's last, expire. B. (intrans.) 1. rush forth, be exhaled, find vent. 2. breathe one's last, expire. 3. (fig.) come to an end, perish, cease, become extinct.

ex-splendesco (expl-), ĕre, splendŭi, intrans. v. shine forth; become brilliant, conspicuous.

ex-spōlio (expōl-), āre, avi, ātum, trans. v. 1. spoil, pillage, or plunder completely. 2. (with abl.) strip, rob, or deprive of: genas oculis. II. take away: omnem honorem et dignitatem Caesaris.

ex-spŭo (expŭo), ĕre, spŭi, spūtum, trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. spit out, expectorate. II. cast out, throw up, emit, eject, reject (with scorn, loathing, etc.); expel, banish. B. (intrans.) spit forth, spit.

exstans (ext-), ntis, part. from exsto. As adj. standing out, standing higher, rising above, prominent. Compar. exstantior.

ex-sterno (externo), āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. consterno], trans. v. frighten thoroughly, terrify greatly; dismay, confound, bewilder, maulden.

ex-stillo (extillo), āre, āvi, intrans. v. drop or trickle out, ooze.

exstimŭlātor (ext-), ōris, m. [exstimulo], one who instigates or incites.

ex-stimŭlo (ext-) āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. goad on, incite, instigate, stimulate, impel, hasten forward.

exstinctio (ext-), ōnis, f. [exstinguo], extinction, annihilation.

exstinctor (ext-), ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who puts out or quenches, an extinguisher. 2. a destroyer, annihilator.

exstinctus (ext-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exstinguo ex-stinguo (ext-), stinguĕre, stinxi, stinctum, trans. v. I. put out, quench, extinguish. II. (fig.) 1. do away with, annul, do to death, kill, destroy, annihilate, eradicate, stamp out, extinguish exstinxem, exstinxti, contr. for exstinxissem, exstinxisti, from exstinguo.

ex-stirpo (ext-), āre, āvi, ātum, [stirps], trans. v. pull up by the stock or stem, uproot, pluck out, root out, eradicate.

ex-sto (exto), āre, intrans. v. I. stand out or forth, stand or rise above, project. II. (meton.) show one's-self, appear, be displayed, be visible, be within reach; be in existence, be alive, exist, remain. III. (fig.) be prominent, conspicuous.

exstructio (extr-), ōnis, f. [exstruo], a building up, structure.

exstructus (extr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exstruo. As adj. lofty. As subst. exstructum, i, n. a raised seat, platform.

ex-strŭo (extr-), strŭĕre, struxi, structum, trans. v. build up, pile or heap up; raise, rear, erect, construct, build: mare, (b) construct an artificial sea, salt-water lake; (b) cover the sea with buildings.

exsuctus (exuc-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from exsugo. As adj. sucked out, drained dry, shrivelled: medulla.

ex-sūdo (exūdo), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) sweat out, ooze away, evaporate. B. (trans.) 1. discharge by sweating, exude. 2. (fig.) toil at, toil through, elaborate; surmount with difficulty.

ex-sūgo (exūgo), āre, suxi, suctum, trans. v. suck out; suck dry.

exsŭl (exūl), exsŭlis, m. f. (root SAD-, SED-, sĭt; hence, exsul one who lives or stays away). I. a banished person, exile, wanderer, "émigré," refugee. II. (meton.=adj. implying deprivation) banished from, cut off from, deprived of: mentisque domūsque.

exsŭlo (exūlo), āre, āvi, ātum, [exsul], be banished, be an exile, live in exile.

exsultans (exult-), ntis, part. from exsulto. As adj. 1. bounding up, springing up, throbbing. 2. buoyant, jaunty, vain-glorious, boastful; rejoicing riot, roistering. 3. skipping, tripping (of short syllables). 4. diffuse.

exsultanter (exult-), adv. in a sprightly manner. Only in compar. exsultantius.

exsultātio (exult-), ōnis, f. [exsulto], a leaping up for joy; exultation.

exsultim (exult-), adv. [exsilio], with leaps and bounds, frisking.

ex-sulto (exulto), āre, āvi, ātum, [salto], intrans. v. I. leap, spring, or jump up, bound, frisk, caracole, caper, dance, skip, gambol, flit; spirt or spout up; palpitate, throb. II. (fig.) 1. range at will, run riot, revel. 2. rejoice exceedingly, exult, triumph; vaunt, boast, roister.

exsŭpĕrābilis (exŭp-), e, adj. [exsupero], that may be surmounted or overcome, surmountable: non exsuperabile saxum, the stone (of Sisyphus) that he cannot get the better of, or, actively, that ne'er can pass the ridge.

exsŭpĕrans (exŭp-), ntis, part. from exsupero. As adj. surpassing, excellent. Compar. exsuperantior.

exsŭpĕrantĭa (exŭp-), ae, f. [exsupero], pre-eminence, superiority.

ex-sŭpĕro (exŭp-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. mount up, rise. II. (fig.) get the upper hand, prevail, excel, exceed: ei si non poterunt exsuperare, cadant in virtute. B. (trans.) 1. rise above, surmount, overtop, pass over, pass beyond. II. (fig.) completely overcome, overpower, rise superior to, prevail or triumph over, surpass, exceed, excel; exceed the requirements of; outlast.

ex-surdo (exur-), āre, āvi, ātum, [surdus], trans. v. 1. render quite deaf, deafen. 2. (meton.) take the edge of, blunt: palatum.

ex-surgo (exurgo), ĕre, surrexi, surrectum, intrans. v. I. rise up, get up, rise. II. (fig.) lift one's head, rise from a depressed condition.

ex-suscito (exusc-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. rouse from sleep, awaken. II. (meton.) kindle: flammas. III. (fig.) stir up, rouse, excite.

exta, ōrum, (gen. pl. extûm), n. pl. (ex-ista (superl.), the most outward entrails], the more important internal organs, the vitals (heart, lungs, liver) of victims; etc. pieces of flesh.

ex-tābesco, ĕre, tābŭi, intrans. v. waste away completely, fade, wane, vanish.

ex-templo (uncontr. extempŭlo), adv. [templum = tempulum, dim. of tempus], on the instant, at once, immediately, straightway.

extemporālis, e, adj. [ex tempore; see tempus], on the spur of the moment, extemporary, extempore, impromptu.

extemporālĭtas, ātis, f. [extemporalis], the faculty of offhand or extempore speaking.

extempŭlo, adv. See extemplo.

ex-tendo, ĕre, tendi, tentum (tensum), trans. v. I. stretch out, spread out, extend, straighten. Pass. used reflexively, stretch or spread one's self out, extend. II. (fig.) extend, enlarge, increase, prolong: epistolam, i.e. write a long letter.

extensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from extendo. See extentus.

ex-tento, āre, [freq. extendo], trans. v. I. stretch out, straighten. II. (fig.) exert, try.

extentus (-sus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from extendo. As adj. 1. widespread, extended, extensive, spacious. 2. drawn out, prolonged. Superl. extentissimus.

extĕnŭātio, ōnis, f. [extenuo], a thinning, lessening.

extĕnŭātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from extenuo. As adj. thinned, reduced, meagre; faint, weak. Superl. extenuatissimus.

ex-tĕnŭo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. make thin, fine, or small; shrink, reduce, diminish. II. (fig.) lessen, weaken, impair, disparage: censum, i.e. rate it too low, underrate.

extĕr and extĕrus, extĕra, extĕrum, adj. [compar. form from ex], 1. on the outside, outward, external, foreign, of another country, family, etc.; foreign, strange.

ex-tĕrebro, āre, ātum, trans. v. I. bore till success; bore out, extract by boring. II. (fig.) extort.

ex-tergĕo, ĕre, tersi, tersum, trans. v. I. wipe thoroughly, wipe out or off, swab. II. (fig.) clear out, loot.

ex-tergo, ĕre, = extergeo.

extĕrior, us, adj. [compar. of exter (exterus)], outer, exterior, on the outside: comes exterior ire, to give a person the inside, i.e. walk on his left hand as a mark of politeness and respect.

extĕrius, 1. neut. from exterior. 2. adv. compar. from extra: on the outer side; outside, without.

ex-termino, āre, āvi, ātum, [terminus], trans. v. lit. drive beyond the frontier; I. drive out, banish, expatriate, expel. II. (fig.) banish, do away with.

externātus, externo. See exst-.

externus, a, um, adj. [exter], I. outward, external, public. Res externae or externa, n. pl. outward circumstances or advantages; gifts of fortune. II. of another country, family, etc.; foreign, strange. As subst. (a) externus, i, m. a foreigner, stranger; (b) externa, ōrum, n. pl. 1. circumstances connected with foreign nations, foreign history, etc. 2. hostile enterprises, unpatriotic designs, measures, etc.

ex-tĕro, tĕrĕre, trīvi, trītum, trans. v. rub out, rub off or away, bring out by rubbing; wear away; tread or trample under foot, trample out.

ex-terrĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. v. frighten outright, strike with terror; put in a flutter, scare; madden, make frantic.

extersus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from extergeo.

extĕrus, a, um. See exter.

ex-texo, ĕre, trans. v. I. unweave, pick to pieces. II. (fig.) plunder.

extillo, āre. See exstillo.

ex-tĭmesco, ĕre, tĭmŭi, [incept. from timeo], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) be greatly afraid, be in a panic, take fright. B. (trans.) be greatly afraid of, fear unduly, dread too much, dread.

extĭmŭlo, āre. See exstimulo.

extĭmus (extŭmus), a, um, adj. [superl. from exter], outermost, farthest, uttermost.

extinctus, extinguo, extirpo. See exst-.

exti-spex, spĭcis, m. [extа; specio], a soothsayer or diviner, who predicted events, or interpreted the will of the gods, by inspection of the entrails of victims.

extispĭcium, ĭi, n. [extispex], an inspection of the entrails of victims with a view to soothsaying or divining.

exto, āre. See exsto.

ex-tollo, ĕre, trans. v. I. lift up or out, uplift, raise, elevate. II. (fig.) 1. elevate, exalt, lift, encourage. 2. praise, extol. 3. beautify, embellish, improve. 4. defer.

ex-torquĕo, ēre, torsi, tortum, trans. v. I. 1. twist or wrench out, wrest away, force away. 2. put out of joint, dislocate; rack, torture. II. (fig.) take away or obtain by force, wring from, extort.

ex-torris, e, adj. [terra], driven out of the country, exiled, banished. Often with abl.

extortor, ōris, m. [extorqueo], one who extorts.

extortus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from extorqueo. As adj. crippled, deformed.

extrā, prep. with acc. only, and adv. [exter], A. adv. 1. on the outside, without. Compar. exterius. 2. except, besides. Only in legal phrase extra quam, extra quam si, except that, unless that. 3. not included, in addition. B. prep. with acc. 1. outside, out of, beyond. 2. not included in, free from, without; exclusive of, excepting, save and except: extra ordinem, irregularly, informally: extra numerum, out of step, Cic. Hor. Lucr. 3. besides, in addition to.

ex-trăho, trăhĕre, traxi, tractum, trans. v. I. drag out or forth, draw out, draw from. II. (fig.) 1. withdraw, extricate, release. 2. root out, eradicate, extract. 3. draw out, protract, prolong, fritter away: bellum; aestatem; eludi atque extrahi se putare, that they were being duped and were victims of prevarication.

extrānĕus, a, um, adj. [extra], external, foreign, strange. As subst. extrānĕus, i, m. a stranger.

extrā-ordĭnārius, a, um, adj. out of the common order, out of due course, irregular, extraordinary, exceptional: pecunia, i.e. not honestly come by; or, money of which no regular account is kept and of which no entry is made; reus, a defendant whose trial claimed precedence on the cause list.

extrārius, a, um, adj. [extra], 1. outward, external, extrinsic. 2. unrelated, strange.

extrēmĭtas, ātis, f. [extremus], the outermost part of a thing, extremity, edge; a superficies.

extrēmō, adv. [extremus], at last, in the end.

extrēmum, adv. [id.], 1. for the last time. 2. last of all, at last, finally.

extrēmus, a, um, adj. [superl. from exter, exterus], I. outermost, utmost, remotest, furthest, extreme: Indos; extrema pars epistolae, i.e. the end; in extremo libro tertio, at the end of the third book; in extremo ponte, at the extremity of the bridge; extremā in morte, at the very verge of death, at the point of death; extremi digiti, the tips of the fingers; ossa, one's inmost bones, one's very marrow. Hence since what is last in one point of view is first in another; original, earliest: ab extremis fontibus, from the furthest part of the spring, i.e. from its first source. As subst. extrēmum, i, n. 1. an end, termination, conclusion; furthest point, extremity. 2. final object, end, chief good: beluarum hoc quidem extremum. II. latest, last (in order of succession, or in time): manus, the finishing touch; coup de grâce; extremo tempore diei, at the close of the day, nightfall; pueritia, the close of one's boyhood; agmen, the rear of an army. As subst. (a) extrēmus, i, m. the hindmost, last; (pl.) extremi, the rear; (b) extrēmum, i, n. the end or close of a thing: aestatis. Adverbially: Ad extremum, at last, finally, at the conclusion, to crown all. III. extreme (in quality or degree); (a) utmost, highest, greatest: res, the height or extremity of misfortune, suffering, peril, etc.; disaster, ruin. Adverbially: Ad extremum, to the utmost degree, out and out, utterly. As subst. extrēma, ōrum, n. pl. desperate measures, extremities; (poet.) the last ex- tremity, death: ferro extrema secutam. Sts. in sing.: respublica in extremo sita, i.e. on the brink of ruin; (b) lowest, meanest: ingenium; alimenta vitae, the barest necessaries of life.

ex-trīco, āre, āvi, ātum, [tricae], trans. v. lit. free from knots, untie; I. disentangle, free. II. (meton.) 1. clear: agrum. 2. screw out, get with difficulty, hunt up: mercedem aut nummos. III. (fig.) unravel, clear up.

extrin-sĕcŭs, adv. I. from the outside, from without, from abroad. II. 1. on the outside, without. 2. irrelevantly. 3. moreover.

(1) extrītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from extero.

(2) extrītus, ūs, m. [extero], friction, Lucr.

ex-trūdo, ĕre, trūsi, trūsum, trans. v. I. thrust forth, push out (with violence), drive away. II. 1. force out, keep out, shut out: mare aggere et molibus. 2. push off, get off one's hands: merces. III. (fig.) crowd out, supplant, oust.

extrŭo, ĕre. See exstruo.

extrūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from extrudo.

extŭmĕo, ēre, intrans v. swell up.

extŭmus, a, um, superl. from exter. See extimus.

ex-tundo, ĕre, tŭdi, tūsum, trans. v. I. 1. beat out, strike out, force out: frontem calcibus, kick on the forehead. 2. hammer out, forge: gladios. II. (fig.) 1. work out, produce or get with difficulty; devise. 2. hammer out of one: fastidia. 3. extort.

ex-turbo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. drive or thrust out, turn or away; dislodge. II. put away a wife, divorce. III. disturb.

ex-ūbĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. come forth in abundance; teem; surge.

exuctus, a, um: exūdo, āre; exūgo, ĕre; exūi, ūtus. See exs-.

ex-ulcĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. make very sore, cause to fester. II. (fig.) aggravate, exasperate, embitter, make worse.

exŭlo, āre; exulto, āre. See exs-.

exŭlĭlātus, a, um, 1. perf. pass. part. from exululo, invoked with howlings. 2. perf. part. dep. howling aloud: dum stupet Edonis exululata iugis.

ex-ŭlŭlo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) howl out, yell or shriek aloud, wail piercingly. B. (trans.) invoke with howlings or yellings: Cybeleia mater Phrygiis exululata modis.

exŭlŭlor, āri, ātus sum, intrans. dep.=exululo, A.

exunctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exungo.

ex-undo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. flow out, well over, overflow. 2. be washed up or thrown up by the action of the waves: tura balsamaque in adversa litora exuudant. 3. pour forth abundantly, gush or rush forth, overflow: exundans ingenii fons. B. (trans.; poet.) pour forth abundantly: fumum.

ex-ungo, ĕre, unctum, trans. v. I. anoint. II. ruin in unguents.

ex-ŭo, exŭĕre, exŭi, exūtum, [deriv. dub.] trans. v. I. draw out, draw or put off, pull off, lay aside, doff, strip, divest, bare, uncover. Pass. exuor, used reflexively i.=exuo me; strip or put off from one's-self, lay aside, cast off; exuitur cornua; unum exuta pedem vinclis, having one foot stripped of its sandal, unsandalled. II. (meton.) strip, despoil, deprive; with abl. of material or thing taken away: hostem armis. III. (fig.) lay aside, divest one's-self of, discard, repudiate, cast off; put on one side; be altogether without, be exempt from: silvestrem animum; metum; tristitiam et arrogantiam et avaritiam; promissa, i.e. break one's word; animam breathe one's last.

exŭpĕro, āre; exurgo, ĕre. See exs-.

ex-ūro, urĕre, ussi, ustum, trans. v. I. burn up, consume. II. (meton.) parch or dry up, scorch. III. (fig.) consume, destroy.

exuscito, āre. See exsuscito.

exustio, ōnis, f. [exuo], a burning up, scorching.

exustus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exuro.

exūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from exuo.

exŭviae, ārum, f. pl. [exuo], I. any covering or clothing, etc., taken off the body; apparel, raiment, dress, equipments, arms, etc.; spoils (stripped from the enemy); sts. left off apparel, etc., relics. II. (meton.) 1. the skin of an animal (dropped or flayed off): leonis, the hide; anguis, i.e. the slough. 2. hair cut off the head: devotae flavi verticis exuviae.

ex-vĕho, vĕhĕre. See eveho.

F.

F, f, n. indecl. or f. The sixth letter of the Latin alphabet. As an abbr. F=(a) filius; (b) faciundum; FFF=felix, faustum, fortunatum; FF=fecerunt; FC=faciundum curavit, etc.

făba, ae, f. [for fag-va; cf. φαγ-εῖν], a bean; the horse-bean: fabae fresae, bruised beans. Pythagoras forbade beans as an article of diet, because he thought his grandmother's soul might inhabit a bean. Prov. Istaec in me cudetur faba, that bean will be cracked on my head, i.e. I shall catch it for this.

făbālis, e, adj. [faba], of or belonging to beans, bean-: stipulae.

Făbāris, is, m. a small tributary of the Tiber, also called Farfārus.

fābella, ae, f. [dim. fabula], a short story, a tale, fable; a short play, 'lever de rideau.'

(1) făber, fabri, gen. pl. mostly fabrūm, m. [Sanscr. DHA, place, do; cf. dhātr, creator; ri-θη-μι. Initial F in Latin often corresponds to Gk. θ], a workman (in wood, iron, brass, marble, etc.); a smith, carpenter, joiner, cabinetmaker; an artificer, mechanic, artisan, craftsman, artist; a labourer. In the Roman army the fabri or engineers were a separate corps under the Praefectus Fabrūm.

(2) făber, fabra, făbrum, adj. [(1) faber], artisan's, craftsman's; (meton.) workmanlike, ingenious, skilful.

(3) făber, fabri, m. a John Doree, or prps. sunfish.

Fābiānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Fabius or the Fabii, Fabian.

(1) Fābius, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to the Fabii, Fabian: fornix, an arch in the Via Sacra near the forum, built by Q. Fabius Maximus Allobrogicus, consul B.C. 121: tribus, one of the country tribes. Hence, Fābia, ae, f. (sc. tribus) the Fabian tribe: hic multum in Fabiā valet, ille Velinā.

(2) Fābius, ĭi, m. [faba], a Roman gentile name. The Fabii were one of the most ancient patrician gentes at Rome. Three hundred of them took upon themselves the war with Veii. For two years they held their ground on the river Cremera, where they had built a fort; but they were at last cut to pieces, with the exception of one man, on June 18, B.C. 477. Distinguished members of the gens were (a) Q. Fabius Maximus Cunctator, the famous dictator in the 2nd Punic War, B.C. 217-209; (b) C. Fabius Pictor, the earliest prose writer of Roman history.

Fabrāterni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Fabrātĕria, now Falvaterra, a Volscian town in Latium.

fabrē-făcio, făcĕre, fēci, factum, trans. v. make in a workmanlike fashion, fashion skilfully. Pass. fabrĕfio, fiĕri, factus sum.

fabrica, ae, f. [(1) faber], I. 1. a workshop; esp. a carpenter's or cabinetmaker's shop. 2. the art, trade, or profession of an artisan. 3. an artistic production; a fabric, building. II. (fig.) a crafty device, trick, stratagem.

fabricātio, ōnis, f. [fabricor], a construction, structure.

fabricātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. an artificer, contriver, framer. 2. (fig.) a causer, author.

Fābricĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Fabricius: venenum, i.e. prepared by F.

(1) Fābricius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Fabricius, Fabrician: pons, the bridge over the Tiber, built by L. Fabricius, curator viarum, 62 B.C.

(2) Fābricĭus, ĭi, m. [faber], a Roman gentile name. Famous members of the gens were, 1. C. Fabricius, consul 282 B.C., in the war with Pyrrhus; famous for his integrity and frugality. 2. L. Fabricius, builder of the bridge over the Tiber.

fabrico, āre, āvi, ātum, [fabrica], trans. v., and fabricor, āri, ātus sum, [id.], trans. dep. 1. construct, frame, make, build, forge, manufacture, form, fashion. 2. (fig.) devise, contrive.

fabrĭlis, e, adj. [(1) faber], of or belonging to an artisan, craftsman. As subst. fabrīlia, ium, n. pl. mechanics' tools.

fābŭla, ae, f. [fari], I. 1. a narrative, story, tale, anecdote; the subject of common talk, the talk of the town, table-talk, gossip, scandal, a by-word; report; (poet. in app. = fabulosi): iam te premet nox fabulaeque Manes, i.e. who are subjects of talk, the storied ghosts. 2. (meton.) (a) conversation; (b) topic, matter, affair. (c) (poet.) a place of conversation, lounge: gestatio, fabulae, libelli, Mart. II. 1. a fictitious narrative, tale, story; sts. mythological tale, fabulous story, legend, myth. 2. a theatrical piece, play, drama; a farce, comedy. 3. a fable, apologue. 4. an idle tale, a cock and bull story; stuff and nonsense, fudge.

fābŭlārĭŏr, old pres. infin. from fabulor.

fābŭlāris, e, adj. = fabulosus.

fābŭlātor, ōris, m. [fabulor], a story-teller; a fabulist.

fābŭlor, āri, ātus sum, [fabula], trans. dep. talk, converse, chat; say, utter.

fābŭlōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], full of stories, storied, legendary, fabulous, renowned in story.

făc (făcĕ), făcīto, imperat. of facio. With ut and subj., sts. without ut, take measures to, be sure to, mind to: fac venias, be sure to come.

fac-dum, do just. See dum, I. 3.

făcesso, ĕre, făcessi, făcessītum, [freq. facio], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. do eagerly, perform heartily, despatch with zeal, set about doing; execute, accomplish. 2. bring on, occasion, cause. B. (intrans.) withdraw, retire, go away: ex urbe.

făcētē, adv. [facetus], 1. finely, neatly, nicely: facete dictum, well said! Good! 2. wittily, pleasantly, humorously, smartly. Compar. facetius; superl. facetissime.

făcētĭae, ārum, f. pl. (rarely in sing.), [id.], a piece of wit; a witty or smart saying; pleasantry, humour, fun.

făcētus, a, um, adj. [root FA; cf. fari; φημί, φάσκω], I. 1. well made, elegant. 2. (fig.) polite, courteous, fair-spoken II. (of style) 1. graceful, in good taste. 2. playful, humorous, witty, brilliant, smart. Superl. facetissimus.

făcĭes, ēi, f. [root FA-; cf. fari, facetus], I. 1. form, figure, general appearance, shape. 2. the face, countenance; sts. beauty of face, beauty. II. look, sight, aspect, form, phase: scelerum; laborum. III. (fig.) 1. external form or appearance, embodiment. 2. a pretence, pretext.

făcĭlĕ, adv. [facilis], 1. easily, without trouble or difficulty. 2. readily, without hesitation or scruple: facile pati, to be well pleased, content. 3. comfortably, agreeably: facile agere (esse), to be well off, in easy circumstances, in clover. 4. clearly, unquestionably, emphatically, ‘par excellence’; without exaggeration, fully, quite. Compar. facilius; superl. facillime.

făcilis, e, adj. [fac-io], lit. that may be made or done; I. easy to do, easy, without difficulty, practicable; simple, straightforward. In adverbial phrases: In facili, ex (e) facili, easily. II. 1. easily wrought, flexible, plastic, pliant. 2. easily found or procured, of easy access, at hand, common: quaerentibus herba; facilem victu (abl. of respect) gentem, of easy sustenance, i.e. rich in store: Virgilian variation for facili victu (abl. quality). 3. easy to work, easily set in motion, nimble: tornus, deft, nimble; oculi, quick glancing. 4. ready, quick, apt. III. 1. easily acted on, easy, good-natured, complaisant, yielding, affable, courteous, indulgent. 2. gracious, well-disposed, favouring, prosperous. Compar. facilior; superl. facillimus.

făcilitas, ātis, f. [facilis], I. easiness, ease, facility. 2. fluency, readiness of expression. 3. readiness to forgive, listen, etc., tolerance, complaisance, good-nature, graciousness, affability, easiness of access.

făcĭnĕrōsus (făcĭnŏrōsus), a, um, adj. [facinus], villainous, atrocious, blackguard, scandalous, ruffian.

făcĭnus, făcĭnŏris, n. [facio], I. a deed, act, action. II. 1. a bold or bad deed, crime, outrage, guilt, criminality. 2. (poet. meton.) an instrument of villainy: facinus quae excussit ab ore, i.e. the poisoned draught.

făcio, făcĕre, fēci, factum; pass. fio, fĭĕri, factus sum, [root FAC-; Sanscr DHA-, make, do, place; Gk. θε-; cf. (2) do. Curtius, 254], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. 1. (a) make, do, form, fashion, create, produce, excite, cause, bring to pass, effect, accomplish, execute, perform, perpetrate, commit: convicium alicui, abuse; copiam alicui alicuius rei, (a) give a sufficient supply, furnish him with it, let him have it; (β) give one an opportunity: exercitum, raise, levy: fidem alicui, give one security, make him believe what you say, convince; iter, travel, march; iudicium, form an opinion; ludos, exhibit; medicinam alicui, administer; rem, make one's fortune; senatus consultum, pass; silentium, impose silence; verbum (verba), speak, talk; sts. plead, intercede; vim alicui (in aliquem), offer violence, resist; (b) (legal techn. t.) be guilty of a crime: si fecisse videbitur, caderet sub iudice morum: clamat Pontia, Feci. The verdict ‘Guilty’ was announced by the praetor in the formula, Videtur fecisse; ‘Not guilty,’ Non videtur fecisse. 2. in phrases: (a) facere ut, to take measures to; often in periphrases, e.g. feci ut prodessem = profui: fac ut me ames teque amari a me scias, give me your love, and be well assured of mine; fac ne quid aliud cures, mind you attend to nothing else; sts. without ut; facito dicas, fail not to say be sure to say. In pass., fieri potest ut, it can happen (it is possible) that; (b) facere non possum quin ad te mittam, I cannot but send, I cannot help, or forbear, sending; fieri non potest quin, it cannot be (it is impossible) but that; (c) with infin., make, cause (where the idea is not of design, but only of effect): nati coram me cernere letum Fecisti. 3. make (as an artist), execute, represent. II. (with double acc.) 1. make, render: Romanos ex amicis amicissimos fecisti. 2. appoint, constitute; elect (to a state office): heredem filiam; aliquem consulem, vote for a man's election as consul (cf. officio, 1); alium faciam, I shall vote for another candidate; quo tibi, Tilli, Numere deputatum servum fecerique tribuno? 3. value, esteem, regard: dolorem nihili facio, take no account of, despise. 4. represent a thing in any manner, describe; feign, assert, say: Xenophon facit Socratem disputantem; (with acc. and infin.) fecerat et fetam . . . Procubuisse lupam. 5. make believe, pretend: me alias res agere. 6. (imperat.) suppose, assume, grant: exitium fac me meruisse; quis me autem, fac velle, sinet? suppose I wished it. 7. (business techn. t.) carry on, practise, exercise (a trade, profession): argentariam (sc. rem), to be a money-changer by trade, carry on the business of a banker; medicinam, practise medicine; but cf. I. 1. 8. (religious techn. t.) perform a religious rite; offer sacrifice; sacrifice: sacra; cum faciam vitulâ (abl. matter) pro frugibus; cum apud Caesarem pro populo fieret (impers.), when a national sacrifice was being offered. Cf. Gk. ῥέζειν. B. (intrans.) 1. do, deal, act; (a) with adverbs: amice facis, I am grateful to you, you are very good; aegre facere alicui, annoy; benigne alicui, do a favour to, oblige; sua causâ, act selfishly; male, hurt, injure; (b) facere ab (cum) aliquo, take part or side with; secum consules facere; hinc faciunt custosque boum longaevaque nutrix, take this side, side with us; non male facere cum aliquo, to be on good terms with, accord, fraternise; (c) ad aliquid or alicui, be good for, be useful, of service, be fitted, suit; ad talem formam non facit iste locus; nimium mihi facientia tela, too powerful for me, that tell against me unduly: non faciet capiti dura corona meo; sts. absol.: haec eadem nec aquae faciunt, (d) in phrases: Quid faciam? Quid facerem? (deliberat. conjunctive), what am I to do? what was I to do? Also with abl. instr., dat commodi, or de: Quid hoc homine facias? what to do with a fellow like this? Quid me faciam? Quid facias illi? In pass.: Quid Tulliolâ meâ fiet? what will become of my darling T.? quid mihi fiet? what will become of me? 2. (vicariously, with or without pron. of reference, = verb immediately preceding), do: non reddere bono viro non licet, modo id facere (=reddere) possit sine iniuriâ; iubeas miserum esse, libenter Quatenus id facit (i.e. miser est); existimo Demosthenem, si illa . . . pronuntiare voluisset, ornate facere (i.e. pronuntiare) potuisse.

factĕon, [facio], must be made; one must make, reckon. A form invented by Cicero on the analogy of Gk. verbals in -τέος.

factĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], I. a making, doing. II. 1. a taking sides; a combination, cabal, faction, political party; sect, class. Factiones Circi, the four parties, respectively named Albata, Prasina, Russata, and Veneta, from the colours of the Aurigae in the Circus chariot races. 2. rank.

factĭōsus, a, um, adj. [factio], that seeks to form a political party, intriguing, factious, seditious.

factĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. facto; facio], trans. v. keep doing, devote one's self to, practise; make; compose.

factum, i, n. [factus], 1. that which is done; a deed, act, exploit, achievement, transaction. 2. (poet. = opus) work done: facta boum; mortalia facta peribunt.

factus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from facio; made, done, performed, rendered, etc. In phrases: (a) factum volo, with all my heart, so mote it be; (b) factum velle alicui, to wish well to another; (c) nollem factum, I'm sorry for it. As adj. highly wrought, polished; schooled, primed, prepared: versiculos magis factos: factus institutusque.

făcŭla, ae, f. [dim. fax], a small torch, link.

făcultas, tātis, gen. pl. facultatum, f. [old adj. facul = facilis], I. capability, possibility, means, ability, chance, opportunity of doing something, power over. II. (meton.) 1. strength, virtue. 2. abundance, supply, stock, store, the command of a supply; in pl. resources, means, property, wealth.

făcundē, adv. [facundus], fluently, eloquently.

făcundĭa, ae, f. [id.], facility of speaking, fluency, eloquence.

făcundus, a, um, adj. [fari], that speaks with ease, fluent, eloquent. Compar. facundior; superl. facundissimus.

faecŭla (fēc-), ae, f. [dim. faex], salt of tartar, tartar less; used as a sauce piquante or hors-d'œuvre.

faelis, is. See feles.

faenebris (fēn-, foen-), e, adj. [faenus], of or belonging to interest or usury.

faenĕrātio (fēn-, foen-), ōnis, f. [faeneror], a lending on interest, usury.

faenĕrātor (fēn-, foen-), ōris, m. [id.], a money-lender, capitalist, usurer.

faenĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from faenero, repaid with interest, richly repaid.

faenĕro (fēn-, foen-), āre, āvī, ātum, [faenus], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. to lend on interest; usu. without obj., practise usury. 2. practise usury upon, be banker to: (Minerva) omnes faeneratā una deos. II. (meton.) lend, give the use of. B. (intrans.) (fig.) return to one with interest, pay in the long run: metuisti ne non tibi istuc faenerarct.

faenĕror (fēn-, foen-), āri, ātus sum, [id.], trans. dep. I. lend on interest; (ats. without obj.) practise usury: binis centesimis, at two per cent. per month, i.e. 24 per cent. per annum. II. (meton.) drain or cheat by usury. III. (fig.) practise usury with, treat as a paying investment: beneficium.

faenĕus (fēn-, foen-), a, um, adj. [faenum], of hay.

faenīlia (fēn-, foen-), ium, n. pl. [id.], a hay-loft.

faeni-sĕca (fēn-, foen-), ae, also faenisex, sĕcis, m. [faenum, seco], 1. a mower. 2. (meton.) a clown, rustic.

faenum (fēn-, foen-), i, n. [root FE-; cf. felix, femina], hay. Prov. (a) faenum habet in cornu, he has a wisp of hay on his horn; a sign that he is dangerous; (b) faenum alios aiebat esse (to eat) oportere, i.e. were no better than the brute beasts.

faenus (fēn-, foen-), ŏris, n. [root FE-; cf. felix, femina], lit. that which is produced; the proceeds of money lent, interest: perpetuum, the standard or legal rate of interest. II. (meton.) 1. capital lent on interest. 2. gain, profit, return. 3. money-lending, usury: in usuras extendere, to carry money-lending on so as to get interest upon interest, i.e. to exact compound interest.

Faesŭlānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Faesulae, Faesulan.

Faesŭlae (Fē-), ārum, f. pl. a city of Etruria, now Fiesole.

faex, faecis, f. [deriv. dub.], I. lees, dregs, sediment. II. (meton.) 1. a pickle liquor, brine; 'sauce piquante.' 2. a cosmetic; rouge. III. (fig.) the lowest dregs, scum, riff-raff: urbis; sine faece dies, strained, filtered, i.e. pure daylight.

fāgĭnĕus, a, um, adj. [fagus], of beech, beechen.

fāginus, a, um, = fagineus.

‡ fāgus, i, poet. nom. pl. fagūs, f. [φηγός; root φαγ-], a beech-tree.

fāla (phāla), ae, f. 1. a scaffolding, scaffold. 2. in pl. the frames on the spina in the racecourse, on which were placed the ova, to denote the number of rounds completed.

fālārica (phāl-), ae, f. [fala], a heavy iron-shod spear, weighted with lead. In sieges it was wrapped in inflammable materials and discharged from a catapult.

falcārius, ĭi, m. [falx], a scythe or sickle maker: inter falcarios, in the street of the scythe-makers.

falcātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], I. scythe-hung, armed with scythes. 2. scythe-shaped; hooked, curved: cusis, a falchion.

falcī-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [falx, fero], scythe-bearing, sickle-bearing, holding a scythe or sickle: senex, or Tonans, i.e. Saturn.

‡ falco, ōnis, m. a falcon.

Falĕrii, ōrum, m. pl. the capital of the Falisci in Etruria.

Falernus Ager, the Falernian territory, a district in the N. of Campania, famed for its wine.

Falernus, a, um, adj. of or from the Falernian district, Falernian: innumos Falernos (sc. cados), Tib. As subst. Falernum, i, n. (a) (sc. vinum), Falernian wine; (b) (sc. praedium) a Falernian villa.

Falisci, ōrum, m. pl. 1. a people of Etruria of Greek origin, sts. identified with the Aequi. (?) Aequi Falisci, the Falisci of the lowlands. Their capital was Faleriī. 2. = Faleriī.

Falliscus, a, um, adj. [for Faliscus; Faleriī], of or belonging to Faleriī (older form Falesii) or the Falisci: venter, a pig's paunch dressed in Faliscan fashion; a haggis, kabob.

fallācia, ae, f. [fallax], deceit, artifice, stratagem, trick, craft, intrigue: deductae fallacia lunae, the trick of bringing the moon down from the sky (by magic).

fallāci-lŏquus, a, um, adj. [fallax; loquor], speaking falsely.

fallācĭter, adv. [fallax], deceitfully, with trickery. Superl. fallacissime.

fallax, ācis, poet. gen. pl. fallacum, adj. [fallo], given to deceit, deceitful, crafty, that breaks his word, treacherous; delusive, precarious; (with gen.): homines amicitiae fallaces. Compar. fallacior; superl. fallacissimus.

fallĕr, old infin. pass. from fallo.

fallo, ĕre, fĕfelli, falsum, [Sanscr. root SPHAL-; cf. σφάλλω], trans. v. I. 1. deceive, dupe, cheat, trick, impose upon, mislead, disappoint. Bts. without obj. acc.: act deceitfully. Impers. Fallit (me), it deceives me; I am mistaken. Pass. used reflexively: deceive one's self, err in judgment, be mistaken: fallimur dies, ni fallor, adest. Poet. (a) (with cogn. acc.): idem omnes fallimur; (b) (with infin.): dicere non fallar, I shall not be mistaken in saying. 2. not to fulfil, violate, be false to, belie, betray: fidem, break one's word. 3. assume falsely, counterfeit: faciem dolo. 4. hide, conceal, disguise: furta. 5. escape, avoid: retia. II. deceive in swearing, swear falsely by: sive deum prudens alium divamve fefelli; matris cineres. III. (like λανθάνω) escape the notice of, be concealed from, elude; pass unseen or unknown: Spartacum vagantem; Thessalos ignes; fulgentem imperio fertilis Africae Fallit sorte beatior (λανθάνει ὀλβιωτέρα οὖσα), is to him who glitters . . . unknown to be happier in lot; is a lot happier, though he knows it not, than his who glitters; lit. escapes his notice being happier. Also without obj. acc., come unperceived, take by surprise; be unseen, unrecognised, undiscovered, unnoticed: longe fallente sagitta; spes fallendi, of being unobserved: nec vixit male qui natus moriensque fefellit, in his birth and in his death has been unnoticed: fallis dea (λανθάνεις θεὰ οὖσα), you hide your godhead. Impers., fallit (me), it is unknown to me, I do not know, I am ignorant: te non fallit, you are fully aware; nec me animi (locat.) fallit, nor does my mind fail to perceive. IV. cause to be unobserved, unfelt; beguile, cause to forget, while away: curas; laborem.

falsārius, ii, m. [falsus], a forger (of wills, etc.).

falsē, adv. [id.], falsely, untruly.

falsī-pārens, ntis, adj. [id.], that has a pretended father.

falsō, adv. [id.], falsely, untruly, wrongly, erroneously, by mistake.

falsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fallo. As adj. false, counterfeited, spurious, forged, pretended, erroneous, deceptive, unreal, imaginary, fictitious, groundless; deceitful: falsis sub armis clad in armour not his own, not really his. As subst. (a) falsus, i, m. a liar, deceiver; (b) falsum, i, n. falsehood, fraud; forgery. Compar. falsior; superl. falsissimus.

falx, falcis, f. [cf. flecto], I. a sickle, scythe, reaping-hook, bill, hatchet, bill-hook, pruning-hook; bovie-knife; falchion. II. (meton.) falx muralis, a strong bill-hook, attached to a long pole, used for pulling down stockades, walls, etc.

fāma, ae, f. [fari; cf. φήμη], I. 1. that which people say or tell, the common talk; report, saying, tradition, rumour. 2. (personified) Rumour, Fame. II. 1. public opinion. 2. character, reputation; esp. (a) good fame, renown, glory; (b) evil fame, ill-repute, infamy, scandal: vappae ac nebulonis: tua terris didita fama: Argivae fama pudicitiae, the glory, or pride, of chaste Grecian dames; maledicta, famam in se transtulit.

fāmātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [fama], having an evil fame, in bad repute, disreputable, notorious.

fāmēlicus, a, um, adj. [fames], starving from hunger, famished. As subst. a hungry person, starveling.

fāmēs, is, abl. sing. scanned fāmĕ, f. [Sanscr. root HA-; cf. χατίς, want. So fundo = χέω), I. 1. hunger, starvation. 2. (personified) Famine, Hunger. II. (meton.) 1. famine, dearth. 2. need, want, indigence, poverty. III. (fig.) 1. excessive desire, longing, greed, avidity. 2. poverty of style.

fămĭlĭa, ae, old gen. fămĭlĭas, f. [famulus], I. 1. the slaves of a household ; a household establishment. domestic servants, domestics: urbana, the town establishment ; rustica, the slaves who lived on the country estate and were employed on it ; aliquem familiā exornare, furnish liberally with attendants ; Aesōpus domino solus cum esset familia, when Æ. formed his master's entire household. 2. the household of dependants, serfs, vassals. II. (meton.) 1. a house and all belonging to it, family property, estate. =res familiaris. Hence, in the combination paterfamilias, (materfamilias, filiusfamilias, etc.), where familias is the old form of the gen. sing., though familiae, familiarum are found. Păter-fămĭlĭas, gen. sing. patrisfamilias, or, in inverted order, familias pater, m., the master of a house in respect of ownership, head of a family, proprietor : an estate, householder : cum rei familiari tantum operae daret quantum non indiligens deberet paterfamilias ; sicut unus paterfamilias loquor, like an ordinary citizen. Sts. written separately, pater familiae, etc. 2. a family, as a branch of a gens (see Ramsay, p 61) : hospes familiae tuae. 3. a company, gang, squad, sect, troop, school (of philosophy, etc.). Hence, ducere familiam, to be at the head of a profession, school of philosophy, etc. : to take the lead in anything, be chief, most important.

fămĭlĭāris, e, adj. [familia], I. of or belonging to a familia ; of a household or family ; relating to or attached to a particular household ; household, domestic, private : res familiaris, one's property, estate, household. II. (meton.) 1. intimate, friendly. As subst. fămĭlĭāris, is, m. an intimate friend ; one of one's own set ; a comrade. 2. (sacrificial techn. t.) of one's own country or people : caput tecinoris a familiari parte caesum, on the side which related especially to the sacrificer. 3. customary, habitual. Superl. familiarissimus.

fămĭlĭārĭtās, ātis, f. [familiaris], I. familiar intercourse, intimate friendship, intimacy. II. (meton.) a circle of intimate friends ; 'camaraderie' : in pl. = familiares, intimate friends, cronies.

fămĭlĭārĭtĕr, adv. [id.], on familiar or friendly terms, intimately. Compar. familiarius ; superl. familiarissime.

fămōsus, a, um, adj. [fama], I. much talked of (mostly in a bad sense) ; infamous ; notorious, scandalous, of evil fame. Rarely in a good sense ; notorious, renowned. II. libellous, scurrilous, slanderous : carmen.

famul, an old form = famulus, q.v. See Munro, Lucr. iii. 1035.

fămŭla, ae, f. [famulus], a maid servant, handmaid.

famulans, ntis, part. from famulor, serving, subject.

fămŭlāris, e, adj. [id.], of or belonging to servants or slaves.

fămŭlātus, ūs, m. [famulor], servitude, service.

fămŭlor, āri, ātus sum, [famulus], intrans. dep. be a servant, serve ; (with dat.) attend, wait on.

(1) fămŭlus, i, m. [lengthened form for famul, Oscan famel, from Sanscr. base dhā-, place, lay ; Gk. θε- ; cf. facio. F=θ], 1. a house-servant, slave ; follower, attendant. 2. a minister : sacrorum. 3. an attendant or familiar spirit (of deities and demigods) : incertus geniumne loci famulumne parentis Esse putet.

(2) fămŭlus, a, um, adj. serving, servile, subject ; serviceable.

fānātĭcus, a, um, adj. [fanum], lit. belonging to a temple ; 1. under wild impulse from some deity, inspired. 2. (meton.) frantic, raving.

fandus, a, um, gerundive from for ; lit. that may be uttered ; right, lawful ; (opposed to nefandus) : non fanda timemus, unutterable horrors ; at sperate deos memores fandi atque nefandi, of right and wrong ; (fandi, nefandi, being used as gen. of fas, nefas, respectively).

(1) Fannĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. 1. C. Fannius Strabo, son-in-law of Laelius, one of the interlocutors in Cicero's Laelius de Amicitiā and his de Republicā. 2. an inferior poet. 3. a historian.

(2) Fannĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Fannius.

(1) fānum, i, n. [fari], a place consecrated for the erection of a temple (locus templo effatus) ; a sanctuary, shrine, temple.

(2) Fānum, i, n. a town in Umbria, now Fano, at the mouth of the Metaurus, with a temple of Fortune. făr, farris, in pl. only nom. and acc., n. [? Sanscr. root bhar- ; cf. φέρω, fero ; farina], I. spelt. In pl. grain crops, corn. II. (meton.) coarse meal ; pium, i.e. mola salsa ; caninum, dog-biscuit.

farcĭo, īre, farsi, fartum (farctum ; farsum), [akin to Gk. φράσσω, stop up, shut in ; root φραγ-], I. stuff, cram. II. stuff in, pack close.

farctus, a, um. See fartus.

Farfărus, i, m. See Fabaris.

fări, fārier, infin. from for.

fărīna, ae, f. [far], I. flour of wheat, meal, ground corn. Prov. facere farinam, make ducks and drakes of one's money. II. (meton.) flour, powder, dust. III. (fig.) material, quality : cum ferris nostrae paulo ante farinae, one of our batch.

fāris, fātur, from for, fari.

farrāgo, ĭnis, f. [far], I. a mixture of spelt, barley, vetches, and pulse given to cattle ; a mash, dredge ; provender. II. (meton.) 1. a medley, hodge-podge. 2. a feed, meal : in tenui farragine mendax, for a paltry dole of corn.

farrātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], filled with meal : olla, i.e. a jar of oatmeal porridge. As subst. farrāta. orum, n. pl. (sc. cibaria), meal porridge : ponebant Tusco farrata catino.

farsus, a, um. See fartus.

fartor, ōris, m. [farcio], 1. a fattener of fowls, poulterer. 2. a maker of meat-puddings, sausage-maker.

fartus (farctus, farsus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from farcio, stuffed, crammed, filled, packed close. As subst. fartus, i, n. 1. stuffing. 2. a meat-pudding, sausage.

fās, n. indecl., only in nom. and acc. ; for gen. sing. fandi (see fandus) is used, [fari], I. that which has received divine sanction ; the law or will of the gods, divine law (opp. to ius, "human law") ; whatever is allowed by divine law : fas iusque, right in the eyes of gods and men ; festis quaedam exercere diebus Fas et iura sinunt ; si cadere Argolico fas est sub milite Troiam, if it is heaven's will, if it is fated. II. (meton.) what is right, right : (more often to be translated as adj.) allowable, lawful, right, permitted, possible : venena magnum fas nefasque non valent Convertere ; fas gentium rumpere, the law of nations, international obligations ; fas patriae, the claims of fatherland ; si licet, et fas est, if one is privileged. III. (personified) Fas, as a deity ; Divine Justice.

fasciātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fascio, enveloped in bandages, swathed : fasciato naufragus loquax trunco, (a) with bandaged body, i.e. with a limb tied up like a modern impostors ; (b) with a piece of the wreck carefully wrapped up as a relic ; (c) 'sandwiched' like the walking advertisements in London.

fascēs, ĭum, m. See fascis, II.

fascia (fascĕa), ae, f. [cf. fascis], I. a band, bandage, swathe, girth ; esp. (a) a diadem, fillet, head-band ; (b) a corset ; corsage ; (c) a legging composed of pieces of cloth interlaced, like the 'diced hose' of Scotch Highlanders ; (d) a sock, stocking ; hose ; (e) a bed-girth ; (f) a plaster : calidi visci, of hot tar ; used as a depilatory. II. (meton.) a belt or streak of clouds.

fascĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. fascis], a small bundle or roll, packet ; a bunch of flowers, bouquet.

fascĭno, āre, [fascinum], bewitch, cast a spell over, enchant, fascinate. Cf. Gk. βασκαίνω.

fascĭnum, i, n., (fascĭnus, i, m.), [root fak- ; cf. fari], lit. a charm recited over or about a person ; 1. a bewitching, witchcraft, spell. 2. an amulet, worn as a protection against the evil eye. 3. = membrum virile.

fascĭŏla, ae, f. [dim. fascia], a small bandage ; a cross-garters, worn by dandies, cf. fascia, I. (c). fascis, is, m. [cf. Gk. φάκελος ; fascia], 1. a faggot, fascine ; bundle, pack, packet, parcel ; burden.

load; esp. of a soldier's kit. II. in pl. fasces, ium, l. a bundle of rods, with an axe projecting from the centre, carried by the lictors before the chief Roman magistrates (as the symbol of office with power of life and death), and with which criminals were scourged and beheaded; fasces. 2. (meton.) high office; esp. the consulship. 3. (fig.) fasces submittere, to give in, yield precedence. The inferior magistrates had to lower the fasces, as a mark of respect to the higher ones; e.g. the consuls to the dictator, the praetors to the consuls, etc.

fāsĕlus, i. See phas-.

fāsiānus, i. See phas-.

fassus, a, um, perf. part. from fateor, having confessed, avowed, indicated, manifested; sts. pass. manifested, betrayed.

fasti, ōrum. See (1) fastus.

fastidĭo, īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, [fastidium], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. feel disgust or loathing, flinch. 2. (fig.) be distasteful, hard to please. B. (trans.) 1. feel disgust at, reject with loathing, loathe, eschew, be sick and weary of. 2. (fig.) disdain, scorn, think beneath one.

fastidĭōsē, adv. [fastidiosus], with disgust or squeamishness; disdainfully, with fastidious niceness, critically. Compar. fastidiosius.

fastidĭōsus, a, um, adj. [fastidium], full of disgust; A. (passive) squeamish, nice, hard to please. 2. disdainful, haughty, scornful, (with gen.): sick and weary of, dissatisfied, discontented with: dominus terrae Fastidiosus. B. (active) that causes disgust and weariness, sickening: copia, that only palls. Compar. fastidiosior; superl. fastidiosissimus.

fastidĭum, ĭi, n. [(2) fastus], I. a loathing, distaste, aversion; nicety, squeamishness. II. (fig.) 1. disgust, antipathy, loathing, weariness, ennui. 2. disdain, scorn; in pl. airs, pruderies.

fastigātē, adv. [fastigatus], in the form of the gable of a house, i.e. in a sloping direction.

fastigātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fastigo. As adj. sloped or sloping like the gable of a house; running up into a ridge.

fastigium, ĭi, n. [cf. ἄφλαστον; aplustre], I. 1. the top of a gable, gable-end, pediment. 2. a triangular gable or frontal (of a temple). Private individuals were not allowed to decorate their houses thus; but it was decreed to Roman emperors, in token of their dignity. II. (meton.) A. 1. the top or highest part of a building, the roof. 2. top, height, summit. B. 1. the downward slope, lower extremity, bottom; depth: forsitan et scrobibus quae sit fastigia quaeras. 2. a slope, descent, declivity, inclination. III. (fig.) 1. the highest point or summit of honour, exalted rank, dignity, grandeur. 2. a leading circumstance (in a narrative, etc.), a main point, head: summa sequar fastigia rerum, the main points of the story.

fastigo, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. fastigium], trans. v. raise or bring to a point; carry in a sloping direction, slope.

fastōsus, a, um, adj. [(2) fastus], haughty, capricious; sumptuous.

(1) fastus, a, um, adj. [fari], lit. on which it is allowed to speak; lawful: dies, a day on which the presiding judge (praetor) could speak, i.e. use the three legal words Do (I grant a trial), Dico (I pronounce sentence), Addico (I award); a day on which legal business could be carried on, a court day, business day: fastus (sc. dies) erit per quem lege licebit agi. As subst. fasti, ōrum (fastŭs, ūum), m. l. court days, business days. II. (meton.) 1. a list of court or business days. 2. a calendar, almanac, year-book, giving the days and months, with court-days, holidays, market-days, historical events, etc. 3. Fasti Annales, registers, public records, chronicles, containing the names of consuls (fasti consulares), and other magistrates, with their dates of office, remarkable events, etc.; memores. 4. the title of Ovid's verse Calendar or Companion to the Roman Almanac.

(2) fastus, ūs, m. [Sanscr. dharsh-, dare; cf. θράσος], 1. a proud or haughty bearing, disdain, contempt; 'airs.' 2. luxury.

(3) fastŭs, ūum, pl. abl. fastibus, m. a year-book, calendar, almanac. Cf. (1) fastus; fasti, of which it is a later form.

fātālis, e, adj. [fatum], 1. of or belonging to fate; ordained by fate, fated, destined: mors, a natural death; with dat.: terris regendis, for ruling the world. 2. doom-fraught, death-dealing, deadly, irresistible.

fātāliter, adv. [fatalis], by the decree of fate.

fātĕor, fātēri, fassus sum, [root FA-; cf. fari], trans. dep. I. confess, own, avow, acknowledge, grant, admit. II. (meton.) indicate, discover, betray, declare, manifest: animum pallore.

fātĕrĭĕr, old infin. from fateor.

fāti-cănus (-cĭnus), a, um, adj. [fatum; canо], announcing fate, prophetic.

fāti-dĭcus, a, um, adj. [fatum; dico], predicting fate, prophetic. As subst. m. a prophet.

fāti-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [fatum; fero], death-dealing, doom-fraught, deadly.

fātĭgātĭo, ōnis, f. [fatigo], I. weariness, exhaustion. II. (fig.) banter, badinage.

fātigo, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. χατίς, χατίζω; fames, f = χ, as in fel, fundo], I. weary, tire out, fatigue; exert to the full, work or ply hard, keep moving. II. (fig.) 1. harass, vex, never let alone, worry, importune, plague, trouble: remigio noctemque diemque, all night, all day, they ply the weary oar; noctes, pass weary nights; Martem, clamour loudly for war. 2. bring under, repress. 3. jeer, banter.

fāti-lĕgus, a, um, adj. [fatum; lego], that gathers or collects death.

fāti-lŏquus, a, um, adj. [fatum; loquor], prophetic.

fātim, obsolete subst., [cf. fatisco]. See adfatim.

fātisco, ĕre, [cf. χατίς, χατίζω; fatigo], I. open in chinks, gape open, come apart, split, crack, tumble to pieces. II. (fig.) faint or sink from fatigue, droop from exhaustion, become exhausted.

fātiscor, ī, intrans. dep. See fatisco.

fātŭē, adv. [fatuus], foolishly, absurdly.

fātŭĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], foolishness, silliness, folly.

fātum, i, n. [for, fari], I. a prophetic utterance, oracle, prediction; sts. in pl. prophecy. II. (meton.) 1. destiny, fate, doom. 2. the will of heaven, the will of fate. 3. the natural course of things, the law of nature. 4. (a) fortune (good or bad); esp. bad fortune, ill-fate, mishap, calamity; (b) (concr.) one who brings bad fortune; a demon of disaster; a curse, plague, destroyer: Troiae fatis. 5. sing. or pl. death; esp. death by violence. 6. (poet.) a dead body, corpse: nec moror extremo debita fata rogo. III. (personified) pl. the Fates.

fātus, a, um, perf. part. from for.

fātŭus, a, um, adj. [root FA-; for, fari], I. 1. foolish, silly, simple. As subst. fātuus, i, m. a fool, simpleton, flat. 2. clumsy, bungling. II. (meton.) insipid, tasteless.

faucēs, ium, f. pl. (sbl. sing. fauce found in poets), (deriv. dub.), I. the upper part of the throat, the throat, gullet. II. (meton.) a narrow pass, defile, gorge, passage, outlet, inlet, entrance, mouth. III. (fig.) 1. the jaws of any person or thing; a gulf, abyss. 2. appetite, maw.

Fauni, ōrum, m. pl. [Faunus], rustic deities with horns and goats' feet, sts. identified with the Satyrs, and like them regarded as attendants of Bacchus; Fauns.

Fauni-gĕna, ae, m. [Faunus; gigno], a son or descendant of Faunus.

Faunus, i, m. [root FA-, *the speaker; cf. fatuus, fama; φάτις, φωνή], a mythic son of Picus and father of Latinus, after death worshipped as a rural deity, and often confused with the Arcadian Pan. There were festivals in his honour (Faunalia) on the Ides of February, the 13th of October, and the Nones of December.

faustē, adv. [faustus], favourably, auspiciously.

Faustĭtas, ātis, f. [faustus], Good Fortune personified; Prosperity, Plenty.

Faustŭlus, i, m. the shepherd who reared Romulus and Remus.

faustus, a, um, adj. [faveo], lit. favouring; of favourable or fortunate omen, fortunate, auspicious, lucky, happy, blessed.

fautor (făvĭtor), ōris, m. [id.], a favourer; a partisan supporter, patron, promoter, furtherer, seconder, backer; a 'claqueur.'

fautrix, trĭcis, f. [fautor], a patroness, protectress.

faucĕ, abl. sing. See fauces.

fāvens, ntis, part. from faveo. As adj. favourable, propitious, friendly: adsis, O Tegeaee, favens: venti. As subst. m. one who applauds; a partisan: studiisque faventûm Consonat omne nemus.

fāvĕo, ēre, fāvi, fautum, [root φαΓ; cf. φάος, πυφανσκω], intrans. v. I. 1. be favourable, be partial to, espouse one's cause, favour, befriend, protect, promote, second: si favet alma Pales; (with dat.) quae favet ingeniis excepit Pallas; favere sibi, to indulge one's-self. Impers. puris favetur. 2. approve, be pleased with: coeamus, tettulit Echo, Et verbis favet ipsa suis. 3. be good for, suit, be friendly to: altera (terra) frumentis favet, altera Bacchо. II. Favere linguis (more rarely linguâ, ore), to speak words of good omen; hence, as ill-omene t words might slip out inadvertently, to keep a religious silence; be silent, hush, listen. III. applaud, cheer: tu Veneri Dominae plaude favente manu.

fāvilla, ae, f. [cf. φάρος, fax], I. 1. hot ashes, glowing embers, cinders. 2. the ashes of the dead, still aglow, i.e. before they were extinguished with wine; bibula. II. 1. sparks. 2. (fig.) a glimmer; beginning, origin: haec est venturi prima favilla mali.

fāvītor, ōris. See fautor.

Fāvōnĭus, ĭi (contr. Favoni), m. [faveo], the spring west-wind, also called Zephyrus.

fāvor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. favour, good-will, partiality, friendliness; respect, consideration; public favour, popularity. 2. cheering, applause, acclamation; encouragement, approval; moral support. 3. (poet.) desire of applause, eagerness, excitability.

fāvōrābĭlis, e, adj. [favor], in favour, popular; pleasing, agreeable. Compar. favorabilior.

fāvōrābĭlĭter, adv. [favorabilis], in a prepossessing manner, so as to win applause.

fāvus, i, m. a honeycomb.

fax, fācis, f. [Sanscr. root BHA-, shine; cf. φάος; favilla], I. 1. a chip of wood, faggot: multifidasque faces . . . Detulit. 2. a torch, flambeau, firebrand. 3. (meton.) 1. (a) a nuptial torch; hence, nuptials; (b) a torch used at funerals: una de multis face nuptiali Digna: vixi. mus insignes inter utramque facem, i.e. between marriage and death. 2. a burning light, light: roseā face sol; stella facem ducens, with a train of dazzling light. 3. a fire-ball, meteor, comet, shooting-star. 4. the lightning flash: fulminea. 5. fax prima (as a division of the night), after dark. III. (fig.) that which inflames or incites (often of persons who originate mischief); an instigator, firebrand; a stimulus, incentive: Antonius omnium incendiorum fax, the match that fired the train of all the conflagrations; faces admovere alicui, to put a red-hot poker to one; facem praeferre alicui, light the way for one, with a further notion of inflaming him, cf. III. 3. 2. the flame of love, anger, etc., passion: me torret face mutuā Calais. 3. a strong, fierce light: clarum facem praeferre pudendis, to hold a bright torch before (i.e. show up) one's deeds of shame. The figure is taken from a slave lighting his master home.

faxim, faxo, is, it, etc., faxitur, old forms from facio of perf. subj., fut. perf. act., and 3 sing. fut. perf. pass. respectively. See Roby, I. §§ 620-624; P.S.L.G. § 12, xxxii, 8 (d).

febrĭcĭto, āre, āvi, [febris], intrans. v. have a fever.

febrĭcŭla, ae, f. [dim. febris], a slight fever febrĭcŭlōsus, a, um, adj. [febricula], sick of a fever, feverish.

febris (less often fĕbris), is, acc. sing. febrem or -im, abl. febri, less often febre, f. [Sanscr. root BHI, be afraid; cf. φέβομαι, φόβος. Perhaps akin to ferveo], I. a fever: olim domestica febris, i.e. chronic. II. (meton.) the Fever-Goddess, who had three temples at Rome. III. (fig.) a source of restlessness.

Februārĭārius, a, um, adj. [februum], of February, the month of expiation. See februum. As subst. Februārĭārius, ĭi, m. (sc. mensis), the month of February, till the time of the decemvirs, B.C. 451, the last month of the Roman year.

februum, i, n. [Sabine word; 'a purgation'], an atonement, expiation. In pl. februa, ōrum, n. 1. all objects used in expiatory sacrifices, purificatory offerings: februa Romani dixere piamina patres. 2. the Roman festival of expiation and purification, celebrated on the 15th of the month, called thence February.

Fēcĭālis. See Fetialis.

fēcŭla, ae. See faecula.

fēcunditas (foec-), ātis, f. [fecundus], I. fruitfulness, fertility. II. (meton.) plenty, abundance. III. (fig.) luxuriance of style. IV. the Goddess of Fertility or Fecundity.

fēcundo (foec-), āre, [id.], trans. v. fertilise.

fēcundus (not foec-), a, um, adj. [root FE-; ĕo; cf. femina, fenus, felix], 1. fruitful, fertile, productive, prolific; rich, abundant, teeming: (with gen.) fecunda culpae saecula; (with abl.) melle Calymne; (with dat.) poenis Viscera, fruitful for punishment, i.e. that grow afresh for torture. 2. (active) making fruitful, fertilising: imbres; fecundae verbera dextrae, i.e. from the straps carried by the Luperci. Compar. fecundior; superl. fecundissimus.

fēl, fellis, n. [cf. χόλος; f=χ, as in fundo, fatigo, fatisco], I. the gall-bladder; gall, bile (regarded as the seat of rage); cf. bilis. II. (meton.) venom, poison: vipereum; armatam felle veneni sagittam, poisonous juice. III. (fig.) bitterness, acrimony, venom, envy, spite.

fēlēs (fēlis, faelis), is, f. [root FE; cf. felix], I. a cat; sts. a polecat, stoat, weasel. II. (fig.) a thief.

fēlĭcĭtas, ātis, f. [felix], I. fertility. II. happiness, felicity; good fortune, success. III. Good Fortune personified.

fēlĭcĭtĕr, adv. [id.], I. fruitfully, luxuriantly, abundantly; illic veniunt felicius uvae. II. happily, auspiciously, favourably, prosperously, fortunately; bene atque feliciter evenire. In exclamations of greeting: Good luck to you! Success to you! A blessing on you! ut mos est vulgi, ruit Feliciter succlamans (sc. vinus or sit tibi). III. luckily, successfully, to good purpose. Compar. felicius; superl. felicissime.

fēlis, is. See feles.

fēlix, īcis, adj. sing. felici (rarely -ē), adj. [feo; cf. fecundus, femina], I. fruit-bearing, fruitful, fertile, productive: silvae, plantations of fruit-trees: poma, goodly. Ov. II. that brings good luck, auspicious, propitious, favourable, prosperous. III. (passive) happy, lucky, successful, fortunate, blessed: felix sorte tuā; malum, the blessed apple, i.e. the citron, so called for its properties as an antidote; (poet. with gen. of reference). O te Bane creberi Felicem! aiebam, happy in your hot temper; how I envy you your hot temper! felices operum dies, lucky for farm-work: (poet. with prolate infin.): quo non felicior alter Ungere tela manu, i.e. more skilled in smearing. Compar. felicior; superl. felicissimus.

(2) fēlix, icis, f. See filix.

fēmella, ae, f. [dim. for feminula, from femina], a young female, girl.

fēmĕn, ĭnis, n. See femur.

fēmĭna, ae, f. [root FE; cf. fetus, fecundus, felix; φύω], I. a female; esp. a woman. In apposition = adj.: Danai femina turba senis, i.e. the daughters of Danaus. II. the females of animals, she-: bestiarum aliae mares, aliae femininae sunt; anguis.

fēmĭnālĭa, ĭum, n. pl. [femen], thigh-bandages; drawers, pants, breeches.

fēmĭnĕus, a, um, adj. [femina], 1. of or belonging to a woman or women, womanly, feminine: sts. = obj. gen.: poena, vengeance on a woman. 2. womanish, effeminate, unmanly.

fēmŭr, fēmŏris (or fēminis, from obsol. nom. femen), n. [prob. akin to femina, fecundus], the upper part of the thigh, the thigh.

fēnebris, fēnērātio, fēnĕro, etc. See faen-.

fĕnestella, ae, f. [dim. fenestra], 1. a small window. 2. the name of an arch in the walls of Rome, wrongly supposed to be a gateway.

fĕnestra, ae, f. [akin to φαίνω; root φαν-; cf. φανερός], I. an opening in a wall; an aperture, a window; sts. in pl. shutters, jalousies: biforis, i.e. with two leaves or doors opening from top to bottom. II. (meton.) 1. a loophole, embrasure. 2. a window-recess. 3. a hole (for ear-rings). 4. a breach, gap: lato dedit ore fenestram. III. (fig.) an opening, inlet, opportunity: quantam fenestram ad nequitiam patefecerie, what a door you will have opened fĕnĕus, a, um, adj. See faen-.

fĕnĭlia, ium, n. pl. See faen-.

fĕnĭsĕca, ae, and fĕnĭsex, sĕcis, m. See faen-.

Fenni, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe in the N.E. of Europe, probably identical with the Finns.

fĕnum, i, n. See faen-.

fĕnus, ŏris, n. See faen.

fĕra, ae, f. See ferus.

fĕrācĭtĕr, adv. [ferax], fruitfully, with powers of production. Compar. feracius.

fĕrālis, e, adj. [fero, from carrying the dead in funeral procession], I. 1. of or belonging to the dead; funereal: munera, offerings to the dead; cena, i.e. pour, stimula fare. Cf. novendialis. 2. of or belonging to the Feralia; dies (tempus), the days (season) of the festival of the dead. As subst. Fĕrālia, ium, n. pl. a yearly festival in honour of departed spirits, held in February, on the 13th or 21st and lasting several days. Only the last day of the festival was properly called Feralia. Cf. Parentalia. II. (meton.) deathlike, death-boding, gloomy, baleful, ill-omened, deadly, fatal.

fĕrax, ācis, adj. [id.], given to bearing, productive, fertile, fruitful; with gen. or abl.; abounding in, rich. Also (poet.) with dat. Compar. feracior; superl. feracissimus.

ferbŭi. See ferveo.

ferctum, i, n. See fertum.

fercŭlum, i, n. [fero], 1. that on which something is carried; a frame, stretcher, litter, bier. 2. a large tray, or waiter, on which dishes were brought in; hence, a course, remove; a dish; fercula nunc audi nullis ornata macellis, i.e. the bill of fare.

fĕrē, adv. 1. nearly, almost, well-nigh, (with words denoting space or time), more or less, as near as may be, pretty much, about: tertiā fere vigiliā, about the 3d watch; extremum fere, almost the last part. 2. for the most part, chiefly, as a rule, generally, commonly, usually. 3. just, entirely, quite: (sermo) qui tum fere multis erat in ore, just at that time; iamque fere mediam cæli nox humida metam Contigerat, now just, and just now.

4. (with negatives) scarcely, hardly; nemo fere, scarcely any one; non fere, seldom.

fĕrens, ntis, part. from fero. As adj. favouring: ventus.

fĕrentārius, ĭi, m. ([?] fero), 1. a corps of light-armed troops, slingers, etc., who fought with missile weapons, not at close quarters; skirmishers. 2. equites ferentarii, mounted light infantry skirmishers.

Fĕrentina, ae, f. a Latin Goddess, whose grove was the meeting-place of the Latin League. A spring sacred to her was called Caput Aquæ Ferentinæ or Caput Ferentinum, Ferentina's Reservoir Fĕrentīnas, ātis, gentile adj., of or from Ferentinum. As subst. a native of F.

Fĕrentīnum, i, n. 1. a town of the Hernici in Latium, mentioned by Horace as a proverbially quiet, out-of-the-way town. 2. a town in Etruria, also called Fĕrentium, the birthplace of the Emperor Otho.

Fĕrentīnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ferentinum.

Fĕrentum, i, n. See Forentum.

Fĕrĕtrius, ĭi, contr. gen. Fĕrĕtrī, m. [ferio], a surname of Iuppiter, the Subduer, from striking down (feriendo) one's enemy. To him the spolia opima were dedicated.

‡ fĕretrum, i, n. [φέρετρον], a bier, litter; a frame for carrying things on. Cf. ferculum.

fĕriæ, ārum, f. pl. [for fesiæ; root FES-; cf. festus], holidays, festivals; a festival. See Dict. Ant., and cf. Latinæ.

fĕriātus, a, um, perf. part. from ferior, keeping holiday. As adj. disengaged, at leisure, idle, unemployed; quiet.

fĕrīnus, a, um, adj. [ferus], of or belonging to wild animals: caro, wild game. As subst. fĕrīna, ae, f. (sc. caro), game; venison.

fĕrĭo, īre, perf. and supines supplied from percutio, [deriv. dub.], I. 1. strike, smite, batter, knock, beat, hit; light upon, reach, touch. 2. kill by striking, give the death-blow to; kill, slay; slaughter, sacrifice. 3. stamp, coin; (cf. Gk. κόπτειν): Triumviri A. A. A. F. F., i.e. auro argento aeri flando feriendo: (fig.) carmen triviale. II. (meton.) foedus ferire, to ratify a treaty by the slaughter of a victim; make a solemn treaty, compact; cf. Engl. strike a bargain. III. (fig.) cozen; (with abl.) cheat out of.

fĕrior, āri, ātus sum, [ferine], intrans. dep. keep holiday.

fĕritas, ātis, f. [ferus], wildness, savageness, fierceness; a wild or savage condition.

fermē, adv. =a fuller form of fere, q.v.

fermentum, i, n. [for fervimentum; ferveo], I. leaven, yeast. II. fermented liquor; beer. III. (fig.) 1. anger, passion, heartburning. 2. cause for anger.

fĕro, ferre, tŭli (redupl. ‡tĕtŭli), lātum, [Sanscr. BHAR-, carry; cf. φέρω. The perf. forms are from stem tul-, tol; and supine latum for tlatum; cf. τλάω, τλητός], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. a. bear, carry, bring. 2. set in motion, stir, carry, waft, speed along, raise, drive, lead, conduct: signa, to put the standards in motion, advance, charge: pedem, stir one's foot, go, come; ferre pedem choris, tread a measure in the dance, foot it, trip it. Ferre se, or pass. reflexively, to move onward, go swiftly, hurry along, haste, speed, rush, flee, soar, betake one's self; mount; run down; flow, run. 3. carry off, plunder, spoil. Esp. with rapio, or in phr., ferre et agere; cf. ago, I. 2. 4. carry in effigy. Cic. Phil., viii. § 18. 5. bear, produce, yield, bring forth: non omnis fert omnia tellus; ventrem ferre, to be with young, be pregnant. 6. offer, render aid, help; condiciones, to lead, conduct, raise, elevate, extol; drive, impel, prompt: praeceps amentiā ferebare, were carried away: aliquem laudibus; animus fert, the inclination prompts one, one is disposed, one longs, is purposed or inclined to do something; verum dicere causas; quo cuiusque animus fert, eo discedunt. 3. (=aufero), carry off, take away, remove: omnia fert aetas, animum quoque. 4. (=effero) carry forth to burial: Ov. Trist. i. 3. 89. 5. bear, produce: aetas parum, peior avis, tulit Nos nequiores. 6. (of abstr. things) bring in its train, involve. 7. win, obtain, gain, earn, carry off, receive: palmam; repulsam; centuriam or tribum suam, carry or gain the votes of his own century or tribe: omne tulit punctum; calumniam, be wrongly convicted. 8. suffer, endure, put up with, brook, take, i.e. regard, tolerate, bear: superbum fortuna ferendo est: invidia non ferenda, an intolerable unpopularity; aliquid aegre, graviter, indigne, moleste ferre, to take amiss, be indignant or annoyed at, resent a thing; aliquid modice ferre, to be content with; se ignominiae causa ferre loco, that they would regard it in the light of a disgrace; ferre ut aliquis aliquid faciat, bear that one should do a thing, allow the opportunity of doing. 9. support, sustain, resist, withstand: impetum nostrorum. 10. exhibit, show, publish, disclose: laetitiam apertissime; iram palam (haud clam) ferre, openly profess, Liv. Prae se ferre, to profess, display, manifest, declare. 11. report, declare, make known, relate, talk of, tell abroad, celebrate, say, tell: victoriae nostrae ferebantur, were famed: Ascanio ferat haec. Ferunt, fertur, feruntur, men say, it is said or reported, the story goes that, 'on dit.' Quae quendam ferunt Demaratus; arbiter pugnae fertur posuisse nudo Sub pede palmam fertur Prometheus addere principi Limo coactus (esse) Particulam. This ellipse of esse is freq. 12. hold, account, regard, deem: non sat idoneus Pugnae ferebaris. 13. give out, pass off, profess, boast: hunc omnium inventorem artium ferunt: avum M. Antonium. Pass. reflex. pass current, be extant. III. (polit. techn. t.) 1. ferre sententiam or suffragium, give one's vote. 2. ferre legem, (a) bring forward a bill, propose, put it to the vote; (b) enact, carry. 3. (legal techn. t.) ferre iudicem alicui, propose a juror to (the defendant); i.e. bring an action against, sue. 4. (business techn. t.) enter, set down, note down, post in a ledger or account-book: aliquid expensum; cf. expendo, expensum. B. (intrans.) tend in a certain direction; require, direct, suggest, ordain, demand, will; allow, permit, suffer: ut natura montis ferebat, the character of the mountain suggested; ut mea fert opinio; (poet.) bring to pass, sic fata tulerunt.

fērōcia, ae, f. [ferox], high spirit, courage, dash; (in a bad sense), haughtiness, insolence.

fērōcitas, ātis, f. [id.], high spirit, ardour, courage, mettle; insolence, bravado.

fērōcitĕr, adv. [id.], in a spirited manner, pluckily, courageously; haughtily, insolently, wildly, boisterously. Compar. ferocius; superl. ferocissime.

Fērōnia, ae, f. an old Italian divinity of originally Sabine, consort of Iuppiter Anxurus, afterwards identified with Iuno. Markets were held in groves sacred to her.

fĕrox, ōcis, adj. [cf. ferus; same root as θήρ, Aeolic φήρ, a wild beast], high-spirited, dashing, fiery, impetuous, wartike, bold, confident, emboldened, wild; haughty, insolent. Compar. ferocior; superl. ferocissimus.

ferrāmentum, i, n. [ferrum], an iron tool, weapon, implement, etc.

ferrārius, a, um, adj. [id.], of iron, having to do with iron. As subst. ferrārius, ae, f. (sc. fodina), an iron mine.

ferrātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [ferrum], covered with iron, iron-bound, iron-clad, iron-shod; mailed. As subst. ferrātis, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. milites), soldiers armed in a complete suit of mail = cataphractarii.

ferrĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of iron, iron, steel. II. (fig.) hard as iron or steel, case-hardened, hard-hearted, cruel, unfeeling, rigorous, unyielding, fixed, immovable, rigid, stubborn.

ferrūgĭnĕus (-ginus, Lucr.), a, um, adj. [ferrugo], 1. of the colour of iron-rust, dark-red, maroon, purple; dusky, murky. 2. chalybeate.

ferrūgo, ĭnis, f. [ferrum], I. iron-rust. II. (meton.) 1. the colour of iron-rust; a dark-red dye, maroon, purple, damask; a lurid or murky hue. 2. the colour produced on bright iron or steel by the action of heat; bluish-green: viridem ferrugine barbam, sea-green.

ferrum, i, n. [? akin to firmus], I. iron, steel. II. (meton.) anything made of iron; an axe or hatchet; an iron weapon; a sword; knife; spear-head; the point or barb of an arrow; a plough-share; a chain, shackle; curling-irons; scissors, shears; a stilus, pen. III. (fig.) arms, battle, war, military power.

fertĭlis, e, adj. [fero], I. fruitful, fertile; productive, teeming; (with gen.) frugum. II. that makes fruitful or fertile, fertilising; dea, i.e. Ceres; (fig.) suggestive, inspiring. Compar. fertilior; superl. fertilissimus.

fertĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [fertilis], fruitfulness, fertility, productiveness; abundance.

fertum (ferctum), i, n. [? fero], an oblation-cake.

fĕrŭla, ae, f. I. the plant fennel-giant, which has a long stalk. II. (meton.) a cane, baton; riding-whip; staff, walking-stick.

fĕrus, a, um, adj. [akin to θήρ; cf. ferox], wild, untamed. As subst. (a) fĕrus, i, m. a wild animal, beast, or creature; a monster; a lion, wild boar; sts. of tame animals; a stag, ox; (b) fĕra, ae, f. a wild beast: magna minorque ferae, i.e. the constellations of the Great and Little Bear. Sts. like ferus, any creature; an ant: tenuis. II. (meton.) wild, uncultivated: silvae montes. III. (fig.) wild, savage, uncivilised, barbarous, fierce, cruel.

ferve-făcĭo, făcĕre, fēci, factum, [ferveo; facio], make boiling hot, boil, melt: pix fervefacta; iacula, i.e. with tow and pitch wrapped round them and lighted, or, made red hot.

fervens, ntis, part. from ferveo. As adj. I. burning hot, boiling, glowing, red-hot, reeking. II. (fig.) hot, heated, impetuous, mad. Compar. ferventior; superl. ferventissimus.

ferventĕr, adv. [fervens], hotly, warmly. Superl. ferventissime.

fervĕo, ēre, ferbŭi, also fervo, ēre, fervi (an older form), [Sanscr. root GHAR, glow; cf. θέρος, or (as if frev-eo) akin to φρεγαρ, root φρυ-; cf. πορ-φύρ-ω], I. be boiling hot, boil, glow, ferment, be heated, burn. II. (meton.) 1. boil up, surge. 2. be in a ferment, swarm. III. (fig.) burn, glow, be heated or inflamed, rage; be agitated, be in a turmoil; be alive with work, be busy, astir, be briskly carried on; (poet. with infin.), burn eagerly, desire ardently.

fervesco, ĕre, [incept. ferveo], grow boiling hot, begin to boil or glow.

fervĭdus, a, um, adj. [ferveo], I. 1. glowing hot, burning, fiery, glowing. II. (meton.) surging, heaving: aequor, vada, yeasting. III. (fig.) hot, ardent, glowing, eager, impetuous, fiery.

fervo, ĕre, fervi. See ferveo.

fervor, ōris, m. [ferveo], I. a boiling heat, violent or raging heat, burning, glow. II. (fig.) heat, glow, passion, fire, ferment, turmoil, unsettled condition.

(1) Fescennīnus, a, um, adj. of or from Fescennia, a town of the Falisci, of Pelasgic origin, in Etruria; Fescennine. From this town the Fescennine verses are said to have been derived; but see (2) Fescenninus.

(2) Fescennīnus, a, um, adj. [fescennus, one who has power over the fascinum, a charmer who can avert the evil eye; cf. fascinum], of or belonging to charmers. Fescennini Versus, the verses used by charmers at marriages, etc., to avert the evil eye. They took the form of rustic banter or coarse satiric dialogue, and from them was gradually developed the Italian drama in its earliest stage. (Nettleship's Essays in Lat. Lit. p. 61).

fessus, a, um, adj. [akin to fatigo, fatiscor; Sanscr. root hā-; gahāmi, abandon; cf. χατές, χήρος, f = χ], wearied, tired, fatigued, worn out, overpowered, spent, exhausted, broken, feeble: (with gen., implying satiety), fessi rerum, weary of the world, or, weary of misfortunes, or, (gen. of respect), broken in their fortunes festĭnanter, adv. [festino], hastily, in haste, in a hurry, with despatch. Compar. festinantius.

festĭnātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a hastening, haste, hurry, despatch.

festĭnātō, adv. [id.], in haste, in a hurry.

festĭnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from festino, hastened on, done in haste; hurried over, premature; rosae, forced, Mart.

festīno, āre, āvi, ātum, [? root FED-, strike; cf. θείνω = fendo; offendo, infestus], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) make haste, hasten, hurry, be quick. B. (trans.) cause to be done with speed, do speedily, hasten, make or perform with despatch, accelerate, expedite, hurry on: poenas, i.e. exact eagerly.

festīnus, a, um, adj. [festino], making haste, in haste, quick, rapid; premature, early.

festīvē, adv. [festivus], 1. joyously, gaily. 2. agreeably, wittily, cleverly.

festīvĭtas, ātis, f. [festivus], 1. gaiety, mirth, jollity, "bonhomie." 2. pleasantry, sally of wit.

festīviter, adv. = festive.

festīvus, a, um, adj. [festus], lit. feast-like; I. gay, lively, jovial, festive. II. (meton.) agreeable, cheerful, delightful, charming; merry, sprightly, jovial; entertaining, lively, witty. Compar. festivior; superl. festivissimus.

festūca, ae, f. 1. a stalk, stem, straw. 2. a rod with which the praetor's lictor touched the head of a slave whose owner had manumitted him. Cf. vindicta.

festus, a, um, adj. [root FES-, bright; cf. feriae; φαίνω]. I. of or belonging to holidays, festal. As subst. festum, i, n. (a) a holiday, festival; (b) a festal banquet, feast. II. (meton.) 1. keeping holiday, in holiday garb; gay, merry. 2. public, solemn; festal, festive. Compar. festior.

Fēsŭlae, ārum, and Fēsŭlānus, a, um. See Fae-.

fēteō, fētidus, fētor. See foet-.

Fētiālēs, ium, m. pl. [for, fari], lit. the Speakers; a college of priests who conducted all ceremonies connected with the formal declaration of war, the ratification of peace, or demands for redress. See Rich, Dict. Ant.

fētiālis, e, adj. [Fetiales], of or belonging to the Fetiales; fetial.

fētūra (foet-), ae, f. [(2) fetus], I. a bringing forth of young; breeding, propagation. II. (meton.) offspring, brood, young stock.

(1) fētus (foetus), a, um, adj. [properly part. from absol. feo; cf. felix, fecundus, etc.], I. 1. pregnant, breeding. 2. that has just brought forth, newly delivered; (of animals) after calving, lambing, etc.: ursa, with cubs. As subst. fēta, ae, f. (=mater post feturam), a dam just after yeaning. II. (meton.) 1. fruitful, productive. 2. filled with, full, teeming.

(2) fētus (foetus), ūs, m. [id.], I. a bringing forth of young, bearing, dropping, hatching; productive power, production, breeding. 2. (of plants) a bearing, producing. II. (meton.) 1. young, offspring, brood, litter, progeny. 2. (of plants) the produce of the earth; produce, fruits. III. (fig.) growth, crop, produce.

fī, fītō, imperat. from fio.

fiber, fibri, m. a beaver.

fibra, ae, f. [? =ferba, old form of herba; cf. φορβή, φέρβω], 1. 1. a fibre, filament (of a plant). 2. the thread-like extremity of the liver; a nerve, muscle, etc. (of animal bodies). II. (meton.) entrails; esp. the liver. III. (fig.) the heart, breast.

fībula, ae, f. [contr. for figibula; figo], a clasp, buckle, pin, brooch; a brace (in carpentry), trenail; a seton (in surgery). See Rich, Dict. Ant.

ficēdŭla (ficēdŭla), ae, f. [ficus; ēdo], the fig-pecker, beccafico; a small bird eaten whole by epicures.

fictē, adv. [fictus], feignedly, fictitiously.

fictĭlis, e, adj. [fingo], made of clay, earthen, of earthenware, terra-cotta. As subst. fictĭlia, ium, n. pl. (sc. poculа, vasa, signa, etc.), terra-cotta vessels, statuettes, casts, tiles, etc.

fictĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a making, fashioning, feigning, fiction.

fictor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. one who models in clay, wax, or other plastic material; an image-maker, statuary. 2. a maker, fashioner, feigner; fandi, i.e. crafty-tongued.

fictrix, tricis, f. [fictor], she that forms or fashions.

fictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fingo. As adj. 1. feigned, fictitious, false, imaginary, unreal. As subst. fictum, i, n. that which is false, falsehood, a lie. 2. false, deceitful, hypocritical.

Fīcŭlēa, ae, f. an ancient town of the Sabines.

ficulnus (-nĕus), a, um, adj. [ficula, dim. of ficus], of a fig-tree, of fig-wood.

ficus, i and ūs, abl. sing. ō or ū, nom. pl. i or ūs; acc. pl. ōs or ūs, f. rarely m., I. a fig-tree. II. (meton.) a fig: duplex, i.e. split for drying; prima, i.e. a sign of autumn.

fidē, adv. [fidus], faithfully, loyally.

fidēī-committo, also separately, fidēī committo, ĕre, commisi, commissum, intrans. and trans. v. leave in trust.

fidēī-commissum, i, n. [fideicommittо], a beneficiary bequest left to a friend on certain conditions in trust for a third party; a trust.

fidēle, adv. ante- and post-class. =fideliter.

fidēlia, ae, f. a jar of earthenware or glass; a pail of whitewash.

fidēlis, e, adj. [fides], I. trustworthy, trusty, faithful, loyal, true, staunch. As subst. fidēlis, is, m. a confidant. II. (meton.) trusty, sure, safe, to be depended upon; strong, durable. Compar. fidelior; superl. fidelissimus.

fidēlĭtas, ātis, f. [fidelis], faithfulness, loyalty, fidelity.

fidēlĭtĕr, adv. [id.], faithfully, loyally, trustily, conscientiously; so as to retain certainly; surely, firmly. Compar. fidelius; superl. fidelissime.

Fīdēnae (Fī-), ārum, f. pl. (also sing. -a, ae), Fidenae or Fidena, an old town of Latium, five miles N. of Rome, coupled with Gabii as a proverbially unimportant place.

Fīdēnās, ātis, gentile adj. of or belonging to Fidenae. As subst., a man of Fidenae.

fidens, ntis, part. from fido. As adj. self-confident, bold, resolute: (with locat.) animi. Compar. fidentior; superl. fidentissimus.

fidentĕr, adv. [fidens], confidently, with assurance. Compar. fidentius; superl. fidentissime.

fidentĭa, ae, f. [id.], self-confidence, assurance.

(1) fidēs, fidēī (fidēi, Lucr.), poet. fidĕi, Ov. Hor.; dat. sing. -dēī, Hor., f. [fido], I. trust in a person or thing, confidence, reliance, faith, belief, credence: multa fidem promissa levant; magna fides avium, belief in auguries; acceptam parce movere fidem, forbear to disturb the received belief, i.e. what is generally believed; ratam debet testis habere fidem, to have credit assured to him, to be sure of belief; fidem facere alicui, to inspire confidence, carry conviction, persuade, convince a person of one's good faith, make a man believe one, find credit; fidem habere alicui or alicui rei, to place confidence in, trust. 2. commercial credit: usura vorax avidumque in tempora faenus Et concussa fides; scimus Romae solutione impeditā fidem concidisse. 3. (of persons) trustworthiness, credibility, faithfulness, honesty, honour, veracity, integrity, good faith, loyalty: constantis iuvenem fide (archaic gen of quality). B. (of things) 1. credibility, certainty, truth: cum Gabiniī levitas nomenque tabularum fidem resignāsset; rem ausus plus famae habituram ad posteros quam fidei. 2. (poet.) stability, certainty: iam cupio Stygiis invadere nubibus astra . . . et rerum vexare fidem, to derange the stability of things, the fixed law of nature; spes . . . ventique fidem poscebat et anni, required certainty both of wind and produce; olim vera fides Sullā Marioque recepta Libertatis obit, the genuine substance, the reality of Liberty. 3. (poet.) faithful accomplishment, fulfilment: vota fides sequitur; pollicitam dictis, Iuppiter, adde fidem. C. (legal techn. t.) bona fides, good faith, sincerity; bonā fide, bonā or bonā fide, in good faith, in all truth, sincerely, honestly, without reserve; mala fides, bad faith, dishonesty, breach of trust. D. 1. sworn faith, pledged troth, a promise, engagement, assurance, one's word of honour, security, guarantee; fidem dare, to pledge one's word of honour, give an undertaking; fidem solvere or praestare, to fulfil a promise, keep one's word; fidem fallere (mutare), to break one's word; vestrā causā me loqui vel ea fides sit, let this be a guarantee; oratores ad Poenum veniunt . . . commeatum itinerisque duces et ad fidem promissorum obsides acciperet, as security for, to insure the performance of their engagements. 2. proof, evidence, confirmation: nunc quoque dant verbo plurima signa fidem; addita fati Peioris manifesta fides; tum vero manifesta fides, plain was the conviction, the truth stood clear; quae priores nondum eloquentia percoluere, rerum fide tradentur, on the evidence of facts; ex ingenio suo quisque demat vel addat fidem. 3. the honour of a state pledged; a promise of protection or security (of persons, deities), guardian care, protection: fides publica, like Gk. ἄδεια, the promise of free pardon, full indemnity; in fidem recipere aliquem, to take under one's protection, accept a person's surrender; in alicuius fidem venire, to place one's self under a person's protection, i.e. surrender to him; in fide alicuius esse, to owe a person allegiance; Dianae sumus in fide, i.e. D. is our protectress; quaere in cuius fide sint et clientelā, under whose protection and patronage; Caesaris fidem sequi, to attach one's self to, retain one's allegiance to, Caesar; di, obsecro vostram fidem, your protection, aid; pro deorum (deūm) atque hominum fidem, in heaven's name, for heaven's sake; gracious heaven! III. Fides, personified, as a goddess; Good Faith, Faith, Honour.

(2) fīdes, ium, f. pl. less freq. fīdes, is, f. sing. [σφίδη, a guttstring], I. a stringed instrument, lyre, lute, harp, guitar, etc.: sume fidem et pharetram; inventor curvae, furibus apte, fidis; fidibus canoris; fidibus canere, to perform or play on the lyre, etc.; often with ellipse of canere; scire fidibus, docere (discere) fidibus. II. 'in sing.) the Lyre, a constellation = Lyra.

fīdi-cĕn, cinis, m. [(2) fides: cano], a player on any stringed instrument; a lute-player, lyrist, harper, minstrel.

fīdīcĭna, ae, f. [fidicen], a female lute-player, harper, etc.

fīdīcŭla, ae, f. [dim. (2) fides], 1. a small or thin musical string. 2. (in Ll.) a kind of wire-fence; a contrivance for torturing by means of ligatures with fine cords.

fīdis, is, f. See (2) fides, of which it is a rare form.

Fīdius, ĭi, m. [(1) fides], a surname of Iuppiter, God of troth or trust (Ζεὺς Πίστιος), identified with the old Sabine god Sancus or Semo Sancus. Mostly in the ellipt. form of asseveration medius fidius (mediusfidius), i.e. me, dius (deus) fidius, iuves, So help me, God of troth! 'fore heaven! upon my honour!

fīdo, fīdĕre, fīsus sum, [Sanscr. root BHANDH-, unite; cf. πείθω, πίστις], trај. v. I. trust, confide, put confidence in, rely upon; (with dat.): nocti; sibi; (with abl.): ope equitis; fugā. 2. feel confident, be sure: fidis enim manare poetica mella Te solum; (with infin.): pugnam committere caestu, have confidence enough to, venture.

fīdūcia, ae, f. [fido], I. 1. confidence, reliance, trust; (with obj. gen.); confidence in, reliance upon: loci; benevolentiae; also with dat.: rebus. 2. self-confidence, assurance, boldness, courage, presumption. II. (meton.) 1. trustworthiness. 2. (legal techn. t.) a contract for reconveyance, the transfer of property to another on condition of its being restored; a deposit, pledge, mortgage, pawn.

fīdūcĭārĭus, a, um, adj. [fiducia], invested, given, or held in trust: operam fiduciariam obtinere, to hold an office upon honour.

fīdus, a, um, adj. [fido], 1. trustworthy, loyal, trusty, faithful, sure, honest, constant: (poet. with obj. gen.) regina tui fidissima, thy staunchest friend; cf. fiducia, I. 1. 2. to be relied upon, certain, sure, safe: pons; (with dat.): statio male fida carinis. Compar. fidior; superl. fidissimus.

fīgo, fīgĕrĕ, fixi, fixum, [akin to σφίγγω, bind tight], trans. v. I. 1. fix, fasten, nail, drive in; nail or fasten up, attach, affix; post up (as a placard): legem, fasten up the tablet on which it was engraved in some public place, i.e. publish a law already passed. 2. set, plant: plantas humo. II. (meton.) 1. transfix, pierce, impale, shoot. 2. set firmly, plant: vestigia. III. (fig.) 1. fix, fasten, set; attach, concentrate. 2. prick, sting, taunt.

fīgŭlus, i, m. [cf. fingo], a potter; (poet.) a brick-maker.

fīgūra, ae, f. [id.], I. 1. a form, shape, figure, outline, contour. 2. an atomic shape, atom. 3. a spectre, phantom (of the dead). II. (fig.) 1. form, kind, quality, nature, manner, model. 2. a figure of speech, metaphor. 3. an innuendo, covert allusion.

fīgūrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from figuro. As adj. formed, fashioned, shaped.

fīgūro, āre, āvi, ātum, [figura], trans. v. I. form, fashion, shape. II. (fig.) 1. train, mould. 2. imagine, picture. 3. (rhet. techn. t.) adorn with figures.

fīlātim, adv. [filum], thread by thread.

fīlia, ae, old form -ăi; pl. dat. abl. sts. fīliābus, f. [filius], a daughter.

fīlĭcātus (fēlĭ-), a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [filix], decked with fern.

fīlĭŏla, ae, f. [dim. filia], I. a little daughter; a pet or darling daughter. II. (meton.) a chit: duce filiolā Curionis.

fīlĭŏlus, i, m. [dim. filius], a little son.

fīlius, ĭi, voc. fīlī, m. [root FE-; akin to femina, fecundus; lit. 'one who is born'], I. a son. In pl. often, children. Filius familias or filius familiae (see familia), a son under the father's power; a minor, cadet. Terrae filius, a son of mother Earth, a son of the soil, i.e. a mushroom, a nobody. Fortunae filius, a child of fortune, a lucky dog, fortune's favourite. II. (meton.) a native, inhabitant.

fīlix (fēlix), fīlĭcis, f. a fern; brake, bracken.

fīlum, i, n. [? for figlum; cf. figo], I. a thread, clew or clue; sts. (a) the thread of life spun by the Parcae; (b) a wick of a candle or lamp. II. (meton.) 1. a woollen band or fillet wound round the flamen's cap: capite filo velato. 2. a string, cord, filament, fibre; esp. of the strings or cords of a lyre, etc. 3. (in pl.) cut tops of herbs; slices, minced collops: porri. 4. outline, contour, shape. III. (fig.) texture, quality, style: aliud quoddam filum orationis tuae; tenui deducta poemata filo, fine-spun.

fīmbrĭae, ārum, f. pl. [cf. fibra; filum], 1. fibres, threads. 2. an ornamental border, fringe, tassel.

fīmbrĭātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [fimbria], fibrous, fringed, tasselled: flagrum, i.e. a cat-o'-nine-tails.

fīmus, i, m. (-um, i, n.), I. dung, ordure, excrement, manure. II. (meton.) garbage, dirt, filth, muck.

findo, ĕre, fīdi, fissum, [Sanscr. BHID-, cleave], trans. v. cleave, split, part, divide, separate. Findere se, or pass. findor, used reflexively, divide, branch off; split, burst, explode.

fingo, ĕre, finxi, fictum, [root FIG-, FI(N)G-; hence fictilis, figulus, figura; cf. θιγγάνω], trans. v. I. 1. touch lightly, chafe, fondle: manus segras manibus amicis; corpora linguā, i.e. lick into shape. 2. form, fashion, make; construct, build. 3. mould, model (as a potter, statuary, or other artist, in clay, wax, stone, etc.). 4. (poet.) knead: illa. 5. set in order, bring into shape, arrange, adjust, dress, trim, tidy: comas; vitem putando, prune into shape. 6. make up, cause to assume a particular shape, expression, etc.: hi neque vultum fingere neque lacrimam lacrimae temere posse putant, i.e. command their countenance, assume a cheerful expression; vultus quoque hominum fingit scelus (=homo scelestus), the rascal makes men put on even false looks. II. (fig.) 1. form, fashion, make; shape, mould; settle, direct, regulate; compose, frame. 2. form or mould by instruction, train, instruct: voce paternā Fingeris ad rectum; ille tuum Syrus mire finxit filium, has 'coached' him admirably in the part he has to play. 3. form mentally, in words; imagine, conceive, sketch, represent; assume, suppose, fancy, idealise: fingere animo iubebat aliquem incitatum; novas sibi ex loco relligiones; finge tamen te Improbulum, suppose, however, you are a bad pupil; in summo oratore fingendo. 4. devise, contrive, invent, feign, counterfeit, pretend: fugam; fallaciam; non visa; se pavidum; dolorem.

finĭo, īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, [finis], trans. v. I. limit, bound, enclose within boundaries. Finiens orbis or circulus, the horizon. II. (fig.) 1. set bounds to, restrain. 2. define, determine, measure, reckon, prescribe, fix, appoint. 3. put an end to, finish, complete, terminate, end, conclude: dolores; vitam; (without obj. acc.); (a) come to an end, finish, cease: finierat Paean; (b) come to one's end, die: sic finivit Tiburtus Pass. be brought to an end, die, expire: in illis qui morbo finiuntur.

finis, is, abl. sing. finĕ, sts. poet. -i, m. (f. only in sing. and mostly poet.), (for fid-nis; root fid-; cf. findo), I. a boundary, limit, border. II. (meton.) 1. (in pl.) borders, frontiers, territory, country: per sorum fines triduum iter. 2. abl. sing. finĕ (finī), followed by gen. or abl., a line of demarcation, a definite point reached; extent: matresfamiliae de muro pectoris fine prominentes, to the extent of, as far as the breast: deinde voluptas est eadem fine palati. Roby, § 2165. III. (fig.) 1. a limit, bound, term: sunt certi denique fines, Quos ultra citraque nequit consistere rec-

tum. 2. (poet.) a station, starting-place: ubi clara dedit sonitum tuba, finibus omnes Prosiluere suis. 3. an end, close, termination, conclusion: finem facere, to put an end to, make an end of, cease, stop; orationem aliquā lectā ad eum finem quem memoriā possem comprehendere, i.e. as far as I could; imperium sine fine, endless; pecunia finem (abl. abs.), for ever. 4. the end of life, one's latter end, death: comperit invidiam supremo fine domari, envy by the end which closes all, i.e. by his death, Sillius indignamentem damationem voluntario fine praevertit. 5. an end, extremity; highest point, summit: honorum populi finis est consulatus; bonorum, i.e. the chief good, = summum bonum. 6. an ultimate end in view, final cause, object, aim, purpose: quaenam domum placeat esse, cuius finis est usus. 7. (rare) a design, intention. 8. a definition.

fīnītē, adv. [finitus], 1. within limits, with certain qualifications. 2. specifically, definitely.

fīnītimus (-tūmus), a, um, adj. [finis], I. bordering upon, adjoining, neighbouring. As subst. fīnītimi (-tūmi), ōrum, m. pl. neighbours. II. (fig.) closely associated with, nearly allied or related to, next door to, like.

fīnītor, ōris, m. [finio], 1. one who settles boundaries, a surveyor. 2. = adj. that bounds or limits: circulus, i.e. the horizon. 3. one who ends, a finisher.

fīnītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from finio. As adj. measured, rhythmical.

fio, fīĕri, factus sum, pass. of facio, q.v., am made or done, become, happen, result, take place, be occasioned, be committed, come to pass: certior fieri, to be informed; ita fit, hence it happens; ut fit, as generally happens, as is usually the case; fit vestrā diligentiā ut, it is the consequence of your scrupulousness, that; fieri potest ut tratus dixerit, it may be that, it is possible that; fieri non potest ut, it cannot be that, it is impossible that; fieri vix potest quin te accusem, it is scarcely possible for me not to accuse you; quid mihi fiet? what will become of me? (euphem.): si quid eo factum esset, if anything should happen to him, i.e. if he should come to any harm. For eo, abl., cf. facio, B. 1. (d). Quo facto (abl. abs.), which being done, upon which, whereupon; perfacile factu, very easy of accomplishment; optimum factu, the best thing to be done, the best policy to adopt. [The ī in fio is long except before er; e.g. omnia iam fieri fieri quae posse negabam.

firmāmen, mĭnis, n. [firmo], a prop, support, stay.

firmāmentum, i, n. [id.], 1. a strengthening, support, prop, stay. 2. (fig.) the main point of an argument, the gist.

Firmānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Firmum, a town in Picenum.

firmātor, ōris, m. [firmo], one who confirms, secures, or establishes: pacis.

firmē, adv. [firmus], firmly, steadily, lastingly. Compar. firmius; superl. firmissime.

firmĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. firmness, durability, strength. II. (fig.) stability, steadfastness, endurance, stamina.

firmĭtĕr, adv. [firmus], = firme.

firmĭtūdo, ĭnis, f. [id.], I. firmness, strength. II. (fig.) stability, steadiness, constancy, strength.

firmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. make firm, make fast, strengthen, secure, steady, support, fortify. II. (fig.) 1. fortify, strengthen, secure; make lasting, durable, permanent; establish. 2. strengthen in resolution, give assurance or confidence to, confirm, encourage, reassure. 3. confirm, ratify; omina; adsis o tantum et propius tua numina firmes, be nigh at hand to seal thy promise. 4. affirm, assert, declare; establish, prove; engage, promise.

firmus, a, um, adj. [Sanscr. DHAR-, DHRA-, hold, support; Gk. θρα-; cf. fortis, fretus], I. firm, stable, strong, solid, robust, vigorous; robora; ianua; corpus. II. (meton.) full-bodied, sound, good for keeping: vina. III. (fig.) firm, steadfast, constant, true, staunch, that may be relied upon, substantial, sure, firmly established, lasting, strong, powerful: (poet. with prolat. infin.): fundus nec vendibilis nec pascere firmus, not trustworthy, i.e. which I cannot depend on to maintain me. Compar. firmior; superl. firmissimus.

fiscālis, e, adj. [fiscus], of or belonging to the exchequer, or to the imperial treasury, fiscal.

fiscella, ae, f. [dim. fiscina], 1. a small basket of rushes or wickerwork. 2. a muzzle of basket-work.

fiscīna, ae, f. [fiscus], 1. a basket of osiers, Spanish broom, or rushes, for fruit, cheese, etc. 2. a basket-work muzzle.

fiscus, i, m. I. 1. a large basket of osiers, etc., made like the fiscina, and similarly used. 2. a hamper or pannier for carrying money: mulus ferebat fiscos cum pecuniā. II. (meton.) 1. ready money, cash: multus in arcā Fiscus. 2. the state revenues, public treasury. 3. (under the Empire) the imperial exchequer, the privy purse: res fisci, property belonging to the privy purse. See Rich, Dict. Ant.

fissĭlis, e, adj. [findo], that can be split or cleft.

fissĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a splitting, cleaving, dividing.

fissi-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [fissus], I. cloven-footed. II. (meton.) with split nibs (of a reed pen): calamus.

fissus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from findo. As subst. fissum, i, n. a cleft, slit, fissure, chink; esp. in the language of augurs of the divided liver.

fīstūca, ae, f. a rammer, beetle, mallet, pile-driver.

fīstŭla, ae, f. [findo], I. a pipe, tube; a water-pipe. II. a hollow reed or stalk of plants. Hence, (meton.) 1. a Pan's pipe (σῦριγξ), reed-pipe, used by shepherds; sts. a cat-call: pastoricia. 2. a pitch-pipe. 3. a writing reed, reed-pen. 4. a cobble's awl, a punch.

fīstŭlātor, ōris, m. [fistula], one who plays on the Pan's pipe. Roman orators employed a pipe to regulate the pitch of their voice in speaking. Cf. fistula. II. 2.

fīstŭlātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [fistula], perforated or fitted with tubes; hollow.

fīsus, a, um, perf. part. from fido, having trusted; trusting to, relying upon.

fixus, a, um, perf. pass. part from figo. As adj. fixed, fast, immovable, sure, settled, determined.

flābellŭlum, i, n. [dim. flabellum], a little fan. flābellum, i, n. [dim. flabrum], I. a fan, fly-flap. II. (fig.) seditionis.

flābĭlis, e, adj. [flo], that can be blown; airy.

flābra, ōrum, (no sing. in use), n. pl. [flo], puffs of wind, gusts, blasts, breezes.

flabrum, i, n. See flabra.

flaccĕo, ēre, [flaccus], intrans. v. droop, faint, flag.

flaccesco, ĕre, [incept. flacceo] intrans. v. I. wither, dry up. II. (fig.) become faint, droop, fail.

flaccĭdus, a, um, adj. [flaccus], I. flabby, drooping. 2. faint, feeble. Compar. flaccidior.

(1) flaccus, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.], I. flabby, drooping. II. (meton.) flap-eared, bangle-eared.

(2) Flaccus, i, m. I. a Roman cognomen: esp. in the Cornelian, Horatian, and Valerian gentes. II. (poet. meton.) = the poet Horace, or his writings.

flăgello, āre, āvi, ātum, [flagellum], trans. v. I. scourge, lash, whip, beat. II. (meton.) pat down (so as to confine); keep close locked up: laxas arca flagellat opes.

flăgellum, i, n. [dim. flagrum], I. 1. a cat-o'-nine-tails, scourge. 2. a riding or driving-whip. II. (meton.) 1. the thong of a harpoon, javelin, etc. 2. a young branch, shoot, tendril: neve flagella Summa pete. 3. the arm or feeler of a polypus. III. (fig.) the scourge of conscience.

flăgĭtātĭo, ōnis, f. [flagito], an earnest or importunate demand.

flăgĭtātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who asks or demands importunately; a dun.

flăgĭtĭōsē, adv. [flagitiosus], in a scandalous manner, infamously, outrageously. Superl. flagitiosissime.

flăgĭtĭōsus, a, um, adj. [flagitium], scandalous, infamous, dishonourable; profligate, abandoned. Compar. flagitiosior; superl. flagitiosissimus.

flāgĭtĭum, ĭi, n. [cf. flagito], I. the heat of passion; criminal passion, sin. II. (meton.) 1. scandalous conduct; an outrage, atrocity. 2. (concr.) a scoundrel, villain. 3. infamy, dishonour.

flāgĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. flagro; φλέγω], trans. v. I. demand passionately, clamour for; importune one for a thing; implore, press, dun: (with double acc.); potentem amicum Largiora flagito. II. summon before a court of justice, prosecute.

flāgrans (flā-), ntis, part. from flagro, burning, blazing, on fire. As adj. I. in flames. 2. ablaze, glittering. II. (fig.) burning with strong feeling; ardent, passionate, eager, feverish, all aglow, restless. Compar. flagrantior; superl. flagrantissimus.

flagranter, adv. [flagrans], passionately, ardently. Superl. flagrantissime.

flagrantĭa, ae, f. [id.], burning heat; blaze.

flāgro (rarely flă-), āre, āvi, ātum, [root FLAG-, Sanscr. BHRAG-, burn, shine; Gk. φλεγ-; cf. flagito, flamma; φλέγω], intrans. v. I. 1. burn, be on fire, blaze, be in flames. 2. burn with heat, be hot. II. (meton.) foam red, be crimson; lacus flagrantes sanguine. III. (fig.) 1. burn with any strong feeling; be inflamed, glow, be fired, in a ferment, excited, etc.: amore; odio. Poet. with acc. by stretch of meaning, burn with love for, love madly or passionately: caelestem Heben. 2. be consumed by, be the victim of, be involved in, unpopularity, etc.: infamiā flagramus, we are living in a blaze of infamy, we stink in people's nostrils.

flāgrum, i, n. a whip, scourge, knout: ad sua deduxit flagra Quirites (sc. Caesar), i.e. made them his slaves.

(1) flāmen, ĭnis, m. (for flagmen, 'the burner'; root FLA-, FLAG-; cf. flagro), a special priest of some particular deity, a flamen; esp. the priest of Iuppiter (Dialis), of Mars (Martialis), and Quirinus (Quirinalis). See Rich, Dict. Ant.

(2) flāmen, ĭnis, n. [flo, flare], 1. a blowing, blast, esp. of wind: tibiae. 2. a brace, prop.

Flāmĭnĭa, ae, f. (sc. via), the great Northern road leading from Rome to Ariminum, constructed by C. Flaminius (B.C. 220).

flāmĭnĭca, ae, f. [(1) flamen], the wife of a flamen.

(1) flāmĭnĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], of a flamen. As subst. flāmĭnium (flamon-), ĭi, n. the office of flamen.

(2) Flāmĭnĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. C. Flaminius, consul B.C. 223; censor B.C. 220, when he constructed the Circus Flaminius and the Via Flaminia. In his 2d consulship (B.C. 217) he was defeated and slain by Hannibal at the battle of the Trasimene Lake.

(3) Flāmĭnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Flaminius. Flaminian.

flamma, ae, (old gen. sing. flammāi), f. [for flagma; cf. flagro], I. 1. a blaze, flame, fire. 2. flammā ciburi petere, to steal food from a funeral pyre. Prov. of the extremity of poverty and degradation. 2. (poet.) (a) a star, meteor; (b) a torch, brand; (c) a lightning-flash; (d) (as one of the four elements = ignis), the fiery ether, or upper air; altum flamma petit. Ov. II. (meton.) 1. flame-colour. 2. fiery heat, fever. III. (fig.) 1. ardent desire; esp. the flame of love; passion; flame, fire, glow; excitement, spirit of emulation: est mollis flamma medullas; deus in flammas abiit, was inflamed; digne puer meliore flammā. 2. conflagration, peril, ravaging or destructive force.

flammĕŏlum, i, n. [dim. flammeum], a bridal veil of fine texture. Cf. flammeum.

flammĕus, a, um, adj. [flamma], I. flamy, flaming, of fire, burning, fiery. II. (meton.) 1. swift as fire, lightning, flashing: vestigia cervae. 2. of a flame-colour, flaming, fiery red, orange, bright yellow. As subst. flammĕum, i, n. a veil of a bright yellow or flame colour worn by brides, a bridal veil: flammea conterere, to wear out the bridal veils, i.e. by repeated marriages.

flammĭ-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [flamma; fero], flame-bearing, flaming, fiery.

flammĭ-gĕr, gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [flamma; gero], flame-bearing, casting flame, flaming, fiery.

flammo, āre, āvi, ātum, [flamma], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) blaze, flame, be on fire. B. (trans.) 1. set on fire. 2. make of a flame-red, redden. II. (fig.) inflame, kindle, incense.

flammŭla, ae, f. [dim. flamma], a little flame.

flāmonĭum, ĭi, n. See (1) flaminius.

flātus, ūs, m. [flo, flare], I. a blowing, breathing, breath, blast, breeze, gale. II. (fig.) mostly pl. swelling pride, bluster.

flāvĕo, ēre, [flavus], intrans. v. be golden yellow, gold-coloured, auburn-coloured, russet, ruddy.

flāvesco, ĕre, [incept. flaveo], intrans. v. become golden yellow, turn yellow or golden coloured.

Flāvĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Flavius. In Tac. Hist. Flavianae partes, the Flavianists, the party of Vespasian.

flāvi-cŏmus, a, um, adj. [flavus; coma], having yellow, flaxen, golden, or auburn hair.

Flāvĭnius, a, um, adj. of Flavina or Flavinium, a town of Etruria.

(1) Flāvĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. To the Flavian gens belonged the Emperors Vespasian, Titus, and Domitian; who was hence called Flavius ultimus, 'the last of the Flavii.'

(2) Flāvius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Flavius: templa, i.e. restored or built by a Flavian emperor.

flāvus, a, um, adj. (for flagvus; cf. flagro, flamma], golden yellow, reddish yellow, russet; flaxen, auburn, fair; with golden, etc., hair.

flēbĭlis, e, adj. [fleo], A. (pass.) to be wept over, lamentable: [with dat.]: multis ille bonis flebilis occidit. B. (act.) 1. that causes tears, pathetic, moving. 2. tearful, mournful, doleful, full of tears. Neut. as adv. flēbĭle, tearfully, plaintively: responsant flebile pinae.

flēbĭlĭter, adv. [flebilis], tearfully, mournfully, plaintively.

flecto, ĕre, flexi, flexum, [cf. falx, falcis; φάλκης, φολκός], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. 1. bend, bow, curve, turn; turn about or round, direct in turning, guide; curl, twist, coil: arcum; equum; navem, steer. Flectere se, or pass. used reflexively, to bend, turn, twist, or coil one's-self; wind, wheel, bend, turn. 2. (naut. techn. t.) go round, double: Leucaten. II. (fig.) 1. bend, turn, direct. 2. move, incline, prevail upon, tempt, persuade. 3. make to deviate, turn aside: viam; angustum flectit acanthus iter, creeps or winds on its tiny way. 4. divert, dissuade. 5. (in Tac.) twist so as to apply, make to refer; modify, accommodate. 6. modulate, set to music: cantus, carmina. B. (intrans.) I. turn, turn aside, deviate; wend one's way: hos laevo flectentes limite cernunt. II. (fig. in Tac. of thought or speech) incline, aim; shift, veer, pass on.

flemus, (1) 1 pl. pres. ind. act. (2) contr. = flevimus, 1 pl. perf. ind. act. from fleo.

flĕo, flēre, flēvi, flētum, [for flev-o; root FLD-; cf. fluo, fluvius; Gk. φλέω, φλύω], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. weep, shed tears, cry. II. (meton.) drip, trickle. B. (trans.) weep for, bewail, lament: flete meos casus; amorem testudine, tell in mournful numbers, sing plaintively, pathetically, etc.; (with Gk. acc.) regum fieti nomina flores, having princes' names written in tears.

flērunt, flēsse, flēsset, flēsti, contr. for fleverunt, flevisse, etc., from fleo.

(1) flētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fleo.

(2) flētus, ūs, m. [fleo], I. weeping, crying; emotion, lamentation. II. tears: fletu simul ora rigabat.

Flēvum, i, n. (sc. castellum), a fortress of the Frisii; its name survives in Vlieland.

flex-ănimus, a, um, adj. [flecto], A. (active) heart-moving, touching, soul-subduing. B. (pass.) soul-subdued, moved, affected.

flexĭbĭlis, e, adj. [flexus], I. that may be bent, pliant. II. (fig.) 1. flexible, tractable. 2. inconstant, vacillating.

flexĭlis, e, adj. [id.], I. flexile, pliant, supple. 2. bent, curved; curling, wavy.

flexi-lŏquus, a, um, adj. [flexus; loquor], equivocal.

flexĭo, ōnis, f. [flecto], I. (lit. and fig.) a bending, swaying, turning; a bend, turn, curve. II. (fig.) a modulation, inflection (of the voice).

flexĭ-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [flexus], crook-footed, mazy-footed, gadding: ederae, i.e. with creeping tendrils.

flexŭōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], full of bends or turns, tortuous, winding, crooked. Superl. flexuosissimus.

flexūra, ae, f. [id.], a bending, turning, winding, curvature.

(1) flexus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from flecto. As adj. bent, winding : error, i.e. the mazy Labyrinth.

(2) flexus, ūs, m. [flecto], I. a bending, turning, winding, coiling, maze, curl. Sts. in pl. winding ways, by-ways. II. (fig.) 1. a turning, changing, transition; turning-point. 2. a shifting, winding, doubling, ruse. 3. inflection, modulation (of the voice).

flictus, ūs, m. [for fligtus; cf. fligo], a striking, collision of two bodies, shock, clash.

flīgo, ĕre, [root FLAG-; cf. flagrum, flagellum : Gk. φλἀβω Aeolic = θλἀβω, crush], trans. v. strike, dash.

flō, flāre, flāvi, flātum, [root FLA-; Sanscr. BHLA-, BHLA-, spout, blow; cf. Gk. φλα-, ἐκφλαίνω, πραφλάζω], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. blow. 2. (of wind instruments) bray, blare, peal, swell. B. (trans.) 1. blow, blow forth, blow up, blow at. II. (meton.) 1. cause to sound by blowing, blow : tibia flatur; rauco praeconia classica cornu; proelia. 2. cast (metals); coin (money). III. (fig.) speak boastingly.

flocculus, i, m. I. 1. a lock or flock of wool. 2. a soft down, nap, pile, floss. II. (meton.) a trifle, something insignificant : aliquid flocci facere (gen. of value), to make a thing of no account, not to care a straw for.

Flōra, ae, f. [flos], Flora, the goddess of flowers, wife of Zephyrus.

Flōrālĭcius (-tius), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Floralia (q.v.): ferae, i.e. the beasts exhibited by the aediles at the Floralia.

Flōrālis, e, adj. [Flora], of or belonging to Flora. As subst. Flōrālia, ium, n. pl. (sc. sacra), the festival of Flora, which lasted from April 28 to May 1, the Floralia.

flōrens, ntis, part. from floreo. As adj. I. bright, shining, gleaming, gay : aere catervas. II. (fig.) flourishing, in one's prime, in the height of fame, prosperity, etc.; eminent, successful, brilliant, palmy. Compar. florentior; superl. florentissimus.

Flōrentĭa, ae, f. a city of Etruria, now Fiorenze or Florence. Hence, Flōrentīni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Florentia.

flōrĕo, ēre, ŭi, [flos], intrans. v. I. 1. bloom, blossom, be in flower, flower, abound in flowers. 2. (of wine) have a flower, i.e. a crust or film. II. (meton.) 1. (poet. of the bloom of youth) be in the first bloom : genae florentes, i.e. downy cheeks. 2. be filled with, abound. 3. be bright or gay. III. (fig.) be flourishing or prosperous, flourish; be in one's heyday or prime, be at the height of fame, prosperity, etc.; have one's palmy days; be in good repute; be honoured, eminent, distinguished, etc.

flōresco, ĕre, [incept. floreo], intrans. v. I. come into blossom, bloom, or flower. II. (fig.) begin to flourish or prosper, grow into repute.

flōrĕus, a, um, adj. [flos], 1. of flowers, made of flowers. 2. flowery, abounding in or full of flowers.

flōrĭdŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. floridus], having a soft or tender bloom.

flōrĭdus, a, um, adj. [flos], I. 1. of flowers, made of flowers. 2. full of flowers, flowery. II. (fig.) 1. blooming, in one's bloom. 2. brilliant, gaudy : puellula. 3. Galate, floridior prato. 2. (of style) florid, flowery. Compar. floridior; superl. floridissimus.

flōri-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [flos; fero], bearing flowers, flowery.

flōri-lĕgus, a, um, adj. [flos; lego], flower-culling : apes, i.e. that gather honey from flowers.

(?) flōrus, a, um, adj. [flos], flower-bright ; glossy : crines.

flōs, flōris, m. [root FLA-, FLO-; cf. flo], I. a blossom, flower. II. (meton.) 1. the essence or juice of flowers, pollen : Flores apis ingerit alveo. Sts. (poet.) bee-glue, propolis : fucoque et floribus oras Explent. 2. the prime, best part of anything. 3. the top, crown, head of anything. 4. the froth or flimsy scum on the surface of new wine : sts. 'bouquet,' fragrance. 5. the bloom of youth, downy bloom : prima genas vestibat flore iuventa. 6. a flash of flame or fire. III. (fig.) 1. the flower, crown, ornament, pride, the choicest of anything. 2. the heyday or springtime of youth; youthful vigour, the prime of life : viridissimo flore nupta puella; flos aetatis. 3. the flower of chastity, virginity, maiden or youthful innocence; sts. flos aetatis. 4. (of style) a flower (of rhetoric), ornament, embellishment.

flosculus, i, m. [dim. flos], I. a floweret. II. (fig.) 1. the flower, pride, ornament, choicest of anything. 2. the bloom or prime of life. 3. a flower of rhetoric, ornament.

fluctĭ-frăgus, a, um, adj. [fluctus; frango], wave-breaking.

fluctĭ-sŏnus, a, um, adj. [fluctus; sonus], wave-resounding.

fluctĭ-vāgus, a, um, adj. [fluctus; vagus], wandering over the waves.

fluctŭātĭo, ōnis, f. [fluctuo], (fig.) wavering, vacillation : animorum.

fluctŭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [fluctus], intrans. v. I. 1. rise in waves, swell; undulate, ripple, be on the wave; sway or surge to and fro, rock, roll, beat about, be carried hither and thither. II. (fig.) fluctuate, waver; seethe, surge, be tossed; be restless, unquiet, unsettled.

fluctŭor, āri, ātus sum, [id.], intrans. dep. I. undulate. II. (fig.) waver, be restless, unsettled.

fluctŭōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], full of waves, billowy.

fluctus, ūs, m. [fluo], I. a flowing, undulating motion; sts. the current of the magnetic fluid. Lucr. II. (meton.) 1. a flow, flood; a billow, wave, swell, tide; esp. of the sea. 2. a flow or stream of smells. Lucr. III. (fig.) 1. a wave or ocean of trouble, etc.; stormy or troublous times; commotion, tempest. 2. a torrent, deluge : barbariae.

fluens, ntis, part. from fluo. As adj. 1. lax, flabby, enervated, unbraced, effeminate. 2. (of speech) (a) flowing, fluent; (b) loose, diffuse.

fluenter, adv. [fluens], in a stream, like a stream.

fluenti-sŏnus, a, um, adj. [fluentum; sono], wave-resounding, torrent-voiced.

fluentum, i, n. [fluo], running water; a stream, flood, current.

fluĭdus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. flowing, fluid. II. (meton.) 1. slack, loose : lacerti, relaxed, weak; amictus, loosely hanging, flowing. 2. (active) dissolving, fermenting : calor.

fluĭto (contr. flūto, Lucr.), āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. fluo], intrans. v. I. flow, stream. II. (meton.) 1. float, swim, sail; drift, beat about. 2. wave, undulate; flap, hang loose; move unsteadily, stagger, totter. III. (fig.) be uncertain, waver.

flūmen, ĭnis, n. [fluo], I. flowing or running water : a stream, flood, river; a current, race. II. (meton.) a stream, gush, flood, torrent (of tears, blood, etc.). III. (fig. of style) a flow, stream : orationis.

flūmĭnĕus, a, um, adj. [flumen], of or belonging to a river or stream, river- : aqua.

flŭo, flŭĕrē, fluxi, fluxum (old form fluctum, [root FLU-; Gk. φλυ-; cf. fleo, φλνω], I. (of fluids) flow, run : leni fluit agmine Tibris. II. (meton.) 1. flow, stream, drip. run, run down, overflow; become fluid, melt. 2. move in the manner of fluids; pour, stream, overrun, sweep onward (of wind, perfumes, fire); flow, hang loose, float, wave (of garments, the hair, etc.): ramos compesce fluentes, the straggling or flaunting boughs. 3. fall away, fall off or out, droop, sink down, slip, vanish, pass away : nullo poma movente fluunt; fluit ad terram devexo pondere cervix; fluit manibus lora remissa fluent : cuncta fluunt, are in a state of flux. III. (fig.) 1. flow, come forth, proceed : carmen vena pauperiore fluit; Calidii oratio ita libere fluebat. 2. go, tend : rideamus illius rationes morsum fluere. 3. (of men's affairs) go swimmingly, prosper : rebus ad voluntatem fluentibus. Sts. in a bad sense; fall away, ębb: ex illo fluere . . . Spes Danaûm. 4. flow away, fall to pieces, rot, dissolve, waste, perish, pass away. 5. (of speech) be diffuse. IV. (rare, = affluo, with abl.) have in abundance, abound in: opibus; luxuriâ.

flŭto, āre, = fluito, q.v.

flŭviālis, e, adj. [fluvius], of or belonging to a river, river-: aqua.

flŭviātilis, e, adj. [id.], of a river, river: equus, i.e. the hippopotamus; navis, plying on a river, Livy.

flŭvidus, a, um, adj. = fluidus.

flŭvius, ĭi, gen. pl. fluviorum scanned as trisyll. Virg. G. i. 482; cf. aries; contr. fluvûm, Val. Fl., m. (fluo), I. a stream, river. II. (meton.) running water, river water.

(?) fluxĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a flowing, flow.

(1) fluxus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. flowing, fluid. II. (meton.) 1. that runs through, leaky: vas. 2. loose, slack, hanging about, wide: habena; crines; amictus; arma, i.e. loosely held, grasped feebly. 3. frail, feeble, decayed, rickety. III. (fig.) 1. dissipated, dissolute. 2. lax, remiss, careless. 3. unstable, unsteady, unsettled, fleeting, transient, fugitive. Compar. fluxior.

(2) fluxus, ūs, m. [id.], a flowing, flow, flux.

fōcāle, is, n. [for faucale, from fauces], a neckcloth, cravat, scarf, wrapper.

fōcillo, āre, āvi, ātum, [focus], trans. v. I. resuscitate, revive. II. (fig.) re-establish: societatem.

fōcŭlus, i, m. [dim. focus], I. a small hearth or fire-place. II. (meton.) 1. an altar fire-pan; a small altar. 2. a brazier or chafing-dish. 3. a portable stove, a kitchener.

fōcus, i, m. [akin to fax, facies; cf. φάος, light], I. a fire-place, hearth. II. (meton.) 1. a household, family. 2. an altar fire-pan; sts. the altar itself: dentur in antiquos tura merumque focos. 3. (poet.) a funeral-pile. 4. a brazier, stove, kitchener, plate-warmer.

fŏdĭco, āre, ātum, [freq. fodio], trans. v. I. dig, bore: latus, nudge or jog one in the ribs. II. (fig.) stab, pierce, goad.

fŏdĭna, ae, f. [id.], a pit, mine.

fŏdĭo, fŏdĕre, fōdi, foss-um, [akin to βαθύς, βόθρος. Curtius, 474], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. dig, delve, dig up, dig or scoop out, excavate, undermine: arva; argentum; puteum; oculos; cubilia; murum. II. (meton.) prick, stab, goad, pierce, smite: equi armos calcaribus; iugulum ense. III. (fig.) prick, goad, spur, incite. B. (intrans.) 1. dig, delve. 2. nudge or jog a person: noli fodere. Cf. fodico.

foecundĭtas, foecundo, foecundus. See fec-.

foedē, adv. (1) foedus], foully, shockingly, basely, shamefully. Compar. foedius; superl. foedissime.

foedĕrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from foedero, which is not found in class. Latin. As adj. leagued together, confederate, allied; civitates foederatae, those cities and communities whose relations with Rome were defined by a formal treaty or compact: (2) foedus). See Ramsay, Dict. Ant., p. 190; Reid's Cic. pro Balbo, Introd. § 17.

foedi-frăgus, a, um, adj. [(2) foedus; frango], league-breaking, perfidious.

foeditas, ātis, f. [(1) foedus], foulness, filthiness, ugliness, hideousness, offensiveness, shocking character (to the sight or the feelings).

foedo, āre, avi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. make foul, filthy, hideous; defile, pollute, spoil, mar, disfigure, make havoc of, maul, wound. II. (fig.) disgrace, dishonour, insult, shock, violate, sully, tarnish.

(1) foedus, a, um, adj. [root FU-; Sanscr. DHU-; Gk. θυ-; cf. fumus, foeteo], I. grimly, foul, filthy, ugly, disfigured, hideous, offensive, shocking, disgusting (to the sight). II. (fig.) shocking to the senses, foul, horrible, unnatural, base, dishonourable, shameful, disgraceful. Compar. foedior; superl. foedissimus.

(2) foedus, ĕris, n. [for foidus; root FID-, Sanscr. BHIDH-, weakened from BHANDH-, bind; cf. fides, fido], I. a league, alliance, treaty, compact: ex foedere, according to compact. II. (meton.) 1. an agreement, covenant, contract; poet. of any union, e.g. marriage, friendship, etc. 2. an ordinance or law of nature; a principle, charter: has leges aeternaque foedera certis imponit natura locis.

foemĭna, foemĭnĕus. See fē-foen-. See faen-, fēnfoetĕo (fēt-), ēre, [root FU-; cf. (1)foedus], have an ill smell, stink.

foetidus (fēt-), a, um, adj. [foeteo], of evil odour, stinking, foul.

foetor (fēt-), ōris, m. [id.], I. a foul or noisome stench, a stink. II. (fig.) foulness, offensiveness.

foetūra, foetus. See fē-

Fŏlia, ae, f. the name of a witch.

fŏlĭātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [folium], leafy. As subst. fŏlĭātum, i, n. (sc. unguentum), a perfume made of the leaves of spikenard.

fŏlium, ĭi, n. [cf. φύλλον = φύλιον: root FLA-, FLO-; cf. flo, flos; or root FU-, cf. φύω], I. a leaf, petal. II. (meton.) 1. a leaf of paper. 2. = nardus; cf. foliatum. III. (fig.) a trifle, bagatelle.

fŏlĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. follis], I. 1. a small bag or sack. 2. an air-ball. II. (meton.) a pod, husk, shell, skin, follicle.

follis, is, m. [cf. θυλλίς, βύλακος, a bag], I. 1. a pair of bellows. 2. a large air-ball, resembling a modern football. 3. a leathern money-bag. II. a windbag; in pl. (poet.) the lungs.

follītim, adv. [follis], by moneybags.

fōmentum, i, n. [for fovimentum, from foveo], I. a fomentation, medical application, poultice; sts. a bandage, wrapper. Hence (metaph.), frigida curarum fomenta, the douche of care that chills the glow of genius. II. (fig.) 1. an alleviation, comfort, remedy: dolorum. 2. food, nourishment. (This meaning is very doubtful.)

fōmĕs, ĭtis, m. [foveo], touchwood, tinder, fuel: rapuitque in fomite flammam, and quickly fanned the fire in the fuel to a blaze. Virg.

fons, fontis, m. [Sanscr. root GHU-; Gk. χυ-; Lat. FU-, FUD-; cf. fundo], I. a spring, fountain. II. (meton.) spring-water; water. III. (fig.) a fountain-head, source, origin, principle, cause. IV. Fons, as a deity, personified.

fontānus, a, um, adj. [fons], of or from a fountain or spring.

Fonteius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. M. Fonteius pro-praetor in Gallia Narbonensis (76-73 B.C.) defended by Cicero against a charge of extortion, 69 B.C. C. Fonteius Capito, who had been Antony's legate in Asia, was one of the commissioners who accompanied Maecenas to Brundisium, B.C. 38 or 37; cf. Hor. S. i. 5, 33.

fontĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. fons], a little fountain.

fontĭnālis (fontān-), e, adj. [fons], of or belonging to a spring or fountain.

for, fāri, fātus sum, [root FA-; cf. facetus; φημί, φασκω], defect. intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) speak, say. B. (trans.) 1. speak, say, utter. 2. utter prophetically, predict. 3. sing of, celebrate. Propert.

forābĭlis, e, adj. [foro], that may be pierced, vulnerable.

fōrāmen, ĭnis, n. [id.], I. an opening, aperture, hole: tibiae, i.e. a stop. II. (meton.) a pore: terrae.

fōrās, adv. [acc. form, cf. alias, from obsol. fora. See (1) foris], out-of-doors, forth, out: locitare agellum, to let out of one's own hands, i.e. to outsiders.

for-ceps, cĭpis, m. f. [cf. fornus, furnus; capio], lit. that which takes hold of what it is; a pair of tongs or pincers; pliers, tweezers, forceps.

fordus, a, um, adj. [fero], with young, pregnant: bos, in calf.

fōrē, = futurum esse, from sum.

fōrem, etc. = essem, from sum.

fōrensis, e, adj. [forum], I. of or belonging to the forum; frequenting the forum; of the market; forensic, having to do with the law-courts, of the bar. II. (meton.) outdoor, for outside show. As subst. fōrensis, ĭum, n. pl. (sc. vestimenta), a state-dress.

Fōrentum (Fŏr-), i, n. a low-lying town in Apulia.

forfex, fĭcis, f. [forus; facio; cf. foro, foramen], lit. that which makes a hole or incision; a pair of shears, clippers, or scissors.

fŏrĭca, æ, f. 1. a public privy, jakes, 'cabinet d'aisance.' 2. a bonded warehouse.

(1) fōrĭs, is, more often pl. fōrēs, um, f. [= θύρα; cf. θυμός, fumus], I. the gate of a house; the door of a house or room. In pl. the two leaves of a door, swing-doors. II. (meton. and fig.) a door, opening, entrance.

(2) fōrĭs, adv. [abl. form of obsol. fors, cf. foras], I. out at the doors, abroad, without. from home; (as milit. term) outside or beyond the siege lines. II. from without, from abroad, from external sources.

forma, æ, f. [Sanscr. DHAR-, hold in; cf. fretus, firmus], I. 1. form, shape, contour, figure, appearance; stature, size. 2. beauty; forma bonum fragile est. 3. an outline, sketch, representation; plan, design. 4. a model; a mould, pattern, shoemaker's last, stamp. 5. a frame, case; sts. a culvert. II. (meton.) a belle, beauty: quot Troiæ tulit vetus et quot Achaia formas. III. (fig.) form, kind, species, manner, nature, sort.

formālis, e, adj. [forma], of a set form: epistola, a circular letter, manifesto.

formāmentum, i, n. [formo], a forming, shaping, configuration.

formātor, ōris, m. [id.], a former, fashioner, framer, moulder.

formātūra, æ, f. [id.], a forming, shaping, structure, formation.

Formiæ, ārum, f. pl. a town of Latium, now Mola di Gaeta, the mythic abode of Lamus and the Laestrygŏnes. The district was noted for its wine.

Formiānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Formiæ: dies, i.e. spent at Formiæ. As subst. Formiāni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Formiæ. 2. Formiānum, i, n. an estate or villa at Formiæ.

formĭca, æ, f. [cf. μύρμηξ], an ant, emmet, pismire.

formīdābĭlis, e, adj. [(1) formido], causing fear, fearful, terrible.

(1) formīdo, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. (2) formidol], trans. and intrans. v. A (trans.) fear, dread. B. (intrans.) be afraid or in dread.

(2) formīdo, ĭnis, f. [? firmus], I. an abiding dread, fear, apprehension; awe. II. (meton.) 1. that which causes fear; fright, horror; menace, intimidation. 2. a hunter's scare, i.e. a line set with feathers of different colours, the fluttering of which scared the game into the nets; cf. our modern 'driving' game and 'battue' shooting. 3. a scarecrow. III. Terror, personified.

formidŏlōsē (formīdŭ-), adv. [formidolosus], in a manner to cause fear, with a view to intimidation.

formidŏlōsus (formīdŭ-), a, um, adj. [(2) formido], lit. full of fear. I. (active) causing fear, alarming, awe-inspiring, dreadful, terrible. II. (passive) timorous, fearful, afraid; with obj. gen. hostium. Tac. Compar. formidolosior; superl. formidolosissimus.

formo, āre, āvi, ātum, [forma], trans. v. I. form, shape, fashion, frame. II. (fig.) put into shape, form, mould, set, regulate, train; invent, compose, draw up.

formōsē, adv. [formosus], beautifully, prettily. Compar. formosius.

formōsĭtas, ātis, f. [formosus], natural beauty.

formōsus, a, um, adj. [forma], fair of form, shapely, handsome, beauteous, beautiful, pretty. Compar. formosior; superl. formosissimus.

formŭla, æ, f. [dim. forma], I. (legal techn. t.) a set form of proceeding in law; a formulary, code, schedule. II. (meton.) 1. a lawsuit, action, process: formulâ excidere, to lose an action, be nonsuited. 2. a general rule, principle, criterion: haec populos, haec magnos formula reges tenet, this definition includes. 3. a form of contract, charter, agreement: ex formulâ, in accordance with the special terms of an alliance, etc. III. 1. beauty. 2. a pattern, mould.

fornācālis, e, adj. [fornax], of or belonging to an oven: dea, i.e. the goddess Fornax. As subst. Fornācālia, ĭum, n. pl. the festival of the oven-goddess (cf. Fornax); the oven-festival.

fornācŭla, æ, f. [dim. fornax], a small furnace or oven.

fornax, ācis, f. [cf. fornus, furnus], I. a furnace, oven, kiln; (poet.) a forge. II. the goddess of ovens personified, Fornax.

fornĭcātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. (fornix), having arched openings; vaulted, arched. Via Fornicata, 'Arch-Street,' a vaulted arcade, or line of portcoes, leading to the Campus Martius.

fornix, ĭcis, m. I. an arch; an archway, vault; a sally-port. Fornix Fabius (Fabianus), an arch spanning the Via Sacra near the Forum, built by Q. Fabius Maximus Allobrogicus, consul B.C. 121, from the spoils of the Allobroges and Arverni. II. (meton.) a vaulted chamber; a stew, brothel.

fornus, i, m. See furnus.

fŏro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. [Sanscr. BHAR-; cf. φάρος, a plough; φαρόω], trans. v. bore, pierce.

Foroiūliēnsis, e, adj. of or belonging to Forum Iulii, now Fréjus.

forpex, ĭcis, f. curling-tongs.

fors, fortis, f. [fero; cf. fortuna], I. 1. chance, hap, hazard, luck (good or bad): forte sua, by some chance of its own. 2. Fors, used adverbially, may-hap, peradventure, haply. Sts. fors et (ellipt.=fors est et, it is a chance, and), perhaps too, may be even. Forte, abl.=adv., by chance (not perchance, except with si, nisi, nĕ); as chance would have it, accidentally: ibam forte Viâ Sacrâ; si forte (ellipt.), it may be (cf. εἰ τύχοι): nisi forte, unless perchance, unless indeed, except on the (absurd) supposition that. II. (meton.) the goddess of chance, Fors. Sts. with reduplicated name, Fors Fortuna. Her temple, (not to be confounded with that of Fortuna), was on the W. or right bank of the Tiber, and her festival on June 24. Her name was used to express some wonderful piece of good luck.

fors-ān, adv. [ellipt.=fors sit an; cf. forsitan], peradventure, may be, perhaps. Often with indic. in poet. and later writers.

forsĭt, adv. [=fors sit; cf. forsitan], perhaps. Once only in Hor.

forsĭtān, adv. [for fors sit an], there would be a chance that may be, perhaps. With indic. chiefly in poet. and later writers.

fortassĕ, more rarely fortassis, adv. [for forte an si vis], I. perhaps, probably, possibly. 2. (like που), I ween, no doubt.

fortĕ. See fors, I. 2.

fortĭcŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. fortis], somewhat bold or brave, plucky.

fortis, e, adj. [Sanscr. DHAR-, hold, support; cf. firmus], I. (physically) strong, powerful, robust, sturdy, vigorous. II. (mentally) 1. brave, courageous, stout-hearted, resolute: poet. with complementary infin.: spernere fortior, braver in despising. 2. gallant, worthy, honest, respectable. III. (of things) powerful, efficacious: Falernum, i.e. heady: medicamina, potent, drastic. Compar. fortior; superl. fortissimus.

fortĭtĕr, adv. [fortis], I. strongly, stoutly, firmly, vigorously, with power. II. bravely, courageously, manfully, resolutely. Compar. fortius; superl. fortissime.

fortĭtūdo, dĭnis, f. [id.], I. strength of body. II. courage, bravery, fortitude, manliness, resolution. In pl. instances or cases of courage, etc.

fortŭito (fortŭito), adv. [fortuitus], by chance, accidentally, casually, at hap-hazard.

fortŭitus (fortŭitus), a, um, adj. [forte], that takes place by chance or accident, chance, casual, accidental: caespes, chance-cut, which chance supplied. As subst. fortŭita, ōrum, n. pl. 1. accidents. 2. incidental advantages.

fortūna, æ, f. [fors], I. chance, hap, luck, fortune (good or bad). II. (meton.) the goddess of fortune, luck, etc.; Fortune; cf. Fors, I. 2; sts. nearly = Providence. Fortunae filius, Fortune's child; born with a silver spoon in one's mouth. III. 1. good luck, good fortune, prosperity, success: sortitus fortunam ioculis, lit. with his eyes allotting himself success, i.e. choosing at a glance a lucky aim: miles, rerum fortuna mearum, the mainstay of my fortunes, on whom my success depends. 2. ill-luck, mishap, misfortune, adversity. 3. lot, condition, estate, state, circumstances, fate; sts. high estate, commanding position, greatness.

4. (poet.) share, division: triplicis regni. 5. (poet.) a lucky chance, opportunity. 6. property, estate, fortune, one's all. More often in pl.

fortūnātē, adv. [fortunatus], prosperously, happily.

fortūnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fortuno. As adj. I. fortunate, happy, lucky, prosperous: ipset, with Gk. gen. of respect; laborum. Fortūnātae (-orum) Insŭlae, the Islands of the Blest, placed by the ancients in the Western Ocean; probably the Cape Verde or Canary Islet. II. in good circumstances, well off, well to do, wealthy. Compar. fortunatior; superl. fortunatissimus.

fortūno, āre, āvi, ātum, [fortuna], trans. v. make happy or prosperous, bless, enrich.

(1) fŏrŭli, ōrum, m. pl. [dim. forus], a book-case, cabinet.

(2) Fŏrŭli, ōrum, m. pl. an old Sabine town.

fōrum, i, n. [akin to (1) foris, forus], lit. an open passage. I. the fore-court of a tomb. II. a public place; a market-place, bazaar; cf. boarius, olitorius. 2. (meton.) a market town; fair, market. Prov. foro uti, to make the best of the market; rig the market; have an eye to the main chance. III. 1. principal place for transacting business in each town of importance, the forum. Esp. at Rome, the Forum Romanum or Forum, a large area between the Capitoline and Palatine hills, surrounded by government offices, public buildings, law-courts, basilicae, temples, bankers' and money-lenders' counting-houses, etc., the chief place of resort, and the centre of commercial, judicial, and political life. For details of this and other 'fora,' see Rich, Dict., and Smith's Class. Dict., and Ramsay's Rom. Ant. 2. (meton.) (a) public affairs, affairs of state; (b) administration of justice; a session; the law-courts, the bar. Hence, forum agere, to hold a session or assize, preside in a court of justice; (c) commercial transactions; banking, money-lending; business: in foro versari, to be seen on 'Change, be solvent; cedere foro, to give one's creditors the slip, become bankrupt. IV. as a name of many market and assize towns; e.g. (a) Forum Appii, see (1) Appius; (b) Forum Iulii, now Frejus, a Roman colony founded by I. Caesar in Gallia Narbonensis. IV. (fig.) an assembly of the people: indicere forum, to formally proclaim an assembly; cf. Gk. ἀγορὴν τιθεῖσθαι or τίθεσθαι.

fōrus, i, m., (-um, i, n.), [cf. forum], I. a gangway in a ship; sts. the deck, the hatches. II. (meton.) 1. a row of seats or benches in the circus. 2. a tier of cells in a beehive a corridor. 3. a passage, groove, alley. 4. forus aleatorius, a dice-board.

Fosi, ōrum, m. pl. a German tribe, near the modern Celle in Hanover.

fossa, ae, f. [fodio], a ditch, trench, fosse, dyke, canal.

fossĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a digging.

fossor, ōris, m. [id.], a digger, often a slave working in a gang in chains: an excavator, miner, pioneer. Sts. a common labourer, hedger and ditcher, clown.

fossūra, ae, f. [id.], a digging.

fossus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fodio.

fōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from foveo.

fŏvĕa, ae, f. [fodio], a hole dug in the earth, a pitfall, snare.

fŏvĕo, ēre, fōvi, fōtum, [deriv. dub.] trans. v. I. warm, keep warm, heat. II. (meton.) 1. cherish, foster, nurse, fondle, caress, court. 2. (properly, medical term) bathe, foment, dress; unctis tepidi rivi; cubilia fotu, keep close to, hug; hiemem, pass in dalliance. III. (fig.) 1. cherish, favour, support, encourage, pander to, pamper, caress, make much of. 2. keep up, keep alive, fan: famam inanem; bella cupidine; animos ira; pectora cunctatione fovet, made it her cherished purpose or endeavour.

fractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from frango. As adj. 1. weakened, weak, feeble, faint, nerveless; languid, voluptuous, effeminate: patranti fractus ocello, leering, languishing. 2. (of sound) broken, fitful: comitus tubarum; vox, quavering, falsetto.

fraeno, fraenum, etc. See fren-.

frăgа, ōrum, n. pl. [cf. fragro], strawberries.

frăgĭlis, e, adj. [root FRAG-; frango], I. easily broken, apt to break, brittle, fragile: (poet.) aquae, that can be broken (instead of poured), i.e. ice. II. (meton.) making a cracking or snapping sound, crackling: lauri; manus increpuere, i.e. skeleton hands. III. (fig.) frail, feeble, perishable.

frăgĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [fragilis], 1. fragility, brittleness. 2. (fig.) weakness, frailty.

fragmĕn, ĭnis, n. [root FRAG-; frango], 1. a fracture. 2. a broken piece, fragment, splinter, chip; mostly pl. ruins, wreck, débris.

fragmentum, i, n. [id.], a piece broken off, fragment, remnant: ramea, bits of broken boughs.

frăgor, ōris, m. [id.], I. a breaking. Lucr. II. 1. a crash, report, din, clash, burst of applause, grief, etc., noise. 2. (poet.) rumour.

frăgōsus, a, um, adj. [fragor], I. 1. apt to break, brittle. 2. broken about, rugged, savage, rough: silva; mons. II. crashing, roaring: torrens.

frāgrans, ntis, part. from fragro. As adj. sweet-scented, fragrant. Superl. fragrantissimus.

frāgro, āre, āvi, [? Sanscr. GHRÂ, smell], intrans. v. emit a smell, (good or bad); smell, smell sweetly. be fragrant; smell strong, reek.

frămĕa, ae, f. [German word], a spear, javelin.

frango, ēre, frēgi, fractum, [root FRAG-; Sanscr. bhang, break, Gk. root ϝΡΑΓ-; cf. ῥήγνυμι], I. trans. v. 1. break, break or dash in pieces, shiver, smash; cervicem (gulam, guttur) alicuius, i.e. strangle. II. (meton.) 1. break up small, crush, bruise, grind, crush, craunch. 2. break the force of waves, etc: Carystei frangitur unda vadis; nec facta remurmurat unda, and booming breaker recoils not. 3. dash apart in swimming, stem: amnem nando. 4. break off, interrupt: iter. 5. crush with the weight of the reclining body, rumple the surface of, press: toros. 6. break, knead, make soft and smooth, supple: bovis exuvias olivo. III. (fig.) 1. break down, crush, subdue, weaken, overpower, defeat, diminish, violate, destroy, wreck, cause the ruin of: diem mero, i.e. shorten it; frangere se, to break down, give way, wear one's-self out. 2. (of the feelings) master, overpower, soften, move.

frāter, frātris, m. [Sanscr. bhrâtâ; cf. Gk. φράτηρ], I. a brother: fratres aeni, the bronze brethren, i.e. the gods, generally, whose statues were of bronze Sts. in pl. brother and sister: fratrum non incestus amor. II. 1. frater patruelis, or frater, absol. a father's brother's son, cousin. 2. (?) a brother-in-law. Liv. III. (fig.) brother (as a title of affection, etc.); or, to denote things of a like kind, fellow.

frātercŭlus, i, m. [dim. frater], I. a little brother. Fraterculus Gigantis, i.e. an insignificant son of Earth; prov. for a nobody. II. (fig.) a dear brother (as a title of affection).

frāternē, adv. [fraternus], 1. in a brotherly manner, like a brother. 2. heartily, cordially.

frāternĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], brotherhood, fraternity.

frāternus, a, um, adj. [frater], I. of a brother, brotherly, fraternal; sts. = odio. gen. against a brother: invidia. II. (meton.) of or belonging to a kinsman; closely allied, friendly, akin.

frātrī-cīda, ae, m. [frater; caedo], one who kills a brother, a fratricide.

fraudātĭo, ōnis, f. [fraudo], a defrauding, cheating; fraud, deceit.

fraudātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who defrauds, a cheat, impostor.

fraudo (frūdo), āre, āvi, ātum, [fraus], trans. v. I. cheat, defraud, deprive unfairly; (with abl. of the thing withheld); impose upon. II. (meton.) embezzle, purloin, steal.

fraudŭlentus, a, um, adj. [id.], cheating, fraudulent, guileful. Compar. fraudulentior ; superl. fraudulentissimus.

fraus, fraudis, archaic dat. frūdi, gen. pl. fraudium, Cic. ; fraudum, Tac., f. [? root DHRU-, bend, injure ; cf. Gk. θραύω, and Lat. frustum], I. deceit, deception, imposition, fraud, treachery ; a treacherous or dishonourable act ; an artifice, ruse ; iudice me fraus est concessa repellere fraudem ; audax lapeti genus Ignem fraude mali gentibus intulit. by discustomed theft, or poet. = dolo malo ; cf. dolus. Sine fraude, without deception, honourably. (For another sense, cf. II. B. 2.) Fraudem facere alicui rei, to do despite to, evade : legi ; iuris iurandi fraude culpam invenire, by fraudulent evasion of one's oath. II. (metonym.) A. 1. (of persons) a cheat, blockhead, impostor, knave. 2. a crime, offence, fault, evil deed, guilt, wrong : capitalis ; priscae vestigia fraudis ; nocituram Postmodo te natis fraudem committere. B. 1. a being deceived, error, mistake, delusion ; in fraudem incidere, deducere ; ne tibi sit frudi, quod nos inferne videmus, lest you be led into error, because, etc. Lucr. 2. hurt, injury, detriment, harm, damage, mischief : id mihi fraudem tulit ? quis deus in fraudem . . . ? sine fraude, without injury, without harm, unharmed ; esp. in the legal formulae, SINE (archaic SI) FRAUDE ESTO, let it be without detriment or prejudice to a person, let him be blameless ; fraudi esse (alicui), to do harm to a person, bring punishment on him, be damaging to : quae res nemini unquam fraudi fuit ; censeo ut iis . . . nc sit ea res fraudi, etc., I move that they be exempt from penalty. 3. danger, peril : pontum medisaque fraudes Pallnit audax, surrounding dangers. III. Fraus or Fraud, personified as a deity.

fraxĭnĕus (fraxīnus), a, um, adj. [1] fraxinus], of ash-wood, ashen.

(1) fraxĭnus, i, f. I. an ash-tree, ash. II. (meton.) a spear or javelin of ash wood.

(2) fraxĭnus, a, um, adj. = fraxineus.

Frēgellae, ārum, f. pl. an old town of the Volsci on the Liris in Latium, now Ceprano.

frēmĕbundus, a, um, verbal adj. [fremo], roaring, growling, snorting, muttering, murmuring.

frēmĭtus, ūs, m. [id.], a low dull noise ; a roar, shout, muttering, murmur, hubbub, buzzing, hum, snorting, growling.

frĕmo, frēmĕre, ŭi, ĭtum, [cf. βρέμω], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) make a low dull noise, roar, shout, wail, mutter, moan, murmur, growl, bark, snort, neigh ; resound ; rage, rave, be wild, exult. B. (trans.) 1. make a noise at, raise an outcry, cry shame, murmur, chafe, fret or grumble at. Sts. with obj. clause: miles se victum fremebat. 2. call wildly or loudly for, cry out for, shout for : arma.

frĕmor, ōris, m. [fremo], a roar, hubbub, murmur. Cf. fremitus.

frēnātor (fraen-), ōris, m. [freno], one who curbs ; a controller, manager.

frendo, ēre (and frendĕo, ēre), frendŭi, frēsum and fressum, [cf. χρεμ-ίζω, neigh ; χρόμαδος, creaking], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) gnash with the teeth. B. (trans.) grind, crush, bruise.

frēni (fraeni), ōrum. See frenum.

frēni-gĕr (fraen-), gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [frenum ; gero], bridled ; ala, i.e. mounted.

frēno (fraeno), āre, āvi, ātum, [frenum], trans. v. I. furnish with a bridle, bridle. Frenati equites, cavalry furnished with bridles, as opposed to the light Numidian horse who rode without reins. II. (meton.) curb, hold in, check, restrain. III. (fig.) curb, bridle, govern, control.

Frentānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Frentani, a Samnite people who lived on the Adriatic.

frēnum (fraenum), i, n. pl. heterocl. frēni, m., or frēna, orum, n. (Sanscr. DHAR-, hold ; cf. fretus), lit. the holder, I. a horse's headgear ; a bridle, including the bit and reins ; a curb, bit ; rein : mordere, to champ the bit ; also (fig.) take the bit in one's teeth, turn restive, show a high spirit, have a will of one's own. II. (fig.) a means of restraining or checking ; a curb, bridle, check : frena licentiae Iniecit. III. (poet. meton.) a holdfast, stanchion, key-stone : tecti Saxea frena labant.

frēquens, ntis, adj. [root φρακ-φράσσω ; akin to farcio], I. 1. (of persons) that often does a thing, or is often at a place ; constant, regular. Often with force of adv. = frequenter. 2. (of things) repeated, often, frequent, constantly recurring, general, common. II. (meton.) thronged, crowded, in large numbers, crowded, full, in crowds : senatus ; theatrum ; redemptor cum famulis, (poet. = cum famulis frequentibus), with a large staff of workmen ; or, many a contractor. 2. much frequented, crowded, well-filled, thronged, full of people, populous : iudi ; ic. numerously attended ; theatrum ; municipium. 3. (with abl.) abounding in, crowded, well-stocked with, full of : comitum clamore, i.e. escorted by a throng of shouting comrades ; herbis campus, thickly grown ; (with gen., poet. and in Tac.) talis silvae frequens fecundusque erat mons. Compar. frequentior ; superl. frequentissimus.

frēquentātio, ōnis, f. [frequento], a crowding together ; a summing up.

frēquentātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from frequento. As adj. 1. much used. 2. (fig.) abounding in (with abl.).

frēquentĕr, adv. [frequens], 1. often, frequently, constantly. 2. in large numbers, by large numbers, generally, in a body. Compar. frequentius ; superl. frequentissime.

frēquentĭa, ae, f. [id.], I. an assembling in large numbers. II. (meton.) 1. a full attendance, concourse, throng, multitude, body (of friends, supporters, etc.). 2. a great quantity, abundance.

frēquento, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. 1. resort to frequently, visit constantly, wait upon, live in habitually, frequent, haunt. 2. do repeatedly, repeat often, say again and again. II. 1. fill with numbers, visit in crowds, throng, crowd, people, stock. 2. throng to, pay court to ; celebrate in crowds ; observe, tend, keep, celebrate. 3. assemble in numbers, collect : quos domi causa hic dies ad aerarium frequentasset.

Fresilla, ae, f. a city of the Marsi.

fressus or frēsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from frendo.

Frētensis, e, adj. [fretum, I. 2], of the Sicilian Straits : mare.

frētum, i, n. (heterocl. -us, ūs, m.), [root φρυ-; cf. φρέαρ, fervco], I. 1. a strait, sound, channel, firth. 2. the Strait of Sicily. II. (meton.) the sea. III. (fig.) a cross-current, surge, swell.

(1) frētus, a, um, adj. [cf. frenum], leaning or supported on something ; relying or depending upon, on the strength of : (with abl.) iuventā : (with dat., only in Livy) nulli rei ; (with infin.) pontum inrumpere fretae (naves), confident of being able to, confidently venturing : (with obj. clause) satis fretus esse etiam nunc tolerando certaminī legatum, confident that the lieutenancy-general was, even under these circumstances, able to maintain the fight.

(2) frētus, ūs, m. [(1) fretus], reliance.

(3) frētus, ūs, m. See fretum.

frico, āre, cŭi, frictum, (sts. fricātum), [root χρι- ; χριω, graze ; cf. frio], trans. v. rub, rub down.

(1) frictus, a, um, I. perf. pass part. from frico, rubbed. II. perf pass. part. from frigo, roasted parched.

(2) frictus, ūs, m. [frico], a rubbing.

frīgĕo, ēre, (frixi), [frigus], intrans. v. I. be cold, chilly, numb, stark, etc. ; (poet.) of the chill of death. II. (fig.) 1. be torpid, languish, be spiritless, lose power, flag, droop ; be at a standstill, be out of work. 2. be coldly received, fall dead or flat, be out of favour, be out in the cold.

frīgĕro, āre, [id.], trans. v. make cold, cool, freshen.

frīgesco, ĕre, frixi, [incept. frigeo], intrans. v. I. grow or become cold, be chilled, numbed. II. (fig.) 1. be at a standstill, lethargic, inactive, languish. 2. (of favour withdrawn) cool, give the cold shoulder to.

frīgidārius, a, um, adj. [frigidus], of or for cooling ; cella, the cooling-room in a bath.

frīgidē, adv. [id.], 1. coldly, apathetically. 2. flatly, frigidly, pointlessly. Compar. frigidius; superl. frigidissime.

frīgidŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. frigidus], 1. somewhat cold, chilly. 2. faint, feeble: singultus.

frīgidus, a, um, adj. [frigeo], I. 1. cold, chill, chilly, coo' As subst. frīgida, ae, f. (sc. aqua), cold water. 2. cold in death, death-cold, stark, stiff; rigid, petrified with frigit: Stygiā nabat iam frigida cumbā; stricto stans frigidus ense. II. (fig.) 1. without fire or energy, cold, frigid, dull, spiritless, feeble, ineffective. 2. (poet.) in cold blood: ardentem frigidus Aetnam insiluit. 3. (poet.) causing cold, chilling, breezing: horror; rumor, i.e. alarming, bad news. 4. without feeling or affection, indifferent. 5. without genius, dull, tame, flat, pointless, trivial. Compar. frigidior; superl. frigidissimus.

frīgilla, ae. See fringilla.

frīgo, ĕre, (frixi), frictum, [cf. φρύγω], trans. v. roast, parch, fry.

frīgus, ŏris, n. [cf. ῥῦγ-ος, ῥιγέω; prob. from root φρικ-, cf. φρίσσω], I. 1. coldness, cold, coolness, freshness. 2. cold weather, winter; frost. Often in pl. 3. the coldness of death, death-chill. 4. the chill of fear, a shudder. 5. a cold fit, ague: tendatum frigore corpus. 6. (poet.) a cool spot or retreat: quodcunque iacet sub Urbe frigus. II. (fig.) 1. coldness in action, want of fire or energy. 2. coldness of manner, coolness, disfavour, a cold reception, icy indifference: a patrum nec quis amicus Frigore te feriat, strike you dead with a chill, i.e. give you a cold cut; aliquantum frigoris adferre, to throw cold water upon, act as a damper.

fringilla (frīgilla), ae, f., also -us, i, m. a chaffinch; (?) a robin.

frĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [cf. χρίω, graze], trans. v. grind to powder, rub, crumble.

Frīsii, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe in Northern Germany between the Rhine and the Ems. Their name still survives in Friesland.

Frīsius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Frisii.

frītillus, i, m. a dice-box.

frīvŏlus, a, um, adj. trifling, worthless, paltry, silly, vain, empty, unsubstantial: opus; aura, the empty breeze (of popularity), i.e. worthless applause. As subst. frīvŏla, ōrum, n. pl. paltry goods and chattels, worthless effects, furniture, lumber.

frixus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from frigo, roasted.

frondātor, ōris, m. [(1) frons], a leaf-pruner, woodman, vine-dresser.

frondĕo, ēre, [id.], intrans. v. put forth leaves, be in leaf.

frondesco, ĕre, (dŭi), [incept. frondeo], intrans. v. begin to put forth leaves, become leafy, break into foliage, shoot forth.

frondĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], of leaves, covered with leaves, leafy.

frondĭfer (frund-, Lucr.), fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [(1) frons; fero], leaf-bearing, leafy.

frondōsus (frund-), a, um, adj. [(1) frons], full of leaves, leafy.

(1) frons (frus), frondis, f. I. a leaf; a leafy bough, spray or sprig; foliage. II. (meton.) a garland or chaplet of leaves.

(2) frons, frontis, f. [cf. Sanscr. bhrū, brow; Gk. ὀφρύς], I. 1. the forehead, brow, front: contractae sepia frontis; frontem ferire, to smite one's forehead (as a sign of vexation). 2. the brow as an index of the feelings; the face, countenance, expression. 3. the brow as the seat of modesty: frontis tenerae cupis videri; sine frontis rubore; (fig.) exclamet perisse frontem de rebus, i.e. that shame had died out; frontis ad urbanae descendi praemia, I stooped to the privileges of town-bred assurance, i.e. to avail myself of the advantage which town-bred assurance gives one. II. (meton.) 1. the fore-part or front of anything: iunctis ferunt tur Frontibus (naves), i.e. exactly abreast: utrimque prora frontem agit, serves as a fore-part; a fronte, in front, before. 2. the outer part or back of a papyrus roll; mostly in pl. the outside edges geminae frontes; frontis gemino decens honore. When rolled up, the ends were smoothed and polished with pumice-stone, and stained black. See Rich, Dict. Ant.; Ramsay, p. 461. 3. (in measuring land) a frontage: mille pedes in fronte (in breadth), trecentos cippus in agrum Hic dabat. Cf. ager, 4. III. (fig.) the outward appearance, surface, outside, exterior, external quality: decipit frons prima multos, the first appearance; fronte politus; non iam regnare pudebit, Nec color imperii, nec frons erit ulla senatûs, nor will any show of a senate be kept up.

frontālia, ĭum, n. pl. [(2) frons], a frontlet or head-band for horses.

fronto, ōnis, m. [id.], one who has a wide brow; beetle-browed.

fructĭfĕrius, a, um, adj. [fructus], I. 1. of or belonging to fruit, fruit-bearing, yielding produce. 2. for which a portion of the produce is paid: agri. II. of or belonging to usufruct.

fructŭōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], 1. full of, or abounding in fruit, fruitful, productive. 2. advantageous, profitable. Compar. fructuosior; superl. fructuosissimus.

(1) fructus, a, um, perf. part. from fruor.

(2) fructus, ūs (archaic gen. sing. fructuis; fructi, Ter.), m. [fruor], I. an enjoying, enjoyment. II. (meton.) that which is enjoyed; produce (of any kind, esp. produce of the earth), fruit (esp. of trees); profit, revenue, proceeds, income. III. (fig.) fruit, consequence, result, return, effect, reward, benefit, advantage, harvest, satisfaction.

frŭendus, a, um, gerundive from fruor.

frūgālis, e, adj., only in compar. and superl., [frux], I. thrifty, temperate, frugal, prudent. II. worthy, respectable. Compar. frugalior; superl. frugalissimus.

frūgālĭtas, ātis, f. [frugalis], 1. thrift, temperance, frugality. 2. worth, respectability.

frūgālĭtĕr, adv. [id.], thriftily, temperately, with economy; respectably.

frūgi, indecl. adj. [properly dat. sing. from frux, for profit, profitable], worthy, respectable, honest, virtuous, discreet, useful; temperate, frugal (often in a patronising way of slaves and inferiors): frugi homo es, you are a good fellow; sts. with addition of epith. bonae; permodestus ac bonae frugi, thoroughly steady and well conducted. For compar. and superl. frugalior and frugalissimus are used.

frūgĭ-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [frux; fero], I. fruit-bearing, productive, fertile. II. (fig.) profitable, remunerative.

frūgi-fĕrens, ntis, adj. = frugifer. Lucr.

frūgi-lĕgus, a, um, adj. [frux; (2) lego], grain-gathering.

frūgi-pārus, a, um, adj. [frux; pario], fruit-bearing, fruitful.

frŭitus, a, um, perf. part. from fruor.

frūmentārius, a, um, adj. [frumentum], 1. of or belonging to corn, corn-; sts. abounding in corn, Caes.; lex, the law of G. Gracchus (B.C. 123), by which grain, at the rate of 5 modii per month, was sold to the citizens at a low fixed price from the public stores. As subst. frūmentārius, ii, m. a corn-dealer, corn-factor. 2. of or belonging to provisions: navis, a store-ship, provision-ship; res, a supply of corn, provisions; supplies. As subst. frūmentārius, ii, m. a purveyor of stores, commissary.

frūmentātio, ōnis, f. [frumentor], 1. a providing of corn; foraging. 2. a distribution of corn.

frūmentātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a corn-factor. 2. a forager.

frūmentor, āri, ātus sum, [frumentum], intrans. dep. fetch or get corn, forage; cater, purvey.

frūmentum, i, n. [for frugimentum; cf. frux, fruor], I. corn, grain (including wheat, barley, and other cereals); in pl. sts. grain crops: aestimatum, the fixed allowance of corn, wheat, and barley which the governor of Sicily was empowered to demand at a fixed price for his private consumption (in cellam); cf. publicum, i.e. bought and stored by the state; frumenti tessera, a counter entitling the holder to receive corn at the monthly distribution (frumentatio). These corn tickets had a market value, and were sometimes sold. II. (in pl.) the small grain of figs.

frundifer, frundōsus, frus. See frondifer, frondosus, (1) frons.

frŭor, ī, fructus (frŭĭtus) sum, [for frug-vor; root FRUG-; cf. frux, fructus], dep. with abl., rarely with acc. or absol., I. derive enjoyment from, enjoy, delight in, have the benefit of: nec fruimur somno; me miserum non licere meo modo ingenium frui; di tibi divitias dederunt artemque fruendi. II. (legal techn. t.) have the full use and enjoyment of a thing, have the usufruct (but not the ownership) of it: fundis; agrum fruendum locare, i.e. to let an estate, reserving the ownership.

Frūsīnās, ātis, gentile adj. of or belonging to Frusino. As subst. m. pl. the men of Frusino.

Frūsīno, ōnis, m. a town of the Hernici in Latium.

frustrā, adv. [akin to fraus; cf. causa, accuso; claudo, include], I. in error, in a state of deception: frustra esse, to be deceived. II. 1. without effect, in vain, to no purpose, needlessly, unsuccessfully, frustra esse, to be unavailing, ineffectual, unsuccessful, to fail. 2. without good reason, groundlessly.

frustrāmen, ĭnis, n. [frustror], deception, delusion.

frustrātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], a deceiving, deception, disappointment; failure.

frustro, āre, āvī, ātum, [frustra], trans. v. deceive, disappoint; poet. with Gk. gen.: quoties decorus frustrata paterni, did you fail short of, miss.

frustror, āri, ātus sum, [id.], trans. dep. I. deceive, disappoint, mock, trick, thwart, balk, cheat, play one false; inceptus clamor frustratur hiantes, voice fails them at the outset of their cry, and they only gape. II. make vain or useless, render ineffectual, hamper.

frustrum, ī, n. [Sanscr. root DHRU-, break; cf. φραύω, fraus, fraudo], a fragment, piece, bit, morsel, scrap; sts. a tit-bit.

frŭtex, ĭcis, m. [akin to βρύω, sprout forth], I. a shrub, bush, bushy plant, young plant. II. (meton.) the lower part of the stem of a tree, the trunk, stem. III. (fig.) as a term of reproach, blockhead.

frŭtĭcētum, ī, n. [frutex], a place where shrubs grow, a shrubbery, copse, covert.

frŭtĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, [frutex], intrans. v., and frŭtĭcor, āri, ātus sum, intrans. dep., sprout, grow bushy.

frŭtĭcōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], full of shoots or sprigs; shrubby, bushy.

frux, frūgis, more often pl. frūges, um, f. [root FRUG-; cf. fruor], I. fruits of the earth, field produce, e.g. corn, root crops, vegetables (esp. pease and other leguminous plants); sts. tree fruit, e.g. acorns; fruges minutae, i.e. legumina; salsae, = mola salsa, meal mixed with salt and sprinkled on the victim's head. II. (fig.) result, success, value, worth, excellence: centuriae seniorum agitant expertia frugis (poemata), devoid of useful purpose, without a moral. Ad frugem or ad frugem bonam se recipere, to take to virtuous courses, become a reformed character.

fūcātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fuco. As adj. painted, varnished, artificial, made up, counterfeit. Compar. fucatior.

Fūcĭnus, ī, m. a lake of Latium in the Marsian territory, now Lago di Celano.

fūco, āre, āvi, ātum, [(1) fucus], trans. v. I. 1. paint, colour, varnish, dye. 2. paint, rouge: fucandi cura coloris; formam fucata nocentem. II. (fig.) touch up, embellish.

fūcōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], painted, dyed, coloured, made up, sham, counterfeit, not genuine, untrustworthy.

(1) ‡ fūcus, ī, m. [φῦκος], I. rock lichen, archil or orchal, used as a rich red or dark blue dye. II. (meton.) 1. red or purple colour; dye. 2. paint for the complexion, rouge. 3. bee-glue, propolis: fucoque et floribus oras Explent. III. (fig.) varnish, false colouring, sham, disguise, pretence, deceit, artificiality: nec fuco nec fallaciis; fucum facere alicui, to play tricks upon a person, dupe.

(2) fūcus, ī, m. a drone.

Fūfĭdĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Fufidius, Fufidian.

Fūfĭdius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name.

Fūfius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. 1. Q. Fufius Calenus, tribune of the plebs, B.C. 61, joint author of the Lex Aelia Fufia. 2. an actor.

‡ fūga, ae, archaic gen. sing. fugai, Lucr., f. [φυγή; cf. fugio], I. 1. a fleeing, flight, running away: ex fuga, (a) during a flight, in a flight, cf. ex itinere; see iter; (b) after a flight, when put to flight: in fugam convertere, conicere, dare, impellere, to put to flight; sese fugae dare, mandare, to take to flight; fugam facere, (a) cause flight, Livy; (b) take to flight, Sall.: fugam dare,—fugere, cf. do. 2. flight from one's native land, exile, esp. voluntary exile, banishment. II. (meton.) 1. any swift motion or course, a flying, flight, pace, speed. 2. a departure, start. 3. a place of exile: exsulet, et toto quaerat in orbe fugam. III. (fig.) a fleeing from, avoidance, escape from: disinclination or aversion to: morbi; pericli.

fŭgācĭus, compar. adv. [fugax], with a greater readiness to flee, in a more faint-hearted or pusillanimous manner.

fŭgax, ācis, adj. [fugio], I. 1. given to fleeing, apt to flee, runaway; timid, swift. 2. coquettish, coy: Pholoe. II. (fig.) 1. fleeting, transitory. 2. (with obj. gen.) disposed to shun: sollicitaeque fugax ambitionis eram.

fŭgiens, ntis, part. from fugio. As adj. I. fleeing, fleeting, vanishing, retreating, ebbing: vinum, whose bouquet evaporates, i.e. unsound wine. II. (fig.) 1. (poet.) transient, perishable. 2. (with obj. gen.) averse to: laboris, i.e. indolent.

fŭgio, fūgĕre, fūgi, fŭgĭtum, fut. part. fŭgĭtūrus, [root FUG; Gk. φυγ-; cf. φεύγω, φυγή], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. 1. take flight, flee, fly, run away. 2. escape. 3. leave one's country, go into exile, be a fugitive; a patriâ (cf. φεύγω). II. (meton.) 1. pass quickly, speed, hasten, pass rapidly away, flee, fleet, course: fugiens per gramina rivus. 2. pass quickly out of sight, vanish, retreat, recede, disappear: fugerat ore color; fugiunt ab litora portus, i.e. receding far inland. 3. pass away, perish: fugientis pressit ocellos Mater. 4. (of things losing their freshness) wilt, become flaccid: poma; vinum, i.e. lose its bouquet. B. (trans.) I. 1. flee from, avoid, shun, decline, refuse: eves ultro fugiat lupus a data pocula. 2. flee from one's country, be an exile from, leave, quit: Teucer Salamina patremque Cum fugeret (cf. φεύγω). II. (meton.) escape from, escape, avoid: enses quos fugi; Acheronta. III. (fig.) flee from, avoid, shun: amborbia, pulpae. 2. (with obj. infin.) avoid doing, forbear to do, beware of doing, take care not to do; fuge te credere turbae; fuge suspicari. 3. escape, escape the notice of: is fugiet visus nocte sequente tuos; si quid haud nulla virtus vigilantia, fugit, i.e. whose watchful care nothing escapes; hoc me fugit, this escapes my notice, I am not aware of it, I don't observe it.

fŭgĭtans, ntis, part. from fugito. As adj. (with obj. gen.) disposed to avoid, averse to: litium.

fŭgĭtīvus, a, um, adj. [fugio], fleeing away, runaway, fugitive; fleeting. As subst. fŭgĭtīvus, i, m. 1. a runaway slave; sts. as a term of abuse, scamp, vagabond. 2. a runaway soldier, deserter.

fŭgito, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. fugio], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) flee hastily. B. (trans.) flee from eagerly, studiously avoid, shun, shirk: sts. (poet.) with infin. forbear to do a thing, avoid doing: quod alius facere fugitant.

fŭgo, āre, āvi, ātum, [akin to fugio], trans. v. I. cause to flee, put to flight, chase, rout. 2. send into exile. Ov.

fulcīmen, ĭnis, n. [fulcio], a prop, support.

fulcio, īre, fulsi, fultum, [akin to farcio, with change of farc- to fulc-; Sanscr. root BHRAK- or BHARK-, press], trans. v. I. 1. press, rest upon: latus niveum molli fultus hyacintho; pedibus teneris positas fulcire pruinas, i.e. tread. 2. prop up, hold up, support, stay, pillow. II. (meton.) strengthen, sustain, fortify; secure, fasten: stomachum cibo; adpositā ianua fulta serā. III. (fig.) 1. press out, fill full, overcharge: Antiopa, aerumnis cor luctificabile fulta, her dolorific heart crammed full with woe. 2. support, sustain. back up; keep up, maintain, preserve.

fulcrum, i, n. [fulcio], I. the foot or pedestal of a sofa, couch, bed, bier, etc. II. (meton.) 1. a bedstead, couch. 2. a staff, walking-stick : fulcra tenens laevâ tristis acerna manu.

fulgens, ntis, part. from fulgeo. As adj. 1. bright, shining. 2. (fig.) illustrious. Compar. fulgentior ; superl. fulgentissimus.

fulgĕo, ēre, also fulgo, ĕre, fulsi, [root FLAG-, FULG- ; Sanscr. BHRÁG-, glow ; cf. φλέγω, φλοξ ; fulmen ; fulvus], intrans. v. I. glitter, shine, flash, lighten. II. (meton.) gleam, be bright, glisten. III. (fig.) shine bright, be conspicuous, illustrious.

fulgĭdus, a, um, adj. [fulgeo], glittering, shining bright.

fulgo, ĕre, byform of fulgeo. Munro, Lucr. vi. 160.

fulgor, ōris, m. [fulgeo], I. a lightning-flash, lightning. II. (meton.) 1. flashing light, gleam, glitter, brightness, sheen, splendour. 2. (pl.) glittering objects, gewgaws : cum stupet insanis acies fulgoribus. 3. a shining star, luminary. Cic. III. (fig.) brightness, splendour, lustre, brilliancy, glory.

fulgur, ŭris, n. [id.], I. flashing lightning, lightning. II. (meton.) 1. a fire-ball, thunderbolt. 2. (religious techn. t.) an object struck by lightning : condere fulgur, to bury the objects struck ; said of the priest or augur who performed the ceremony of purification. The place where the objects struck were buried was called 'bidental.' 3. brightness, splendour.

fulgŭrālis, e, adj. [fulgur], of or belonging to lightning.

fulgŭrātor, ōris, m. [fulgur], a priest who interprets lightning flashes, a lightning interpreter.

fulgŭro, āre, [id.], only in 3 pers., or impers. I. lighten. II. (fig.) flash, glitter, gleam.

fŭlica, ae, (-ix, icis), f. a waterfowl, coot, moor-hen, shag.

fŭligo, gĭnis, f. [cf. fumus], I. soot. II. (meton.) black paint.

fŭlix, icis. See fulica.

fullo, ōnis, m. a cleaner and scourer of cloth, a fuller.

fullmĕn, ĭnis, n. [for fulgimen ; cf. fulgeo], I. lightning that strikes or sets on fire, a thunderbolt. II. (fig.) 1. a destructive power, crushing calamity, shock. 2. impetuosity, crushing force, death-stroke. 3. (of resistless conquerors) : fluo fulmine belli Scipiadae. 4. a fiery flashing, flash, of metal, the eyes, etc.

fulmĭnĕus, a, um, adj. [fulmen], I. of or belonging to lightning or the thunderbolt. II. (fig.) 1. terrible or resistless as the thunderbolt, death-dealing, murderous. 2. lightning-like, flashing.

fulmĭno, āre, [fulmen], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. hurl lightnings or thunderbolts, lighten, thunder. Impers. fulminat, it thunders, it lightens. II. (fig.) 1. Caesar dum magnus ad altum Fulminat Euphraten, thunders in war. 2. (poet.) dart lightning flashes : oculis quoque pupula duplex Fulminat. B. (trans.) strike with lightning, blast : ingentes quercus.

fultūra, ae, f. [fulcio], I. a prop, stay, support. II. (fig. of food) a support, ; sick-me-up, tonic : stomachno fultura ruenti.

fultus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from fulcio.

Fulvĭa, ae, f. [Fulvius], 1. the mistress of Curio, one of the Catilinarian conspirators, who betrayed the plot to Cicero. 2. a daughter of M. Fulvius Bambalio, the wife in succession of P. Clodius, C. Curio, and M. Antonius.

Fulvĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Fulvius or to Fulvia.

Fulvius, ĭi, a Roman gentile name.

fulvus, a, um, adj. [cf. fulgeo], of a deep yellow colour, reddish yellow, tawny, auburn; blond ; yellow, yellowish green ; gold-coloured : vellera, i.e. the Golden Fleece.

fūmārium, ĭi, n. [fumus], a smoke-chamber, often used as a store-room for ripening wine.

fūmĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. full of smoke, smoking, smoky. II. (meton.) smoked, ripened in smoke : vina.

fūmĭdus, a, um, adj. full of smoke, smoking, smoky.

fūmi-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [fumus ; fero], smoke-emitting, smoking, steaming.

fūmi-fĭcus, a, um, adj. [fumus ; facio], smoke-producing, smoking, steaming.

fūmo, āre, [fumus], intrans. v. smoke, steam, reek.

fūmōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. full of smoke, smoky, smoking. II. 1. well-smoked, grimy with smoke, smoke-dried. 2. kept or ripened in smoke : cadus.

fūmus, i, m. [Sanscr. dhûmas, smoke, root DHŪ- ; cf. θύω, rush, sacrifice ; θυμός, θυσία], smoke, fume, vapour, steam. Prov. Fumum or fumos vendere, (a) sell catch-penny, worthless goods, or (b) deal in empty promises. In fumum et cinerem vertere, i.e. to consume utterly.

fūnālis, e, adj. [funis], of or belonging to a rope or trace : equus, a trace-horse, outrigger ; cereus, a large taper made of fibre twisted into a rope and dipped in wax or pitch ; cf. funale ; a torch, link. As subst. fūnāle, is, n. I. a cord or thong. II. 1. a rope smeared with wax or pitch ; a link, torch, flambeau, taper. 2. a chandelier : lampadibus densum funale coruscis.

fun-ambŭlus, i, m. [funis ; ambulo], a rope-walker, rope-dancer.

functĭo, ōnis, f. [fungor], a discharging, execution. fulfilment.

functus, a, um, perf. part. from fungor, having fully performed, completed, gone through, fulfilled, discharged, made one's-self quit of : parte laboris ; sacris ; laboribus, whose labours are over ; cibo, after taking a meal ; ter aevo (senex), who lived life three times over, passed through three generations (sc. Nestor) ; virtute, whose valiant deeds are done, i.e. who has lived his life like a man, has lived the life of a man ; sepulcris corpora or simulacra, quit of the tomb, i.e. duly buried ; fato, morte, or vitâ, i.e. deceased, dead ; sts. (poet.) absol.=defunctus ; omnia functa Aut moritura vides.

fundа, ae, f. [σφενδονή ; cf. fallo, σφάλλω], I. a sling. II (meton.) 1. the bullet or stone slung, a sling-stone. 2. a casting-net : fundâ verberat annum. 3. the hollow of a ring in which the gem is set, the bezel. 4. a pouch, purse.

fundāmen, ĭnis, n. [(2) fundo], a foundation.

fundāmentum, i, n. [id.], a foundation, groundwork, basis.

Fundānĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. 1. C. Fundanius, a friend of Cicero. 2. a comic poet, friend of Horace and Maecenas.

Fundānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Fundi.

fundātor, ōris, m. [(2) fundo], a founder.

fundātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) fundo. As adj. well grounded, durable.

Fundi, ōrum, m. pl. a town of Latium on the Via Appia, now Fondi.

fundĭtor, ōris, m. [funda], a slinger. The funditores were attached to the levis armatura.

funditus, adv. [(1) fundus], I. from the very bottom, from the very foundation. II. (meton.) at the bottom, below. III. (fig.) utterly, completely.

(1) fundo, ĕre, fūdi, fūsum, [root FUD-; Sanscr. GHU- ; Gk. χυ-, χεῦ-, pour ; cf. χέω, χεύσω ; fons, futis], trans. v. I. 1. pour, pour out, shed, spill. Pass. used reflexively, pour itself, discharge. 2. (of metals) melt, fuse, cast, found : quid fusum durius esset, stiffly cast. II. (meton.) 1. wet, moisten, bathe, sprinkle : multo tempora funde mero. 2. pour forth in abundance, shower, scatter, discharge. 3. spread, extend, diffuse. 4. produce in abundance, bring forth, give birth to. 5. (poet.) let loose, unfurl : habenas ; equos citis habenis ; vela. 6. throw to the ground, fling, lay prostrate : corpora humi. Fundere se, or pass. used reflexively, to throw or stretch one's-self, lie at length, sprawl. 7. overthrow, rout, vanquish : exercitus caesus fususque. III. (fig.) 1. pour out or forth, diffuse, spread, extend, display. 2. (of speech) pour forth, utter : ore loquellas. 3. spend, squander, waste : tot incassum fusos patiere labores?

(2) fundo, ĕre, āvi, ātum, [(1) fundus], trans. v. I. lay the bottom or keel of a ship, lay the foundation of a thing, found: puppis validâ fundata carinâ; fundatura citas fiectuntur robora naves; arces. II. (meton.) fasten, secure: dentes tenaci Ancora. fundabat naves. III. (fig.) establish, found, confirm, make durable: imperium; nitidis fundata pecunia villis, based upon, safely invested

(1) fundus, i, m. [Sanscr. budhnas, bottom; cf. πυθμήν]. I. the bottom of anything. Prov. Fundum non habere, to have no bottom, i.e. never come to an end, with allusion to the perforated cask of the Danaids. II. (meton.) in pl., a double cup (=ἀμφικύπελλον), i.e. that forms a cup both top and bottom; or more probably, a two-handled goblet with two bottoms, that of the goblet and that of its foot (Schliemann): hi duo longaevo censentur Nestore fundi, lit. take rank by Nestor, are valued for, belonging to Nestor. III. an estate in land, a farm, estate; land with buildings on it. IV. (fig.) foundation: fluxas Pluvgiae res vertere fundo, =funditus.

(2) fundus, i, m. [Sanscr. root BHANDH-, tie, bind, unite; cf. (2) foedus], a guarantor, security; fundus fieri, lit. to become bound; hence (legal techn. t.), to accept something, e.g. the civitas, offered by the Roman state on certain terms, to accept an obligation, subscribe to or formally adopt the law in question.

fūnēbris (funĕbris), e, adj. [funus], I. of or belonging to a funeral, funeral-, funereal, of burial. As subst. n. pl. funeral rites. II. (meton.) of or belonging to death, deadly, fatal; mournful, dismal.

fūnĕrātus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of or belonging to a funeral or burial, funeral-. II. (meton.) deadly, fatal; ill-boding, dismal.

fūnĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. bury with funeral rites, inter. II. bring to one's grave, kill: prope funeratus Arboris ictu.

fūnesto, āre, āvi, ātum, [funestus], trans. v. I. pollute with the presence of a dead body, desecrate. II. (fig.) bring death upon, bring a ban to, defile, disgrace.

fūnestus, a, um, adj. [funus], I. (active) causing death, deadly, fatal, baleful; causing woe, calamitous, mournful. II. 1. filled with death or woe, mournful, sad, mourning: familia, lit. a household with a death in it, i.e. in mourning: utque manus funestas arceat aris, polluted, i.e. by her husband's death. 2. in mourning dress, in weeds.

fungor, i, functus sum, dep. with abl.; rarely with acc. or absol., I. 1. busy one's self with, be engaged in, go through, discharge, perform, administer, observe, bring to an end, complete, be quit of, fulfil: dapibus, duly partake of; fungitur igne focus, has the fire duly kindled; or, less prob., gets done with, i.e. lets it burn out; lacrimis, fall to, indulge in; fato or morte, die; sts. absol.; see functus. In Plaut. and Ter. with acc. 2. (with acc. or absol.) suffer, be acted upon: mala multa; facere et fungi. Lucr. II. discharge, contribute, pay what is due: (with acc.) quid aratorem in rem publicam fungi ac sustinere velitis, Cic.; (with abl.) cum eo sumptu res publica fungatur.

fungus, i, m. [for sfungus = σφόγγος; cf. fallo, funda], I. a mushroom, edible fungus, less prized than the boletus. II. (meton.) 1. a soft-head, numskull. 2. candle-snuff, the thief in the wick of a candle: putres concrescere fungos.

fūnĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. funis], a slender cord.

fūnis, is, m. (f. in Lucr.), [for fudnis; Sanscr. root BHANDH-, bind], a rope, cord, thong, line, sheet, hawser, cable. Prov. (a) Funem torture sequi, to follow the rope, the metaphor being taken from a led animal; (b) Funem reducere, to pull in the cord, i.e. change one's mind; metaph. from playing a bird or a cock-chafer at the end of a string.

fūnus, eris, n. [cf. fumus; Sanscr. DHU-], lit. a burning, I. a funeral cortège, funeral rites, a funeral, burial; sts. in pl. (poet.) of a single burial. II. (meton.) 1. a dead body, corpse; in pl. (poet.) the dead, = Manes; lacerum tellus habet; cum senuit infernas intrârunt funera leges. 2. a violent death, murder; death: in pl. often carnage, slaughter. III. (fig.) 1. destruction, ruin, a death-blow. 2. (of persons) a destroyer, murderer, scourge.

fŭo, ōre. See sum.

fŭr, fŭris, m. f. [root FER-, cf. fero, Gk. φώρ], I. a thief. II. (fig.) 1. as a term of abuse, knave, varlet, rogue, rascal. 2. a robber-bee, drone. Varro.

fūrācĭter, adv. [furax], thievishly. Only in superl. furacissime.

fūrax, ācis, adj. [1] furor], disposed to steal, thievish. Compar. furacior; superl. furacissimus.

furca, ae, f. [akin to forceps, forfex; Sanscr. root BHAR-, cleave], I. a two-pronged fork; hay-fork, dutch-fork, etc. II. (meton. of things shaped like a fork), 1. a fork-shaped pole, prop, stay, crotch, tressel. 2. a fork used for taking down provisions hung out of reach on a rack, etc. 3. a gallows, instrument of punishment with two prongs, shaped thus Λ. The head of a person was pressed into the angle, and his arms were tied to the sides, and he was then flogged. 4. a gallows, gibbet. 5. a yoke for young bullocks. 6. a fork, a narrow pass or defile: Furcae (more freq. Furculae) Caudinae. See Caudinus.

furci-fĕr, fĕri, m. [furca; fero], a wearer of the wooden collar; cf. furca, II. 3; hence, as a term of contempt, gallows-bird, rascal, villain, hang-dog, scamp, scoundrel.

furcilla, ae, f. [dim. furca], a little fork; a hay-fork; vine-prop.

furcŭla, ae, f. [dim. furca], I. a small fork-shaped prop; a wooden prop for shoring up the walls of a town when undermined. II. a narrow pass, ravine: Furculae Caudinae. See Caudinus.

fūrens, ntis, part. from furo. As adj. raging, wild, frantic, raving, inspired: animi (locat.) raging in heart.

fūrenter, adv. [furens], furiously, passionately.

furfur, ūris, m. [deriv. dub.] I. bran. II. (meton.) scurf, dandruff.

fūrĭa, ae, f., rare in sing.; more often in pl. fūriae, ārum, [furo], I. violent passion, rage, fury, frenzy, madness, infatuation, wild desire. II. (meton.) 1. the Furies, the three avenging deities, Tisiphone, Allecto, and Megaera; also called Dirae, Eumenides, Erinyes. 2. avenging spirits, tormenting fiends, demons. 3. (in sing., applied to dangerous or desperate characters) a madman, fury, demon.

fūrĭālis, e, adj. [furiae], I. of or belonging to the Furies, Fury-like, furious, raging, wild, maddened, frantic, infuriate, horrible. II. (active) maddening.

fūrĭālĭtĕr, adv. [furialis], furiously, wildly, madly.

Fūrĭānus (Fūs-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Furius, Furian.

fūrĭbundus, a, um, adj. [(2) furor], I. full of rage or passion, raging, mad, wild, frantic. II. filled with inspired frenzy, inspired.

Furĭna (Furr-), ae, f. a goddess worshipped in ancient Rome.

fŭrĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [furiae], trans. v. madden, infuriate, enrage.

fŭrĭōsē, adv. [furiosus], furiously, like a madman.

fŭrĭōsus, a, um, adj. [furiae], full of madness or rage, raving mad, raging, furious, frantic, wild; beside one's-self, insane. Compar. furiosior; superl. furiosissimus.

(1) Fūrius (Fūsius), ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. Cf. Bibaculus, (2) Camillus.

(2) Fūrius (Fūsius), a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Furius, Furian.

furnārĭa, ae, f. [furnus], the trade of a baker, baking.

Furnius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name.

furnus (forn-), i, m. [cf. fornax; root FOR-, FUR-; Sanscr. GHAR-, be hot, shine; Gk. θερ-, cf. θέρος, θερμαίνω], 1. an oven, esp. a baker's oven, a bakehouse, baker's shop. 2. a hot air or vapour bath. (Rich.)

fūro, fūrĕre, (fūrdi), [akin to θοῦρος, θούριος, rushing; Curt. 256], intrans. v. I. 1. rage, rave, be mad, furious, wild, be out of one's mind, frantic: insanire ac furere : recepto Dulce mihi furere est amico, to hold wild revel; (with cogn. acc.) hunc sine me furere ante furorem, suffer me first to rave out this fit of frenzy; (poet. with infin.); furit te reperire atrox Tydides, i.e. furiously longs, is madly eager. 2. (poet.) be violently or madly in love (with abl. of instr.): Iliachiâ. Cf. ardeo. II. (fig. of things): aestus arenis; ardor edendi.

(1) fūror, ārī, ātus sum, [fur], trans. dep. I. steal, purloin, pilfer, filch; plagiarise; (without obj. acc.) rob, pillage; carry on guerilla warfare. II. (meton.) steal privily, take away, withdraw, appropriate; fessos oculos furare labori, steal from their toil (of watching): civitatem, i.e. come by it unfairly or dishonestly.

(2) fūror, ōris, m. [furo], I. a raging, raving, frenzy, madness, fury, wild passion, rage; insensate folly, mad conduct. II. (meton.) 1. inspired frenzy, inspiration: fatidicos concipit mente furores. 2. any violent desire; passion, love: quo me furor egit amantem? sts. (poet.) the beloved object, a flame: sive est Amyntas, Seu quicunque furor. 3. an object of rage or wrath: ut tibi sim merito semper furor, a continual source of indignation. III. (fig. of things inanimate): caeli furor aequinoctialis; procellae. IV. Frenzy, Rage, personified.

Furrīna, ae. See Furina.

furtim, adv. [fur], by stealth, stealthily, privily, clandestinely.

furtīvē, adv. [furtivus], secretly, clandestinely.

furtīvus, a, um, adj. [furtum], I. stolen, purloined, pilfered. II. secret, hidden, clandestine, concealed, furtive.

furtum, i, n. [fur], I. theft, robbery. II. (meton.) 1. a stolen thing, stolen bit: dum furta ligurrit. 2. a secret action, anything privily done; an artifice, stratagem, deceit, fraud, stealth: furta belli, i.e. ambuscades; furtum noctis, an attack made under cover of night. Tac. Furto, abl. = adv. by stealth, clandestinely, secretly. 3. secret love; in pl. clandestine amours, intrigues, liaisons.

fūrunculus, i, m. [dim. fur], I. a petty thief, pilferer. II. a boil, carbuncle.

furvus, a, um, adj. [akin to fuscus], dusky, swarthy, gloomy, dark, murky. Freq. epith. of the lower world and things belonging to it.

fuscina, ae, f. [akin to furca], a three-pronged spear, trident.

fusco, āre, āvi, ātum, [fuscus], trans. v. make dark or swarthy, darken, blacken. Rarely (poet. L.L.) intrans. become dark or swarthy.

(1) fuscus, a, um, adj. [for furscus; root PHRU-; cf. φρῦνος, lit. the brown one, a toad; furvus], I. blackish, dark, dusky, swarthy, tawny. II. (of the voice) husky, hoarse.

(2) Fuscus, i, m. a Roman cognomen; cf. Aristius.

fūsē, adv. [fusus, fundo], 1. in an extended manner, spread out. 2. copiously, diffusely. Compar. fusius.

fūsilis, e, adj. [(1) fundo], molten, fluid, in a liquid state; aurum; fusili ex argillâ glandes, bullets made of soft plastic clay. Caes.

Fūsius, ii. See Furius.

fūsio, ōnis, f. [(1) fundo], a pouring, effusion: animi fusio universa, the all-pervadingness.

fustis, is, abl. sing. -i or -ĕ, m. [root FED-, Gk. θεν-, strike; cf. o..endo, infensus, festino, θείνω], a cudgel, staff, club: fustem alicui impingere, to give one a sound drubbing.

fustŭārium, ii, n. [fustis], a cudgelling to death, bastinado; a military punishment inflicted on deserters.

(1) fūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (1) fundo. As adj. I. spread out, extended, broad, large: nudi puguant, et sunt fusa et candida corpora, plump, sleek, well-fleshed; campi; toga, wide, full, flowing; capilli, streaming, loose. II. (fig.) copious, diffuse, unrestrained, free. Compar. fusior.

(2) fūsus, i, m. [akin to funda; cf. σφόνδυλος, Curtius, 247], a spindle: (of the Parcae) tunc debuerant fusos evoluisse meos, to have unrolled the spindles that held the thread of my life, i.e. it was time for me to die.

fūtis, is, f. [cf. futtilis], a water-vessel with a wide mouth.

futtilis (fūtilis), e, adj. [root FU-? FUD-; cf. (1) fundo, effutio], that pours easily, leaky, that will not hold (water, etc.). II. (meton.) 1. brittle, fragile: glacies. 2. unable to contain one's self: canes. III. (fig.) untrustworthy, worthless, vain, baseless, unsubstantial, weak, babbling: auctor; sententiae; lingua.

futtilitas (fūtil-), ātis, f. [futtilis], worthlessness, vanity.

fŭturus, a, um, fut. part. from sum, 1. destined to be, that will be; future, to come. As subst. fŭtūrum, i, n. what is to be, the future. 2. resolved upon, meditated; sc. Ius, Ov. Tac.

G.

G

G, g, indecl. n., or f., the seventh letter of the Latin alphabet. As an abbr. (a) incorrectly = Gaius, cf. Caius; or, inverted, ⅁ = Gaia, fem. of Gaius; (b) Gn. = Cn. See Cnaeus.

Gābăli, ōrum, m. pl. a people of Gallia Celtica.

găbăta, ae, f. [? akin to cavus], a dish, platter.

Gabba, ae, m. a scurra or court-jester of Augustus's time.

Gābĭi, ōrum, m. pl. an old city of Latium, now Castiglione, 12 miles from Rome.

(1) Gābĭnĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name.

(2) Gābĭnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Gabinius, Gabinian: lex, (a) the law of Q. Gabinius, tribune of the plebs B.C. 139, which introduced voting by ballot at the comitia; (b) the law of A. Gabinius, tribune of the plebs B.C. 66, which conferred upon Cn. Pompeius extraordinary power for conducting the war against the pirates.

Gābīnus, a, um, adj. [Gabii], of or from Gabii, Gabine: cinctus, cf. (2) cinctus: Iuno, i.e. worshipped at Gabii. As subst. m. pl. the men of Gabii.

Gādes, ĭum, f. pl. a Phoenician colony and town in Hispania Baetica, on an island of the same name, the modern Cadiz.

Gādĭtānus, a, um, adj. of or from Gades: Fretum, the Straits of Gibraltar. As subst. (a) Gādĭtāni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Gades; (b) Gādĭtānae, ārum, f. pl. (sc. puellae), ballet girls from Gades; (c) Gādĭtāna, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. cantica), Spanish love-songs of a loose character.

gaesum (gē-), i, n. [Celtic word], a strong and heavy javelin of the Gauls.

Gaetŭlĭa, ae, f. a country of Libya. See Gaetulus.

Gaetŭlĭcus, i, m. an agnomen assumed by Cn. Cornelius Cossus Lentulus, consul B.C. 1, for victories over the Gaetuli, B.C. 6.

Gaetŭlus (Gē-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Gaetulia or the Gaetuli, Gaetulian; (poet.) African, Moorish. As subst. Gaetŭlus, i, m. a Gaetulian. The Gaetuli were a people of N.W. Africa, in the modern Morocco.

galbinus

Gallānus (Calānus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Caligula: expeditiones; nex.

Gāius (Caius), i, m. a Roman praenomen, abbr. G. or C.; cf. Caius. Fem. Gaia, ae, abbr. ⅁ or ↄ.

Gălaesus (Gălēsus), i, m. 1. a river of Magna Graecia, which flows into the bay of Tarentum, now the Galeso. 2. a Latin mentioned by Virgil.

Gălanthis, ĭdis, f. a female attendant of Alcmene, changed into a weasel.

Gălăta, ae, m. a Galatian. The Galatae, or Gallograeci, were a Celtic people who migrated into Asia Minor.

Gălătēa, ae, f. 1. a sea-nymph, daughter of Nereus. 2. a country maid.

Gălătĭa, ae, f. Galatia, the country of the Galatae. in N. central Asia Minor.

galba, ae, f. [Gallic word], I. an ash-worm. II. in Gallic = praepinguis, fat paunch, big belly. III. as a proper name, Galba; 1. a king of the Suessiones. 2. a cognomen in the gens Sulpicia. One Servius Sulpicius Galba served as Caesar's legatus in Gaul, B.C. 57, and is said to have been one of his assassins. The Emperor Servius Sulpicius Galba succeeded Nero, June A.D. 68 to Jan. A.D. 69.

galbănātus (galbĭn-), a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [galbanum or galbinus], I. clad in greenish-yellow garments. II. (meton.) effeminate, foppish.

galbănĕus, a, um, adj. [galbanum], of galbanum.

galbănum, i, n. [χαλβάνη], galbanum, the resinous fragrant gum of a Syrian plant.

galbănus (galbĭn-), a, um, adj. [galbanum, or galbus], I. greenish-yellow, grass-coloured, pale green. As subst. n. pl. (sc. vestimenta), greenish-yellow or pale green garments, worn by effeminate fops and women. II. (meton.) effeminate, foppish: mores.

galbus, i, m., (-um, i, n.), an arm-band, fillet, pad.

galbĭnātus, a, um. See galbanatus.

galbĭnus, a, um, adj. See galbanus.

Gallicanus

galbŭla, ae, f. [dim. galbus], the yellow-hammer, yellow-thrush, linnet.

galbus, [German gelb], yellow.

gălēa, ae, f. [CAL-, CEL-, cover; cf. caligo, celo, καλύπτω], 1. a helmet, properly of skin or leather, while the cassis was of metal. 2. a helmet with the visor down: galeis abscondunt ora; galeis iuvat oscula clausis Inserere. 3. a skull-cap, hunting cap.

gălēātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from galeo, furnished with a helmet, with the helmet on, helmeted.

gălĕo, āre, āvi, ātum [galea], trans. v. furnish with a helmet.

Gălēria, ae, f. wife of the Emperor Vitellius.

gălērĭcŭlum, i, n. [dim. galerum], a small fur cap, skull-cap, peruke, wig.

gălērĭtus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [galerum], wearing a fur cap, hooded; hence, (poet.), as the fur cap was worn by the early Latins, rustic, in rude attire. Proper.

Gălērius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name.

gălērum, i, n., (-us, i, m. Virg.), [cf. galea], 1. a fur cap, leather skull-cap; a bonnet, hat; a priest's cap; a wig, peruke. 2. (techn. t.) a guard or epaulette, of leather or metal, worn by the retiarius on the left arm and shoulder.

Gălēsus, i. See Galaesus.

Galgăcus (Calg-), i, m. a Caledonian chief.

Gălĭlaeus, a, um, of or belonging to Galilee, Galilean.

(1) galla, ae, f. an oak-apple, gall-nut.

(2) Galla, ae, f. 1. a female Gaul. 2. a sexless priest of Cybele.

Gallaecus (-ĭcus), (Call-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Gallaeci, a people of Hispania Tarraconensis in the modern Galicia, and part of Portugal: Gallaecian.

Gallĭa, ae, f. Gaul, the country of the Galli, including Belgium, France, and Switzerland. See Class. Dict.

galliambus, i, m. a galliambic, a song of the priests of Cybele, of which the Atys or Attis of Catullus is a specimen.

Gallĭcānus, a, um, adj. 1. of or from Gallia Cisalpina, Gallican: legiones, quartered in Gaul, Cic. 2. = Gallicus; catulus.

gallĭca, ae, f. See Gallicus, I. 1.

Gallĭcus, a, um, adj. I. 1. of or belonging to the Gauls, Gallic: canis, a greyhound. As subst. gallica, ae, f. (sc. solea), a Gallic shoe, a slipper, worn indoors. 2. of or belonging to Gallia Cisalpina: video quis habeat Etruriam, quis agrum Picenum, quis Gallicum. II. 1. of or belonging to the river Gallus; Phrygian, Trojan. 2. (meton.) of or belonging to the Galli, or priests of Cybele: turma, i.e. the priests of Isis. Ov.

(1) gallĭna, ae, f. ſ(1) gallus], a hen. Prov. gallinae filius albae. See albus, 6.

(2) Gallĭna, ae, m. the nickname of a gladiator, the Chicken.

gallinācĕus, a, um, adj. [gallina], of or belonging to poultry: gallus, a poultry cock, dunghill or barn-door cock.

Gallĭnārĭa Silva, (poet. pinus; part for whole), a pine-forest in Campania, near Cumae, infested with brigands.

gallĭnārĭus, a, um, adj. [id.], of or belonging to poultry. As subst. 1. gallĭnārĭus, ĭi, m. a poultry-keeper, fowl-breeder. 2. gallĭnārium, ĭi, n. a hen-house.

Gallŏ-graeci, ōrum, m. pl. [Galli; Graeci], the Gauls who migrated into Asia Minor, called also Galatae. Their country was called Gallograecia or Galatia.

Gallōnĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. P. Gallonius, an auctioneer, was a noted gourmand.

(1) gallus, i, m. [root GAR-; cf. Gk. γῆρυς; garrio, garrulus], a cock.

(2) Gallus, a, um, adj. of Gaul, Gallic.

(3) Gallus, i, m. a Gaul. The Galli, or Gauls, were a Celtic nation. Their country was called Gallia.

(4) Gallus, i, m. a river of Phrygia, whence the eunuch priests of Cybele took their name. Its waters caused madness.

(5) Gallus, i, m. ſ(4) Gallus], a priest of Cybele.

(6) Gallus, i, m. a surname in the Roman gens Cornelia, Sulpicia, etc. C. Cornelius Gallus, the poet, a friend of Virgil, Pollio, Varus, and Ovid, was a native of Forum Iulii. Being disgraced by the Senate during his prefecture in Egypt, he committed suicide, B.C. 26.

gammărus, i, m. See cammarus.

gănĕa, ae, f., and gănĕum, i, n. [for gasnea; Sanscr. ghas, swallow], 1. a cook-shop, eating-house, of a low character. 2. (meton.) gluttony.

gănĕo, ōnis, m. [id.], a glutton, debauchee, sensualist.

gănĕum, i, n. See ganea.

gangaba, ae, m. [Persian word], a porter.

Gangărĭdae, ārum (-tum), m. pl. an Indian people near the Ganges.

Gangēs, is, m. the river Ganges in India.

Gangētĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Ganges: ales, i.e. the phoenix.

Gangētis, ĭdis, f. adj. of the Ganges: terra, i.e. India.

gannĭo, īre, intrans. v. I. yelp, snap, bark. II. (meton.) 1. snarl, mewl, grumble, whine. 2. gabble, chatter, make a din.

gannītus, ūs, m. [gannio], 1. a yelping, barking. 2. a snarling, grumbling, whining. 3. a chattering, chirping.

Gănȳmēdēs, is, m. a beautiful boy, son of Tros (acc. to some, son of Laomedon), carried up to heaven by an eagle from Mt. Ida, and made cupbearer of the gods.

Gănȳmēdēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ganymede; Ganymede-like, fair as Ganymede.

Gărămantēs, um, m. pl. the Garamantians, a tribe of Interior Africa.

Gărămantĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Garamantes, Garamantian; (poet.) African.

Gărămantis, ĭdis, f. adj. Garamantian.

Gărāmas, antis, m. a Garamantian. See Garamantes.

(1) Gargānus, i, m. a stormy mountain range in Apulia, now Monte Gargano.

(2) Gargānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Mt. Garganus.

Gargăphīē, ēs, f. a valley and spring in Boeotia at the foot of Mt. Cithaeron, where Actaeon was worried by his hounds.

Gargăra, ōrum, n. pl. the summit of Mt. Ida in Mysia, with a city of the same name.

Gargărĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Gargara.

Gargettĭus, ĭi, m. the Gargettian, i.e. the philosopher Epicurus, born in Gargettus, a deme of Attica.

Gargĭlĭus, ĭi, m. an eccentric epicure, mentioned by Horace, whose purchases in the market were made with great display.

Garītes, um, m. pl. a people of Aquitania.

‡ gărŏn, i, n. See garum.

garrĭo, īre, īvi (ĭi), ītum, [Sanscr. root GAR, extol; cf. γῆρυς, γηρύω, garrulus], trans. v. I. chatter, prate, babble, talk. Sts. without obj. acc. II. (meton.) of frogs: croak.

garrŭlĭtas, ātis, f. [garrulus], chattering, babbling, prating, talkativeness.

garrŭlus, a, um, adj. [garrio], I. chattering, prating, prattling, babbling, talkative, gossiping: hora, i.e. spent in chatting. II. (meton.) of animals or inanimate things: croaking, twittering, cawing, hooting, chirping; noisy, rustling, purling, murmuring, tuneful, vocal.

‡ gărum (gărŏn), i, n. [γάρον], fish-sauce, made from the blood and entrails of mackerel.

Gārumna (-runna, -ronna), ae, m. the Garonne, a river of Gaul.

Gārumni, ōrum, m. pl. a tribe of Aquitania, who lived on the Garumna.

gaudens, ntis, part. from gaudeo. As adj. joyful, cheerful, well-pleased: huic tu dic gaudentem nummo te addicere, that you will be glad to make it over to him for a mere trifle.

gaudĕo, ēre, gāvīsus sum, [root GAU-; γαν, γαϝ cf. γαίω, for γαϝίω, rejoice, γαῦρος, exulting], intrans. and trans. semi-dep. A. (intrans.) I. 1. rejoice, be glad or joyful, take pleasure in, be satisfied or well pleased with, delight in, feel proud of: (with acc. and infin., infin., quod, the abl., prep. in, or absol.): Brutum apud me fuisse gaudeo: gaudet funem manu contingere; gaude, quod spectant oculi te mille loquentem; carmine; in puero; gaudeat an doleat. Sts. with cum, quia, si. 2. in se or in tacito sinu gaudere, to rejoice secretly, hug one's self complacently. Like Gk. χαίρειν, as a word of salutation: Celso gaudere et benu rem gerere: Musa refer, bear my greeting and good wishes. 4. (of inanimate things) rejoice, delight in: Phoebo gaudet Parnasia rupes. B (trans., with stretch of meaning, or with cogn. acc.), rejoice at, enjoy: huo venitur ego Quanta gaudia, quae Gaudent, for him to enjoy, to be enjoyed by him; iam id gaudeo; gaudent natorum fata parentes.

gaudĭum, ĭi, n. [gaudeo], I. 1. inward joy, joy, delight, gladness; in pl. often, outward manifestations of joy, rejoicing. 2. sensual pleasure, enjoyment, delight. Mostly in pl. II. (meton.) that which causes joy, a delight; a heart's joy, darling: nescio quis Fugiunt tua gaudia dixit.

Gaurānus, a, um, adj. of or from Mt. Gaurus: ostrea, i.e. from Baiae and the Lucrine lake.

Gaurus, i, m. a mountain of Campania, noted for its wine; the highest part of the range which encloses the Lucrine lake.

‡ gausăpa, ae, f. gausăpē, is, n. (only in sing.) gausăpa, ōrum, n. pl. [γαυσάπης], I. 1. a rough woollen cloth; frieze, felt, baize; a garment or covering of frieze; a towel, table-cloth, napkin, bedquilt, etc. II. (meton.) 1. a thick bushy beard. 2. a wig: lutea, i.e. of flaxen or auburn hair.

gausăpĭnus, a, um, adj. [gausapa], made of frieze or felt. As subst. gausăpĭna, ae, f. (sc. vestis), a frieze coat.

gāvīsus, a, um, perf. part. from gaudeo.

Gāvīus, ĭi, m. a Roman who was crucified by Verres.

gāza, ae, f. [Persian word], I. the royal treasure in Persia. II. (meton.) treasures, riches, wealth.

Gĕbenna, ae, f. See Cevenna.

Geidumni (-dūni), ōrum, m. pl. a Belgian tribe, subject to the Nervii.

(1) Gĕla, ae, f. a city of Sicily, on the S. coast, by a river of the same name.

(2) Gĕla, ae, m. the river Gela in Sicily.

† gĕlăsĭnus, i, m. [γελασῖνος], a dimple, caused by laughter.

Geldŭba, ae, f. a fortress on the Rhine, now Gelb.

Gĕlenses, ĭum, m. pl. the men of Gela.

gĕlĭdē, adv. [gelidus], coldly, frigidly, without spirit, listlessly.

gĕlĭdus, a, um, archaic f. gen. sing. gelidāi, Lucr., adj. [gelu], I. ice-cold, icy, frozen, frosty, chill, chilly, cooled, cool. As subst. gĕlĭda, ae, f. (sc. aqua), iced water. II. stark, stiff (with fright, death, etc.), death-cold.

(1) gĕlo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. cause to freeze, congeal: gelata ficus, i.e. crystallized, candied. In pass., be frozen, freeze. 2. stiffen, numb, chill, freeze with fright, etc. B. (intrans.) freeze, become rigid.

(2) Gĕlo (Gĕlōn), ōnis, m. a son of Hiero, tyrant of Gela, and afterwards of Syracuse; died B.C. 478.

Gĕlōni, ōrum, m. pl. a Scythian nation, in the modern Ukraine. In sing. Gĕlōnus, i, m. collectively, the Gelonian (for the nation).

Gĕlōnus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Geloni, Gelonian.

Gĕlōus, a, um, adj. of or from Gela, Geloan.

gĕlum, i, and gĕlū, abl. sing. from obsol. gĕius, ūs, m. [root γαλ-, be bright; cf. γάλα, glacies], 1. icy coldness, cold, frost. 2. (fig.) the chill of death, old age, etc., coldness.

gemebundus, a, um, adj. [gemo], groaning, sighing.

gĕmellĭpăra, ae, f. adj. [gemellus; pario], twin-bearing: dea, i.e. Latona, as mother of Apollo and Diana.

gĕmellus, a, um, adj. [dim. geminus], I. twin-born, twin. As subst. gemellus, i, m. A. a twin-brother, twin. II. (meton.) 1. paired, double: legio, i.e. formed out of two legions which had not their full complement of men. 2. as like as twins, exactly matched.

gĕmĭnātio, ōnis, f. [gemino], a doubling.

gĕmĭnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from gemino, As adj. I. accumulative, double; of equal height, exactly corresponding.

gĕmino, āre, āvi, ātum, [geminus], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. made double, double, re double, reproduce, repeat. II. (meton.) pair, couple, unite, mate: non ut Serpentes avibus geminentur; non acuta Sic geminant Corybantes aera, bring together, clash. B. (intrans.) be double. Lucr.

gĕminus, a, um, adj. [?] root GAM-, unite; cf. γαμείν, γάμος], I. born at the same time, twin-brother, Castor; nec gemino bellum Troianum orditur ab ovo, from the two eggs (of Leda), i.e. from the birth of Helen. As subst. gĕmini, ōrum, m. pl. twins. II. (meton.) 1. double, paired, twofold, two in one; two in number, both; uniting two natures in one, of twofold growth or double form: nuptiae; tripodes, a pair of tripods; nares; Chiron, i.e. half man, half horse. 2. resembling, like, similar, corresponding.

gĕmisco, ĕre, [incept. gemo], intrans. v. begin to sigh.

gĕmĭtus, ūs, m. [gemo], 1. a sighing, sigh, groan, moan, lamentation, wailing. 2. a deep, hoarse, or hollow sound, roar, boom.

gemma, ae, f. I. a bud, an eye (of a plant). II. (meton.) 1. (from similarity) a precious stone, jewel, gem; often (poet.) a pearl. 2. (of things made of precious stones) (a) a jewelled cup or goblet; a cup cut from an onyx or agate, etc.; (b) a seal-ring, signet; (c) a spangle in a peacock's tail. 3. a pane of talc.

gemmātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from gemmo, set with precious stones, jewelled.

gemmĕus, a, um, adj. [gemma], I. of precious stones, set with precious stones, jewelled. II. (meton.) 1. jewel-shaped. 2. sparkling like a jewel, brilliant, spangled.

gemmi-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [gemma; fero], bearing, producing or containing precious stones; set with gems or jewels.

gemmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [gemma], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) 1. put forth buds, bud, bourgeon. II. 1. be adorned with precious stones, sparkle with gems or jewels (only in pres. part.). 2. (meton.) glitter like a jewel, sparkle, flash. B. (trans.) set or adorn with jewels (only in perf. pass. part.): gemmata monilia.

gĕmo, gĕmŭi, gĕmĭtum, [akin to γέμω, be full], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. sigh, groan, wail, moan. II. (meton.) 1. utter a plaintive or mournful cry; coo, hoot. 2. groan, creak. B. (trans.) groan or sigh over, bewail, lament, deplore.

Gĕmŏnĭae Scalae, or absol. Gĕmŏnĭae, ārum, f. pl. [gemo], the Steps of Sighs; a flight of stairs, from the Capitol to the Forum, near the Mamertine Prison, on which the bodies of criminals were exposed gĕna, ae, f., more often pl. gĕnae, ārum, [akin to γένυς, the under jaw], I. a cheek; pl. the cheeks. II. (meton.) 1. an eyelid. 2. (pl.) (a) the sockets of the eyes: expilatque genis oculos; (b) the eyeballs, eyes.

Genăbensis (Cen-), e, adj. of Genabum. As subst. m. pl. the men of Genabum.

Genăbum (Cen-), i, n. the chief city of the Carnutes, now Orleans, twin-brother, Castor; nec gemino bellum Troianum orditur ab ovo, from the two eggs (of Leda), i.e. from the birth of Helen. As subst. gĕmini, ōrum, m. pl. twins. II. (meton.) 1. double, paired, twofold, two in one; two in number, both; uniting two natures in one, of twofold growth or double form: nuptiae; tripodes, a pair of tripods; nares; Chiron, i.e. half man, half horse. 2. resembling, like, similar, corresponding.

gĕmisco, ĕre, [incept. gemo], intrans. v. begin to sigh.

gĕmĭtus, ūs, m. [gemo], 1. a sighing, sigh, groan, moan, lamentation, wailing. 2. a deep, hoarse, or hollow sound, roar, boom.

gemma, ae, f. I. a bud, an eye (of a plant). II. (meton.) 1. (from similarity) a precious stone, jewel, gem; often (poet.) a pearl. 2. (of things made of precious stones) (a) a jewelled cup or goblet; a cup cut from an onyx or agate, etc.; (b) a seal-ring, signet; (c) a spangle in a peacock's tail. 3. a pane of talc.

gemmātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from gemmo, set with precious stones, jewelled.

gemmĕus, a, um, adj. [gemma], I. of precious stones, set with precious stones, jewelled. II. (meton.) 1. jewel-shaped. 2. sparkling like a jewel, brilliant, spangled.

gemmi-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [gemma; fero], bearing, producing or containing precious stones; set with gems or jewels.

gemmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [gemma], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. put forth buds, bud, bourgeon. II. 1. be adorned with precious stones, sparkle with gems or jewels (only in pres. part.). 2. (meton.) glitter like a jewel, sparkle, flash. B. (trans.) set or adorn with jewels (only in perf. pass. part.): gemmata monilia.

gĕmo, gĕmŭi, gĕmĭtum, [akin to γέμω, be full], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. sigh, groan, wail, moan. II. (meton.) 1. utter a plaintive or mournful cry; coo, hoot. 2. groan, creak. B. (trans.) groan or sigh over, bewail, lament, deplore.

Gĕmŏnĭae Scalae, or absol. Gĕmŏnĭae, ārum, f. pl. [gemo], the Steps of Sighs; a flight of stairs, from the Capitol to the Forum, near the Mamertine Prison, on which the bodies of criminals were exposed gĕna, ae, f., more often pl. gĕnae, ārum, [akin to γένυς, the under jaw], I. a cheek; pl. the cheeks. II. (meton.) 1. an eyelid. 2. (pl.) (a) the sockets of the eyes: expilatque genis oculos; (b) the eyeballs, eyes.

Genăbensis (Cen-), e, adj. of Genabum. As subst. m. pl. the men of Genabum.

Genăbum (Cen-), i, n. the chief city of the Carnutes, now Orleans, Gĕnauni, ōrum, m. pl. a Rhaetian tribe, neighbours of the Breuni, in the modern Tyrol.

Gĕnāva (Gĕnēva), ae, f. a city of the Allobroges, at the outlet of Lake Leman, now Geneva.

† gĕnĕālŏgus, i, m. [γενεαλόγος], a genealogist, chronicler.

gĕnĕr, ĕri, m. [? akin to γαμβρός; root GAM-, unite; cf. geminus. Curtius, 547], I. a daughter's husband, son-in-law; sts. a proposed son-in-law, daughter's betrothed or suitor. II. (meton.) 1. = progener, the husband of a grand-daughter. 2. a sister's husband, brother-in-law. 3. a daughter's paramour.

gĕnĕrālis, e, adj. [genus], I. of or belonging to a kind or class, generic. II. of or relating to all, universal, general: generale quoddam decorum.

gĕnĕrālĭtĕr, adv. [generalis], in general, universally, generally.

gĕnĕrasco, ĕre, [incept. genero], intrans. v. be generated, produced.

gĕnĕrātim, adv. [genus], I. by kinds, classes, or races; by tribes; according to kinds, classes, etc.; severally: proprios generatim discite cultus, the culture of each tree after its kind. II. generally, in general.

gĕnĕrātor, ōris, m. [genero], a generator, producer, breeder.

gĕnĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [genus], trans. v. I. engender, beget, procreate, produce, breed, raise, create, make; in pass., be born, descended from, spring from. II. (fig.) produce, bring forth.

gĕnĕrōsē, adv. [generosus], nobly. Compar. generosius.

gĕnĕrōsus, a, um, adj. [genus], I. of good or noble birth, high-born, noble. II. (meton.) good of its kind, of a good stock, well-bred, superior, choice, excellent, first-rate, first-class; generous, rich. III. (fig.) noble-minded, brave, chivalrous; dignified, honourable, ennobling. Compar. generosior; superl. generosissimus.

† gĕnĕsis, is, f. [γένεσις], I. generation, birth, creation. II. (meton.) a man's natal star, nativity, horoscope.

gĕnesta (gĕnista), ae, f. broom, a small fragrant shrub with bright yellow flowers.

gĕnĭtīvus (gĕnĭt-), a, um, adj. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. of or belonging to generation or birth; natural, inborn, innate, native, original: notae, birth-marks: nomina, belonging to a gens, the gentile or clan name. II. in gram., with or without casus, the genitive case.

gĕnĭtrix (gĕnĭt-), trīcis, f. [genitor], I. she that has borne or produced, a mother: deûm, i.e. Cybele, also called Magna Mater; frugum, i.e. Ceres. II. (poet.) a mother-in-law.

Gĕnĕva, ae. See Genava.

gĕnĭālis, e, adj. [Genius], I. of or belonging to the Genius of the family, or relating to his worship:

couch, sacred to the Genius of the bridal pair, and placed in the atrium; torus; pulvinar (of a deity); hence, bridal, nuptial: ducunatur raptae, genialis praeda, puellae. II. cheerful, festival, jovial, devoted to joy, joyous, festal, merry, as the rites of the Genius were of a festive nature: genialis agatur Iste dies.

gĕnĭālĭtĕr, adv. [genialis], festively, jovially, with good cheer.

gĕnĭcŭlātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [geniculum], lit. with knees; 1. bended, curved. 2. knotted, jointed.

gĕnĭcŭlum, i, n. [dim. genu], I. a little knee, knee. II. (meton.) the joint or knot of plant.

gĕnĭsta, ae. See genesta.

gĕnĭtābĭlis, e, adj. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], generative, birth-favouring.

gĕnĭtālis, e, adj. [id.], of or belonging to birth or generation, generative, fertilising, fruitful, reproductive, genital; life-giving, elemental; natal: dies, a birthday. As subst. Gĕnĭtālis, is, f. a title of Diana, as presiding over births, 'birth-goddess.' gĕnĭtālĭtĕr, adv. [genitalis], in a generative or fertilising manner, so as to be reproductive.

gĕnĭtīvus, a, um. See genet-.

gĕnĭtor, ōris, m. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. a begetter, parent, father, sire, creator. II. (fig.) parent, source: usus.

gĕnĭtrix, trĭcis. See genet-.

gĕnĭtūra, ae, f. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. a begetting, generation, birth. II. (meton.) in astrology, one's natal star or constellation, nativity.

gĕnĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from gigno, begotten, engendered; with abl. of origin, sprung or descended from, child of. Also with prepp. ab, de, ex.

gĕnius, ii, m. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. 1. the tutelary deity of a person or place; esp. the genius or 'life spirit,' who is born with every mortal, shares his joys and sorrows, watches over him, and dies with him; a kind of guardian angel; one's second self; hence, (as the genius was associated with good living, being worshipped on birthdays and other festal occasions,) genio indulgere genium, make merry, make one's self comfortable, treat or enjoy one's self; acceptus geniis, welcome to the geniuses, i.e. the season of jolly good fellows; genium suum defrudare, to stint one's self. Every palace had its genius, or guardian Spirit, represented in the form of a serpent. Cf. Virg. Ae. v. 95. Hence, two snakes were painted as a notice to 'commit no nuisance.' 2. like Gk. δαίμων, and often, apparently,= Lar; a spirit; a divine influence, divinity: patris; ducis, i.e. imperatoris: Famae. II. 1. the spirit of mirth and good fellowship, the part of man which enjoys; fondness for good things, conviviality. 2. a term used by parasites for entertainer, host, patron. III. mental powers, talent, wit, genius.

gĕno, ĕre, old form of gigno, q.v.

Gĕnŏsus, i. See Genusus.

gens, gentis, f. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. a race, consisting of several families claiming a common ancestor, and united by a common name and by common religious rites; a clan. The gentes were originally subdivisions of the patrician or ancient tribes, from which the senators were chosen. Tarquinius Priscus added senators, who were called 'patres minorum gentium,' as distinguished from the original body, who were called 'patres maiorum gentium. See Dict. Ant. senatus. Hence, to have a gens and to be a patrician were synonymous; to be 'sine gente,' was to be a man of no family, a novus homo, a parvenu; and Cic. calls Cleanthes, quasi maiorum gentium Stoicus, a Stoic, if one may so say, of the noblest extraction. In offspring, the children of the senators came the classification of the gods as di maiorum gentium, the superior deities, 12 in number, and di minorum gentium, the inferior deities. II. (meton.) 1. a single descendant of a race, an offspring, issue. 2. a tribe, brood, crew, gang. 3. a breed, species, herd, race (of animals). 4. a stock, race, people, to which several tribes (nationes) may belong. In pl. often, the peoples or nations of the world, mankind. Often in partic. gen. gentium, with advv. of place, ubi, ubinam, nusquam, etc., in the world, on earth; hence, minime gentium, by no manner of means, not for all the world. Ius gentium, usage common to mankind, the practice of mankind, universal usage, ordinary custom. 5. in pl. sts. foreign nations: nec gentibus ullis commodat . . . Invidiam Fortuna suam. 6. a region, country; sts. the people of a particular region or town. 7. (poet.) an age, generation: aurea.

gentīcus, a, um, adj. [gens], of or belonging to a nation, national.

gentĭlĭcius (-tĭus), a, um, adj. [gentilis], I. of or belonging to a particular gens or clan, family. 2. of a particular nation, national.

gentilis, e, adj. [gens], I. of or belonging to the same gens, clan, house, family, stock, race, or species; family: gentiles sumunt arma professa manus, the warriors of one clan, i.e. the Fabii. As subst. gentilis, is, m. f. a person belonging to the same gens or clan; a kinsman, namesake. II. of the same nation, of one's own nation or people, national: tympana; solum, one's fatherland; nationes, the tribes of one's own people.

gentīlĭtas, ātis, f. [gentilis], gentile relationship, kindred of clan.

gĕnu, ūs, n. (in neut. nom. acc. sing. genus, Cic.): pl. genua, in Virg. dissyll. as if genva; dat. and abl. genibus and genubus, [akin to γόνυ], I. the knee: nixi genibus, i.e. kneeling, on bended knees; genibus minor, lower by his knees, i.e. a suppliant; ponere genua, to bow the knee, courtesy. II. (meton.) a knot, joint (of plants).

Gĕnŭa, ae, f. a port of Liguria, now Genoa.

gĕnŭālia, ĭum, n. pl. [genu], garters.

(1) gĕnŭīnus, a, um, adj. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. innate, native, natural. 2. genuine.

(2) gĕnŭīnus, a, um, adj. [genae], of or belonging to the cheek or jaw: dentes, jaw teeth. As subst. gĕnŭīnus, i, m. (sc. dens) a jaw-tooth, grinder. Prov. genuinum fregere in aliquo, to break one's jaw-tooth on somebody, i.e. chaw him up (in satire).

(1) gĕnŭs, gĕnĕris, n. [root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. 1. birth, descent, origin. 2. birth, i.e. high or noble birth; family, lineage, descent. II. (meton.) 1. (concr.) offspring, progeny; a descendant, child; descendants, posterity, generation, race. 2. a race, class, profession, species, stock, sort, kind, tribe, breed: humanum, the human race, mankind. 3. (of things) sort, kind, description, character, nature, method, style: hoc in genere, in a thing or case of this kind: hoc genus iocorum, sorts of this kind. In acc. in apposition, for eius, huius, cuius, omnis generis, etc., of that (this, which, every) kind or description: scis me antea orationes aut aliquid id genus solitum scribere; concrebrare nugas Hoc genus; quod genus, as for instance, Lucr. 4. =res or aliquid: de hoc genere toto pauca cognosce, on this whole subject: in omni genere diligens, in every respect, in everything; qui in aliquo genere aut incocuimus aut multus est, in some way or other; in isto genere, in that respect, in that particular. 5. (philos. techn. t. opp. to partes) a general term, (logical) genus. 6. in Phaedrus; style of writing or composition: fabularum, the kind of literature called fables: Aesopi, kind of writing practised by Aesop, Aesop's compositions, i.e. his fables.

(2) gĕnus, ūs, the knee. See genu.

Gĕnūsus (Gĕnŏ-), i, m. a river of Greek Illyria.

‡ gēōgrăphĭa, ae, f. [γεωγραφία], geography.

‡ gēōgrăphĭcus, a, um, adj. [γεωγραφικός], geographical.

‡ gēōmĕtres, ae, (-a, ae), m. [γεωμέτρης], a geometrician, mathematician.

‡ gēōmĕtrĭa, ae, f. [γεωμετρια], geometry.

‡ gēōmĕtrĭcus, a, um, adj. [γεωμετρικός], of or belonging to geometry, geometrical. As subst. (a) gēōmĕtrĭcus, i, m. a geometrician; (b) gēōmĕtrĭca, ōrum, n. pl. geometry.

‡ gēōrgĭcus, a, um, adj. [γεωργικός], of or belonging to husbandry, agricultural: carmen, i.e. the Georgics of Virgil. As subst. Geōrgica, ōn (Gk. gen.), the Georgics of Virgil, a didactic poem on farming in four books.

Gēraestus, i, m. a promontory and harbour in the S. of Euboea.

gērens, ntis, part. from gero. As adj. managing, conducting, able to conduct: with gen.; negotii.

Gergŏvĭa, ae, f. 1. a town of the Arverni, in Gaul, perhaps Clermont. 2. (?) a town of the Boii.

germānē, adv. [(1) germanus], faithfully, straightforwardly.

Germāni, ōrum. See (2) Germanus.

Germānĭa, ae, f. Germany, the country of the Germani, including the whole country between the Rhine, the Danube, the Vistula, and the sea. Divided into Germania Transrhenana (east of the Rhine) or Germany proper, and Germania Cisrhenana (west of the Rhine), consisting of the Provinces of Upper and Lower Germania (Germania Prima and Secunda).

Germānĭcĭānus, a, um, adj. stationed or serving in Germany. As subst. m. pl. soldiers on service in Germany.

Germānĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Germans, Germanic, German. As subst. Germānĭcus, i, m. 1. a title given for his victories over the Germans to the son of Nero Claudius Drusus, the nephew and adopted son of Tiberius. To him Ovid dedicated his second edition of the Fasti. The same title was assumed for real or supposed German victories by Roman emperors, e.g. Domitian and Trajan. Hence, Calendae Germanicae, i.e. the 1st of September, on which this name was imposed by Caligula and Domitian. 2. (sc. nummus) a gold coin of Domitian's or Trajan's reign: scripto radiat Germanicus auro. Cf. a louis d'or, a napoleon, etc.

germānĭtas, ātis, f. [(1) germanus], 1. brotherhood, sisterhood. II. (meton.) the relationship of colonies of one parent city.

(1) germānus, a, um, adj. [? akin to germen], I. of brothers and sisters who have the same parents, or at least the same father; of the full blood, full, own; of the same stock, akin. As subst. (a) germānus, i, m. an own or full brother, a brother; (b) germāna, ae, f. an own or full sister, a sister. II. (meton.) 1. of or belonging to brothers or sisters; brotherly, sisterly. 2. genuine, actual, real, true, out and out, unadulterated, regular, 'par excellence,' thorough. Super. germanissimus.

(2) Germānus, i, m. [? Keltic gairmean, one who shouts; from gairm, a warcry; or = Wehrmann, war-man, warrior], a German. In pl. m. the Germans, the people of ancient Germany.

(3) Germānus, a, um, adj. [(2) Germanus], German, Germanic.

germen, ĭnis, n. [? Sanscr. grabh-, conceive; cf. garbhas, embryo], I. a bud, shoot, offshoot, sprout. II. (meton.) 1. produce, fruit: auctumni; cara maris, i.e. pearls; frontis, i.e. a horn. 2. a germ of animal life, foetus, embryo: impleratque uterum generoso germine. 3. offspring, issue, child. III. (fig.) a germ, origin.

(1) gĕro, gĕrĕre, gessi, gestum, for gēso, make to come or go; [root ga-, go; cf. Gk. βα-, βιβάζω, βαίνω], trans. v. I. 1. bear, carry, wield, wear, have about one. 2. bear, carry, bring. 3. bear, bring forth, produce. II. (fig.) A. 1. have, bear, entertain, cherish, display: animum fortem; inimicitias; nomen decusque. possess, enjoy: curam, exercise; personam, sustain a character. 2. Gerere se, to bear, comport, behave, or conduct one's-self, act. 3. gerere aliquem, to behave as any one, give one's-self the dire of any one, play the part of: cinerem hahemque. 4. deal with, treat, behave towards, conduct: se et exercitum. Sall. 5. Pro aliquo se gerere, to give one's-self out to be, profess to be a person. 6. Prae se aliquid gerere, show, exhibit, manifest. B. 1. administer, manage, carry on, discharge, transact, perform, achieve, do; pass. be done, go on, take place, happen: rem publicam; consulatum, hold the consulship, fill the office of consul; bellum, wage war; res domi, work, operate, carry on operations; rem bene gerere, operate successfully; res gerere, to carry on affairs of state, administer public business. Sts. without obj. acc. 2. Morem gerere alicui, to humour a person, comply with his wishes, let him have his own way, gratify or indulge him. 3. (of time) pass, spend.

(2) gĕro, ōnis, m. [(1) gero], a carrier, abductor.

‡ gerrae, ārum, f. pl. [γέρρα, wicker-work], trifles, trumpery, nonsense.

gerres, is, m. a small pickled fish of inferior quality; ? a pilchard, sardine, sprat.

gerro, ōnis, m. [gerrae], a trifler, loafer.

gĕrŭlus, i, m. [(1) gero], a bearer, carrier, porter, hodman.

‡ gĕrŭsĭa, ae, f. [γερουσία], an old man's retreat.

Gēryŏn, ōnis, and Gēryŏnēs, ae, m. a mythic king of Spain, a monster with three bodies, whose oxen Hercules carried off.

gestāmen, ĭnis, n. [gesto], 1. that which is worn, wielded, or carried, an ornament, equipment, accoutrement; a burden, load. 2. that which serves to carry or convey, a carriage, vehicle: lecticae (sellae), the litter or sedan-chair in which one is carried; conti, the service, office, instrumentality.

gestātĭo, ōnis, f. (id.), A. (active) a bearing, carrying. B. (passive) I. a being borne or carried, a riding, driving, sailing, etc., for pleasure. II. (meton.) a covered terrace or portico in which rich people drove or were carried in litters, a promenade.

gestātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. a bearer, carrier. 2. one who is carried, i.e. a person who takes a carriage drive,' carriage folk.'

gestātōrius, a, um, adj. [id.], that serves for carrying: sella, a sedan-chair, palanquin.

gestātrix, tricis, f. [gestator], she that bears or carries.

gesticŭlārĭa, ae, f. [cf. gesticulor], a pantomimic actress.

gesticŭlātĭo, ōnis, f. [gesticulor], pantomimic action, gesticulation.

gesticŭlor, āri, ātus sum [gesticulus; dim. of (2) gestus] intrans. and treus. dep. A. (in trans.) make pantomimic gestures gesticulate. B. (trans.) represen in pantomime.

(1) gestĭo, ōnis, f. [gero], a doing, performing, management.

(2) gestĭo, īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, [(2) gestus], intrans. v. 1. use passionate gestures, be wild with joy, be transported, be on the 'qui vive,' exult, be joyful, cheerful; with abl.: laetitia. II. 1. desire eagerly or passionately, long mostly with infin.: divitum Partes linquere gestio. 2. (poet.) with abl.: disport one's-self, take passionate delight in, revel in: studio lavandi.

gestĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. gesto], trans. v. wear or carry often, carry habitually.

gesto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. gero], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. 1. bear, carry, wield, wear, have, possess. II. in pass., be carried about, ride, drive, sail, etc., take the air. III. (fig.) 1. bear or carry in one's heart: hicine non gestandus in sinu est? i.e. is he not to be most fondly cherished? 2. carry abroad, tell. B. (intrans.) take a ride, drive, cruise, etc., take the air.

gestor, ōris, m. [gero], a talebearer.

gestŭōsus, a, um, adj. [(2) gestus], full of action or gesture.

(1) gestus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from gero, achieved, done: res gesta, a transaction, proceeding: rem gestam in Eburonibus perscribit, writes a full account of what had been done, what had transpired; res male gesta, ill success; res bene gesta, a successful operation, success; res gestae, f. pl., or gesta, ōrum, n. pl., great deeds, achievements, exploits, operations; a captivigin; sta. res gestae, public events or occurrences, facts of history; rerum gestarum memoria, a record of historical facts, i.e. history.

(2) gestus, ūs, m. [gero], 1. the bearing of the body or the limbs; carriage, posture, gait, attitude, motion, gesture, action. 2. oratorical or theatrical action, gesticulation.

gēsum, i, n. See gaesum.

(1) Gēta, ae, and Gētes, ae, m. a Getan. The Getae or Goths were a Thracian nation on the Danube, closely connected by Roman writers with the Daci.

(2) Gĕta, ae, m. 1. a Roman cognomen. 2. a slave's name.

Gĕtēs, æ, m. a Getan. Sts. in app.=adj. : poeta.

Gĕtĭcē, adv. [Geticus], like the Getae.

Gĕtĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Getae, Getan; (meton.) Thracian: lyra, i.e. of Orpheus; volucres, i.e. swallows. See Progne.

Gĕtūlla, Gĕtūlus, etc. See Gaet-.

gibbĕr, ĕra, ĕrum adj.=gibbus.

gibbus, a, um, adj. hunched, humped, crook-backed, hump-backed. As subst., 1. gibbus, i, m. a hump, hunch. 2. gibba, ae, f. a hump, hunch.

Gigantĕus, a, um, adj. [Gigas], of or belonging to the giants: ora litoris, i.e. the Campi Phlegraei, the volcanic region round Cumae, the scene of the war of the Giants with the Gods; bellum, waged with the Giants.

‡ Gigās, antis, m. [Γίγας], a Giant. More often pl. Gigantēs, um, m. the Giants, mythic sons of Tartarus and Terra.

gignens, ntis, part. from gigno. As subst. gignentĭa, ĭum, n. pl. growing things, things that have the principle of growth; vegetable life, vegetation.

gignĭor, old pres. infin. pass. from gigno.

gigno, ĕre, gĕnŭi, gĕnĭtum, (old form gĕno, ĕre, of which it is a reduplicated form), [for gen-o : whence ge-gen-o, gi-gen-o, gigno; root GEN-; Sanscr. GAN-; GK. γεγ-; cf. γίγνομαι, γένος; genius, gens, genus], trans. v. beget, engender, bring into the world, produce, be a father or mother; (fig.) bring forth, occasion, cause, create. In pass., be born, spring, arise, proceed.

gilbus, more often gilvus, a, um, adj. [German gelb, yellow], light chestnut, cream-coloured, (f) dun: equus.

Gindes. See Gyndes.

gingīva, ae, f. a gum of the teeth.

‡ ginnus, i, m. [γίννος], a tiny mule. Cf. hinnus.

glăber, glăbra (glābra), glăbrum (glābrum), adj. [root γλαφ-; cf. γλαφυρός], without hair or wool, smooth, bald. As subst. m. a beardless young slave, a Ganymede.

Glabrĭo, ōnis, m. [glaber], a Roman name. Cf. Acilius.

glăcĭālis, e, adj. [glacies], icy, frozen, frosty, cold.

glăcĭēs, ēi, f. I. ice, frost, cold. II. (meton.)= hardness: aeris. Lucr.

glăcĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [glacies], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) I. turn into ice, freeze: pass. congeal, freeze. II. (fig.) harden. B. (intrans.) become hard.

glădĭātor, ōris, m. [gladius], I. a swordsman, gladiator, prize-fighter. See Rich, Dict. Ant. II. (meton. in pl.) a gladiatorial show: gladiatores dare or edere; gladiatoribus (abl. of time when), at the gladiator show,=ludis gladiatoriis. III. a cut-throat, bravo, carbonaro.

glădĭātōrĭus, a, um, adj. [gladiator], of or belonging to gladiators, gladiatorial: familia, a troop or corps of gladiators; consessus an assembly for the purpose of witnessing a gladiator show. As subst. glădĭātōrĭum, ĭi, n. [sc. praemium, auctoramentum], the pay or wages of a gladiator, given to freeborn persons who hired themselves to fight.

glădĭātūra, ae, f. [id.], the profession of a gladiator, prize-fighting.

glădĭŏlus, i, m. [dim. gladius], a small sword.

glădĭus, ĭi, m. [?akin to clades], I. a sword, glaive. Prov. (a) suo sibi hunc gladio iugulo, I despatch him with his own weapon, i.e. it is 'Diamond cut diamond;' (b) plumbeo gladio iugulari, i.e. with but little ado; (c) ignem gladio scrutari, (cf. Gk. prov. πῦρ μαχαίρᾳ μὴ σκαλεύειν), to poke the fire with the sword, i.e. stir up one passion by another, jealousy by love. Hor. II. (meton.) 1. murder, death, killing. 2. a gladiatorial combat. 3. a ploughshare. 4. a sword-fish.

glaeba (not glēba), ae, f. I. a clod or lump of earth, sod. II. 1. soil, land. 2. (poet.) a turf altar: molles ornate focos glaebamque virentem. 3. a piece, lump: picis.

glaebŭla (not glēbŭla), ae, f. [dim. glaeba], I. a small clod or lump of earth. II. (meton.) 1. a small farm, a paltry holding. 2. a small piece, a bit of anything.

glaesum (glēsum, glessum), i, n. [German Glas; gleissen, to shine], amber.

glandĭ-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [glans; fero], acorn-bearing.

glandĭum, ĭi, n. [glans], a delicate kernel in meat, a dainty bit.

glandŭlae, ārum, f. pl. [dim. glans], I. the glands of the throat. II. kernels in brawn, tit-bits.

glans, glandis, f. I. 1. an acorn; (poet.) collectively, acorns. 2. any acorn-shaped fruit, a nut, beechnut, chestnut, etc. II. (meton.) a ball of lead or clay for shooting, a bullet, slug.

glārĕa, ae, f. gravel.

glārĕōsus, a, um, adj. [glarea], full of gravel, gravelly.

‡ glaucēum, i, n. [γλαύκειον], celandine.

‡ (?) glaucĭna, ōrum, n. pl. [γλαύκινα], celandine ointment. It was little valued if of a pale colour.

‡ glaucĭŏn, ĭi, n. [γλαύκιον], the plant celandine.

‡ glaucōma, ātis, n., also -a, ae, f. [γλαύκωμα], cataract of the eye.

‡ glaucōpis, ĭdis, f. [γλαυκῶπις, epith. of Athene], (poet.) an owl.

‡ (1) glaucus, a, um, adj. [γλαυκός, bluish grey], 1. bluish grey, silver-grey, bluish green, blue, sea-green: salix; equus. It is one of the conventional colours of water-deities and their belongings. 2. (of the eyes) stern, gleaming, glaring; sternness of expression being associated with eyes of a blue-grey colour.

(2) Glaucus, i, m. 1. a son of Sisyphus, torn in pieces by his own horses. 2. a fisherman of Anthēdon, in Boeotia, changed into a merman; hence, Glauci chorus, the sea-nymphs. Deiphobe, the Cumaean Sibyl, was said to be his daughter. 3. a friend of Diomedes, leader of the Lycians in the Trojan war.

glēba, glēbŭla. See glaeglēsum, i. See glaesum.

glīs, glīris, m. a dormouse; a delicacy with the Romans. Also used as a specific remedy for paralysis.

glisco, ĕre, [deriv. dub.], intrans. v. lit. swell with heat; I. swell, blaze up, grow, burst forth. II. (fig.) 1. grow rapidly, increase, swell, spread, be rife. 2. burn with desire; exult.

glŏbo, āre, āvi, ātum, [globus], trans. v. I. make round or spherical. II. heap together, mass.

glŏbōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], round as a ball, spherical.

glŏbus, i, m. [akin to glomus], I. a round body, ball, sphere, globe: Lunae, orb. II. (meton.) 1. a globular mass, fruit: fiammarum, a fire-ball. 2. a troop, crowd, band, throng, swarm, mass, group; ring, gang, clique; a volume, cloud (of dust); a retinue, body-guard.

glŏmĕrābĭlis, e, adj. [glomero], rounded, round.

glŏmĕrāmen, ĭnis, n. [id.], a round body, ball, clew, mass; a round particle, drop, atom.

glŏmĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, [glomus], trans. v. I. form into a ball, gather into a round heap or mass, wind up or together, roll up, gather: (of a horse) gressus glomerare superbos, gather up his proud paces, i.e. curvet proudly along, or (?) canter with high and showy action. II. (meton.) gather into a knot, collect into a body or mass, crowd, huddle, assemble together; roll on, send in volleys Glomerare se, or pass. reflex., gather, assemble, throng. III. (fig.) roll together, revolve.

glŏmus (glŏmus, Lucr.), ōris, n. a ball or clew of thread, etc.; a bale.

glōria, ae, f. [root KLU-; cf. κλύω, κλέος for κλεFος; cluo, inclutus], I. glory, renown, fame, reputation. II. (meton.) I. vainglory, obtrusiveness, ambition, pride, vaunting, boasting. 2. the glory, pride, ornament: Procas, Troianae gloria gentis. 3. (in pl.) glorious deeds, successes: gloriae triumphique. Sall.: memorare veteres Gallorum glorias. Tac.

glorĭātĭo, ōnis, f. [glorior], a glorying, boasting, exulting.

glōrĭŏla, ae, f. [dim. gloria], a little glory, modest glory.

glōrĭor, āri, ātus sum, [gloria], intrans. v. boast one's-self, boast, glory, vaunt, brag; sts. with cogn. acc. of neuter pron. : idem gloriari quod Cyrus ; with abl., or prepp. in, de ; glory in, pride one's-self on, boast of.

glōrĭōsē, adv. [gloriosus], 1. gloriously, famously, with 'éclat.' 2. boastfully, vauntingly. Compar. gloriosius ; superl. gloriosissime.

glōrĭōsus, a, um, adj. [gloria], 1. full of glory, famous, renowned, glorious, reputable, fine. II. 1. vain-glorious, arrogant, proud, boastful, bragging, pompous, ostentatious, obtrusive. 2. eager for glory, ambitious. Compar. gloriosior ; superl. gloriosissimus.

glossārĭum, ĭi, n. [glossa = γλῶσσα, an obsolete or foreign word needing explanation], a vocabulary of obsolete or foreign words, a glossary.

‡ glossēma, ātis, n. [γλώσσημα], an obsolete or foreign word needing explanation.

glūbo, ĕre, psi, ptum, [γλύφω], trans. v. strip of bark, peel.

glūo, ĕre, trans. v. draw together.

glūten, ĭnis, n. [gluo], glue, cement ; gum, resin ; the substance technically called propolis, bee-glue.

glūtĭnātor, ōris, m. [glutino], one who glues together ; a book-binder.

glūtĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, [gluten], trans. v. I. glue or fasten together. II. (in medicine) close up, join.

glūtĭo (gluttĭo), īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, (Sanscr. root GAR-, swallow ; Gk. βορ-, cf. βορά, βιβρώσκω ; Lat. vor- (for gvor), voro, vorax ; hence, gur-, gul-, glu- ; cf. gurges, gula, ingluvies), trans. v. swallow or gulp down.

glūto (glutto), ōnis, m. [glutio], a glutton.

‡ Glўcĕra, ae, f. [γλυκερά], a female name.

Glўcĕrĭum, ĭi, f. the name of a female character in Terence's Andria.

Glўcōn (Glўco), ōnis, m. a Greek name. 1. a famous athlete. 2. a physician.

Gnaeus (Gnēus, Cnaeus), i, m. a Roman praenomen.

gnārūrus, e, adj. = gnarus.

gnārus (nārus), a, um, adj. [Sanscr. root GAN-, GNA-, know ; cf. γιγνώσκω ; narro], I. knowing in anything, practised, expert, skilful, learned ; with gen. : reipublicae. II. (passive) known, familiar. Tac.

Gnătho, ōnis, m. the name of a parasite in Terence's Eunuchus ; hence, (meton.) a parasite.

Gnăthōnĭci, ōrum, m. pl. disciples of Gnatho, Gnathonics, i.e. parasites.

Gnātĭa, ae, f. = Egnatia.

gnātus, a, um, perf. part. of (g)nascor. See natus, nascor.

gnāvē, gnāvĭtas, gnāvĭter, gnāvus. See nave, etc.

Gnēus, i, m. See Gnaeus.

Gnĭdĭus (Cnĭd-), a, um, adj. of or from Gnidos, Gnidian. As subst., m. pl. the men of Gnidos.

Gnĭdŏs (Gnĭdus) (Cnĭd-), i, f. a town of Caria with a famous statue of Venus by Praxiteles.

gnōbĭlis, gnosco. See nobilis, nosco.

Gnōsĭăcus (Gnoss-, Cnōs-, Cnoss-), a, um, adj. = Gnosius.

Gnōsĭăs (Gnoss-, Cnōs-, Cnoss-), ădis, f. adj. Gnosian, Cretan. As subst. f. (sc. puella), the Gnosian or Cretan maid, i.e. Ariadne.

Gnōsis (Gnoss-, Cnōs-, Cnoss-), ĭdis, f. adj. = Gnosias.

Gnōsĭus (Gnoss-, Cnos-, Cnoss-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Gnosus, Gnosian ; (poet.) Cretan ; sts. of or belonging to Minos or Ariadne. As subst. (a) Gnōsĭa, ae, f. the Gnosian or Cretan maiden, i.e. Ariadne ; (b) Gnōsĭi, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Gnosus, Gnosians.

Gnōsŏs or Gnōsus (Gnoss-, Cnōs-, Cnoss-), i, f. the ancient capital of Crete, the residence of Minos and Ariadne.

gnōtus, a, um. See nosco.

‡ gōbĭo (cŏb-), ōnis, and gōbius, ĭi, m. [κωβιός], a gudgeon.

Golgi, ōrum, m. pl. a town of Cyprus, where Venus was worshipped.

Gomphenses, ĭum, m. pl. the men of Gomphi.

Gomphi, ōrum, m. pl. a fortress town in Thessaly.

‡ gomphus, i, m. [γόμφος], 1. a wedge-shaped peg or pin. 2. a wedge-shaped stone used in paving. See Rich, Dict. Ant.

gonger, gri. See conger.

Gordĭum, ĭi, n. the ancient capital of Phrygia, famous for the 'Gordian Knot.'

(1) Gordĭus, ĭi, m. an ancient king of Phrygia and father of Midas. On his chariot was a curious and difficult knot, and an oracle declared that whosoever should untie the knot should be master of Asia. Alexander the Great cut the knot with his sword.

(2) Gordĭus, a, um, adj. Gordian.

Gorgō, ōs, f. a daughter of Oceneus, and sister of Meleager and Deianira ; she was changed into a bird.

Gorgĭas, ae, m. 1. a famous sophist and rhetorician of Leontini in Sicily. 2. an Athenian rhetorician who instructed Cicero's son.

Gorgō (-on), ŏnis, f. a Gorgon ; esp. Medusa, whose head Minerva placed in the centre of her aegis. In pl. Gorgŏnēs, um, f. the Gorgons, Stheno, Euryale, and Medusa, the three daughters of Phorcus and Ceto, monsters with snaky hair who turned all that looked upon them into stone.

Gorgŏnēus (Gergovĭa), ae, f. a city in the territory of the Aedui, founded by the Boii.

Gorgŏnĕus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Gorgons or Medusa, Gorgonean : equus (caballus), i.e. Pegasus, who sprang from Medusa's blood ; lacus, i.e. Hippocrene ; venena, i.e. like the venom of the snakes in Medusa's hair.

Gortўna, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. a city of Crete.

Gortўnĭăcus and Gortўnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Gortyna, Gortynian ; Cretan.

Gortўnis, ĭdis, f. adj. Gortynian ; Cretan.

‡ gōrўtus (-ŏs), also cōrўtus, i, m. [γωρυτός], a bow-case, quiver.

Gōthi, ōrum, m. pl. the Goths, a tribe of N. Germany, called at an earlier period Gŏthŏnes, Gŏtŏnes, or Gŭtŏnes.

Gōthĭni, ōrum, m. pl. a Celtic tribe who lived in what is now Silesia.

Gōthŏnes, Gōtŏnes, um. See Gothi.

‡ grăbātus, i, m. [κράβατος ; Macedonian word], a small or poor couch, pallet, truck-bed.

Gracchānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Gracchus ; of the Gracchan party.

Gracchus, i, m. a Roman sur name in the Sempronian gens. The most distinguished were the tribunes Ti. and C. Sempronius Gracchus, sons of Ti. Sempronius Gracchus and Cornelia, daughter of P. Scipio Africanus the elder. They were the authors of popular reforms, and were slain by the aristocracy.

grăcĭlis, e, adj. I. slender, slim, slight-shaped, thin. II. (meton.) small, narrow, meagre, lean, light, scanty, poor. III (fig.) 1. plain, simple, unadorned. 2. finished, elegant. Compar. gracilior ; superl. gracillimus.

grăcĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [gracilis], 1. slenderness, slimness, meagreness, leanness. 2. (of style) plainness, simplicity, want of ornament.

grăcĭlĭter, adv. [id.], 1. slenderly, thinly. 2. (of style) without ornament, simply. Compar. gracilius, with less ornament.

grăcĭlus, a, um, adj. a by-form of gracilis.

grăcŭlus (gracc-), i, m. a jackdaw.

grădārĭus, a, um, adj. [gradus], 1. of steps ; going step by step, pacing ; equus, i.e. ambling. 2. (fig.) of speaking ; deliberate.

grădātim, adv. [id.], step by step, by degrees, little by little, gradually.

grădātĭo, ōnis, f [id.], 1. a making steps ; a fight or series of steps. 2. (fig.) a progressive gradation, a climax in speaking.

grădātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [id.], furnished with steps ; (of trees) cut into steps.

grădĭor, grădi, gressus sum, intrans. dep. take steps, step, pace, Grădīvī-cōla, ae, m. [Gradivus; colo], a worshipper of Mars.

Grădīvus (Grădīvus once in Ov.), i, m. [gradior], lit. the Strider; a name of Mars.

grădus, ūs, m. I. 1. a step, pace, footfall, footstep: gradum facere, to take a step; gradum addere, to hasten; gradum conferre, to step or walk together, step in time; gradum conferre cum aliquo, to come to close quarters with, meet, encounter; ingentes gradus ferre, to take long steps or strides; pleno gradu, in quick march, at full pace; per gradus, step by step. 2. (fig.) a step, stage, degree, proceeding, advance, an action which occasions or is followed by another: notitiam primosque gradus vicinia fecit,=the first steps towards intimacy (by hendiadys); gradus reditūs mei, a step towards my return. II. (meton.) A. (milit. and gladiatorial techn. t.) station, position, posture, ground: tuto gradu up; in gradu stare, to stand one's ground, refuse to budge an inch; pallescere curis Incipis, et primo lapsus abire gradu, to quit the ring beaten at the first fall; hence (fig.) a firm footing or standing: de gradu deici (depelli), to be thrown from one's position, be thrown off one's guard, be disconcerted. B. 1. a rung of a ladder, a step, stair; pl. a flight of steps. 2. (meton.) (a) a braid of hair in ridges, a wave of hair crimped: coma in gradus formata, dressed to form frounces one above another; (b) a degree of a circle; Manil. (c) pl. the lines or wrinkles on the roof of a horse's mouth. 3. (fig.) a step, degree, grade, rank, stage, gradation, of kindred, honour, society, etc.

Graecānicus, a, um, adj. of Greek origin, fashion, or cut: toga, i.e. the pallium.

Graecē, adv. [Graecus], in the Greek language, in Greek.

Graeci, ōrum, m. pl. the Greeks.

Graecia, ae, f. the country of the Greeks, Greece. Magna Graecia, a name of Lower Italy, put for the Greek colonies in the South of Italy. Maior Graecia, (poet.)=Italy.

graecor, ārī, ātus sum, [Graecus], intrans. dep. live like the Greeks, imitate the Greek style of living.

‡ Graecostăsis, is, f. [Γραικόστασις, Greek station], the quarters in the Forum at Rome provided for foreign ambassadors, the Foreign Embassy.

Graecŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. Graecus], Grecian, Greek, mostly in a contemptuous sense. As subst. 1. Graecŭlus, i, m. a paltry Greek, Greekling; sts. (contemptuously) a mere bookworm, a wretched pedant. Cic. 2. Graecŭla, ae, f. a Greekling, i.e. an imitator of Greek fashions, etc.

(1) Graecus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to the Greeks, Greek, Grecian. Prov. Ad Kalendas Graecas, on the Greek Kalends, i.e. never, as the Greeks had no Kalends. As subst. Graecum, i, n. the Greek language, Greek. II. (meton.) from the Greek colonies; Eastern, Ionian: pantheae Cic.

(2) Graecus, i, m. a Greek.

Grāi (Grāi), ōrum (poet. Graiūm), m. pl. the Grecians, Greeks.

Graiocĕli, ōrum, m. pl. a people of the Alps, near Mont Cenis.

Grāiŭgĕna, ae, gen. pl. Graiugenūm, Virg., m. [Graius; gigno], a Grecian born, a Greek. Sts. (poet.) in apposition,=adj.

(1) Grāius, a, um, adj. of the Greeks, Greek, Grecian.

(2) Grāius, i, m. a Greek.

grāmen, ĭnis, n. [Sanscr. root GAR-, swallow], lit. the thing eaten. I. grass; a grass field, herbage, pasture. II. (meton.) a blade of grass or other herb; a herb, plant: cerinthae: Indum, i.e. costum.

grāmĭnĕus, a, um, adj. [gramen], I. of grass, covered with grass or herbage, grassy. II. of Indian reed, bamboo, cane: hastae.

grammătĭcē, adv. [grammaticus], according to the rules of grammar, grammatically.

‡ grammătĭcus, a, um, adj. [γραμματικός], of or belonging to grammar, grammatical: grammaticas ambire tribus, to curry favour with the tribes of pedants. As subst. 1. grammătĭcus, i, m. a grammarian, philologist, professor of literature. 2. grammătĭca, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. [γραμματική], grammar, philology. 3. grammătĭca, ōrum, n. pl. philology, the field of literature.

‡ grammătista, ae, m. [γραμματιστής], a grammar master, teacher of the elements of languages.

Grampĭus (Graup-), Mons, a range of mountains in the N. of Britain, the Grampian Hills.

grānārium, ĭi, n., mostly in pl. grānāria, ōrum, a granary, magazine, store; sts. a bin.

grandaevus, a, um, adj. [grandis; aevum], of great age, aged, old.

grandesco, ĕre, [grandis], intrans. incept. v. grow or become great, grow.

grandĭcŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. grandis], rather large, biggish: fere grandicula virgo, pretty well grown up.

grandi-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [grandis; fero], eminently fertile, productive.

grandi-lŏquus, a, um, adj. [grandis; loquor], speaking loftily, grandiloquent, boastful.

grandĭnat, [grando], unipers. v. it hails.

grandĭo, īre, [grandis], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) enlarge. B. (intrans.) grow, increase.

grandis, e, adj. I. 1. full-grown, large in size, bulky, great, big, fine, strapping, huge, tall, high: pecunia, a large sum of money. 2. (of persons) large in stature, tall, full grown. 3. of full age, grown up. 4. advanced in years, aged, old, in this sense often with aevo or natu. II. (fig.) 1. great, strong, powerful. 2. (of speaker or style) grand, noble, lofty, sublime, elevated. Neut.=adv.: grande loqui, to speak grandiloquently, utter bombast; nec plus Alcaeus . . . Laudis habet, quamvis grandius ille sonet, more sublimely. 3. haughty, disdainful: supercilium. C. par. grandior; superl. grandissimus.

granditas, ātis, f. [grandis], (fig.) an elevated style, grandeur, sublimity; verborum.

grandĭter, adv. [id.], greatly, strongly, largely, powerfully, loudly, sublimely. Compar. grandius.

grandiuscŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. grandis], pretty well grown up.

grando, ĭnis, f. [akin to χάλαζα; Sanscr. root GHRAD-; Gk. χραδ-, χλαδ-, sound, patter], I. hail; a hail-storm. (meton.) a storm, volley, shower: saxorum. III. (fig.) of powerful oratory, rattling eloquence: Ulixei.

Grānicus, i, m. a small river of Mysia, famed for the victory of Alexander the Great over the Persians (B.C. 334), and that of Lucullus over Mithridates (B.C. 73).

grāni-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [granum; fero], grain-bearing: agmen, i.e. ants.

grānum, i, n. [Sanscr. root, GAR-, run away, make small], a grain, seed, small kernel, pip, corn.

grăphiārius, a, um, adj. [graphium], of or belonging to writing-styles: theca, a style-case or sheath. As subst. grăphiārium, ĭi, n. a style-case.

grăphicē, adv. [graphicus], picturesquely, artistically, finely, nicely, exactly.

‡ grăphicus, a, um, adj. [γραφικός], 1. of or belonging to painting or drawing. As subst. grăphicē, ēs, f. [sc. ars; like ἡ γραφική, sc. τέχνη], the art of drawing. 2. picturesque, artistic. 3. (of persons) exquisite, elegant; cunning, artful.

‡ grăphium, ĭi, n. [γραφίον], a graver, writing-style; a pen.

grassātor, ōris, m. [grassor], 1. an idler, vagabond. 2. a street rioter, rowdy, a foot-pad, highwayman, knight of the road.

grassātūra, ae, f. [id.], street rioting, rowdyism, robbery with violence.

grassor, ārī, ātus sum, [freq. gradior], intrans. (rarely trans.) dep. A. (intrans.) I. 1. go, go about; hang about, loaf, roam, loiter. 2. go about rioting, play the rowdy or highwayman. 3. go about with hellish designs, prowl, lie in wait. II. fig. 1. go, advance, proceed, set about doing a thing, go to work; make advances, make one's way: iure non vi; obsequio; sunt qui mendaci specie grassantur amoris. 2. (with prep. in and acc.) proceed against, fall upon, attack; act with violence or harshly, rage: in externos; veneno, i.e. administer poison. B. (trans., only in poet.) fall upon, assault, attack: turmas.

grātē, adv. [gratus], willingly, with pleasure, gladly, gratefully, thankfully. Compar. gratius; superl. gratissime.

grātēs, f. pl. (usually only in nom. and acc.; abl. gratibus, Tac.), [gratus], thanks; esp. thanks rendered to gods; thanksgiving: grates alicui agere (referre, dicere, habere), to render thanks to, thank; persolvere, to requite. Cf. gratia, B. 2.

grātia, ae, f. [id.], A. I. 1. favour in which a person stands with others; esteem, regard, goodwill, affection, good terms, kindly relations, friendship; in pl. gratiae, (a) tokens of good-will; (b) (concr.) supporters: gratiam inire ad (apud) aliquem or ab aliquo, to gain a person's friendship or favour, win his good-will, conciliate; in gratiā esse, to be in favour, be beloved, popular; in gratiam redire cum aliquo, to be reconciled, renew friendship with a person; cum gratiā or cum bonā gratiā, with a good grace. 2. special influence interest with powerful friends. Cic. II. (meton.) 1. agreeableness, pleasantness, grace, charm, beauty: formae; sermonis. 2. (with obj. gen.) pleasure in, fondness for: curarum. 3. eloquence. 3. claim to gratitude, influence with a person: aliqua et mihi gratia ponto est, I too have some interest in the sea; si nulla est gratia matris, if the mother has no influence with you. III. (as a proper name) Grātia, ae, f. a Grace, one of the Graces; more often pl. Grātiae arum, f. (=Gk. Χάριτες), the Graces, Aglaia, Euphrosyne, and Thalia, the personification of grace and beauty. B. 1. favour which one shows to another, mark of favour, kindness, courtesy, good office, service, obligation: nil ibi maiorum respectus, gratia nulla Umbrarum; alicui gratiam dare or facere, bestow as a favour, grant, permit; alicui delicti gratiam facere, grant one pardon for one's fault; iuris iurandi gratiam facere, to remit, release a person from his oath; in alicuius gratiam, to oblige a person, for a person's sake. 2. acknowledgment of service rendered, return, requital, recompense; thankfulness, gratitude; thanks; (with agere the pl. gratias is also used): gratiam referre, to make a return (good or bad), recompense, repay, requite; sts. ironically, pay one back in his own coin, pay off: gratiam debere, to be under obligation; gratiam habere, to feel grateful; gratias agere, to return thanks, thank, express one's gratitude; par gratia, a suitable return. 3. (coupled with ambitio) bias on account of past favours, prediction, partiality; whereas ambitio refers to future favours. The. C. as adverbs, I. grātiā (abl.), lit. in favour of; on account of, for the sake of; (with gen., and mostly placed after it); negotii gratiā; sui purgandi gratiā, excuse one's-self; exempli gratiā, for example, for instance; eā gratiā, on that account, for this reason, therefore; quā gratiā, wherefore; meā gratiā, on my account. II. grātiīs (abl. pl.), contr. grātis, 1. in the way of thanks, out of favour (as opposed to 'for reward'); for nothing, for nought, gratis, gratuitously; into the bargain. 2. (poet.) to no profit, vainly, to no purpose. Phaedr.

Grātiae, ārum. See gratia, A. III.

Grātiānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Gratius, made by a Gratius: poculum.

grātificātio, ōnis, f. [gratificor], a showing kindness, doing favours.

grātificor, ārī, ātus sum, [gratus; facio], intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) do favours, gratify, oblige: (with dat.); alicui; (with neut. cogn. acc.): alicui aliquid, oblige a person in something. B. (trans.) make a present of, give up, make over, sacrifice, surrender, grant as a favour.

grātiōsus, a, um, adj. [gratia], I. 1. enjoying favour in favour, beloved, agreeable, popular, influential; having social influence, personally popular. 2. done out of favour, obtained through favour: missio, Livy. II. that shows favour, obliging, complaisant. Compar. gratiosior; superl. gratiosissimus.

grātis, adv. See gratia, C. II.

Grātius, ī, m. a Roman gentile name. 1. the prosecutor, otherwise unknown, of the poet Archias. 2. Gratius Faliscus, a didactic poet of the Augustan age, author of the Cynegetica, a fragment on hunting.

grātor, ārī, ātus sum, [gratus], intrans. dep. manifest joy, rejoice; with dat., give joy to, wish joy, congratulate: (poet. and Tac. with constr. of a verb of speaking); eum praescium periculorum et incolumem fore gratatur, protests with congratulations that he foresees his perils, and will be quite safe (=cum gratulatione exclamat); gratatur reduces (=eos reduces esse), congratulates them on their return.

grātūītō, adv. [gratuitus], without remuneration or profit, for nought, without paying for a thing, without expense, freely, gratuitously, for nothing, profit; without any immediate motive, wantonly; in vain, to no purpose.

grātūītus, a, um, adj. [gratia], that is done without remuneration, pay, or profit, free, voluntary, spontaneous, gratuitous, given for nothing, disinterested: comitia (ambitūs), i.e. pure from bribery, unbought; pecunia, i.e. not bearing interest; fenus, without interest, or at a very low rate of interest; parricidia, for no special profit, thrown away, in vain, to no purpose; furor, with no immediate motive, wanton.

grātulābundus, a, um, adj. [gratulor], congratulating.

grātulātio, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. an a congratulation, wishing joy. 2. a rejoicing, joy. 3. a public manifestation of joy; a general thanksgiving, festival, holiday.

grātulātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who congratulates.

grātulor, ārī, ātus sum, [gratus], intrans. dep. I. 1. express joy, esp. in words, wish a person joy, congratulate; with dat. of person, with or without abl. of the thing, with prep. de (rarely in, pro, or simple abl.), with quod or obj. clause, also with acc. of the thing. 2. sibi gratulari, or absol., congratulate one's-self, rejoice. II. give or render thanks, esp. to a deity or Ter.

grātus, a, um, adj. [root GHAR-, GHRA-; Sanscr. HAR-; cf. χαίρω, χαρά], I. (passive) pleasing, acceptable, dear, beloved, agreeable, grateful, welcome, received with thanks, gratefully acknowledged: gratum facere alicui, to do one a favour; gratius facere, to do a greater favour; gratissimum facere, to do a very great favour, oblige very greatly; aliquid gratum habere, accept or receive kindly, feel grateful for a thing. As subst. grātus, ī, m. a favourite, darling. II. (active), 1. deserving gratitude, thank-worthy, procuring favour or thanks. 2. grateful, thankful. Compar. gratior; superl. gratissimus.

Graupius Mons. See Grampius.

grāvātē, adv. [gravatus], reluctantly, grudgingly, unwillingly.

grāvātim, adv. [id.],=gravate.

grāvātus, a, um, 1. perf. pass. part. from gravo. 2. perf. part. from gravor.

grāvēdinōsus, a, um, adj. [gravedo], liable to take cold, subject to catarrh.

grāvēdo, inis, f. [gravis], I. heaviness of the head or limbs; catarrh, cold in the head. II. pregnancy.

grāvē-ōlens (grave olens), ntis, adj. [gravis; (1) oleo], 1. strong smelling, pungent: centaurea. 2. rank, stinking, noisome: Avernus.

grāvesco, ĕre, (gravis), intrans. incept. v. I. become heavy, be burdened or weighed down, teem. II. (fig.) grow worse and worse.

grāvidātus, ātis, f. [gravidus], pregnancy.

grāvido, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. 1. load. 2. make pregnant, impregnate.

grāvidus, a, um, adj. [gravis], I. heavy, heavy laden, burdened, teeming; esp. heavy with young, pregnant, big. II. (meton.) laden, full, prolific, teeming, surcharged, abundant, luxuriant, heavy (of crops), in full fruit: poet. with gen.: mulis apes gravidae. III. (fig.) full, abundant, pregnant, fruitful: urbs bellis gravida; imperiis Italia.

grāvis, e, adj. [Sanscr. gurus, heavy; cf. βαρύς=γαρύς], I. 1. heavy, ponderous, weighty, firm, solid. Aes grave, money of the old standard, when a certain si metal, were designated, and not the coin called 'as' of inferior weight. 2. (of value) high, at a high rate, costly: gravius fenus, a higher rate of interest: supellex. 3. loaded, laden, burdened, full of: naves spoliis graves; miles, heavy-armed. 4. (=gravidus) heavy with young, pregnant. II. (meton.) 1. of sound; deep-toned bass, low: sonus auditur gravior; fragor. 2. (of smell or flavour) rank, fetid, strong, offensive, noisome: hircus. Neut.=adv., grave olens. 3. (of food) indigestible, unwholesome: cibus. 4. (of climate, temperature, etc.) unhealthy, noxious, dangerous: caelum; gravis cantantibus umbra; sopor, drugged, costive. III. (fig.) A. in a bad sense; heavy, burdensome, grievous, doleful, oppressive, crushing, damaging, murderous, hard, painful, toilsome, fatiguing, formidable, powerful, severe, harsh, cruel, fierce, violent, offensive, heinous, disagreeable, unwelcome. Poet.=adv.; gravis castigat, chides harshly, severely. As subst. gravia, ium, n. pl. serious events, results, etc.: o passi graviora, worse hardships. B. in a good sense; weighty, important, grave, serious: caerimonia, solemn, binding. 2. (of character) serious in behaviour, dignified, impressive, influential, of weight or authority, venerable, steadfastly moral, sterling, eminent, of great repute, carrying conviction. Compar. gravior; superl. gravissimus.

Grāviscae, ārum, f. pl. an Etrurian town, noted for malaria.

grāvitas, ātis, f. [gravis], I. weight, heaviness; burden. II. (meton.) 1. (of smell) rankness, noisomeness. 2. high price, dearness: annonae. 3. unwholesomeness: caeli. 4. diseased condition, unhealthiness, indisposition, weakliness, heaviness, dulness: aquarum. 5. difficulty of enunciation; aurium. 6. power, strength, vehemence, energy. III. (fig.) 1. violence, harshness, cruelty, severity, virulence: morbi; belli. 2. weight, dignity, importance, seriousness, impressiveness, sterling worth, solidity, force of character, power.

grāviter, adv. [id.], I. heavily, ponderously. II. (meton.) 1. (of sound) deeply, loudly. 2. violently, with great force, powerfully, strongly, vehemently. 3. rankly, strongly: noisomelly, offensively, poisonously: graviter spirantia herba, strongly-scented; graviter spirantes hydri, poison-breathing. III. (fig.) 1. violently, vehemently, exceedingly, seriously, severely, harshly, sternly, grievously, dangerously, painfully, offensively, unpleasantly, disagreeably: graviter se habere, to be dangerously ill. 2. with chagrin, with indignation, reluctantly, with ill-will, with impatience; with sorrow, with compassion: aliquid graviter ferre or accipere, to be annoyed at a thing, take amiss, take to heart: sta. aliquid graviter accipere, to hear with deep feeling, with sorrow, be deeply affected, Livy. 3. in a good sense; in a dignified manner, forcibly, impressively, seriously, with propriety. Compar. gravius; superl. gravissime.

grāvo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. 1. weigh down, make heavy, load, overload, burden, oppress. 2. make pregnant: uterum. II. (fig.) 1. trouble, annoy, incommode, burden. 2. make more grievous, add to the misery of, aggravate: fortunam parce gravare meam: invidiam.

grāvor, āri, ātus sum, pass. of gravo, used as intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) feel incommoded, annoyed, vexed, irritated; make difficulties, demur, am loath, be reluctant, hesitate, object. B. (trans.) lit. make heavy for one's self; regard as a burden, bear with reluctance, weary of, demur or object to, resent, take seriously, take amiss, dislike exceedingly, refuse, disdain.

grēgālis, e, adj. [grex], I. of the same flock or herd. As subst. (meton.) grēgāles, ium, m. pl. comrades, companions, associates. II. of the common sort, common, ordinary: sagulum or habitus, i.e. of a common soldier.

grēgārius, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of or belonging to a flock or herd. II. (meton.) of the common sort: gregarii milites, common soldiers, privates, the rank and file (as opposed to the officers) of the Roman legions; eques, a cavalry trooper.

grēgātim, adv. [id.], in flocks, herds, swarms, etc.; in troops or crowds.

grēgo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. collect into a flock or herd, herd together, group, muster.

grēmium, ii, n. I. the lap, bosom, breast: cum te gremio accipiet laetissima. Dido: in alicuius gremium mingere, to make a cuckold of a person. II. (meton.) the purse, Juv. Money was carried in the 'sinus.' III. (fig.) the bosom, lap, embrace (of the earth, sea, etc.): terra gremio, mollito semen excipit; Tethyos invasit gremium; quaecunque mihi fortuna fidesque In vestris pono gremiis, I lay in your bosoms, i.e. I trust it all to your keeping, I place it all in your hands; medio Graeciae gremio, in the heart or centre of Greece.

(1) gressus, a, um, perf. part. from gradior.

(2) gressus, ūs, m. (gradior), a stepping, going, gait, pace, step; course, way: to go: efferre, proceed forth; ante ferre, go on before; recipere, retrace one's steps, go back, retreat; comprimere, halt, stand still; inferre, approach.

grex, grēgis, m. (f. in Lucr.), [root GAR-, assemble; cf. γέρ-γαρα, ἀγορά], I. a flock, herd, drove, stud of horses, litter of pigs, swarm. Mostly of domestic cattle and smaller animals. II. (meton.) 1. a troop, band, company, crew, body, assembly, society, gang: amicorum; philosophorum, school. 2. the crowd, the multitude, the general ruck: ego forsitan propter multitudinem patronorum in grege adnumerer.

Grosphus, i, m. a Roman cognomen.

Grudii, ōrum. m. pl. a people of Gallia Belgica.

grūis, is. See grus.

Grūmentum, i, n. a town of Lucania.

Grūnium, ii. See Grynium.

grunnio, īre, īvi or ii, ītum, (onomatop.), grunt like a hog.

grunnītus, ūs, m. (grunnio), a grunting.

grūs, grūis, also grūis, is, Phaedr. f. (m. once in Hor.), [akin to γέρανος], a crane.

‡ gryllus, i, m. [γρύλλος], a cricket.

Grȳnaeus (-ēus), a, um, adj. of Grynia, Grynian.

Grynīa, ae, f. also Grȳnium (Grūn-), ii, n. a town of Aeolis, where Apollo was worshipped.

grȳphus, i, m. = gryps.

‡ gryps, grȳpis (grȳphis), m. [γρύψ], a griffin.

gubernācŭlum (contr. gubernāclum), i, n. [guberno], I. a helm, rudder. II. (fig.) guidance, direction, steering; esp. of the state, ruling, government: reipublicae. In this sense mostly in pl.

gubernātio, ōnis, f. [id.], I. a steering, piloting. II. (fig.) direction, management, government.

gubernātor, ōris, m. [id.], I. a steersman, helmsman, pilot. II. a director, ruler, governor.

gubernātrix, tricis, f. [gubernator], she who guides, etc.; a conductress, directress.

‡ guberno, āre, āvi, ātum, [κυβερνάω], trans. v. I. steer or pilot a ship: navem. Sts. without obj. acc.; take the helm: ipse gubernabit residens in puppe Cupido. II. (meton.) guide, drive a horse or carriage. III. (fig.) direct, govern, control, manage.

gubernum, i, n. a helm, rudder. Lucr.

gŭla, ae, f. [Sanscr. GAR-swallow; Gk. βορ-, βρο-; Lat. vor- (= gvor), gur-, gul-, glu-; cf. βορά βιβρώσκω; voro, gurges, glutio], I. the gullet, weasand; throat, neck: laqueo gulam frangere, to strangle. II. (meton.) the mouth, palate; hence, gluttony, appetite.

gŭlōsē, adv. [gulosus], gluttonously. Compar. gulosius.

gŭlōsus, a, um, adj. [gula], gluttonous, dainty, luxurious. Nimium gulosus lector, an over-gluttonous (or too particular) bookworm. Mart.

Gulussa (Gulūsa), ae, m. a Numidian, second son of Masinissa.

gummĕus, a, um, adj. [gummi], gummy, sticky.

‡ gummi, n. indecl. [κόμμι], gum.

gurdus, i, m. [Spanish word], a dolt.

gurgĕs, ĭtis, m. [cf. gula], I. 1. a whirlpool, gulf, abyss. 2. any deep place in water, a deep pool, depth, hv low. II. (meton.) deep water, the deep sea, a deep lake or river; waters, rapids; a stream, tide, flood; the sea, ocean. III. (fig.) 1. an abyss, bottomless pit of extravagance, licentiousness, etc. 2. (of persons) a spendthrift, prodigal.

(1) gurgŭlio, ōnis, m. [akin to gurges, gula, q.v.], the gullet, windpipe.

(2) gurgŭlio, ōnis,= curculio.

gurgustium, ii, n. [? akin to gurges], lit. a hollow, hole; hence, a hovel, den, low haunt, cellar.

gustātio, ōnis, f. See gustus.

gustātōrium, ii, n. [gusto], the tray on which a 'gustatio' (a snack, appetiser, or light luncheon) was served.

gustātus, ūs, m. [id.], 1. the sense of tasting, the taste. 2. a taste, flavour.

gusto, āre, āvi, ātum, [gustus], trans. v. I. 1. taste, sip, take a little of; sta. eat, drink. 2. without obj. acc.; take a snack, make a light luncheon, lunch. Cf. gustatorium. II. (fig.) taste, i.e. partake of, enjoy, relish; dabble in, have a smattering of, get up a subject superficially; have an inkling of.

gustus, ūs, m. [akin to Sanscr. ǵúṣu, relish; cf. γεύω, give a taste of], I. 1. a tasting of food, a partaking slightly of, eating a little of anything. 2. (=gustatio), the preliminary part of a Roman cena, consisting of shellfish, lettuce, radishes, eggs, mulsum, and other light food which excited the appetite and helped digestion, a snack, whet, relish, antevast; sta. a light meal taken between the prandium and cena, luncheon. 3. a draught of water. II. (meton.) taste, flavour. III. (fig.) a foretaste, specimen, proof.

gutta, æ, archaic gen. dat. guttāi, Lucr., f. I. a drop of any liquid; (poet.) a drop of sweat, tear-drop, tear; sanguinis in facie non haeret gutta, there's not a drop of blood left in his face (to blush with); gutta per attonitas ibat oborta genas; gutta Phaethontis or succina, i.e. yellow amber. II. (meton.) a spot, spangle, speck, blotch, stain-drop, stain, of the natural marks on lizards, snakes, bees, stones, etc. III. (fig.) a drop, driblet, i.e. infinitesimal quantity.

guttātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [gutta], speckled, spangled, dappled, spotted.

guttur, ŭris, n. (m. acc. sing. gutturem, Plaut.), 1. the throat, gullet; the craw or crop of fowls; sts. (poet.) the mouth, jaws; alicuius guttur frangere, i.e. strangle. II. (fig.) gluttony.

guttus (better gūtus), i, m. [gutta], a jug with narrow neck and small mouth, a cruet, flask; esp. an oil-flask or cruet.

Gȳăra, æ, f. and -a, æ, f. also Gȳărus, ōrum, n. pl. one of the Cyclades, a small barren island, to which Roman criminals were banished under the Empire.

Gȳas (-ēs), æ, m. 1. a giant with a hundred arms. 2. a comrade of Aeneas. 3. a Latin.

Gȳgaeus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Gyges, king of Lydia; hence (poet.), Lydian.

Gȳges, is or -æ, m. 1. a king of Lydia, who had a ring which had the power of making him invisible. 2. a comrade of Aeneas. 3. a handsome youth mentioned by Horace.

Gȳlippus, i, m. 1. an Arcadian. 2. a Spartan general (B.C. 414).

‡ gymnās, ădis, f. [γυμνάς], wrestling; in pl. wrestling exercises, feats of wrestling.

‡ gymnāsiarchus, i, m. [γυμνασιαρχος], the superintendent of the public gymnasia, the master of a gymnasium, a gymnasiarch.

‡ gymnāsium, ii, n. [γυμνάσιον], I. a place of exercise for wrestling, boxing, etc., a gymnasium. II. 1. a public place of training in philosophy, etc., a school, college. 2. a gallery devoted to literary and philosophic discussions. Cic. Att. i. 1. 5.

‡ gymnĭcus, a, um, adj. [γυμνικός], gymnastic.

‡ gȳnaecēum (-ium), i, n. [γυναικεῖον], 1. the women's apartments. 2. a harem, seraglio.

‡ gȳnaecōnītis, ĭdis, f. [γυναικωνῖτις],=gynaecium.

Gyndes (Gin-), is, m. a tributary of the river Tigris.

gypsātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from gypso. As adj. coated with gypsum, chalked. The feet of newly imported slaves for sale were marked with gypsum; and actors who sustained women's parts put a coating of gypsum on their hands. Superl. gypsatissimus, thickly coated with gypsum.

gypso, āre, āvi, ātum, [gypsum], trans. v. coat with gypsum, luncheon.

‡ gypsum, i, n. [γύψος, chalk], I. white lime plaster, plaster of Paris, parget, gypsum, stucco. II. (meton.) a pluster-of-Paris cast, a bust.

‡ gȳrus, i, m. [γῦρος], I. 1. a circle; a circular course, circuit, a ring, esp. a ring in which horses are trained: carpere mox gyrum incipiat, to pace the ring of longeing a colt); gyros variare, to execute intricate evolutions. 2. (poet. =spatium curriculi) a turn in the stadium, a round in the racecourse: gyrum pulsat equis, gallops round the racecourse. Prop. 3. a circular fold, coil (of a serpent). II. (fig.) a circle, circuit, career, course, revolution: homines secundis rebus effrenatos tamquam in gyrum rationis et doctrinae duci oportere, in what may be called the 'manège' of reason and learning; cur tua praescriptos evecta est pagina gyros? the prescribed tracks, the ordinary routine of literature.

Gȳthēum (-ium), i, n. a seaport on the river Eurotas in Laconia.

H.

H, h, the eighth letter of the Latin alphabet. As an abbr. (on tombs) H.C.E.=hic conditus est; H.S.E.=hic situs est; H.F.C.=heres faciundum curavit; H.H.=heredes; etc. etc. N.B.—For the symbol HS, for sestertium, see sestertius, and cf. P. S. L. G. App. G; Roby, App. D.

ha! interj. 1. of warning; hold! 2. of joy, laughter, or derision; ha! haha!

hăbēna, ae,f. [habeo],lit. that by which a thing is held, 1. a thong, strap; e.g. of a javelin,or of a sling; a shoe-strap; a helmet-strap; the thong of a sling; sts. the sling itself; the thong of a whip; a lash; a rein, a halter, leading rein; in pl. (a) a pair of reins for riding or driving; (b) the sheets of a sail; the rudder lines of a ship. Dare, effundere, inmittere habenas, give loose rein (lit. and fig.): datis, immissis, laxis habenis, with loose rein, at full speed, without restraint; adducere or premere habenas, to draw in the reins. II. (meton.) a narrow strip of flesh cut out. III. (fig.) reins, control, management, direction.

hăbĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, trans. and intrans. v.: A. (trans.) 1. have, hold, possess, keep, occupy, inhabit, contain, include: sicut pleraque mortalium habentur; virtus aeterna habetur, is an everlasting possession. In phrases: habere annos decem, be ten years old; habere spem, amorem, metum, invidiam, etc., to have, feel, or cherish hope, etc.; habere odium, suspitionem, incur hatred, suspicion, be hated, suspected; contentiones cum aliquo, carry on; habere odium in aliquem, i.e. hate; habere rationem (a) take or keep an account, make a computation, omnium proclivorum; (b) have regard or care for a person or thing, have respect to, pay attention to, consider, act in view of: sauciorum; frumenti; officii; temporis; habere gratiam alicui, feel gratitude, be grateful or obliged to, cf. gratia, B. 2. (c) habere rationem alicuius (polit. techn. t.), to take a person into account at an election, allow votes to be received for a person, accept him as a candidate, allow him to stand, put his name up: said of the presiding magistrate at elections when he accepted votes for an eligible candidate,Cic. Livy. 2. (poet.) keep, rear, raise, tend: pecus. 3. find, experience: eo die acerbum habuimus Carionem; num minus inmites habuit Cornelia Parcas? 4. (of passions and the like) possess, inspire: omnes ardor. II. 1. (like Gk. ἔχω), have property, possess goods, be rich; amor sceleratus habendi, of gain, of wealth: invidit habenti, the rich man (τῷ ἔχοντι). In this sense mostly without obj. acc. 2. have the means or ability to do a thing, be able; know how to do or say anything; (a) with infin.; haec fere dicere habui de naturâ Deorum, this is the general substance of what I had to say; eo minus habeo necesse scribere quid sim facturus; an melius quis habet suadere? can any one give better counsel? (b) with rel. consecutive clause, or obl. interrog.; nihil habeo quod ad te scribam, I have nothing to write to you; but, de pueris quid agam non habeo, I know not, cannot tell what to do. 3. periphr. with gerundive; have or be obliged to do something, must; aliquid statuendum habeo, I have to decide, must come to a decision. Tac., Plin. 4. have in use, make use of; wear, wield, keep, manage, administer. 5. hold, keep, detain (a person) in any condition: in custodiis; in custodiam habitus (pregn. constr.), thrown into prison and kept there: habeo aliquem or aliquid in metu, I fear, stand in fear of. With adj., to denote a permanent condition; te miserrimam habui, I kept you in a most unhappy state; bellum integrum habemus. 6. with perf. pass. part., esp. of verbs denoting insight or resolution, to express a past action continuing in its consequences (cf. the English auxiliary 'have,' and the perf. of modern languages); have, hold, possess; Siculi fidem meam spectatam iam et cognitam habent; vectigalia redempta habere, to have the right of farming the revenues secured to one; equitatum coactum habere, get together and keep in hand; hoc mihi persuasum habeo, I am convinced of this; hoc quid sentiam, habes subductum, what is different this makes, you have already computed; de Caesare satis dictum habebo, i.e. I shall be acknowledged to have said enough. 7. with double obj.; make, render: Cicero praecipit ut dent operam, uti eos quam maxime manifestos habeant, to bring the guilt home to them as completely as possible; mare infestum habuit, he infested, or beset, the sea. 8. treat a person in any way, use: aliquem liberalissime; hostiliter. 9. habere se, or absol., to hold or keep one's self in a particular manner, be constituted or situated, find one's self, be: ordo agminis aliter se habebat ac Belgae detulerant, was different from what the Belgae had reported; ita se res habet, such is the state of the case; Attica belle se habet, is in good health; Terentia minus belle habuit, has been indisposed; recte hoc par habet, this pair is well matched; bene habet, iacta sunt fundamenta defensionis, very well; well and good; magnum narras, vix credibile! atqui Sic habet (=sic se res habet), and yet such is the fact. N.B.—The passages in Sall. Cat. (i. 4; vi. 3) usually quoted as reflexive passives, probably refer to virtute as a possession and to the brief tenure of earthly things, and are not equivalent merely to sese habet, sese habent. 10. hold, reckon, account, esteem, consider, count, regard, repute, think, believe: aliquem parentem; aliquot in hostium numero; aliquem pro hoste; aliquid nihili habere, set no value on, regard as nothing worth; aliquid pro certo (pro explorato) habere, regard as certain, feel assured of; aliquem ludibrio, make a laughing-stock of a person, ridicule; aliquid religioni, hold as a matter of conscience, scruple; sic habeto, hold or judge thus, be assured, convinced, persuaded; satis habere, deem it enough, be satisfied, content. 11. take, accept, submit to, endure, bear: multi iniurias graviss. accusatus habuere; quae Tiberius civiliter habuit. 12. spend or pass time: aetatem. 13. (almost = audio or intellego) have in one's mind, know as a fact, have heard, be acquainted with: habetis hominis consilia; habes auctoritatem senatûs. 14. have as a habit or peculiarity: habebat hoc omnino Caesar, this was a striking feature in Caesar's character, just Caesar's way; Sardus habebat Ilie Tigellius hoc. 15. make, do, perform, hold, produce, occasion, cause, involve: auspicia; quaestionem, comitia, conduct or hold; censum, take a census; concilium, convene; orationem, deliver, pronounce; latrocinia nullam habent infamiam, bring with them, involve; avaritia pecuniae studium habet, implies, associates with itself; cum hic locus nihil habeat dubitationis, this proposition admits of. 16. in animo habere, have in one's mind, intend, be disposed, inclined to do a thing: flumen transire. Also, represent to one's-self, imagine, conceive. 17. Sibi or Secum habere, keep to one's-self. In divorces the formula WAS TUAS RES TIBI HABETO; hence, mimam suam suas res sibi habere iussit, he bade his actress wife go about her business, i.e. formally divorced her. 18. have as a lover or mistress, postquam nos Amaryllis habet; sts. have as a wife, cohabit with. 19. (techn. t. of a wounded gladiator) be hit, be fatally wounded: desuper altius equo graviter ferit, atque ita fatur, Hoc habet, he is hit, he has his death-blow; egomet continuo mecum, Certe captus est; habet! he's in the toils; he has caught it! Perhaps also, Hor. C. i. 27, 17, quidquid habes, whatever your wound. B. (intrans.) dwell, live. Plaut., Livy.

hābĭlis, e, adj. [habeo], I. that may be easily handled or managed, handy, easily worn, convenient, fit, suited, proper, suited for action, light, swift, nimble, supple: gladii; calcei, well-fitting; bos; arbor; vigor; currus; natum habilem mediae circumligat hastae, so as to be easily grasped, i.e. the better to throw her. II. (fig.) apt, expert, skilful, deft; fitted, suited; manageable: non habiles Colchi, intractable, unexercised; iuventa, marriageable; poet. with prolate infin., resonare=ad resonandum. Compar. habilior; superl. habilissimus.

hābĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], aptitude.

hābĭlĭter, adv. [habilis], handily, deftly, expertly.

hābĭtābĭlis, e, adj. [habito], I. habitable. II. inhabited.

hābĭtātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. a habitation, dwelling, place of abode: mercedes habitationum house-rent. 2. house-rent, rent. Suet.

hābĭtātor, ōris, m. [id.], a dweller; tenant, occupant; an inhabitant of a country.

hābĭtātrix, trĭcis, f. [habitator], she that inhabits, a female tenant or inhabitant.

hābĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. habeo], trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) live or dwell in, reside in, inhabit, occupy. B. (intrans.) live, dwell, sojourn, reside; be constantly in or at a place, make one's home, never be away from, haunt a place, pin one's-self down to: lucis opacis; in foro; Theophrastus habitavit in eo genere rerum.

hābĭtūdo, ĭnis, f. [(2) habitus], external form or condition of a thing, plight, appearance.

(1) hăbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from habeo. As adj. 1. held or kept in a certain condition, frame of mind, etc.; disposed, inclined: ut patrem tuum vidi esse habitum, as far as I have understood your father's temper. 2. well kept, in good condition, plump, embonpoint: si qua (virgo) est habitior paulo, Ter. Superl. habitissimus.

(2) hăbĭtus, ūs, m. [habeo], I. a arum, Livy. II. 1. the condition or state of a thing, whether external or internal; (of the body) condition, habit, plight, state, carriage, bearing, demeanour, appearance, physical characteristics, constitution; (of things and places) condition, position, circumstances, shape, nature: temporum; Italiae; locorum. 2. style of dress, attire, garb, costume; pl. fashions. III. (fig.) 1. quality, nature, mental characteristics, character. 2. a state of feeling, disposition. 3. (philos. techn. t.) an acquired perfect state or condition.

habrŏtŏnum, i, n. See abr-.

hăc, adv. [abl. sing. f. from hic], in or by this way, on this side, here. Repeated, hac . . . hac, on this side . . . on that, here . . . there.

hac-tĕnus, sts. separated by tmesis, adv. 1. to this point, thus far, hitherto. Often ellipt. (sc. dixi, scripsi, tractavi, etc.), as a formula for dismissing one subject and passing on to another: sed haec hactenus, but enough of this. 2. up to this time, till now, no longer than this. 3. to this extent, just so much (and no more), merely, Tac. Also absol.: utinam hactenus! would this were all! Suet. Dom. 16. 4. (with ut, ne, si) to this extent that, so far as, as far as, inasmuch.

(1) Hadrĭa (Adrĭa), ae, f. 1. a town of Picenum, now Atri, the birthplace of the Emperor Hadrian. 2. a town of Gallia Cisalpina on the Po, whence the Adriatic Sea takes its name.

(2) Hadrĭa (Adrĭa), ae, m. the Adriatic sea.

Hādrĭācus (Adr-), a, um, adj. of Hadria on the Po; Hadriatic, of the Adriatic Sea.

(1) Hadrĭānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hadria in Picenum. As subst. Hādrĭānus, i, m. the Emperor Hadrian, born A.D. 76; emperor A.D. 117-138.

(2) Hadrĭānus (Adr-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hadria; Adriatic.

Hadrĭātĭcus (Adr-), a, um, adj. =Hadriacus. As subst. n. the Adriatic sea.

Hadrūmētum (Adr-), i, n. a maritime town of the province Byzacene, in Africa Propria.

haec, 1. f. nom. sing., 2. n. nom. and acc. pl., from (1) hic. 3. for haece, f. nom. pl. See hic, I. 1.

Haedĭlĭa, ae, f. a wood or hill near Horace's Sabine farm.

haedīnus (hoed-), a, um, adj. [haedus], of a kid, kid.

Haedŭi, Haedŭus. See Aedui.

haedŭlus (hoed-), i, m. [dim. haedus], a little kid, kidling.

haedus (hoed-), i, m. a kid. In pl. (poet.) the Kids, two stars in the constellation Auriga, the rising of which about October 5 was attended by storms: veniens pluvialibus Haedis (imber);

Haemōn, ōnis, m. 1. a son of Creon, king of Thebes. 2. a Rutulian.

Haemŏnĭa (Aem-), ae, f. a poetical name of Thessaly.

Haemŏnĭdes, ae, m. 1. a son of Haemon. 2. a Haemonian, Thessalian.

Haemŏnis (Aem-), ĭdis, f. a Thessalian woman.

Haemŏnĭus (Aem-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Haemonia (= Thessaly), Haemonian, Thessalian. In Ov. Met. ii. 81, Haemonios arcus, the bow of the Thessalian archer, i.e. Chiron, is put for the constellation Sagittarius.

‡ haemorrhŏis, ĭdis, f. [αἱμορροΐς], a serpent whose bite drew blood.

Haemŏs or -us (Aem-), i, m. 1. a mountain range in Thrace, now the Great Balkan. 2. an actor.

haerĕditas, ātis. See hereditas.

haerĕo, ēre, haesi, haesum, intrans. v. I. hang or hold fast, stick, cleave, cling, adhere, be fixed or planted on, of a thing, keep close, hang to, be caught, entangled, unable to proceed; (of plants) take root: in equo, have a firm seat, keep one's seat; male laxus in pede calceus haeret, hardly keeps on; pugnus in alicuius mala, is planted on, or full drive into his cheek; pede pes; capiti corona. The dat. is less freq. than the abl. with or without prep. in. II. (fig.) 1. hold fast, remain attached or fixed, keep firm, last, keep close, adhere, cleave. 2. be trapped, entangled in, be unable to clear one's-self from a charge, penalty, etc. 3. keep close to a person, attach one's-self closely to, hang on to, follow, dance attendance on. Sts. in a bad sense, tergis, in tergo (tergis) haerere, hang upon, press close upon one's rear, pursue closely, apply to, be connected with, Ov. Fasti, i. 61. 4. abide or continue anywhere, be rooted to the spot, remain, stay, linger; keep at, stick to anything, buckle to, give one's-self entirely to. 5. be brought to a standstill, stand motionless, stick, pause, hesitate, be perplexed, embarrassed; be suspended, retarded, delayed.

haerēs, ēdis. See heres.

haeresco, ĕre, [incept. haereo], intrans. v. adhere, cleave.

‡ haerĕsis, is and ŏos, f. [αἵρεσις], I. a sect of philosophers or religionists. II. (meton.) a calling, profession, craft.

haesĭtābundus, a, um, verbal adj. [haesito], stammering, faltering.

haesĭtantĭa, ae, f. [id.], a stammering, faltering.

haesĭtātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], 1. hesitation of speech, slow utterance, stammering. 2. mental uncertainty, irresolution, uncertainty, embarrassment.

haesĭtātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who hesitates.

haesĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. haereo], intrans. v. I. stick fast, unable to proceed. Prov. haesitare in eodem luto, to be as deep in the mire as ever, i.e. in just as big a fix. II. 1. (of speech) be unsteady, falter, hesitate. 2. (of the mind) be uncertain, irresolute, embarrassed, unable to get on, at a loss, be caught tripping.

Hagna, ae, f. [ἁγνή], a freedwoman mentioned by Horace.

hahae, interj. haha !

Halaesa, Halaesinus, Halaesus. See Halesa, etc.

halcēdo. See alcedo.

Halcȳŏnē (Alc-), Halcȳŏnēus (Alc-). See Alc-.

hālec. See allec.

Hales, ētis, m. a small river in Lucania.

Hālēsa (Hălaesa, Ălēsa), ae, f. a town of N. Sicily on the river Halesus.

Hālēsīnus (Halaes-, Alēs-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Halesa.

Hālēsus (Hălaesus, Ălēsus), i, m. 1. a son or follower of Agamemnon, who came to Italy, and founded Falerii. 2. one of the Lapithae. 3. a river on the N. coast of Sicily.

Hāliacmon (Ali-), ōnis, m. a river of Macedonia, now Vistriza, by Caesar stated to be the boundary between Macedonia and Thessaly.

‡ hāliaetŏs (-us), i, m. [ἁλιαίετος], the osprey or sea-eagle.

Hāliartus, i, f. a town of Boeotia.

hālica, ae. See alica.

Hālicarnassenses, ĭum, m. pl. the men of Halicarnassus.

Hālicarnassius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Halicarnassus. As subst. m. pl. the men of Halicarnassus.

Hālicarnassus (-ŏs), or Hālĭcarnāsus, i, f. a city of Caria, the birthplace of the historians Herodotus and Dionysius, famed for the Mausoleum of Artemisia.

hālĭcŭla, ae. See alicula Hālĭcȳensis, e, adj. of or belonging to the city of Halicyae, in Sicily. As subst. m. pl. the men of Halicyae.

hālĭtus, ūs, m. [halo], a breathing ; breath, an exhalation, fume, vapour, steam.

hallec or hallex, ēcis. See allec.

hallūcinor, ārī. See alucinor.

hālo, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v.; A (intrans.) breathe, be fragrant. B. (trans.) breathe forth, exhale.

‡ haltēr, ēris, m. [ἁλτήρ], a dumb-bell. In pl. heavy weights of stone or lead used in leaping and other gymnastic exercises.

halūcinor, ārī. See alucinor.

hālyaecētos = hāliaecetus.

Hālyattes. See Alyattes.

Hālys, ўŏs, acc. Halyn or -ym, m. 1. the chief river of Asia Minor, now the Kizil-Irmak, which flows into the Euxine. 2. a Trojan ‡ hāma, ae. See (1) ama.

‡ Hămădrўăs, ădis, f. [Ἁμαδρυάς], a wood-nymph whose life was bound up with a particular tree, a hamadryad.

hāmātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [hamus], I. furnished with a hook or hooks, hooked, barbed, jagged. II. (meton.) hook-shaped, crooked : ensis (= falcatus ensis, or harpe, q.v.), a falchion. Ov. Met. v. 80. See Rich, falx, 6. III. (fig.) catching, enticing : munera.

Hămilcar (Am-), ăris, m. a Carthaginian name = ‘friend of Melcarth.’ The most distinguished of the name was Hamilcar Barca, the father of Hannibal, who commanded in Sicily in the 1st Punic war, B.C. 247 ; died B.C. 229.

Hămillus, i, m. a Roman name.

‡ hammŏdȳtēs (amm-), ae, m. [ἀμμοδύτης, sand-burrower], an African serpent.

Hammōn (Amm-), ōnis, m. [Ἄμμων], the Libyan Zeus or Iuppiter, the great deity of the Egyptian Thebes, where he was worshipped under the form of a ram ; hence called corniger. He also had a famous temple and oracle in the Oasis of Ammonium, now Siwah, in the Libyan desert.

Hammōnĭăcus (Amm-), a, um, adj. belonging to Hammon ; Libyan, African.

hāmŭla, ae, f. [dim. hama], a small pail or bucket.

hāmŭlus, i, m. [dim. hamus], a small hook ; a probe in surgery.

hāmus, i, m. [?=Gk. χαμός], I. 1. a hook, esp. a fish-hook : duplex, i.e. a two-pronged hook for dragging the bodies of criminals, Pers. 2. a hatchet for carding flax, hemp, etc. 3. (in surgery) a hook ; probe. II. (meton.) of hook-shaped things : 1. a talon of a bird of prey. 2. a thorn. 3. the thorn-shaped hook of a harpe or curved sword : ferrum curvo tenus abdidit hamo, up to the barb, not up to the hilt. See Rich, harpe ; hamus, 3, and falx, 6. 4. a ring or link in a coat of chain-mail. See Rich, lorica. 5. a kind of cake. III. (fig.) of craft or deception ; a bait.

Hannĭbal (Ann-), ălis, m. a Carthaginian name = ‘favour of Baal.’ The most famous of the name was the son of Hamilcar Barca, born B.C. 247, made commander-in-chief B.C. 221, conducted the 2nd Punic war (B.C. 219-202) ; died about B.C. 183.

Hanno (Ann-), ōnis, m. a Carthaginian name. The most famous were, 1. the rival and enemy of Hamilcar and his family. 2. the navigator, who explored the coast of Africa beyond the Pillars of Hercules.

‡ hăphē (ăphē), ēs, f. [ἁφή], a touching, 1. the yellow sand with which wrestlers were powdered after being anointed, in order to give them a firm grip of each other. 2. a cloud of dust raised in walking.

hăra, ae, f. a pen, coop, stye.

hārēna (ārēna), ae, f. [? are-, stem of areo], lit. dry earth, I. 1. sand. Prov. harenae semina mandare, i.e. to labour in vain. 2. (poet. collective) grains of sand : numerus harenae, Catull. 3. (poet.) alluvial earth : slime, mud, loam, soil : (amnis) viridem Aegyptum nigrā fecundat harenā. II. (meton.) 1. a sandy place, sandy land, a waste, desert. 2. the seashore, beach, strand. 3. the floor of sand on which the gladiators fought in the amphitheatre, the arena. 4. (poet. abstr. =concr.) the combatants in the arena : cum iuris idem contingat harenae, the gladiators have the same privilege, Juv. III. (fig.) any place of combat, the scene, theatre, or seat of any conflict : belli ; (of advocates) in harenā meā, i.e. in my department or profession.

hārēnārĭa (ārēn-), ae, f. (sc. fodina), a sand-pit.

hārēnārĭus (ārēn-), a, um, adj. [harena], of or belonging to sand ; lapis, sandstone.

hārēni-vāgus (āren-), a, um, adj. [harena ; vagus], wandering over sands.

hārēnōsus (ārēn-), a, um, adj. [harena], full of sand, sandy.

hărĭōlātio (ăr-), ōnis, f. [hariolor], a divination, soothsaying.

hărĭōlor (ăr-), āri, [hariolus], intrans. dep. I. prophesy, divine, speak under inspiration. II. (meton.) talk nonsense, rave.

hărĭōlus (ăr-), i, m. and hărĭōla, ae, [Sanscr. hirā ; cf. Gk. χορδή, a gut, and haruspex], f. 1. a soothsayer, diviner. 2. a quack.

Harmŏdĭus, ĭi, m. an Athenian, who with his friend Aristogiton, murdered Hipparchus, the brother of the tyrant Hippias, B.C. 514.

‡ (1) harmŏnĭa, ae [archaic gen. harmoniāi, Lucr.), harmony, concord ; mutual agreement.

(2) Harmŏnĭa, ae, Gk. acc. Harmoniēn, Ov., f. the wife of Cadmus.

‡ (1) harpăgo, āre, āvi, ātum [ἁρπάζω), trans. v. plunder.

(2) harpăgo, ōnis, m. [ἁρπάγη], I. a hook, drag, grappling-iron, flesh-hook. II. (meton.) a rapacious person.

Harpălȳcē, ēs, f. a warrior-queen and huntress of Thrace.

‡ harpastum, i, n. [ἁρπαστόν], a handball, which was apparently scrambled for by a number of players.

‡ harpē, ēs, f. [ἅρπη], a sickle-shaped sword, with a hook (hamus) like a thorn, a falchion ; the weapon of Mercury, Perseus, and Hercules. See Rich, harpe ; hamus, 3 ; falx, 6.

Harpŏcrātēs, is, m. 1. the Egyptian god of silence ; hence, aliquem reddere Harpocratem, to seal a person's lips, render mute.

Harpȳia (trisyll.), ae, f. [*Ἁρπυια, snatcher], a Harpy. Mostly in pl., the Harpies, originally whirlwinds personified, mythic monsters with women's faces and vultures' bodies.

Harūdes, um, m. pl. a German tribe, probably from Jutland, who formed part of Ariovistus's army.

hărundi-fer (ăr-), fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [harundo, fero], reed-bearing, crowned with reeds.

hărundĭnēus (ăr-), a, um, adj. [harundo], made of reeds, reedy, reed-: carmen, i.e. on the fistula or reed pipe.

hărundĭnōsus (ăr-), a, um, adj. [id.], full of reeds, reedy.

hărundo (ăr-), ĭnis, f. I. a reed, cane; (poet. collective), reeds. II. (meton.) of things made of reed; 1. a fishing-rod. 2. a fowler's rod made of cane tipped with bird-lime: arundo crescens or texta, a rod made in joints, to admit of being lengthened. 3. the shaft of an arrow, an arrow. 4. a reed pen for writing on papyrus, a pen. 5. (= σύριγξ), a Pan-pipe, pandean pipe (of several reeds fastened together with wax), a shepherd's pipe. 6. (= tibia) a flageolet: Tritoniaca, i.e. invented by Minerva; cf. Ov. Fast. vi. 697-702. 7. a weaver's slay, a rod used in separating the threads of the warp; Ov. Met. vi. 55. See Rich, arundo, 7, and stamen. 8. a long cane with a sponge, etc. for sweeping ceilings, a Turk's-head broom. 9. a cane, ratan, cudgel, stick. 10. a child's hobby-horse: equitare in harundine longâ. 11. a measuring-rod of cane. 12. (poet.) a bow: fugitivis harundine Parthi. Sil. Ital. x. 12.

harūspex (ăr-), spĭcis, m. [Sanscr. hirá, vein, entrail; cf. Gk. χορδή; Curtius, 203; and -speció; cf. auspex], I. an inspector of entrails; hence, a diviner, soothsayer. II. (meton.) a prophet.

hărūspĭcīna (ăr-), a, um, [haruspex], relating to the inspection of entrails of victims, or to the art of soothsaying. As subst. hărūspĭcīna (ăr-), ae, f. (sc. ars), the art of soothsaying: haruspicinam facere, to practise soothsaying, be an haruspex.

hărūspĭcium (ăr-), ĭi, n. [id.], the art of the haruspex, soothsaying.

Hasdrŭbal (As-), ălis, m. a Carthaginian name = 'help of Baal.' The most famous of the name were 1. the son-in-law of Hamilcar Barca, and founder of New Carthage. 2. Hannibal's brother, defeated at the Metaurus, B.C. 207, by the consuls C. Claudius Nero and M. Livius Salinator.

hasta (asta), ae, f. [akin to Gk. χανδάνω, grasp; root χαδ-; cf. pre-hen-do], I. a spear-shaft, spear, lance, pike; a wand: pura, i.e. sine cuspide, a headless or pointless spear, given as a decoration for valour: pampinea,=thyrsum. II. a spear as a weapon, a javelin. III. a spear as a symbol of ownership; 1. a spear set upright in the court of the Centumviri: centeni moderatrix iudicis hasta. Hence (meton.) the centumvirs' court or tribunal, of which the spear was the emblem; centum gravis hasta virorum; iudiciale hastae-iudicium centumvirale: centumviralem hastam cogere, to assemble the centumvirs' court, open their court. 3. a spear as the sign of a public auction (orig. the symbol of booty taken in war, set up in the camp at the sale); hence, hasta publica or hasta, a public sale or auction: sub hastâ venire, or hastae subici, to be sold by public auction; ius hastae, the right of selling property by public auction, a forum sui. Tac.: hasta Caesaris, the sale of (confiscated) property by Caesar's orders; censoria, a letting of the public revenues by the censors to the highest bidder for a space of five years; convenere ad eos (censores) frequentes hastae huius generis adsueverant, who had been accustomed to engage in contracts of this kind. 4. = hasta caelibaris, a spear with the point of which the bridegroom parted the bride's hair on the marriage-day (perhaps symbolical of capture in war): comat virgineas hasta recurva comas, Ov. Fast. ii. 560. See Paley's note.

hastātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [hasta], I. armed with a spear. As subst. hastāti, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. milites), the pikemen, who formed the first line of the Roman infantry in order of battle. They were the youngest troops. The second line was formed by the 'Principes' (formerly in the front), men in the prime of life. In the third line were the 'Triarii' or 'Pilani,' the veterans. Each of these lines consisted of ten 'manipuli' or 'ordines,' of which there were thirty in a legion: Patres centum denos secrevit in orbes Romulus, hastatos instituitque decem, i.e. totem manipulos hastatorum. See Dict. Ant. Hence, II. of or belonging to the pikemen (hastati): ordo hastatus, a company of the hastati: decimus ordo hastatus, the tenth company of the hastati. The first centurion of the hastati was styled Primus Hastatorum (= centurio ordinis hastati primus).

hastīle (ast-), is, n. [hasta], I. the shaft of a spear or javelin. II. (meton.) 1. a spear, pike, javelin. 2. a shaft, pole. 3. an ox-goad. 4. a shoot, sapling.

(1) hau (au), interj. (expressive of fear, caution, confusion, pain, or grief), oh! ah! ha!

(2) hau = haud.

haud (haut; haut sts. before consonants), adv. 1. not at all, far from, by no means. Emphatic negative, implying quite the reverse, while 'non' simply denies; mostly with advv. and adjj.; less freq. with pronouns; rarely with verbs. Thus haud aliter, haud procul, haud sane; haud away one's spear, i.e. give up the contest. 2. (as a symbol of ownership) the spear set upright in the court of the Centumvirs: centeni moderatrix iudicis hasta. Hence (meton.) the centumvirs' court or tribunal, of which the spear was the emblem; centum gravis hasta virorum; iudiciale hastae-iudicium centumvirale: centumviralem hastam cogere, to assemble the centumvirs' court, open their court. 3. a spear as the sign of a public auction (orig. the symbol of booty taken in war, set up in the camp at the sale); hence, hasta publica or hasta, a public sale or auction: sub hastâ venire, or hastae subici, to be sold by public auction; ius hastae, the right of selling property by public auction, a forum sui. Tac.: hasta Caesaris, the sale of (confiscated) property by Caesar's orders; censoria, a letting of the public revenues by the censors to the highest bidder for a space of five years; convenere ad eos (censores) frequentes hastae huius generis adsueverant, who had been accustomed to engage in contracts of this kind. 4. = hasta caelibaris, a spear with the point of which the bridegroom parted the bride's hair on the marriage-day (perhaps symbolical of capture in war): comat virgineas hasta recurva comas, Ov. Fast. ii. 560. See Paley's note.

hastātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [hasta], I. armed with a spear. As subst. hastāti, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. milites), the pikemen, who formed the first line of the Roman infantry in order of battle. They were the youngest troops. The second line was formed by the 'Principes' (formerly in the front), men in the prime of life. In the third line were the 'Triarii' or 'Pilani,' the veterans. Each of these lines consisted of ten 'manipuli' or 'ordines,' of which there were thirty in a legion: Patres centum denos secrevit in orbes Romulus, hastatos instituitque decem, i.e. totem manipulos hastatorum. See Dict. Ant. Hence, II. of or belonging to the pikemen (hastati): ordo hastatus, a company of the hastati: decimus ordo hastatus, the tenth company of the hastati. The first centurion of the hastati was styled Primus Hastatorum (= centurio ordinis hastati primus).

hastīle (ast-), is, n. [hasta], I. the shaft of a spear or javelin. II. (meton.) 1. a spear, pike, javelin. 2. a shaft, pole. 3. an ox-goad. 4. a shoot, sapling.

(1) hau (au), interj. (expressive of fear, caution, confusion, pain, or grief), oh! ah! ha!

(2) hau = haud.

haud (haut; haut sts. before consonants), adv. 1. not at all, far from, by no means. Emphatic negative, implying quite the reverse, while 'non' simply denies; mostly with advv. and adjj.; less freq. with pronouns; rarely with verbs. Thus haud aliter, haud procul, haud sane; haud quisquam; haud scio (hauscio) an. For this phrase, cf. (2) an. 2. (with intensive force) joined to dum, quaquam; haud dum, not at all as yet, not yet; haudquaquam, by no means whatever, not at all.

hauddum, hauddŭquāquam. See haud.

haurĭbam = hauriebam, from haurio.

haurio, īre, hausi, haustum, fut. part. hausūrus, Virg., trans. v. I. draw up (a liquid), lift (water, etc.) in a vessel, draw. II. (meton.) 1. drink up, drain, empty[1] in drinking. 2. draw in, take in, drink in, receive (with the eyes, mouth, ears, etc.): lucem; oculis ignem, i.e. feast the eyes upon; vocem auribus: caelum, i.e. inhale; suspiratum, fetch, heave a sigh. 3. take to, let in, admit. 4. drain out, spill, shed: sanguinem. 5. lay open, rip, pierce (by a great wound). III. draw blood from, like Homeric ἀφύσσειν: latus gladio; femur. 6. swallow up, consume, devour. 7. draw all the strength out of, exhaust: exsultantia haurit corda pavor, pavor absorbs, thrills. 8. (of solids) take up, draw up, scoop or scrape up, excavate: cineres haustos; terrae iumurmurat haustae; loca lumini, tears out. III. (fig.) 1. take in with the mind, the affections, etc.), imbibe, conceive; dolorem, borrow, derive, enjoy, indulge in: amorem; studium philosophiae; laudes; aliquid animo, gloat over in fancy, revel in anticipation of. 2. suffer, endure: supplicia, atonin, the cup of punishment; dolorem. 3. end, close, finish, complete: medium sol igneus orbem Hauserat, had completed half his circling course (lit. had consumed), i.e. had reached the meridian; vastum iter. 4. consume, destroy; squander, waste.

haustor, ōris, m. [haurio], a drinker.

haustrum (austr-), i, n. [id.], n. a scoop or bucket attached to a revolving wheel for raising water.

(1) haustus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from haurio.

(2) haustus, ūs, m. [haurio], I. a drawing: aquae. II. (meton.) 1. a drinking in, swallowing, draught: a te decurrit ad meos haustus liquor, i.e. to the place where I drink, Phaedr. 2. (concr.) a drink, draught; a mouthful, Virg.; a handful: harenae, Ov. III. an inhalation: haustus aetherii, breath drawn from aether, i.e. heavenly inspirations or instincts, Virg. IV. (poet.) an eager or earnest gaze; cf. haurio, II. 2.

hausūrus, a, um. See haurio.

haut. See haud.

hāvē, hāvēo. See aveo.

† Hautontīmōrūmĕnos (Haut-), i, Gk. acc. -ŏn, m. [ἑαυτὸν τιμωρούμενος], the Self-Tormentor, the title of a comedy of Terence.

hebdŏmāda, ae, f. [hebdomas], 1. the number seven. 2. seven days.

‡ hebdŏmas, ădis, f. [ἑβδομάς], 1. the number seven. 2. seven days, a week: quarta hebdomas (medical techn. t.) the fourth week or fourth critical period in diseases.

‡ Hēbē, ēs, f. [Ἥβη], the goddess of youth, Youth personified, the cupbearer of the gods and wife of Hercules.

hēbĕnus, hēbĕnum. See ebenus.

hĕbĕo, ēre, intrans. v. I. be blunt, dull, dim. II. (fig.) be dull, sluggish, inactive, languid, heavy, slow.

hĕbĕs, ētis, adj. [hebeo], 1. blunt, (i.e. not sharp), dull: gladius; ictus, that does not penetrate, i.e. ineffectual. As subst. hĕbētia, ium, n. pl. blunt tools. II. (meton.) 1. dull, dim, faint, dead: color. 2. without sensation: aures, hard of hearing; os, i.e. without appetite. 3. without smell or flavour, scentless, insipid. III. (fig.) dull, obtuse, wanting in ability, stupid, spiritless, feeble, languid, heavy, slow, without vigour. Compar. hebetior; superl. hebetissimus.

hĕbesco, ĕre, [incept. hebeo], intrans. v. I. grow blunt, dull, dim, faint. II. (fig.) lose brilliancy, become languid or spiritless, lose energy.

hĕbĕto, āre, āvi, ātum, [hebes], trans. v. I. make blunt or dull, take the edge off a thing; dim, deaden, deprive of lustre, make pale, eclipse. II. weaken, lessen, impair, render faint, make indistinct, extinguish: visus; flammas. III. (fig.) dull, blunt, make stupid: hebetantem pectora Lethen, i.e. that makes the memory dim.

‡ Hēbraeus, a, um, adj. [Ἑβραῖος], of or belonging to the Hebrews, Hebrew: liquores, i.e. balsam.

Hēbrus (Ebrus), i, m. 1. a river of Thrace, now the Maritza. 2. a Trojan. 3. a handsome youth mentioned by Horace.

Hĕcălē, ēs, f. [Ἑκάλη], a poor old woman who entertained Theseus.

Hĕcătaeus, i, m. a geographer and historian of Miletus; about 500 B.C.

Hĕcătē, ēs, f. [Ἑκάτη], Hecate, a goddess of the lower world, mistress of spells and magic, often identified with Selene (Luna) in heaven, Artemis (Diana) on earth, and Persephone (Proserpina) in the world below. Under the name of Trivia she was worshipped in places where three roads met, being represented with three bodies or three heads; hence the epithets triceps, triformis, tergemina.

Hĕcătēĭus (ēus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hecate: carmina, i.e. magical; Aulis, of Diana, sacred to Diana; idus, i.e. of August, sacred to Diana.

Hĕcătēis, ĭdos, f. adj. of Hecate: herba, i.e. aconite or wolf's-bane.

‡ hĕcătombē, ēs, f. [ἑκατόμβη], a sacrifice of a hundred oxen, a hecatomb.

Hectŏr, ŏris, Gk. acc. Hectŏra, m. [Ἕκτωρ], Hector, the eldest son of Priam and Hecuba, husband of Andromache, the most gallant of the Trojans, finally slain by Achilles, and by him dragged thrice round the walls of Troy.

Hectŏrĕus, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Hector, Hector's. II. (meton.) of Troy, Trojan.

Hĕcŭba, ae, and -ē, ēs, f. [Ἑκάβη], Hecuba, the wife of Priam.

‡ Hĕcўra, ae, f. [ἑκυρά], The Mother-in-law, the title of a comedy of Terence.

hĕdĕra (ēd-), ae, f. ivy, a plant sacred to Bacchus and the Muses. Chaplets of ivy were worn by poets and votaries of Bacchus.

hĕdĕrĭ-gĕr (ēd-), gĕra, gĕrum, adj. [hedera; gero], ivy-bearing.

hĕdĕrōsus (ēd-), a, um, adj. [hedera], full of ivy, ivy-mantled.

Hēdŭi, ōrum, m. pl. See Aedui.

‡ hēdўchrum, i, n. [ἡδύχρουν], a highly scented cosmetic, perfume.

Hēdўmēlēs, ae, m. [ἡδυμελής, sweet singing], a fancy name for a musician or vocalist. Juv.

hei (ei), interj. expressive of sorrow or fear, Heigho! ah! woe! Often with mihi; hei mihi, alas me! woe is me! So, hei mihi misero!

heia, interj. See eia.

helcĭārius, ĭi, m. [helcium, a tow-rope], one who tows a barge, etc., against the stream, a bargee.

Hĕlĕna, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. [Ἑλένη], 1. Helen, daughter of Iuppiter and Leda, and wife of Menelaus. Being carried off by Paris on account of her beauty, she became the cause of the Trojan war. 2. the mother of the Emperor Constantine.

Hĕlĕnor, ŏris, m. a Trojan.

Hĕlĕnus, i, m. a son of Priam, who had the gift of prophecy.

Hĕlernus, i, m. a grove near the Tiber.

‡ Hĕlĭădes, um, f. [Ἡλιάδες, daughters of Helios], the Heliades, sisters of Phaethon, who while bewailing their brother's fate were changed into poplars (or alders), and their tears into amber: nemus Heliadum, a poplar or alder grove; Heliadum lacrimae, i.e. amber-drops, amber: capaces Heliadum crustae, i.e. large cups with raised work (emblemata) in amber.

Hĕlĭcāon, ŏnis, m. Helicaon, the founder of Patavium.

Hĕlĭcē, ēs, f. [ἑλικὴ, from ἑλίσσω, revolve], 1. the constellation of the Great Bear, so called from its apparent revolution round the pole-star. 2. a town of Achaia, destroyed by an earthquake.

Hĕlĭcōn, ōnis, Gk. acc. Hĕlĭcōna, m. Mount Helicon, in Boeotia, sacred to Apollo and the Muses.

Hĕlĭcōnĭădes and Hĕlĭcōnĭdes, um, f. pl. the maidens of Helicon, i.e. the Muses.

Hĕlĭcōnis, ĭdis, f. adj. Heliconian.

Hĕlĭcōnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Mt. Helicon, Heliconian.

‡ hēlĭō-căminus, i, m. [ἡλιοκάμινος], a room exposed to the sun.

Hēlĭŏdōrus, i, m. 1. a surgeon. 2. a rhetorician.

Hēlĭŏpŏlis, is, f. [Ἡλιόπολις, city of the sun], 1. a city of Lower Egypt, the On of the Old Testament. 2. a city of Coele-Syria, at the foot of Anti-Libanus, now Baalbec.

Hĕllas, ădis, f. Hellas, anciently a district of Phthiotis in Thessaly, afterwards almost synonymous with Greece.

Hellē, ēs, f. daughter of Athamas and Nephele, and sister of Phrixus, with whom she fled on the golden ram from her stepmother Ino. She was drowned in the straits called from her the Hellespont.

hellĕbŏrum, hellĕbŏrus. See ell-.

Hellespontĭus (-tĭăcus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Hellespont, Hellespontic. Priāpus was worshipped at Lampsăcus, on the Hellespont.

Hellespontus, i, m. [Ἑλλήσποντος, the sea of Helle], the Hellespont, now the Dardanelles, named after Helle, who was drowned there.

hellŭo (hēllŭo), ōnis, m. a gormandiser, glutton, squanderer.

hellŭor (hēllŭor), āri, ātus sum, [helluo], intrans. and trans. dep. A. (intrans.) gormandise, play the prodigal. B. (trans.) perf. part. used passively; helluatus, squandered.

‡ hĕlops, ŏpis, m. See ellops.

Hĕlōrĭnus or Hēlōrĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Helorus.

Hĕlōrus, i, m., and -um, i, n., a town on the E. coast of Sicily, at the mouth of the Helorus, a wide, sluggish river.

‡ Hēlōtes, um, also Hīlōtae (Il-), ārum, m. pl. [Εἵλωτες, Ἑιλῶται], the Helots, the serfs or bondsmen of Sparta.

hēlŭo, hēlŭor. See hell-.

Helvecōnes, um, m. pl. a branch or clan of the German Ligii.

helvella, ae, f. [dim. helus = olus], a small pot-herb.

Helvētĭcus, a, um, adj. = Helvetius.

Helvētii, ōrum, m. pl. the Helvetians, a Celtic tribe between Mt. Jura, Lake Leman (Lake of Geneva), the Rhone, and the Rhine; their country (Helvetiorum ager) corresponded in part to the modern Switzerland.

Helvētius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Helvetii, Helvetian.

Helvĭi (Helvi), ōrum, m. pl. a tribe of Gallia Narbonensis.

Helvĭna, ae, f. a title of Ceres.

hem (em), interj. expressive of surprise, admiration, joy, grief, or indignation; oho! indeed! well, to be sure! alas! how now! With tibi: hem tibi, here's for you! there you are again! here's a pretty go! Often confused with en in MSS.

‡ hēmĕrŏdrŏmus, i, m. [ἡμεροδρόμος, running the day through], one that can run all day, a courier. Gk. pl. Latinised, hemerodromoe, Nep. Milt. 4. 3.

‡ hēmĭcillus, i, m. [ἡμίκιλλος, half an ass], a mule; a term of reproach.

‡ hēmĭcyclĭum, ĭi, n. [ἡμικύκλιον], 1. a semicircle. 2. a semicircular alcove. 3. a semicircular bench or sofa, used for conversations or public lectures. 4. a sundial.

‡ hēmĭna (ēmĭna), ae, f. 1. a measure of capacity = half a sextarius, half a pint. 2. (meton.) a half-pint pot; put for a measure, generally. Pers.

hēmĭnārĭa, ōrum, n. pl. [hemina], presents containing a hemina.

‡ hēmĭtrĭtaeus, i, m. [ἡμιτριταῖος, half three-daily], 1. a semitertian ague or fever. 2. one who has a semitertian ague or fever.

hemo, ōnis, m. archaic form of homo.

‡ hendĕcăsyllăbus, i, m. [ἑνδεκασύλλαβος], a verse of eleven syllables, a hendecasyllable.

Hĕnĕti, ōrum, m. pl. See Veneti.

‡ (1) Hēnĭŏchus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Heniochi (Ἡνίοχοι), a piratical people of Colchis, Heniochian.

‡ (2) Hēnĭŏchus, i, m. [ἡνίοχος, rein-holder, charioteer], the constellation Auriga.

Henna (Enna), ae, f. a town of Sicily, one of the chief seats of the worship of Demeter (Ceres).

Hennaeus (En-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Henna: dea or diva, i.e. Ceres; virgo, i.e. Proserpine.

Hennensis (En-), e, adj. of or belonging to Henna. As subst. m. pl. the men of Henna.

Hŏphaestĭo, ōnis, m. [Ἡφαστίων], a Macedonian general, favourite of Alexander the Great.

‡ heptēris, is, f. [ἑπτήρης (ναῦς)], a war-galley with seven banks of oars.

‡ hēr, hēris, m. [χήρ], a hedgehog, Nemes.

hēra, ae. See era.

‡ (1) Hēraclēa (-ĭa), ae, f. [Ἡράκλεια, city of Heracles or Hercules], 1. a city of Lucania, on the Gulf of Tarentum. 2. an ancient town in the S. of Sicily, said to have been founded by Minos. 3. a town in Thessaly. 4. Heraclea Pontica, a town on the Euxine.

‡ (2) Hēraclēa, ae, (sc. fabula). See Heracleus.

Hēraclēenses (Heraclienses), ĭum, m. pl. the men of Heraclea.

Hēraclēus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. [Ἡράκλειος, Ἡράκλιος], of or belonging to Heracles or Hercules As subst. Hēraclēa, ae, f. (sc. fabula), a legend of Hercules.

Hēraclĭa, Hēracliensis. See Heraclea, Heracleensis, which are less correct in form.

Hērāclītus, i, m. [Ἡράκλειτος], 1. the weeping philosopher of Ephesus, of the Ionian school (about B.C. 513). 2. an Academic philosopher of Tyre, pupil of Clitomachus. 3. an ambassador sent by Philip to Hannibal.

Hēraclĭus, a, um. See Heracleus.

(1) Hēraea, ae, f. a town in Arcadia.

(2) Hēraea, ōrum, n. pl. [τὰ Ἡραῖα], the festival of Hera (Iuno).

herba, ae, f. [perhaps=φορβή; Curtius, 300], springing vegetation; an herb, a plant, weed; vegetation, herbage, grass, the sward, dried grass; a blade, stalk; herba veneni, a poisonous herb (gen. of description or definition): Sabina, i.e. savin, a kind of juniper, used for sacred and medicinal purposes: femina cauitiem Germanis inficit herbis, with lotions made from German plants, i.e. with a hair-wash for dyeing the hair a gold colour, the flaxen or auburn hair of the Germans being much admired by Roman ladies; in pl. often (poet.) medicinal herbs, simples.

herbesco, ĕre, [incept. herba], intrans. to form into grass or green blades.

herbĭdus, a, um, adj. [herba], full of grass, grassy, covered with herbage or vegetation.

herbĭfer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [herba; fero], bringing forth grass or herbs, grassy.

herbĭ-grădus, a, um, adj. [herba; gradior], going on the grass.

herbōsus, a, um, adj. [herba], full of grass, grassy, rich in herbage, grass-grown.

herbŭla, ae, f. [dim. herba], a little herb, small plant.

‡ Hercēus, i, m. [Ἑρκεῖος, belonging to the front court (ἕρκος)], Hercean; epith. of Zeus (Iuppiter), the protector of the house and enclosure. In pure Lat., Iuppiter Penetralis.

hercisco (ercisco), ĕre, [incept. of obsol. hercio; Sanscr. root HAR-, seize; Gk. χερ, χείρ; cf. heres, hereus], trans. v. lit. grasp, take, (legal technn. t.) divide an inheritance (familiæ). A coheir dissatisfied with his share could bring an action against his coheredes for a division of the whole property bequeathed. See Ramsay, p. 259.

herctum (erctum), supine of obsol. hercio [Sanscr. root HAR-, seize; cf. hercisco], only in the combination herctum (erctum) ciere, to summon, to divide (an inheritance), claim a division of property bequeathed. Cf. hercisco.

Hercŭlānensis, e, adj.= (1) Herculaneus.

Hercŭlāněum, i, n. a Campanian town near Naples, destroyed by an eruption of Vesuvius, A.D. 79.

(1) Hercŭlānĕus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Herculaneum.

(2) Hercŭlānēus (-ānus), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hercules. Herculeum: pars, i.e. the tenth part, which was offered to Hercules.

hercŭlē. See Hercules.

Hercŭlēs, is, (Herculei, Catull.), m. [Ἡρακλῆς], Hercules, the famous hero and demigod, son of Iuppiter and Alcmena, renowned for his labours and his strength; also, like Mercury, the god of lucky finds and treasure trove. Tithes of spoil and gain were offered to him; hence, facere alicuem Herculem, to pay one a tenth part. He was represented with a club and lion's skin. Herculis Columnae, the Pillars of Hercules, i.e. Calpe on the Spanish, Abyla on the African side, of the Strait of Gibraltar. In oaths or conversations mēhercŭles, mehercŭle, with abridged forms mehercle, hercle, ets. Hercŭle, hercŭles (voc.), (for me Hercules iuvet, or me, Hercule, iuvet), so help me Hercules! by Hercules!

Hercŭlĕus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hercules, Herculean: corona, i.e. of poplar; umbra, i.e. of the poplar tree, sacred to Hercules; amictus, i.e. the lion's skin; Tarentum, i.e. where Hercules was worshipped or (?) founded by Il.; fretum, or gurges, i.e. the Strait of Gibraltar; so Herculeae metae or columnae, the Pillars of Hercules, Calpe and Abyla, on either side of the Strait of Gibraltar; gens, i.e. the Fabii, who claimed descent from Hercules.

Hercȳnĭus (Orcyn-), a, um, adj. Hercynian; only with silva or saltus. The Hercynian Forest embraced all the mountain country of Germany. As subst. Hercynia, ae, f. (sc. silva), the Hercynian Forest.

Herdōnēa (-ĭa), ae, f. an Apulian town destroyed by Hannibal.

hērē or hĕrī, adv. [for hes-i; cf. hes-ternus; Gk. χθές], 1. yesterday. 2. (meton.) a short time ago, but the other day; hodie atque heri, to-day or yesterday. The form "here," which occurs once only in Cic., was the regular form in post-Augustan writers.

hērēdĭtārius, a, um, adj. [heredium], of or relating to an inheritance, inherited, hereditary.

hērēditas, ātis, f. [heres], I. heirship, inheritance. II. (meton.) the property inherited, an hērēdĭum, ĭī, n. [id.], an inherited estate.

hēres (not haeres), ēdis, m. and sts. f. [Sanscr. root HAR-, seize; Gk. χερ, χειρ; cf. herus], I. an heir; an heiress: ex asse, sole heir; secundus (substitutus, or proximus), the second heir, reversionary or next heir, in case the heir first named died, or declined the inheritance, or became disqualified. II. (meton.) 1. an owner. 2. a successor: gemino cervix herede valentior, i.e. the neck (of the Lernaean Hydra) that gathered strength from the pair (of heads) that grew in the place of every head cut off. III. (fig.) an inheritor of a name, quality, etc., one who succeeds to or is heir to: aviti nominis; fraudis; criminis. Ov.

hēri, adv. See here.

hērĭfŭgă. See erifuga.

hērĭlis (better ērĭlis), e, adj. [herus (erus)], of the master or mistress of a family, the master's, the mistress's: filius, the young master, Ter.; metus, fear of (inspired by) a master.

Hērĭlus (Ērŭlus), ī, m. a king of Praeneste.

Hermaeum, ī, n. [Hermes], 1. a temple or chapel of Hermes. 2. a summer-house, so called. Suet. Claud. 3. a promontory in N.E. Africa.

Hermagora (-as), ae, m. 1. a Greek rhetorician of Rhodes, of the time of Cicero. 2. a Greek rhetorician who taught at Rome in Augustus's time.

Hermandĭca, ae, f. a Spanish town, probably the modern Salamanca.

‡ Hermăphrŏdītus, ī, m. (Ἑρμαφρόδιτος], I. a son of Hermes and Aphrodite, whose body was united with that of the nymph Salmacis. II. (meton.) that unites both sexes, an hermaphrodite.

‡ Hermăthēna, ae, f. [Ἑρμῆς + Ἀθηνᾶ], a bust with two faces, one of Hermes, one of Athene; or, more probably, a quadrangular pedestal (see Hermes, II.), with a head or bust of Athene (Minerva) on the top.

‡ Hermĕrăclēs, is, m. [Ἑρμῆς + Ἡρακλῆς], a double bust of Hermes and Hercules; cf. Hermathena.

‡ Hermĕrōs, ōtis, m. a quadrangular pedestal with a bust of Eros on the top. Cf. Hermathena.

Hermēs, ae, m. [Ἑρμῆς], I. Hermes, identified with Mercury. II. (meton.) 1. a Mercury; a bust supported on a quadrangular pedestal: truncо simillimus Hermae. See Rich. 2. a figurehead, dummy, blockhead. III. a noted gladiator of Martial's day.

(1) Herminius, ĭī, m. 1. an Etruscan. 2. a Trojan warrior.

(2) Herminius Mons, the chief mountain range of Lusitania.

Hermiŏnē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. [Ἑρμιόνη], 1. the daughter of Menelaus and Helen. 2. = (2) Harmonia.

Hermiōnes (Herminōnes), um, m. pl. the name given by Tacitus to the tribes of Central Germany.

Hermŏgĕnēs, is, m. [Ἑρμογένης], 1. a banker in Cicero's time. 2. M. Hermogenes Tigellius, a noted musician of Horace's day. 3. a Greek rhetorician of Tarsus, A.D. 161-180.

Hermundŭri, ōrum, m. pl. a Germanic people, neighbours of the Chatti, in what is now Northern Bavaria.

Hermus, ī, m. a river of Lydia, famed for its golden sands like the Pactolus.

hernĭa, ae, f. [cf. hira], a rupture, hernia.

Hernĭci, ōrum, m. pl. [Sabine = hirna = saxum], a people of Latium, of Sabine origin.

Hernĭcus, a, um, of or belonging to the Hernici. As subst. Hernĭcus, ī, m. a Hernician.

hernĭōsus, a, um, adj. [hernia], having hernia, ruptured.

Hērō, ūs, f. a priestess of Aphrodite at Sestos, beloved by Leander of Abydos.

Hērōdēs, is, m. 1. Herod, king of Iudaea; esp. Herod the Great, who reigned B.C. 39-4. 2. a freedman of Atticus.

Hērōdŏtus, ī, m. the Greek historian, called 'the father of history,' born at Halicarnassus, B.C. 484.

‡ hērōĭcus, a, um, adj. [ἡρωικός], of or relating to mythic heroes or demigods, heroic, mythic. As subst. hērōĭca, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. carmina), heroic or epic poems.

‡ hērōĭnē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. [ἡρωΐνη], a heroine, demi-goddess.

‡ hērōis, ĭdis, Gk. acc. pl. hērōĭdās; dat. pl. hērōĭsĭn, f. [ἡρωΐς], a heroine, demigoddess. Ovid's imaginary letters from women of the heroic age to various heroes are called Heroides or Heroidum Liber.

Hērōphĭlē, ēs, f. a priestess of Apollo.

‡ hērōs, ōis, acc. sing. hērōă; acc. pl. hērōăs, m. [ἥρως], I. 1. a mythic hero, demigod, such as Hercules, Achilles, Aeneas, etc. 2 (fig.) a man of extraordinary virtue or great renown, a godlike man, hero. II. (in app. = adj.) of or belonging to a hero or heroes, heroic: heroas sensus efferre (for heroicos), to bring to one's task heroic sentiments, i.e. try to write an Epic. Pers.

(1) Hērōus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hero.

(2) ‡ hērōus, a, um, adj. [ἡρῷος], of or belonging to a hero or heroes, heroic: versus or carmen, heroic, epic verse. As subst. hērōus, ī, m. an heroic or epic verse, an hexameter verse or metre.

Hersē, ēs, f. a daughter of Cecrops.

Hersĭlĭa, ae, f. the wife of Romulus.

Hertha, ae. See Nerthus.

hērus, ī. See erus.

hervum, ī. See ervum.

Hēsĭŏdus (-ēus), a, um, adj. of Hesiod, Hesiodic.

Hēsĭŏdus, ī, m. a famous Greek poet of Ascra in Boeotia (about B.C. 735), author of the Works and Days and a Theogony, didactic poems, both extant.

Hēsĭŏnē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. a daughter of Laomedon, king of Troy, rescued by Hercules from a seamonster.

Hespĕrĭa, ae, f. (sc. terra), the Western Land, Hesperia; poet. for Italy (as viewed from Greece); and sts., in the mouth of a Roman, for Spain: Hesperia sospes ab ultima, Hor. C. i. 36, 4.

Hespĕrĭdēs, um, f. pl. the Hesperides, daughters of Hesperus, keepers of the garden with golden apples in the far west, guarded by a dragon. Hesperidum, Insulae, islands in the Atlantic, generally identified with the Cape Verde Islands.

Hespĕrĭo, ēs, f. a daughter of the river Cebren, killed by a snake bite.

‡ Hespĕrĭs, ĭdis, f. adj. [ἑσπερίς], of the west, western; Italian: aquae.

‡ Hespĕrĭus, a, um, adj. [ἑσπέριος], of the west, western, Hesperian; of Italy, Italian. As subst. Hespĕrĭa, ae, f. (sc. terra). See Hesperia.

Hespĕrus (-ŏs), ī, m. [ἕσπερος], I. the son of Cephalus and Aurora; acc. to some, the son of Iapetus and Asia. II. the Evening Star; evening. In pure Lat. Vesper. Also called Lucifer, when a morning star.

hesternus, a, um, adj. [for hesternus; see here], I. of yesterday, yesterday's yester-, one day old: nox, yesternight; hesternum oscitare (cogn. acc.), yawn off the yawn, i.e. the debauch, of yesterday, Pers. II. (meton.) 1. newly made, recently adopted: Quirites, Lar. 2. unchanged from yesterday: crines, Propert.; coma, Ov.

Hesus, ī, m. See (2) Esus.

‡ hētaerĭa, ae, f. [ἑταιρία], a (political) club or society, a guild, brotherhood.

‡ hētaerĭcē, ēs, f. [ἑταιρική, sc. ἵππος, the 'Companions' cavalry], a body of horse-guards of the Macedonian kings.

‡ hētĕrŏclītus, a, um, adj. [ἑτερόκλιτος], varying in declension, heteroclite.

Hetrūria, Hetruscus. See Etr-.

heu ! interj. expressive of grief or pain, ah! alas! oh! either absol. or with acc.; rarely with nom. or voc.

heus ! interj. in calling a person's attention, ho there! ho! harkee! hallo! see there! why!

‡ hexaclīnon, i, n. [ἑξάκλινον], a dining-sofa for six persons.

‡ hexămĕter, tri, m. [ἑξάμετρος, of six measures], a verse consisting of six feet, a hexameter.

‡ hexăphŏrum, i, n. [ἑξάφορον], a sedan or palanquin carried by six men.

‡ Hexăpўlon, i, n. [ἙξάπυλονΣ], a gate in Syracuse, on the N.W. side.

‡ hexēris, is, f. [ἑξήρης (ναῦς)], a galley with six banks of oars on each side.

hiātus, ūs, m. [hio], I. a gaping, an opening, a yawning mouth, a cleft, chasm, aperture, gulf, abyss: oris, wide open jaws; personae pallentis hiatum, the wide-open mouth of the pale mask; cf. hio, B. 1, and see Rich, pp. 211. II. mouthing, bluster: quid dignum tanto feret hic promissor hiatu? III. (fig.) 1. an eager desire after a thing, greed: praemiorum, Tac. 2. (grammat. techn. t.) h atus, the concurrence of two vowels in two different words without elision.

Hībēr (Ĭbēr), ēris, m. [Ἴβηρ], an Iberian, the Greek name for Spaniard. More freq. in pl. Hībērēs (Ib-), um.

Hībērēs, um. See Hiber.

Hībēri, ōrum. See (2) and (3) Hiberus.

Hībēria (Ib-), ae, f. 1. Iberia, a district of Spain near the Ebro; (poet.) Spain. 2. a region of Asia, between Albania and Colchis, now part of Georgia: venenorum ferax, Hor. Epod. v. 21.

Hībērĭācus (-icus), a, um, adj Iberic, Spanish.

Hībērĭna (Ib-), ae, f. a Spanish woman.

hībernācŭlum, i, n. [hiberno], 1. a winter apartment, winter residence. 2. in pl.: tents or huts for wintering in, winter quarters, a winter camp.

Hībernĭa, ae, f. Ireland. Also called Ierne, Iverna, Iuverna.

hīberno, āre, āvi, ātum, [hibernus], intrans. v. 1. pass the winter, winter; esp. of troops, to leave or keep within winter quarters. 2. (poet.) be stormy or tempestuous: mare. Pers.

hībernus, a, um, adj. [for hiemrinus; (Gk. χειμερινός); cf. hiemps], I. of or belonging to winter, wintry, cold, winter's, winter-: legiones, i.e. lying in winter quarters; lycia, i. e. where Apollo winters, his winter home; pulvis, i.e. a dry winter, Virg. As subst. hīberna, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. castra), 1. winter quarters, a winter encampment. 2. (poet.) = hiemes, winter seasons, winters: ternaque transierint Rutulis hiberna subactis, Virg. II. (meton.) stormy, tempestuous: mare; ventus.

(1) Hībērus (Ib-), i, m. the river Ebro in Spain.

(2) Hībērus (Ib-), a, um, adj. Iberian; Spanish: piscis, the mackerel or tunny; pastor, i.e. Western ocean. As subst. Hībērus (Ib-), i, m. an Iberian, Spaniard.

(3) Hībērus (Ib-), a, um, adj. of Iberia (in Asia), Iberian; cf. Hiberia, II. As subst. Hībērus (Ib-), i, m. an Iberian, Georgian.

‡ hĭbiscum, i, n., also -us, i, f. [ἰβίσκος], the marsh-mallow, or, possibly, a species of willow; a plant with a strong fibrous stalk used in basket-work: haedorum gregem viridi compellere hibisco, (poet. dat.=ad hibiscum), to the green mallow, i.e. on which they were to feed; others, to drive with a mallow-switch; but compello is always to drive to. 2. the parsnip, Pliny.

hībrĭda (hȳbr-), ae, m. f. a mongrel, hybrid, half-breed, cross-breed. Cross-breeding was associated with inferior intelligence.

(1) hīc (hīc), haec, hōc, demonstr. pron. and adj. (of what is near the speaker in place, time, or thought, [pronominal root I, with demonstr. suffix -ce; cf. ecce], I. 1. this (of a person or thing just mentioned): hic finis Priami fatorum; haec tristia dicta reportat: hoc idem fit in reliquis civitatibus. As subst. of all genders, this person, man, woman, or thing; he, she, it: solus hic inflexit sensus; huius in adventum iam nunc Caspia regna Responsis horrent divum; his actis, aliud genitor secum ipse volutat: with adverbial force: redditus his primum terris, safe brought to land first at this spot. A more emphatic form is hīce, haece, hōce (not hiccine, haeccine, hoccine; gen. pl. horunc, harunc, in Scenic poets for horumce, harumce; also with interrog. particle -ne, hicine, haecine, hōcine (not hiccine, haeccine, hoccine), this . . here: huiusce rei iudicium; hicine vir patriae natus usquam nisi in patria moretur? 2. (in forensic language) my client (the man near me); while ille, iste, are used of the opponent: nihil est quod in hac causa dici possit vehementius, where is nothing which can be more emphatically stated on our side of the case, on my client's side. 3. such, of such a kind, so constituted or disposed (referring to persons or things before mentioned): non his iuventus orta parentibus; Aeson miratur, et olim Ante quater denos hunc se reminiscitur annos; ne fueris hic tu. II. opposed to ille, iste, less freq. to, hic, alter, ipse, etc.; 1. this, the last named, the nearer; the former of two persons or things previously mentioned: Caesar beneficiis magnus habebatur, integritate vitae Cato, . . . illius (of the former) facilitas, huius constantia laudabatur. Sts. hic . . . ille, this . . . that, the one . . . the other, one . . another; so (poet.) hic . . . hic, hic . . . alter: est ut . . . hic generosior Descendat in Campum petitor, Moribus hic (another) melioribus fama Contendat, illi (a fourth) turba clientium Sit major, occupat hic collem ferring to that which is nearer to the speaker in time or in order of thought, though not in order of words; the first named, the former: cave Catoni anteponas ne istum quidem ipsum, quem Apollo sapientissimum iudicavit (sc. Socratem); huius enim (i.e. Catonis) facta, illius (i.e. Socratis) dicta laudantur: Sic deus et virgo est; hic spe celer, illa timore: melior tutiorque est certa pax quam sperata victoria; haec (sc. pax) in tua, illa (sc. victoria) in deorum potestate est. Sts. (of two persons of the same name); the nearer to the speaker in time, the younger; while ille is the elder, Cic. Arch. § 16; Verr. v. 25. III. (of time); 1. referring to the present; of this time, now living, recent, now customary, ordinary, familiar, everyday, contemporary, present, actual: hic dies, to-day: hoc tempore, at the present time, in this our day, nowadays; hi consules, the present consuls; paulo supra hanc memoriam, a little before the present generation, before our own time; minus aptus acutis Naribus horum hominum, of modern critics; quid hoc populo (abl. abs.) obtineri potest? what measure can be carried, the people being such as it now is? i.e. with a people like the present? haec (n. pl.), the existing state of things; haec omnia, everything around us; sts. our empire. 2. (less commonly) referring to what follows; the following: his rerum ad eum Caesar legatos cum his mandatis mittit, with instructions as follows; genus hoc est ex essedis pugnae; deliberatio autem omnis haec est, . . . quid mihi agendum putes, the question is entirely to the following effect, viz. what I am to do. V. accompanied with gesture (like ὅδε in Gk., δεικτικῶς); this, this . . here: tibi erunt parata verbera, huic homini (=mihi) verbera; quod si militibus parces, erit hic quoque miles: tu si hic sis aliter sentias, if you were myself, i.e. in my place; haberes Magnum adiutorem, posset qui ferre secundas, Hunc hominem velles si tradere, your humble servant here, i.e. me; vin tu huic seni auscultare? hice oculis egomet vidi, with my own eyes; tu quod te lacrimis purges . . . huius (gen. of price or value) non faciam, I shall not value it at this much, I shan't care this much (i.e. a snap of the fingers) for it. V. introducing a relative sentence, the sentence denoting the object, cause, or effect; this, it, the same, that; sts. almost=talis; quam quisque norit artem, in hac se exerceat; in his libris, quos legistis; hoc spectant leges, ut nemini ess civium coniunctionem; hoc mihi proficiari (historic infin.) quod, etc., they were constantly at a disadvantage in this point, that, etc.; hoc solitii sibi proponebant, quod se amissa reciperatores confidebant, they comforted themselves with the assurance that they would regain what they had lost; si unumquodque membrum sensum hunc haberet, ut posse putaret se valere;

hoc a te peto, ut subvenias huic meae sollicitudini, what I ask of you is this, to relieve my anxiety in this matter. VI. in various phrases; hic et hic, this and that; hic et ille, this or that; neque hoc neque illud, neither this nor that, neither the one nor the other; his paucis diebus, within a few days from now, within the last few days; hic terror omnes in Q. Fabium convertit (=huius rei terror): hanc habebo gratiam illi (=huius rei gratiam); hāc irā (=de hac re), in anger at this; hoc studium, my taste for this; mitte hanc de pectore curam; hoc iam luciscit, it is just daybreak; si hoc solum pugnatur, if this is all we are contending for; hoc praemii (partit. gen.) this much reward, compensation to this extent; hoc commodi est, quod . . . there is this much advantage, that, etc.; quid hoc hominis est? what sort of party is this? hoc noctis, at this time of night; haec tanta multitudo, such a multitude as this; hoc tantum laboris, this great amount of labour, all this labour; hoc Thrasybuli, the following expression of Thrasybulus; hoc illud est quod . . . a Solone responsum est, this is the gist, or the meaning, of the answer given by Solon; hoc habet, he is wily: cf. habeo, A. 19; hoc age, be attentive; cf. ago, III. 3; hoc illud, germana, fuit? was this the thing you meant? hoc est (erat) quod . . . ? is (was) this the reason why? is (was) it for this that, etc? hoc est (introducing an explanation), that is to say, that is, namely, what I mean is; honos amplissimus familiae tuae, hoc est, consulatus parentis tui. VII. hoc, neuter abl. sing.; 1. abl. of measure or amount of difference; by this much, by so much; the . . . the more (with comparatives): hoc facilius, the easier; quo quisque est sollertior, hoc docet iracundius et laboriosius; hoc maior gloria est, quod solus vici, all the greater. 2. (=idcirco), on this account, in this respect, herein: non tuus hoc capiet veniet plus ac meus; (followed by quod or quia); hoc praestaret (Plancius), quod ei minus invideretur, he would have the advantage in this respect, that he would be less envied than he is.

(2) hīc (hei̯c), and, with interrog. particle -ne, hicinē, local adv. (1.) hic, in this place, here; sts. there (of a place just mentioned): hic haedos depone. With partit. gen.; hic viciniae, in this neighbourhood, hereabouts. Hic . . . illic, here, . . . there, in one place, . . . in another. So hic . . . hic, (=apud me, apud nos), with us: nullae hic insidiae. II. 1. in this affair, in reference to this matter, in this particular, in these circumstances, herein, here: hic quantum in bello fortuna possit . . . cognosci potuit. 2. (of persons) in people of this kind, in these cases: nil pudet hic, ubi opus est. Ter. III. (of time) at this point, at this moment, now, at this particular time, hereupon, then, thereupon: hic primum Aeneas sperare salutem Ausus; hic tum, thereupon; hic iam, at this crisis.

hicce, haecce, hocce. See (1) hic, I. 1.

hiccine, haeccine, hoccine. See (1) hic, I. 1.

hīce, haece, hōce. See (1) hic, I. 1.

Hīcētāōnĭus, a, um, adj. of, i.e. son of, Hicetaon, a son of Laomedon, king of Troy: Thymoetes.

Hīcētas, ae, m. 1. a tyrant of Leontini. 2. a philosopher of Syracuse.

(1) hīcine, haecine, hōcine. See (1) hic, I. 1.

(2) hīcine, adv. See (2) hic.

hicne, haecne, hocne, a shorter form of (1) hicine.

hiēmālis, e, adj. [hiemps], 1. of or belonging to winter, wintry, winter-. 2. stormy, tempestuous.

hiēmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.), 1. pass the winter, winter; (of troops) keep in winter quarters. 2. (of things) be wintry, stormy, cold, frozen. 3. unipers. hiemat, fut. hiemabit, there is wintry weather, it is wintry, stormy, etc. B. (trans.) freeze, congeal.

Hiempsal, ālis, m. a son of Micipsa, and king of Numidia.

hiemps (hiēms), hiēmis, f. [Sanscr. himas, snow; cf. χεῖμα, χιών, and Himalaya], lit. the snowy season; 1. the winter-time, winter: soi hiemem contingit equis, i.e. the winter signs of the zodiac, the Wintry constellations, initā hieme, at the commencement of winter. Often with anni added: hieme anni, in the winter season. II. (meton.) 1. rainy or stormy weather; a storm, tempest. 2. (of waves, hail, raging flame, missile weapons, etc.) vehemence, violence: ferrea, i.e. a volley of iron missiles. 3. cold, shivering, chilliness, coolness: tu spectas hiemem succincti lentus amici; letalis, the chill of death. 4. (poet.) a winter—a year: hic me quarta fatigat hiemps. III. (fig.) 1. vehemence, violence: rerum. 2. clouding over, coolness: mutati amoris. IV. (personified) the Storm: nigram Hiemi pecudem (mactavit).

Hĭĕro (-ōn), ōnis, m. 1. a tyrant of Syracuse (B.C. 478-467), brother of Gelo. He was visited by Aeschylus, Pindar, and Simonides. 2. king of Syracuse (B.C. 270-216), after the 1st Punic war, the friend and ally of the Roman people.

Hĭĕrocaesărĭa (-ēa), ae, f. a city of Lydia.

Hĭĕrŏcles, is, m. an orator of Alabanda, about B.C. 120.

‡ hĭĕrŏnīca, ae, m. [ἱερονίκης], a victor in the sacred games.

Hĭĕrōnĭcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hiero.

Hĭĕrŏsŏlўma, ōrum, n. pl. [Ἱεροσόλυμα], Jerusalem. From the capture of Jerusalem (B.C. 63) Pompey gained the title of Hierosolymarius.

Hĭlăīra, ae, f. daughter of Leucippus, and the betrothed of Idas.

hĭlăre, adv. [hilaris], cheerfully, cheerily, gaily, merrily. Compar. hilarius.

‡ hĭlăris, e, and hĭlărus, a, um, adj. [ἱλαρός], cheerful, gay, blithe, merry, jocund, joyful, lively. Compar. hilarior. Superl. hilarissimus. As subst. hilăria, ium, n. pl. spring games in honour of Cybele.

hĭlărĭtas, ātis, f. [hilaris], cheerfulness, gaiety, merriment, mirth, glee, joyfulness, liveliness.

hĭlăriter, adv. = hilare. (Late Lat.).

hĭlăro, āre, āvi, ātum, [hilaris], trans. v. 1. make cheerful, cheer, gladden, delight, rejoice. 2. (meton.) enliven, give animation to (e.g. scenery): festaque pellentes hilarent altaria lucos.

hĭlărŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. hilarus], somewhat merry, in gamesome mood.

(1) hĭlărus, a, um. See hilaris.

(2) Hĭlărus, i, m. the name of a freedman.

hĭlla, ae, f., mostly pl. hillae, ārum, [for hirula, dim. hira], 1. the smaller intestines of animals, except men and sheep. II. 1. intestines, entrails, generally. 2. sausages, Hor.

Hĭlōtae (Lōtae), ārum, m. pl. See Helotes.

hīlum, i, n. [cf. nihilum, nihil], the least, a whit, anything, mostly with a neg., nec hilum, neque hilum, not a whit, nothing at all, not in the least.

Hĭmella, ae, m. a tributary of the river Tiber.

Hĭmĕra, ae, f. a town of Sicily on a river of the same name. Ovid, Fasti, iv. 475, has the form Hĭmĕra, ōrum, n. pl.

hinc, adv. [for hince, from hic], I. 1. from here, from this place, hence; thence, from that place, from there. 2. (of persons =ex hoc homine, etc.), from this, from these, from him, from her, from them; from myself; cf. unde. II. 1. on this side, from this side, here. Often repeated, or opposed to illinc; hinc . . . hinc, hinc atque hinc, hinc . . . illinc, on this side . . . on that, here . . . there, on each side, on every side, around; sts. hinc illinc, from this quarter (or) from that, from somewhere or other, from I don't know where; hinc inde, from different quarters. 2. (of cause or origin) from this cause, from this source, hence, on this account, by these means. III. (of time), 1. from this time forth, henceforth, commencing now, hence, from this point, after this, hereupon, next: hinc vocare incipiam; iam hinc, from this point onward; hinc adeo, from this precise point. 2.= abhinc, ago.

hinnĭo, īre, [onomatop.], intrans. v. neigh, whinny.

hinnītus, ūs, m. [hinnio], a neighing, whinnying, a neigh.

hinnŭlĕus, i, m. [hinnus], a young stag or roebuck, a fawn.

hinnŭlus, i, m. [dim. hinnus], a young mule.

‡ hinnus, i, m. [ἴννος], a mule, (by a horse out of a she-ass). Cf. ginnus.

hĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [Sanscr. root GHA-, GHI-; Gk. χα-, χαν-, cf. χαίνω, χάσκω, χάος], intrans. and trans. v., A. (intrans.) 1. to be or stand open, open, chink, gape; (of flowers) open the petals, blow; hiantia lilia, full-blown, wide-mouthed. 2. open the mouth, gape, yawn: inceptus clamor frustratur hiantes, their cry fails them at the first note, and they only gape; leo immane hians, with jaws enormous opened wide. II. (fig.) 1. be agape with wonder, curiosity, or longing, be open-mouthed, be eager, be amazed. 2. (of speech) be badly connected, make an hiatus in speaking or writing. B. (trans.) 1. open the mouth to sing or recite; spout out, mouth: taciti carmen hiare lyrā, to frame the parted lips for song while voiceless is the lyre (of a lifelike statue of Phoebus); fabula seu maesto ponatur hianda tragoedo (with allusion to the aperture in the tragic mask); cf. hiatus. 2. (poet.) spue forth, emit, void: ex ore cruores.

‡ hippăgōgi, ōrum, Gk. acc. hippăgōgŭs, f. pl. [ἱππαγωγοί, sc. νῆες], vessels for carrying horses, cavalry transports.

Hippo, ōnis, m. a city of Numidia.

‡ hippocentaurus, i, m. [ἱππο-κένταυρος], a hippocentaur, a fabulous creature half horse and half man.

Hippŏcōon, ontis, m. 1. one of the Calydonian hunters. 2. a companion of Aeneas.

Hippŏcrătēs, is, m. a famous physician of Cos, born about B.C. 460, died about 357.

‡ Hippŏcrēnē (-ŏ- in Ausonius), ēs, f. [ἱππο-κρήνη, horse-fount], a fountain near Mt. Helicon sacred to the Muses, said to have been produced by a stroke from Pegasus's hoof.

Hippŏdămas, antis, m. the father of Perimele.

Hippŏdămē, ēs, or Hippŏdămīa (-ēa), ae, f. 1. a daughter of Oenomaus, king of Elis, won in marriage by Pelops, who beat her father in a chariot-race. 2. daughter of Adrastus, wife of Pirithoüs, at whose wedding the Centaurs and Lapithae fought.

‡ hippŏdrŏmos, i, m. [ἱππόδρομος], 1. a racecourse, hippodrome. 2. a place laid out for equestrian exercise, a carriage-drive. See Rich; Mayor, Iuv. i. 75.

Hippŏlȳtē, ēs, (-a, ae), f. 1. a queen of the Amazons, wife of Theseus. 2. wife of Acastus, king of Magnesia, who became enamoured of Peleus, but being rejected Hippŏlȳtus, i, m. son of Theseus and Hippolyte, killed by the wiles of his stepmother Phaedra, but afterwards restored to life by Diana. Cf. Virbius.

‡ hippŏmănēs, is, n. [ἱππομανές, horse-heat, horse-rage], hippomanes, 1. a viscous fluid excreted by mares, used as a philtre or love-potion. 2. a viscous fleshy excrescence on the forehead of a newly-dropped foal, used in love-charms. 3. an Arcadian plant, of the spurge kind, supposed to excite rage in horses.

Hippŏmĕnēis, idis, f. a daughter of Hippomenes, i.e. Limone.

Hippŏmĕnes, is, m. son of Megareus, and husband of Atalanta, whom he won by conquering her in a foot-race.

Hippŏnactēus, a, um, adj. of Hipponax, Hipponactean, i e. bitterly satirical.

Hippŏnax, actis, m. a Greek Iambic poet. of Ephesus, noted for his stinging satires.

Hippŏnĭcus, i, m. the father-in-law of Alcibiades.

Hippŏtădes, ae, m. patron., a son of Hippotas, i.e. Aeolus; hence, Hippotadae regnum, i.e. the Aeolian or Lipari Islands, N.E. of Sicily, where Aeolus reigned.

Hippothŏos (-us), ī, m. one of the Calydonian hunters.

‡ hippŏtoxŏtae, ārum, m. pl. [ἱπποτοξόται], mounted archers.

‡ hippūrus, i, m. [ἵππουρος, horsetailed], a sea-fish, perhaps the golden carp.

‡ hir (ĭr), indecl. n. (O. L.), [χείρ; cf. hercisco, heres; with h for χ, as in hiemps, χεῖμα], a hand.

hīra, ae, f. [Sanscr. hirā, vein; cf. hariolus, haruspex, hernia], a gut, intestine.

hircīnus (hirquīnus), a, um, adj. [hircus], of a goat, goat's: folles, goat-skin bellows, windbags.

hircōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], that is or that smells like a goat, goatish; rank, unsavoury.

hircus (hirquus, ĭr-), i, m. I. a he-goat. II. (meton.) 1. a goatish smell under the armpits, rankness. 2. (as an epithet of a lecherous or dirty person), lecher, stinkard.

Hirpīni (Irp-), ōrum, m. pl. a people of S. Italy: in Hirpinis, in the territory of the Hirpini.

(1) Hirpīnus (Irp-), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Hirpini.

(2) Hirpīnus i, m. a famous racer and stud-horse.

hirquīnus, a, um. See hircinus.

hirquus, i. See hircus.

hirsūtus, a, um, adj. [hirsus, another form of hirtus; cf. cornutus, astutus, etc.], I. rough, shaggy, bushy, bristly, prickly. II. (fig.) rough, uncouth, coarse: nihil est Hirtius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. A. Hirtius, consul with Pansa, B.C. 43, was killed with his colleague at the battle of Mutina. The 8th book of Caesar's Gallic War is ascribed to him.

hirtus, a, um, adj. [? akin to horreo], I. rough, hairy, shaggy, bristly. II. (fig.) unpolished, rude, coarse.

hīrūdo, dĭnis, f. [root GHAR-, HAR-, take, grasp; cf. hir, heres, hercisco], a leech, blood-sucker: (fig.) aerarii.

hirundīnēus and hirundīnīnus, a, um, adj. [hirundo], of or belonging to swallows hirundo, dĭnis, f. [? weakened form of χελιδών; Curtius, 199], a swallow.

hisco, ĕre, [incept. hio], intrans. and trans. v., A. (intrans.) 1. gape, open, chink. 2. open the mouth, lips, to speak; stammer, falter, gasp: raris turbatus vocibus hisco. B. (trans.) be fain to utter, falter out, whisper: nec Telamonides hiscere quidquam Ausit: reges et regum facta nervis hiscere, with bated breath to sing upon the lyre; cf. hio, B. 1.

Hispālienses, ium, m. pl. the men of Hispalis.

Hispālis, is, f. [Phoenician, hashephelah, the low ground], a town of Hispania Baetica, now Seville (corrupted from Shephelah).

Hispāni, ōrum, m. pl. the people of Spain, Spaniards.

Hispānia, ae, f. the country of the Hispāni, Spain, including the whole peninsula, which was divided into two provinces, Hispania citerior (i.e. the territory between the Ebro and the Pyrenees) also called Tarraconensis, and Hispania Ulterior, the Southern part, W. of the Ebro, including Baetica and Lusitania. The pl. Hispāniae, often stands for the two provinces.

Hispānicus, a, um, and, adj.= Hispanus.

Hispānĭensis, e, adj. from Spain, living in or born in Spain, happening in Spain; opp. to Hispanus, Spanish-born, thoroughbred Spaniard.

Hispānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Spain or the Spaniards, Spanish. As subst. Hispāna, ae, f. (sc. vestis or lacerna), a Spanish mantle, made of the naturally yellow wool of sheep from the pastures on the Baetis (Guadalquivir).

hispĭdus, a, um, adj. I. rough, shaggy, coarse-haired, hairy, bushy, bristly, prickly: agri, roughened (by the heavy rain), tangled. II. (fig.) unpolished, clownish: auris.

(1) Hister (Ister), tri, m. I. the Danube in its lower part; cf. Danubius. II. (meton. poet.) the dwellers on the Danube, or the country through which it flows.

(2) hister, tri. See histrio.

historĭa, ae, f. [ἱστορία, ditor historiae. II. (meton.) 1. a narrative, account, tale, story, legend, anecdote. 2. (poet.) a subject of history, an historical character: tu quoque uti fieres nobilis historia. Propert.

(1) historĭcē, adv. [historicus], historically.

(2) ‡ historĭcē, ēs, f. [ἱστορικὴ, sc. τέχνη], the explanation of ancient authors, exegesis.

‡ historĭcus, a, um, adj. [ἱστορικός], of or belonging to history, historical; versed in historic lore. As subst. historĭcus, i, m. 1. one who makes historical researches, an antiquarian. 2. an historian.

Histri (Istri), ōrum, m. pl. the people of Istria, Istrians, a warlike Illyrian tribe subdued by the Romans, B.C. 177.

Histrĭa (Istria), æ, f. the country of the Histri, a peninsula at the N. extremity of the Adriatic.

(1) Histrĭcus (Ist-), and Histrus, a, um, adj. of Istria, Istrian.

(2) histrĭcus, a, um, adj. [(2) hister], of or belonging to stage players: imperator, the acting manager.

histrĭo, ōnis, m. [Etruscan form hister, a pantomimic performer, Livy, vii. 2.], I. a stage-player, actor, whether in tragedy or comedy. II. (fig.) a braggart.

histrĭōnālis, e, adj. [histrio], of or belonging to a stage-player or to actors: studium, hired applause of actors (by professional claqueurs). Tac.

histrĭonia, æ, f. (sc. ars), [id.], dramatic art.

histrix, ĭcis. See hystrix.

hĭulcē, adv. [hiulcus], in a gaping manner, with an hiatus: loqui, i.e. to speak in such a manner that the mouth is constantly open, owing to the concourse of vowels.

hĭulco, āre, ātum, [id.], trans. to cause to gape or chink, break into chinks, crack.

hĭulcus, a, um, adj. [hio], I. 1. gaping, open in chinks, cleft, cracking (with heat). 2. (poet.) with active force; cleaving, that rives or dashes to pieces: fulmen, Stat. II. (fig.) 1. of speech; not well connected, forming a hiatus. 2. open-mouthed, eager.

(1) hō, interj. expressing astonishment, oho!

(1) hōc, neut. and abl. sing. of (1) hic.

(2) hōc, adv. = huc.

hŏdiē, adv. [for hoc die, on this day], I. to-day: hodie mane, this morning; nunquam hodie, (colloq. phrase, expressing emphatic negative), never to-day, not . . . surely, indeed . . . not: nunquam hodie fingies. II. 1. at the present day, now, at this time, nowadays. 2. up to the present day, until now: hodieque = hodie etiam, Tac. G. iii. 3. now, at once, immediately: non dices hodie quorsum haec tam putida tendant? are you going to be all day telling me what is the drift of this temptuously, the man, the fellow: tantum esse in homine (=in eo) sceleris nunquam putavi; nōsti os hominis; agnoscit hominem Caesar, remque intelligit; homo meus se in pulpito Totum praesternit, my gentleman, my friend, i.e. the poor fellow. IV. in phrases: inter homines esse (agere); (a) to be in the land of the living, be alive; (b) to have intercourse with the world, live in society: paucorum hominum esse (gen. quality), to pick one's friends, be exclusive in one's friendship, be shy of company; homo sine re, a beggar; monstrum hominis, a monster in human shape; quid illic hominis est? what sort of creature is that there? quid hoc homine faciatis? what are you to do with a fellow like this? hunc hominem vivere si tradere (τόνδ' ἄνδρα), if you would introduce your humble servant, i.e. me; cf. hic, IV.: os hominem sonat, sounds human (cogn. acc., for humanum sonat of prose): homines tui, your folks, your people. VI. in proverbs; (a) Quot homines tot sententiae, many men, many minds, no two heads think alike; (b) Ut homo est, ita morem geras, you must deal with men as you find them.

Hŏmōlē, ēs, f. a mountain in Thessaly.

‡ Hŏmōlōïdēs, um, f. pl. (sc. portae), [= Ὁμολωΐδες πύλαι], the Homolоian Gate in Thebes.

hŏmullus, i, m. [dim. homo], a little man, mannikin; a poor weak mortal.

hŏmuncĭo, ōnis, m. [dim. homo], a petty man, poor mortal, chap, wight, old fellow, fogey.

hŏmuncŭlus, i, m. [dim. homo], a little or weakly man, a poor frail morial, mannikin.

hŏnestas, ātis, f. [honestus], I. 1. honour, reputation, credit, a good name, character, honourable position, respectability, consideration. In pl.,= honores, distinctions, honours, Cic., Mur. 40. 2. (meton. for concr.) in pl.,= homines honesti, notabilities, distinguished persons. Cic. Sest. § 109. II. 1. honourable feeling, honour, integrity, virtue, moral rectitude. 2. (meton.) good grace, beauty: testudinis.

hŏnestē, adv. [id.], I. honourably, respectably: honeste natus, of noble birth . . . with decency, with propriety, with honour, creditably, becomingly, virtuously, morally. Compar. honestius; superl. honestissime.

hŏnesto, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. give honour to, make honourable, give respectability to, honour, dignify, set off, grace, adorn, embellish.

hŏnestus, a, um, adj. [honos, honor], I. regarded with honour, held in honour, honoured, esteemed, respected, respectable, well-born, distinguished, noble, honourable: familia; honesto loco natus; honestae clientae, lady cites to; honesti homines, men of distinction, persons of graced with, distinguished by the faces and (curule) chairs of office, i.e. who had been censors, consuls, praetors, or curule aediles. 2. suited to one's rank: omnium honestarum rerum egens: divitias honestas volebant, Sall. II. 1. that gains, confers, or deserves honour, creditable, praiseworthy, honourable, worthy, virtuous, moral, morally right or justifiable, proper, becoming, decent, respectable, of good character: dona honesta, gifts of honour, rewards for good service, e.g. the hasta pura, phalerae, corona muralis, etc.: ut honestā praescriptione rem turpissimam tegerent; soror; mores; convivium. As subst. hŏnestum, i, n. (=Gk. τὸ καλόν, moral beauty, moral rectitude, morality, virtue, integrity: in coctum generoso pectus honesto. 2. handsome, good-looking, fair, comely, fine: caput; os; asinus. As subst. hŏnestum, i, beauty: nec, si quid honesti est, lactat habetque palam, quaeriti quo turpia celet, Hor. 3. good of its kind, first-rate (like Gk. σπουδαῖος); honesti (sunt) Spadices glaucique (equi), Virg. Compar. honestior; superl. honestissimus.

hŏnor (hŏnōs), ōris, m. I. 1. honour, consideration, repute, esteem, regard, value, respect, in which a person or thing is held; glory, fame: haud equidem tali me dignor honore; magnoque hi (sc. Druidae) sunt apud eos honore, are in great repute; summo in honore esse; cadent Quae nunc sunt in honore vocabula; non caret e nostris ullus honore liber; honori et meritis (alicuius), a common formula in dedications of books; in honorem Iunonis, in honour of Iuno; aliquid honori ducitur, is regarded as an honour, distinction, compliment; exilii honor, honourable exile; malus honor, dishonour, afront. 2. (techn. t.) public honour, magistracy, official position, state office, civil office, public post, preferment, dignity, distinction, honourable position; dat census honores; summus honos, i.e. the consulship; honorum, of honour, consulatus, i.e. of the state offices conferred by the people; amplissimi honores, i.e. the praetorship and consulship; hunc si mobilium turba Quiritium Certat tergeminis tollere honoribus, i.e. the three great offices of state, (curule aedile, praetor, and consul). 3. in phrases; (a) honoris causā, (α) out of respect, with all respect; a formula employed in mentioning living persons of distinction, in order to deprecate all suspicion of sinister motive on the speaker's part in bringing their names forward; quem honoris causā nomino, or, nominatum volo; (β) honoris causā, out of personal regard for a man, out of respect to, for the sake of: non ora ut honoris sui causa laboret; honoris Divitiaci atque Aeduorum causā; (b) praefari or dicere honorem, to use the form coming or distasteful. So also, honos sit auribus, pardon the expression. II. (meton.) 1. honour conferred, a mark of honour; a reward, recompense, meed of praise; a fee, 'douceur' sts. a complimentary legacy; honorem habere alicui, to reward, fee, or recompense a man for service done. 2. (of religious honour) a sacrifice, offering, hymn of praise, worship, praise, reverence, festive rites, honours; sts. funeral rites: templis indicit honorem; meritos aris mactavit honores; mortis honore carentes. 3. adornment, decoration, beauty, lustre, grace, charm: hunc ipsum vitae mortalis honorem . . . relinquo, this crowning glory of my mortality; silvis aquilo decussit honorem, i.e. their leaves; ruris, i.e. fruit, flowers, etc.; laetos oculis adflārat honores; ne armentis quidem suus honor, the herds even have not their usual beauty, i.e. their growth is stunted. 4. (concr.) an office-holder, magistrate, official: cum summus honor (i.e. the consul) finito computet anno Sportula quid referat. IV. personified, Honor or Honos, whose temple, adjoining that of Virtus, was near the Porta Capena.

hŏnōrābilis, e, adj. (honoro), winning honour or esteem, honourable.

hŏnōrārius, a, um, adj. (honor), that is done for the sake of conferring honour, honorary: frumentum, i.e. presented by a province to a Roman governor; tumulus, i.e. a cenotaph; arbiter, i.e. chosen by both parties as a mark of respect. As subst. hŏnōrārium, ii, n. (sc. donum), present made by a person on entering a post of honour: decurionatus; hence, a fee, acknowledgment, bakesheesh.

hŏnōrātē, adv. (honoratus), with honour, honourably.

hŏnōrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from honoro. As adj. 1. held in honour, honoured, respected; honourable, distinguished, illustrious; given by way of honour, complimentary: dies, observed with honour; rus, granted as a mark of honour; ab Achille, = κλυτὸς Ἀχιλλεὺς in Homer. 2. (techn. t.) that has held or holds a state office or offices (honores): praetor; senectus; clari et honorati viri.

Hŏnōriădēs, ae, m. patron. a son or descendant of the Emperor Honorius.

Hŏnōrĭas, ădis, f. patron. a daughter or female descendant of Honorius.

hŏnōrĭfĭcē, adv. (honorificus), with honour or respect, in honourable terms, in an honourable manner. Compar. honorificentius; superl. honorificentissime.

hŏnōrĭfĭcus, a, um, adj. (honor; facio), that does honour, honourable, complimentary. Compar. honorificentior.

hŏnōro, āre, āvī, ātum, (honor), trans. v. hold in honour, honour, respect, reverence; adorn, decorate, embellish, distinguish.

hŏnōrus, a, um, adj. (id.), 1. conferring honour, laudatory, encomiastic, complimentary, honourable. 2. worthy of honour.

hŏnōs, ōris. See honor.

hŏnus, hŏnustus. See onus, onustus.

‡ hoplŏmăchus, i, m. (ὁπλομάχος), one who fights in heavy armour; a gladiator, probably = Samnites.

hōra, ae, archaic gen. horāi, f. (akin to ὥρα), lit. a definite space of time, as fixed by natural laws and revolutions, I. 1. an hour, a 12th part of the natural day (or night), varying in length, according to the time of year with the amount of daylight to be subdivided (see Smith, Dict. Ant.; Ramsay, p. 428): prima hora, i.e. daybreak, sunrise, (about 6 to 7 A.M.); sexta, i.e. noon; prima noctis, i.e. sundown, sunset; sexta noctis, midnight; decima noctis, two hours before daybreak (about 4 A.M.); nuntiare horas, to call out the time of day; hora quota est? what o'clock is it? what's the time of day? hora dicta, the appointed hour; hora momenta, in one short hour; in horas, from hour to hour, every hour, hourly; ad horam venire, to come punctually; horae legitimae, the prescribed hours, i.e. the time beyond which an orator was not allowed to speak; in horam vivere, to live for the (passing) hour, from hand to mouth; omnium horarum homo (amicus), accessible or ready at all times, complaisant, hail fellow well met. 2. (meton.) in pl.: hōrae, ārum, a dial, horologe: videt oscitantem iudicem, . . . mittentem ad horas, sending some one to look at the clock. II. (poet.) time; a time of year, season; mihi forsan tibi quod negārit Porriget hora; sub verni temporis horam; variis mundum temperat horis; suprema, the last moment; crastina, the morrow. III. personified, in pl. Hōrae, ārum, the Hours, the Seasons.

(2) Hōra (Ōra), ae, f. the wife of Quirinus, also called Hersilia.

Hōrātĭa, ae, f. the sister of the Horatii.

(1) Hōrātius, ii, m. a Roman gentile name. 1. Horatii, the three Roman brothers who fought with the three Curiatii from Alba. 2. Horatius Cocles, the defender of the Pons Sublicius. See Cocles. 3. Q. Horatius Flaccus, the poet, author of the Odes, Epodes, Satires, Epistles, and Ars Poetica. Born at Venusia, Dec. 8, B.C. 65, died Nov. 17, B.C. 8.

(2) Hōrātius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Horatius or the Horatii, Horatian.

ripe at barley harvest. 2. barley-like, i.e. puffed up, conceited: rhetor.

hordĕum (ord-), i, n. barley; in pl. grains of barley.

hordiārius, a, um,=hordearius.

hordus, a, um,=fordus, adj. with young.

hŏrĭa (hŭr'ĭa), ae, f. a fishing-boat.

hŏrĭŏla (hŏr-), ae, f. (dim. horia), a small fishing-boat.

‡ hŏrizŏn, ontis, m. [ὁρίζων, bounding (sc. κύκλος)], the horizon.

hornōtĭnus, a, um, adj. [hornus], of this year, this year's.

hornus, a, um, adj. [for hovernus (hic; ver), of this spring; acc. to others, for horinus = ὡρινος, from ὥρα], of this year, this year's.

‡ hōrŏlŏgĭum, ĭi, n. [ὡρολόγιον, hour-teller], a horologe, dial, water-clock.

‡ hōroscŏpus, i, m. [ὡροσκόπος, observing hours], a nativity, horoscope.

horrendus, a, um, gerundive from horreo. As adj. 1. full of horror, terrible, dreadful, awful: neut.= adv. horrendum stridens, fearfully, horribly. As subst. n. pl. horrors, prodigies. 2. hideous, frightful: concilium (Cyclopum). 3. awe-inspiring, dread, venerable: virgo; Sibylla. Virg.

horrens, ntis, pres. part. from horreo. As adj. 1. bristling, rough, prickly, shaggy. 2. awful, gloomy, sombre.

horrĕo, ŭi, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) I. 1. stand erect, stand on end, bristle, be shaggy, prickly, be ruffled, be rough, rugged. II. 1. shake, tremble, shiver, quiver; shiver with cold, freeze. 2. shudder, shiver (with fright). 3. shudder with amazement. 4. have a rough or frightful appearance; be hideous, frightful, unsightly; have a desolate, wretched look. B. (trans., by a stretch of meaning) shudder or be frightened at, be afraid of, dread, loathe.

horresco, ĕre, horrŭi, (incept. horreo), intrans. and trans. v. A. I. (intrans.) stand on end, bristle up, be ruffled, grow rough. II. (meton.) 1. become agitated, shudder, shake, shiver; shake or shudder with fear, tremble. 2. become dark, gloomy, fearful, lower: tempestas. B. (trans., by a stretch of meaning) become terrified at, shudder at, dread: procellas; morsus futuros.

horrĕum, i, n. a storehouse, granary, barn, warehouse, magazine, repository; sts.= apotheca, a store-room for wine.

horrĭbĭlis, e, adj. [horreo], 1. dreadful, terrible, frightful. 2. portentous, amazing, tremendous. 3. rugged, homely: Sabinae. Compar. horribilior.

horrĭdē, adv. [horridus], roughly, without refinement; severely, harshly, sternly. Compar. horridius.

horrĭdŭlus, a, um, adj. [dim. horridus], I. 1. standing on end, projecting, protuberant. 2. rough, rugged, untidy. 3. shivering: comes. II. (fig.) without ornament, unadorned, rude, roughish.

horrĭdus, a, um, adj. [horreo], I. standing on end, rough, shaggy, thick-set, bristling, with projecting points, prickly: grando, full of points, sharp, crisp. II. (meton.) 1. opp. to nitidus; rough in appearance, scraggy, in bad condition, uncouth, ill-kept, slatternly, unseemly, ill-looking, unsightly, hideous: capillus passus, pes nudus, ipse horrida; putator; si magna Asturici cecidit domus, horrida mater, the matrons go into mourning: macies. 2. (of taste) harsh, raw, rough, sharp. 3. shuddering, shivering: si premerem ventosas horridus Alpes: Decembri, in chilling. III. (fig.) 1. rough in manner, rugged, uncouth, rude, boorish, unpolished, blunt, stern, severe, churlish, unpracticable. 2. causing horror, frightful, dreadful, awful, dread, imposing. Compar. horridior.

horri-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [horror; fero], bringing dread, terrifying, terrible.

horrĭfĭcē, adv. [horrificus], in a manner to cause dread, in awe-inspiring wise.

horrĭfĭco, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. 1. make rough, roughen, ruffle, ruffle up: crines. 2. make terrible: galeas ore ferarum et rictu. 3. terrify, affright.

horrĭfĭcus, a, um, adj. [horror; facio], causing terror, terrible, terrific, frightful.

horri-sŏnus, a, um, adj. [horror; sonus], dread-sounding, of awful sound.

horror, ōris, m. [horreo], I. a standing on end, bristling; roughness: comarum. II. (meton.) 1. (of the tingling sensation we call "goosepimples" or "gooseskin"; cf. French, la chair de poule) a trembling, quaking, shaking, shuddering, shivering; tremulous motion, agitation. 2. a chill, cold fit, ague fit: frigidus horror Membra quatit; sts. (poet.) that which makes one shudder with cold, fear, etc.: ferri frigidus horror, the chill of steel which makes one shudder; patrias saevus venit horror ad aures, dread tidings. 3. a shaking or shuddering with fright; dread, terror, horror, awe. 4. a thrill of joy, amazement, etc. 5. religious awe, veneration, dread. 6. (of sound) a dread sound, fearful din: armorum. 7. an object of dread, a terror, bugbear: Scipiades, Carthaginis horror. III. (fig.) roughness, rudeness (of speech).

horsum, adv. [for ho-vorsum: hic; verto], hitherwards, hither, this way.

hortāmen, ĭnis, n. [hortor], an incitement, encouragement, exhortation.

hortāmentum, i, n.= hortamen.

hortātĭo, ōnis, f. [hortor], an encouraging, exhortation, encouragement.

hortātor, ōris, m. [id.], 1. an encourager, exhorter, inciter, suggester, prompter. 2. = κελευστής, a boatswain, cf. pausarius.

hortātrix, trĭcis, f. [hortator], she that encourages, incites, instigates, etc.

(1) hortātus, a, um, perf. part. from hortor.

(2) hortātus, ūs, m. [hortor], encouragement, exhortation, incitement.

Hortensiānus, a, um, adj. of Hortensius, Hortensian.

(1) Hortensĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. Q. Hortensius Hortālus, the famous orator, was a contemporary of Cicero (B.C. 114—52). A lost treatise of Cicero was named Hortensius after the orator.

(2) Hortensĭus, a, um, adj.= Hortensianus.

Hortīnus, a, um, adj. of or from Horta, an Etrurian town on the Tiber.

hortor, āri, ātus sum, [for hortor, freq. of obsol. horior; cf. ὄρνυμι], trans. dep. I. with prepp. ad or in, with ut (ne) and subj., rarely with infin.; also with prep. de, or with acc. of the thing; exhort, encourage, urge strongly, recommend, advise, incite, instigate, cheer on; address (as a leader's men): Metellus cauca (briefly) pro tempore milites hortatus est. Prov. Hortari currentem, to spur the will ng horse. II. (of things) urge, move, prompt.

hortŭlus, i, m. [dim. hortus], a little garden; (poet.) a pleasure garden, Catull. In pl. pleasure-grounds, a pleasaunce.

‡ hortus, i, m. [χόρτος; cf. cohors, heres, hercisco], an enclosure for plants, a kitchen-garden, orchard, vineyard; a garden: irriguo nihil est elutius horto, than (the produce of) a much-watered kitchen garden. In pl. a pleasure garden (with house), park, flower garden, with statues, etc. See Mayor, Iuv. i. 75. Caesar's Gardens, left by his will as a public park to the Roman people, were on the Janiculum.

Hōrus, i, m. the Sun-god of the Egyptians.

hospēs, ĭtis, m., and hospĭta, ae, f. [guest's lord or protector: Germ. Gast, guest, stranger; peti =potis (cf. πόσις, a husband; δεσπότης), I. an entertainer, a host; a hostess. II. (meton., like Gk. ξένος), 1. a guest, a guest-friend, visitor, sojourner; a friend abroad, hereditary or family friend, cf. hospitium. 2. one who is lodged at the public expense, a soldier, or person in the public service, billeted on a family, district, or community: (Asia) sex mensibus imperii nostri nullas meas acceperat litteras (requisitiones), nunquam hospitem viderat. 3. opp. to a native; a stranger, foreigner. III. (fig.) a stranger to something, unacquainted with, ignorant of a matter: vos soli ignoratis, vos hospites in hac urbe versamini, vestrae aures peregrinantur ? IV. =adj. 1. hospitable. 2. strange, foreign. V. in addressing foreigners, like Gk. ξένε : Stranger, Friend, Sir.

(1) hospĭta, ae. See hospes.

(2) hospĭta. See hospitus.

hospĭtālis, e, adj. [hospes], I. of or relating to a host or guest; kindly to strangers, hospitable, friendly, liberal; used for a guest, caedes; umbra; cubiculum, i.e. a guest-chamber ; Iuppiter=Ζεὺς ξένιος. II. foreign. Compar. hospitalior; superl. hospitalissimus.

hospĭtālĭtas, ātis, f. [hospitalis], hospitality.

hospĭtālĭtĕr, adv. [id.], hospitably, as a guest.

hospĭtĭum, ĭi, n. [hospes], the relation of host and guest, the bond between those who stood in the relation of hospites; hereditary or family friendship with a foreign family or state, friendly alliance, friendly relations, amity: hospitio Ariovisti utebatur, was on friendly terms with ; hospitium atque amicitia, hereditary and personal friendship: hospitium cum aliquo facere, or iungere, to form a league of hospitality, a private treaty of friendship, or friendly alliance, with a person. See Ramsay, pp. 85-87. 2. reception of strangers or guests, entertainment, hospitality, welcome. II. 1. a hospitable resort, place of entertainment for guests or strangers, a lodging, inn, guest-chamber ; a villa, free quarters : terra . . . Hospitium antiquum Troiae, the hospitable resort of old for Troy, a land of welcome of old. 2. a retreat, place of shelter.

hospĭtus, a, um, adj. [irreg. from hospes], 1. stranger, strange, foreign. 2. hospitable, friendly, bidding welcome to. [Only in f. sing. and n. pl.].

hostĭa, ae, f. [(2) hostio], a victim for sacrifice ; properly, a peace-offering to avert the wrath of the gods. Such victims were usually the domestic animals, but the term includes human sacrifices. Full-grown victims (hostiae maiores) were bulls, cows, sheep, swine ; while immature animals, such as calves, lambs, kid, porkets, were called hostiae lactentes.

hostĭcus, a, um, adj. [hostis], of or belonging to an enemy, hostile. As subst. hosticum, i, n. the enemy's country.

hostĭlis, e, adj. [id.], I. of or belonging to an enemy, hostile, proceeding from an (the) enemy, the enemy's : terra; metus, fear of (i.e. inspired by) the enemy. In sacrificial language, pars hostilis, the part of the victim's liver that related to the enemy, opposed to pars familiaris, Lucan, i. 622. II. usual with an enemy, hostile : odium ; hostilem in modum ; hostilia facere, to act like an enemy ; hostilia audere, venture on acts of hostility ; hostilia incendia, the burning of enemy's property. III. of or belonging to war, warlike, martial : hostilis habitus, military dress. Hence, IV. unfriendly, inimical, hostile : hostilis animus, unfriendly feeling.

hostĭlĭtĕr, adv. [hostilis], like an enemy, in hostile fashion, hostilely.

(1) Hostĭlĭus, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. 1. Hostus Hostilius, who fell fighting against the Sabines in the reign of Romulus. 2. his grandson, Tullus Hostilius, 3d king of Rome (B.C. 679-630).

(2) Hostĭlĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to a Hostilius : curia, built by (Tullus) Hostilius.

(1) hostĭo, īre, trans. v. make even, requite, recompense.

(2) hostĭo, īre, trans. v. strike =ferio.

hostis, is, m. f. [root hos-; cf. hospes], lit. one who is fed, a guest ; then, a foreigner, stranger ; I. 1. a foreign enemy, an enemy of the state, or the country, an enemy in war ; opp. to inimicus, a private or personal enemy] ; a foe ; the enemy (collectively, either sing. or pl.) : hostem aliquem iudicare, to declare a person a public enemy, an outlaw ; aliquem in hostium numero habere (ducere), to regard as an enemy. II. (meton.) an enemy, opponent, adversary, antagonist, a natural foe.

hŭc (old form hōc), adv. [hic], I. to this place, hither ; into this, into that, thither, there : huc ades, o formose puer ; with partit. gen. : huc viciniae, into this neighbourhood ; nunc huc, nunc illuc, now this way, now that ; sometimes hither, sometimes thither ; first in one direction, and then in another ; so, huc illuc, huc et huc, huc illuc, huc et huc, this way and that, hither and thither ; hucusque, (huc usque),=hactenus, hitherto, thus far (and no further), as far as this. II. (meton.) 1. h ther, to this point, so far ; to this, to these : huc me provexit oratio ; rem huc deduxi, ut . . . ; huc accedebant xviii onerariae naves, to these (ships) were added : accedebat huc, quod Dumnorix dixerat, in addition to this fact there was the circumstance that ; accedebat huc ut . . . proeliarentur ; with gen. : huc adrogantiae venerat, ut . . ., had reached such a pitch of insolence, that : hucusque (huc usque), to such a point or pitch. 2. with a view to this, to this end, for this object : huc te parES.

hŭcinĕ (not hucinne), interrog. adv. [huc with interrog. particle -ne], hitherto ? to this ? is it to this pass ? is it so far ? with partit. gen. : hucine rerum Venimus ? have we really come to this pass ?

hucusque. See huc, I. ad fin., and II. 1.

hui, interj. expressing surprise or admiration, why ! the idea ! to think that ! whew !

huiuscēmŏdi, huiusmŏdi, gen. of quality from hic modus, used as indecl. pronominal adj. =talis, but often contemptuously, of this kind, of the kind described, such as this (these), this kind of, this fashion, style, sort of : huiuscemodi verba, words to the following effect : homines ad huiusmodi casus paratum, to meet such emergencies.

hulcus, ĕris. See ulcus.

humānē, adv [humanus], agreeably to human nature, in a manner becoming humanity, like a reasonable being, rationally, with equanimity : vix humane patitur, he takes matters scarcely as a man should, i.e. too seriously, with undue impatience ; intervalla vides humane commoda, these distances you see are tolerably (reasonably, passably, fairly) convenient (ironical). II. humanely, pleasantly, courteously, politely, in kindly manner, gently. Compar. humanius ; superl. humanissime.

humānĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. 1. human nature, humanity, human feeling, human sentiments. 2. (= humanum genus) the human race, mankind. II. 1. the duties of a human being towards others, humanity, philanthropy, kindliness, gentleness, politeness, courteous demeanour. 2. (like Gk. παιδεία), polite education, high culture, cultivation, civilisation, refinement, good breeding, polished language or manners, accomplishments.

humānĭtĕr, adv =humane.

humānĭtŭs, adv. [humanus], 1. after the manner of men, humanly, in the ordinary course of nature (opp. to divine and humanitier) kindly, tenderly.

humānus, a, um, adj. [homo], I. of or belonging to man or to mankind, natural to man, human ; sts. of mortals, mortal : res humana, human life, human affairs, the commonwealth of man, the world ; mens humana, human affairs, the concerns of men, the accidents of fortune, human adventures ; (poet. =ἡ οἰκουμένη) the whole world. Iuv. x. 163 : scelus, crime committed against men. Livy. As subst. 1. humāni, orum, m. pl. mortals, men. Lucr. 2. humanum, i, n. that which is human or mortal ; pulcher et humano maior . . . Romulus, i.e. of more than mortal stature. 3. humāna, ōrum, n. pl. human affairs or transactions, the concerns of men, accidents of life, human, humane, philanthropic, kindly, gentle, courteous. III. highly educated, cultivated, refined, civilised, accomplished. Compar. humanior ; superl. humanissimus.

humātĭo, ōnis, f. [humo], a burying, interment.

humātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who buries or inters.

humecto, hūmens, hūmĕo. See umhūmĕrus, i. See umerus.

hūmesco, hūmĭdŭlus, hūmĭdus. See umesco, etc.

hūmi, locat. of humus, on the ground, to or into the ground.

hūmĭlis, e, adj. [humus], lit. on the ground, to or into the ground. humile, is, n. low, low-lying, not high from the ground, lowly : salictum ; Forentum ; casae, low-roofed ; fossa, shallow ; (avis) humilis volat aequora iuxta, flies low. II. (fig.) 1. low in condition, birth, etc., lowly :

poor, insignificant; humili de stirpe creatus; (proleptically) Ubios multo humiliores redegerunt, reduced the U. to a much lower, less important condition. 2. (of mind or character) low, mean, base, abject, submissive, spiritless, cringing, suppliant; ex alacri atque laeto humilis atque demissus. 3. (of quality) inferior, common-place, indifferent, mean, poor, second-rate, paltry, sorry: ars; vestitus. Compar. humilior; superl. humillimus.

hŭmĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [humilis], I. lowness, nearness to the ground, low stature, insignificant height: arborum ; navium, lowness in the water, implying lowness of beam and shallowness of hold, Caes. II. (fig.) 1. lowness, meanness, humble position, insignificance, weakness. 2. littleness of mind, meanness, baseness, abject condition, cringing demeanour.

hŭmĭlĭter, adv. [id.], I. lowly, near the ground; to a low depth, deeply. II. (fig.) basely, meanly, in an abject manner, humbly. Compar. humilius; superl. humillime.

hūmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [humus], trans. v. I. cover with earth, inter, bury: solamen humandi, the solace of burial. II. perform funeral rites, pay the last dues to a deceased person.

hūmor, ōris. See umor.

hŭmus, i, f. [Sanscr. ghama, earth; cf. χαμαί], I. the earth, the ground, the soil: locat., humi, on or to the ground. See humi. II. (meton.) 1. a country, region, land, realm: Pontica; humum vicinia nulla premebat. 2. (poet.) the nether world (=οἱ χθόνιοι). Propert. v. 11, 100.

Hўăcinthĭa, ōrum, n. pl. a festival in honour of Hyacinthus, held at Amyclae.

‡ hўăcinthĭnus, a, um, adj. [ὑακίνθινος], of or belonging to the hyacinth: flos, the hyacinth; laena, hyacinthine garment.

‡ Hўăcinthus (-ŏs), i, m. I. a beautiful Spartan youth beloved by Apollo, accidentally killed by a blow from Apollo's quoit, and changed into the hyacinth, the petals of which were supposed to be inscribed with A I A I or Υ. Cf. Aiax. II. hўăcinthus (-ŏs), i, m. 1. a hyacinth; variously identified with the fleur-de-lis or blue iris, the imperial martagon or Turk's cap lily (with petals of a maroon colour), the gladiolus, rocket larkspur, and bluebell. 2. a precious stone of the colour of the flower, a jacinth, (?) lapis lazuli, or sapphire.

‡ Hўădēs, um, f. pl. [Ὑάδες, rainers], the Hyades, a group of seven stars in the head of the constellation Taurus. Their setting was attended by stormy weather. Poet. sing. collectively.

‡ hўaena, ae, f. [ὕαινα], a hyena.

‡ hўălus, i, m. [ὕαλος, a pale green transparent stone; crystal], I. glass. II. (meton.) glass-green colour: vellera hyali saturo fucata colore, deep dyed with hyaline, dyed with deep tint of hyalus; saturo being epithet transferred from vellera, to which it properly belongs.

Hўantēus (-tius), a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Hyantes, the ancient inhabitants of Boeotia; hence (poet.) Boeotian: iuvenis, i.e. Actaeon, as being a Theban prince; sorores, i.e. the Muses, from Helicon in Boeotia.

(1) Hўās, antis, (acc. Hўan, Ov.) m. a son of Atlas, and brother of the Hyades. Hence, Sidus Hyantis, the Hyades, Ov.

(2) Hўās, ădis, f. one of the Hyades, a Hyad. See Hyades.

hўbernus, a, um, = hibernus.

Hўbla, ae (-ē, ēs), f. a mountain in Sicily famed for its flowers and bees.

Hўblaeus, a, um, adj. of or from Hybla, Hybla's, Hyblean.

hўbrida, ae. See hibrida.

Hўdaspes, is, m. I. a river of India, now the Djelun. II. (meton.) 1. the people of the country through which the Hydaspes flows; loosely put for the Persian monarchy generally, Virg. G. iv 211. 2. a slave from the Punjaub: fuscus, Hor. S. ii. 8. 14. III. a Trojan.

Hўdaspēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Hydaspes; Indian.

‡ Hўdra, ae, f. [Ὕδρα], I. 1. the Hydra, the lake monster, or water-serpent of Lerna, slain by Hercules. It had seven heads, and for every one that Hercules cut off two new heads sprang up. 2. a fifty-headed monster in the infernal regions. II. the constellation of the water-snake, otherwise called Anguis.

‡ hydraula (-ēs), ae, m. [ὑδραύλης], one who plays upon or sings to a water-organ.

‡ hydraulicus, a, um, adj. [ὑδραυλικός], of or belonging to a water-organ, hydraulic.

‡ hydraulus, i, m. [ὕδραυλος], a water-organ.

‡ hydrĭa, ae, f. [ὑδρία], a water-pot or pail, water-can; a ewer, jug, urn.

‡ Hydrochous (-ŏs), i, m. [Ὑδροχόος, water-pourer], the constellation Aquarius. In Catull. lxvi. 94, Hydrochoi is dat. =Gk. Ὑδροχοεῖ.

‡ hydrōpĭcus, a, um, adj. [ὑδρωπικός], dropsical.

‡ hydrops, ōpis, m. [ὕδρωψ], the dropsy.

‡ (1) hydrus (-ŏs), i, m. [ὕδρος], I. a water-serpent, water-snake; a serpent or snake (in general), a dragon. II. (meton. poet.) a serpent's poison.

(2) Hydrūs, untis, f. a city of Calabria, now Otranto.

hȳĕmālis, hȳems. See hiemalis, hiemps.

‡ Hўgĕa (-eia, -ĭa), ae, f. the goddess of health, daughter of Aesculapius.

‡ Hўlactor, ŏris, m. [ὑλακτέω, bark], Barker, one of Actaeon's hounds.

‡ (1) Hўlaeus, i, m. [Ὑλαῖος, woodman], 1. a Centaur. 2. Dashwood, Woodward, one of Actaeon's hounds.

(2) Hўlaeus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to (1) Hylaeus, 1.; ramus, i.e. his club or bludgeon.

Hўlās, ae, a beautiful youth, who accompanied Hercules in the Argonautic expedition, and was carried off by the Mysian fountain nymphs.

‡ Hўlax, ăcis, m. [Ὕλαξ; cf. Hylactor], Barker; a dog's name.

Hўlēs, ae, m. a Centaur.

Hўlĕus (dissyll.), ei, m. one of the Calydonian hunters.

Hyllēus (trisyll.), a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hyllis, a peninsula of Illyria.

Hyllus, i, m. 1. a son of Hercules by Deianira, and husband of Iole. 2. a Trojan. 3. a river of Lydia.

Hўlōnŏmē, ēs, f. [Ὑλονόμη, she that haunts the woods], the wife of the Centaur Cyllarus.

Hўmēn (Hўmēn), ēnis, and Hўmēnaeus (-ōs), i, m. [Ὑμήν, Ὑμέναιος], I., Hymen, the god of marriage. II. (meton.) 1. nuptial rites, a wedding, marriage wedlock; (of animals) mating. 2. a nuptial song.

‡ Hymenaeus (-ĭus), a, um, adj. [ὑμέναιος, ὑμενήϊος], of or belonging to Hymen, hymeneal.

Hўmettus (-ŏs), i, m. a mountain near Athens, famed for its honey and its marble.

Hўmettĭus, a, um, adj. of or from Mt. Hymettus, Hymettian.

‡ Hўpaepa, ōrum, n. pl. [Ὕπαιπα, under-heights], a city of Lydia, on the S. slope of Mt. Tmolus, now Bereki.

Hўpaepēni, ōrum, m. pl. the men of Hypaepa.

‡ hўpallāgē, ēs, f. [ὑπαλλαγή, interchange], a figure by which the natural relations of words to one another are mutually altered; frequently by the transferring of an epithet to a subst. with which it does not properly agree, or sts. a change of cases; e.g. ambulator porticum terit seram, (instead of serus); Tyrrhena regum progenies (for Tyrrhenorum); dare classibus austros, for classes austris.

Hўpānis, is, m. 1. a river of Sarmatia (Scythia), now the Bog. 2. a Trojan.

‡ hўperbătŏn, i, n. [ὑπέρβατον], a rhetor. figure; the abnormal transposition of words or clauses; sts. a parenthesis. Plin. Ep. viii. 7. 2.

‡ hўperbŏlē, ēs, f. [ὑπερβολή], a rhetor. figure: exaggeration; e.g. sudor fluit undique rivis.

Hyperbŏlus, i, m. an Athenian demagogue.

‡ Hȳperbŏrĕi, ōrum, m. pl. [Ὑπερβόρεοι (-εῖοι), beyond the North], the (mythic) people of the extreme north, Hyperboreans.

Hȳperbŏrĕus, a, um, adj. of the Hyperboreans, far Northern, Northernmost.

Hȳpĕrĭdes, is, m. an Athenian orator, contemporary and friend of Demosthenes.

Hȳpĕrĭon, ŏnis, m. [Ὑπερίων], 1. a Titan, father of Helios (the Sun). 2. the Sun-god: iamque duas lucis partes Hyperione menso; Hyperionis urbs, i.e. Heliopolis.

Hȳpĕrĭŏnis, ĭdis, f. patron., daughter of Hyperion, i.e. Aurora.

Hȳpĕrĭŏnĭus, a, um, adj. 1. of or belonging to Hyperion. 2. of or belonging to the Sun-god.

Hȳpermnestra (-mestra), ae, and -ē, ēs, f. one of the daughters of Danaus, and wife of Lynceus, the only one who spared her husband's life.

‡ hȳpŏcaustum (-ŏn), i, n. [ὑπόκαυστον], a hot-air chamber in a Roman bath, heated with flues below, a sweating-chamber; a flue.

‡ hȳpocrĭta (-ēs), ae, m. [ὑποκριτής], an actor, stage-player; a dumb actor, pantomime.

‡ hȳpŏdidascălus, i, m. [ὑποδιδάσκαλος], an under-teacher, under-master, usher, in a school.

‡ hȳpŏgaeum (-ēum), i, n. [ὑπόγαιος], an underground cellar, vault.

‡ hȳpomnēma, ătis, n. [ὑπόμνημα], a written remark, note, memorandum, memoir.

‡ hȳpŏthēca, ae, f. [ὑποθήκη], a pledge, security, deposit: hypothecae esse (predicative dat.), to be mortgaged.

Hypsīpȳlē, ēs, f. [Ὑψιπύλη, with lofty gates], daughter of Thoas and queen of Lemnos; she saved her father when the Lemnian women murdered all the males in the island. Iason, landing at Lemnos with the Argonauts, was entertained by Hypsipyle, who bore him two children.

Hypsipȳlēus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Hypsipyle: tellus, i.e. Lemnos.

Hyrcāni, ōrum, m. pl. the Hyrcanians, a nation on the Caspian Sea.

Hyrcānĭa, ae, f. an Asiatic province of the ancient Persian Empire, on the S. and S.E. shores of the Caspian Sea.

Hyrcānus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Hyrcani, Hyrcanian; Caspian.

Hȳrĭē, ēs, f. a lake and town in Boeotia.

Hȳrĭeus (trisyll.), ei, m. a Boeotian peasant, father of Orion.

Hȳrĭēus (quadrisyll.), a, um, adj. of Hyrieus: proles, i.e. Orion.

Hyrtăcĭdēs, ae, m. patron. son of Hyrtacus; i.e. Nisus or Hippocoon, Virg.

Hyrtăcus, i, m. 1. the father of Nisus, Virg. 2. the father of Hippocoon, Virg.

‡ hystĕrĭcus, a, um, adj. [ὑστερικός], hysterical, troubled with hysteria.

hystrix (histrix), ĭcis, f. [ὕστριξ], a porcupine.

I (Vowel).

I, ī, the ninth letter of the Latin alphabet. As an abbr., = in, infra, ipse, etc.; IMP. = imperator, imperium; LN. = interessit nemo. As a numeral, = 1 (unus and primus).

Iacchus, ī, m. [Ἴακχος, chanter], I. mythic son of Demeter (Ceres), worshipped at the Eleusinian mysteries; sts. identified with Bacchus, son of Semele. II. (meton.) the wine-god; wine.

Iaera (Hiēra), ae, f. [Ἴαιρα], wood-nymph.

Iālȳsius, a, um, adj. of or from Ialysus, a city of Rhodes.

‡ Iambēus, a, um, adj. [ἰαμβεῖος], iambic.

‡ Iambus, ī, m. [ἴαμβος], I. an iambic foot, an iambus. II. (meton.) an iambic line or poem, iambic poetry; sts. = satirical verse, lampoon.

‡ Ianthina, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. vestimenta), [ἰάνθινος], violet-coloured garments.

Iāpētiōnīdēs, ae, m. patron., son or male descendant of Iapetus.

Iāpētus (-ŏs), ī, m. a Titan, father of Prometheus, Epimetheus, and Atlas.

Iāpis, idis, m. the physician of Aeneas.

Iāpȳdēs, um, m. pl. a warlike people of Illyria.

Iāpȳdia, ae, f. the country of the Iapydes, Iapydia.

Iāpȳgia, ae, f. (sc. terra), the country of Iapyx, strictly the S. of Apulia; Iapygia, Apulia.

Iāpys, ўdis, adj. [Ἰάπυς], of or belonging to the Iapydes; Illyrian: Timavus.

(1) Iāpyx, ўgis, m. [Ἴαπυξ], I. a son of Daedalus, who gave his name to Iapygia. 2. Iapyx, the W. N. W. wind, which blows off the coast of Iapygia (Apulia), and is consequently favourable to passengers to Greece.

(2) Iāpyx, ўgis, adj. Iapygian; Apulian; sts. Calabrian.

Iarba (-as), ae, m. a king of the Gaetulians, son of Iuppiter Ammon, and suitor of Dido.

Iarbītas, ae, m. a Mauretanian or Gaetulian, so nicknamed from Iarbas. His real name is said to have been Codrus or Cordus.

Īardănis, ĭdis, f. patron. a daughter of Iardanus, i.e. Omphale.

Īasidēs, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Iasius.

Īasiōn, ōnis, m. = (1) Iasius.

Īāsis, ĭdis, f. patron., daughter of Iasius, i.e. Atalanta.

(1) Īāsius, ĭi, m. 1. a son of Iuppiter and Electra, brother of Dardanus, beloved by Ceres. 2. a king of Argos.

(2) Īāsius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to (1) Iasius, 2; hence, (poet.) Argive; virgo, i.e. Io, as daughter of the Argive king Inachus.

Īāsōn, ōnis, m. 1. Iason or Jason, the famous Argonaut, son of Aeson, king of Thessaly, husband of Medea, whom he deserted for Crēūsa or Glauce, daughter of Creon, king of Corinth. 2. the title of a poem by Varro Atacinus. 3. a ruler of Pherae, in Thessaly.

Īāsōnīdēs, ae, m. patron. a descendant of Iason.

Īāsōnius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Iason, Iason's: carina, i.e. the Argo; remex, i.e. Argonautic.

‡ Iaspis, ĭdis, f. [ἴασπις], a precious stone, jasper, (?) opal.

Īāzўgēs (Īāzўges, trisyll.), um, m. pl. a Sarmatian people on the Danube.

Iber, Iberes, Iberi, Iberia, Iberus. See Hib-.

Ĭbī, adv. [locat. of is], I. in that place (before mentioned), there; with partit. gen.: ibi loci = in eo loco. II. 1. (of time) thereupon, then, on the spot: respexit; ibi omnis Effusus labor; ibi demum, then first, then for the first time; sts. with tum pleonastic. 2. (= in ea re), in that matter, therein, there, on that occasion, in that case: huic ab adulescentiā bella intestina, caedes, . . . grata fuere, -ibique iuventutem suam exercuit, and in them; ibi sum, I am at that matter, am on that tack, thinking about it, attending to it; credas animum ibi esse, i.e. that he never thought of anything else, Ter. 3. (of persons) in or with him, her, them: duxi uxorem; quam ibi miseriam vidi! with her, or, ibi=in matrimonio: nil ibi maiorum respectus, in their case; dixit se dictatorem L. Quinctium dicturum: ibi animum parem tantae potestati esse, in him.

ibidem, adv. [ibi; cf. idem], I. in the same place, on the same spot, thereon, just there: hic ibidem, in this very spot. II. 1. (of time) at the same time, in that very moment. 2. (= in eādem re) in the same matter.

‡ Ibis, is and ĭdis, acc. sing. ibim, Cic., ibin, Ov. Iuv., i. [ἶβις], the ibis, a sacred bird amongst the Egyptians.

Ibiscum, Ibrīda. See hib-.

ibus = iis, old form of dat. and abl. pl. from is.

Ībўcus, ī, m. 1. a Greek lyric poet (about B.C. 540), said to have called on a flock of cranes, which witnessed his murder, to avenge his death. 2. a poor man. Hor.

Īcārĭōtis, ĭdis, f. patron., daughter of Icarus, i.e. Penelope. 2. f. adj. of Penelope, daughter of Icarus: tela. See Icarus, III.

Īcāris, ĭdis, = Icariotis, 1.

(1) Īcārius, a, um, adj. I. of or belonging to Icarus (son of Daedalus), Icarian: aquae (fluctus), the waves of the Icarian Sea, i.e. the S. part of the Aegean, named after Icarus. So, as subst. n. Īcārium (sc. mare). II. of or belonging to Icarus or Icarius (see Icarus, II.), Icarian: canis, i.e. the dog Maera, turned into the constellation Canis Minor, or Procyon, often confounded with Sirius, or Canis Maior; boves, i.e. the constellation of Bōōtes, or Arcturus (Charles's Wain); palmes, i.e. of the vine, which Icarus cultivated; cf. Icarus, II.

(2) Īcārius, ĭi, = Icarus, II.

Īcārus, ĭi, m. I. son of Daedalus, who, as he accompanied his father's flight, fell into the Aegean, to a part of which he gave his name. II. also called Īcārius, father of Erigone, an Athenian, whom Bacchus, in return for his hospitality, taught the use of the vine. He was killed by the peasants of Attica, whom he made drunk, and who thought he had poisoned them. Erigone discovered his grave by the aid of the dog Maera. Father, daughter, and dog all became constellations. Icarius is Bootes or Arcturus. Cf. Erigone, Maera. III. son of Oebalus, and father of Penelope.

iccirco. See idcirco.

Iccius, ĭi, m. 1. a Roman, a friend of the poet Horace. 2. a leading man amongst the Remi.

Iccius portus. See Itius.

‡ Īcĕlŏs, ī, m. [Ἰκελος, like], a son of Somnus.

Icēni, ōrum, m. pl. a powerful British tribe in Norfolk and Suffolk, who revolted under their queen Boadicea, A.D. 61. Their capital was Venta Icenorum, now Caister.

‡ Īchneumon, ŏnis, m. [ἰχνεύμων, tracker], the ichneumon, or so-called Pharaoh's rat, an Egyptian animal of the weasel kind, which hunts for crocodiles' eggs; the mongoose.

‡ Īchnŏbātes, ae, m. [ἰχνοβάτης, going on the track], Tracker, one of Actæon's hounds.

Ichnūsa, ae, f. an ancient name of Sardinia

Icilius, ĭi, m. a Roman gentile name. As adj. Icilius, a, um, Icilian: lex.

Ico, īcĕre, īci, ictum, [root IK-, represented by Gk. ἰτ-; cf. ἵπτομαι hurt, ἴτος], trans. v. I. 1. strike, hit, smite, stab, pierce, sting. 2. (of lightning) strike. II. (fig.) 1. (of a treaty) make, ratify a solemn compact or treaty (by the slaughter of victims); cf. ferio, and the English phrase, "to strike a bargain." 2. strike, pierce, touch, move, disquiet, affect vehemently: metu, desiderio ictus.

‡ Īcŏnĭcus, a, um, adj. [εἰκονικός], representing a figure, drawn to the life, life-size: simulacrum.

Icŏnĭum, ĭi, n. a city of Lycaonia, in Asia Minor, now Konieyeh.

(1) ictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ico, (lit. and fig.) struck, smitten, wounded, pierced; (fig.) disquieted, troubled, vehemently affected; (poet.) overcome with wine, fuddled: caput, flor.

(2) ictus, ūs, m. [ico], I. 1. a blow, stroke, beat, throw, cast, shot, thrust, stab, hit, sting, wound: pollicis, i.e. of the harpist, or of the trainer of the chorus beating time; spissa ramis laurea fervidos Excludet ictus, i.e. the darting rays of the sun. 2. in music or prosody; a beating time, beat: cum senos redderet ictus (iambus); ictus metricus, the stress of pronunciation laid upon particular syllables at intervals in reading verse. II. (fig.) 1. a stroke, blow: calamitatis; (metaphor taken from the range of missile weapons); sub ictum dari, to be within shot; extra ictum esse, to be beyond the range, i.e. out of danger; singulis ictibus bellum finire, by separate attacks. 2. the making or ratification of a league, etc.: foederis.

ĭcunc̆ŭla, ae, f. [dim. icon = εἰκών], a small image.

Id. (Id.), abbr. for Idus, or Idibus.

Īda, ae, (-ē, ēs), f. 1. Mount Ida in Crete, where the infant Jupiter was said to have been nursed in secret. 2. Mount Ida in Phrygia, near Troy, where Cybele was worshipped. 3. the name of Nisus's mother.

(1) Īdæus, a, um, adj. of or from Mount Ida, Idæan; sts. (poet.) Trojan, Phrygian; (cf. Ida, 2): puer, i.e. Ganymedes; hospes, iudex, or pastor, i.e. Paris; hospes numinis Idæi, i.e. P. Corn. Scipio Nasica, who brought the statue of Cybele from Pessinus to Rome, B.C. 204; mater, i.e. Cybele; chori, i.e. the Corybantes with their cymbals, Virg.; Simois, i.e. rising in Ida.

(2) Īdæus, ĭi, m. the name of two comrades of Æneas.

Īdălia, ae, f. and Īdălium, ĭi, n. a town and grove in Cyprus sacred to Venus.

Īdălĭē, ēs, f. the goddess of Idalia, Idalia's queen, i.e. Venus.

Īdălĭum, ĭi. See Idalia.

Īdălĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Idalia, or Mount Idalus, in Cyprus; Idalian, that claims descent from Venus: astrum, of Venus's line.

Īdas, ae, m. 1. one of the Calydonian hunters, brother of Lynceus. 2. a Trojan. 3. a Thracian. 4. a comrade of Diomed.

Īdcirco (Iccirco), adv. [id; circa], on that (this) account, therefore, for that (this) special purpose; with neg., not . . . for all that.

Īdĕ, ēs. See Ida.

Idem, ĕădem, ĭdem, adj. pron. [pronom. root I, (whence "is"), with demonstr. suffix -dem; cf. tandem], 1. the same, the very same, the like, this very: amor omnibus idem; quibus eisdem in vallo esset permanendum, since they had to remain on the ramparts without change, unrelieved; idem conari, to make the same attempt; distare Idem, to be equally distant; eadem quærere, to make the same inquiries; alter idem, a second self. Neut. ĭdem, with partit. gen.: si idem nos iuris haberemus quod ceteri, the same (amount of) privilege; non habet officii Lucifer omnis idem, the same kind of duty. With ac, atque, qui (relat.), prep. cum, ut, quam si, quasi, the same . . . as. So with ut (mostly poet.), invitum qui servat Idem facit occidenti, does the same as one who kills. Often equivalent to a connecting particle, also, likewise, further, moreover, at the same time, as well: tu idem dixisti, you also said; sed honestum, idem est utile; nil prodest, quod non laedere possit idem. Sts. it marks an emphatic contrast,=tamen, but yet, but on the other hand, while all the time, notwithstanding, nevertheless: quomodo hoc in genere accusas Sestium, cum idem laudes Milonem? 2. of the same mind, consistent: senseram enim quam idem essent, Cic. 3. in adverbial phrases: ĕădem, (sc. viâ), (a) in the same way, by the same means; ĕōdem, to the same place. 4. ĭdem, nom. pl. m. for eidem, iidem.

Identidem, adv. [idem], from time to time, repeatedly, several times, again and again, ever and anon, one after another.

Idĕō, adv. [id eo, this for this reason], therefore, on that (this) account, for that (this) reason; with neg., not . . for all that, and yet . . . not.

‡ Idiōtă, ae, m. [ἰδιώτης], an unprofessional person, amateur, layman, as opp. to a professional; one who is without special education or technical knowledge; an ignoramus, outsider.

(?) Idisiaviso (Idistaviso), [Germ. Elfenwiese; Old Germ. idis, a nymph; viso, a meadow], a plain near the modern Minden, bordering on the Visurgis (Weser).

Īdmon, ŏnis, m. 1. one of the Argonauts, a soothsayer. 2. a Colophonian, father of Arachne. 3. a Rutulian.

Īdmŏnĭus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Idmon: Arachne, Idmon's daughter. See Idmon, 2.

‡ ĭdōlŏn (-um), i, n. [εἴδωλον], an image; an apparition, spectre, ghost.

Īdŏmĕneus (quadrisyll.), ĕi, or ĕos, acc. ĕa, m. king of Crete, one of the chiefs in the Trojan war.

(?) Īdŏmĕnēus (-ius), a, um, adj. of Idomeneus; Cretan: montes, Catull.; where, however, some read Idæos.

Idōnĕē, adv. [idoneus], fitly, suitably, duly, properly.

Idōnĕus, a, um, adj. [deriv. dub.], I. with ad, qui (consec.), dat., sts. with in and acc., and (poet.) with infin; fit, suitable, adapted, meet, convenient, satisfactory, adequate, sufficient, proper, apt, able, capable, competent, serviceable, favourable; sts. worthy, deserving: apud idoneas provinciarum, in commanding positions in the provinces, Tac.; da veniam culpae; decepit idoneus auctor. II. trustworthy, sure, safe, substantial: auctor; debitor.

Īdūmaea, ae, and Īdūmē, ēs, f. Idumæa (Edom), a region of Syria, famed for its palms.

Īdūmæus, a, um, adj. of or from Idumæa or Idume, Idumæan; (poet.) of Palestine, Jewish: triumphi, i.e. won over Judæa: porta, i.e. the triumphal arch of Titus.

Īdūs, ŭum, dat. abl. idibus, f. pl. [from Etruscan iduo, divide], the Ides, one of the divisions of the Roman month; a day of settling accounts; the Ides were on the 13th of the month, except in March, May, July, and October, when they fell on the 15th; octonis referentes Idibus aera, i.e. bringing their school-fee on the Ides of eight months (only) in the year, the other four months being holidays; or, on the Ides the Nones. Probably, with Professor Palmer, we should read octonos (sc. asses' referentes Idibus aeris, eight asses (i.e. the monthly school fee), a month on the Ides ; as, in computing sums of money, being used as=as. See Ramsay, p. 418.

† īdyllĭum (ĭdyllĭum), ĭi, n. [εἰδύλλιον], an idyl, pastoral poem.

ĭens, ĕuntis, part. from eo.

Ĭernē, ēs. See Hibernia.

Igilĭum, ĭi, n. a small island in the Tyrrhene Sea, now Giglio.

ĭgĭtur, adv. and conj. [deriv. dub.], A. (adv.) in that case, under these circumstances, then. Pleonastic with tum, deinde, demum, then, and then only, then first. B. (conj.) 1. in drawing a reasonable inference ; accordingly, therefore, consequently. 2. (like Gk. ἄρα), so then, it seems ; I see it now. 3. resumptive, after a parenthesis or digression, or in passing to a new step in the statement ; to resume ; well, as I was saying ; I say, then ; well, then ; however.

ignārus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; gnarus ; cf. ignobilis, ignavus], 1. with gen., with interrog. clause, acc. and infin., or absol., 1. not knowing, ignorant, unacquainted with, unaware, in ignorance, taken by surprise, unsuspicious, without a suspicion of ; unskilled in, without experience of. 2. (meton.) = expers, exempt from, having no share in : curarum. II. (pass.) not known, unknown, obscure : proles ignara parenti ; regio hostibus ignara ; ignarum Laurens habet ora Mimanta, in obscurity, a stranger.

ignāvē, adv. [ignavus], sluggishly, slothfully, idly, in a dull or slovenly manner, heedlessly. Compar. ignavius.

ignāvĭa, ae, f. [id.], inactivity, laziness, slothfulness, idleness, apathy, listlessness, slovenliness, incapacity, want of spirit, cowardice.

ignāvĭter, adv. = ignave.

ignāvus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; gnavus], I. inactive, idle, lazy, slothful, sluggish, remiss, listless, careless, spiritless, cowardly, dastardly : ignavum fucos pecus ; possis ignavus haberi ; ignavus adversum lupos (canis) ; with gen. of respect ; legiones operum et laboris ignavae, Tac. : ne sumbat. m. ignāvus, i, m. a coward, poltroon. II. (meton.) of things ; A. sluggish, unfruitful, unproductive, idle, inefficacious. B. (active) that renders slothful or inactive, causing listlessness, etc. : frigus, ignavum pecudes, Verg. : sumbat. m. ignāvus, i, m. a coward, poltroon. II. (meton.) of things ; A. sluggish, unfruitful, unproductive, idle, inefficacious. B. (active) that renders slothful or inactive, causing listlessness, etc. : frigus, ignavum pecudes, Verg. : hiemps ignava colono. III. (fig.) of style ; dull, spiritless, uninteresting. Compar. ignavior ; superl. ignavissimus.

ignesco, ĕre, [ignis], incept. intrans. v. I. take fire, turn to fire, kindle, burn. II. (fig.) become inflamed, burn, glow, be fired.

ignĕus, a, um, adj. [id.], I. of fire, fiery, on fire, blazing, scorching, burning. 2. (of colour) fiery, brilliant, sparkling, resplendent. II. (fig.) 1. fiery, strong as fire, ardent, glowing, burning, fervent. 2. swift as fire, in hot haste, like a flash : volat igneus aequore Tarchon.

ignĭcŭlus, i, m. [dim. ignis], I. a small fire, little flame, spark. II. (fig.) 1. a spark, i.e. first beginning, indication : nonnullos facit ignículos viriles. 2. vehemence, fervency : desiderii.

igni-fer, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [ignis ; fero], fire-bearing, fiery.

igni-fŭus, a, um, adj. [ignis ; fluo], flowing with fire.

Igni-gĕna, ae, m. [ignis ; gigno], Fire-born, a poet. surname of Bacchus, whose mother, Semele, was killed by lightning.

ignĭ-pēs, pĕdis, adj. [ignis ; pes], having fiery feet, fire-footed.

Ignĭ-pŏtens, ntis, adj. [ignis ; potens], Lord of fire, poet. epith. of Vulcan. Also as subst. m. = Vulcan.

ignis, is, abl. sing. ignī or -e, m. [Sanscr. agnis, fire-god], I. fire ; the fire of : animus Troiae Castra fefellit (Priamus). 2. (medical techn. t.) Sacer ignis, the holy fire (St. Anthony's fire), a kind of erysipelas, Virg. G. iii. 566. II. (meton.) 1. a torch, burning piece of wood, brand ; firing, firewood, fuel. 2. the fire of a funeral pile, a funeral pile when kindled, esp. in pl. : nigrorum memor ignium, Hor. 3. a lightning-flame, flash : crebris micat ignibus aether. 4. of the heavenly bodies (regarded as blazing), and their light and heat ; flame, heat, fire, light, lustre, ray ; a constellation, star : occultum Andromedae pater Ostendit ignem ; ignes Aurorae ; positos sub ignibus Indos Sidereis, i.e. of the sun ; colligit ignes Luna reverentes ; Cylleniae ignis, the fiery orb of Cyllene's lord, i.e. the planet Mercury ; velut inter ignes Luna minores. 5. brightness, brilliancy, flash, lustre, fire, sparkle, redness, flush, glow : umbo vomit aureus ignis ; flortes igne smaragdi. 6. (poet.) hot breath, aqui spiranteș naribus ignem. III. (fig.) sts. (poet.) in pl. love-poems, love poetry, Ov. Tristia, iv. 10. 45. 1. of the passions ; the flame or fire of love, burning love, passion ; sts. fury, hate, wrath, frenzy, heat ; raving : nec vasco carpitur igni (Dido) ; non erubescendis adurit ignibus (Venus) ; socii ignes, i.e. marriage, nuptials, Ov. 2. (concr.) the beloved object, a flame : meus ignis Amyntas ; si non pulchrior ignis Accendit obsessam Ilion. 3. fire, flame, as a destructive power, Livy, Tac.

ignōbĭlis, e, adj. [(2) in ; gnobilis, nobilis, cf. gnosco], 1. unknown. 2. ignoble, of no note, of no mark, obscure, humble, unhonoured, inglorious, not famous, mean, without parade or show, retiring : ignobilis, of some mark, considerable. 3. low-born, vulgar : familia, i.e. where the ancestors had not held a curule office. Compar. ignobilior ; superl. ignobilissimus.

ignōbĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [ignobilis], 1. want of fame, obscurity. 2. low birth, mean origin.

ignōbĭlĭter, adv. [id.], ignobly, meanly.

ignōmĭnĭa, ae, f. [(2) in ; gnomen, nomen], lit. a deprivation of one's good name ; 1. disgrace, dishonour, stigma, ignominy ; esp. techn. of the nota censoria (see Ramsay, pp. 84, 168), or the loss of rank inflicted on a soldier by a commander for cowardice, etc. The civil degradation inflicted by the censors did not necessarily involve the loss of the ius suffragii, nor were the effects permanent, as in the case of infamia. II. disgrace, dishonour, bad repute, shame : with subj. gen., Senatūs, i.e. inflicted by the Senate ; with obj. gen., familiae, i.e. suffered by a family ; sic se complures annos meruisse, ut nullam ignominiam acciperet, without suffering a single disgraceful defeat, Caes. ; ignominiae (dat.) esse (haberi), to be (be deemed) a disgrace ; per ignominiam, ignominiously.

ignōmĭnĭōsus, a, um, adj. [ignominia], disgraceful, shameful, ignominious ; 1. (techn. of persons under the nota censoria) branded with ignominy, under the censor's ban. As subst. m. one who is publicly disgraced, Tac. Germ. vi.

ignōrābilis, e, adj. [ignoro], unknown.

ignōrans, ntis, part. from ignoro. As adj. with gen., ignorant of, unaware of : eventūs belli, Caes.

ignōrantĭa, ae, f. [id.], want of knowledge, want of information, or acquaintance, ignorance.

ignōrārier, old infin. pass. from ignoro.

ignōrātio, ōnis, f. [id.], want of knowledge or acquaintance, ignorance : aetas in hominum [obj. gen.] ignorationes versatur, is passed unknowing to mankind ; with prep. de : ignoratio de aliquo.

ignōro, āre, āvi, ātum, [ignarus], trans. v. not know, have no knowledge of, be ignorant of, be unacquainted with ; fail to notice or observe, be unaware of ; overlook ; mistake, misunderstand, pay no heed to, disclaim, repudiate ; in pass., be unobserved, unrecognised : mutatam ignorent subito ne semina matrem, lest the young plants take unkindly to, feel strange to, the mother soil, if you suddenly change it.

ignoscens, ntis, part. from ignosco. As adj. ready to pardon, forgiving. Compar. ignoscentior.

ignosco, ĕre, nōvi, nōtum, [(2) in ; gnosco, nosco], intrans., and (rarely) trans. v., lit. not investigate ; A. (intrans.) pardon, forgive, overlook, excuse, make allowance for ; with dat. of person or thing, with dat. of person and acc. of thing, ne sibi velim mihi ignoscas, quod . . : vitiis ; hoc ignoscant dii im-mortales, velim, et populo Romano et huic ordini; dis ingoscentibus ipsis; ignotum est (impers.), pardon was granted; pass. impers. with double dat., both of indirect obj., nou est peccatum mi ignosci nequam Ter. B. (trans.) equidem istuc factum ignoscam; dementia cepit amantem Ignoscenda quidem.

(1) ignōtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ignosco.

(2) ignōtus, a, um, adj. [in-; gnotus, notus], I. (pass.) 1. unknown, undiscovered, unobserved; unfamiliar, uncommon, strange. As subst. ignōtum, n. that which is unknown: ignoti nulla cupido. 2. (poet.) unknown as yet, unexplored, far off, distant: terrae. 3. of low birth or condition, base, obscure, of no mark or note, unknown to fame. II. (active) unacquainted with a person or thing, strange to: producere aliquem ad ignotos, to those who did not know him, strangers to him; medicinam facere ignoto loco, in a place where he was not known, Phaedr.; ignotos fallit, imposes upon strangers, id. As subst. ignōtus, i, m. a stranger: est prope te ignotus, Pers.

Īgŭvīnātes, ium, and Īgŭvīni, orum, m. pl., the men of Iguvium, now Gubbio, a city of Umbria.

īlĕ, is, n. mostly pl. īlia, ium, I. the groin; the flanks, the side: ilia ducere tendere, trahere, strain the flanks, become broken-winded; summa ilia, thirst the sides, i.e. kill one's-self with envy, etc.; sts. rupture, kill. II. the guts, entrails, vitals: o dura messorum ilia.

Īlerda, ae, f. a city of Hispania Tarraconensis, now Lerida.

Īlergētes, um, m. pl. a people of Hispania Tarraconensis, N. of the Iberus.

īlex, ĭcis, f. a holm-oak.

(1) īlia, lum. See ile.

(2) Īlia, ae, f. a name of Rhea Silvia, daughter of Numitor, and mother of Romulus and Remus.

Īlĭăcus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ilium, Trojan.

Īlĭădēs, ae, m. patron. I. a son of Ilia. Sts. in apposition=adj. II. a son, i.e. native, of Ilium, i.e. Ganymede, Ov. Met. x. 160.

Īlĭās, ădis, f. patron. I. a Trojan woman; esp. Helen. II. the tale of Troy, the Iliad of Homer. On account of its length, prov. for any large quantity or number: Ilias est fatis longa futura meis, Ov. Cf. Ἰλιὰς κακῶν, Demosthenes, 387.

Īlĭberri (Ĭl-), n. indecl., with acc. f. Ilĭberrim, 1. a city of the Santones, now Elne. 2. a city in the S. of Spain, near the site of Granada.

īlĭcet, adv. [for ire licet; cf. scilicet, videlicet], 1. the ancient formula of dismissal from assemblies and public ceremonies; you may depart; it is over. 2. (meton.) in Plaut. and Ter., let us go; you may take yourself off, off with you, you had best make yourself scarce; sts. with dat. in indignant farewells, be hanged to, beshrew, so-and-so; when affairs are desperate, it's all over. II. immediately, forthwith, straightway, at once.

īlĭcētum, i, n. [ilex], a forest of holm-oaks, holm plantation.

Īlĭcēus, a, um, adj. [id.], of holm-oak.

īlĭcō (ĭl-), adv. [in loco], 1. there, on the spot, in that place. 2. there and then, at once, instantly.

Īlienses, ium, m. pl. 1. men of Ilium, Suet. 2. an ancient people in Sardinia, Livy.

īlignus, a, um, adj.=iliceus.

Īlion, ĭi. See Ilium.

Īlĭŏna, ae, and ē, ēs, f. 1. the eldest daughter of Priam, wife of Polymnestor, king of Thrace. 2. the title of a tragedy by Pacuvius, quoted by Horace.

Īlĭŏneus (quadrisyll.), ei, acc. -ĕa, m. 1. an aged Trojan. 2. the youngest son of Niobe.

Īlĭŏs, ĭi, f.=Ilium.

Īlĭthyia (quadrisyll.), ae, f. [Εἰλείθυια, (?) as if ἐληλυθυῖα, she that has come], Ilithyia, the Greek goddess of childbirth, the same as Iuno Lucina.

(1) īlium, ĭi, n.=ile.

(2) Īlium (Īlĭŏn), ĭi, n., also Īlĭŏs, ĭi, f. a name of Troy, city of Ilus, Ilium, Troy. 'Ilium' usually denotes the city, 'Troia' the district.

Īlus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Ilus; of Ilium or Troy, Ilian, Trojan.

il-. See under inl-.

ilă, adv. See ille, X.

illac, adv. See (1) illic, II. 1.

ille, illa, illud (anciently olle, or ollus), gen. sing. illĭus, of all genders, dat. sing. illi, of all genders, demonstr. pron. and adj. 'of what is remote from the speaker in place, time, thought, etc.), I. that (yonder). As subst., he, she, it, that. Sts. of two parties named, the other; often instead of a proper name in a narrative: Caesar . . . Quinctio, inquit, quid est hoc, Pythi? Et ille, Quid mirum? inquit. II. emphatic, expressing fame or dignity; the great, the well-known, the famous, the ancient, that distinguished, exceptional, remarkable: Medea illa . . . scitum est enim illud Catonis, the well-known saying of Cato; ad meum sensum et ad illud sincerum ac subtile iudicium nihil potest esse laudabilius, according to your remarkably uncorrupt and refined judgment; antiqui illi, the good old times. Also with the first or second person: ille ego qui quondam gracili modulatus avena Carmen: ille ego liber, Ille ferox tacui: ille igitur tantorum victor, Achille, Vinceris? III. opposed to hic, of what is remote in time from the speaker: quanquam tempus est nos de illā perpetuā iam, non de hac exiguā vitā cogitare, that eternal life which is to come; ad illam celeritatem adde etiam si quid potes, to that speed I then spoke of. See (1) hic, II. 1, 2; and cf. Roby, §§ 1684, 1685. IV. (in forensic language) my opponent, my adversary: harum omnium rerum L. ille Torquatus auctor adiutor particeps exstitit; cuius auctoritati dictum est ab illā causā concedi nimium non oportere, on the opposite side, by our opponents; illorum qui dissentiunt, the other side. V. referring to something following: this, the following: unum illud dico; illud urgueam, non intelligere eum quid sibi dicendum sit, I should lay great stress on this, that he does not understand; me quidem etiam illa res consolatur, quod ego is sum, etc.; illud admirari satis non potui, quod scripsisti, I could not sufficiently wonder at the following, viz. the fact that; one thing I could not sufficiently wonder at,—your having written; illud magis vereor, ne . . ., what I fear is this, my real fear is, lest, etc. VI. followed by relat. qui,=talis or idem: such, the same: vide consulem illum iterum, quem vidisti consulatu priore, see him such a consul again as you saw him in his first consulship. VII. pleonastic, adding emphasis to the person or the passage; (like ὄγε in Homer); freq. in poet., (a) to add vividness: nunc dextrā ingeminans ictus nunc ille sinistrā, there, see him; there he goes, Virg. Aen. xii. 307; cf. iii. 562; iv. 128, 257; (b) in strong contrasts: non ille pro caris amicis Aut patriā timidus perire; (c) in similes, anticipating the subst., and calling attention to the principal figure in the simile: Poenorum qualis in arvis, Saucius ille gravi venantum vulnere pectus, Tum demum movet arma leo, Virg. Aen. xii. 5; cf. Aen. x. 707, xi. 809; (d) to recall the subject of the sentence and lay emphasis on it: salices humilesque genistae, Aut illae pecori frondem aut pastoribus umbras Sufficiunt, why even they supply either, etc., Virg. G. ii. 435; cf. Aen. ix. 479, x. 385; (e) anticipating the subject, which is afterwards directly introduced to define the pronoun: illa . . . puella, Virg. G. iv. 457; cf. Aen. v. 609, x. 198, xii. 901. VIII. in making concessions, and in contrasts, with quidem, for which it serves as a peg to hang upon; it is true, I grant you, indeed, certainly; philosophi quidam, minime mali illi quidem, sed . . .; ac moro-sitas tamen et ea vitia quae dixi habent aliquid excusationis, non illius quidem iustae, sed quae iprobe posse videantur. IX. in various phrases: ille aut ille, ille et ille, that or that, this or that, such and such; hic . . . ille, this . . . that; the one . . . the other; the latter . . . the former; cf. (1) hic, II. 1, 2; also the plurals, hi . . . illi, these . . . those; some . . . others; ex illo, since then, from that time; illud aetatis, of that age, at that time of life; illud horae, at that time

(of day or night); illud glorior, this (that) is my boast (=de illâ re); illa cura = illius rei cura; nunc illud est quom (al. quod), now we have a state of things when, Ter.; illis quattuor annis, within those four years, in four years from then. X. adverbially; 1. illâ (sc. viâ, parte), in that way, in that direction. 2. illō (cf. eo), (a) to that place, thither; (b) to that end, thereto: eodem illo pertinere, to tend to the very same object.

illī, 1. dat. sing. or nom. pl. m. from ille. 2. old form of (2) illic.

Illiberri. See Iliberri.

(1) illīc, illaec, illoc or illuc, acc. illunc, illanc, illoc or illuc, demonstr. pron. [ille with demonstr. suffix -ce], I. he, she, or it, yonder, that. With interrog. -nē, illicine: illicinne mulierem alere cum illâ familiâ? think that he should keep that woman with all her establishment! II. adverbially; 1. illāc (sc. viâ), that way, on that side, there: nunc hac iuveni, nunc circumfunditur illac; omnes damnatos . . . illac facere, take that person, support that party. 2. illōc (for illō-ce, cf. illo), or illūc, (a) to that place, thither, that way: nunc huc, nunc illuc, now hither, now thither, i.e. in all directions; huc illuc, this way and that, on this side and that; (b) to that person or thing; thereto, to that point, to such a pitch, to such a pass: illuc cunctа vergere, all centred in him (Nero), Tac.; illuc, unde abii, redeo; illuc decidit ut malum ferro submitteret.

(2) illīc (old form illī), adv. [(1) illic]. I. in that place, yonder, there, in that country, nation, etc.: hic . . . illic, here . . . there, in this place . . . in that. 2. (poet. like Gk. ἐκεῖ), in the other world, in Hades, Propert. 3. with that person or thing, with them: nec erit mirabilis illic Aut Stratocles, etc., i.e. with the Greeks, Iuv. 4. in that matter, in that case, therein: respublica et mihi illic et pecuniā vacet, i.e. in that war.

illicine, illaecine, illocine. See (1) illic.

illicō, adv. See ilico.

illim, adv. early form of illinc, 1. from that place or quarter, thence. 2. from that person.

illinc, adv. [for illim-ce], 1. from that place, thence, from there; on that side: hinc atque illinc, on this s de and that, on one side . . . on the other.

illō, adv. See ille, X. 2.

illōc, 1. neut. pron. See (1) illic. 2. adv.=illuc. See (1) illic, II. 2.

illūc, 1. neut. pron. 2. adv., also written illoc. See (1) illic.

Illȳria, ae, f. Illyria, a country situated on the E of the Adriatic, N.W. of Epirus, now Dalmatia and Albania.

Illȳricus, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Illyrians. Illyrian: mare, aequor, undae, i.e. of the Adriatic. As subst., Illȳricum, i, n. the country of Illyria.

Illȳrii, ōrum, m. pl. the people of Illyria, the Illyrians.

Illȳrius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to the Illyrians, Illyrian.

Illȳris, idis, f. adj. Illyrian: ora. As subst. f.=Illyria.

Illōtae, ārum. See Helotes.

Īlus, i, m. I. mythic founder of Ilium, a son of Tros, brother of Assaracus, great-grandson of Dardanus, father of Laomedon, and grandfather of Priam. II. a name of Iulus. III. a Rutulian.

Ilva, ae, f. the island of Elba in the Mediterranean, famed for its iron-mines.

im=eum, from is.

Imăchārensis (-cārensis), e, adj. of or belonging to Imachara, a town in Sicily. As subst. m. pl. the men of Imachara.

imāginārius, a, um, adj. [imago], that exists only in imagination or appearance, seeming, unreal, fancied, imaginary, nominal.

imāginātiō, ōnis, f. [imaginor], a representation in the mind, fancy, imagination.

imāginor, āri, ātus sum, [imago], trans. dep. picture to one's self, fancy, imagine, dream of.

imāginōsus, a, um, adj. [id.], full of fancies, fanciful, whimsical, flighty.

imāgo, inis, f. [stem ima-; cf. imitor], I. 1. an imitation, copy, representation, image, figure, resemblance, likeness; a representation (in art), i.e. a picture, mask, painting, statue, bust: nimium similes tibi sunt et imagine tauri, so true a resemblance; positā fallacis imagine tauri; mortis, phase; Agesilaus neque pictam neque fictam imaginem suam passus est esse; ut dignus venias hederis et imagine macrā. 2. a ghost, spectre, phantom, apparition, shade: gallatis Adrasti; manus effugit imago. 3. look, mien, appearance: Turni venientis; aspicias utinam quae sit scribentis imago. 4. external form, shape, figure: rudis et sine imagine tellus; genitiva, Ov. 5. an ancestor's image, family portrait; in pl. sts.=ancestors of distinction, a pedigree. The imagines maiorum were wax masks representing the features of deceased relatives who had filled the office of aedile, praetor, or consul. They were kept in the atrium or hall, and were brought out and carried in funeral processions: imagines non habeo, i.e. I have no ancestors of distinction; homo multarum imaginum, Sall.; qui stupet in titulis et imaginibus; imagini ceratae atque clarae tuae, and were the privilege of handing down one's imago to posterity, enjoyed only by those who had held curule office; funus sine imaginibus, Tac.; longā spatietur imagine pompa, with long array of (ancestral) masks, Propert. See Ramsay, p. 67. II. (meton. poet.) a reflection of sound, reverberation, echo: vocis offensa resultat imago, the echo of the glancing voice rebounds (offensa being transferred epithet). III. (fig.) 1. an image (in the mind), conception, vivid impression, idea, picture, imagination, thought, recollection: imaginem antiquitatis . . . diceres intueri, a representative of the old school; noctis tristissima imago; fallor, et ista mihi falso iactatur imago, idea, thought; animum patriae strinxit pietatis imago, his heart was touched by the vision of a (son's) love for his sire. 2. a representation in words, description, character-portrait, comparison, simulitude: haec a te non multam abludit imago; hac egosi compellor imagine, Hor. 3. external appearance, mere form (as opposed to reality), semblance, fiction, shadow, farce, pretence: umbrā et imaginibus utimur, outlines and sketches are what we have to deal with; indiciorum, semblance; nec falsā Clymene culpam sub imagine celat, pretence. 4. that which suggests or recalls; an indication, suggestion, badge, symbol: servitii, Tac.

imāguncūla, ae, f. [dim. imago], a little image.

imbēcillē (inb-), adv. [imbecillus], weakly, feebly. Compar. imbecillius.

imbēcillis, e, adj. a by-form of imbecillus, q.v.

imbēcillĭtas (inb-), ātis, f. [id.], I. weakness, feebleness, poor health, enfeebled condition. II. (fig.) weakness, helplessness, impotency: animi, feebleness of purpose, pusillanimity.

imbēcillus (inb-), a, um, adj. weak, feeble, infirm, in poor health, helpless. Compar. imbecillior; superl. imbecillissimus.

im-bellis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; bellum], I. unwarlike, unfit for war: non-combatant, non-effective; deprived of warlike spirit, cowed, craven, effeminate, cowardly; weak, powerless, ineffectual. 2. without war, quiet, fond of peace, peaceful, gentle; calm, still.

imber, bris, abl. sing. imbrī, less freq. imbri, m. [Sanscr abhra-m, storm-cloud; cf. ὄμβρος], I. rain (esp. heavy, sudden, or violent rain), a rain-storm, rain-cloud, storm-cloud, storm; a shower; rain-water: maximo imbri Capuam veni; caeruleus supra caput adstitit imber; hibernus; fecundis imbribus. II. (meton. poet.) 1. water, as an element; water in general, any liquid: me gere, cum calidis perfundes imbribus artus; amicos inriget imbres; (of sea water) laxis laterum compagibus omnes Accipiunt inimicum imbrem. 2. of any liquid falling in showers like rain; a shower of tears; a stream of blood, etc. 3. a shower of weapons, hail: aureus; ferreus ingruit imber.

im-berbis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; barba], without a beard, beardless.

imberbus, a, um, adj. A by-form of imberbis.

im-bĭbo (in-), bĭbĕre, bĭbi, trans. v. I. drink in, imbibe, inhale. II. (fig.) 1. imbibe, conceive: animo opinionem; certamen animis. 2.

determine on, resolve, entertain a wish: aliquid ; poenas petere.

Imbrāsidēs, æ, m. patron. son of Imbrasus.

Imbrāsus, i, m. a Lycian, father of Glaucus and Lades.

imbrex, bricis, f. (m. Plin.), [imber], I. a ridge-tile, gutter-tile, of semi-cylindrical form : angusti imbrice tecti, with a narrow tile-roof (=angusto tecto ex imbricibus facto). II. (meton.) 1. a trough, gutter. 2. part of a pig resembling an imbrex ; the ear, or chine, ribs, Mart. 3. a method of clapping (with the hand hollowed) invented by Nero, Suet.

imbrĭ-fĕr, fĕra, fĕrum, adj. [imber ; fero], bringing rain, rainy.

Imbrius, a, um, adj. of Imbros : terra.

Imbrŏs (-us), i, m. a small island in the N. of the Aegean Sea, now Imbro.

im-bŭo (in-), ĕre, ŭi, būtum, [in ; root BH- ; cf. bibo, πίνω ; also Sanscr. ámbu, ámbhas, water], trans. v. a sort of causative to imbibo, I. soak, saturate, steep, dip, tinge, impregnate, moisten (so as to impart colour, smell, taste, etc.), stain, dye. II. (fig.) 1. stain, taint, infect, steep, imbue ; sink into, penetrate, fill morte manus ; civili praedā milites ; haec animos aerugo et cura peculi Cum semel imbuerit. 2. imbue (the mind of a person) with knowledge, ' train ' a person, instruct, train, initiate, inure or accustom to an thing, instil something into a person, give one a taste for a thing, give one a smattering of : quibus ille studiis ab ineunte aetate se imbucra ' ; honestis artibus nonnihilum aures adportoris. 3. do anything or use anything for the first time, make the first trial of, handsel, flesh, 'season, prove : infelix imbuit auctor opus ; terras vomere, i.e. plough for the first time ; illa ruden cursu primo imbuit Amphitriten, first initiated in voyaging, i.e. was the first to navigate ; phialam nectare, fill for the first time, ' christen ; bellum sanguine, i.e. inaugurate, begin ; imbuis exemplum primae tu, Romule, palmae, begin with the precedent, i.e. supplies the first example of victory ; hoc facetae carmen imbuant aures (inverted constr. for, hoc carmen imbuat facetas aures). Cf. imbutus, II.

imbūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from imbuo, I. imbued, impregnated, etc. II. trained, initiated, somewhat instructed in, having a slight knowledge or smattering of ; parentum praeceptis ; litterulis Graecis ; aliquo iam usu imbutus, having by this time some elementary experience ; nullā imbuti formidine, without the faintest tinge of fear.

imitābĭlis, e, adj. [imitor], that may be imitated, imitable, easily copied : non imitabile fulmen, inimitable.

imitāmen, ĭnis, n. [id.], I. a thing made in imitation, a resemblance, likeness, copy. 2. the act of imitating, imitation.

imitāmentum, i, n. [id.], imitation, the act of imitating, mimicry.

imitātĭo, ōnis, f. [id.], I. imitation, copying. 2. the faculty of imitating.

imitātor, ōris, m. [id.], one who imitates, an imitator, copyist, mimic, ape.

imitātrix, tricis, f. [imitator], she that imitates, mimics, etc. : psittacus, Eois imitatrix ales ab Indis.

imitātus, a, um, perf. part. from imitor. Poet. pass. counterfeited : voluptas, Ov.

imĭtor, āri, ātus sum, [root IM- ; cf. aemulus ; as if freq. from obscl. imor], trans. dep. I. imitate, copy, represent, pourtray, express ; counterfeit, mimic : molles imitabitur aere capillos ; pocula vitea fermento atque sorbis, for cups of wine make shift with beer, etc., i.e. supply their place with ; putre solum imitamur arando, try to bring about, produce artificially. II. act like, seek to equal or resemble, rival, imitate ; be like, resemble, counterfeit.

im-măcŭlātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; maculo], unstained.

im-mădesco (in-), ĕre, mădŭi, intrans. incept. v. become wet or moist.

immānē (inm-), adv. [immanis ; properly neut. cogn. acc. used adverbially], enormously, wildly, fiercely, savagely.

im-mānis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in ; O.L. mānus, good (cf. Manes) ; Sanscr. root MA-, measure ; Gk. μέ- ; cf. μέτρον, metior], lit. out of all reasonable measure or proportion, I. enormous in size, monstrous, huge, vast, boundless, immeasurable, extraordinary : antrum ; membra ; aula ; avaritia ; immania Caesaris acta Condere ; vino et lucernis Medus acinaces Immane quantum discrepat, is amazingly at variance with (lit. it is enormous how much it is at variance). This idiom, which is to be referred to Attraction, in imitation of the Gk. (cf. θαυμαστὸς ὅσος, ἀμῆχάνος ὅσος), has in Latin a purely adverbial force. II. (fig.) monstrous in character, inhuman, savage, wild, fierce, cruel, shocking, horrible, frightful. As subst. immānia, ium, n. pl. frightful deeds or sayings, enormities, horrors, Tac., Luv. Compar. immanior ; superl. immanissimus.

immānĭtas (inm-), ātis, f. [immanis], I. monstrous size, vastness, hugeness, enormity, excess. II. inhumanity, savageness, fierceness, cruelty, barbarism, heinousness, enormity.

immāniter (inm-), adv. = immane.

im-mansuētus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; mansuetus], untamed, wild, savage, uncivilised. Compar. immansuetior ; superl. immansuetissimus. immātūritas (inm-), ātis, f. [immaturus], I. unripeness, immature age. II. undue haste, ill-timed eagerness.

im-mātūrus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; maturus], before the season, unseasonable, unripe, ill-timed, untimely, premature, immature ; sts. dying untimely, early dead : pira ; mors ; puella, i.e. not of marriageable age ; ut si filius Immaturus obisset.

im-mĕdĭcābĭlis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in ; medicabilis], incurable : vulnus ; telum, which deals an incurable wound, i.e. deadly.

im-mĕdĭtātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; meditatus], unstudied, natural.

im-mĕio (in-), ōre, traj. v. make water into.

im-mĕmor (in-), ŏris, adj. [(2) in ; memor], I. unmindful, forgetful, regardless, thoughtless, heedless, unheeding, negligent, indifferent to ; free from memory ; unreflecting, heartless ; (with gen.) ; beneficii ; Romanarum rerum, ignorant of, unacquainted with R. history ; (with infin.), immemor Chaeream Cassium nominari, forgetting that, never thinking that, Suet. ; (absol.), magna haec immemoris ingenii signa ; immemori discedens pectore, unfeeling, treacherous. II. that causes forgetfulness : amnis, i.e. Lethe.

im-mĕmŏrābĭlis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in ; memorabilis], I. 1. unworthy to be mentioned. 2. unspeakable, indescribable. II. (active) silent, mum.

im-mĕmŏrātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; memoratus], unrecorded, unmentioned, untold before, unhackneyed, new.

immensĭtas (in-), ātis, f. [immensus], immeasurableness, vastness.

im-mensus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; mensus], immeasurable, boundless, unmeasured, immense, endless, vast, unbounded, infinite, huge, enormous. As subst. immensum, i, n. a boundless extent, immoderate size, vastness, immensity, boundless space ; per immensum, (b) over a vast extent ; (b) through the boundless air ; in immensum, to a vast extent, exceedingly, immoderately ; plus immenso, immoderately, inordinately. Neut. immensum, as adv., without end, exceedingly, vastly : creverat immensum. II. (fig.) vast, measureless, prodigious, fathomless : immensum est dicere, 'twere endless to tell.

immĕo, colloq., = in meo. Cic. Tull. 20.

im-mĕrens (in-), ntis, adj. [(2) in ; merens], undeserving, innocent.

im-mergo (in-), ĕre, mersi, mersum, trans. v. with prep. in and acc., or with abl. or dat., dip or plunge in or into, souse, immerse, drown, overwhelm : se in aquā ; undā ; nautas pelago ; immersus in flumen ; terrae. Immergere se (lit. and fig.) throw one's self, betake one's self, foist one's self, plunge into a place or thing : in ganeum ; studiis.

immĕrĭtō (inm-), adv. [immeritus], undeservedly, without due cause, unjustly: non immerito, with perfect justice. Superl. immeritissimo.

im-mĕritus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; meritus], I. not deserving (as guilty), undeserving, innocent, unoffending: with infin.; mori, Hor. II. (pass.) undeserved, unmerited: laudes; ope.

immersābilis (inm-), e, adj. [(2) in; mersō], that cannot be sunk, not to be drowned or overwhelmed.

immersus (inm-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from immergo.

im-mētātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; metor], unmeasured.

im-mĭgro (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. remove or go into, penetrate, file off, pass.

im-minĕo (in-), ēre, intrans. v., with dat. or prep. in, I. project over or towards a thing, bend or lean towards, lean over or against, hang down over, overhang: imminente Lunā, shining overhead, beneath the light of the moon, by moonlight; collis imminet urbi, commands the town; in ore alicuius imminere, to bend towards a person, looking him full in the face. II. (meton.) 1. be near to, touch on, border upon, adjoin, overlook: carcer imminens foro. 2. threaten, menace, be ready to fall upon; impend, be imminent, be close at hand. III. (fig.) be bent upon, strive after a thing, be intent or eager on: rebus; immineat exitio vir coniugis, illa mariti, is on the watch for, plots; huius mendicitas aviditate coniuncta in fortunas nostras imminebat.

im-minŭo (in-), ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, trans. v. I. 1. lessen, diminish, reduce in number. 2. weaken, impair. II. (fig.) 1. lessen, diminish, abate, shorten: verbum imminutum, a contracted word. 2. encroach upon, thwart, violate, injure, wrong, break, destroy, ruin; of persons (only in Tac.); lower, degrade, slight, humiliate.

imminūtio (inm-), ōnis, f. [imminuo], a lessening, diminution, weakening, lessening, violation, injuring: corporis, i.e. mutilation; criminis, i.e. refutation.

imminūtus (inm-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from imminuo. As adj. impaired, enfeebled; reduced, smaller: mens, intellectual weakness, imbecility.

im-miscĕo (in-), ēre, miscŭi, mixtum or mistum, traj. trans. v. (lit. and fig.) mix in, mingle, blend, connect, intermix with: summis ima; se nubi atrae, or nocti, i.e. vanish, be lost in, fade into; (of boxers) manus manibus, i.e. fist playing free with fist; se mediis armis, plunge into the thick of the fray; crabro imparibus se immiscuit armis, hath joined battle with the (bees') inferior forces, or, taking armis as instr. abl., with stronger force, i.e. for which the bees are no match. Immisceri, pass. reflex., or immiscere se, to join, unite, associate, mingle, intrude one's self on; take part in, concern one's self with, join in.

immiscĕrĭĕr (inm-), old infin. pass. from immisceo, Virg.

im-misĕrābilis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; miserabilis], unpitied.

immisĕricordĭter (inm-), adv. [immisericors], unmercifully.

immisericors (in-), cordis, adj. [(2) in; misericors], merciless, unmerciful.

im-missio (in-), ōnis, f. [immitto], I. a letting in, admission. 2. a letting loose: sarmentorum, i.e. letting them grow unchecked (cf. immissis habenis); not, ingrafting. See Cic. de Sen. 15. 53, Reid's note; and cf. immitto, I. 2.

immissus (inm-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from immitto. As adj. 1. sent, urged, let loose upon or against, let slip, set on: hos non immissis canibus . . . agitant, i.e. unleashed. 2. let loose, let go; spurred on, at full speed: habenae; equi; rotae. 3. falling loose, hanging down, long, flowing: barba; capilli.

immisti, 1. contr. =immisisti, from immitto. 2. m. pl. from immistus.

immistus (in-), a, um. See immixtus.

im-mītis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; mitis], I. not soft, not mellow, unripe; uva. II. not mild, ungentle, harsh, stern, cruel, savage, fierce, ruthless; (of places) wild, dreary. Neut. cogn. acc. immite,=adv.: stridorque immite rudentum Sibilat, whistles wildly. As subst. immītis (inm-), ĭtis, n. pl. ruthless deeds, Ov. Compar. immitior; superl. immitissimus.

im-mitto (in-), ĕre, mīsi, missum, trans. and traj. trans. v. I. 1. let go into, send in, let in, send to, admit, introduce, let down into, insert, interweave, mortise, ingraft; send or despatch against, send hostilely, let loose upon, let slip, discharge at, let fly, launch, cast or drive into, shoot in, drive, force; let loose, let go, urge on, abet, set on. Immittere se, or pass. reflex., to throw one's self, rush. 2. leave to grow, let grow at will, let grow wild, give free scope to (metaph. from letting loose the reins in driving): vitis immittitur ad uvas pariendas; immissa barba; immissus crines (perf. pass. part. in middle sense), having his hair falling wild; se laetus ad curas Palines agit laxis per purum immissus habenis, i.e. unchecked. II. (fig.) introduce, instil, inspire, infuse: fugam Teucris atrumque timorem; vires alicui.

(1) immixtus or immistus (inm-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from immisceo.

(2) immixtus or immistus (inm-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; mixtus], unmixed.

immo (not ĭmo), adv. [(?) abl. from superl. formed from prep. in; cf. summus], 1. in negative answers, correcting or qualifying a preceding statement; nay rather; on the other hand; no, rather than that; I don't say so, but; I should rather say; nay. 2. in retorts, and in answers which admit the fact alleged, but add something stronger; yea; yes; oh, to be sure; ay, but: immo vero, much more, much more likely.

im-mōbilis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; mobilis], (lit. and fig.) immovable, unmoved, unshaken, steadfast. Compar. immobilior.

immŏdĕrātē (inm-), adv. [immoderatus], I. without measure or rule II. (fig.) extravagantly, immoderately. Compar. immoderatius.

immŏdĕrātio (inm-), ōnis, f. [id.], want of moderation, excess: verborum, extravagant language.

im-mŏdĕrātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; moderatus], I. without measure, measureless, infinite. II. (fig.) unrestrained, unbridled, ungovernable, unruly, excessive. Compar. immoderatior; superl. immoderatissimus.

immŏdestē (inm-), adv. [immodestus], immoderately, extravagantly, unconscionably. Compar. immodestius.

immŏdestĭa (inm-), ae, f. [id.], intemperate or licentious conduct, insubordination, unconscionable greed, extortion.

im-mŏdestus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; modestus], unrestrained, excessive, immoderate, extravagant, disorderly.

immŏdĭcē (inm-), adv. [immodicus] beyond measure, excessively, immoderately.

im-mŏdĭcus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; modicus], I. beyond bounds, beyond measure, immense, excessive, enormous, unruly, immoderate. II. (fig.) unrestrained, excessive, extravagant, intemperate: in augendo numero, given to exaggeration in stating numbers, Livy; (with gen. of respect) laetitiae, extravagant in (manifestation of) joy; animi Caecina, of boundless ambition.

im-mŏdŭlātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; modulatus], unrhythmical, inharmonious.

immoenis (inm-), e, archaic form of immunis.

immŏlātĭo (inm-), ōnis, f. [immolo], a sacrificing, sacrifice.

immŏlĭtor (inm-), ōris, m. [id.], one that sacrifices, a sacrificer.

im-mōllus (in-), a, um, adj. [mollor], built up, erected in a place.

im-mŏlo (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, [in; mola], trans. v., lit. sprinkle the sacrificial meal (mola salsa) on the victim's head; I. offer in sacrifice, sacrifice, immolate: agnum; (with abl. of victim offered) hostiis; (without obj. acc.) cum Sulla immolaret; (pass. impers.) cum pluribus diis immolatur, sacrifice is being done. II. kill, slay: Pallas te hoc vulnere, Pallas Immolat.

im-mordĕo (in-), ēre, morsum, trans. v. bite into. Cf. immorsus.

im-mŏrior (in-), mōri, mortŭus sum, intrans. dep. with dat., or prep. in and abl., I. die in or upon. II. (of wind) die away: aura superstes Immoritur velis.

III. (fig.) work one's-self to death in, at, upon, or over a thing: studiis, Hor.

im-mŏror (in-), ōri, ātus sum, intrans. dep. tarry, stay, or remain in, at, near, or upon, linger over.

(1) immorsus (inm-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from immordeo, bitten into, bitten: stomachus, stimulated, roused, (French 'piqué'), when it has had the edge taken off, Hor. Sat. ii. 4. 61.

(2) im-morsus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; morsus], fasting, hungerbitten. So some explain Hor. Sat. ii. 4. 61.

im-mortālis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; mortalis], I. undying deathless, immortal. II. (meton.) 1. eternal, imperishable, endless, perpetual; (of wine) very old, or, that never loses its strength. 2. (poet.) like the gods, blessed as the immortals, divinely happy, Propert.

immortālĭtas (inm-), ātis, f. [immortalis], I. exemption from death, immortality, immortal nature. II. 1. deathless fame, an undying name, imperishable renown. 2. divine happiness, blessedness, absolute happiness; cf. immortalis, II. 2.

immortālĭter (inm-), adv. [id.], infinitely.

immortŭus (inm-), a, um, perf. part. from immorior.

im-mōtus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; motus], unmoved, undisturbed, motionless, calm, tranquil, immovable, unshaken, fixed, secure, firm. Also, fig. in same senses: mens; fata; si mihi non animo fixum immotumque sederet, had it not been my fixed and inflexible resolve; immotum fixumque Tiberio fuit non omittere caput rerum.

im-mūgio (in-), īre, īvi or ĭi, intrans. v. bellow, roar, or resound in or at, echo wildly within.

im-mulgĕo (in-), ēre, traj. trans. v. milk into: ubera labris.

im-mundus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; (1) mundus], I. uncleanly, unclean, filthy, foul, dirty, untidy, nasty. II. (fig.) foul, coarse, ribald, impure: verba. Compar. immundior; superl. immundissimus.

im-mūnĭficus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; munificus], not liberal, stingy.

im-mūnio (in-), īre, īvi, trans. v. fortify, strengthen.

immūnis (inm-), e, (archaic immoenis), adj. [(2) in; munus], lit. without office, duty, etc.; I. exempt from a public service, free from some duty or burden, as taxes; unburdened, untaxed, rent-free, exempt from tribute, privileged. cf. Gk. ἀτελής: (with gen.) exempt from: portoriorum, Livy; ceterorum nisi propulsandi hostis, i.e. from all other camp duties except resisting invasion, Tac.; (with abl.) militiā. Also, with prep. ab. II. (meton.) having no duty to perform, with nothing to do, sinecurist, unexercised, idle: fucus; virtus; ipsa quoque immunis . . . per se dabat omnia tellus, exempt from tillage: (with gen.) curvi aratri, free from, that has never felt the burden of. III. (=sine munere), without a gift, contributing nothing, without paying one's share: immunis aram si tetigit manus; quem Sicis immunem Cinarae placuisse rapaci, though I brought no present, though empty-handed; non ego te meis Immunem meditor tingere poculis: (fig.) virtus, unpatriotic, selfishly refusing to share the common duties, Cic. IV. (fig.) without share in, not partaking in, devoid of, free from, exempt from, unoccupied with, secure from: (mostly with gen., sts. with abl., or prep. ab) belli; caedis; necis; liquidi immunia pectoris signa, constellations which never sink below the waters of the sea, i.e. the Great Bear, which never sets, Ov.; immunem aequoris Arcton.

immūnĭtas (inm-), ātis, f. [immunis], I. freedom from state burdens, exemption from taxation, public services or charges (cf. Gk. ἀτέλεια), immunity. II. (fig.) freedom, exemption, immunity from a thing.

im-mūnītus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; munitus], I. unfortified, undefended: castella. 2. not properly constructed, ill-paved: si via sit immunita, i.e. if there is no regular thoroughfare.

im-murmŭro (in-), āre, intrans. v. murmur in, at, or against, whisper in, into, or over; sigh, sough, or moan among; whisper inwardly.

im-mūtābilis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; mutabilis], unchangeable, unalterable, immutable. Compar. immutabilior.

immūtābĭlĭtas (inm-), ātis, f. [immutabilis], unchangeableness, immutability.

immūtārier (inm-), old infin. pass. from immuto.

immūtātio (inm-), ōnis, f. [immuto], an exchanging, interchange, substitution of one thing for another; verborum, varieties of expression, i.e. tropes. In pl. (rhetor. techn. t.), metonymies.

(1) immūtātus (inm-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from immuto.

(2) im-mūtātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; mutatus], unchanged, unaltered, unchangeable.

im-mūtesco (in-), ĕre, mūtŭi, intrans. incept. v. grow dumb, become speechless.

im-mūto (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. change, alter, transform. II. (rhetor. techn. t.) put (one word for another), substitute, by metonymy: pro Afris immutat Africam. Immutata oratio (= ἀλληγορία), allegorical language, allegory.

imo, adv. See immo.

imp-. For words not found with this beginning, see inp-.

IMP. abbr. = Imperator.

im-pācātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pacatus], I. unpacified, unconquered, fierce, warlike: Hiberos, i.e. Spanish roughs or brigands. 2. never at peace, never quiet.

impactus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impingo.

impaenītus (inp-), a, um, = inpunitus.

im-pallesco (in-), ĕre, pallŭi, intrans. incept. v. grow pale or turn pale over.

im-pār (in-), āris, abl. sing. in pari [impārē, Virg. Ecl. viii. 75], adj. [(2) in; par], I. uneven, unequal, odd (of number), dissimilar, unlike: imparibus carmina facta modis, i.e. hexameters and pentameters; si tot dissidet impar, is ill adjusted and sits awry; acer coloribus impar, varied in hue, with varied tint i.e. crimson, and brown; formae atque animi; ludere par impar (cogn. acc.), to play odd and even (cf. Gk. ἀρτιάζειν); (with dat.) nil fuit unquam Sic impar sibi, so inconsistent. II. unequal to, not a match for, not sufficient for, unable to meet or cope with, unable to discharge a duty or obligation, inferior to, ill-matched, weaker (with dat.) Achilles, tibi mili impar; fortuna est impar animo muliebre corpus impar dolori, unequal to, unable to support (with abl. of respect) viribus, consilio; numero; (with abl. of comparison, impar in sense minor) nec facies impar nobilitate fuit, nor was her beauty inferior to her noble birth, Ov.; (absol.) pugna impar, i.e. an unequal terms, for which one's strength is unequal; cum ibus certare, to contend with rivals who are far below me; Iulia Tiberium spreverat ut imparem, as beneath her (in birth and rank) 2. inequitable, unjust.

im-părātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; paratus], not ready, unprepared, unprovided, unfurnished (superl. imparatissimus.

impăriter (inp-), adv. [impar, unequally: versibus impariter iunctis, i.e. in alternate hexameters and pentameters.

impartio, īre. See impertio.

im-pastus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pastus], unfed, fasting, famished, hungry.

impătĭbilis, e. See impetibilis.

im-pătiens (in-), entis, adj. [(2) in; patiens], I. that cannot bear or endure anything, incapable of enduring or suffering, unable to bear impatient: (with gen.) mollis et impatiens aute laboris eram; spes, unable to brook suspense; irae, i.e. unable to control his wrath; vir, i.e. shunning the society of, shrinking or recoiling from, averse to navis impatiens gubernaculi, that does not answer to the helm; (poet. with infin. cohibere furorem) II. that does not suffer: (animus) omnis acerbi Impatiens, that feels not, untouched by any pang, Lu Compar. impatientior; superl. impatientissimus.

impătienter (inp-), adv. impatiently, with impatience; beyond endurance, intolerably. Compar. impatientius; superl. impatientissime.

impătientĭa (inp-), ae, f. [impatiens], inability to endure or suffer anything, unwillingness to bear, want of endurance, impatience.

impăvidē (inp-), adv. [impavidus], fearlessly, undauntedly.

im-pāvidus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pavidus], fearless, undaunted, without fear.

impědimentum (inp-), i, n. [impedio], I. a hindrance, impediment, encumbrance, obstacle: impedimento esse (predicat. dat.), to be a hindrance or an obstacle; to hinder, hamper. II. in pl. baggage, luggage; esp. the baggage of an army, baggage-train, army-train (including the beasts of burden); baggage-mules, packhorses: impedimenta extrema, the tail-end of the baggage-train.

im-pĕdĭo (in-), īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, (in Tmesis inque pediri, inque peditus, etc.), [in; pes; cf. expedio], trans. v. lit. entangle the feet; 1. 1. entangle, hamper, pinion, pin fast, shackle, ensnare. 1. (meton.) encircle, interweave, clasp, entwine, embrace: caput myrto; remos hederae; narrare parantem Impedit amplexu; equos frenis, i.e. bridle: septenos orbibus orbes, pin together, weld layer on layer seven fold; saltum munitionibus, block up, render impassable. II. (fig.) 1. entangle, implicate, embarrass, encumber. 2. impede, obstruct, hinder, interfere with, check, detain, delay, prevent: singultu medios impedient sonos; navigationem; aliquem a vero bonoque; in cura iure, hinder in the exercise of; fugă, deter from. Also with nĕ, quin, quominus, and with infin., or absol.

impĕdītio (inp-), ōnis, f. [impedio], a hindrance, obstruction.

impĕdĭto (inp-), āre, [freq. id.], trans. v. hinder, impede, Stat.

impĕditus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impedio. As adj. hindered, entangled, hampered, embarrassed, encumbered, beset with difficulties, difficult: locus, impassable, difficult to manage, broken up; prospectus, interrupted; animus, preoccupied, distracted, troubled, perplexed; tu rem impeditam et perditam restituas, intricate; cum victoribus nihil impeditum arbitrarentur, thinking that there was no obstacle in the way of the conquerors; quid horum non impeditissimum? what greater encumbrance could there be than any one of these? Compar. impeditior; superl. impeditissimus.

im-pello (in-), ĕre, impŭli, pulsum, trans. v. jostle, rudely interrupt. I. push, drive, force, or strike against a thing; strike upon, strike, reach, hit; (of sound) strike upon, smite. II. 1. drive or push on, drive on, urge forward, ply, set in motion, impel, shove, shoot, discharge. 2. push over, overthrow, overturn, drive back (in rout), cause to yield or give way, forcibly eject, displace, supplant. III. (fig.) 1. urge, impel, push on, incite, instigate, move, influence, affect, stir to action, stimulate, constrain, induce: ad scelus; in fraudem; irā impulsus, moved by anger, out of or under the influence of anger. Also with ut, and sts. with infin. 2. overthrow, overpower, subdue, destroy: quos deceptos impellannus, give the decisive push to one tottering on the verge, i.e. precipitate his fall; animum labantem Impulit; impulsas Vitellii res audietis, the power broken, Tac.; impulsi praesidia belli, brought near to a close, well-nigh ended.

im-pendĕo (in-), ēre, intrans. traj. v. I. hang over, overhang: cervicibus; (poet. with acc.) mare, Lucr. II. (fig.) hang or hover over, linger near, impend, be near, be imminent, threaten: omnibus terror impendet; in me terrores impendent; (with acc.) tanta te impendent mala, Ter.

impendium (inp-), ĭi, n. [impendo], lit. money weighed out, 1. outlay, expense, cost bestowed, impense. Mostly in pl. impendio, abl. sing. as adv. (lit. at great expense), by a great deal, greatly, very much: impendio magis, very much more. II. 1. money paid out for a loan, i.e. interest: faenus et impendium recusare; (meton.) ut impendia solam in pecuniae massimus largitatem tui muneris. 2. (only in abl.) loss, sacrifice, detriment: ovium; probitatis impendio, at the expense of honesty.

im-pendo (in-), ĕre, di, sum, trans. v. I. weigh out, lay out, expend. II. (meton.) expend, devote, employ, apply, bestow.

im-pĕnĕtrābilis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; penetrabilis], I. that cannot be penetrated, impenetrable. II. (fig.) that defies assault, unyielding, proof against.

impensa (inp-), ae, f. (sc. pecunia), [impensus], I. outlay, cost, charge, expense: conferre impensas, to contribute to the cost of doing something; offer one's contribution. II. (fig.) outlay, cost, sacrifice: cruoris; operum.

impensē (inp-), adv. [id.], I. at great cost, expensively, on a liberal scale, unsparingly, prodigally. II. exceedingly, greatly, very much, earnestly, eagerly, carefully, seriously, vehemently. Compar. impensius; superl. impensissime.

(1) impensus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impendo. As adj. I. (of price) ample, great, dear, expensive: impenso pretio (abl.), at a high price; also impenso (absol.; cf. magno), at a high price, regardless of expense. II. (meton.) large, great, strong, vehement, urgent; unsparing, unGrudging: voluntas; libido; cura. Compar. impensior; superl. impensissimus.

(2) impensus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impendeo; poet. for impendens, that overhangs, overhanging, Lucr. vi. 491.

imperātor (inp-), ōris, (archaic form imperator), m. [impero], I. 1. a commander-in-chief, general. 2. a title of honour conferred by the Senate. See Ramsay, pp. 202, 203. II. (meton.) 1. a commander, leader, chief, controller, manager, director, master, ruler. 2. a title of Iuppiter: signum Iovis Imperatoris. 3. the title of the Roman emperors; hence (absol.), an emperor.

imperātōrius (inp-), a, um, adj. [imperator], I. of or belonging to a commander-in-chief or general: navis, an admiral's vessel, flagship. II. of the (Roman) emperor, imperial.

imperātrix (inp-), trīcis, f. [imperator], she who commands, a she-general, mistress.

imperātum (inp-), i, n. [impero], a command, order: ad imperatum, at one's command, according to orders.

im-perceptus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; perceptus], unperceived, unknown.

im-percussus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; percussus], not struck: pes, noiseless.

im-perditus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; perditus], undestroyed, not slain or slaughtered.

im-perfectus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; perfectus], unfinished, incomplete, unaccomplished, imperfect: verba, broken, half-spoken; cibus, undigested: re imperfectā (abl. abs.), without accomplishing one's purpose.

im-perfossus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; perfossus], unpierced, unstabbed.

imperĭōsus (inp-), a, um, adj. [imperium], I. having command or dominion, invested with full power, dominant, powerful: virga, i.e. the fasces; (with dat.) sapiens, sibi qui imperiosus, who owns no master save himself. II. tyrannous, tyrannical, domineering, imperious, self-willed, peremptory. Compar. imperiosior; superl. imperiosissimus.

imperītē (inp-), adv. [imperitus], unskilfully, awkwardly, ignorantly: non imperite, with considerable address. Compar. imperitius; superl. imperitissime.

imperītia (inp-), ae, f. [imperitus], want of experience, want of skill, inexperience, ignorance, awkwardness.

imperĭto (inp-), āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. impero], intrans. v. command, govern, rule; be lord of, lord it over: libido imperitandi; (with dat.) legionibus; nemori; (with acc. of thing commanded) aequam rem imperito, what I command is just.

im-pĕritus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; peritus], inexperienced in anything, unacquainted with, with only a superficial knowledge of, unversed in, without experience, unskilled, ignorant, incompetent, knowing no better, uneducated. (with gen., or absol.; rarely with prep. in): homo imperitus morum, without knowledge of the world, ignorant of life, the spirit of the age, or the usages of society; homine imperito nunquam quicquam iniustius, than one who has no knowledge of the world; multitudo imperita et rudis. Compar. imperitior; superl. imperitissimus.

impĕrĭum (inp-), ĭi, n. [impero], I. a requisition, command, order, behest. II. (meton.) 1. the right or power of commanding, authority, command, control, power, rule, sway: nullo certo ordine neque imperio (abl. of circumstance), in no regular order or control, i.e. in no regular order and under no discipline; pro imperio, by virtue of authority, authoritatively, peremptorily, Livy, Ter. 2. supreme power. supremacy, sovereignty, sway, dominion, empire; system of government, government: de imperio decertare; novis imperiis studere, to desire new forms of government, a change of government, revolution. 3. the dominion of Rome, the realm, empire: imperi Forrecta maiestas; duas urbes inimicissimae huic imperio. III. 1. supreme military command, which could be conferred regularly only by a lex curiata, and was held by certain officers only, viz. consul, praetor, dictator, who were said 'esse cum imperio'; while the term 'potestas' was used of the power enjoyed by the censor, quaestor, aedile, etc. Hence, erit tum consul Hortensius cum summo imperio et potestate, with full military and civil authority, (the latter being held by the consuls in virtue of their election by the comitia centuriata); imperia magistratusque, military commands and civil offices, posts of authority, both military and civil; in maximis imperiis, i.e. the praetorship and consulship; Catilinam verbis et paene imperio ex urbe expulisse, so to speak, by the express exercise of my official power (as consul); qui provincias cum imperio obtinent, i.e. proconsuls and propraetors; (fig. of Hortensius, as leader of the bar) in eius exercitu signifer qui imperium iudiciorum tenere vult, to have the supreme command in, i.e. to carry all before him in the law courts. The imperium (defined by Cic. Phil. v. 6. 45, as the power 'sine quo res militaris administrari, teneri exercitus, bellum geri non potest') could not be exercised by any but a dictator within the city walls. See Ant. Rom., Essay, pp. 117, 134, 135, 181-183; Watson's Cicero, Select Letters, Note E, p. 120. 2. (meton. in pl. imperia [concr.] = imperatores) commanding officers, commanders, generals, Cic., Caes. IV. the imperial government, the government: tandem quasi coactus recepit imperium, Suet.

im-perĭūrātĭus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; periuratus], that is never sworn falsely by: poet. epith. of the waters of the Styx.

im-permissus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; permissus], forbidden, unlawful.

im-pĕro (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, [(1) in; (1) paro], intrans. traj. and traj. trans. v. I. command, order, prescribe, enjoin: Pa. iubesne? Chr. iubeo, cogo, atque impero, Ter.; ut imperet hoc natura potens, sic collige; quae imperarentur facere dixerunt; with dat. of person, acc. of thing) sto exspectans si quid mihi imperent, to see if they have any orders to give me; cenam parari, i.e. order him to get supper; (with subj., with or without ut, nē) servis imperat, ut se ipsum neglegant, filiam defendant; mihi ne abscedam imperat; abstrahit invitas gremio genitoris, alantque Imperat Argolicam sedenti munere classem; (with relat. clause, rare) imperabat quid opus esset; (with infin. or obj. clause; in Cic. only with pass. infin., in Caes. only with pass. infin. or dep.) terraeque advertere porras Imperat; Trim ad Persilum descendere Imperat; imperavi egomet mihi, omnia adsentari, I set myself the task, made a rule for myself, to flatter through thick and thin; nonne hunc in vincula duci, non supplicio mactari imperabis? (poet.) pass. imperor, for mihi imperatur (cf. Munro, Lucr. ii. 156, note); haec ego procurare et idoneus imperor, the task is set me, I am in duty bound, or, as Prof. Wilkins takes it, I charge myself (officio) parari, Hor. II. put upon as a task or burden, impose upon, make requisition for, order to be furnished or delivered, give orders for, exact, demand, require: equites civitatibus; pluribus quam ante obsidibus imperatis; pecuniae; frumentum; (fig.) sola terrae seges imperatur, i.e. corn is the only produce the land is required to furnish; dum nimis imperat voci, tasks his voice too severely. III. 1. hold authority, command, rule over, have sovereign power, govern, rule, (in military language) command, order, give orders; (with dat., or absol.) ad imperandum adesse (vocari), for ordering, to receive orders, Cic. Sall. 2. be emperor, Suet., Plin. 3. (meton.) command, master, govern, rule, guard it over, hold sway, be master: sibi; imperat aut servit collecta pecunia cuique; dis te minorem quod geris imperas; irae, restrain, repress; menti non satis, i.e. be beside one's self; imperet: animo nequivi quin ... scirem, I could not repress my desire of knowing.

im-perspĭcŭus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; perspicuus], not clear, obscure.

im-perterrĭtus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; perterritus], unterrified, undaunted, undismayed.

im-pertio (impartĭo), (in-), īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, [partio], trans. v. I. share with another, communicate, bestow, impart: (with dat.) oneris mei partem nemini impertio; Terentia impertit tibi multam salutem, sends her kind regards to you; te peto ut aliquid impertias temporis huic quoque cogitationi; (with prep. ad) nihil tuae prudentiae ad salutem meam; te, M. Fanni, quaeso, ut talem te et nobis et rei publicae hoc tempore impertias (=praebeas), show yourself; pro his impertitis, in return for these benefits bestowed. II. (with acc. of person, abl. of thing) make one a sharer or partaker in anything; present a person with: aliquem donis; aliquem osculo, vouchsafe one a kiss; aliquem salute plurima, wish the best of health to one; doctrinis quibus aetas puerilis impertiri debet, to be furnished, made acquainted, Nepos.

impertior (inp-), īri, dep. (with acc. of person, abl. of thing), make one partaker in a thing, present one with, Ter. Cf. impertio, II.

impertītus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impertio.

im-perturbātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; perturbatus], undisturbed, unruffled, calm.

im-pervius (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pervius], that cannot be passed through, unfordable, impassable, impervious, affording no passage.

im-pĕs (in-), pĕtis, (only in gen. and abl. sing.) m. [in; peto], (poet.=impetus), 1. violence, vehemence, force, impetuosity, assault, shock. 2. mass, extent, vastness: membrorum, Lucr.

im-pĕtĭbĭlis (impĕtĭbĭlis), (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; patibilis], insufferable, insupportable.

im-pĕto (in-), āre, trans. v. rush upon, set on, assail, attack, charge.

impĕtrābilis (inp-), e, adj. [impetro], I. (pass.) easy to be obtained, attainable. II. (active) successful, propitious. Compar. impetrabilior.

impĕtrātio (inp-), ōnis, f. [impetro], an obtaining by request, successful appeal.

impĕtrio, īre, [desid. impetro], trans. v. (relig. techn. t.) seek to obtain by omens (by augury or sacrifice): (pass. impers.) impetritum est, the auspices give a favourable omen.

im-pĕtro (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, [in; patro], trans. v. accomplish, effect, bring to pass; have vouchsafed to one, get, obtain by request, entreaty, exertion), succeed in obtaining: unum impetrassent te revocante diem; ludum super impetrato Fortis Augusti reditu, in honour of the return of brave A. granted to our prayers; ea re impetrata, this request being granted; impetrato (neut. abl. abs.) ut manerent, on their consenting to stay; ne id quidem ab se impetrari posse dixit, that not even this request could be granted; impetro a (ab), receive a favourable answer from, gain permission from, obtain leave, prevail upon, persuade (followed by ut, nē, or simple subj.); (with obj. omitted) si non impetraret, if he failed in obtaining his demands, if his request were not complied with; ut de induciis fallendo impetrarent, to obtain favourable terms in regard to a truce; (with acc. and infin.) Agrippina in oppidum Ubiorum veteranos coloni-amque deduci impetrat, procured the despatch of, Tac.

impĕtus (inp-), ūs, dat. sing. impetu, Cic., m. [impeto], lit. an on-fall; I. an onset, attack, assault, charge, rush, shock: impetum facere, (a) to make a rush, charge, fall upon; (b) to make an inroad, invasion. II. (meton.) 1. violent or rapid motion, pace, onward movement, momentum, impulse, impetuosity, vehemence, violence, force, fury, dash, spurt, Catull. iv. 3: in magno impetu maris atque aperto, i.e. on a wild and open sea; tantos impetus ventorum, such violent gales of wind; Hebri, tide, current; fert impetus ipse volantem, the way on the ship, the swing (given by the rowers). 2. (mental) impulse, motive, excitement, excitement, passion, hastiness, impetuosity, zeal, strong propensity, sudden purpose, caprice (as opp. to delectus, deliberate choice): donec impetus famae et favor exercitus languesceret, the first burst, freshness of his renown; exigua cum frenarent materia impetum, the scantiness of his subject-matter checked the free play of his fancy; iam latis currere campis impetus est, I have a longing, I am strongly moved. In pl. impulses, instincts: animalia, quae habent suos impetus, Cic.; stirrings of emotion, poetic impulse, inspiration, Ov. Fasti, vi. 6.

im-pexus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pexus], uncombed, unkempt, in disorder.

implē (inp-), adv. [impius], irreligiously, undutifully, treasonably, wickedly, impiously.

impĭĕtas (inp-), ātis, f. [id.], want of dutiful conduct (towards the gods, parents, kindred, country, or benefactors), want of devotion, irreverence, impiety, want of natural affection, undutifulness, disloyalty, treason, unnatural feeling or conduct, violation of duty.

im-pĭger (in-), pĭgra, pĭgrum, adj. [(2) in; piger], active, energetic, alert, fleet, quick, diligent, indefatigable, ready to work: Hercules ever-toiling ad letum, prompt to face death; (with gen. of respect) militiae, an indefatigable soldier, Tac.; (poet. with infin.) hostium vexare turmas, Hor.

impĭgrē (inp-), adv. [impiger], actively, energetically, readily.

impĭgritas (inp-), ātis, f. [id.], activity, energy.

im-pingo (in-), ĕre, pēgi, pactum, [in; pango], trans. v. I. 1. drive, dash, force, or throw against or into; rivet or fasten on: agmina muris; equites in vallum; lapidem alicui, hurl a stone at a person, strike with a stone; fustem alicui, give the rod to, give one a drubbing; compedes alicui; calcem alicui, give a kick to, send packing; abicito potius, quam quo perferre iuberis Clitellas ferus impingas, throw it away rather than wildly dash it down, like panniers, at the place where you are told to carry it. 2. press, thrust, force upon one against his will: alicui dicam grandem, tack a heavy lawsuit on, bring a heavy action against; alicui epistulam. II. (fig.) drive, thrust, force to anything: populos in arma.

im-pĭus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pius], wanting in duty (towards the gods, parents, kindred, country, or benefactors), irreverent, ungodly, unrighteous, undutiful, unnatural, lost to natural affection, disloyal, unpatriotic; godless, sacrilegious, impious, wicked, fell, accursed, outcast, reprobate: Tartara, i.e. the abode of the impious; di impii, i.e. deities not admitted by the Senate to a place in the Roman Pantheon, and whom it was illegal to worship; others say, gods invoked in magic, Tac. Superl. impiissimus.

im-plācābilis (in-), e, adj. [(2) in; placabilis], unappeasable, inexorable, implacable, irreconcilable: in aliquem; alicui.

implācābiliter (in-), adv. [implacabilis], unappeasably, rancorously, irreconcilably. Compar. implacabilius.

im-plācātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; placatus], unappeased, insatiable, remorseless, unrelenting.

im-plăcĭdus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; placidus], ungentle, rude, rough, savage, fierce: fores, i.e. implacidi monstri, Propert.

im-plecto (in-), ĕre, plexi, xum, trans. v. I. plait into, wind or twist into or among, fold together, interlace, intertwine: (pass. part. in middle sense, with acc.) Eumenides, caeruleos implexae crinibus angues, having steel-blue snakes entwined amid their locks. II. (fig.) involve, entangle, wrap: vidua implexa luctu continuo, Tac. Ann. xvi. 10, where some read impexa.

im-plēo (in-), ēre, ēvi, ētum, [in; pleo], trans. v. I. 1. fill in, fill up, make full, fill; (with abl. or gen. of matter or thing supplied) patrem mero; ventis vela secundis, swell; ollam denariorum. 2. fill with food, satisfy, satiate: pass. reflex. impleri, to eat or drink one's fill, take one's fill, gorge one's self; veteris Bacchi pinguisque ferinae. 3. fill out, make plump, fleshy, stout, fat, bring into good condition: nascentes implent conchylia lunae. 4. fill or swell the womb, make pregnant: gemino Nycteida fetu. 5. fill up, complete, make up, amount to (a certain measure): quater quatet iunctis implērat cornibus orbem; mensuraque roboris uinas Quinque ter implebat; modius grani xvi libras implet, i.e. weighs. II. (fig.) 1. fill, make full, give one as much as he can hold, content, satisfy, glut, engross, inspire. 2. (of time or number) fill up, make out, eke out, complete, finish, end: undenos Decembres; finem vitae; implēsti lacrimis talia verba tuis, you filled up the pauses in your words; implentur numeris steriora suis, i.e. have their places filled. 3. fulfil, discharge, perform, execute, make good, satisfy; imitate perfectly, fully attain to: promissum; hanc (sc. causam) tamen implēsti, this task you have fulfilled; fata, fulfil the prophecy, Livy; consilium, put in execution; spem; alicuius vestigia, imitate; inimici amaritudinem, i.e. act with all the bitterness of an enemy; vera bona; summum fastigium privati hominis. 4. do full justice to a subject (literary): iactitiam illius diei . . vix in illo iusto opere abunde persequi poterimus, nedum hic implere, Vell.; alius excessisse materiam, alius dicitur non implesse, Plin.; materiamque tuis tristem virtutibus imple, Ov.

implērat (inpl-), implērint, implēris, implērit, implērunt, sync. for implevĕrat, implevĕrint, etc., from impleo.

implēsse (inpl-), implēssem, implēsset, sync. for implevisse, etc., from impleo.

implētus (inpl-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impleo.

implexus (inpl-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from implecto. Often confused in MSS. with impexus.

implĭcātĭo (inpl-), ōnis, f. [implico], an interweaving, entwining, entanglement, intricacy, complexity, involved state, embarrassment.

implĭcātus (inpl-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from implico. As adj. entangled, intricate, complex, perplexed, confused. Compar. implicatior; superl. implicatissimus.

implĭcĭtē (inpl-), adv. [implicitus], intricately, in an involved manner.

implĭcĭto (inpl-), āre, [freq. implico], trans. v. interweave, entwine: orbes, form circle within circle, make a series of circular movements.

implĭcĭtus (inpl-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from implico.

im-plico (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, or -ŭi, ĭtum, [in; plico], trans. v. I. fold in, enfold, entwine, interweave, entangle, overlap, involve, hamper, encircle, tie close, encompass, embrace, clasp, grasp: comam laevā, wind the left hand in the hair, grasp by the hair; dextrae ne parvus lulus implicuit, clung to, clutched; aquila implicuit pedes atque unguibus haesit, fastens or buries her feet in the prey, and grips it with her talons; (of a falling horse) equitem, holds him fast, pins him down; huic (telo) natam implicat, binds, fastens to; meos implicat unda pedes, winds round, encompasses; tempora ramo, encircle; crinem auro; se collo, throw one's-self on or around; materno bracchia collo, fold the arms around, clasp, embrace; implicitam sinu (Ariadnen) abstulit; impliciti Peleus rapit oscula nati, locked or folded in his arms, embraced and embracing; totas acies, lock in confusion; (lues) implicat ossibus ignem, wraps her bones, thrills her limbs with fire. II. (fig.) 1. entangle, fetter, involve, envelop, implicate, mix up in, engage; perplex, confuse, embarrass: alienis rebus implicari; tanti errores implicant (sc. nos) temporum, ut, nec qui consules, nec quid quoque anno actum sit digerere possis, i.e. so unsleading and so complex are the dates, that, etc.; morbo (in morbum) implicatus or implicitus, fallen into or seized by disease, in the meshes of sickness, 'hors de combat' with sickness; litibus implicitus, embarrassed by. 2. attach closely, connect intimately, unite closely, join inseparably; in pass. be intimately connected or associated with, come into close contact or collision with; (with abl. in Cic. without prep. in): implicata inscientia impudentiā est, his ignorance goes hand in hand with his impudence; se societate civium; familiaritate; ita diu vixit ut multarum aetatum oratoribus implicaretur.

implōrābilis (inpl-), e, adj. [imploro], that may be entreated or prayed to for help.

implōrātio (inpl-), ōnis, f. [id.], an entreating for help, imploring.

im-plōro (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. invoke with tears, call upon for aid, entreat, implore, beseech, invoke: deos; ducem; sts., but rarely, with double acc., aliquem auxilium. II. (with things as objects) pray earnestly for, beg for, implore; call to witness, appeal to = huius rei magnis imploravere periclis; Heracliti memoriam; filii nomen.

implūmis (inpl-), e, adj. [(2) in; 'pluma], I. featherless, unfledged, callow. II. (meton.) bald.

im-plŭo (in-), ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, intrans. and trans. v. rain into or upon.

implŭvium (inpl-), ĭi, n. [impluo], a rain-tank or reservoir, sunk in the floor of the atrium in a Roman house, to catch the rain-water which fell in through the 'compluvium.' In the passages where MSS. read impluvium, in sense=compluvium (a skylight), the best editions adopt other readings. See Rich.

impōlītē (inp-), adv. [impolitus], without ornament, in simple language.

impōlītia (inp-), æ, f. [id.], want of ornament; negligence (techn. of Roman equites when their horses were out of condition).

im-pōlītus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; politus], I. unpolished, undressed, rough: lapides. II. (fig.) 1. unpolished, rough, rude, inelegant. 2. left in the rough, unfinished: res.

im-pollūtus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pollutus], unpolluted, inviolate, unstained.

im-pōno (in-), ĕre, pŏsŭi, pŏsĭtum, trans. v. I. 1. place upon, lay or set upon, put, place, lay, set in, or into; put, set, mount (men on horses); serve up, serve: aliquem in rogum; clitellas bovi: haec super (i.e. super haec) imposuit liquidum aethera; ipsosque (sc. Arcas and Callisto) nefasque Sustulit, et raptos . . . Imposuit caelo, planted in the heavens (as constellations); oculos imponere, lit. to set in a slit made in the bark i.e. to inoculate, bud (trees); omnibus equis detractis, eo (i.e. in eos) legionarios milites imponere; pontem flumini, throw a bridge over; artus mensis; cervici imponere (imperat. pass. reflex.) nostrae, place thyself, mount on my shoulders. 2. (naut. techn. t.) put on board ship, embark (with or without in navem, in naves); sts. with adv.: scaphas contexit, eoque (i.e. in eas) milites imposuit; (with dat.) nos in aeternum Exsilium impositura cymbae, i.e. on Charon's bark. 3. (of animals) mate: asinum equae. II. (fig.) 1. put or lay upon, impose, throw, thrust or inflict upon, saddle one with a thing; put, set, fix, (with dat.) nos in aeternum Exsilium impositura cymbae, i.e. on Charon's bark. 3. (of animals) mate: asinum equae. II. (fig.) 1. put or lay upon, impose, throw, thrust or inflict upon, saddle one with a thing; put, set, fix, (with dat.) give to: illi illud negotium; onus alicui; (feminа) cui tolerare colo vitam . . . Impositum, whose task it is to support; vulnus rei publicae; vim alicui, do violence to; vocabula rebus; finem pugnae; pacis morem, impose on them, ordain the laws (rule) of peace; manum alicui rei, put one's hand to, take in hand, set to work at; extremam (summam, supremam) manum alicui rei imponere, to put the finishing touch to, to the 'coup de grâce.' 2. set over, as ruler, commander, overseer, appoint: dominum patriae; sts. absol. (sc. villae), set over an estate, as manager. 3. lay or impose upon, as a burden, tax, etc.: stipendium victis. 4. embark one on or in, launch upon (an enterprise, etc.): cuius amicitia me paulatim in hanc perditam causam imposuit. 5. (absol. with dat. of person) impose upon, trick, cheat, deceive: facile est barbato imponere regi.

im-porto (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. carry, bring, or convey into; bring in from abroad, import. II. (fig.) draw or bring in or upon, introduce, occasion, cause: luctum sibi; odium libellis.

importūnē (inp-), adv. [importunus], unsuitably, unseasonably; rudely, obstinately.

importūnĭtas (inp-), ātis, f. [id.], I. unsuitableness, unfitness. II. ruthlessness, savagery, unmannerliness, insolence, obtrusiveness, tiresomeness, perversity, obstinacy, unreasonableness, wrong-headedness, waywardness, frowardness, impracticability, cantankerousness.

importūnus (inp-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; portus], lit. unfavourable to a journey; I. untimely, unsuitable, unfavourable, inconvenient. II. 1. oppressive, troublesome, that causes worry or annoyance, harassing, vexatious: pauperies. 2. savage, tyrannical, ruthless, without feeling, unnatural, insolent, cross-grained, wrong-headed, perverse, unaccommodating, unreasonable, insatiate, greedy; foul, abominable, ill-mannered, evil; disastrous, dangerous, injurious. Compar. importunior; superl. importunissimus.

im-portŭōsus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in portuosus], without harbour, harbourless.

im-pŏs (in-), pŏtis, adj. [(2) in; potis], not master of, without power over; not possessed of, without: sui; mentis; veritatis.

impŏsĭtus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impono.

impostus (inp-), a, um, sync. for impositus.

im-pŏtens (in-), entis, adj. [(2) in; potens], I. powerless, weak: inultā cesserat impotens Tellure; (with gen.) not master of, having no power over, unable to control: irae; laetitiae; sui. (=impotens sui), without self-control, unable to control one's passions, ungovernable, headstrong, mad, reckless, uncontrollable, violent, lawless, intemperate: homo impotentissimus, ardens odio; (poet. with complementary infin.) quidlibet impotens sperare, reckless enough to hope for anything, (=tam impotens sui ut quidlibet speraret); amor; Aquilo; freta; iussa. Compar. impotentior; superl. impotentissimus.

impōtenter (inp-), adv. [impotens], I. weakly: elephanti impotentius regi, i.e. the riders lost their control over them, Livy. II. without self-control, passionately, intemperately. Compar. impotentius; superl. impotentissime.

impōtentia (inp-), æ, f. [id.], I. want of means, poverty, Tert. II. want of self-control, domineering spirit, imperiousness, passionate or outrageous conduct, lawlessness, violence: mulierbris; nullius astri Gregem aestuosa torret impotentia, no dog-star's fiery rage.

impraesentiārum (inpr-), or separately in praesentiarum, adv. [colloq. for in praesentia harum rerum], under present circumstances, at present, for the present.

im-pransus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pransus], that has not lunched; fasting, sober. The prandium was the first substantial meal of the day.

im-prĕcor (in-), āri, ātus sum, trans. dep. call down upon by prayer, pray for something against some one, invoke: alicui multos annos, wish a person a long life; litora litoribus contraria, fluctibus undas (sc. contrarias), Imprecor, arma armis, Virg.; alicui diras.

impressio (inpr-), ōnis, f. [imprimo], I. a pressing upon, impression; (fig.) an imprint, impression made on the mind: visorum, Cic. II. an irruption, inroad, attack, onset: impressionem facere in fines Suessionum; vi et impressione aliquem evertere, by a violent and brutal attack. III. (meton.) the distinct marking of sounds, intonation, emphasis: vocum.

impressus (inpr-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from imprimo.

(2) im-pressus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pressus], not pressed: ubera, i.e. not milked, Propert. Some, taking impressis as part. from imprimo, render, the udder which it (the kid) was sucking.

imprīmis (inpr-), also in primis, adv. [in primis], among the first, especially, principally, above all, more than anything else, chiefly, particularly.

im-primo (in-), ĕre, pressi, pressum, [in; premo], trans. v. I. press in, press or stamp upon, impress, imprint, brand, set a mark upon, press, dig, stamp into: non levior cippus nunc imprimit ossa; vestigium; dente labris notam; numeros acervis; ceu impressa toro (part. pass. reflex.), with her lips laid close to the couch; muris hostile aratrum, drive deep over; transtra per et remos impressaque terga virorum, i.e. bent to their work, straining. II. press in, give impression to a thing, engrave, stamp, emboss: tabellae signo suo impressae, sealed; cratera impressum signis, embossed with designs; impressumque nefas, the crime graven thereon. III. (fig.) I. impress, imprint, attach permanently or indelibly, engrave, stamp, mark: imprimi quasi ceram animum putamus, receives impressions; dedecus reipublicae; in animis notionem deorum. 2. mark, stamp with something; flagitiorum vestigiis municipia impressit, left the marks on.

imprōbātio (inpr-), ōnis, f. [improbo], disapprobation, disapproval, depreciation, rejection.

imprōbē (inpr-), adv. [improbus], I. beyond measure, exceedingly, enormously: de quodam procerae staturae improbiusque nato, abnormally developed. II. badly, wrongly, improperly, wickedly, dishonestly, unconscionably, shamelessly Cf. improbus. II. Compar. improbius; superl. improbissime.

imprōbĭtas (inpr-), ātis, f. [id.], I. badness, wickedness, dishonesty, want of principle, assurance, shameless perseverance, self-assertion, effrontery, desperate recklessness.

im-prōbo (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, [(2) in; probo], trans. v. disapprove, condemn, rebuke, scoff at, reject, refuse to sanction, disallow, rescind, annul.

imprōbŭlus (inpr-), a, um, adj. [dim. improbus], somewhat bold, a bit brushing.

imprōbus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; probus], lit. out of due proportion, either of defect or of excess; I. 1. (of defect) of bad quality, bad, inferior, poor: panis, Mart. 2. (of excess) enormous, excessive, monstrous, abnormal: hominem super improbus exit, Stat.; patibulum, very high, Sall. II. (fig.) 1. morally bad, wicked, ill-affected, villainous, unfair, unjust, dishonest, unprincipled, rascally, knavish: id quidem improbum est, that would be morally wrong, Cic.; testamentum, unfair, or illegal; dicta (verba), wanton, licentious; saturela, that makes wanton, lascivious. In Cic. improbi, m. pl., is often 'the disaffected party,' 'the obstructionists,' opposed to boni. Cf. bonus, III. 2. (with the notion of excess) bold, shameless, presuming, overbold, saucy, insolent, rude, ill-mannered, pushing, obtrusive, restless, pertinacious, obstinate, tiresome, irrepressible, unconscionable, unfair, unreasonable, unscrupulous, outrageous, bent on mischief, malicious, cruel, relentless, ruthless: improbior satiram scribente cinaedo, more brazen, more unblushing; vitanda est improba Siren, forward, importunate; si mihi (nunc foret illa iuventas), quae quondam fuerat, quâque improbus iste Exsultat, yon forward youth, Virg.; nunquid sumus improbi? are we overbold, presuming too much? Mart.; negat improbus, he persists in saying No, he says No, and sticks to it, Hor.; labor, persevering, untiring, dogged, Virg.; quatit improbus hastam, untiring, restless; or, relentless, id.; anser, greedy, guzzling, gluttonous; or, probably, ever-cackling, id.; ventris rabies, insatiate, ravenous, id.; piscibus atram Improbus ingluviem . . . explet, remorselessly, or voraciously, Virg.; id. (Iovis ales) cycnum pedibus rapit improbus uncis, grips with rapacious talons, id.; improbâ fauce (lupus) incitatus, Phaedr.; tigris, ravening; divitiae, insatiate, Hor.; improbo Iracundior Hadriâ, restless, unruly, id.; cornix plenâ pluviam vocat improba voce, importunately calls, Virg.; pars (fibrarum) micat et celeri venas movet improba pulsu, stirs incessantly, Lucr.; somnus, outrageously long, Mart.; improbius nihil hâ fictibus esse potest, more unreasonable, Mart.; fertur in abruptum magno mons improbus actu, resistless, relentless, Virg. (cf. Homer's Ἀάας ἀναιδὴς); anus improba Thebis Ex testamento sic est elata, roguish, waggish, Hor.; stat fortuna improba noctu, Adriâno nuta infantibus, on mischief bent, sly jade, Iuv.; improbus ille puer, mischievous, wanton, naughty, impish, Virg.; nec fortuna Sinonem mendacem improba finget, in her malice, id.; improbe amor, quid non mortalia pectora cogis? torturing, tyrant love, id. Compar. improbior; superl. improbissimus.

im-prōcērus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; procerus], not tall, undersized, stunted.

(?) im-prōdictus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; prodictus], 1. not previously appointed. 2. not postponed.

im-prōfessus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; professus], I. that has not openly declared himself. II. (passive) undeclared.

im-promptus (in-) a, um, adj. [(2) in; promptus], not ready, not quick, behindhand.

imprŏpĕrātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; properatus], not hastened, not hasty, lingering, without haste, deliberate.

im-prŏpĕrus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; properus], not hasting, slow, Sil.

im-prŏprius (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; proprius], not befitting, unsuitable, improper.

im-prosper (in-), ĕra, ĕrum, adj. [(2) in; prosper], unfortunate, unsuccessful.

improspĕrē (inpr-), adv. [improsper], unfortunately, unsuccessfully.

improvīdē (inpr-), adv. [improvidus], improvidently, inconsiderately, recklessly.

im-prōvidus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; providus], I. not foreseeing, unforeseeing, not anticipating, improvident, inconsiderate; unsuspicious, blind: (with gen.) futuri certaminis, Livy; consilii (Vitellius), without forethought in his plans, Tac.; (poet. with infin.) (hasta) nimio iactu servâsse improvida campi Distantis spatium, Sil. II. that happens unexpectedly, coming unawares, unforeseen: tela, Plin.

improvīsō (inpr-), adv. See improvisus.

im-prōvisus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; provisus], not foreseen, unforeseen, unexpected, sudden. As subst. improvīsum, i, n. that which is unforeseen, a sudden emergency, contingency, Tac. De improvīso, ex improvīso, or improvīso (neut. abl. abs. = adv.), of a sudden, unexpectedly, unawares.

im-prūdens (in-), ntis, adj. [(2) in; prudens], not foreseeing, not anticipating or expecting, unsuspecting, off one's guard, taken by surprise, without warning, surprised, unprepared, incautious, unconsiderate, short-sighted, rash, not being aware, without knowing, unconscious, ignorant, inexperienced, thoughtless, simple, unwary; often may be rendered by advv., inadvertently, unintentionally, unwittingly (with gen.) frons tenera imprudensque laborum, unused to trials, Virg.; legis, ignorant of. Compar. imprudentior; superl. imprudentissimus.

imprūdenter (inpr-), adv. [imprudens], without foresight, unknowingly, ignorantly, inconsiderately. Compar. imprudentius.

imprūdentia (inpr-), ae, f. [id.], want of foresight or forethought, want of consideration, indiscretion, inadvertence, ignorance: per imprudentiam, inadvertently.

im-pūbes (in-), pŭbĕris, and impūbis, (inp-), is, adj. [(2) in; pubes], I. that has not reached the age of puberty; beardless, immature, youthful: puer; nec impubem parentes Troilon . . . flevere semper, for all his youth, i.e. for all he died in early youth; malae; anni. As subst. impūbes (inp-), is, m. f. a male or female who has not attained the age of puberty; (as legal techn. t.) one who is under age, a minor. II. unmarried, chaste, Caes. B. G. vi. 21.

im-pūdens (in-), ntis, adj. [(2) in; pudens], without shame, shameless, barefaced, immodest. Compar. impudentior; superl. impudentissimus.

impūdenter (inp-), adv. [impudens], shamelessly, immodestly, in a barefaced manner. Compar. impudentius; superl. impudentissime.

impūdentia (inp-), ae, f. [id.], shamelessness, effrontery.

impūdicē (inp-), adv. [impudicus], unchastely.

impūdicitia (inp-), ae, f. [id.], unchastity, immodesty, lewdness, profligacy.

im-pūdicus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; pudicus], I. shameless. II. unchaste, lewd, immodest: digitus impudicus, i.e. the middle finger, used in indecent or mocking gestures; hence, digitum impudicum alicui ostendere, to poke the finger of scorn at a person. III. (meton.) disgusting, nasty: odor urcei, Mart. Compar. impudicior; superl. impudicissimus.

impugnātio (inp-), ōnis, f. [impugno], an attack, assault.

(?) impugnātor (inp-), ōris, m. [id.], one who attacks.

im-pugno (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. fight against, attack, assail, invade: sts. without obj. acc. fight, charge (of offensive warfare). II. (fig.) attack, assail, oppose, impugn.

impulsio (inp-), ōnis, f. [impello], I. a pushing against, external pressure, influence. II. (fig.) incitement, impulse, influence.

impulsor (inp-), ōris, m. [id.], one that incites, an inciter, instigator: me impulsore, at my instigation, Ter.

(1) impulsus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from impello.

(2) impulsus (inp-), ūs, m. [impello], I. an outward pressure, shock, impulse of one received; a moving, propelling: scuturum, the clash of shield against shield. II. (fig.) influence, incitement, instigation, suggestion.

impūnē (inp-), adv. [impunis], I. without punishment, without fear of punishment or harm, with impunity: aliquid impune facere, ferre, habere, receive no punishment for, escape paying dearly for a thing, go unpunished; but impune ferre, sts. put up with, submit to tamely, Ov.; impune est alicui, he escapes unpunished; neque tantum maleficium impune habendum, must not go unpunished. II. (meton.) without danger, without evil consequences, without harm or loss, safely, securely, freely: emicat hic, impune pulsans, . . . Turnus (i.e. id sibi impune fore, or, id se impune facturum), thinking to do it safely; impune tutum per nemus arbutos Quaerunt (capellae), i.e. unharmed. Compar. impunius; superl. impunissime.

impūnis (inp-), e, adj. [(2) in; poena], unpunished.

impūnitas (inp-), ātis, f. [impunis], I. freedom or safety from punishment, impunity; exemption from legal proceedings, bill of pardon, indemnity. II. (meton.) 1. security, freedom. 2. absence of restraint, recklessness, unrestricted freedom: dicendi.

impūnītē (inp-), adv. [impunitus], with impunity.

im-pūnītus or impoenītus (inp-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; punitus], I. unpunished, scot-free. II. (meton.) unrestrained, reckless; free from danger, safe, secure. Compar. impunitior.

impūrātus (inp-), a, um, denom. adj. formed like part., [impurus], morally defiled, abominable, infamous, odious: impuratus ille, that vile scoundrel. Superl. impuratissimus.

impūrē (inp-), adv. [impurus], impurely, foully, vilely, shamefully: multa facere, commit many base actions. Superl. impurissime.

impūritas (inp-), ātis, f. [id.], (moral) uncleanness, pollution, impurity, obscenity, lewdness.

impūritia (inp-), ae, f. = impuritas.

im-pūrus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; purus], I. unclean, foul, filthy. II. (fig.) unclean (morally), impure, lewd, obscene, defiled, sordid, filthy, vile, infamous, profligate, abandoned: homo haud impurus, tolerably decent, not a bad sort of man. Compar. impurior; superl. impurissimus.

(1) imputātus (inp-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from imputo.

(2) im-pūtātus (in-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; putatus, pres. part. of unpruned, undressed, untrimmed: vinea, Hor.

im-pūto (in-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. bring into the reckoning, enter into account, charge, reckon. II. (fig.) enter into one's account against one's-self or another, attribute (as a merit or fault), charge, ascribe, impute to; charge to one's account as a favour done and received, take credit for, make a boast of, make a merit of, claim gratitude for: noli imputare vanum beneficium mihi, don't hold me indebted to you for, don't give me credit for a worthless favour: saevit enim, natumque obiectat et imputat illis, upbraids them with his son's death, and charges them with it, i.e. blames them for it; bos aret, aut inortem senioribus imputet aruris, i.e. let old age alone by to blame; atque aliquis . . . acta venenis Imputat, puts your achievements down to (the agency of) magic; fructus amicitiae magnae cibus, imputat hunc rex, the great man makes a merit of it, quae inopi dedit, quae forma, ut se tibi semper Imputet? what dignity of manner, what beauty, can compensate for her always throwing her worth in your teeth? imputet ipse deus nectar mihi, fiet acetum, i.e. were Iove himself to give me nectar, and claim my gratitude for it; quot Formianos imputat dies annus? does the year grant as a favour, i.e. are you indebted to it for as holidays? imputet nobis otia parva roga, beg him favour me with a few leisure moments; hoc solum erit certamen, quis mihi plurimum imputet, who shall lay me under obligation most; nec data imputant (Germani), nec acceptis obligantur, they neither regard what they give as conferring an obligation, i.e. they claim no credit for what they give; imputat aetheros ortus haec (lux) prima parenti, i.e. your father owes to this day his first entrance into the world.

imūlus, a, um, adj. [dim. imus], at the very bottom, the lowest: auricilla, the delicate lobe of some tiny ear, Catull.

imus, a, um, adj., superl. of inferus, I. the lowest, deepest, bottommost, nethermost, inmost, the depths of: imo tollere de gradu, genitus imo de pectore ducens; ad imam quercum, at the foot of the oak; ima vallis, the bottom of the valley; ima vox, the highest voice, treble, tenor, Ter. S. i. 3. 7.; imi convivae lecti, the guest on the lowest couch in the triclinium, i.e. the scurrae; see Dict. Ant. triclinium; medio recumbit imus ille qui lecto, i.e. the principal guest. As subst. imum, i, n. the lowest part, bottom, depth: ab imo, ex imo, from the bottom, from the lowest depth; from the foundations, utterly; summus ab imo, i.e. from the top to the bottom, Hor., Ov.; longos imitaris, ab imo Ad summum totus moduli bipedalis (gen. quality), you are aping tall men, when you are altogether from top to toe only a dwarf two feet high; aures Instabiles imo (local abl.) facit, at the bottom: invenio sine vortice aquas . . . Perspicuas imo, down to the very bottom. 2. (fig.) lowest (in rank or degree), humblest, lowliest: superis imisque deorum Arbiter; valet ima summis Mutare deus. II. (fig.) of time or order, the last: qui (mensis) sacer est imis Manibus, imus erat, i.e. February was the last month, Ov. As subst. imum, i, n. the last, the end: (persona) servetur ad imum Qualis ab incepto processerit, to the last, to the end: medio ne discrepet imum. Ad postremum, in imo, in imo ut, at last, finally, Hor. Ep. i. 18. 36.

(1) in (old forms (a) endō, in Ennius with acc., in Lucr. with abl., (b) indū, with abl. and Gk. ἔνδον. Lucr. has iacere indu once for inicere), prep. with abl. and acc., (Sanscr. pronom. root AN-; Gk. ἐν, ἐν-ι, and εἰς = ἐν-ς, ἀνα), A. (with abl., signifying rest within); I. (of place), 1. in, within: in urbe; matris in alvo; in Italia; Homerus; Andria Terentii, when a work is quoted; but apud Homerum, apud Terentium, in (the writings of) Homer, in Terence, when the author only is cited; quantum in me est, as far as lies in my power, to the utmost of my ability; in ore esse omni populo, he's the talk of the town; in ore omnium versaris, you are in everybody's mouth; quae in ore atque in oculis sunt, in our presence, within view and before (our) eyes; in veste candidâ, clad in a white robe, dressed in white; in crepidis, with shoes on, wearing crepidae; in armis, under arms; horridus in iaculis, equipped with; raptâ victor consistit in hastâ. Sts. with names of places, in Ephesо, in Marathone, at Ephesus, at Marathon. Verbs of 'placing' usually take the prep. in with abl. 2. on, upon: quis multâ gracilis te puer in rosâ . . . urguet, on beds of roses; nix est in summo monte; non pasces in cruce corvos; in equo (equis), on horseback; quatuor in niveis aureus ibis equis, mounted upon, i.e. driving; in eo flumine pons erat, over; qualis (Edonis) in herboso concidit Apidano, on the banks of. 3. among, amongst, amidst: medite (habere) tibus; in bonis (habere), to reckon among blessings; in Sequanis, amongst, in the country of. II. (of time) in, during, in the course of, at: bis in horâ; nihil in vitâ vidit calamitatis; in quaerendo, in the course of inquiry; in diebus Merandis, whilst deliberating; in itinere, on the march, 'en route;' in praesentiâ, at the moment, at present, for the present. In tempore, in time, in good time, at the right or proper time, at the first opportunity, Ter., Liv., Tac.; in ipso tempore, at the very nick of time, Ter. III. (of condition, position, office, circumstance, etc.), in, amidst, among, under the circumstances of, under the conditions of, in spite of, notwithstanding: in opere esse, to be engaged in the work; in potestate alicuius esse, to be in or under a person's power, place one's self at a person's disposal; in honore et pretio; in prece totus eram, absorbed in; illis difficile est in potestatibus temperare (i.e. sibi), in prosperity; in ambitione magnos simulavere, when in the enjoyment of office; in maximo vestro beneficio non placuit reticere, now that your kindness is so great, now that I am so highly favoured by you; unum genus est eorum, qui magnas in familiis suis propter etiam possessiones habent, though plunged deep in debt; meo sum pauper in aere, I am not rich, but I am out of debt; quotque in flore novo pomis se fertilis arbos Induerat, at early flowering, when the blossom was but newly formed; (cratera) Anchisae genitori in magno munere Cisseus . . . dederat, as, by way of, a noble gift; in vino diserti sumus, over wine, at or in drinking; in tanto discrimine, considering the magnitude of the crisis; in tantâ propinquitate castrorum, owing to, i.e. as the camps were so near; in tanto imperio Populi Romani, when the empire of the Roman people was so great: in tantâ multitudine, where the numbers were so large; in damno meae laudis reipublicae commodo laetabor, even while I lose, in spite of losing credit for myself; etiam in summâ bonorum civium copiâ timemus, notwithstanding; quibus (lacrimis) ego magno in metu meo inducor in spem, in spite of my grave apprehension. The prep. with abl. in this sense is often used to supply the want of a pres. part. of the verb sum. Also with abl. of subst. or adj.= an adj.: qui non defendit nec obsistit, si potest, iniuriae, tam est in vitio quam, is as much in the wrong; animi elatio . . . in vitio est (=vitiosa) is faulty. So, in laude esse, to be praiseworthy; in amore, in invidiâ esse, to be beloved, unpopular; in officio esse, to be conformable to duty, (of persons) act up to, do one's duty; in iniustitiâ esse,=iniustum; in iure esse,=iustum; in promptu esse, to be obvious; in dubio esse, to be doubtful; cum exitus haud in facili essent,=haud faciles. So in many adverbial and adjectival phrases: e.g. in aequo, on an equality; in aprico; in difficili, a matter of difficulty; in incerto, etc. See aequus, apricus, difficilis, incertus, etc. 2. in the case of, as touching, as concerns, in the matter of, on the score of, in regard to, in connection with, in dealing with, towards: (Achilles) talis in hoste fuit Priamo; lenis in hoste; in me tardus Amor non ullas cogitat artes, in my case. Propert.: nihil in Cispio profecisti; quomodo, ut alia omittam mortem filii tui, Lucio Lamineran Paulum, videram Gallium; sed hi in pueris, Cato in perfecto et spectato viro, but it was in the case of boys that they (showed their fortitude), while Cato, etc., i.e. but the sons they lost were but boys, while Cato was a man, etc.; Daphnim me malus urit, ego hanc in Daphnide laurum (sc. uro), for Daphnis, to work him ill, against him; se id quod in Nervîis fecisset facturum, in the case of the Nervii; quid in nobis fecit? what has he done to us, with us; in te nihil potestatis habet, i.e. he has no power over you; in utroque eandem habuit fortuna potestatem, sed usa in altero est; forsitan in teneris tantum mea regna coronis Esse putes, is concerned with; nunc ubi mean Beninimus, consisti in te claudier? in your case, where you were concerned; Pausanias in eo est reprehensus, was blamed on that score; in amicis fideles; patruum in eâ mitigato, towards her; freq. in poet.: puellam . . . in flavo hospite suspiratem, sighing for, Catull.; in mali Deditus vir adulterâ, id.; perditus in quâdam, desperately enamoured of, (cf. the slang 'gone on'), Propert.; laborantes in uno Penelopen vitreamque Circen, love-sick for, Hor.; quid in hospite, regia virgo, Ureris? Ov.; ardetque in virgine virgo, id.; in nymphâ desinit esse Quod fuit, id.; inque meo non est ulla querella toro, in the matter of, on the score of, id.; felix in numero quoque sum, in point of, id.; nomine in Hectoreo pallida semper eram, in the case of, at (the mention of) Hector's name, id.; nunquam talibus armis Ante, nisi in damis capreisque fugacibus, usus, i.e. in pursuit of, id.; victorque Medusae Victus in Andromedâ est, in the person of, (almost=by), Manil. B. (with acc., signifying motion into or on to, lit. and fig.); I. (of place); into, to, upon, against, on to, unto, towards, among: tendimus in Latium; copias in proximum collem subducit; in Italiam proficisci, to set out for Italy; cohortes v in Eburones misit, into the country of; Belgae spectant in septentrionem, look towards the North, i.e. face northwards; in aurem utrumvis otiose dormire, to sleep in peace on either ear; aversa in oras incere, to lie on one's face turned to the wall, or (if adversa) close pressed to the pillow; lituo in (into) laevam manum translato, dextrâ in (upon) caput Nunae impositâ, pecubus ita est; in quum conscendere, to mount on horseback; spargere voces In vulgum ambiguas, among; posteaquam in vulgus militum elatum est, it was rumoured amongst the rank and file; Arar in Rhodanum influit incredibili lenitate, ita ut oculis in utram partem (in which direction) fluat iudicari non possit; ire in leges, fall under, submit to, Ov.; in ora hominum venire, to become a subject of common talk; formas se vertet in omnes, he will turn himself into shape after shape; summam in spem venire, to entertain the greatest hope: in tergum pulsus, driven backward; in fugam concicere (convertere, dare), to put to flight: in conspectum venire, to come in sight, within view. In preposit. (i.e. with notions of rest and motion combined) with verbs implying rest, e.g. verbs of placing, keeping, esse, habere, etc.: legiones in naves imponere, to embark; reliqui sese in proximas se abdiderunt silvas, the rest went into the woods and hid themselves in them, Caes.; tua me in sacraria dono, Propert.; ferar in partes ipse fuisse tuas, to have gone over to your side, id.; cum vestros portus in praedonum fuisse potestatem sciatis; ego dicam quod mihi in mentem est, what is in my mind; quo facilius omne Hadriaticum mare in potestatem haberet, might get into his power and keep: quod pollicatur non in gratiam habiturus, they will not regard his promises as a means to deserve their favour, would not accept as thankworthy what he promised; me adesse in senatum iussit, to attend the Senate; audere in proelia et audaciter ire in p.), advance boldly to the fight; cessare in vota, to be slow to have recourse to prayers; sororem et propinquas suas nuptum in alias civitates collocasse, had settled them in marriage in other states; cum id Smyrnam in contionem nuntiatum esset, this having been announced at Smyrna in a public assembly (cf. εἰσαγγέλλειν εἰς τὴν βουλήν)· macerare in aquam, to put to steep in water. II. (of time) to, into, until, for, unto, lasting to: ab sole orto in multum diei; diem edicti in ante diem quartum Kalendas Decembres distulit, till or to the 29th of November; in lucem dormire, till daylight; ad cenam hominem in hortos invitavit in posterum diem, for the next day; in omne tempus, for ever, for aye; in posterum, for the future, in futuree; in diem, (a) into the day, till a late hour of the day, Tac.; (b) for the passing day, only for the day (without thought of the morrow); in diem vivere; (c) for, or by a certain day; cum illa fundum emisset in diem, i.e. to be paid for on a certain day, Nep.; (d) (poet.=in dies; cf. II. 1. ad fin.) from day to day; subiecta in diem et horam Invidiae, Hor. in tempus, for the occasion, to suit the time, to meet the emergency. III. (of manner) in accordance with, in the manner of, in, after, like: cives Romani servilem in modum crucian tur necati, i.e. like slaves; inque chori ludunt speciem (delphines), like dancers; pax data est in has leges, in accordance with, on these terms; magnā vi bracchia tollunt In numerum, in regular measure, in time, with measured beat; hoc in speciem varietatemque opus deforme non est, in point of appearance and variety is not unsightly; mirum in modum, in an extraordinary fashion, surprisingly; in morem tonsā coma pressa coronā, due fashion, after the custom, duly. So, in orbem, in a circle; nullius addictus iurare in verba magistri; ibi orationes longiores habitae in eandem ferme sententiam, of much the same purport; illa ab Caesare in eam sententiam dicta res, quare, to the following effect, (showing) why; quem pellis aenis In plumam squamis auro conserta tegebat, in the manner of feathers, plume-like, feather-like scales (aenis squamis, abl. of quality). So, in commune, in universum, in vicem, etc. See communis, universus. IV. (of dimension) to: maceriam VI in altitudinem pedum praeduxerant, to the height of six feet, six feet in height; pedes temo protentus in octo. V. (of the object of feeling or action) towards, to, against, over; in reference to, respecting, concerning, on, as to, of, about, on account of: in se voluntas, goodwill towards; ad impietatem in deos, in homines adiuvit iniurias in me crudelis non potes esse diu; in populum Romanum grave est; comis in uxorem; notus in fratres animi paterni; de suis meritis in rempublicam adgressus est dicere, his services to the commonwealth; de his rebus quae in nos impie ac nefarie fecerit; ire in hostem; in hostem pugnare; Callistratus multa invectus est in Thebanos, against; saeviet in partus dira. noverca meos; in domum lus est, over; reges in ipsos imperitat est Iovis; in eos omnia exempla cruciatusque edere, to visit upon them; id quod apud Platonem est in philosophos dictum, about, concerning; illa in legem Caepionis oratio, that speech upon Caepio's law; in quem illud elogium, in whose honour; Callimachi epigramma in Cleombrotum; admonuisti etiam, quod in Cretā fuisses, dictum aliquod in petitionem tuam dici potuisse, some 'jeu d'esprit' might have been made on, concerning your candidateship; in singulas res gratias agere, on account of, for; priusquam populus suffragium ineat, in incertum comitiorum eventum patres incitat, Liv.; in (in respect of) the still doubtful issue of the elections, i.e. while the issue is doubtful, Livy; cf. id. xliii. 12. 2. VI. (of purpose intended) for, with a view to, to, for the purpose of: patis in usum laetitiae scyphis fugnare lucebat, made, made expressly for purposes of pleasure; ingrata misero vita ducenda est in hocNovis ut usque suppetas laboribus, for this purpose, that; patet in curas area lata meas; in poenas non satis unus eris; in classem cadit nemo, to fleet; omnia in maius celebrare, to exaggerate everything, praise in extravagant terms; et somno et cibo in vitam, non in voluptatem utebatur; (Turnus) ardet in arma magis, burns fiercer for the fight; crescite, et in titulos surgite recta meos, to make my epitaph; venias in mea damna celer, to my grievous hurt; haec civitas muleri in redimiculum praebeat, haec in collum, haec in crines, furnish and vend it for the lady's wood, another to dress her neck, another to dress her hair; gerunt in bella dolones; scripsit nullam pecuniam Gabinio, nisi in rem militarem, datam, except for military purposes; hortatur, imperat quae in rem sint, what is to the purpose, i.e. gives the necessary orders; quae in usum rem sunt, what is useful or advantageous to you, to your interest; quod satis in usum fuit, sublato, ceterum omne incensum est, all that they had occasion for, that was of service to them, they carried off, and burned the rest; nihil adpetere in iactationem, with a view to display; eam partem Britanniae copiis instruxit, in spem magis quam ob formidinem, more with an eye to the prospect (of future success) than from any dread (of attack); obstructis in speciem portis, built up for show, for a blind; in utrumque paratus, for either event. VII. (in reckoning, of distribution) against, for, by: describebat censores binos in singulas civitates, he appointed two censors for each state; quadragena millia nummūm in singulos iudices distributa; quingenos denarios pretium in capita, quod redderetur dominis, statuerant, they had fixed the price to be paid to the owners at 500 denarii a head, i.e. for each captive; constituit quid in annos singulos vectigalis Britannia penderet, what tribute Britain was to pay a year, year by year, annually, i.e. what annual tribute; mutatur in horas, changes from hour to hour, hourly, every hour; in dies, from day to day, daily, every day (with idea of increase or diminution). (In composition, in- usually becomes imbefore b, m, p, e.g. imbibe, immitto, impello; before l or r it is often assimilated, e.g. illabor, irrumpo. But no fixed rule can be laid down. Recent editors seem rather to favour the retention of the n, except before b, m, p, and write inlabor, inritus, etc. etc.]

(2) in-, inseparable negative particle, [Sanscr. neg. prefix an-, a-; cf. Gk. ἀ-, ἀν-], not, in-, im-, un-, without, -less; e.g. infectus, not made, immortalis, immortal, intolerabilis, intolerable, unbearable, imberbis, without a beard, beardless. [For changes in composition, see (1) in, ad fin.]

in-abruptus, a, um, adj. not broken off, unbroken.

in-accensus, a, um, adj. not inflamed, unkindled.

in-accessus, a, um, adj. unapproachable, inaccessible.

in-ācesco, ĕre, ācŭi, intrans. incept. v. become or turn sour.

Īnachis, ĭdis, f. adj. of or belonging to Inachus; Argive. As subst. a daughter, or female descendant, of Inachus; esp. Io: anser Det icur in lances, Inachi lauta, tuas, O dainty Isis (with whom Io was confounded). In pl. Īnachĭdes, um, female Argives, Claud.

Īnachius, a, um, adj. of or belonging to Inachus, Inachian; (poet. meton.) of Argos, Argive, Grecian: iuvenca, i.e. Io, daughter of Inachus, Virg.; bos, i.e. Isis, (often confounded with Io), Ov.; litus, i.e. of Argolis, id.

(1) Īnachus (-ŏs), i, m. 1. a son of Oceanus and Tethys, the first mythic king of Argos, father of Io. 2. a river of Argolis, now Banitza, named after king Inachus.

(2) Īnachus, a, um, adj. (poet.) =Inachius, Stat.

inactus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inigo.

inadc-. See inacc-.

inads-. See inass-.

inadsp-. See inasp-.

inadt-. See inatt-.

in-ădustus, a, um, adj. not burned, unscorched, unsinged.

in-aedĭfico, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. build, raise, or upon, build up, erect. II. build up, i.e. obstruct by building, wall up, barricade.

in-aequābĭlis, e, adj. uneven, unequal, not uniform.

inaequābĭliter, adv. [inaequabilis], unevenly, not uniformly; with partiality, capriciously.

in-aequālis, e, adj. I. uneven, rough: loca; inaequales beryllo phialae, i.e. embossed, studded with beryl. II. unequal, not corresponding in size, height, etc., of different sizes, unlike: calices, unequal, i.e. of different size, number, and strength, according to the fancy of the guests, Hor.: portus (pl.), the havens of unequal size, i.e. the outer (and lesser) and the inner (and greater) harbour of Syracuse, Ov.; iuvenci, ill-matched, id.; auctumni, changeable, uncertain (in respect of weather), id.; pinguis inaequales onerat cui villica mensas, having one leg shorter than the others, lop-sided, cranky, rickety, Mart. 2. (fig.) inconstant, inconsistent, eccentric, variable: vixit inaequalis, Hor. III. (active) that makes unequal; tonsor, that cuts (the hair) awry, clumsy, Hor.: procellae, roughening; or, fitful, gusty. Compar., inaequalior; superl. inaequalissimus.

inaequāliter, adv. [inaequalis], unevenly, not uniformly, irregularly in-aequātus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; aequatus], not duly balanced, not fairly distributed, unequal: onus, Tibull.

in-aequo, āre, trans. v. make even or level.

in-aestimābilis, e, adj. I. 1. that cannot be estimated or judged of, that defies calculation, problematical, that one cannot reckon upon. 2. invaluable, extraordinary. II. not worthy of esteem, valueless.

in-aestŭo, āre, intrans. v. boil up or rage in.

In-alpinus, a, um, adj. living upon or among the Alps, Alpine. As subst. m. pl. the dwellers on the Alps.

in-āmābilis, e, adj. not worthy of love, unloveable, unlovely, hateful, repugnant, revolting. Neut. cogn. acc.=adv. inamabile ridet, has a disagreeable laugh, Ov. Compar. inamabilior.

in-āmāresco, ĕre, intrans. incept. v. become bitter, turn sour.

in-āmātus, a, um, adj. unloved, disliked.

in-ambitiōsus, a, um, adj. unambitious, unassuming, unpretentious, simple.

inambŭlātio, ōnis, f. [inambulo], I. 1. a pacing to and fro of orators on the rostra). 2. a mooching to and fro: lecti, Catull. II. a promenade.

in-ambŭlo, āre, intrans. v. walk in or about, pace to and fro, promenade, take a walk.

in-āmoenus, a, um, adj. unpleasant to the eye, disagreeable, gloomy, gruesome, dismal, repulsive.

in-ānīmis, e, adj. [(2) in; anima], without breath, breathless, lifeless.

in-ānīmus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; animus], without life or soul, lifeless, inanimate.

inānio, īre, īvi, or ĭi, ītum, [inanis], trans. v. make void, empty, evacuate.

inānis, e, adj. I. void, empty, bare (lit. and fig.); vas; domus; Apulia, inanissima pars Italiae, most thinly populated, least populous; sts. with abl., or gen.: nulla epistula inanis aliquâ re utili, Cic.; sanguinis atque animi pectus inane fuit, Ov.; inane lymphae Dolium, Hor. Hence, empty of something (which must be determined from the context), e.g. unburdened; empty-handed; without money, penniless; (of a horse) riderless; tumulus, or funus, i.e. a cenotaph; venter, fasting, starving, hungry; vultus, sightless, blind; laeva (sc. manus) unringed; (of the winds or clouds) unsubstantial, viewless; (of the shades), vulgus; imago; umbra, bodiless, disembodied, phantom; hence, inania regna, or Tartara, shadowy, tenanted by shades; corpus, lifeless, dead; leo, a lion's skin: tempus (lit. unoccupied, vacant), an interval, a respite, a time of grace, Virg. Aen. iv. 433; rotae, without a cart-body attached; paleae, empty, light, weightless; vulnus, a gaping, hollow wound, or, a wound in which the blood has ceased to flow, Ov. As subst. ināně, is, n. an empty space, void; esp. (a) the void of nature, in which atoms come together, Virg. Ecl. vi. 31; Lucr.; (b) the space of air, the void, the air (often in pl.); longum per inane secutus: celeri raptus per inania vento. II. (fig.) 1. empty, useless, worthless, ineffectual, vain, idle, bootless, unavailing, unprofitable, unsatisfactory, purposeless, meaningless, frivolous, unreal. 2. (of persons) vain, worthless, frivolous. As subst. ināně, is, n. emptiness, vanity, unreality, claptrap; o curas hominum! o quantum est in rebus inane! Pers.; dum vitat humum, nubes et inania captet, Hor.; inania famae, idle reports, groundless rumours, Tac.; inania belli, the pageantry of war, an armed demonstration, id.; inania honoris, the formalities, pageantry, ceremonial, etiquette of office, id.; inania nobilitatis proponere, to make a stalking-horse of aristocratic names, Cic. Compar. inanior; superl. inanissimus.

ināni̇tas, ātis, f. [inanis], I. emptiness, empty space, hollowness. II. (fig.) emptiness, vanity, unprofitableness.

ināni̇tĕr, adv. [id.], vainly, idly, uselessly, ineffectually, causelessly: pectus angere, i.e. by fictions, Hor.

ināni̇tus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inanio.

in-āpertus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; apertus], not open, not exposed, Sil. Ital.

in-ārātus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; aratus], unploughed, untilled, fallow.

in-ardesco, ĕre, arsi, intrans. incept. v. take fire, kindle, blaze up, burn, glow, be fired. Also fig.

in-āresco, ĕre, ārŭi, intrans. incept. v. dry up, become quite dry.

Inārimē, ēs, f. [Gk. εἰν Ἀρίμοις, Homer, Il. ii. 783], an island in the Tuscan Sea, also called Aenaria and Pithecusa, now Ischia, where Typhoeus was fabled to lie.

in-aspectus (inadsp-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; aspectus], unseen. Stat.

in-assŭetus (inads-), a, um, adj. unaccustomed, unusual, unwonted.

in-attĕnŭātus (inadt-), a, um, adj. unweakened, undiminished.

in-audax, ācis, adj. not daring, wanting in courage, craven, timid.

in-audio (ind-audio, Plaut.), īre, īvi or ĭi, ītum, trans. v. hear, esp. hear secretly.

(1) inaudĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inaudio.

(2) in-audĭtus, a, um, adj. I. unheard, unheard of, unusual, strange, novel. II. (of an accused person) unheard, without a hearing, Tac., Suet.

inaugŭrātio, ōnis, f. [properly, neut. abl. abs. from inaugurato], after taking the omen from birds, after duly taking the auspices.

inaugŭrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inauguro.

in-augŭro, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. A. (intrans.) take omens from birds, take auspices, practise augury; divine. B. (trans.) give sanctity to a person or place by the ceremonies used by augurs, consecrate, invest solemnly, instal in office by augury, inaugurate.

inaurātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inauro.

in-auro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. cover or overlay with gold, gild. II. (fig.) turn to gold, enrich.

inauspicātus, adv. [properly neut. abl. abs. from inauspicatus], without consulting the auspices.

in-auspicātus, a, um, I. at which no auspicia were taken, without auspices: lex, Livy. II. undertaken without auspices or under bad auspices, unblest, inauspicious, of bad omen, unlucky.

in-ausus, a, um, adj. undared, unventured, unattempted, unassayed.

inb-. See imb-.

in-caedŭus (incidŭus, Stat.), a, um, adj. not cut, uncut, unfelled, unhewn, unlopped.

in-cālesco, ĕre, cālŭi, intrans. incept. v. I. grow hot, become warm or heated, glow. II. (fig.) kindle, glow, be fired, with love, divine inspiration, etc., thrill.

in-calfăcio, fēcĕre, trans. v. make hot, warm, heat.

incallidē, adv. [incallidus], unskilfully, awkwardly: non incallide, with considerable skill, by clever manœuvring.

in-callidus, a, um, adj. unskilful, simple, wanting in cunning: non incallidus, shrewd, long-headed, canny.

in-candesco, ĕre, candŭi, intrans. incept. v. I. become white, whiten. II. become white-hot, glow, kindle, blaze.

in-cānesco, ĕre, cānŭi, intrans. incept. v. whiten, become grey or hoary.

in-canto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. repeat a magic formula. II. (meton.) sing charms over, bewitch, enchant: incantata vincula, magic armlets, love-knots, Hor.

in-cānus, a, um, adj. quite white, covered with white, grey, hoar, hoary.

incassum or in cassum. See cassus.

in-castigātus, a, um, adj. unchastised, unreprimanded.

incautē, adv. [incautus], incautiously, inconsiderately, heedlessly, carelessly, unreservedly. Compar. incautius.

in-cautus, a, um, adj. I. (active) incautious, careless, heedless, in one's ignorance, unwary, of one's guard, inconsiderate, improvident; (with ab): exitum incauti a fraude fraterna invenis, heedless of (lit. on the side of, in respect of) his brother's guile, Livy; (with gen.) futuri. Hor. II. (passive) not guarded against, that cannot be foreseen, unforeseen, unexpected, in which one cannot take heed, dangerous. Compar. incautior; superl. incautissimus.

in-cēdo, ĕre, cessi, cessum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) I. 1. go, advance, move on, proceed, move, march, step; esp. of a measured and stately gait or dignified carriage; walk proudly or majestically; in Tac. with acc. of space traversed, or dependent on the prep. in composition, come upon, visit, enter: scaenam; maestos locos. 2. (milit. techn. t.) move forwards, advance, march. II. (fig. of things without life) come on, approach, arrive, happen, gain ground, make one's appearance, rise, spread; with dat., prep. in, or absol. B. (trans.), (fig. of things without life) come to, happen to, befall, attack, seize: timor patres incessit.

in-cēlĕber, bris, bre, adj. (poet.) unknown to fame, Sil. Ital.

in-cēlĕbrātus, a, um, adj. not made known, not spread abroad, unrecorded.

in-cēnātus (-coenātus), a, um, adj. that has not dined, dinnerless.

incendiārius, a, um, adj. [incendium], that causes fire. As subst. m. an incendiary, Tac., Suet.

incendium, ĭi, n. [incendo], I. a burning, conflagration, fire. II. (meton.) 1. fire, burning, heat: stomachi, Lucr. 2. (poet.) a firebrand: socios incendia poscit, Virg., Ov. III. (fig.) 1. fire, flame, heat, glow, vehemence: invidiae incendio conflagrare, be enveloped in a blaze of unpopularity. Often in Cic. fig. of rain, destruction, public danger, etc. 2. the flame of passion, the fire of love: aliae Satyrin incendia mitia praebent, inflame with gentle ardour.

in-cendo, ĕre, di, sum, [in; cand-o, found only in compounds, accendo, succendo, etc.; cf. candeo], trans. v. I. set fire to, light, kindle, burn. II. (meton.) 1. light up with fire, make a fire upon: aras votis, with votive offerings, i.e. offer burnt-offerings on the altars. 2. heat, make hot: diem, Lucr. 3. make bright or shining, brighten, illumine, light up, give a fiery light or brilliant colour to: squamam incendebat fulgor; digitos gemmis. III. (fig.) 1. fire, excite, set on fire, inflame, kindle, incite, animate, rouse, irritate, incense, provoke: animum dictis, caelum clamore, fill with ardent shouts. 2. inflame with love, Virg., Ov. 3. enhance, heighten, raise: annonam, i.e. make corn dearer. 4. (poet.) destroy (with fire), lay waste, ruin, Stat.

in-cēno (-coeno), āre, intrans. v. dine in or at a place.

incensio, ōnis, f. [incendo], a setting on fire, burning.

(1) incensus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incendo. As adj., burning, on fire: pulvinar incensos aestus avertere, the fiery inflammation, Virg.; incensior aether, Claud.

(2) in-census, a, um, adj. [(2) in; census], that has not made a return to the censor, unrated, unassessed, unregistered.

inceptio, ōnis, f. [incipio], 1. a beginning. 2. an undertaking, attempt, enterprise.

incepto, āre, [freq. incipio], trans. v. begin, undertake, attempt, commence, go to work.

inceptor, ōris, m. [incipio], one that begins or undertakes, a prime mover, originator inceptum, i, n. [(1) inceptus], a beginning, an undertaking, attempt, enterprise, a purpose (only partially carried out).

(1) inceptus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incipio, begun, attempted, partially accomplished.

(2) inceptus, ūs, m. [incipio], a beginning, undertaking.

incerno, ĕre, crētum, traj. trans. v. sift upon, strew with sifting: invenior pulvere album suum sale nigro Incretum puris circumposuisse catillis, sifted (through the incerniculum) on to clean plates.

in-cēro, āre, ātum, trans. v. cover, coat, or smear with wax: genua deorum, i.e. to attach waxen tablets of prayers to the knees of statues.

incertē (-ō), adv. doubtfully, uncertainly.

in-certus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; certus], I. uncertain, unsettled, untrustworthy, vague, undecided, doubtful, dubious, not fast, not firm, insecure, irregular, unsteady: luna, not clearly seen, pitiful, dim; vultus, disturbed, restless, alarmed; crines, loose, straggling, dishevelled, Ov.; ordines (of troops), not regularly formed or maintained; itinera, dangerous, obscure, hazardous; non tibi blanditias . . . incerto dictas ore puella tuli, uttered with faltering, lisping accents, Ov.; securis, ill-aimed, Virg. Neut. as adv. (poet.): incertum vigilans, a somno languida, but half awake, Ov. II. x. 2. concerning which one's mind is not made up, not firmly established, not positive, without confirmation, undetermined, uncertain, questionable, open to doubt, dubious, doubtful. Abl. abs. incerto, it being uncertain, = cum incertum sit (esset). As subst. incertum, i, n. an uncertainty: ne cuius incerti vanique auctor esset; incerta bella. Minucius praefectus annonae in incertum creatus, for an unlimited term: in incerto esse. Sall., Livy; or, habere, Sall., to be in uncertainty, to be undecided; ad or in incertum revocare, to render uncertain, derange, unsettle. III. (of persons) not having made up one's mind, hesitating, doubtful, undecided, wavering, irresolute, undetermined, inconstant: (with gen.) salutis, Ov.; (poet. with abl.) metu, Val. Fl.; (with prep. de with abl.) salute alicuius, Plin. Compar. incertior; superl. incertissimus.

incesso, ĕre, īvi, (sts. -cessi, Tac., Luc.), (freq. incedo), trans. v. 1. fall upon, assault, attack. II. (fig.) 1. attack, esp. with words, inveigh against, upbraid, accuse 2. (of disease, fear, etc.) attack, seize, visit; so, often with prep. in and acc.

incessus, ūs, m. [incedo], I. 1. a walk, mode of walking, gait, pace, bearing, carriage, advance: tramp, trampling. 2. a hostile approach, invasion, incursion, Tac. II. (meton.) a means of access, approach, entrance: incessus hostis claudere, Tac.

incestē, adv. [incestus], 1. impurely, sinfully, without proper religious ceremonies. 2. unchastely, criminally.

incesto, āre, āvi, [id.], trans. v. 1. pollute, defile. 2. dishonour, violate, debauch; defile by incest.

(1) in-cestus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; castus], I. that offends against morality and religion, unclean, impure, polluted, defiled, sinful, guilty, criminal, sacrilegious; unlawful, forbidden: aves, i.e. carrion birds, Stat. II. unchaste, lewd, incestuous, adulterous. As subst. 1. incesta, ae, f. an incestuous woman. 2. incestum, i, n. unchastity, lewdness, incest; adultery.

(2) incestus, ūs, m. [(1) incestus], unchastity, incest.

inchōo, āre. See incoho.

(1) in-cīdo, ĕre, cīdi, cāsum, [cado], intrans. v. I. 1. fall into, fall or light upon, strike; sts. absol., fall, alight: incidit in casses praeda petita meos; sts. (poet.) with prepp. ad, super: (with dat.) capiti incidit arae: (of the sun) undis, i.e. sink into, set in. 2. rush upon, enter. II 1. fall upon, fall into, meet or come upon unexpectedly, happen upon, fall in with a person or thing; with prep. in and acc. inter, or dat. 2. fall upon, attack. III. (fig.) 1. fall into any condition, get into: in morbum; in miseras; in amicitiam alicuius, be drawn into. 2. fall upon, befall: pestilentia gravis incĭdit in urbem; tantus terror incidit exercitui, seized; manibus tremor; bellator animo deus incidit, entered their souls. 3. fall upon accidentally (in thought or conversation): cum in eorum memoriam et recordationem incidissemus, I had chanced to call to mind the recollection of them; in eum sermonem incidere, to fall to talking of that particular subject. 4. come or occur to one's mind, present itself. 5. fall upon, happen on, a certain time in hunc diem incidunt mysteria. 6. fall out, happen, occur; fall in (opportunely), present itself. 7. fall in with (in opinion), agree or coincide with: ne ipse incidat in Diodori sententiam. 8. fall in with suddenly, stumble upon.

(2) in-cīdo, ĕre, cĭdi, cīsum, [caedo], to cut into, make an incision in, cut in, open, cut up, hack, notch, cut: incisa notis marmora publicis, engraved; incisae fagi nomine. II. cut in or on, carve, engrave; make by cutting; with in and abl., with in and acc., or (poet.) with abl.: foedus in columna aeneā; leges in aes incisae; verba ceris; amores arboribus; dentes, i.e. make the notches of a saw. III. (fig.) cut off, cut short, break off, sever, interrupt, put an end to, decide, settle: lados; lites; spe omni reditūs incisā; pinnas alicui, clip a person's wings, i.e. disable him.

incīdŭus, a, um. See incaeduus.

(1) incinctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incingo.

(2) in-cinctus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; cinctus], ungirt, not having the tunic gathered up.

in-cingo, ĕre, cinxi, cinctum, trans. v. gird round, gird about, encircle: sese tortis serpentibus; incincti philyrā capilli; incincti Lares, with toga gathered up, (sc. cinctu Gabino). Pass. reflex.: nitidāque incingere lauro, crown thyself; incinctae pellibus, clad; incinctus tunicam mercator, with his tunic girded up.

in-cĭno, ĕre, (cano), trans. and intrans. v. sing, sound.

in-cipio, cipĕre, cēpi, ceptum, [capio], trans. and intrans. v. A. (trans.) 1. take up, take in hand, commence, begin, essay, undertake, set about; sts. without obj. acc. or infin., make a beginning, begin: maius opus; sementem; fossas complere; a. love incipiendum putat; prius quam incipias, consulto opus est. 2. begin to speak: incipe, Damoeta. B. (intrans.) begin to be, begin, commence, be in an early stage.

incīsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from (2) incido.

incītāmentum, i, n. [incito], an incitement, incentive, inducement. In Tac. concr. an instigator.

incītātē, adv. (incitatus), rapidly, violently. Compar. incitatius.

incītātio, ōnis, f. (incito), I. an inciting, rousing, instigating. II. (passive) 1. violent motion, rapidity, vehemence, energy. 2. (fig.) of the mind.

(1) incītātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incito. As adj. I. in rapid motion, in hot haste, at full speed; rapid, swift. II. (fig.) rapid, vehement, energetic, spirited, enthusiastic, headlong, strongly excited. Compar. incitatior; superl. incitatissimus.

(2) Incītātus, i, m. 1. the name of a race-horse belonging to Caligula. 2. a jockey.

in-cīto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. set in rapid motion, propel rapidly, urge on, urge, spur; shake, agitate: alii ex castris sese incitant, rush, make a dash; cum ex alto se aestus incitavisset, had rushed in, i.e. when the tide was flowing; quo maior vis aquae se incitavisset, the stronger the rush of water that dashed against the piles; hastas, hurl. II. augment, enlarge, promote the growth of: amoris hinc incitatus pluviis, swollen. III. (fig.) 1. arouse, excite, spur on, incite, encourage, stimulate, provoke, stir up, irritate, exasperate. 2. inspire. 3. augment, increase, enhance, quicken: eloquendi celeritatem; caelibum poenas, make them more stringent.

(1) incītus, a, um, perf. pass. part. inciео. As adj. rapid, swift, active.

(2) in-cītus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; citus], unmoved, immoveable: calx incita, a piece (on a chess-board) that cannot be moved; hence, ad incitas (sc. calces) aliquem redigere, to bring a person to a standstill, reduce to an extremity.

in-cīvilis, e, adj. [(2) in; civilis], unmannerly, uncivil.

incīviliter, adv. [incivilis], uncourteously, rudely, roughly. Compar. incivilius.

in-clāmo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) 1. call out to, call upon; call upon for aid, invoke; sts. without obj. acc. call aloud, cry out. 2. call out against, cry out upon, abuse, loudly remonstrate with, take one loudly to task. B. (intrans.) cry out at, rail at (with dat.): timidae puellae.

in-clāresco, ĕre, clārŭi, intrans. v. grow famous.

in-clēmens, ntis, adj. [(2) in; clemens], unmerciful, harsh, rigorous. Compar. inclementior.

inclēmenter, adv. [inclemens], unmercifully, harshly, roughly, severely. Compar. inclementius.

inclēmentĭa, ae, f. [id.], cruelty, rigour, harshness, ruthlessness.

inclīnātio, ōnis, f. [inclino], I. a bending, leaning, inclining, movement in a certain direction. II. (meton.) a rapid downward movement; hence, an alteration for the worse, change: temporum. III. (fig.) a leaning, inclination, tendency, propensity, bias. IV. (rhet. techn. t.) the play, modulation of the voice: vocis.

inclīnātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inclino. As adj. 1. bent, leaning: senectus, bowed, stooping; vox, low, deep. 2. inclined, disposed, prone to, animus ad pacem inclinatior. 3. sunken, fallen, failing, falling, ready to fall: domus; fortuna, that has received a shock; rerum inclinata (n. pl.), ruined, falling fortunes inclīnis, e, adj. [inclino], bending, bowing, Val. Fl.

in-clīno, āre, āvi, ātum, [obsol. clino; root CLI-; cf. κλίνω], trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) I. 1. cause to incline, bend, lean, bend downwards, bend towards, bow. Se inclinare, or pass. reflex., to bend or lie down, stoop, sink. 2. make to waver, cause to give way: Romana inclinatur acies, loses ground, wavers. 3. bend, turn, direct: aquas ad litora; aestu fretum inclinatum est, i.e. the tide turned in the strait. II. (fig.) 1. turn or incline a person or thing in any direction, bias, predispose: culpam in aliquem, lay, transfer the blame. Se inclinare, or pass. reflex., preponderate. 2. give a downward impetus to (after a certain point has been reached); hence, change, alter: esp. for the worse, bring down, abase, cause to decline, impair: se fortuna inclinaverat. 3. lay or throw upon, remove, transfer: onera in primores civitatis. B. (intrans.) I. 1. bend, turn, incline, decline, tend downward, sink: inclinans meridiem sentis. 2. yield, give way, waver: inclinantes iam legiones. 3. change for the worse, fail, deteriorate: inclinant iam fata ducum; si fortuna belli inclinet. II. (fig.) incline to, be favourably disposed to, turn in favour of, be directed towards, lean towards, be predisposed to: ad foedus faciendum; hos ut sequor inclinat animus; pluribus hisce (bonis) inclinet amicus.

inclītus, a, um. See inclutus.

in-clūdo, ĕre, si, sum, [claudo], I. 1. shut up, shut in, put in, inclose, confine, box up, closet, keep in: consule in carcere incluso; (with pregn. force of prep.) aliquem in carcerem, throw into prison and keep there. Cf. (1) in, B. 2. shut in simpl. and (poet.) with dat.: aliquem carcere; huc . . . corpora furtim Includunt caeco lateri (= in caecum latus). 3. inclose, surround: smaragdos auro, set in gold; Turnum densā coronā; suras auro, encase with golden greaves. 4. (poet.) insert: huc alienā ex arbore germen Includunt, ingraft (into the slit). II. (meton.) 1. stop up, obstruct, block, hinder, choke: vitam sanguine; dolor includit vocem; viam. 2. bound, limit, Plin. III. (fig.) 1. include, inclose, put in, insert in anything. 2. (poet.) close, finish, end, terminate: aevum laude, Sil. Ital. 3. restrain, suppress, control, keep in: lacrimas, Stat.; imperatorem, nullis neque temporis nec iuris inclusum angustiis, hampered by no limitations.

inclūsio, ōnis, f. [includo], a shutting up, incarceration, confinement.

inclūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from includo, shut up, in confinement, boxed up, encased, suppressed, smothered, pent up.

in-clūtus (inclītus ; wrongly in-clȳtus), a, um, adj. [clutus, part. from clueo ; cf. κλυτός], famous, renowned, illustrious, celebrated ; (poet. with gen. of respect) : incluta leti Lucretia, glorious in her death. Superl. inclutissimus.

(1) incoctus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incoquo.

(2) in-coctus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; coctus], uncooked, raw.

incoen-. See incen-.

incopt-. See incept-.

in-cōgĭtans, ntis, adj. [(2) in ; cogito], thoughtless, heedless.

in-cōgĭto, āre, trans. v. think of, devise, design, contrive, Hor.

in-cognĭtus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; cognitus], I. not examined, untried, Cic. II. unknown, not known, unclaimed ; unperceived : aliquem incognitum habere, not to know a person, never to have heard of him.

incŏhātus (inchŏātus), a, um, perf. pass. part. from incoho. As adj. begun (but no more than begun), incomplete, unfinished, imperfect, defective.

in-cōho (less correctly inchŏo), āre, āvi, ātum, [cous, old adj. = cavos, cavus, of which it is another form, Reid, Cic. Sulla, xxvi., 73, note], trans. and intrans. v. lit. hollow out ; A. (trans.) 1. sketch in outline, lay down the first lines of a thing, found ; begin, commence, undertake, touch upon, enter upon : nocturnas aras Stygio regi, inaugurals, consecrate, i.e. begin to sacrifice on them. 2. leave unfinished. B. (intrans.) 1. begin, commence, take a beginning. 2. (poet.) begin to speak, Stat.

incŏla, ae, m. f. [incolo], I. an inhabitant, resident, dweller in a place : incola captivo quae bove victor arat, the conqueror turned settler ; (poet. with local abl.) : litoribus, Catull. Often (meton.) of animals and things without life. Also, in app. = adj. : turba, i.e. the natives (= incolae) ; Aquilones, native. II. a resident alien, denizen, (=μέτοικος), as opp. to civis, Cic., Livy.

in-cŏlo, ĕre, cŏlŭi, trans. and intrans. v. ; A. (trans.) dwell in, inhabit. B. (intrans.) live, dwell ; remanere in uno loco incolendi causā, in order to make a permanent abode, to settle.

in-cŏlŭmis, e, adj. [root SKAR-, SKAL-, cut ; cf. κολ-ός, docked, κολ-ούω], lit. not injured ; I. 1. unhurt, uninjured, unharmed, safe and sound, without loss, preserved, safe, entire, unmarred, undiminished, unimpaired, in good condition : incolumi gravitate, without sacrifice of dignity. 2. out of debt, Cic. II. (polit. techn. t.) = qui calamitatem non passus est, that has not been disfranchised, enjoying all one's civil rights, whose status as a citizen is unimpaired, before one's fall, before one's condemnation on a criminal charge. Cf. calamitus.

incŏlŭmĭtas, ātis, f. [incolumis], I. good condition, soundness, safety. II. (polit. techn. t.) the retention or the recovery of one's rights as a citizen, non-forfeiture of civil rights. Cf. incolumis, II.

in-cŏmĭtātus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; comitatus], unaccompanied, unattended, without escort.

in-commendātus, a, um, adj. unrecommended ; (poet.) given up, abandoned : tellus (sc. ventis), Ov.

incommŏdē, adv. [incommodus], inconveniently, unfortunately, badly, amiss, disastrously, disagreeably, unseasonably ; non incommode, without inconvenience. Compar. incommodius ; superl. incommodissime.

incommŏdĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], 1. inconvenience, incommodiousness, unpleasantness, unsuitableness : temporis, unseasonableness. 2. disadvantage, prejudice, loss, damage.

in-commŏdo, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], intrans. v. occasion inconvenience to, annoy, be troublesome, annoying : alicui.

in-commŏdus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; commodus], inconvenient, unsuitable, unfit, unseasonable, unfortunate, troublesome, unpleasant, distressing, disagreeable : valetudo, indifferent health. Superl. incommodissimus.

incommŏdum, i, n. [id.], 1. inconvenience, trouble, disadvantage, detriment, unpleasantness ; often euphem. for disaster, loss, injury, defeat, calamity, misfortune : commoveri incommodo valetudinis, to travel with detriment to one's health. 2. (concr.) a curse, nuisance, plague, Catull.

in-compertus, a, um, adj. ((2) in ; compertus), of which one has no information, unknown.

incompŏsĭtē, adv. [incompositus], I. without order, irregularly, disorderly. II. (fig.) of style.

in-compŏsĭtus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; compositus], I. not well put together, ill-arranged, out of order, disarranged, irregular. II. (of style) rough, unrhythmical, inelegant, clumsy.

in-comptus (-comtus), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; comptus], I. unadorned, undressed (of the hair), unkempt, untrimmed. II. (fig.) unadorned, unpolished, rude, inelegant, artless.

incomptē, adv. (poet.) [incomptus], roughly, inelegantly, Stat.

in-concessus, a, um, [(2) in ; concessus], not allowed, forbidden, illicit, unlawful.

inconcinnĭtas, ātis, f. [inconcinnus], inelegance, awkwardness.

in-concinnus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; concinnus], inelegant, awkward, gauche : non inconcinnus, not disagreeable, graceful.

in-concussus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; concussus], unshaken, firm, undisturbed, unaffected.

inconditē, adv. [inconditus], confusedly.

inconditus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; conditus], I. not put together, not arranged, irregular, disordered, tumultuous, undisciplined, unformed, uncouth, rude, wild, unstudied, artless, fashioned by no rule or principle, not regularly established. II. 1. unstored. 2. unburied : corpora, Lucr.

in-congrŭens, ntis, adj. inconsistent, unsuitable.

inconsīdĕrantĭa, ae, f. [(2) in ; considero], want of reflection, heedlessness.

in-consīdĕrātus, a, um, adj. [id., I. (active) thoughtless, heedless. II. (passive) unconsidered, unadvised, inconsiderate. Compar. inconsideratior ; superl. inconsideratissimus.

in-consōlābilis, e, adj. [(2) in ; consolor], inconsolable ; past remedy, incurable.

in-constans, ntis, adj. [(2) in ; constans], changeful, fickle, capricious, inconsistent. Compar. inconstantior ; superl. inconstantissimus.

inconstanter, adv. [inconstans], capriciously, inconsistently.

inconstantia, ae, f. [id.], changeableness, instability, fickleness, inconsistency, capriciousness, inconsistency.

in-consuētus, a, um, adj. (poet.) unaccustomed, Sil. Ital.

inconsultē, adv. [inconsultus], unadvisedly, indiscreetly. Compar. inconsultius.

inconsultō, adv. = inconsulte.

in-consultus, a, um, adj. I. not consulted, unasked : inconsulto senatu, without consulting the senate. II. 1. (poet.) unadvised, without advice, without counsel : inconsulti abeunt, sedemque odere Sibyllae, men depart (from the oracle) without an answer, Virg. 2. unadvised, indiscreet, imprudent, acting without judgment, ill-advised.

in-consumptus, a, um, adj. unconsumed, undiminished, imperishable.

in-contāmĭnātus, a, um, adj. uncontaminated, undefiled, pure.

in-contentus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; contendo], unstrengthened, slack, out of tune : fides.

in-continens, ntis, adj. [(2) in ; continens], unable restrain one's self, incontinent, licentious, intemperate, violent.

incontinenter, adv. [incontinens], immoderately, intemperately, without self-restraint.

incontinentĭa, ae, f. [id.], want of self-restraint, self-indulgence, incontinence.

in-convēnĭens, ntis, adj. not accordant, unsuited, unlike, dissimilar : non inconveniens corpus, not very different.

in-cŏquo, ĕre, coxi, coctum, trans. v. I. boil in or with anything, cook or dress in, boil, seethe : radices Baccho, in wine. II. (meton.) 1. dye, steep, colour : vellera Tyrios incocta rubores (middle, with Gk. acc.), lit. having the red dyes boiled in, i.e. dyed with Tyrian scarlet ; incoti corpora Mauri, sunburnt. 2. overlay, plate with silver, etc., Plin. III. (fig.) thoroughly imbue, ingrain : incoctum generoso pectus honesto.

in-correctus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; corrigo], not corrected, unrevised, Ov.

incorruptē, adv. [incorruptus], uncorruptly, conscientiously, impartially. Compar. incorruptius.

in-corruptus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; corrumpo], I. unspoiled, uninjured. II. (fig.) uncorrupted, unimpaired, untainted, unadulterated, pure, genuine ; having clean hands, unbribed, not seduced, incorruptible, upright, unbiassed.

in-crēbresco, ĕre, brŭi, also increbēsco, bŭi, intransits. v. become frequent, grow stronger, (of wind) freshen, thicken, increase, grow louder, be heard more and more, gain ground, spread abroad, prevail, become prevalent, be in vogue.

in-crēdĭbĭlis, e, adj. [(2) in ; credibilis], that cannot be believed, passing belief, incredible, extraordinary, unparalleled, inconceivable ; with infinitive in -u : incredibile memoratu est quam facile coaluerint, Sall.

incrēdĭbĭlĭter, adv. [incredibilis], incredibly, amazingly, extraordinarily, inconceivably.

in-crēdŭlus, a, um, adj. unbelieving, incredulous, sceptical.

incrēmentum, i, n. [incresco], I. growth, increase, size. II. (meton.) 1. progeny, offspring, scion, magnum Jovis incrementum, Virg. 2. a means or source of growth, origin : vipereos dentes, populi incrementa futuri, the germs of a future nation, Ov. 3. (of recruits) an accession of numbers, augmentation. III. (fig.) increase, augmentation, advancement, addition ; gain, profit.

in-crĕpĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, (freq. increpo), trans. v. I. call or cry out to a person ; chide, speak angrily to, upbraid, rebuke, blame, inveigh against, taunt, banter, rally : increpitare atque incusare Belgas, serain aestatem, bantering (for being so long in coming) ; tum Bitiae dedit increpitans, with a challenge, i.e. bidding him drink without more ado, Virg ; with dat., tibi, Propert. II. (meton. poet.) beat, strike : pectora extrk, Stat.

increpĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from increpo, chided, reproved.

in-crĕpo, āre, crĕpŭi, crĕpĭtum, intrans. and trans. v. ; A. (intrans.) I. make a rattling noise, peal, sound, rattle, clatter, clash, snap, twang, clink, patter, rustle, etc. II. (fig.) make a noise, be noised abroad, give the alarm : simul atque increpuit suspitio tumultŭs, at the faintest alarm of an outbreak ; quidquid increpuerit, Catilinam timeri, at every alarming rumour whatsoever. B. (trans.) I. 1. cause to make a noise : cum Iuppiter atras increpuit nubes, has made them peal ; increpuit quantis viribus unda latus (navis), batter, boom against ; credam Sabella pectus increpare carmina, ring through, wring ; lyram digitis, strike, twang ; manus, clap. 2. utter aloud, give forth, blare : minas ; sonitum (of a trumpet). II. (meton.) 1. exclaim loudly against a person, chide, upbraid, censure, reprimand, reprove, inveigh against a person or thing, taunt : cunctantes socios ; Phoebus volentem proelia me loqui . . . increpuit lyra, with, lyre, i.e. sounded his lyre and forbade me ; illius perfidiam ; moras ; increpor a cunctis. Sts. without obj. acc., raise one's voice, speak angrily : dictator ad contionem advocatam increpuit. 2. accuse a person of a thing : saevitiae populi, Suet. 3. (poet.) passionately lament, complain of : absumptum Ityn, Propert. ; (with infin.) ille suâ natâ dignum vixisse sororem Increpat, complains that a sister worthy of his daughter is no more, id.

in-cresco, ĕre, crēvi, intrans. v. I. grow in or upon : cuti squamas increscere sentit. II. 1. grow, increase, rise in growth, grow up. 2. (fig.) arise, swell.

incrētus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incerno.

in-cruentātus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; cruento], not made bloody, not stained with blood : inque cruentatus Oeneus (by Tmesis), Ov.

in-cruentus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; cruentus], bloodless, in which no blood or very little blood has been shed, in which no or but little blood : victoria ; multis locis potitus incruento exercitu, i.e. without loss to his army.

in-crusto, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. cover with a crust or rind, incrust, coat over ; plaster over, enamel : sincerum vas, i.e. call virtues vices, Hor.

incŭbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incubo.

in-cŭbo, āre, cŭbŭi, cŭbĭtum, intrans. v., mostly with dat., very rarely with in, I. lie in a place, lie upon, lie down on : pellibus stratis, cf. Gk. ἐγκοιμᾶσθαι ; toro ; humero incubat hasta, reclines, rests upon ; ipsi caetris superpositis incubantes, on their bucklers (the part. being=English prep.). II. throw one's-self on a dead or dying person : incubuit Magno, Lucr. 2. lie low, lie dead : Tegeaeus aper cupressifero Erymanthо Incubat, Ov. 3. sit upon eggs, brood upon, hatch. III. (fig.) 1. brood on or over, watch or guard jealously, hoard : auro. 2. press or weigh heavily upon, weigh upon : menti furor. 3. settle on, attach one's-self to ; (of a storm) swoop upon, strike, fall upon, brood upon.

in-cūdo, ĕre, di, aum, trans. v. stamp, hammer, forge (only in perf. pass. part.) : lapidem incusum reportat, indented, roughened to make it grind well, Virg. ; incusa auro dona, embossed with gold, parcel-gilt, Pers.

in-culco, āre, āvi, ātum, [calco], traj. trans. v. I. tread into or in, trample. II. (meton.) stuff, press, a plug into a wound : lanam moribus canis. III. (fig.) 1. stuff, force, cram in, forcibly insert, foist in : verba Graeca. 2. impress forcibly, hammer into, inculcate, suggest : animis imagines ; inculcatum est Metello te aratores evertisse. 3. force, obtrude, intrude : se auribus nostris.

in-culpātus, a, um, adj. blameless, irreproachable.

incultē, adv. [incultus], in an uncultivated manner, roughly, rudely, barbarously, inelegantly. Compar. incultius.

(1) in-cultus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; colo], I. untilled, uncultivated, wild. As subst. incŭlta, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. loca), wild regions, wastes, Virg. II. (meton.) unkempt, undressed, uncared for, coarsely clad, rough, unpolished, rude, uncivilised, savage, wild.

(2) in-cultus, ūs, m. [id.], want of cultivation or refinement, want of attention, want of cleanliness, neglect.

in-cumbo, ĕre, cŭbŭi, cŭbĭtum, intrans. v., with prepp. in, ad, super, and acc., with dat., rarely with acc. ; I. lay one's-self upon, lie, recline or lean upon, lean or bend over, bend to : in aliquem, press upon, shove, jostle ; toro ; baculo ; incumbunt tecta columnis, rest upon ; validis remis ; aratris ; sequitur incumbens eminus hasta, leaning forward for the throw ; tectoque profanus Incubuit bubo, hovered over, settled on. II. (meton.) 1. lean or incline towards, overhang ; (silex) laevum incumbebat ad amnem ; mihi fas est vos incumbere non est ; laurus Incumbens arae. 2. rush upon, press hard upon, fall upon, fall heavily : in hostem ; versis turmis ; in gladium ; ferro ; (equus) electo incumbit cernuus armo. III. (fig.) 1. fall heavily on, press upon, weigh or bear upon, threaten : acrius hoc Teucri clamore incumbere magno ; gravis incumbens scopulis arentibus aestas, smiling heavily. 2. bend (one's attention) to, give earnest heed, apply or devote one's-self, exert one's-self, fall to work, take pains, strive : quamvis vitam in hanc incubuerim, followed this manner of life ; toto pectore ad laudem, strive after, aim at ; ut et animo et opibus in id bellum incumberes ; tum vero Teucri incumbunt, set to work (sc. operi) ; eidem sectae, hold fast to, Iuv. ; labori, Sil. Ital. ; (with infin.) sarcire ruinas, Virg. ; delatorem pervertere, Tac. 3. lean towards, incline, be inclined to : eodem incumbunt municipia, are bent on the same purpose ; voluntatum inclinatio incubuit ad virum bonum, has lent its weight or force to ; fato urguenti incumbere, to lend his weight to the impending doom, i.e. accelerate, bring it nearer ; id prope unum maxime inclinatis rebus incubuit, proved the heaviest aggravation of their distress. 4. rest upon, be propped up by : alienae famae, Iuv.

in-cūnābŭla, ōrum, n. pl. I. cradle-furniture ; swaddling-clothes. II. (meton.) 1. a cradle-bed, cradle. 2. a birth-place. 3.

the cradle, = childhood, earliest infancy: iam inde ab incunabulis imbutus odio tribunorum, Livy. III. (fig.) an origin, beginning, first elements.

in-cūrātus, a, um, adj. 1. uncared for. 2. uncured, unhealed, Hor.

in-cūrĭa, æ, f. [(2) in; cura], want of care, negligence, inattention.

incūrĭōsē, adv. [incuriosus], carelessly, negligently. Compar. incuriosius.

in-cūrĭōsus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; curiosus], I. (active), careless, negligent, unconcerned, regardless, indifferent about anything; (with gen.): recentium incurjosi, Tac.; also with abl., id.; with prep. in, Suet. Also absol. heedless, indifferent. II. (passive) not made or done with care, slack, negligent, superficial.

in-curro, ĕre, curri and cūcurri, cursum, intrans. v. I. 1. run into or towards, rush or rush upon, run up against, rush at, assail, attack, charge: in domum; in aliquem; in hostem; (with dat.) nec armentis incurrunt fortibus ursi; (with acc.) Sall., Tac. 2. (milit. techn. t.) make an inroad, make, or irruption, invade: in Macedoniam. II. (meton.) run into, trench upon, border upon, extend into. III. (fig.) 1. fall into or upon, fall in with, meet with: in oculos alicuius, come in a person's way; in odia hominum, incur; in memoriam communium miseriarum, to chance to recollect, be led to mention, hit upon. 2. (of events) fall, take place, happen, occur: casus, qui in sapientem possunt incurrere: natalis plebeiis incurrens Circensibus.

incursĭo, ōnis, f. [incurro], I. a running against, onset. 2. a hostile inroad, incursion, raid, invasion, attack.

incurso, āre, āvi, ātum, [freq. incurro], intrans. and trans. v.: A. (intrans.) I. run to or against, run at or upon, dash or strike against, assault, attack: in agmen Romanum; (with dat.) rupibus; ramis, Ov. II. (meton.) fall upon, fall in with, meet, strike: auribus. III. (fig.) light upon: incursabit in te dolor meus, will vent itself on you. B. (trans.) make an incursion into, invade, attack: agros Romanos; latera; eo contemptionis descensum, ut ne duce quidem Romano incursarentur, they were subject to invasions.

(1) incursus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incurro.

(2) incursus, ūs, m. [incurro], I. a running against, attack, rush, inroad, shock, encounter. II. (fig.) an impulse, suggestion, plan: incursus animusve varios habet, Ov. Met. ix. 152 (al. in cursus animus varios abit).

incurvesco, ĕre, [incurvus], intrans. incept. v. bend down.

in-curvo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. curve, bend, crook, bow. II. (fig.) bow down, disturb, move (with pity, etc.).

incurvus, a, um, adj. bent, crooked, curved, bowed; (of the sea-shore) winding; bowed with age; (of a ship's hull) rounded.

incūs, cūdis, f. [incudo], an anvil: gemit impositis incudibus Aetna, under the anvils laid on the anvil blocks; (fig.) incudi reddere versus, i.e. forge afresh, furbish up, revise; eandem incudem tundere, to hammer ding-dong at the same thing.

incusātĭo, ōnis, f. [incuso], a blaming, accusation.

in-cūso, āre, āvi, ātum, [causa; cf. causor], trans. complain of, find fault with, blame, upbraid, protest against, accuse: aliquem; aliquem luxûs et superbiae; violati hospitii foedus; with acc. and infin., cum Poenus dolo dimissum Romanum incusaret.

(1) incussus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incutio.

(2) incussus, ūs, m. [incutio], a striking upon, dashing against, shock; only in abl. sing., Tac.

in-custōdītus, a, um, adj. I. unwatched, unguarded. II. (fig.) 1. disregarded, neglected, not observed: incustodita dierum observatione, without considering the selection of a particular day, Tac. 2. unguarded, undisguised, incautious, imprudent.

incūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from incudo.

in-cūtio, ĕre, cussi, cussum, [quatio], trans. v. I. strike upon, dash or knock against: scipionem in caput alicuius; tignum capiti. II. (meton.) throw, cast, discharge, hurl, let drive: tormentis faces et hastas; colaphum incutimus lumbenti crustula servo, deal, inflict. III. (fig.) 1. strike into, put into, inspire, lend, impart, inflict, produce, occasion: vim, ventis; terrorem alicui; desiderium; deos, strike the gods into one, i.e. threaten one with the vengeance of the gods; forte negoti Incutiat tibi quid sanctarum inscitia legum. 2. (poet.) shake, cause to tremble, Val. Fl.

indāgātio, ōnis, f. [(1) indago], a searching into, investigation.

indāgātor, ōris, m. [id.], a tracker, explorer.

indāgātrix, trīcis, f. [indagator], she that searches out, investigates, explores.

(1) indāgo, āre, āvi, ātum, [indu, ago; Curtius, 176], lit. drive into the hunter's toils; I. trace out, track, follow a trail: canis natus ad indagandum. II. (fig.) search into, investigate, explore, hunt for, be in quest of.

(2) indāgo, gĭnis, f. [id.], I. the surrounding of a wood, hill, etc., with nets and beaters, in order to catch the game; an encircling, closing up, 'battue'; a line or circuit of toils, nets: saltus indagine cingunt. II. (meton.) an enclosing, surrounding; snares, toils. III. (fig.) a pursuit of, searching into, investigation.

ind-audio, ire. See inaudio.

indē, adv. [im, locat. from is; suffix -de; cf. dehinc], I. from that place, from there, thence, from this quarter, from these quarters; navita quos iam inde ut Stygiā prospexit ab undā, even at that distance, from where he stood; (poet. with gen.): inde loci, Lucr. Hinc . . . inde, from this side . . . from that; inde . . . inde . . ., on this side . . . on that, on either side. II. (of persons or things), 1. from him, her, them, from it, from them; from this, from these; nudus aper . . . Et nihil inde datum est, Mart.; quo iam tot pignora nobis? Parte satis potui qualibet inde capi (= eorum pignorum, or, ex iis pignoribus), Ov.; rege inde sumpto, i.e. ex Samnis, Livy. 2. (of cause) from that source, thence, for that reason: inde fluunt lacrimae. III. (of time), 1. from that time, thenceforward: iam inde a teneris, even from earliest colt-hood, Virg. G. iii. 74. 2. after that, thereupon, next, then, afterwards: inde tot parere Aeneas sic orsus ab alto; iam inde ab incunabulis, even from; (with gen.) inde loci, after that, thereupon, Lucr.

in-dēbĭtus, a, um, adj. not due; unpromised.

in-dēcens, ntis, adj. unseemly, unbecoming, indecent, improper, unsightly, ugly.

indĕcenter, adv. [indecens], unbecomingly, disgracefully. Compar. indecentius; superl. indecentissime.

in-dĕcŏ, ēre, intrans. v. mis become.

in-dēclīnātus, a, um, adj. (poet.) unchanged (for the worse), constant, Ov.

in-dĕcor, cŏris, and indĕcŏris, e, adj. [(2) in; decus], unbecoming, disgraceful, without honour, unhonoured, inglorious.

indĕcōrē, adv. [indecorus], unbecomingly, discreditably: haud indecore, picturesquely, with pretty effect, Tac. H. v. 23.

indĕcŏris, e. See indecor.

in-dĕcoro, āre, trans. v. dis grace, disfigure, mar.

in-dĕcōrus, a, um, adj. unbecoming, unseemly, unsightly, disgraceful, inglorious, shameful. As subst. indĕcōrae, ārum, f. pl. lost women.

in-dēfensus, a, um, adj. unprotected, undefended, without a hearing.

in-dēfessus, a, um, adj. unwearied, untiring, unfailing.

in-dēlētus, a, um, adj. unwept, Ov.

in-dēlectus, a, um, adj. not thrown down, Ov.

in-dēlĕbĭlis, e, adj. indestructible, imperishable, Ov.

in-dēlĭbātus, a, um, adj. untouched, uninjured, from which nothing has been taken, undiminished: opes, Ov.

in-demnātus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; damnatus], uncondemned, unsentenced.

in-dēplōrātus, a, um, adj. undeplored, unlamented, Ov.

in-dēprensus, a, um, adj. (poet.) undiscovered, unnoticed, undiscoverable, without clue, that mocks detection.

indeptus, a, um, perf. part. from indipiscor.

in-dēsertus, a, um, adj. unforsaken, Ov.

in-despectus, a, um, adj. that one cannot look down into, unfathomable, Luc.

in-dēstrictus, a, um, adj. untouched, unwounded, unhurt, Ov.

in-dētonsus, a, um, adj. unshorn, with flowing locks, Ov.

in-dēvītātus, a, um, adj. not avoided, unavoidable, unerring, Ov.

index, dĭcis, m. f. [(i) indico], one that points out, a pointer, indicator. I. 1. (of persons) one that informs, an informant, informer, discloser, witness, notifier, discoverer, betrayer; one who turns informer against his accomplices; sts. a professional informer, spy, (much the same as the delatores of the Empire). 2. (of things) anything that acts as a sign, a mark, indication, sign, proof, index. 3. (with digitus expressed or understood), the index-finger, forefinger, Hor. Cic. II. (meton.) 1. the title of a book, frontispiece. See Indĭci. 2. a table of contents, abstract, summary, gist, list. 3. an inscription on a painting or statue, Tibull. Livy. 4. a touchstone: silicem, qui nunc quoque dicitur index, Ov.

Indi, ōrum, m. pl. the Indians; often loosely used in poet. for Persians, Arabians, Ethiopians.

India, ae, f. the country beyond the Indus, India.

in-dicens, ntis, adj. [(2) in; dico], that does not say or speak, silent: me indicente (abl. abs.), without a word from me, without hint or warning from me, Ter. Livy.

indĭcium, ĭi, n. [index], I. 1. a notice, information, disclosure, discovery; a deposition against, charge, testimony, evidence, information on which a charge is based: facere, disclose, give information of; ea res est Helvetiis per indicium enuntiata, through informers (abstr. for concr.), Caes.; indicium profiteri or offerre, to offer to give evidence, turn informer on condition of immunity from punishment; cf. our 'turn king's evidence'; indicium postulare, to claim the right to appear as index, to turn informer against one's accomplices; indicium Vettio promulgare, to propose that V. be admitted to give evidence on the terms. 2. the thing about which information is given: qui indicii partem (al. pretium) acceperit, i.e. a share of the reward for information. 3. a reward for giving evidence. II. a sign, token, indication, hint, mark, proof, evidence: indicia viarum, i.e. trail, track, Virg.; indicio esse, to serve as a proof, be a proof, prove, indicate.

(1) in-dĭco, āre, āvī, ātum, trans. v. I. 1. point out, indicate, declare, show, make known, disclose, discover, reveal, publish, give evidence against, betray: se, give one's self up to the authorities, turn evidence against one's-self; de aliquā re, give information about. 2. show, demonstrate, signify. II. put a price upon a thing to be sold, state the value of, value: cum postulasset ut sibi fundus semel indicaretur, that the price of the estate should be stated once for all.

(2) in-dĭco, ĕre, dixi, dictum, trans. v. I. declare publicly, publish, proclaim, announce, appoint, give notice of, give out, fix, esp. of any formal proclamation with authority: concilium; iustitium; bellum populo Romano, declare war against; divum templis honorem, proclaim a sacrifice; lux haud indicta, inquit Musa, is specially proclaimed by the Pontifices, as one of the feriae conceptivae; feriae indictae (= imperativae), extraordinary holidays; indictas concelebrare dapes, feasts to which the people were invited by public notice given beforehand; (with ut) in diem certam ut ad lucum Ferentinae conveniant indicit. II. 1. order to assemble, order to go to a place, summon, exercitus omnis Aquiloniam est indictus, was ordered to assemble at Aquilonia; Aquilonia was named as the point of rendezvous. 2. order, appoint, enjoin, impose, prescribe, inflict: iter primis iuvenum indicit, commands them to make a journey, bids them go, Virg.; tributum; sibimet ipsi civilium; populo famem indixit, i.e. he obliged the people to starve; cenas familiaribus, give directions to one's friends to prepare supper, invite one's-self to supper with them, force them to entertain one.

(1) indictus, a, um, adj. (2) in; dictus, unsaid, not said, unsung, unrecorded: causa, unpleaded, untried, unheard.

Indĭcus, a, um, adj. of or from India, Indian: cornu, i.e. ivory; mare, aqua, i.e. the Indian Sea, Ov.

ind-idem, adv. [inde; idem], I. from the same place; often with the name of the place: indidem Thebis; indidem Amerīā. II. from the same matter or thing.

in-dies. See dies, 1; (1) in, VII.

in-differens, ntis, adj. [(2) in; differo], I. in which there is no difference, making no difference, immaterial, Cic. II. (of persons) careless, indifferent, unconcerned: circa victum, Suet.

indifferenter, adv. [indifferens], indiscriminately, unconcernedly.

indi-gĕna, ae, adj. [indu; root GEN-; cf. gigno], born in a country, native-born, of the country (opp. to foreign). As subst. indĭgĕna, ae, m. native. In pl. (poet.) aborigines, Iuv. xiii. 38.

indigens, ntis, part. from indigeo. As adj. in want of, needing: (with gen.); quid enim? Africanus indigens mei? at ne ego quidem illius; (with abl.), Plin. As subst. m. f. a needy person.

indigentĭa, ae, f. [indigeo], I. need, want, indigence. II. insatiable desire, craving.

ind-īgĕo, ēre, īgŭi, (indu; egeo), intrans. v. with abl., more often in Cic. with gen. I. be in need or want of, need, want, require. II. (meton.) long for, desire.

(1) indĭ-gĕs, gĕtis, m. [indu; gigno; cf. indigena], native-born, home-born, born in the country; title of deified local heroes who were worshipped after death; Iuppiter, i.e. Aeneas, who held the title of Indiges after his apotheosis. Mostly in pl. deified heroes, local divinities.

(2) indĭges, is, adj. [indigeo], needy, indigent.

in-dīgestus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; digero], unarranged, confused, disorderly.

indignābundus, a, um, adj. [indignor], full of indignation, enraged, wrathful.

indignandus, a, um, gerundive from indignor, that at which it is meet to be indignant: vestis . . . lecto non indigganda saligno, that a willow couch need not be angry at, i.e. not to be despised by, well-suited to.

indignans, ntis, pres. part. from indignor. As adj. incensed, enraged, wrathful, chafing at, impatient, raging.

indignātĭo, ōnis, f. [indignor], I. displeasure, indignation, scorn, disdain. In pl. outward manifestations of indignation, Livy. II. (meton.) 1. trial of temper, affront, provocation: ne qua indignatio desit, Iuv. 2. an exciting of indignation by rhetorical art.

indignātus, a, um, perf. part. from indignor, angry or displeased at, spurning with indignation, chafing at, chafing, raging.

indignē, adv. [indignus], I. unworthily, undeservedly; shamefully, dishonourably, scandalously. 2. indignantly: ferre or pati, to take umbrage at, take highly amiss. Superl. indignissime.

in-dignĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. 1. unworthiness, disqualification. 2. vileness, heinousness, enormity. II. 1. unworthy conduct, scandalous behaviour, unworthy treatment, outrage, indignity; meanness, baseness, disgrace. 2. sense of indignity, indignation, spleen, resentment.

in-dignor, ārī, ātus sum, trans. dep. deem unworthy (of one's-self), think scorn, i.e. think it a reproach to one, think it a shame, be angry or displeased at, chafe at, resent, disdain, scorn; be indignant, be angry, sulk: casum insontis amici; (with quod) Berōen digressa reliqui indignantem, tali quod sola careret munere; (with si) indignamur, si quis nostrum interiit (cf. Gk. ἀγανακτεῖν εἰ); (with infin., or acc. and infin.) veteri parere clienti; vinci; indignor, quandoque bonus dormitat Homerus.

in-dignus, a, um, adj. I. 1. unworthy, unmeet, undeserving: honores saepe dat indignis; (with abl.) honore; (poet. with gen.) avorum; (with qui consecutive) ne qui postulabant indigni erant qui impetrarent, unworthy to gain their object; etsi ego digna hac contumelia? Sum maxime, at tu indigna qui facores tamen, you were not the proper person to do it, (with ut) indigni ut a vobis redimeremur, Livy; (poet. with infin.) Hor. 2. not deserving anything, undeserving, unfeeling: iniuria; indigna sauciat ungue genas; indignos, Elegeia, solve capillos, in undeserved, i.e. premature, mourning. II. (of things) 1. unworthy, unbecoming, unmeet, base, scandalous, improper, wrong: facinus; amor, misplaced, unrequited; verba; iugum indigna pati, things meet and unmeet, i.e. every-kind of outrage; (with abl.) vox populi Romani maiestate indigna; (with supine in -u) digna atque indigna relatu Vocifferaus, words fit and unfit, i.e. reckless, unguarded words; (poet. with infin.) fabula non indigna referri, Ov.; indignum est, it is a shame; indignum (as an exclamation), Oh! shame! Ov., Hor. 2. undeserved, unjust, intolerable, harsh, cruel, severe: quae causa indigna serenos foedavit in vultus; indigna morte peremptum; hiemes, severe; fortuna. Virg. Compar. indignior; superl. indignissimus.

indīgus, a, um, adj. [indigeo], needing, in want; with gen., more rarely, abl., in want of, requiring.

in-dīligens, ntis, adj. I. careless, heedless, negligent, indifferent. II. neglected: hortus, Plin. Compar. indiligentior.

in-dīligenter, adv. [indiligens], carelessly, heedlessly, negligently. Compar. indiligentius.

indīligentĭa, ae, f. [id.], carelessness, heedlessness, negligence, want of energy.

ind-īpiscor, i, indeptus sum, [indu; apiscor], trans. dep. I. obtain, attain, reach. II. begin.

in-direptus, a, um, adj. not spoiled, unplundered.

in-discrētus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; discerno], I. unseparated, unparted, undivided, closely connected, inseparably united. II. 1. undistinguished, without distinction or difference, indifferent. 2. undistinguishable, not to be known apart.

indīsertē, adv. [indisertus], not eloquently, inelouently.

in-disertus, a, um, adj. not eloquent, ineloquent, at a loss for words.

(?) in-disiectus, a, um, adj. not scattered about, not overthrown. Probably a false reading for indelectus, Ov.

in-dispensātus, a, um, adj. (poet.), immoderate, Sil. Ital.

in-disposĭtus, a, um, adj. without order, confused.

in-distinctus, a, um, adj. I. 1. not properly distinguished, unsorted, indiscriminate, confused: corolla, not artistically arranged. 2. indistinct, obscure. II. (of a person) obscure in delivery.

in-districtus, a, um, adj. read in some MSS. for indestrictus.

indĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from indo.

in-dividŭus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; divido], I. not divided, indivisible. As subst. individŭum, i, n. an indivisible particle, atom. II. (fig.) not separated, inseparable.

in-dīvīsus, a, um, adj. not divided, undivided, common to.

in-do, ĕre, dĭdi, dĭtum, [in; (2) do], I. put, set, or place into or upon, place within, insert, force in or into: guttam vini in os; (with dat.) aliquem lecticae; digitos arentis indere tento, Ov.; (with prep. in and abl.) Tac. II. (fig.) 1. introduce: novos ritus. 2. impart, occasion, suggest, give to, impose on, attach to, assign, set over.

in-dōcĭlis, e, adj. I. unteachable, not docile, that cannot be taught: (poet. with infin.) pauperiem pati, Hor.; (with gen.) pacis, Sil. Ital.; (with dat.) quieti, id. II. untaught, unschooled: disciplina, from which one learned nothing, Cic. III. (meton.) 1. untaught, unlearned, ignorant, rude, uncivilised. 2. untamed, untamable, intractable, unpracticable, stubborn, unruly. 3. (= non doctus), unstudied, homely, simple, unartificial: indocili numero (i.e. cantu) cum grave mollit opus; et sciat indociles currere lympha vias.

indoctē, adv. [indoctus], unlearnedly, ignorantly, unskilfully. Compar. indoctius.

in-doctus, a, um, adj. I. (of persons) untaught, unlearned, ignorant, unskilled, not knowing how to do something: iuga ferre, Hor.; (with gen.) pilae, discive trochive, id. II. (of things) homely, simple, artless, untrained: canct indoctum, sed cultus bibenti (neut. cogn. acc.=adv.).

indŏlentĭa, ae, f. [(2) in; doleo], freedom from pain, absence of pain.

ind-ōlēs, is, f. [indu; ol-esco], inborn character, natural moral qualities or disposition, nature, spirit, capacity, genius, native worth.

in-dŏlesco, ĕre, dŏlŭi, [doleo], intrans. and trans. incept. v. I. feel pain, ache, smart. II. (fig.) 1. feel pain or grief, be grieved, troubled: (poet. with abl.) facto, Ov. 2. (with acc. with stretch of meaning) feel pain at, be grieved or distressed about a thing: id ipsum indoluit Iuno, Ov.

in-dŏmĭtus, a, um, adj. I. untamed, untrained, unbroken (of animals), unsubdued, unrestrained; untamable, ungovernable, fierce, wild. II. (fig.) unconquerable, indomitable, invincible; fierce, savage: dextra; Falernum, i.e. heady, fiery; irae.

in-dormĭo, īre, īvi, ītum, intrans. v. I. sleep on, fall asleep at or over a thing; with abl., dat., or prep. in and abl. II. (fig.) go to sleep over, i.e. take things easily, be careless about a thing: tantae causae.

in-dōtātus, a, um, adj. I. unportioned, without dowry, dowerless. II. (meton.) without one's due portion: corpora, without proper (funeral) honours, Ov. III. (fig.) undowered, poor, Cic.

indŭ. See (1) in.

in-dŭbĭtātus, a, um, adj. undoubted, certain, sure, beyond all doubt.

in-dŭbĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, traj. v. doubt respecting, distrust.

in-dŭbĭus, a, um, adj. not doubtful, undoubted.

indūciae, ārum. See indutiae.

Indūcĭŏmārus. See Indutiomarus.

in-dūco, ĕre, duxi, ductum, trans. v. I. 1. lead, bring, or conduct into, lead or bring in, usher in, lead on: exercitum in Macedoniam; (with dat.) messorem arvis; turmas. 2. bring forward on the stage, or into the arena, exhibit, represent: pater ille Terenti Fabula quem miserum nuato vixisse fatetur Indueit; dis igitur geniique Ducis centum paria ob res Egregie gestas induco; gladiatores. 3. bring into court, bring up for trial, Suet., Plin. 4. bring into one's house, take home, Plin., Val. Fl. 5. draw on or over as a covering, spread over, lay on, overlay, overspread, encase, coat over, cover: tenebras terris; varias plumas undique collatis membris (dat.); pontem flumini, throw over or across; scuta tegmine, cover over; inducto ceratae sulphure taedae, waxed torches tipped with sulphur; (pass. part. reflex.) inductae cornibus aurum iuvencae, having gold laid on their horns, i.e. with gilded horns, as victims. 6. (of dress, etc.) draw on or over, put on, don; clothe, cover: togam super membra; caestus manibus; humeros amictu; (pass. reflex.) inducitur artus tunicā, he has his limbs covered, i.e. clothes his frame. II. (fig.) 1. bring in or into, introduce: discordiam in civitatem. 2. bring in, bring on the scene, bring forward, introduce in speaking or writing: spem cogitationemque meliorem; hinc ille Gyges inducitur a Platone; id. 3. set before the minds of: exordio, that has arisen, derived. 3. put on (as an actor puts on a mask), assume: dubitationem, Tac. 4. lead to or into, induce, persuade, bribe, instigate, impel, move: aliquem in spem; spe inductus, under the influence of hope; Carthaginienses ad bellum; vide, quo me inducas; aliquem ut mentiatur; (with infin.) Pollionem sententiam expromere, Tac. Inducere animum or in animum, bring one's mind to, make up one's mind, persuade one's self, resolve, determine; sts. entertain a thought, suppose, believe, imagine: in animum inducebat; nunquam te aliter atque es in animum induxerunt, I never imagined you other than you are.

Also with ut, quominus. 5. mislead, take in, delude, cajole, deceive, seduce. 6. enter in an account, set down: pecuniam in rationibus, or, in rationem. 7. draw the (broad end of the) stylus over writing; hence, erase, strike out, cancel, reverse, abrogate, annul: nomina; senatus consultum; decretum.

inductĭo, ōnis, f. [induco], I. a leading or bringing into, introduction; a bringing on the stage or into the arena, exhibition. II. 1. a purpose, resolution, inclination, intention: animi. 2. (=Gk. ἀπαγωγή) induction, reasoning from particulars to generals, in logic.

(1) inductus, a, um. perf. pass. part. from induco. As adj. introduced, imported, foreign, strange, Plin.

(2) inductus, ūs, m. (only in abl. sing.), [induco], an inducement, persuasion.

indŭ-grĕdĭor, ī, archaic = ingredior, [indu ; gradior].

indulgens, ntis, part. from indulgeo. As adj. 1. indulgent to, lenient, kind, tender, fond: peccatis (dat.); in captivos; (with gen.) irarum, pandering to, Livy. 2. addicted to: alcae, Suet. Compar. indulgentior.

indulgenter, adv. [indulgens], indulgently, kindly, tenderly. Compar. indulgentius.

indulgentĭa, ae, f. [id.], indulgence, gentleness, tenderness, fondness, merciful treatment, clemency, grace, favour, bounty, complaisance: caeli, i.e. softness, mildness.

in-dulgĕo, ēre, dulsi, dultum, (?) in; dulcis], intrans. and trans. v. ; A. (intrans.) (with dat.) treat with indulgence, favour, show kindness to; be tender, kind, indulgent to, pardon; indulge in, give full scope to, give way to, humour, yield to, give one's-self up to, be addicted to: Aeduorum civitati Caesar praecipue indulserat; hactenus indulsisse vacat; animo; lacrimis; ordinibus, give room to the rows, give them freedom: labori; theatris; somno. In colloq. Latin with acc. of person: te indulgebant, Ter. B. (trans.) grant (largely, in a free and indulgent spirit), concede, yield, allow, permit: alicui usum pecuniae.

indultus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from indulgeo.

indŭo, ĕre, ŭi, ūtum, [(?); cf. exuo], trans. v. I. 1. put a garment, weapon, ornament on a person, or a part of the body; dress or cover with a garment, etc.: vestem sibi (humeris) induit; induit se veste; spoiiis indute meorum; indutae vestes, clothes on the body, on men's backs; (pass. reflex.) induitur pallam, puts on himself, clothes himself in; galeam . . . indutus. 2. surround, envelop, cover with, deck; put on, assume; take, or give to others, a new form or appearance: nunquam se tanto vulture caelum Induit, with such a cloud of vultures; pomis se fertilis arbos Induerat; hominum figuras; pueri vultus; cum se nux plurima silvis Induet in florem, shall clothe itself with a mantle of blossoms; lit. shall put itself into blossom; (homines) in vultus ac terga ferarum, had thrown into the guise of, had brought into, had clothed with the visages and hides of beasts; (with abl.) se vallis, i.e. pierce, impale one's-self, Caes. ; so, se hastis, Livy; sese mucrone, Virg. 3. (poet.) take on one's-self, load one's-self with: scalas, Ov. II. (fig.) 1. put on, assume: personam iudicis; patrem; seditionem, make a cloak or pretext of; qualem diem Tiberius induisset, whatever the humour T. assumed for the day. 2. (with rex, pron.) put one's-self into, be entangled in: se in laqueos, get involved in; non se purgavit, sed indicavit atque induit, turned evidence against himself and plunged into the snare (sc. in laqueos); videte, ut, dum expedire sese vult, induat. 3. cast upon, impose, impart: cunctis pavorem, Sil. Ital.

indŭpĕdĭo, indŭpĕrātor, arch. for impedio, imperator.

indūrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from induro. As adj. hardened.

in-dūresco, ĕre, dūrŭi, intrans. incept. v. I. grow hard, harden, stiffen, congeal. II. (fig.) become firmly attached, be rooted in one's loyalty: pro Vitellio, Tac.

in-dūro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. harden, make hard; freeze, congeal.

(1) Indus, a, um, adj. of or from India, Indian: dens, ivory; concha, pearl; belua, the elephant. As subst. Indus, i, m. 1. an Indian; sts. collectively. 2. an Oriental, an Ethiopian, Arabian, Persian. 3. an elephant-driver, mahout.

(2) Indus, i, m. 1. the river Indus, now Sind, flowing into the Indian Ocean. 2. a river of Asia Minor, flowing through Phrygia and Caria.

industrĭa, ae, f. [cf. industrius], diligence, activity, assiduity, application, pains, industry; esp. of a politician, advocate, etc. De industriā, ex industriā, assiduously, diligently, purposely, on purpose, intentionally.

industrĭē, adv. [industrius], diligently, actively, promptly, zealously.

industrĭus, a, um, adj. [indu ; struo, Corssen], diligent, active, assiduous, painstaking, zealous, industrious.

indūtĭae (-cĭae), ārum, f. pl. [for indu-itiae (from indu ; eo, ire), a going into retirement], I. a cessation of hostilities, a truce, armistice: per indutias, during the truce. II. (meton.) a cessation, pause, truce.

Indūtiomārus (Inducio-), i, m. a chief of the Treviri.

indūtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from induo.

in-ēbrĭo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. make drunk, inebriate. II. (meton.) soak, saturate. III. (fig.) fill with maudlin talk: miseram aurem, Juv.

in-ēdĭa, ae, f. [(2) in ; ēdo], abstinence from food, fasting, starvation.

in-ēdĭtus, a, um, adj. unpublished, not made known: cura, Ov.

in-ēlĕgans, ntis, adj. not choice, without grace, tasteless, inelegant, unrefined.

in-ēlĕganter, adv. [inelegans], not choicely, without taste, inelegantly.

in-ēluctābilis, e, adj. that one cannot struggle clear of, not to be struggled against, inevitable, irresistible.

in-ēmŏrĭor, mŏrī, mortŭus sum, traj. dep. die on or at, pine to death at: spectaculo.

in-emptus (-emtus), a, um, adj. unbought, unpurchased.

in-ēnarrābilis, e, adj. that cannot be told or described, indescribable.

in-ĕo, īre, īvi or ĭi, ĭtum, trans. and intrans. v. ; A. (trans.) I. 1. go into, enter, go in, come in, come upon, enter upon: thalamos; nemus nullis illud initur equis; viam, iter; sts. with prep. in, in urbem. 2. have intercourse, cohabit with. II. (fig.) enter upon a business, enterprise, office, duty, etc., undertake, begin, set on foot, take up, take part in: magistratum; praelium; consilium, form a plan, lay a scheme, consider; rationem, (a) adopt a method, devise a plan; (b) make an estimate, calculate; numerus inibatur, an estimate was taken, a return was made; societatem cum aliquo, form a partnership, alliance; gratiam apud aliquem or ab aliquo, gain favour with a person, win his good-will, conciliate; formam vitae, enter upon, adopt; suffragia, give one's vote; viam, find, adopt a way or method of doing; somnum, fall into, drop to sleep; initā aestate, at the beginning of summer. B. (intrans.) make a beginning, begin, commence: ineunte vere, at the beginning of spring; ab ineunte adolescentiā.

ineptē, adv. [ineptus], improperly, impertinently, foolishly, unreasonably, conceitedly. Superl. ineptissime.

ineptĭa, ae, f. [id.], silliness, folly. Rare in sing. More often in pl. 1. fooleries, follies. 2. trifles, absurdities; affectation of style; light or playful compositions.

ineptĭo, īre, [id.], intrans. v. talk or act absurdly, trifle, play the fool.

in-eptus, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; aptus], 1. unsuitable, improper, ill-timed, impertinent, foolish, silly, absurd, without tact or taste, wanting in 'savoir-faire,' pedantic, blundering. 2. (poet.) good for nothing, crazy: crura ponticuli, Catull. Compar. ineptior; superl. ineptissimus.

in-ĕquĭtābĭlis, e, adj. that cannot be ridden upon, unfit for riding or for cavalry.

in-ĕquĭto, āre, trans. and traj. v. ride in or upon; traverse.

in-ermis, e, and inermus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; arma] I. without weapons, unarmed, defenceless. II. (meton.) 1. without troops, without means of defence, Tac. 2. (poet.) toothless: gingiva, Iuv. III. (fig.) 1. that wounds no one, harmless, peaceful, inoffensive. 2. not practised, unversed.

(1) inerrans, ntis, part from in-errāre.

(2) in-errans, ntis, adj. not wandering: stella, a fixed star.

in-errō, āre, intrans. v. wander in or on, ramble about or near, flit.

in-ers, ertis, adj. [(2) in; ars] I. without skill (in any art or trade); inartistic, unbusiness-like, incompetent: homo non inertissimus, a thoroughly competent man, Cic. II. (meton.) 1. (of persons) inactive, unenterprising, shiftless, helpless, idle, indolent, slovenly, sluggish, cowardly, passive, unresisting, spiritless. 2. (of things) aqua, humor, stagnum, motionless, still, stagnant: oculi, heavy; corpora, lifeless. 3. (of persons) querellae, useless, idle; horae, unoccupied, leisure hours; glaebae, sluggish, unproductive; terra, insensate, dull; vita, inactive, quiet; stomachus, that does not digest properly, dyspeptic; cano, flabby, unspirited, tame, tame, spiritless, weak. III. (active) (poet.) that makes inactive: frigus, numbing; bruma, idle, dreary, lifeless, that puts a stop to work. Compar. inertior; superl. inertissimus.

inertĭa, ae, f. [iners], I. want of skill, incapacity. II. inactivity, idleness, lack of energy, indolence: (with gen.) laboris, reluctance to work.

in-ērŭdītus, a, um, adj. uninstructed, unlearned, illiterate, ignorant, clownish.

in-esco, āre, āvi, ātum, [esca], trans. v. I. allure with bait, entice. II. (fig.) set traps for, entice, deceive. III. satiate, satisfy.

in-ĕvectus, a, um, adj. [eveho], borne or mounted upon.

in-ēvītābĭlis, e, adj. unavoidable, inevitable, not to be evaded.

in-ēvŏlūtus, a, um, adj. not rolled out, unopened, of a book-roll: (volumen) liber.

in-excĭtus, a, um, adj. unmoved, undisturbed, calm.

in-excūsābĭlis, e, adj. (poet.) that cannot be excused, inexcusable, that does not admit of excuses.

in-exercĭtātus, a, um, adj. untrained, unpractised, unexercised, undisciplined, unskilful.

in-exhaustus, a, um, adj. inexhausted, inexhaustible, boundless, unimpaired.

in-exōrābĭlis, e, adj. I. that cannot be moved by entreaty, inexorable, implacable, rigorous. II. (poet.) that cannot be obtained by entreaty, Val. Fl.

inexpectātus, a, um. See inexspectatus.

in-experrectus, a, um, adj. aroused, unawakened, Ov.

in-expertus, a, um, adj. I. (active) that has not made trial of, unacquainted with, unaccustomed to, inexperienced; with abl., prep. ad, or absol.; some editors give gen. or dat. II. (passive) untried, unproved, unattempted.

in-expiābilis, e, adj. I. that cannot be expiated or atoned for, inexpiable. II. irreconcilable, implacable.

in-explēbĭlis, e, adj. [(2) in; explео], that cannot be filled, insatiable.

in-explētus, a, um, adj. not filled, unsatisfied, insatiable: (neut. cogn. acc.=adv.) inexplетum lacrimans, weeping insatiably; (al. inexpletus, adj.= adv.).

in-explĭcābilis, e, adj. I. that cannot be unravelled, from which one cannot disengage one's-self, inextricable. II. (meton.) impassable: viae. III. (fig.) 1. inexplicable, insoluble, intricate, perplexed. 2. that leads to no result, impracticable, endless, interminable: bellum; facilitas, i.e. complaisance which did not promote a settlement of the dispute, one side making no demand, and the other no offer.

in-explĭcĭtus, a, um, adj. (poet.) unexplained, obscure, Stat., Mart.

in-explōrātus, a, um, adj. unexplored, unexamined, not known; neut. abl. abs.=adv., inexplōrātō, without previous examination, without reconnoitring.

in-expugnābĭlis, e, adj. I. that cannot be taken by storm, that defies assault, impregnable. II. proof against, all-resisting, unconquerable: pectus amori; gramen, the irrepressible weed or couch-grass.

in-exsātūrābĭlis, e, adj. insatiable, implacable.

in-exspectātus (inexp-), a, um, adj. unexpected, unlooked for.

in-exstinctus, a, um, adj. I. unextinguished, inextinguishable: ignis. II. (fig.) unappeasable, unquenchable, imperishable: fames; libido; nomen.

in-exsŭpērābĭlis, e, adj. I. that cannot be crossed or passed over, insurmountable. II. unconquerable, invincible, unsurpassable. As subst. n. pl. insuperable obstacles, impossibilities, Livy. Compar. inexsuperabilior.

in-extrĭcābĭlis, e, adj. I. that cannot be unravelled, from which one cannot extricate one's-self, inextricable: error, i.e. the maze of the Labyrinth, Virg. II. (fig.) 1. inexplicable. 2. incurable.

in-fābrē, adj. [(2) in; faber; cf. adfabre], in an unworkmanlike manner, unskilfully, inartistically.

in-fābrĭcātus, a, um, adj. unwrought, unfashioned, unshaped.

infăcētē, adv. [infacetus], without grace or wit, unwittily; coarsely, rudely infăcētĭae (inffic-), ārum, f. pl. [id.], coarse or pointless jests, lack-wit jokes.

in-făcētus (inffic-), a, um, adj. without grace or wit, lack-wit, wanting in humour, foolish, stupid, dull, coarse, rude, unmannerly. Compar. infacetior.

in-făcundus, a, um, adj. ineloquent. Compar. infacundior.

in-fāmātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infamo. As adj. of evil fame, ill-famed, Ov.

infāmĭa, ae, f. [infamis], I. ill-fame, ill-repute, dishonour, disgrace, loss of character, infamy. II. (meton.) that which brings into bad repute: Cacus Aventinae timor atque infamia silvae, the disgrace, scandal. III. (polit. techn. t.) loss of certain civil rights, degradation, disqualifying the infamis from holding honourable office, giving evidence, prosecuting, making a will, sitting as judex. See Dict. Ant. and cf. Gk. ἀτιμία.

in-fāmis, e, adj. [(2) in; fama], I. of ill-repute, of evil fame, ill-famed, disreputable, notorious, infamous: digitus, the middle finger, because used in indecent or mocking gestures: carmen, i.e. incantation, spell, Ov. II. (polit. techn. t.) degraded. Cf. infamia, III.

infāmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [infamis], trans. v. bring into ill-repute, put to shame, brand with infamy, take an evil name to a person or thing, defame, slander; accuse.

in-fandus, a, um, adj. unspeakable, unutterable, shocking, fearful, abominable, horrible, unnatural. Neut. cogn. acc. = adv.: infanda furentem, Virg. Neut. as exclamation, infandum, O horror! Virg.

in-fans, ntis, adj. [(2) in; for, fari], I. that cannot speak, tongue-tied, speechless, mute, dumb. II. 1. not yet speaking; young, little, infant. As subst. infans, ntis, m. f. a little child, infant, babe. 2. (of animals) young: catuli. III. 1. (poet.) of or belonging to a little child, infantine, childish, baby. 2. childlike, childish, silly, idle, Cic. IV. incapable of speaking, ineloquent, destitute of oratory. Compar. infantior; superl. infantissimus.

infantĭa, ae, f. [infans], I. 1. inability to speak. 2. want of eloquence. II. 1. early childhood, infancy, babyhood: primā ab infantiā, Tac.; madidi infantia nasi, childish driveling of the nose, a nose running like a baby's, Iuv. 2. (collect.) the young, children.

in-farcio (-fercio), si, sum (tum), trans. v. stuff or cram in.

infarsus or infartus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infarcio.

in-fātŭo, āre, āvi, ātum, [fatuus], trans. v. make a fool of, befool.

in-faustus, a, um, adj. ill-omened, ill-boding, unpropitious, unhappy, ill-fated, unfortunate, disastrous.

infector, ōris, m. [inficio], a dyer.

(1) infectus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inficio, dyed, stained, impregnated, steeped, tainted, intermingled; of dark grain or hue, dark-dyed, discoloured, swarthy, tanned.

(2) in-fectus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; facio], I. 1. not made or done, unwrought, unmade, undone, uncompleted, unfinished, incomplete: re infectâ, without accomplishing one's object or purpose, without success; infectum reddere, render unmade, revoke, undo, make void; facta atque infecta, i.e. things true and false; damnum infectum (legal term, t.t.), damage not actually done to property, but which there is good reason to apprehend, if precautions are not taken. 2. (of metals, etc.) unwrought, in the natural state: aurum; argentum, unrefined. II. that cannot be done, impossible, impracticable, Sall.

infœcunditas, ātis, f. [infecundus], unfruitfulness.

in-fœcundus, a, um, adj. unfruitful, unproductive, barren.

infēlīcitas, ātis, f. [infelix], absence of luck, ill-luck, misfortune, calamity.

infēlīciter, adv. [id.], unhappily, unluckily, unsuccessfully.

in-fēlix, īcis, adj. I. unfruitful, sorry, ungenerous, barren, unblessed, accursed: lolium; tellus frugibus. II. (meton.) 1. unhappy, hapless, unlucky, unfortunate, unsuccessful, wretched, ill-fated: studiorum (gen. of respect), unlucky in reaping no reward for his efforts, Virg.; animi (locat), wretched at heart. 2. causing ill-luck, unlucky, calamitous, baleful, ill-omened, ominous: infelici arbori reste suspendito, the accursed tree, i.e. the gallows. Compar. infelicior; superl. infelicissimus.

infensē, adv. [infensus], hostilely, savagely. Compar. infensius.

infenso, āre, [id.], trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) treat in a hostile manner; ravage, Tac. B. (intrans.) act in a hostile manner, be wroth, Tac.

in-fensus, a, um, adj. [in; obsol. fendo; cf. defendo, offendo], hostile, enraged, deadly, dangerous, threatening: valetudo, weak health, sickness; tela, spicula, levelled, at the charge, presented, couched; (with dat.) Drances infensus Turno, inveterate foe to; (with prep. in), Livy. Compar. infensior; superl. infensissimus.

infer, a, um. See inferus.

in-fercio, īre, sī, sum (tum). See infarcio.

inferī, ōrum. See inferus.

infĕriæ, ārum, f. pl. [inferi], sacrifices to the gods below in honour of the dead, funeral offerings.

infĕrior, ōris, n. infĕrius, adj. compar. of inferus, I. lower, in place or situation: in inferius, downwards. II. (of time) subsequent, later, younger. III. (of rank, quality, number) inferior, less, weaker: non inferiora secutus, following no meaner cause, a cause as good (sc. as Hector's), Virg.

infĕrius, adv. compar. of infra, q.v., lower, further down.

infernē, adv. [infernus], below, beneath, Lucr.

infernus, a, um, adj. [infer], I. that is below or low down, lying below; lower, lower down. II. belonging to the world below, underground, infernal; of the gods below, of Hades: rex, i.e. Pluto; Iuno, i.e. Proserpine; palus, i.e. the Styx; ratis, i.e. Charon's boat; rota, i.e. Ixion's; aspectus, hellish. As subst. (ā) infernī, ōrum, m. pl. (poet.), the shades below, Propert.; (b) infernum, ī, n. pl. 1. the lower parts of the body. 2. the infernal regions, Tac.

in-fĕro, ferre, tŭli (inque tŭlī, poet. by Tmesis, = intulitque), inlātum (illātum), trans. v. with prep. in and acc., ad, or dat. I. 1. bring or carry in or into, bring to, apply, bear on, put or throw upon or into, introduce, convey: in cquum, set on horseback, mount; scalas ad moenia, set against, apply; semina arvis, sow one's fields; ignes templis et tectis, set fire to; pedem, gressus, set foot, advance, approach, proceed. Inferre se, or pass. reflex., advance, proceed, repair; betake one's-self, rush, enter; expose one's-self, present one's-self, intrude. 2. offer, present, expose, oppose: sua pectora adversis telis, Ov. 3. bring to a place for burial, inter, Cic. 4. give in, enter, charge (an account): expensa falsa. 5. in military phrases: ferre arma, bellum alicui, or in aliquem, begin a war, make war upon (of offensive war); inferre signa, (poet.) inferre acies; bring up the standards (battalions), advance, charge, attack: inferre gradum, pedem, advance, attack. II. (fig.) 1. bring forward, introduce, allege, adduce; produce, make, create, cause, entail; infuse, inspire, excite, threaten; inflict, deal, use against: causam; sermonem; periculum alicui; spem, terrorem alicui; iniuriam; litem capitis in aliquem; vulnus; manūs, vim, offer violence to, lay violent hands upon; violate. 2. draw an inference, infer, Cic. III. (like Gk. ἐπιφέρεσθαι) offer, sacrifice, present: Anchisae honores; tepido spumantia cymbia lacte, Virg.

infersus or infertus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infercio. See infarcio.

infĕrus (infer, Cato), a, um, adj. that is below, low, below, beneath, lower: mare, the Lower or Tuscan Sea, opp. to mare Superum, the Upper or Adriatic Sea; ste, without mare, iter ad superum, navigatio infero, Cic. Only in neut. in Class. Latin. As subst. infĕri, ōrum (contr. -ūm), m. pl. 1. the dwellers below, i.e. the dead, the departed. 2. the infernal regions, the World below.

in-fervesco, ĕre, ferbŭi, intrans. incept. v. boil in, on, or over; grow hot.

infestē, adv. [infestus], hostilely, violently, outrageously. Compar. infestius; superl. infestissime.

infesto, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.] trans. v. I. make dangerous, harass, molest, infest. II. (meton.) attack, destroy, injure, impair, spoil.

in-festus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; -fensus, part. from obsol. fendo; cf. infensus], I. (passive) made unsafe, molested, harassed, exposed to, infested, in danger, insecure, beset with danger, endangered, unquiet: fugam infestam facere, to render dangerous, harass. II. (active) that renders unsafe, hostile, destructive, dangerous, threatening, fatal, troublesome: infestis signis ire, with battalions in order of attack, at the charge; (of spears, etc.) with point turned towards, pointed at, presented, levelled. Compar. infestior; superl. infestissimus.

infĭcētē, infĭcētiæ, infĭcētius. See infac-.

infĭciæ. See infitiæ.

in-fĭcio, fĭcĕre, fēci, fectum, [facio], trans. v., lit. put in, work in; I. stain, dye, tinge, colour; overspread, suffuse, darken; make dark or swarthy, tan. II. (meton.) mix or intermingle with something; hence, taint, infect, poison, impregnate, imbrue. III. (fig.) tinge, taint, pollute, soil, corrupt, spoil, infect, imbue: infectum scelus (= quo inficiuntur), the ingrained taint of guilt, Virg.

infĭcior, āri. See infitior.

in-fīdēlis, e, adj. that cannot be relied upon, untrustworthy, unfaithful, faithless, treacherous. Compar. infidelior; superl. infidelissimus.

infīdēlĭtas, ātis, f. [infidelis], unfaithfulness, faithlessness, perfidy, treachery.

infīdēlĭter, adv. [id.], unfaithfully, faithlessly, perfidiously.

in-fīdus, a, um, adj. not to be trusted, faithless, treacherous, false, unsafe; with prep. ad, Tac.

in-figo, ĕre, fixi, fixum, trans. v. I. fix, fasten, drive in, fix or fasten on: vulnus, i.e. make by a thrust, Virg.; cornua, lock, id. II. (fig.) infix, impress, imprint: res memoriae; infixum est (mihi), I am firmly resolved, it is my deeply-rooted conviction; (with infin.) fugere, Sil. Ital.; (with gen. of gerund) arma Romana vitandi (sc. consilium), Tac.

infĭmus (infŭmus), a, um, adj. superl. of inferus, I. lowest, nethermost, the bottom of, at the base, at the bottom; latest, last: ab infimâ ārā, lit. from the altar where it is lowest, i.e. from the lowest part of the altar; sub infimo colle, at the base, or foot, of the hill; cum scripsissem haec infima. As subst. infimum, i, n. the lowest part, bottom, base: ex, or ab, infimo, from the bottom, at the bottom; ad infimum, at the bottom. II. (fig.) lowest, humblest, meanest in rank or quality.

in-findo, ĕre, fĭdi, fissum, trajtrans. and trans. v. cut into, cut in; make by cutting, plough, cleave.

infīnītas, ātis, f. [(2) in; finis], boundlessness, endless extent, endlessness, infinity.

infīnītē, adv. [infinitus], without bounds or end, infinitely.

in-finitus, a, um, adj. I. not bounded, unlimited, boundless, infinite, endless, countless, enormous: spes, that promises no end, no happy result, Cic. Infinitum est, it would be an endless task. As subst. infīnītum, i, n. 1. boundless space, the infinite, Lucr. 2. an endless amount or number, infinitude. II. indefinite, universal.

in-fĭo. See infit.

infirmātĭo, ōnis, f. [infirmo], 1. a weakening, invalidating. 2. a refuting, disproving.

infirmē, adv. [infirmus], 1. weakly, faintly, feebly, slightly; without vigour. 2. faint-heartedly, weak-mindedly. Compar. infirmius.

infirmĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. 1. want of strength, weakness, feebleness. 2. sickness, ill-health, infirmity, indisposition. 3. (concr.) the weaker sex, women, Livy; also, the weaker age, children, Quint. II. (fig.) 1. intellectual weakness: animi; (a) want of spirit, want of courage; (b) want of talent; memoriae, impaired, failing memory. 2. unsteadiness, fickleness, inconstancy: consilii, Cic.; Galliorum, Caes.

infirmo, āre, āvi, ātum, [infirmus], trans. v. 1. deprive of strength, enfeeble, weaken. II. (fig.) invalidate, disprove; annul, make void.

in-firmus, a, um, adj. I. not strong, weak, feeble, unsound; indisposed, sick: naves, unseaworthy; infirmi ad resistendum, Caes.; pecus, i.e. sheep, Ov.; sum admodum infirmus, Cic. II. (fig.) 1. weak in mind or character, unsteady, inconstant: sum paulo infirmior, Hor.; animus, want of courage. 2. (of things) weak, trivial, ineffective, of no weight, not durable. Compar. infirmior; superl. infirmissimus.

infit, [3d pers. of obsol. infio], defect. v. he (she, it) begins; he (she, it) begins to speak.

infĭtiae (infĭciae), ārum, f. pl. [(2) in; fateor], denial; only in acc. with ire, rarely without a negative: infitias ire, to deny, disown; with acc., acc. and infin., or absol.

infĭtiātĭo (infĭc-), ōnis, f. [infitior], a denial.

infĭtiātor (infĭc-), ōris, m. [id.], one who denies; esp. one who repudiates a debt or refuses to restore a deposit, a shirker of obligations.

infĭtior (infĭcior), āri, ātus sum, [infitiae], trans. dep. 1. not to confess, deny, disown: progenies haud infitianda parenti, not to be disowned by, i.e. not unworthy of thy sire, Ov. 2. deny anything promised or received: depositum, disavow, Luv.; pretium, refuse, withhold, Ov.

infĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infigo.

inflammātĭo, ōnis, f. [inflammo], a setting on fire, kindling, inflaming.

in-flammo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. set on fire, light up, kindle. II. (meton.) inflame. III. (fig.) inflame, kindle, fire, rouse, excite.

inflātĭus, adv. [compar. as if from inflate; inflatus], more haughtily; somewhat pompously.

inflātĭo, ōnis, f. [inflo], I. a blowing or swelling up, inflation. II. 1. flatulence. 2. inflammation: praecordiorum.

(1) inflātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inflo, blown into, filled with blowing. As adj. I. 1. puffed, uttered with blowing: verba, i.e. laboriously breathed, over which too much breath is spent, Cic. 2. swelled up, puffed up, swollen, bloated: hesterno lacchо; capilli, padded out, bulging, crimped. II. (fig.) 1. puffed up, swollen with pride, anger, etc., enraged, haughty, proud animus; vana spe, in a fool's paradise; tumbastic, pompous, turgid. Compar. inflatior.

(2) inflātus, ūs, m. [inflo], I. a blowing into, blast, note of music. II. (fig.) a breathing into, inspiration.

in-flecto, ĕre, flexi, flexum, trans. v. I. bend in, bend, bow, curve, turn. Pass. reflex. inflector, bend, curve. II. 1. turn aside, turn, change, alter. 2. modulate (the voice): voces cantu, Tibull.; vox inflexa, plaintive, soft, melancholy. III. (fig.) 1. bend, move, affect, touch, prevail over: solus hic inflexit sensus. 2. alter, change, pervert, swerve from, diminish, lessen, allay.

in-flētus, a, um, adj. unwept, unmourned.

inflexĭo, ōnis, f. [inflecto], a bending.

(1) inflexus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inflecto. As adj. 1. curved, crooked, bent. 2. (of the voice) plaintive, melancholy.

(2) inflexus, ūs, m. [inflecto], a bending, curving: vicorum, street-corner, crossing.

inflictus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infligo.

in-fligo, ĕre, fixi, fictum, traj. trans. v. I. dash or strike upon, dash against. II. (meton.) make by striking, inflict, deal: alicui plagan, vulnus, to (fig.) 1. let fly upon, hurl at or against: aliquid in adversarium, Cic. 2. impose upon, inflict, attack: alicui turpitudinem, Cic.

in-flo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. blow or breathe into, fill with wind, puff out, inflate: calamos, play; classica, sound; initatur carbasus Austro, is filled, swelled: buccas alicui, puff out the cheeks with rage at; deos inflantes corpora, who make the body swell, blast it. Sts. absol.: simul inflavit tibicen, has sounded a note; (with cogn. acc.) sonum aliquem, give a tone. II. (fig.) 1. puff up (with pride, anger, etc.), inflate, blow out, swell, elate: animos spe falsa; sermonibus utrem. 2. (of speech) blow, expend breath: (without obj. acc.) Antipater paulo inflavit vehementius, blew stronger, adopted a more forcible and inflated style. 3. inspire: poetam quasi divino quodam spiritu inflari, Cic.

in-flōresco, ĕre, flōrŭi, intrans. incept. v. begin to blossom.

in-flŭo, ĕre, fluxi, fluxum, intrans. v. I. flow or run into, flow or run in, empty (of a river). II. (fig.) 1. flow into, stream into, rush or press into. 2. great numbers, crowd in; steal into, insinuate one's self into. 2. overflow, abound: influentis domo fortunae, Sen.

in-fŏdio, fŏdĕre, fōdi, fossum, trans. v. I. dig in, make by digging; plant, bury, inter. II. (meton.) drive in deep, force into, Sil. Ital., Stat.

infoecundus. See infeco-.

informātĭo, ōnis, f. [informo], I. an outline. II. (fig.) an idea, conception, representation.

in-formīdātus, a, um, adj. not dreaded, Sil. Ital.

in-formis, ē, adj. [(2) in; forma], that has no form or no proper form, shapeless, deformed, misshapen, plain (of looks), unsightly, hideous, shocking, horrid, ugly: wild, rude: turba, not hewn into shape; sucinum, in shapeless lumps, in its natural state; nodum informis leti, the hideous death noose, Virg.

in-formo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. make to a form, give shape to, shape, form, fashion, mould. II. (fig.) 1. form or give shape to in the mind, form an idea of, imagine, conceive, shadow forth, sketch, delineate, describe. 2. mould, fashion, prime, educate: animus a natura bene informatus, well constituted; artes quibus aetas puerilis ad humanitatem informari solet.

in-fortūnātus, a, um, adj. unfortunate.

in-fortūnium, ĭi, n. [(2) in; fortuna], misfortune: habere or ferre, come badly off, get into trouble.

infossus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infodio.

infrā, adv. and prep. with acc. [f. abl. (sc. parte) from infer, inferus], A. adv. I. 1. on the under side, below, underneath, beneath, further down. 2. (poet.) in the lower world, in the infernal regions: non segnes est infra, Tibull. II. (fig.) 1. below, beneath, in rank, value, size, number, etc.; inferior, worse, Tac., Plin. 2. (of time) later, Quint. B. prep. with acc. I. below, beneath, under. II. 1. (of rank, worth, size, number, etc.) below, beneath, inferior to, less than. 2. (of time) later than, after.

infractĭo, ōnis, f. [infringo], I. a breaking in pieces. II. a state of being broken: animi, i.e. despondency.

infractus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infringo. As adj. 1. shattered, broken, crushed, overborne, weakened, exhausted, impaired, diminished. 2. (of speech) broken, unconnected, faltering: loquella nutricis, baby jargon.

infraenātus, infraenis, infraenuo, infraenus. See infrenatus, etc.

in-frāgĭlis, e, adj. I. that cannot be broken, indestructible II. (fig.) that cannot be weakened, strong, invincible: vox; animus, Ov.

in-frēmo, ĕre, frēmŭi, intrans. v. I. growl, roar, bellow, rage: (with cogn. acc.); grave murmur, mutter a deep roar, Luc. II. (meton.) resound.

(1) infrēnātus (infraen-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from infreno.

(2) in-frēnātus (infraen-), a, um, adj. without a bridle; using no bridle.

in-frendĕo, ēre, and in-frendo, ĕre, intrans. v. gnash (the teeth): alicui, gnash the teeth at, i.e. attack furiously.

in-frēnis, e, and in-frēnus, a, um, (infraen-), adj. (1) in; frenum. I. unbridled; using no bridles. II. (fig.) unbridled, unchecked.

in-frēno (infraeno), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. furnish with a bit and bridle, bridle; harness, put to. II. (fig.) rein in, curb, bridle, restrain.

infrēnus, a, um. See infrenis.

in-frequens, ntis, adj. I. that does not often take place, rarely coming, seldom doing a thing, unfrequent, rare, seldom, unusual: parcus decorum cultor et infrequens II. thinly attended, scanty in numbers, not having the full numbers: senatus; causae, that do not draw a large audience, i.e. unattractive; exercitus; signa, with few men around them, thinly escorted: infrequentissima urbis, the most thinly inhabited parts; (with abl.) not filled with, not well provided with: pars urbis infrequens aedificiis; (with gen.) rei militaris, unused to, not acquainted with.

infrequentia, ae, f. [infrequens], a small number, thinness, scantiness, numerical feebleness, thin population.

in-fringo, ĕre, frēgi, fractum, trans. v. I. break in pieces, break off, break, crush, bruise, crack. II. (meton.) strike one thing on or against another: cratera alicui, Ov.; colaphum alicui, give one a box on the ear, Ter.; digitos citharae, play upon, Stat. III. 1. break down, crush, shatter, vanquish, weaken, enfeeble, lessen, check, interrupt, mitigate, assuage, annihilate. 2. soften, appease: deos precatu, Stat.

in-frons, frondis, adj. (poet.) without leaves or foliage, treeless, Ov.

in-fructŭōsus, a, um, adj. I. unfruitful. II. (fig.) fruitless, unprofitable.

in-fūcātus, a, um, adj. (1) in; fucatus], painted, highly coloured.

infŭla, ae, f. (?) akin to Gk. φᾶλος], I. a band, bandage. II. a red and white head-band made of flocks of wool knotted at regular intervals with a ribbon (vitta), used in sacred rites, and worn by priests, vestals, and suppliants, and by victims when dressed for sacrifice, a fillet. Temples, altars, and thresholds of houses, were decorated with infulae on festive occasions. See Rich. III. (meton.) an emblem of consecration: incingibus atque infulis imperii venditis, Cic.

infŭlātus, a, um, denom. adj. formed like part. [infula], wearing the infula, adorned with infulae.

in-fulcĭo, īre, fulsi, fultum, traj. trans. v. I. cram in or into: alicui cibum. II. feist in or into.

infūmus, a, um. See infimus.

in-fundo, ĕre, fūdi, fūsum, trans. v. I. pour in, into, or upon. II. (meton.) 1. pour out, pour, shed, present to, lay before, administer. 2. pour over, sprinkle, spread, throw upon or over: nimbum desuper alicui, Virg. 3. mix with, intermingle. III. (fig.) pour into, spread over, communicate, impart, shower upon, diffuse, infuse, instil, put upon, impose.

in-fusco, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. make dark or dusky, darken, discolour, stain. II. (fig.) obscure, sully, stain, tarnish, blot.

infūsus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from infundo, 1. poured in, into, or upon 2. (of a crowd) streaming in, thronging: populus, Virg. 3. (of the sun's rays) shed: sole infuso, when the sun now shed his light, Virg. 4. (of snow) fallen. 5. (of the hair) streaming over: nudos humeris infusa capillos (middle, with Gk. acc.), with her unbound tresses floating o'er her shoulders, Ov. 6. lying languidly upon, sinking on, closely clasping: coniugis gremio; collo amantis.

ingĕnĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, v. impregnating: mens infusa per artus.

Ingaevŏnes, um, m. pl. a German tribe near the Ocean.

in-gĕmĭno, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. and intrans. v.; A. (trans.) redouble, reiterate, repeat, renew, ply thick and fast: vox ingeminata, re-echoed. B. (intrans.) be repeated or redoubled, increase twofold, grow more and more, wax greater and greater.

in-gĕmisco, ĕre, gĕmŭi, intrans. v. (rarely with obj. acc.) groan at, sigh over, sigh for a thing; sigh, groan; with dat., prep. ad, acc. and infin., si, or absol.

in-gĕmo, ĕre, gĕmŭi, trans. and intrans. v. I. groan or sigh at or over, mourn, lament, moan, wail; with acc., dat., prep. in and abl., acc. and infin., or absol. II. (of things or of animals) moan, groan, low, roar.

in-gĕnĕro, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. engender, implant, produce, generate, create.

ingĕnĭōsē, adv. [ingeniosus], intelligently, cleverly. Compar. ingeniosius; superl. ingeniosissime.

ingĕnĭōsus, a, um, adj. [ingenium], I. endowed, with good natural capacity, intellectual, talented, of good abilities, gifted, ingenious, clever, adroit; poet. with prepp. ad, in, or dat.: res est ingeniosa dare, giving is a thing that requires tact, Ov. II. (meton.) naturally adapted, apt, fit, proper: terra ingeniosa colenti, productive, Ov.; ad segetes ager, id.

ingĕnĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ingigno, inborn, innate.

in-gĕnĭum, ĭi, n. [(1) in; root GEN-; cf. gigno], I. innate or natural quality or qualities, nature; (of things) nature, character: arvorum, Virg.; ingenio suo, naturally, instinctively, naively, unintentionally, spontaneously II. (of persons) 1. natural disposition, character, bent, inclination, temper, mode of thinking, idiosyncrasy: ad ingenium redire, to return to one's natural character, one's old ways; ingenio suo vivere. 2. (concr. coll.) those who give character to: Neronianae aulae, Tac. III. natural capacity or ability, abilities, parts, talents, intelligence, genius, cleverness, address, sagacity, wit IV. (meton.) 1. (concr.) a man of genius, talented or gifted person. 2. a clever thought, device, good idea, masterpiece, Tac, Plin.

in-gens, gentis, adj. lit. out of its kind; I. enormous, very large, huge, immense, vast, great, prodigious, mighty, strong, powerful, stout, stalwart, massive, heavy, thick, loud (of sound): with locat. or gen. of respect, Sall., Tac.; (poet. with infin.), Sil. Ital. II. (fig.) mighty, powerful, famous, illustrious, great, important. Compar. ingentior.

ingĕnŭē, adv. [ingenuus], in a manner befitting a person of free or noble birth, liberally, like a gentleman; openly, candidly, freely, frankly, boldly.

ingenŭĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. the condition of a free-born man, good or gentle birth. II. (fig.) the sentiments or character of the ingenuus, gentlemanly conduct, frankness, ingenuousness.

in-gĕnŭus, a, um, adj. [cf. ingenium, ingigno], lit. inborn; I. native, indigenous, not foreign, natural, constitutional: tophus, Iuv.; color, Propert. II. 1. born of free parents, free-born, of gentle birth: quod non ingenuos habeat clarosque parentes, Hor.; ingenuoque semper Amore peccas, i.e. love of a lady, id. As subst. ingenŭus, i, m. and ingenŭa, ae, f. a free-born man or woman. 2. worthy of the ingenuus, suited to or felt by a gentleman, a gentleman's, gentlemanly, gentle, refined, high-bred, noble, ingenuous, frank, open, candid: artes, i.e. all the branches of a gentleman's education; vires, genteel, i.e. delicate, as suited to a gentleman, who has not to work for his living, Ov.; cf. Mart. iii. 46. 6; vi. 11. 6; x. 47. 6.

inger, for ingere, imperat. from ingero, Catull.

in-gĕro, gĕrĕre, gessi, gestum, trans. and traj. trans. v. I. 1. carry, throw, put, pour in, into, or upon: aquam in salinas; ligna foco. Ingerere sese, to betake one's-self, rush, expose one's-self, Sil. Ital. 2. lay on, apply: verbera; pugnos alicui in ventrem, hit one in the stomach, take his wind. 3. (of weapons) thrust into, hurl, shower upon: fugientibus ingerit hastas In tergum, Virg. ; saxa in subeuntes, Livy. 4. cram in or into; bring, give, present, administer: offas, Pers. ; alicui oculum. 5. bring, throw, cast, heap upon: ingesta. st in sulis membris, Ov. II. (fig.) 1. heap upon: scelus sceleri; contumelias alicui, load one with insults. 2. fling at or upon, force, thrust, impose, obtrude upon: voces quae coram ingerebantur ; nomen patris patriae a populo ingestum, forced upon him. 3. (pass. reflex.) present one's-self: facies ingesta sopori, Claud.

ingestus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ingero.

in-gigno, ĕre, gĕnŭi, gĕnĭtum, trans. v. engender, implant, produce in or on.

in-glŏmĕro, āre, trans. v. gather together, accumulate, Stat.

in-glōrĭōsus, a, um, adj. = inglorius.

in-glōrius, a, um, adj. [(2) in ; gloria], I. without glory, unknown to fame, inglorious, unhonoured, without reputation, mean: (with gen. of respect) militiae, Tac. II. (meton.) without device or crest: cassis, Stat.

in-glŭvies, ēi, f. [cf. glutio], I. the gullet, crop (of fowls), maw, gorge. II. (meton.) gluttony, voracity.

ingrātē, adv. (ingratus), I. unpleasantly, disagreeably. II. unthankfully, with ingratitude: aliquid ferre, receive with unthankfulness, fail to be grateful for, Tac.

ingrātĭa, ae, f. [id.], thanklessness, ingratitude, Plaut. ingrātĭis, contr. ingrātis, abl. pl.=adv. without one's thanks, against one's will, unwillingly. Very rare as subst.

in-grātĭfĭcus, a, um, adj. unthankful, ungrateful.

in-grātus, a, um, adj. I. unpleasant, disagreeable, displeasing, unacceptable, unpopular. II 1. unthankful, ungrateful, thankless; that makes no return, that does not pay, unprofitable, unremunerative, barren: (poet. with gen.) saltis, unthankful for his toil, Horace, Virg. 2. that gets no thanks, not appreciated as a favour, unrequited, humeri, Stat. Compar. ingratior ; superl. ingratissimus.

in-grăvesco, ĕre, intrans. incept. v. I. 1. grow heavy, become heavier and heavier. 2. become pregnant, Lucr. II. (fig.) gain in weight, grow larger, increase, grow stronger, be intensified ; grow burdensome, become oppressive, grow worse; be inconvenienced, fatigued, have one's condition aggravated by something ; grow more absorbing.

in-grăvo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. weigh down, load. II. (fig.) 1. bear heavily upon, oppress, molest. 2. render worse, aggravate, Ov., Virg.

in-grĕdĭor, i, (inque gredi, by Tmesis, Lucr.), gressus sum, intrans. and trans. dep. I. go into, walk in, march in or into, enter, step in, set foot on ; with prepp. in, intra, and acc., with acc., (poet.) with dat. II. (fig.) 1. enter upon, set out on, engage in, apply one's-self to, begin, undertake; with prep. in, sts. ad, or with acc. 2. begin : orationem ; profectionem ; (with infin.), Cic., Propert., Virg. ; (absol. sc. coeptis est ingressus Venus, began, began to speak. III. 1. walk, proceed, go, step, advance, march, go on ; land (from a ship) : with prep in and abl., with abl., and prep. per. 2. (fig.) walk in, follow : vestigiis patris, Cic. ; also with cogn. acc., vestigia, Livy.

ingressĭo, ōnis, f. [ingredior], I. a going into, entering, entrance, II. 1. a beginning. 2. a walk, gait, pace.

(1) ingressus, a, um, perf. part. from ingredior.

(2) ingressus, ūs, m. [ingredior], I. 1. a going into, entering, entrance. 2. an inroad, invasion : hostilis, Tac. II. a going, walking, gait ; footing ; a marching forward, advance. III. (fig.) a beginning, commencement, rise, origin.

in-grŭo, ĕre, grŭi, [(?) in ; ruo, with epenthetic -g], intrans. v. rush or break into, fall violently upon, make an inroad upon, assail, attack ; burst forth ; with dat., or prep. in and acc.

inguen, ĭnis, n. I. the groin ; less accurately, the waist, the fork. Often in pl. II. the abdomen.

in-gurgĭto, āre, āvi, ātum, [in ; gurges], trans. and traj. trans. v. I. plunge in or into ; into like a flood, discharge : se, fill, glut, gorge one's-self ; get fuddled. II. (fig.) with reflex. pronoun, plunge deeply into, wallow in, devote one's-self to, be absorbed in : se in flagitia ; se in alicuius copias.

in-gustātus, a, um, adj. untasted, never before tasted ; without being tasted, Hor.

in-hăbĭlis, e, adj. I. that cannot be easily handled, unhandy, unwieldy, awkward, embarrassing. II. (fig.) unfit, unadapted, incapable ; with dat., or prep. ad and acc.

in-hăbĭtābĭlis, e, adj. uninhabitable.

in-haerĕo, ēre, haesi, haesum, intrans. v. I. stick in, be fixed in, hang, cleave, cling to, fasten on to ; with abl., dat., or prep. ad. II. (fig.) cling, adhere to, be firmly implanted in, be attached to, closely connected with, devote one's-self closely to, hang upon, be intent or fixed upon, be always about a person, be ever before, ever present to or with.

in-haeresco, ĕre, haesi, haesum, intrans. incept. v. remain fixed, stick fast in, cleave, adhere to.

in-hălo, āre, āvi, ātum, traj. trans. v. breathe upon or over.

in-hĭbĕo, ēre, ŭi, ĭtum, [habeo], trans. v. I. hold in, restrain, pull up, keep back, check, stay, staunch : inhibere navem, inhibere remis, or absol. inhibere, (naut. techn. t.) to back water ; but, inhibere remos, ship the oars, stop rowing. II. (meton.) restrain, hinder, prevent, check : impetum victoris, Livy ; mentem a turpi probro, Catull. ; sts. with quin, quominus. III. set in operation, exercise, employ, use, inflict.

inhĭbĭtio, ōnis, f. [inhibeo], a holding back : remigum, i.e. backing water : cf. inhibeo, I.

inhĭbĭtus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inhibeo.

in-hio, āre āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v. ; A (intrans.) I. have the mouth or jaws wide open, stand open-mouthed, stand agape ; be wide open, gape. II. (fig.) stand open-mouthed, gape, in amazement, admiration, etc. III. 1. open the mouth wide to or at, gape at : (with dat.) uberibus lupinis, Cic. ; (poet. with acc.) postes, Virg. 2. (fig.) gaze at with eagerness, pore over, regard with longing, covet greedily : congestis saccis ; praedae ; dictis, listen to open-mouthed, i.e. eagerly, intently ; (poet.) in aliquem, Lucr. B. (trans.) poet. and rare, except in Plaut.

inhŏnestē, adv. [inhonestus], dishonourably, disgracefully, shamefully.

inhŏnesto, āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. dishonour, disgrace, shame, Ov.

inhŏnestus, a, um, adj. I. without honour, inglorious, dishonoured ; dishonourable, disgraceful, shameful. II. unseemly, shocking, hideous, ugly, disgusting. Compar. inhonestior ; superl. inhonestissimus.

inhŏnōrātus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from inhonoro (not in class. authors). As adj. I. without honour, unhonoured. II. (opp. to honoratus) that has not held high office. III. unrewarded. Compar. inhonoratior ; superl. inhonoratissimus.

in-hŏnōrus, a, um, adj. I. without honour, not honoured or respected, of no account, unrenowned. II. (poet.) unsightly, ugly, dismal, disgraceful, Stat., Sil. Ital.

in-horrĕo, ēre, ŭi, intrans. v. I. 1. stand on end, bristle up, bristle. 2. (poet. with acc. by stretch of meaning) cause to bristle up : armos, Virg. II. grow rough, roughen. III. shudder, tremble, shiver.

in-horresco, ĕre, horrŭi, intrans. incept. v. I. rise or stand erect, bristle, set up feathers, bristles, etc. II. shudder, shake, shiver, tremble, quiver, with cold, fear, etc. ; also, of any tremulous, wavy motion.

in-hospĭtālis, e, adj. inhospitable, desolate.

in-hospĭtus, a, um, adj. inhospitable, unfit to live in, wild, savage, bleak, dangerous. As subst. n. pl. inhospitable regions, wilds, deserts, Sil. Ital.

inhŭmānē, adv. [inhumanus], inhumanly, savagely, barbarously, misanthropically, selfishly, basely, meanly. Compar. inhumanius.

inhŭmānĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. inhuman conduct, savagery, barbarity. II. 1. want of refinement or good-breeding, uncourteousness, ill-breeding, ungentlemanly conduct. 2. boorishness, churlishness, selfishness, meanness.

inhūmānĭter, adv [id.], uncourteously, in an ungentlemanly manner.

in-hūmānus, a, um, adj. I. inhuman, savage, barbarous, revolting to the sentiments of humanity, unnatural. II. ill-bred, rude, unmannerly, uncourteous, uncivilised, boorish, churlish, selfish. Compar. inhumanior; superl. inhumanissimus.

in-hūmātus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; humo], unburied.

in-ībĭ, adv. I. therein, in that place, in that matter, there. II. (meton.) (of time) on the point of, nearly, almost: aliquid inibi est, is near at hand, at the very door: is on the point of happening or of being achieved, will take place soon, presently, by and by.

in-īcĭo (injĭcio), īcĕre, īcī, iectum, [incio], traj. trans. v. I. throw, cast, hurl upon, in, or into, put or lay on, fling or throw at or over: ignem castris; foculo manum; ignem tecto; securim alicui; bracchia (manus) collo, i.e. embrace; vincula alicui; pontem (sc. flumini); iniecti humeris capilli, falling over. Se (sese) inicere, throw, fling one's self, rush. Inicere manum alicui, (a) (legal term) to lay forcible hold of, take violent possession of, seize as one's property (see Ramsay, Dict. Ant. p. 289); hence, seize upon, exercise power over, assert one's right of ownership: virgini venienti in forum minister decemviri manum iniecit, Livy; iniecere manum Parcae, i.e. claimed him for their own, Virg.; quem Venus iniectā vindicat alma manu, Ov.; inice non timidas in tua iura manus, id.; cf. quisque parabat inicere anguipedum captivo bracchia caelo, to take violent or forcible possession of, id.; (b) lay hold on a person, in order to make him stand still. II. (fig.) 1. put or throw into, inspire, infuse, occasion, cause, furnish, inflict: alicui timidum animum causam deliberandi; plaga est inflicta petitioni. 2. (of the mind) apply, throw itself into: in quam se iniciens animus, i.e. dwelling upon, Cic. 3. suggest, mention, throw out a hint of anything: alicui nomen, Suet.; continuo iniecisse verba tibi Dromonem scilicet, I warrant you D. gave you a broad hint at once, Ter.; (absol.) cum mihi in sermone iniecisset, se velle, Cic.

iniectĭo (inj-), ōnis, f. [inicio], a throwing or laying on: manūs; cf. inicio, I.

in-iecto (inj-), āre, āvi, ātum, [iacto], trans. v. lay on, apply. Stat., Sil. Ital., Lucr.

(1) iniectus (inj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from inicio.

(2) iniectus (inj-), ūs, m. [inicio], I. a throwing or casting on or over: pulveris; vestis. II. a putting in or into, immission: animi in corpora, Lucr.

iniens, entis, part. from ineo: aetas=adolescentia.

inimicē, adv. (inimicus), in an unfriendly manner, hostilely, as an enemy. Compar. inimicius; superl. inimicissime.

inimicĭtia, ae, f. [id.], enmity, hostility, feud. Always in pl. except as an abstract philosophical term.

inimico, āre, [id.], trans. v. render hostile, set at variance.

in-imicus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; amicus], I. unfriendly, (personally) hostile, unfavourably disposed; (of things) adverse, hurtful, injurious, prejudicial; with gen. or dat. As subst. inimicus, i, m. and inimica, ae, f. a personal enemy, rival, ill-wisher, foe. II. (meton.) of or belonging to an enemy, of the foe. Compar. inimicior; superl. inimicissimus.

iniquē, adv. [iniquus], unequally, unfairly, disproportionately; impatiently, indignantly. Compar. iniquius; superl. iniquissime.

iniquĭtas, ātis, f. [id.], I. unevenness, irregularity, inequality: loci. II. (fig.) 1. unfavourable character, disadvantageous position, adverseness, difficulty: loci; rerum; temporum. 2. unfairness, injustice, unreasonableness; in pl. unjust acts or measures, unjustifiable demands.

in-iquus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; aequus], I. uneven, not level, steep, rough, rugged (of ground). II. unfair, unequal (in size or power), either (a) of excess, or (b) of defect; (a) too large, too great, too heavy, oppressive, immoderate, excessive: pondus aratri, Virg.; sol, too hot, fierce, id.; (b) too small, insufficient, scant, narrow: heminae; spatia. III. (fig.) 1. unfair, unjust, partial, unfavourable, hostile, adverse, spiteful. As subst. iniquus, i, m. an ill-wisher, adversary, foe. 2. unfavourable, disadvantageous, hurtful, prejudicial; calamitous, unfortunate, unhappy: sidus; venti; locus iniquior, a less favourable position; sors; casus. 3. impatient, discomposed, discontented: iniquo animo pati (ferre) aliquid. 4. sulky, stubborn, vicious: iniquae mentis asellus. Compar. iniquior; superl. iniquissimus.

initiātĭo, ōnis, f. [initio], an admission to or participation in sacred rites or mysteries.

initio, āre, āvi, ātum, [initium], trans. v. lit. begin, commence; 1. initiate into or admit to sacred rites or mysteries, e.g. of Ceres, Bacchus, etc. 2. initiate into, consecrate to: aliis sum litteris initiatus, Plin.

initium, ii, n. (ineo), I. 1. a beginning, commencement: nascendi, i.e. birth; initium capere, facere, to take the initiative, the first steps, make the first attempt to, begin, start, commence. Abl. sing. initio, =adv. in the beginning, in the first instance, at the outset, Cic., Nep. 2. boundary line, outskirt, edge: Remorum; silvarum, Caes. II. (meton.) 1. (pl.) first principles, elements: artificiorum, Caes. 2. beginning, origin. 3. (pl.) auspices; esp. those taken at the beginning of a reign: initiis Tiberii auditis, Tac.; novis initiis opus est, i.e. of a new king, Curt. 4. secret sacred rites, mysteries. 5. (poet.) instruments used in initiatory rites or mysteries, mystic instruments, Catull.

(1) initus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from ineo.

(2) initus, ūs, m. [ineo], I. 1. a coming in, arrival, approach, Lucr. 2. a beginning, commencement, Lucr. II. mating of animals, Ov., Plin.

iniŭcio. See inicio.

iniūcundē (inj-), adv. [iniucundus], unpleasantly. Compar. iniucundius.

iniūcunditas (inj-), ātis, f. [iniucundus], unpleasantness.

in-iūcundus (inj-), a, um, adj. unpleasant, disagreeable; unamiable, harsh.

in-iūdĭcātus (inj-), a, um, adj. I. not formally tried by a judex. II. undecided.

iniunctus (inj-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from iniungo, 1. joined on to, abutting on. 2. brought upon, inflicted, caused; imposed upon, enjoined.

in-iungo (-jungo), ĕre, iunxi, nctum, traj. trans. v. I. join on to, let in, fasten into; attach, unite. II. (fig.) bring upon, occasion, cause, inflict, lay upon, impose, enjoin.

in-iūrātus (-jūrātus), a, um, adj. that has taken no oath, unsworn.

iniūria (injūria), ae, f. [iniurius], I. 1. anything done contrary to justice and equity, an illegal act, wrong, abuse, injustice, outrage, injury, guilt, wrong-doing, violence: per iniuriam, in an unjust manner, unjustly. Abl. iniūriā, =adv. unjustly, wrongfully, without just cause, without good reason; hence, haud (nec) iniuria, with good reason, justly, not undeservedly. 2. (poet.) a tale of wrong: longa est iniuria, Virg. 3. (poet.) sense of wrong: flectum iniuria vincet, Propert. II. 1. an injury, insult, affront, wrong done: iniuriarum actio, an action for personal injury or affront, or for bodily assault. 2. unjust conduct, harshness, rigour. 3. revenge or punishment for injury inflicted: consulis, Livy. 4. an unjust acquisition: iniuriam obtinere, Livy. 5. harm, damage, hurt, Plin., Suet.

iniūriōsē (inj-), adv. [iniuriosus], unjustly, insultingly. Compar. iniuriosius.

iniūriōsus (inj-), a, um, adj. [iniuria], I. acting unjustly, wrongful, criminal. II. harmful, hurtful, insulting.

in-iūrius (inj-), a, um, adj. [(2) in; ius], that acts unlawfully, wrongful, unjust, injurious, wrong.

(1) in-iussus (-jussus), a, um, adj. unbidden, unforced, of one's own act and will, spontaneous: gramina, i.e. wild. Virg.

(2) in-iussus (-jussus), ūs, m. only in abl. sing., without command, without orders; without election or consent.

iniustē (injustē), adv. [iniustus], unjustly, unfairly, wrongfully. Superl. iniustissime.

iniustĭtĭa (inj-), æ, f. [id.], I. injustice, unjust proceeding. II. undue harshness, severity.

in-iustus (-justus), a, um, adj. I. contrary to justice and equity, unjust, unfair, wrongful. As subst. iniustum (inj-), i, n. wrongdoing, injustice, Hor. II. unreasonable, overbearing, oppressive, harsh, severe, unfriendly, spiteful: homine imperito nunquam quidquam iniustius; onus; fascis; noverca; dens (of envy), Ov. Compar. iniustior; superl. iniustissimus.

injectio, injĭcio, and words in inj-. See iniectio, inicio, etc.

in-lăbĕfactus (ill-), a, um, adj. unshaken, unimpaired, unbroken.

in-lăbor (ill-), ī, lapsus sum, intrans. dep. with prep. in and acc., or with dat. I. 1. fall, slip, glide, pass easily into; glide in, move in. 2. fall upon. 3. fall, sink down in death, Lucr. II. (fig.) of a divinity, or a sensation, enter into, penetrate, fill, inspire.

in-lăbōrātus (ill-), a, um, adj. not wrought or laboured, uncultivated, acquired without labour, unbroiled (of fish), spontaneous.

in-lăbōro (ill-), āre, traj. v. labour at: domibus, i.e. undergo the labour of building houses, Tac.

in-lăcessītus (ill-), a, um, adj. unprovoked, unattacked, without disturbance.

in-lăcrĭmābilis (ill-), e, adj. (poet.) I. unwept, unlamented. II. that is not to be moved to tears, pitiless, inexorable.

in-lăcrĭmo (ill-), āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. v. and in-lăcrĭmor (ill-), āri, ātus sum, intrans. dep. I. weep at or over, shed tears, weep, lament: (with dat.) quibus (malis) possint inlacrimare ferae; sic ait inlacrimans. II. (meton.) distil tears, trickle, weep: maestum inlacrimat templis ebur, Virg.

in-laesus (ill-), a, um, adj. unhurt, unharmed, uninjured, unimpaired.

in-laetābilis (ill-), e, adj. (poet.) joyless, cheerless, gloomy.

(1) inlapsus (ill-), a, um, perf. part. from inlabor.

(2) inlapsus (ill-), ūs, m. [inlabor], a falling, gliding, or flowing in, swoop, plunge.

in-lăquĕo (ill-), āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. I. take in a snare, ensnare. II. (fig.) entrap, entangle.

in-lātro (ill-), āre, traj. v. bark at.

inlātus (ill-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from infero.

in-laudābilis (ill-), e, adj. (poet.) not worthy of praise, Stat.

in-laudātus (ill-), a, um, adj. I. unpraised, without praise, unknown to fame, obscure. II. (poet., by Litotes or Meiosis) blameworthy; detested, execrable: Busiris, Virg.

inlautus, a, um. See inlotus.

inlĕcĕbra (ill-), æ, f. [inlicio], an enticement, allurement, attraction, charm, lure, bait, decoy.

(1) inlectus (ill-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from inlicio.

(2) in-lectus (ill-), a, um, adj. I. unread: inlectumque remittet, Ov. II. ungathered.

inlĕpĭdē (ill-), adv. [inlepidus], rudely, inelegantly.

in-lĕpĭdus (ill-), a, um, adj. rude, unmannerly, without grace, inelegant, unpleasing.

in-lībātus (ill-), a, um, adj. undiminished, unimpaired, uninjured, whole; uncontaminated, undefiled.

in-lĭbĕrālis (ill-), e, adj. I. unworthy of a freeman, sordid, mean, ungenerous, disobliging. 2. niggardly, parsimonious.

in-lĭbĕrālĭtas (ill-), ātis, f. [inliberalis], conduct unworthy of a freeman, mean or ungenerous conduct, niggardliness.

in-lĭbĕrālĭter (ill-), adv. [id.], meanly, ungenerously, meanly, stingily.

in-licĭor, ōri, trans. dep. inveigle, Plin.

in-licio (ill-), lĭcĕre, lexi, lectum, (lacio), trans. v. entice, attract, allure, inveigle, decoy, seduce.

inlĭcĭtātor (ill-), ōris, m. [(2) in ; licitor], a sham high bidder at an auction, a sham-purchaser, mock-bidder, a 'sweetener.'

in-lĭcĭtus (ill-), a, um, adj. [(2) in ; licitus], not allowed, unlawful, forbidden, illicit, illegal.

in-lĭdo (ill-), ĕre, si, sum, [laedo], trans. and traj. trans. v. dash in to something, strike, dash, drive against. III. (fig.) I. attack, crush: caestus in ossa, Virg.; naves vadis, id.; dentem fragili, Hor.

in-ligo (ill-), āre, āvi, ātum, (perf. pass. part. by Tmesis inque ligatus, Virg.), traj. trans. and trans. v. I. bind or tie on to, tie up, fasten, attach. II. (meton.) entangle, hamper, disable, encumber, fetter. III. (fig.) I. attach, combine, connect, bind. 2. hold bound, engage, oblige, encumber, fetter, impede, entangle, entrap.

in-limis (ill-), e, adj. (poet.) [(2) in ; limus], without mud or slime, clear, pure: fons, Ov.

in-lino (ill-), ĕre, lēvi, lĭtum, traj. trans. and trans. v. I. smear, daub, spread, lay, on or over; besmear, bespread, bedaub, anoint, paint over, bepaint: papavera teneris genis, Ov.; oculis collyria, Hor.; aurum vestibus inlitum, laid on, i.e. worked in, thickly embroidered into, id.; si bruma nives Albanis inlinet agris, spread its sheet of snow over, id.; aliquid chartis, smear, id.; texta veneno, Ov.; faces pice, Livy; porticus braccatis inlita Medis, bepainted, frescoed with the trousered Medes. II. (fig.) daub over, anoint, taint.

in-liquĕfactus (ill-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from inliquefacio, liquid, melted, Cic.

(1) inlīsus (ill-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from inlido.

(2) inlīsus (ill-), ūs, m. [inlido], a striking or dashing against, shock. Only in abl. sing.

in-littĕrātus (-lĭtĕrātus), (ill-), a, um, adj. I. unlettered, uneducated, unlearned, illiterate; (of things) unpolished, inelegant. II. not composed or drawn up in writing.

inlĭtus (ill-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from inlino.

in-lōtus (-lautus, -lītus), (ill-), a, um, adj unwashed, not cleansed, unclean, soiled, dirty.

in-lūcesco (-lūcisco), (ill-), ĕre, luxi, intrans. incept. v. I. of the sun or the day, grow bright, begin to shine, break, dawn. Impers. illuxit, dawn broke, day dawned, it was light. II. (fig.) shine, become manifest.

in-luctor (ill-), āri, intrans. dep. struggle in, with, at, or against: verba inluctantia labris, of a lisping child who speaks with difficulty, Stat.

in-lūdo (ill-), ĕre, si, sum, intrans. and trans. v. I. A. (intrans.) 1. play, sport, divert one's self with a thing. 2. make game of, make sport of, jeer, mock, jest at, ridicule: (with dat.) rebus humanis; capto; (with prep. in and acc. or abl.) in Albucium, Cic.; in aliquo, Tac. 3. destroy or waste in sport, wantonly injure, fool away: (with dat.) frondi, Virg. G. ii. 375; chartis, i.e. spoil by scribbling on it, Hor.; pecuniae, Tac.; (absol.) tum variae inludant pestes, play their pranks, Virg. 4. offer insult to, outrage, violate, Tac., Suet. B. (trans.) 1. play upon, sport with: inlusas auro vestes, tricked, fancifully wrought. 2. scoff at, make sport of, ridicule; baffle, disappoint: aliquem; inlusi pedes, i.e. trying to stand steady, but failing to do so, floundering, balked. 3. fool away, destroy, ruin, abuse, maltreat, insult: vitam filiae, gamble away, Ter.; corpus alicuius, Tac.

inlūmĭnātē (ill-), adv. [inluminatus, inlumino], clearly, luminously.

in-lūmĭno (ill-), āre, āvi, trans. v. I. light up, illuminate, place in the light. II. (fig.) set in a clear light, make illustrative or conspicuous, set off, throw light upon, adorn.

in-lūnis (ill-), e, adj. [(2) in ; luna], without a moon, moonless.

in-lūsio (ill-), ōnis, f. [inludo], a mocking, jeering ; in rhet. irony.

in-lustris (ill-), e, adj. [in ; lustro], I. lighted up, clear, bright, resplendent, showy, lustrous. II. (fig.) 1. clear, plain, distinct, evident, transparent. 2. illustrious, noble, distinguished, renowned ; splendid, remarkable, striking: Equites inlustres, i.e. knights of the higher rank, select knights ; cf. eques, II. B. 1. Compar. inlustrior ; superl. inlustrissimus.

inlustrius (ill-), compar. adv. [inlustris], more clearly, distinctly, or perspicuously.

in-lustro (ill-), āre, āvi, ātum, [id.], trans. v. I. light up, make light, brighten, illuminate, give light to, shine upon. II. (fig.) 1. throw light upon, bring into full light, clear up, elucidate, illustrate, explain, make known. 2. render famous, renowned, illustrious, ennoble.

inlūsus (ill-), a, um, perf. pass. part. from inludo.

inlūtus (ill-), a, um. See inlotus.

in-lŭvies, ēi, f. [(2) in; luo], I. dirt, uncleanness, filth, foulness. II. an overflow of a stream, the shallows on the banks at a river's edge, Tac., Curt.

inm-. See imm-.

in-nābilis, e, adj. (poet.) [(2) in; no], that cannot be swum in, unnavigable: unda, Ov.

in-nascor, i, nātus sum, intrans. dep. I. be born in, grow or spring up in. II. (fig.) arise or originate in, be engendered, be excited in.

in-năto, āre, āvi, ātum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) 1. swim or float in, into, to, or upon; with dat., or prep. in and acc. 2. flow over, overflow; with dat. B. (trans.) float or swim upon, cross by swimming, Virg., Ov.

innātus, a, um, perf. part. from innascor. As adj. inborn, innate, inherent, natural.

in-nāvigābilis, e, adj. unnavigable.

in-necto, ĕre, nexŭi, nexum, trans. v. I. entwine, tie, bind, enwrap, fasten, attach, bind together, join: fauces laqueo; colla lacertis; innexa pedem (middle, with Gk. acc.) having its foot tied: innecti cervicibus, to fasten on, cling fast to the neck. II. (fig.) 1. weave, frame, contrive, devise, invent: causas motas; fraudem clienti. 2. entangle, implicate in: conscientiae matris innexum, Tac. 3. join to, connect: Hyrcanis innexus, Tac.

innexus, a, um, perf. pass. part. from innecto.

innīsus, a, um, perf. part. from innitor.

in-nītor, i, nīsus, or nixus sum, intrans. dep., with dat. or abl.; sts. with acc., or prep. in and acc. 1. lean or rest upon, be supported on, support one's self by: hastae; baculo; moderamine navis; in cubitum; in Pansam fratrem. 2. lean upon, press on, bear upon: lixam genu (of an elephant), Hirt. II. (fig.) lean or rest upon, depend or rely upon: praecipuus cui secreta inniterentur, be confided to, Tac.

innīxus, a, um, perf. part. from innitor.

in-no, nāre, nāvi, nātum, intrans. and trans. v.; A. (intrans.) swim or float upon, in, or upon, swim, float, drift, sail: innantes beluae; (with dat.) aquae, Livy; (with abl.) aquā, Suet. B. (trans.) (only poet.) 1. swim (after plunging into): fluvios rapaces, Virg. 2. sail over: Stygios lacus, Virg. 3. (meton.) flow upon, wash: Maricae litoribus, Hor.

in-nŏcens, ntis, adj. I. that does no harm, harmless, inoffensive. II. guiltless, innocent, blameless, faultless, irreproachable, uncorrupt, virtuous, upright. As subst. innŏcens, ntis, m. the upright, disinterested man, Sall. Compar. innocentior; superl. innocentissimus.

innŏcenter, adv. [innocens], harmlessly, blamelessly, irreproachably. Compar. innocentius superl. innocentissime.

innŏcentĭa, ae, f. [id.], I. harmlessness. II. 1. blamelessness, innocence, integrity, uprightness, disinterestedness, esp. as opposed to rapacity and extortion. 2. (coll. concr.) innocence, i.e. innocent persons: innocentiam iudiciorum poenā liberare, Cic.

innŏcŭē, adv. [innocuus], I. harmlessly. II. blamelessly, virtuously, Ov.

in-nŏcŭus, a, um, adj. I. 1. (active) harmless, innocuous, not injurious, not dangerous, that will do no harm. 2. (passive) unharmed, uninjured: carinae, Virg. II. unoffending, inoffensive, virtuous, innocent.

in-nōtesco, ĕre, nōtŭi, intrans. incept. v. become known or noted, come into notice.

in-nŏvo, āre, āvi, ātum, trans. v. renew: se ad suam intemperantiam, revert to, Cic.

in-noxĭus, a, um, adj. I. 1. harmless, innocuous, without doing harm or hurt, not dangerous, without danger. 2. (passive) unharmed, undamaged, unhurt, uninjured. II. that does no hurt, not guilty, blameless, innocent, virtuous: (with gen.) criminis, Livy; consilii, Curt.

in-nūbĭlus, a, um, adj. (poet.) without clouds, cloudless, Lucr.

in-nūbo, ĕre, nupsi, nuptum, intrans. v. marry into: (with dat.) nostris thalamis, Ov.; quo (=in quae) innupsisset, Livy.

in-nūbus, a, um, adj. [(2) in; nubo], unwedded, unmarried (of the woman): laurus, because Daphne had been changed into a bay-tree to escape the embraces of Apollo.

in-nūmĕrābilis, e, adj. countless, innumerable, numberless.

innūmĕrābĭlĭtas, ātis, f. [innumerabilis], a countless number, an infinitude.

innūmĕrābĭliter, adv. [id.], innumerably, in countless ways.

in-nūmĕrālis, e, adj. (poet.)=innumerus, Lucr.

in-nūmĕrus, a, um, adj. I. without number, numberless, countless, innumerable, unnumbered. II. without metre, unrhythmical, loose: numeri, Auson.

in-nŭo, ĕre, nŭi, nūtum, traj. v. nod to, make a sign to, nod, beckon, hint, intimate.

in-nuptus, a, um, adj. I. unwedded, unmarried (of women); maiden, virgin. As subst. innupta, ae, f. a maid, virgin. II. (meton.) not duly performed: nuptiae, a marriage that is no marriage, an unholy or fatal marriage (γάμος ἄγαμος).

in-nūtrĭo, īre, īvi, ītum, trans. v. nourish or bring up in or at.

Inō, ūs, f. daughter of Cadmus, wife of Athamas, mother of Learchus, and Melicerta, and stepmother of Phrixus and Helle. Being pursued by Athamas, who in his madness had killed Learchus, Ino threw herself with Melicerta into the sea. Neptune changed them into sea deities, Ino being known as Leucothea or Matuta, and Melicerta as Palaemon or Portumnus.

in-oblītus, a, um, adj. (poet.) not forgetful, mindful, Ov.

in-obrŭtus, a, um, adj. (poet.) not overwhelmed, not drowned, Ov.

in-observābilis, e, adj. that cannot be observed, that defies observation, undistinguishable: error, i.e. the Labyrinth, Catull.

in-observantĭa, ae, f. [(2) in; observo], inattention, negligence, indifference.

in-observātus, a, um, adj. (poet.) not observed, unobserved, unmarked, unwatched, unnoticed, unperceived.

in-occĭdŭus, a, um, adj. (poet.) I. that never sets: axis, i.e. the north pole, Lucr. II. that never rests: visus, ever open, ever wakeful (of the eyes of Argus), Stat.; ignes, unextinguishable, Claud.

in-ŏdōrus, a, um, adj. without smell or odour, scentless, unperfumed: ossa, i.e. without the usual spices and odours, Pers.

in-offensus, a, um, adj. I. not struck against by anything: meta, untouched, ungrazed, Lucr.; pes, that does not stumble, without stumbling. II. (fig.) unbroken, unimpeded, unhindered, without hindrance or obstacle, uninterrupted, calm.

in-officĭōsus, a, um, adj. I. not observant of one's duty; disobliging: in aliquem, Cic. 2. undutiful: testamentum, i.e. not as a man is duty bound to make it, one that excludes his nearest relatives, Cic.

in-ŏlens, ntis, adj. (poet.) without smell, Lucr.

in-ŏlesco, ĕre, lēvi, ŏlĭtum, intrans. and trans. incept. v.; A. (intrans.) grow in, into, at, upon, become implanted, take root. B. (trans.) implant: amorem alicui, Gell.

in-ōmĭnātus, a, um, adj. (poet.) ill-omened, inauspicious, Hor.

inŏpĭa, ae, f. [inops], I. 1. want of resources, necessaries, supplies; scanty supply, lack, scarcity, dearth. 2. want, need, indigence, neediness, destitution, privation. II. (fig.) 1. helplessness. 2. (of speakers) poverty of ideas or of expression, Cic. 3. want of enjoyment, deprivation, Ter.

in-ŏpīnans, ntis, adj. unsuspecting, not expecting, surprised, off one's guard, unaware, by surprise.

inŏpĭnanter, adv. (inopinans), unexpectedly.

inōpinātō, adv. [inopinatus], unexpectedly, of a sudden.

in-ōpīnātus, a, um, adj. not expected, unexpected. As subst. in-ōpīnātum, i, n. something unexpected. Ex inopinato, adverbially, unexpectedly, contrary to expectation, on the sly.

in-ōpinus, a, um, adj. (poet. and post-Aug.), [(2) in; opinor], unexpected, unforeseen.

in-ops, ŏpis, adj. [(2) in; ops, opis], I. without resources, helpless, weak, feeble, forlorn: inopes relicti a duce; with prep. ab) inopes ab amicis, poorly off for (in respect of) friends, Cic.; (poet. with complementary infin.) conscendere carmen, unable to, Propert. II. 1. helpless through poverty, poor, needy, beggarly, destitute; with gen., in want of, destitute of, bereft of, without, devoid of. 2. (poet.) unsated: semper inops cupido, that never can be satisfied, Hor. III. (fig.) a mean, wretched, poor, paltry, weak. 2. (of speech) poor in words or ideas, meagre, barren.

in-ōrātus, a, um, adj. not pleaded: re inoratâ, without getting one's case heard.

in-ordinātus, a, um, adj. not arranged, disorderly, confused, irregular. As subst. inordinātum, i, n. disorder, Cic.

